You have also requested me to produce my records showing any financial transactions with any of the foregoing persons, or with the Transatlantic Trust Co., or in connection with sales of German or Austrian bonds. I have never had any financial transactions with any of these persons, or with the Transatlantic Trust Company, nor have I purchased or sold any German or Austrian bonds in twenty years.

You have also asked me for any correspondence with brewers, relating to the purchase, control or subsidizing of newspapers, magazines or periodicals. I have never had any such correpsondence.

You have also asked me for the records of the American-Hungarian Loyalty League. I produce these herewith.

Such, gentlemen, is my sworn statement. I am prepared to answer any questions. All my records are at your disposal.

I am a loyal American citizen, and I want to leave no stone unturned to establish that fact beyond a reasonable doubt.

Senator OVERMAN. Now, Major, you may ask any questions you desire.

Maj. HUMES. Mr. Konta, in the statement that you have made you deny any acquaintance with the individual brewers referred to in the Washington Times matter, and you also deny having any correspondence with brewers. I call your attention to a paragraph in your letter to Dr. Dernburg, as follows:

The interests to which I refer—

And you are referring to the brewers—

have repeatedly consulted me on this very subject of a newspaper not hostile to their industry, and I know that they would be more than ready to give their support to the plans now in hand.

To what did you refer in that statement?

Mr. KONTA. For the better understanding of this honorable committee, I wish to state that my wife is a daughter of a St. Louis brewer, William J. Lemp. My sister is the wife of a Milwaukee brewer, Gustav Pabst.

I wish to state to you that about fifteen years ago, in connection with prominent financiers, I was actively engaged in the attempt to consolidate certain breweries. I obtained options on the Schlitz brewery. I had options on the Pabst brewery. I had options on a great many New Orleans breweries, and at that particular time I am speaking of, 15 years ago and until about 10 years ago—because the proposed deal dragged along—my relations, of course, with these brewers were very close.

About nine years ago I was responsible for the partial financing of the Pabst-Schlitz Brewing Co., of Milwaukee, in New York City.

This passage in Dernburg's letter has reference only to my relation and my connection with brewing at that particular period; but at no time during the past eight years have I had any connection or discussion; and to be very frank with this committee, and to shed light to you, Major, so that you will see it yourself—I obtained permission from the lady to make this statement here, because it will immediately clear up the situation—the fact of the matter is that I had a misunderstanding with my wife about eight years ago. It did not result in any divorce suit nor in any legal separation, but we separated, we never met; and naturally all these relations did not continue. But I have brought with me all the correspondence with relation to Pabst and Lemp, and I respectfully submit it for your inspection; and you will find that at no time in the last eight years did I ever have anything to do with them, or any discussions with them nor with any other brewer in this country, of the purchase of a magazine, a daily newspaper, or anything at all. The letter to Dernburg was written because, as I stated in my statement, I thought there was a chance for a commission. It was in December, 1915. Everybody tried to do something to make some profit or get into some business in connection with this war. There were so many openings, and I thought there was an opening there.

Maj. HUMES. Then in your vocabulary the expression "repeatedly consulted" means transactions more than five or eight years prior?

Mr. KONTA. Quite so.

Maj. HUMES. Then you used the expression "repeatedly consulted" with the view of conveying to Dr. Dernburg an erroneous impression of your business relations and your intimacy with the brewing interests that you proposed to interest in a newspaper if one was purchased?

Mr. KONTA. This might be your interpretation of that sentence, Major, but that was not in my mind. I was very eager to get such a commission, and perhaps the verbiage of the letter——

Senator NELSON. Did you have any idea that Dernburg wanted to talk over your option on those breweries?

Mr. KONTA. Most emphatically not, because there was nothing of this kind that had been discussed with Dr. Dernburg, or any options on breweries.

Senator NELSON. I thought that was what you started in to say in explanation of the word "plan", that it related to an option. You began to state that it related to an option that you got some 10 or 15 years ago to buy and consolidate these breweries, and you kept the thing moving along; and then you jumped from that and you stated that you had trouble with your wife, and you were living apart, etc. Now, what other plan do you refer to there than those two things?

Mr. KONTA. Mr. Senator, it seems to me that perhaps—I do not know—perhaps I did not——

Senator NELSON. Did you suppose Dernburg had any interest in your options?

Mr. KONTA. Not at all.

Senator NELSON. Or did he have any interest in the trouble with your wife?

Mr. KONTA. I could not suppose that.

Senator NELSON. But what else did you suppose Dernburg had any interest in?

Mr. KONTA. Dernburg had the interest to find some newspaper in which he could place before the American people the cause of Germany, as he so plainly stated. In other words, he wanted to have a media in which he thought he could place before the American public——

Senator NELSON. And you were ready to help him in it?

Mr. KONTA. If he——

Senator NELSON. You were ready to help him in it, were you not?

Mr. KONTA. If he would have given me a commission to buy a newspaper.

Senator NELSON. That is, you would do anything for a commission, anything to help Dr. Dernburg; is that it?

Mr. KONTA. In December, 1915—yes; that is it.

Senator NELSON. You would have helped Dr. Dernburg, then, if you had only gotten enough of a commission?

Mr. KONTA. Oh, no, Senator; it was not the question of a commission only.

Senator NELSON. Read that quotation again, please, Maj. Humes.

Maj. HUMES. From the Dernburg letter?

Senator NELSON. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. It reads as follows:

> The interests to which I refer have repeatedly consulted me on this very subject of a newspaper not hostile to their industries, and I know that they would be more than ready to give their support to the plan now in hand.

Senator NELSON. What was that "plan now in hand" that you refer to there? What plan in hand had you about newspapers? Explain that. That has nothing to do with this option that you spoke of?

Mr. KONTA. Not at all.

Senator NELSON. It had nothing to do with the trouble with your wife?

Mr. KONTA. Not at all.

Senator NELSON. Now, what was the plan you had in view?

Mr. KONTA. The plan in view was to buy a newspaper in which Dr. Dernburg and his friends, whoever they were, should have a chance to place before the American people——

Senator NELSON. The German propaganda?

Mr. KONTA. That I do not know.

Senator NELSON. What did you suppose? Did you suppose Dernburg wanted to lay before the people the liquor propaganda?

Mr. KONTA. Not at all.

Senator NELSON. What did you suppose he wanted to lay before the American people?

Mr. KONTA. He wanted to lay before them the German cause.

Senator NELSON. The German cause?

Mr. KONTA. Exactly.

Senator NELSON. German propaganda.

Mr. KONTA. You may call it that way.

Senator NELSON. And that was the plan you referred to, then? That was the plan you had in view?

Mr. KONTA. The letter speaks for itself.

Senator NELSON. It was not the plan, then, about the option on these breweries, nor the trouble with your wife, was it?

Mr. KONTA. Not at all.

Senator NELSON. It was the plan simply to get an organ for Dr. Dernburg to ventilate his views before the American people and elaborate the German propaganda, was it not?

Mr. KONTA. It was the plan to get a newspaper for Dr. Dernburg and for the German Government, in which the German Government could place before the American people its side——

Senator NELSON. Why did you not tell us that in the first place? Why go to work and tell us about that option you had and about the trouble with your wife? What did they have to do with it?

Mr. KONTA. This letter here is very clear. This letter states that to Dernburg. That was the object. It states it very clearly, sir.

Senator NELSON. And you were quite ready and willing to help Dr. Dernburg to get an organ here in the United States?

Mr. KONTA. I can not deny that.

Senator OVERMAN. You knew he was an agent of the German Government, did not you?

Mr. KONTA. No; I did not know that he was an agent. I knew that he was—this was in 1915—that he was a man of considerable prominence, known all over the world; and he came over here and was received everywhere. The newspapers gave him hundreds and hundreds of columns. He was in all the American clubs. He was in Washington. He had the entrée everywhere; and at that time nobody had even the slightest suspicion that this country was going to get into any war at all. We were neutral, and, from what I know about continental newspapers and customs, I know that every country always has a media in which it expresses its own interests.

Senator OVERMAN. He wanted this newspaper not for himself but for the German Government?

Mr. KONTA. That is what he wanted.

Senator OVERMAN. Then he was an agent of the German Government?

Mr. KONTA. He must have been; yes.

Maj. HUMES. And you knew that fact, did you not?

Mr. KONTA. I knew that.

Senator NELSON. All those things you said about the entrée he had into society and all that, that would apply also as to Dr. Dumba at been here for years. Perhaps it would be very fair to me to permit me to explain to you how I got acquainted with him.

Senator OVERMAN. With whom?

Senator NELSON. With Tauscher.

Mr. KONTA. With Tauscher. Will you permit me to do so?

Senator OVERMAN. Yes; go on.

Mr. KONTA. Now, perhaps you will understand why I made this remark about my family affairs. In 1912 I moved from my club where I lived, that is, the Manhattan Club, New York, to the St. Regis Hotel, and took an apartment by the year.

Senator NELSON. I give you warning that this committee here are not club people.

Senator OVERMAN. Go ahead, Mr. Konta.

Senator NELSON. And we are not interested in club matters.

Senator WOLCOTT. This is a matter that Mr. Konta feels he would like to put in.

Senator NELSON. All right, but I thought it was fair to him to let him know that we are not club people.

Senator WOLCOTT. Go ahead. You want to explain how you got acquainted.

Mr. KONTA. I moved to the St. Regis Hotel in 1912, took a little apartment there by the year, and a few months afterward I got acquainted with Mr. Tauscher, with his wife, who was then a very prominent member of the Metropolitan Opera, and his daughter.

Senator OVERMAN. What was her name?

Mr. KONTA. Johanna Gadski.

Senator OVERMAN. The celebrated Gadski?

Mr. KONTA. The celebrated Gadski.

Senator NELSON. She is the wife of Tauscher?

Mr. KONTA. She is the wife of Hans Tauscher.

Senator OVERMAN. They are very pro-German.

Mr. KONTA. Undoubtedly, 100 per cent, Simon pure pro-German; very.

Senator OVERMAN. Go ahead.

Mr. KONTA. A few months afterwards I got acquainted with Tauscher; never knew him before; never knew his wife before, but they lived there at the hotel and I lived there at the hotel, and they took their meals there regularly, and so did I, and we became very well acquainted. That is the way I got acquainted with Hans Tauscher.

Senator OVERMAN. What is he doing here?

Mr. KONTA. He represented some of the largest firms in Germany in the ammunition line.

Senator OVERMAN. Krupps?

Mr. KONTA. Krupps, and so on; and he also sold rifles.

Senator OVERMAN. Was he here for the purpose of selling guns and rifles to this country?

Mr. KONTA. I think he was. I am quite sure that he was.

Senator NELSON. Were the Krupps trying to sell cannon here in 1915?

Mr. KONTA. I am speaking of 1912.

Senator NELSON. Oh!

Maj. HUMES. In 1915 he was supplying the dynamite to blow up the Welland Canal, was he not?

Mr. KONTA. I do not know anything at all about that.

Maj. HUMES. Do you not know that is a fact?

Mr. KONTA. I do not.

Maj. HUMES. You know he was arrested for that?

Mr. KONTA. I know he was arrested, and also tried, and I believe he was acquitted.

Maj. HUMES. You were his bondsman at that time, were you not? You furnished the bail?

Mr. KONTA. I should like to explain that to you, if you will permit me.

Senator OVERMAN. State whether you were or not.

Mr. KONTA. I was, for 24 hours.

Maj. HUMES. Now, Mr. Konta, you say that at a conference between yourself and Tauscher and Albert there was a discussion of the truth or falsity of official German reports? Do I gather from your statement that your purpose in writing the letter that you say you wrote was to force them to go on record in a material way in order to establish the v rity of those reports?

Mr. KONTA. No.

Maj. HUMES. What was your motive in writing that letter?

Mr. KONTA. To Albert?

Maj. HUMES. To the New York Times.

Mr. KONTA. Just be ause these men at the dinner stated that whatever the German general staff gives out is absolutely true, and I doubted it most emphatically.

Maj. HUMES. And your purpose was to put them to the test?

Mr. KONTA. That is just exactly what it was.

Maj. HUMES. Have you that letter?

Mr. KONTA. No; I have not—which letter?

Maj. HUMES. The letter that you wrote to Dr. Albert.

Mr. KONTA. These are all three here, I think.

Maj. HUMES. I show you Exhibit 1145. Is that the letter you wrote to Dr. Albert?

Mr. KONTA. Yes: I did.

Maj. HUMES. I submit this letter for the record. (Reading:)

EXHIBIT No. 1145.

JANUARY TWENTY-NINTH, 1915.

H. F. VON ALBERT, Esq.,
45 Broadway, New York.

Strictly confidential.

DEAR MR. VON ALBERT: I enclose a copy of a letter which I propose should been sent to the newspapers of New York, bearing my signature.

Of course, I have made conditions of the most liberal nature, as you can easily see this will be necessary. I am fully convinced that the publication of this letter will be of great sensational advantage to the cause of German sympathy. The accusations have been so persistent, that I believe such a challenge would make a splendid impression, the more because of its fairness.

Now, I take you into my confidence in this matter to secure the benefit of your opinion, but also, I do not feel in a position to undertake the payment of this money myself. I offer to pay my share, but believe that patriotic Germans and other sympathizers should also be willing to pay their share. You realize that it is very probable that the money will never have to be paid, but we will have to send the check.

Will you not please give me your opinion promptly on both questions as to whether you deem this idea a good one and as to whether you think the rest of the money can be found?

With sincere regards.

Very truly,

Mr. KONTA. Hungary was a part of the dual monarchy.

Senator NELSON. Yes; let us not quibble about terms, now. Do you not know that if Austria-Hungary, the dual monarchy, together with Germany, had been successful, the last thing in the world you could have hoped for would have been Hungarian independence?

Mr. KONTA. That I have said hundreds of times on the platform, everywhere, all over the country, and to a great many men of prominence; that the victory of Germany meant the absolute loss of Hungarian independence.

Senator NELSON. Then how came you to sympathize with Germany in 1915, and to be so ready to meet these German representatives?

Mr. KONTA. In 1915, at that particular period, I stated here before, Senator, that—— Senator NELSON. Yes; you had not yet undergone the psychological change you spoke of?

Mr. KONTA. Not at that time; because it is clear—and this is historically true and easily establishable—that only with the help of the German troops did they clear the Russians out of Hungary.

Senator NELSON. When did your mind undergo the psychological change from being a sympathizer with Germany to being a sympathizer with our country and the allies?

Mr. KONTA. After the Lusitania happened, and I can easily prove that. After the Lusitania.

Senator WOLCOTT. Just a moment there. You stated to us awhile ago that in December, 1915, your mind was in sympathy with Germany. The Lusitania, as I recall it, was sunk in May, 1915.

Capt. LESTER. May 7, 1915.

Senator WOLCOTT. So, Mr. Konta, your sympathies were not switched by the Lusitania incident. In fact, they clung to you still—your German inclinations—from May, at least, until December, 1915.

Mr. KONTA. In May——

Senator WOLCOTT. You have got your chronology a little twisted, there.

Mr. KONTA. No; because after the Lusitania incident I not only became estranged from most of these people, which I will easily prove here before long, but I came out publicly and kept away from them as much as I possibly could, even with these friends of mine whom I knew——

Senator WOLCOTT. Now, Mr. Konta, in December, 1915, you were ready and willing to negotiate with Dr. Dernburg, to help him procure a medium through which German sentiment might be disseminated throughout this country, and through which a German appeal might be made for the sympathy of this country?

Mr. KONTA. Yes.

Senator WOLCOTT. In December, 1915. And awhile ago you said that the psychology of your mind at that time was one of sympathy with Germany because of the gratitude which you felt that all Hungarians owed her for saving Hungary from a Russian conquest. Yet, you have just said to us that you lost whatever affection you might have had for Germany, that you lost all feeling of gratitude that you might have entertained toward Germany, the moment she sunk the Lusitania. Now, the chronology of it is that the Lusitania was sunk back in May, 1915, and still in December you were manifesting this very pronounced sympathy with Germany.

Senator NELSON. I may say to my colleague that that is a case of what the lawyers call nunc pro tunc.

Mr. KONTA. I am not a lawyer, but I understand the term.

Senator NELSON. You realize the force of it?

Mr. KONTA. I realize it forcibly. This is all quite true. The Lusitania was sunk at that time, and my feelings changed as soon as the Lusitania horror happened, and I will prove that. You will find that out. Upon investigation you will see that clearly; but after the Lusitania happened this clearing-out of the Russians out of Hungary; that is what I have said all along. About that time, when it occurred, the Russians invaded Transylvania, and it was certain they were going to march up to Budapest. I think it was about that time when it happened.

Maj. HUMES. Let me refresh your recollection.

Mr. KONTA. I shall be very glad if you will.

Maj. HUMES. Do you remember the fact that there was a birthday dinner given to Emperor Franz Joseph in New York on his eighty-fifth birthday anniversary?

Mr. KONTA. I do.

Maj. HUMES. You attended that dinner, did you not?

Mr. KONTA. I did.

Maj. HUMES. And that was in August, 1915, was it not—the 28th of August, 1915—some three months after the sinking of the Lusitania?

Mr. KONTA. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. That is true?

Mr. KONTA. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. Who was present at that dinner?

Mr. KONTA. Oh, I could not recollect all the people who were present.

Maj. HUMES. They were selected guests, were they not?

Mr. KONTA. That I do not know anything at all about, whether they were selected or not.

Maj. HUMES. You were there by invitation?

Mr. KONTA. I was. That was an Austrian dinner, was it not? That is what you have reference to?

Maj. HUMES. Yes.

Mr. KONTA. For the Emperor Franz Joseph of Austria?

Maj. HUMES. Yes.

Mr. KONTA. Yes; I was there.

Maj. HUMES. Was Mr. Berko there? Do you know Mr. Berko?

Mr. KONTA. I know Mr. Berko.

Maj. HUMES. Mr. Orbach?

Mr. KONTA. I know Mr. Orbach.

Maj. HUMES. He was there, was he?

Mr. KONTA. I should not wonder if he was there. I am not sure whether he was.

Maj. HUMES. Do you remember whether Mr. Hammerling was there or not?

Mr. KONTA. That I do not remember.

Maj. HUMES. You do not remember that?

Mr. KONTA. No; I do not.

Maj. HUMES. At that dinner did not Mr. Berko propose a toast to the German Emperor?

Mr. KONTA. I left before any toasts were proposed. If he had proposed, I would frankly tell you so, because that was in August, 1915.

Maj. HUMES. Do you mean to say you were not present at the time Mr. Berko proposed this toast to the German Emperor?

Mr. KONTA. I emphatically mean to say so, because had I been present and had I heard it I would frankly tell you so. I did not propose it.

Maj. HUMES. You remember that Boy-Ed and von Papen were there?

Mr. KONTA. They were.

Maj. HUMES. And Dr. Albert was there?

Mr. KONTA. That I don't know. I suppose so.

Maj. HUMES. Was Dr. Dernburg there?

Mr. KONTA. That I don't know.

Maj. HUMES. Dr. Fuehr, was he there?

Mr. KONTA. No; I do not think so. The first time I saw Dr. Fuehr was in the latter part of 1916.

Maj. HUMES. You were present when Dumba made his speech, were you?

Mr. KONTA. I do not think so. I had to return to my office, and I did return to my office before any speech-making began. I heard no speeches, but I was there.

Maj. HUMES. Who invited you to attend that affair?

Mr. KONTA. I believe I was invited by the consulate.

Senator NELSON. By whom?

Mr. KONTA. By the Austro-Hungarian consulate.

Maj. HUMES. That is, von Nuber?

Mr. KONTA. Alexander von Nuber.

Maj. HUMES. The Austrian consul general?

Mr. KONTA. The Austrian consul general.

Maj. HUMES. This was all subsequent to the sinking of the Lusitania?

Mr. KONTA. Undoubtedly. The Austrians had nothing to do with the sinking of the Lusitania.

Maj. HUMES. Was it not a joint function of the Germans and Austrians both?

Mr. KONTA. I hardly think so. The invitations were sent out by the Austro-Hungarian consul general, and that was an occurrence that happened every year. The old Emperor was about 85 years old, and every year they gave identically the same dinner, but in 30 years that was the second time I ever attended it. I was at that dinner.

Maj. HUMES. You do not remember of the toast by Berko?

Mr. KONTA. I do not, Major. I would have no reason not to tell you if I was there.

Maj. HUMES. I show you Exhibit 1146 and ask you if that is the article prepared as the offer of a reward?

Senator WOLCOTT. Major, what was the date of this reward?

Capt. LESTER. About the 28th of January, 1915.

Mr. KONTA. My recollection is that that is the letter. I can not understand why I have no copy of it. I should love to know how you got it. I have not got it. That is my recollection, that I wrote this letter.

Maj. HUMES. It reads this way:

EXHIBIT No. 1146.

[Copy.]

To the EDITOR OF THE NEW YORK TIMES:

SIR: The question of the veracity of the Germany military and naval general staffs has been so much to the fore of late in the English, French and Russian dispatches, that I wish to make an offer open to all. Be it understood that I am not of German descent, but a Hungarian by birth and an American citizen.

I am not referring to German news derived from unofficial sources, to rumors or reports that have their origin in German papers, either abroad or here. I am speaking of the official reports of the German military and naval general staffs, and this is my offer:

I will give $1000—to be turned over to the Belgian Relief Fund—to whoever will furnish absolute proof of the mendacity of any report sent out from Berlin by the responsible heads of the two German military establishments concerning battles on land, or either frontier, or at sea, and concerning their outcome.

Since it is impossible to all American military and naval officers to act as judges in the matter, I suggest three prominent men in civil life: The Hon. Joseph H. Choate, Prof. Nicholas Murray Butler, and Mr. Andrew Carnegie. If these three gentlemen decline to act, I am willing to accept three native Americans selected by the press of New York,

My offer will be open for the next thirty days. It is the invariable trustworthiness of the military and naval official reports of the German government that leads me to make this offer. It is time that a challenge were made to the unceasing stream of misrepresentations and deliberate falsehoods of the Allies' dispatches.

(Signed) ALEXANDER KONTA.

That is the reward you have just identified?

Mr. KONTA. You know it has never appeared.

Senator OVERMAN. That was in January, 1915?

Maj. HUMES. Yes.

Senator NELSON. You were asking them to furnish you with what we call negative proof. I will call your attention to this phrase of your article:

I will give $1000—to be turned over to the Belgian Relief Fund—to whoever will furnish absolute proof of the mendacity of any report sent out from Berlin by the responsible heads of the two German military establishments concerning battles on land, or either frontier, or at sea, and concerning their outcome.

In other words, you made an offer if anyone would furnish you proof that these reports were a falsehood. That was your offer?

Mr. KONTA. Quite so.

Senator NELSON. You wanted them to prove a negative. You wanted them to furnish you with proof that those reports were not true?

Mr. KONTA. Quite so.

Senator NELSON. You wanted them to prove a negative?

Mr. KONTA. Quite so. That was the result of that discussion.

Senator NELSON. Did not that mean that you wanted that proof to convince your mind that the German staff was not a truthful concern? Did it not mean that you wanted that proof because you were satisfied that the German staff was always right?

Mr. KONTA. No; this letter bears out what I wrote in my letter to Albert; that they were talking, you know, in that Prussian style of theirs, that the German general staff never lies.

Senator NELSON. Did you ask Albert and Dernburg to furnish you proof that the reports of the German general staff were false?

Mr. KONTA. This was not a discussion with Dernburg at all. This was a discussion with Tauscher and Albert.

Senator NELSON. No. Answer my question.

Mr. KONTA. I did not.

Senator NELSON. You did not ask them?

Mr. KONTA. I did not. I suggested to them that they should send this out because this would be a statement of fact.

Senator OVERMAN. What was Albert's reply? Have you got his reply?

Mr. KONTA. Albert thought it was a mighty good idea, but I have not heard anything from him. You have all the Albert correspondence. Nothing came of it.

Maj. HUMES. You say that you suggested to them the propriety of this plan? Did you not in your letter suggest to them that you proposed, yourself, to do this?

Mr. KONTA. Not at all.

Maj. HUMES. And you simply asked them for financial support and cooperation before you inserted the advertisement in the papers?

Mr. KONTA. Not at all.

Maj. HUMES. Is your correspondence susceptible of any other interpretation than that all you sought was their financial assistance and cooperation?

Mr. KONTA. No; my correspondence, I think, and this letter bears it out—it was a discussion at that time. They did not agree with me, and I did not like their not agreeing with me, and I just simply drew that up and said, "Now, look here, if you are so sure of it, let us make up a pot of a thousand dollars, and I will make the proposition myself, and offer a thousand dollars to whosoever could disprove the statements of the German military staff."

Senator NELSON. Had you begun to have doubts about the veracity of the German general staff at this time?

Mr. KONTA. Do you mean now, at this time, or at that time?

Senator NELSON. At the time referred to.

Mr. KONTA. Certainly. That is the reason I proposed this.

Senator NELSON. You had begun to have doubts about the truthfulness of the German general staff?

Mr. KONTA. I was convinced of it.

Senator NELSON. What convinced you?

Mr. KONTA. Because they made certain statements which were so incredible to me that I did not believe them, that is all.

Senator NELSON. And so you hit upon this plan, in your conference with Dernburg and Albert, that it was very essential to prove that the German general staff was a lying staff?

Mr. KONTA. May I most respectfully again call the Senator's attention to the fact that Dr. Dernburg was not present at this conference. That was a family affair.

Senator NELSON. Albert was present?

Mr. KONTA. He was.

Senator NELSON. Did Albert manifest much anxiety on the subject of ascertaining whether the German general staff was a truthful staff?

Mr. KONTA. He did during the discussion, but the next day when he got my letter, when it was a question of making good, of making up the thousand dollars, it seemed he did not, because nothing came of it, nothing was done. This letter never was published.

Senator WOLCOTT. Mr. Konta, what was the decisive engagement that turned the Russians back from Hungary?

Mr. KONTA. That turned them back?

Senator WOLCOTT. Yes; that saved Hungary from Russian conquest?

Mr. KONTA. After Przemysl was taken by the Russians under the Grand Duke Nicholas, then the Cossacks made a most wonderful entry into Transylvania.

Senator WOLCOTT. My acquaintance with the geography there is not very well defined, but was that when they came down through the passes of the Carpathians?

Mr. KONTA. Quite so.

Senator WOLCOTT. Down into Transylvania.

Mr. KONTA. Into Transylvania.

Senator WOLCOTT. And the decisive engagement that turned them back was at this place, which I never could pronounce, which you have just mentioned.

Mr. KONTA. Przemysl.

Senator WOLCOTT. Are you sure that that turning back of the Russian tide occurred between May, 1915, and De ember, 1915?

Mr. KONTA. I am quite sure of it; yes, Senator.

Senator WOLCOTT. I am going to take that up between now and to-morrow, because that particular event seems to me to be of great significanse in determining your attitude of mind; for you can readily see that if this transpired some time later than December, 1915, then your explanation of why the feelings aroused by the Lusitania incident had disappeared and the pro-German sentiment had developed is not at all harmonized.

Mr. KONTA. I will look it up.

Senator NELSON. My recollection is that the Russian infantry and artillery never got through the Carpathians. It was only the advance guard of cavalry that got across.

Mr. KONTA. Senator, I do not know; your recollection may be right, but I tell you that the headlines——

Senator NELSON. Do you not think this is true, that as a matter of fact, barring a few scattering bands of Cossacks, the Russian Army never did invade Hungary?

Mr. KONTA. They did, I think.

Senator NELSON. They were somewhere in Transylvania, if you call that a part of Hungary; they were in Transylvania and Galicia.

Mr. KONTA. I do not know as I have a right to call it a part of Hungary, although it belonged to Hungary for about a thousand years.

Senator NELSON. What I mean is that they did not cross the Carpathian Mountains.

Mr. KONTA. The reports here in the metropolitan press, in the Associated Press and in the U. P. reports, reported the Russians on their way to Budapest, in the headlines, and I believe that can be easily proved.

Senator NELSON. But my recollection is that it was only true of the cavalry; a scouting party that got through the passes.

Mr. KONTA. That I could not remember.

Senator OVERMAN. It is 6 o'clock, and I think we had better adjourn until to-morrow at half-past 10.

(Thereupon, at 6 o'clock p. m., the subcommittee adjourned until to-morrow, Thursday, December 5, 1918, at 10.30 o'clock a. m.)

BREWING AND LIQUOR INTERESTS AND GERMAN PROPAGANDA.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1918.

UNITED STATES SENATE,
SUBCOMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY,
Washington, D. C.

The subcommittee met, pursuant to adjournment, at 10.30 o'clock a. m., in room 226 Senate Office Building, Senator Lee S. Overman presiding.

Present: Senators Overman (chairman), Wolcott, King, Sterling, and Nelson.

Senator OVERMAN. Proceed with the examination of Mr. Konta, Maj. Humes.

TESTIMONY OF ALEXANDER KONTA—Resumed.

Mr. KONTA. May I ask your permission to correct a few errors which, entirely due to confusion on my part, got into the record? To wit, on page 1498 of the typewritten copy, when Senator Nelson said, "That is, you would do anything for a commission, anything to help Dr. Dernburg; is that it?" I answered, "In December, 1915—yes; that is it."

Of course, when I said in December, 1915, I meant in March—March 31 or March 29—because the Dernburg letter was written on March 31, and not in December, 1915. You will find that this man Dernburg was not any more in this country in December, 1915, and on December 8 I made a speech in a public hall in New York City, where I condemned the sinking of the Lusitania, and you will find the verbiage of the speech in the statement I presented to you yesterday. So I beg your permission to make this statement in correction of what I stated yesterday.

Senator OVERMAN. You have our permission to make any correction you want in your testimony, if you want to correct it.

Mr. KONTA. Thank you very much.

Maj. HUMES. Now, Mr. Konta, I call your attention to a paragraph from your formal statement to the committee, as follows:

Regarding the second letter, I did not know at the time what it referred to until I was able to go back to my files at the office to refresh my memory. I then found that it referred to a letter which my brother, Arnold Konta, of Budapest, had written me on January 12, 1915, asking if it would be possible to export wheat to Hungary. My brother also sent a memorandum of a statistical nature, which I have with me, of quantities of wheat then in Hungary. I then recalled that I had looked into this proposition, which was perfectly legitimate, to see if it could be carried out and began to inquire if steamers could be found. I discovered that everybody who was willing to go into a deal of this sort expected an enormous profit. Tauscher, with whom I spoke about it, thought Dr. Albert was the only man who could supply the financial support, and Tauscher promised to take the memorandum up with Albert. I quickly discovered that this proposition was not feasible and dropped the transaction.

Will you explain in detail the nature of that transaction and the correspondence relating thereto?

Mr. KONTA. These are the letters from my brother [indicating papers]. Of course, they are not translated.

Maj. HUMES. Have you translations of them?

Mr. KONTA. I have not, but I will file them with you. I will explain the whole transaction.

Senator OVERMAN. Are these in German?

Mr. KONTA. No; in Hungarian. After they are translated it will become very clear that my brother, Arnold Konta, thought that it was possible in 1915 to export from this country wheat to Hungary. Of course, I did not know much about that; but I thought there was a chance, perhaps, if it was possible, feasible, and permissible, for a transaction. I immediately proceeded to find out whether it could be financed, and I discovered that it would be a very hard task to finance, so I placed the entire matter in the hands, first, of my attorney—the attorney in this instance was Mr. Philip J. Britt, of New York City—and then I sent for a few steamship agents. One was a Mr. Gans, who was recommended to me by Mr. S. Robert, of New York, 906 Park Avenue; but he has a down-town office, too. May I ask my secretary the number of the down-town office?

Mr. BROWN. 21 West Twenty-third Street.

Mr. KONTA. And I also began to inquire with a Mr. Wittenberg, I think. He had a steamer for sale. Then I began to figure up how much it would cost to send wheat to Hungary, and the dangers. I told Tauscher, "I have not the funds to finance such a transaction." He said, "Well, the only man who could do that is this man Albert;" and he spoke to Albert, evidently, and Albert took a good deal of interest in the transaction; but he sent word to me that he would go into this deal only if Hungary were to agree that half of that quantum of wheat, if it ever reached there, would be shipped to Germany. In other words, there was an embargo in Hungary at that time. Crops were not good, and so on and so forth. Well, we began; but I did not negotiate with Albert at all, did not see him at all in connection with this thing, but he sent his attorney to Mr. Philip J. Britt, and when these two attorneys came together Mr. Britt told me, "Now this is no transaction at all; you just keep your hands off;" and I did, and that is all I know about it.

Maj. HUMES. Who was Mr. Albert's attorney?

Mr. KONTA. That is more than I can tell you at this moment, because I do not know it.

Maj. HUMES. Mr. Britt did not advise you as to who was representing Dr. Albert?

Mr. KONTA. I believe he did. He told me that he received a letter—pardon me, I should like to be accurate in my statement—that an attorney by the name of Kaufmann will call on him; but Kaufmann did not call on him, but it seemed one of Mr. Kaufmann's partners called on him. Now, the name of this partner I do not know, but a long-distance phone to Mr. Britt will bring corroboration of this statement. Nothing came of it at all.

Maj. HUMES. Was it Mr. Lindheim?

Mr. KONTA. That is what it was, Mr. Lindheim. I don't know whether it is Lindheim or Linheim; but something like that.

Senator NELSON. What time was this?

Maj. HUMES. This was in January, 1915, as I understand it.

Mr. KONTA. Quite so.

Maj. HUMES. Your first letter from your brother was dated January 12, 1915.

Mr. KONTA. I beg your pardon—if I may see the letter—the first letter is January 12, 1915, and the second letter is January 13, 1915. Just wait one moment. Pardon me, if you will permit me to refresh my memory; my memory on figures and dates is very bad.

Maj. HUMES. If you are looking for that reference that I cited, it is on page 12, I think, of your statement.

Mr. KONTA. Quite so. Yes; 1915. Of course, it could not have been in January, 1915. It must have been four or six weeks afterwards. I do not know the exact date, but I submit the letters to you. I have named to you all the men who were involved in this thing, and I believe they will corroborate my statement.

Maj. HUMES. Did you take this matter up with Dr. Albert in writing—by letter?

Mr. KONTA. I have no recollection thereof. I have no recollection at all. If so, it must be in the files.

Maj. HUMES. You say that the second letter refers to that transaction, in your statement?

Mr. KONTA. This second letter, of course—the whole deal, but it is the second letter.

Maj. HUMES. Will you pick out from the letters which you have produced the particular letter which refers to that transaction?

Mr. KONTA. February 23, 1915 [indicating paper].

Maj. HUMES. I show you this letter, which has been marked as Exhibit 1147, and ask you if that is the letter which you referred to as the one you wrote to Dr. Albert with regard to this transaction?

Mr. KONTA (after examination). That is quite the letter which I have reference to.

Maj. HUMES. I submit the letter to the committee.

FEBRUARY 23, 1915.

Hon. H. F. ALBERT
43 Broadway, New York.

DEAR MR. ALBERT: With reference to the proposition which we have discussed in our several conferences, I write to inform you that I do emphatically believe that the proposition can absolutely be carried out, so far as it applies to yourself. But while I feel convinced of this, I also would say that it can only be done under circumstances of complete mutual confidence, and in this connection I must tell you, for your better understanding of my position, that I have always acted primarily from patriotic motives, and it seems that there are associates who will have to be interested, and who will look for profit, and who will not undertake the proposition without substantial gain to themselves.

Permit me again, nevertheless, to point out to you my belief in the feasibility of the plan, which seems especially certain to me for the reason that all the conditions enumerated can be satisfactorily adjusted right in this city.

In conclusion I wish to thank you very much for your consideration of me in the matter, with which I trust you will be able to go forward successfully.

With kindest regards, believe me,

Sincerely, yours.

Mr. KONTA. Quite so.

Maj. HUMES. That is the letter that you sent to Dr. Albert relative to this transaction?

Mr. KONTA. Quite so; yes.

Senator NELSON. May I ask some questions right there? Who were the men you referred to in that letter who wanted their extra compensation, who had to be seen and fixed?

Mr. KONTA. The ship owners, the insurance people; and some man who wanted to attend to the whole arrangement of the matter was needed to go to Washington to find out whether permission could be gotten in some way or other, whether there was any way at all to export wheat from this country to Hungary; because we were not at war with Austria-Hungary, but still there was a blockade, and it was a risk. That is what we were studying—this problem. My reference to his interest was to the part of the wheat which he claimed for Germany. I was not interested in Germany at all. Hungary was very hard up, had a very bad crop, and the letters will show that they needed wheat very badly, and I thought that I might be able to send them some wheat, not knowing all the difficulties.

Senator OVERMAN. Since this letter has been read and your recollection has been refreshed, I will ask you if you did have conferences with Dr. Albert?

Mr. KONTA. Over the phone only—in this matter only over the phone, and perhaps twice. Then the matter was taken up by the attorneys whom I have named here.

Senator OVERMAN. Did you know what Dr. Albert was doing here?

Mr. KONTA. At that time?

Senator OVERMAN. Yes.

Mr. KONTA. I did not. I thought that he was attending to the financial affairs of the German Embassy. I thought he was the financial man of the German Embassy.

Maj. HUMES. Did you look upon this as a purely commercial transaction?

Mr. KONTA. I looked up this as a patriotic transaction, as far as I was concerned. I was anxious to get wheat to Hungary.

Maj. HUMES. A patriotic transaction from the Hungarian standpoint?

Mr. KONTA. From the Hungarian standpoint.

Maj. HUMES. And the patriotic motive that you refer to as having inspired you on all occasions was a patriotic adherence to Hungary? Is that correct?

Mr. KONTA. No—that is correct, and also if you will read these letters you will find out that they needed the wheat. They did not have it. All my relatives there, there wanted it very badly, and I tried to see if I could not find some way to ship wheat to Hungary.

Maj. HUMES. When you say your primary motive was patriotic, you mean it was a patriotic Hungarian motive?

Mr. KONTA. Well, I could not deny that that is what I thought. It was charity—charity.

Maj. HUMES. What was the necessity for "complete mutual confidence" between you and Dr. Albert?

Mr. KONTA. Because it was a question of financing a large shipment of wheat, which necessitated first and above all—because you could not charter a ship, you had to buy a ship; and the ramifications were such, you see; and that was the reason that nothing came of it, because it became very clear to me that it was not feasible, that it could not be done.

Maj. HUMES. Was the agreement made that one-half of this wheat should go to Germany if it ever reached Hungary?

Mr. KONTA. It never came to that at all.

Maj. HUMES. Had you consented to that?

Mr. KONTA. How could I? It was not really my province to consent to that. How could I do that? That could have been done only by the Hungarian Government.

Maj. HUMES. But you were willing to participate in the transaction with such an agreement entered into by competent contracting parties?

Mr. KONTA. If feasible, if permitted by the Washington authorities, I am frank to say that I was. It was subject to permission, and the attorneys who finally discussed all those details—finally my attorney told me, "Now this is not—you just keep your hands off," and nothing happened at all.

Maj. HUMES. Do you not know, as a matter of fact, that in February, 1915, no permission on the part of the Washington Government was necessary to make shipments to Hungary?

Mr. KONTA. I did not know that as a matter of fact, at all.

Maj. HUMES. There had been no declaration of war at that time.

Mr. KONTA. No.

Maj. HUMES. There was a friendly relation existing between this country and Hungary?

Mr. KONTA. But I know as a matter of fact that at that particular period no matter what one shipped from these shores, one had to have the papers made out, properly viséed by the English consul general's office. I know that as a matter of fact, because I found it out.

Maj. HUMES. Did you not also realize in the negotiations that it would be necessary to plan on running the blockade?

Mr. KONTA. I did not; absolutely not. Of course, that is out of the question, and I did not.

Senator OVERMAN. Why did your attorney ask you to drop it?

Mr. KONTA. Because the risk was too big, and because he found out it would be very hard to get insurance at Washington.

Maj. HUMES. Mr. Konta, as I understand it, the only transactions you had, then, with Dr. Albert were the two transactions that we have been discussing, namely the one with reference to the offer of a thousand dollars reward, and the one with reference to the shipment of this wheat?

Mr. KONTA. Quite so.

Senator STERLING. May I ask a question right there? It was Dr. Albert who insisted that one-half of the cargo of wheat shipped to Hungary should eventually be sent to Germany?

Mr. KONTA. Yes.

Senator STERLING. And you agreed to that arrangement?

Mr. KONTA. I did not.

Senator STERLING. You went on with the negotiations, then, after that, did you not?

Mr. KONTA. It was just a project, and it was subject to ascertaining first whether it could be done at all.

Senator STERLING. You did not disapprove of the plan proposed by Dr. Albert, did you? You were willing, so far as anything you said and did was concerned, that one-half the cargo should go to Germany?

Mr. KONTA. So far as it was feasible at that particular period, in February, 1915, I did not see any serious objection to it at all; but nothing came of it. It was just a project which did not materialize.

Maj. HUMES. I show you Exhibit 1148, a letter from you to Dr. Albert, dated January 28, 1915, and ask you if you wrote such a letter to Dr. Albert?

Mr. KONTA. This seems to be a letter from me, but I do not—I should like to see the original of this letter.

Maj. HUMES. It is taken from the file you have submitted.

Mr. KONTA. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. You have produced that as a copy of a letter.

Mr. KONTA. I never tampered with my files, as you can see. Everything I ever wrote is right there.

Maj. HUMES. Is it not a fact that on January 28, 1915, you wrote this letter to Dr. Albert, reading as follows:

EXHIBIT No. 1148.

JANUARY 28, 1915.

Mr. VON ALBERT,
45 Broadway, New York.

MY DEAR VON ALBERT: I am still without the two letters which I have sent to you Tuesday last marked "confidential." My office boy informs me that he delivered this envelope to your man, who told him yesterday that he handed the letters to you.

Will you be kind enough to let me have these letters, as I wish to keep my records in good shape.

Sincerely yours.

Did you not write such a letter to Dr. Albert?

Mr. KONTA. Undoubtedly I must have written it, and I am just trying to think what it was.

Senator OVERMAN. What office was that at 45 Broadway?

Mr. KONTA. 45 Broadway was the Hamburg-American Line office.

Senator OVERMAN. So Albert had his office in the Hamburg-American Line, did he?

Mr. KONTA. I think he did, yes. Now I will be very frank to tell you that I have no recollection unless—may I ask my secretary to step forth?

Maj. HUMES. If you want to consult your secretary, consult him.

Mr. KONTA. Mr. Brown, is not this letter about those cattle?

Mr. BROWN. I think it was that cattle proposition.

Mr. KONTA. Will you permit Mr. Brown perhaps to explain? I did not remember, but I know what it is now. I know exactly what it is.

Maj. HUMES. If you want to consult Mr. Brown and refresh your recollection, you have that privilege.

Mr. KONTA. All right. I can answer now, because I have a recollection. A man named Grumbach, of Galveston, came to see me about that time, and he said to me, "Mr. Konta, the war won't last long, and it would be a very fine proposition if in South America—in Brazil—cattle could be bought and kept until the war is over, because Europe, after the war, will need live stock worse than anything else," and then he gave me two letters. One was a report from a South American cattle ranch, and the other one—I think we have that here. Have you got that, Mr. Brown?

Mr. BROWN. What is the date of that letter?

Mr. KONTA. January 28, 1915.

Mr. BROWN. I think those letters were returned to him.

Mr. KONTA. I know now what it is. That was the cattle proposition, and he gave me his original proposition, just exactly what he thought could be done, and how he could go over to Brazil and buy cattle and leave them there; and he figured it out, to the cent, what it would cost every month to keep those cattle; and after the war they would be immediately needed, and it would be a good business proposition. Then this man, Grumbach, demanded those letters back, because he wanted to leave the country; and that is all I can remember about this proposition.

Senator OVERMAN. You took the project up with Dr. Albert?

Mr. KONTA. I did send those two letters to Dr. Albert.

Senator OVERMAN. You did have another business transaction with him, then?

Mr. KONTA. It was no transaction.

Senator OVERMAN. Go ahead, then.

Maj. HUMES. Mr. Konta, did not the matters referred to in the exhibit just read include newspaper transactions?

Mr. KONTA. No, sir: at no time, under no circumstances.

(Two letters were here marked "Exhibit No. 1149" and "Exhibit No. 1149–A," reespectively.

Maj. HUMES. I show you Exhibit No. 1149, it being a letter dated January 27, 1915, addressed to you and signed by Albert, and ask you if that letter was not the reply to the two letters which you refer to in the last exhibit? The translation is attached.

Mr. KONTA. I thank you very much. Now I know what this letter has reference to.

Senator WOLCOTT. Which letter—the previous one?

Mr. KONTA. No: this one here, and the other one, too; because my recollection is very hazy, you know. I never had anything to do with the man, and I kept my files just as they were; never touched them, and everybody can see that my files—if you will only give me a moment's time to think over what it was all about. Now, I should like to state to you that Mr. Harper, assistant district attorney, he returned to my attorney here the papers which he had—the Albert papers. You would have found in there this article to which this has reference—statistics about cotton, etc. Unfortunately, we did not find this article when the letters came back to Mr. John Godfrey Saxe. This article was not in there. Do you want me to read it? I will read it.

Maj. HUMES. Yes; read the letter.

Mr. KONTA. I will read the translation [reading]:

EXHIBIT No. 1149A.

JANUARY 27, 1915.

Mr. ALEXANDER KONTA,
43 Exchange Place, New York.

DEAR MR. KONTA: Both letters have now been found; they were mislaid in the hurry. The reference to the "Evening Post" is comprehensible to the extent that the material is naturally known in expert circles. Therefore, it is very satisfactory that the article appears on Sunday. As to the statement concerning export of cotton, I shall call you up again on the 'phone. I do not understand the point mentioned in the letter of January 25th that the principal import of cotton into Germany goes from the United States to Russia, and I consider this rank nonsense.

Furthermore, the statement that substitutes were produced even before the war is not correct, as for example, in the case of cotton they had not thought of it.

Very truly yours,

(Exhibit No. 1149, the original, of which Exhibit No. 1149A is a translation, is here set forth in full in the record, as follows:)

EXHIBIT No. 1149.

H. F. ALBERT,
45 Broadway, New York.

JANUARY 27TH, 1915.

MR. ALEXANDER KONTA,
43 Exchange Place, New York.

SEHR VEREHRTER HERR KONTA: Die beiden Briefe haben sich nun doch gefunden, sie sind in der Elle verlegtworden. Die Bezugnahme der "Evening Post" ist insofern verstandlich, als das Material in Sachverstandigenkreisen naturlich bekannt ist. Daher ist es sehr dankenswert, dass der Artikel schon am Sontag erscheint. Wegen der Bemerkung uber den Export von Baumwolle werde ich mich noch telefonisch mit Ihnen unterhalten. Ich verstehe den in dem Briefe vom 25. Januar cr. erwahnten Punkt, dass die Hauptenfurn Deutschlands an Baumwolle aus den Vereinigten Staaten nach Russland gehe, nicht und ich halte dieses auch fur direckten Unsinn.

Auch die Bemerkung, dass Substitute schon vor dem Kriege hergestellt waren, ist nicht richtig, man hat z. B. be Baumwolle nicht daran gedacht.

Ihr sehr ergebener

ALBERT.

Senator NELSON. Now, can you explain how it comes that you said a moment ago that those two letters referred to cattle?

Mr. KONTA. That is what I thought.

Senator NELSON. Yes; you thought they referred to cattle and South America?

Mr. KONTA. To cattle.

Senator NELSON. Now, from this it appears that they referred to cotton. How do you account for that?

Mr. KONTA. Senator Nelson, if the minutes would be here which were taken in the hearing before the assistant district attorney you will find that I told him that this man called me up repeatedly——

Senator NELSON. Never mind that. I will ask you a simple question that will settle it. Did these two letters refer to cotton or to cattle?

Mr. KONTA. These two letters referred to an article about cotton statistics and not——

Senator NELSON. And not to these cattle in South America?

Mr. KONTA. That is true.

Senator NELSON. That is all.

Maj. HUMES. I would like to ask you as to whether or not this translation is a correct translation of the letter?

Mr. KONTA. I am not a translator.

Maj. HUMES. Well, you can read the original.

Mr. KONTA. I should prefer to have it officially established that it is correct or not.

Maj. HUMES. It is substantially correct, as you have glanced over the letter?

Mr. KONTA. I think so.

Maj. HUMES. You say that there were, in connection with this matter, some cotton statistics. What was the nature of those statistics?

Mr. KONTA. I had nothing to do with those statistics. I again must express great regret that this paper has not been returned. It was in the Albert file. It was a paper brought to me by Tauscher. It was not very interesting. It was just statistics, if I remember correctly. I hardly read it. I just put it into the file and left it there.

Maj. HUMES. Was it a newspaper clipping?

Mr. KONTA. No; not at all. It was a manuscript, which Mr. Harper must have. It was not a newspaper.

Maj. HUMES. And what did you do with that manuscript?

Mr. KONTA. I did not do anything. I put it in the file, and it ought to be in the file. I did not do anything at all with it.

Senator OVERMAN. You say Tauscher brought it to you? Were Tauscher and Albert associated together in the same business?

Mr. KONTA. No.

Senator OVERMAN. What was Tauscher?

Mr. KONTA. Tauscher was representing three or four large firms in Germany.

Senator OVERMAN. Then his relations with Albert were friendly?

Mr. KONTA. They were undoubtedly friendly.

Senator OVERMAN. Why should he take it to you instead of taking it directly to Albert?

Mr. KONTA. Because—my relations to Tauscher were explained to you yesterday, Senator.

Senator OVERMAN. They were very intimate?

Mr. KONTA. We were very good friends.

Maj. HUMES. Was not Mr. Tauscher an official representative of the German Government?

Mr. KONTA. I hardly think so, Major. If he was, I did not know it.

Maj. HUMES. And did he not return to Germany with the embassy and with the embassy staff?

Mr. KONTA. He returned to Germany, I think, with the embassy staff, but not with a passport granted by the embassy—asked by the embassy. He returned to Germany with a passport given to him by the State Department, because he was not a member.

Maj. HUMES. Was anyone permitted to leave with the embassy staff except the official embassy representatives?

Mr. KONTA. It seems very clear to me that Tauscher was permitted to leave, because he received a passport, having been vouched for by some high United States Army officer. At least, he so stated to me.

Maj. HUMES. Do you not know that Mr. Tauscher was made a member of the embassy staff immediately following his indictment in New York in connection with the blowing up of the Welland Canal?

Mr. KONTA. I do not know anything at all about that.

Maj. HUMES. You were on intimate terms with Mr. Tauscher?

Mr. KONTA. No, sir. With your kind permission, Major, I have a letter here from Tauscher and a letter of mine to Tauscher, and that will interest you, Major, and also the honorable committee——

Maj. HUMES. We will get to that in time.

Mr. KONTA. No; but this——

Maj. HUMES. We will get to that in time. Let us go on consecutively with this examination now.

Mr. KONTA. This applies to this examination——

Maj. HUMES. We will get to it in time.

Senator OVERMAN. We will get to it in time. Let him go ahead with the examination.

Maj. HUMES. This statistical data that you received from Mr. Tauscher, what was the nature of it, how voluminous was it, and what was the character of its contents?

Mr. KONTA. I hardly read it. I put it into my file and left it there, and when Mr. Harper on this particular day which is set forth here sent for me and wanted the Albert file, this man, Mr. Brown, brought him the Albert file and said, "Here they are, you can keep them," and this particular manuscript was in that file.

Maj. HUMES. It was a typewritten manuscript, was it?

Mr. KONTA. It was a typewritten manuscript.

Maj. HUMES. Did it discuss anything besides cotton?

Mr. KONTA. I have not—I did not read it. I did not read it.

Maj. HUMES. What did you do with that manuscript when you received it?

Mr. KONTA. When I received this manuscript I just glanced over it and sent it to my office to hold in the file, because I was told that they wanted to have some one write an article about these statistics for some paper; but I did not do that. I had nothing to do with it—did not care to have anything to do with it.

Maj. HUMES. And there never was any article written?

Mr. KONTA. That I do not know.

Maj. HUMES. Well, did you write any article?

Mr. KONTA. I did not—I don't think so—I did not.

Maj. HUMES. You know, of course, whether you did or not?

Mr. KONTA. I ought to know, certainly.

Maj. HUMES. Did you write any article?

Mr. KONTA. I did not.

Maj. HUMES. Did you consult Dr. Albert about those statistics?

Mr. KONTA. I did not.

Maj. HUMES. Now, Mr. Konta, is it not a fact that you prepared and submitted for the approval of Dr. Albert an article to be published in the papers and entitled "America's Economic Interest in the War," as a part of the German propaganda at that time?

Mr. KONTA. That is not a fact, because I did not do it.

Maj. HUMES. I show you a manuscript marked "Exhibit 1150" and ask you if the lead pencil memorandum at the top is not in your handwriting?

Mr. KONTA. The lead pencil at the top is in my handwriting, but I did not write the article. I had nothing to do with it. I remember that, now.

Maj. HUMES. You have seen this article, then, have you?

Mr. KONTA. I see it now; yes.

Maj. HUMES. Then this was an article that was written, based upon the so-called cotton statistics that you had?

Mr. KONTA. This was an article written on the cotton statistics, but the writer of this article did not receive the statistics from me, but he received it directly——

Maj. HUMES. How did this get into your custody, then?

Mr. KONTA. In my custody? That I don't know. I just simply——

Maj. HUMES. You don't know how it got in your custody?

Mr. KONTA. The writer must have given it to you——

Maj. HUMES. I state to you as a fact that Exhibit 1150 is a file that comes from the office of Dr. Albert, with a notation in your handwriting on the top, and ask you how it got there.

Mr. KONTA. Well, I tell you that I did not write this article. I know who wrote it, and can prove he wrote it.

Maj. HUMES. Did you not say a minute ago that no article was ever written based on these statistics?

Mr. KONTA. I told you that I didn't know whether it was or not. I told you I did not know whether it was or not. Now, I know. I know who wrote it. I know who prepared it. I know who wrote every line of it.

Maj. HUMES. Who wrote it? Who prepared it?

Mr. KONTA. Mr. van Westrum.

Maj. HUMES. Who is Mr. van Westrum?

Mr. KONTA. Mr. Van Westrum is a newspaper man.

Maj. HUMES. Spell that name, please.

Mr. KONTA. V-a-n W-e-s-t-r-u-m.

Maj. HUMES. Where does he reside?

Mr. KONTA. That is very hard to tell you. Poor fellow, he is dead. He died about a year ago, but there are ample witnesses for this——

Maj. HUMES. Under what circumstances did he prepare the article, and at whose request?

Mr. KONTA. That I do not know, but I think at the request of Capt. Tauscher.

Maj. HUMES. How did that article come into your possession?

Mr. KONTA. Because Mr. Van Westrum was a particular friend of mine. He used to come to see me twice or three times a week, and he must have brought me this article.

Senator NELSON. Read that pencil memorandum.

Maj. HUMES. I was just going to ask him about that. Why did you put that lead pencil memorandum on this before it was delivered to Dr. Albert: "Copy. Original sent to Times. A. Konta." How did you happen to write that memorandum if the matter only came into your hands incidentally?

Mr. KONTA. Because he asked me to do so.

Maj. HUMES. Who asked you?

Mr. KONTA. Van Westrum.

Maj. HUMES. What else did he ask you to do?

Mr. KONTA. Nothing else in connection with this, as far as I remember.

Maj. HUMES. Why did you give this to Dr. Albert?

Mr. KONTA. Because he wrote this article based on those statistical figures which I have mentioned to you, and the original of which must be in the Albert file in the office of Mr. Harper.

Maj. HUMES. Did you not testify a minute ago that this article was not based upon these particular statistics, but came from another source entirely and had no connection with the statistics that you had?

Mr. KONTA. I did not do anything of the kind.

Maj. HUMES. Did you not so testify?

Mr. KONTA. I did not. I testified that this article was written from another manuscript—that is, another copy of the same manuscript. That is what I testified to.

Maj. HUMES. Where did the other copy of the same manuscript come from?

Mr. KONTA. That I do not know. This man, Mr. Van Westrum, knew these men. He knew Capt. Tauscher; he knew Albert. He knew them very well, indeed.

Maj. HUMES. What newspaper was he connected with?

Mr. KONTA. He was connected with the New York Tribune.

Senator OVERMAN. If he knew them well, why should he have brought that article to you?

Mr. KONTA. Van Westrum and I have been lifelong friends, and he has done work for me, and I have always paid him for the work he did.

Senator OVERMAN. Yes; but he was connected with these two men who represented the German Government.

Mr. KONTA. He only socially knew them, and he met them socially, and this thing came to him, and he wrote every line of this article.

Senator NELSON. Did he prepare this article simply because of his social acquaintance with him?

Mr. KONTA. Not at all. He prepared it because he got paid for it.

Senator NELSON. How?

Mr. KONTA. He was paid for this article.

Senator NELSON. By whom?

Mr. KONTA. That I don't know.

Senator NELSON. How do you know that he was paid, then?

Mr. KONTA. Because he would not write a line without being paid for it. He was a professional writer, a professional newspaper man.

Senator OVERMAN. But he brought it to you as an intermediary before taking it to Dr. Albert?

Mr. KONTA. No; he came to my office twice a week; and undoubtedly he must have—I don't exactly remember how this article came to my office, but I do know that I had nothing to do with it, that I did not do the work. He did it——

Senator KING. What explanation did he offer to you for leaving the original with you, and this copy? And what explanation have you to offer for writing on that copy that the original was sent to the Times?

Mr. KONTA. Because evidently it was in the mind of Mr. Albert to have this statistical data in some newspaper, printed, and inasmuch as Mr. Van Westrum was not able or willing to have it published in the Tribune, he thought that I might be able to place it in the Times.

Senator KING. Did he ask you to send it to the Times for publication?

Mr. KONTA. He might have.

Senator KING. Did he?

Mr. KONTA. I think he did.

Senator KING. Did you?

Mr. KONTA. My recollection is not so sure about that. I may have done so.

Senator KING. Was it signed by you or by him?

Mr. KONTA. That I don't remember.

Senator KING. Have you a copy of the letter, if one was sent to the Times, requesting its publication?

Mr. KONTA. I have not.

Senator OVERMAN. Why did you send it to Albert?

Mr. KONTA. Because the original draft of this proposition came from Albert's office to me; and then inasmuch as I could not do anything at all with it, it seems Tauscher gave a copy, another copy, to Van Westrum. That is the only explanation I can offer. I really do not know what is in the article.

Maj. HUMES. Mr. Konta, is not the letter from Dr. Albert of January 27, Exhibit 1149, a reply which you received from Dr. Albert to a letter with which this was inclosed, and is not his criticism a comment on the cotton situation, and the question of substitutes, a criticism of a portion of the contents of this article that was prepared by you and submited to him?

Mr. KONTA. No; I deny that this was prepared by me, and I furthermore deny that I submitted it to him.

Maj. HUMES. How did he get it?

Mr. KONTA. It may be that I sent it to him at the request of Van Westrum. I had nothing to do with this at all. I would not hesitate to say to you that I had, because I gave you this article. I have handed it over myself, and I had ample time to do what all these other fellows did, destroy their records. I never destroyed any records. My records are just as they ever were, and I offered my records to you gentlemen at all times, and this article——

Maj. HUMES. Whom did you have——

Senator KING. In fairness to the witness, let him finish his answer.

Mr. KONTA. The original of this material, in German, was in the Albert files, and I handed it over to Mr. Harper, and it seems to me that my counsel did not get it back, but Mr. Harper has it.

Maj. HUMES. The original of the statistics, you say, were in that file. Was the original of this article in your file?

Mr. KONTA. The original of this article? No, sir.

Maj. HUMES. Then you did not furnish the Government or anyone else with a copy of this article, did you?

Mr. KONTA. Which Government?

Maj. HUMES. Mr. Harper or anyone else connected with the Government.

Mr. KONTA. I furnished Mr. Harper with the German copy of this material, I think.

Maj. HUMES. Of the material upon which this article is based?

Mr. KONTA. Which it has been based on or written.

Maj. HUMES. But you did not furnish Mr. Harper or anyone else connected with the Government with a copy of the article?

Mr. KONTA. I gave Mr. Harper the entire Albert files; all that transpired between Albert and myself, I handed to Mr. Harper; or, rather, as I explained to you in my statement yesterday, the moment he asked for the Albert letters I immediately informed my office, and whatever transpired between him and me he received in that file, and nothing else ever happened.

Maj. HUMES. You stated a moment ago that this man, Van Westrum, frequently wrote for you and was frequently employed by you to prepare articles for you.

Mr. KONTA. I stated to you before that Mr. Van Westrum was a very old friend of mine; he and I cooperated on several plays and were good friends. He was a very fine writer, and I regret very much that his name is mentioned at all, but the necessity is such that I had to mention him. I can easily prove that he wrote this article.

Maj. HUMES. Who paid him for writing it?

Mr. KONTA. That I do not know.

Maj. HUMES. You say he never wrote an article unless he was paid for it?

Mr. KONTA. Quite so; undoubtedly he was paid for this article.

Senator WOLCOTT. It seems there are two articles, I think, an article embodying statistics, and then an article written up on those statistics. Is that correct?

Maj. HUMES. The witness states that Mr. Tauscher furnished him with cotton statistics, and that those cotton statistics were used as a basis of this article by Mr. Van Westrum.

Mr. KONTA. It was an essay, and this essay is in the hands of the Government in German, and you gentlemen have it.

Senator OVERMAN. Was Van Westrum a German?

Mr. KONTA. Van Westrum was a Hollander, a Dutchman.

Maj. HUMES. Were there any statistics furnished to you by Tauscher relative to copper or oil?

Mr. KONTA. No, sir; not that I remember.

Maj. HUMES. Or with reference to foodstuffs generally?

Mr. KONTA. No, sir.

Maj. HUMES. Then how did the features of this article referring to copper and oil and foodstuffs, in addition to cotton, come to be a part of the article?

Mr. KONTA. I should like to state to you again that I never read this article. I don't know what is in it. It did not interest me at all.

Maj. HUMES. And yet you sent the original of this article to the New York Times?

Mr. KONTA. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. And reported to Dr. Albert that you had so sent it to the New York Times, without ever reading it or knowing what its contents were?

Mr. KONTA. Quite so. I did not have to read anything that Van Westrum wrote.

Maj. HUMES. You were willing to assume absolute responsibility for the contents of this article without reading it?

Mr. KONTA. That is not necessarily so.

Maj. HUMES. When a man sends an article to a newspaper for publication he is assuming responsibility for its contents, isn't he?

Mr. KONTA. As a rule, yes.

Maj. HUMES. And yet you sent this without knowing its contents?

Mr. KONTA. I never read it; do not know anything at all about it.

Maj. HUMES. Would the committee like to have this article read?

Senator KING. Did it appear in the Times?

Maj. HUMES. Not to my knowledge.

Senator KING. Do you know whether it was signed?

Maj. HUMES. This copy is not signed. If there was a signature to the original I have no knowledge of it.

Mr. KONTA. I have told you all the facts in connection with this article, Major, rest assured.

Maj. HUMES. Would the committee like to have this article read into the record at this time, so as to be familiar with its contents? The title of it is, "America's Economic Interest in the War. Our Exports and German Substitutes for Copper, Oil, Cotton, and Foodstuffs."

Senator KING. Is that to be the basis for any further examination?

Maj. HUMES. I think not.

Senator KING. Or will any further testimony be so connected with it that it would not be intelligible without it?

Maj. HUMES. Only so far as the committee may like to inquire as to particular paragraphs of the article. The witness has disclaimed knowledge or authorship.

Mr. KONTA. Absolutely. The witness is also ready to furnish evidence that he did not write it.

Maj. HUMES. It is a typical propaganda article, as they were appearing at that time.

Senator OVERMAN. I think it had better go in.

Senator NELSON. Read it.

Maj. HUMES. I will ask Capt. Lester to read it.

Capt. LESTER. It reads as follows:

EXHIBIT No. 1150.

(Note in lead pencil: "Copy. Original sent to Times. A. KONTA.")

AMERICA'S ECONOMIC INTEREST IN THE WAR.

Our Exports and German Substitutes for Copper, Oil, Cotton and Foodstuffs.

That the war in Europe has entered upon a new phase is abundantly plain. The German expectation of a whirlwind campaign in France has been frustrated; on the other hand, the French and English counter advance, attempted a couple of weeks ago, was stopped a few days after its start, and has now been deferred, we are to understand, till the Spring, when that English army, which keeps on growing in the London despatches, will be landed in Belgium, in France—none knows where, except the general staffs of the Allies—and of Germany and Austria-Hungary, of course. Clearest of all is the fact that England's reliance upon a Russian capture of Berlin—it was to have happened in December—has had to be abandoned for all and all. The Russians we are now exultantly told, are masters of defensive fighting. Which is not at all the task allotted to them at the beginning of the war.

England's promise that her fleet would "drive the rats out of their hole" has remained unfulfilled. As a matter of fact, it now looks as if the British fleet's strategy had become defensive rather than offensive. What is more, the impression is gaining ground in Russia and France that England will not do any more fighting than she can help, in order to be in a strong position to dictate the terms of peace when the time shall come. It is also becoming plain that Great Britain is looking to the future in other directions as well. Battling, according to her own declaration, for civilization and democracy, she has already been forced by circumstances to take Egypt and Cyprus, with, in addition, an expectation in Palestine. The English Government may even be obliged, in the interest of Belgium, to take charge of the Belgian Congo, just as Japan has previously taken charge of Kiao-Chau. Such things have always happened in the history of England's unselfish devotion to the highest good of humanity. It is destiny. Why struggle against its inscrutable ways? Thus did the atrabilious Treitschkean view of the British history come into its existence.

ECONOMIC WAR ON GERMANY.

So far as England is concerned, then, this is chiefly to be an economic war upon her enemy—and, behold, neutral nations are being made without their consent, and, as a matter of fact, much against it, to pay the bills. The merchants and industrials of the United States, Italy, Holland and the Scandinavian countries are the victims. Thus goes the second stage of this economic war.

The first was direct, and did not affect these neutrals so much. It was begun on the day of the beginning of hostilities. German maritime commerce was swept from the seas. The German cable was cut, interrupting all transoceanic commercial relations. German patents were declared void in the British Empire, and English manufacturers are now using them at will. The payment of commercial and other financial obligations to German subjects was forbidden under heavy penalties. Marine insurance by English companies, of merchandise destined for Germany—American goods included—has been prohibited; the transfer of German vessels to neutral flags has been forbidden in order that Germany may not profit by the moneys from such transactions. All direct contraband of war for Germany is confiscated, of course,—a legitimate war measure; but, in addition, England has arbitrarily extended the list of conditional contraband to include articles and products which are chiefly, and, in fact, almost entirely, needed for industrial purposes only, this, of course, to cripple, and, if possible, to destroy German manufacturers. England, playing fast and loose with the declaration of London, which she signed though she did not ratify it, tries, furthermore, to starve Germany out. This may be civilized modern warfare. To me it smacks of the Middle Ages, of war on women and children, like the half-rations dolled out to Boer women and growing children in the South African concentration camps, because their husbands and fathers and brothers persisted in fighting for their country.

OUR INTEREST IN ECONOMIC WAR.

Will this form of British warfare succeed? It begins to look as if here, too, England has made a miscalculation, as she has in the case of that Russian march to Berlin. What I am going to put down here is based upon information furnished me by a number of economic experts. The concensus of their opinion is that Germany cannot be starved out. German industry has already adapted itself to the checks placed upon it, both at home and in the foreign markets that are still open to it. There is no unemployment in the Empire; there is plenty of it in the neutral countries which England forces to pay most of the cost of this economic warfare. German finances have continued on a sound basis. Industrially, then, and first of all, the war has failed. There have been heavy losses, to be sure, but the wounds are healing.

The part that concerns the United States, however, is the bill which, though a neutral nation, it has already paid, and the still greater bill it may have to pay hereafter unless it brings about a change. In the very first month of hostilities, our exports fell enormously, but our imports still more, with the result that a war tax became necessary to make up for diminishing customs receipts. The increase in our sales of war materials to the Allies, with which we are invited to console ourselves, is hardly worth mentioning, the less so as the reserve stocks of our manufacturers, which swelled these exports, are about exhausted now, and hereafter they can only sell the maximum output of their plants from day to day. We are also advised to recoup ourselves by capturing Germany's South American trade. But the difficulty with this counsel is that South America, being neutral, too, pays for this war with a business depression so great and widespread that it may lead to panics. The Latin American republics are not in the markets for large purchases just now.

WHAT GERMANY BUYS FROM US.

Our chief exports to Germany are copper, oil, cotton and foodstuffs. Out of a total of $410,000,000 the amount of our exports to the Empire in 1913, over $250,000,000 represented the sale of these four commodities. Our bill for copper to Germany and Austria-Hungary for that year was $53,000,000; during the same period Germany alone took $115,000,000 of our cotton, or one-fifth of our total export of that staple; our exports of illuminating, lubricating and paraffin oils amounted to $10,000,000 not counting large amounts of benzine; and, finally the value of our exports of foodstuffs to Germany during 1913 reached the respectable sum of $96,000,000, of which $41,000,000 was for wheat.

This, then, is the loss confronting our trade in these four articles alone, if this war lasts another twelve months, as seems to be the general expectation. That England's elastic interpretation of the meaning of "conditional contraband" will extend the list enormously can hardly be doubted. To be sure, our Government has succeeded in having cotton removed from the list of contraband, but even so, its export is so hampered that little can be expected from this exemption. There are different ways of obtaining a desired result, and an indirect one is often the most effective.

American cotton, then, is conditional contraband of war no longer, but—all American ships carrying cotton must seek insurance here; England insists that those destined for Germany shall pass into the North Sea, not by the Northern course, but through the channel, where, in reality, the danger from floating mines is far more serious, and where, as a matter of fact, several freight boats have already been blown up. Every ship is held up, and its cargo examined, without respect for American manifests. In fact everything is done to discourage a trade which is no longer prohibited.

Now, all this may be war, but the most serious aspect of the whole matter is that it threatens to create a permanent loss to our export trade to Germany and Austria-Hungary in the four staples. If we lose this trade now, we are in danger of losing it forever, for what one cannot obtain one learns to do without; and when one cannot do without one looks around for a substitute. And it is with substitutes for our forbidden and hampered exports that Germany is at present very busy. In fact, it may be said that the country's scientists and economists have already found them.

PERMANENT LOSSES TO US.

Germany has already found a way to do without American copper; she has solved in large measure the problem of doing without our oil products; her scientists long ago discovered substitutes for cotton; and as for foodstuffs, the question of a war famine has been disposed of by German efficiency. The nation will have to deny itself many luxuries, but, so far as the necessaries of life are concerned, they will be forth coming, till the end of the war, whenever that may be, and not at famine prices either. Some information has already reached this country concerning some of the measures taken—the "war bread," for instance, and the German reliance upon potatoes. Much more is to be said, however, later on, and it will be of interest to the American farmer and produce merchant, copper miner, and the American cotton grower. Before I proceed to enter into the details of the German substitutes for American products which we are willing to sell to them, but which England forbids us to export, or allows us to export under such difficulties, and with so much interference and delay as to amount sooner or later to practical prohibition, it may be well to recapitulate:

Once Germany becomes convinced that our trade with her is at the mercy of the British naval supremacy, and that it may be interrupted at any time when it suits British policy, even when the two countries shall be at peace, once Germany fully realizes all this, she will systematically set to work to make herself independent of our exports, and will never return to her dependence upon them.

The German substitutes for copper and cotton, and largely for oil products, are not discoveries of the last six months. They have long been known, but have never yet been practically introduced, because in the regular course of peaceful business, it has been more convenient to use American copper, oils, cotton and foodstuffs than their German substitutes. This has been more particularly the case in German textile industry, where the spinning of the substitutes requires certain changes in machinery. It may be assumed, then, that if the British embargo forces these changes in the mechanical equipment of German mills, they will be permanent. Even with a return to an unobstructed supply of American cotton, the German manufacturers will certainly, for the sake of economy, continue to use the substitutes, which, in addition, will benefit German agriculture, as they can be grown in the different parts of the Empire.

It is, therefore, not a question for us of a temporary loss of the German market during the duration of the war, but of its permanent loss, or, at least, of a serious reduction of its annual requirements.

GERMAN SUBSTITUTES FOR COPPER.

England has declared all copper, even that for economical and commercial purposes, to be absolute contraband of war. The extent to which Germany, thanks to the various processes, can dispense with this metal has hitherto been unknown, because, as I have already said, with an uninterrupted supply, there was no reason for introducing the substitutes. In the first place, however, it must be pointed out that the Empire is not entirely without its own source of supply. The Mansfeld copper mines, which could not compete with the American product in an undisturbed market, has been reopened, and fully suffice to supply all German military needs. Therefore, the question resolves itself into one of German industries. The recent discovery of a reliable method of making steel and iron rustproof is one answer. Here, then, iron at once takes the place of copper, which is no longer indispensable, but has been continued in use because it offered the advantage of being more malleable, and therefore cheaper to handle. In the shipbuilding industry, for instance, it is now possible to replace bronze with cast iron. The same is true of brass, as in the building of locomotives. Aluminum and iron are the substitutes for copper for electric cables and high current transmitters. Iron wire has been introduced for long distance conductors from central supply stations. The proper way of isolating iron wire has been perfected. The military telephone system of Germany has been equipped for several years with steel wire, because it is more durable.

All those interested in American copper will understand what all this means—a diminishing dependence of German industry upon the metal. If supplied without interruption, it will be able to hold its place; once Germany learns to do without it, she will never return to it. And with the inevitable improvement of the manufacture and the employ of the substitutes, other countries drawing their supply from us will follow Germany's example.

GERMAN SUBSTITUTES FOR COTTON.

The case of American cotton in Germany is fully as critical. Here, indeed, the substitutes have been known for years; they are in no sense in the experimental stage. They are flax, hemp and nettles. All these plants grow in Germany, and, as in the case of copper, their use was not introduced heretofore because the steady supply of American cotton made this unnecessary. But once it becomes plain to the German industrial that he will have to depend hereafter, as he had depended heretofore, upon a source of supply with which England can interfere at will, and, indeed, it has been made abundantly plain to him during the last six months, he will call for the substitutes grown at home. That German agriculture will be eager to supply this new demand need hardly be said, or that it will be able to furnish all the material required within a short lapse of time. I quote a leading authority, Dr. Hugo Schweitzer, one time president of the Chemist Club of this city, and formerly secretary of the New York section of the British Society of Chemical Industry, says Dr. Schweitzer:

"The success of the nettle fibre industry is to-day entirely a matter of organization, and the cultivation of the nettle plant would also increase the use of flax and hemp, as the mixing of their fibres with those of nettle would open up new avenues for the textile industry.

As I have already said, it is here chiefly a question of certain changes in machinery. Is it likely that the German textile manufacturers, having been forced to the expense of these changes by arbitrary interference with their supply of cotton, will scrap their new machinery to return to the American staple when it becomes freely obtainable again? It is the less likely because they will remember the lesson (they are not likely to forget it) that the supply may be cut off again at will during the next war, even though Germany and America shall both remain neutral. The interference with neutral Italy's importation of American cotton during the present war is there to serve as a permanent warning. And, be it repeated, the same lesson is conveyed by England's interference with neutral Holland's imports of American foodstuffs.

As with American copper, so with American cotton it is not a question of interference with our exports during the duration of the present war. It is a question of the whole future of these important American products. Furthermore, other countries beside Germany will make themselves independent of a source of supply that can be shut off at will by a third power.

Senator OVERMAN. Unless the committee desires to hear the full article read, I think we have heard enough of it at this time.

Capt. LESTER. The rest of the article deals with cotton, oil products, and foodstuffs.

Maj. HUMES. And with substitutes for cotton.

Senator OVERMAN. The whole article will be printed in the record.

Capt. LESTER. Its purport is to warn American manufacturers that they are likely to lose all their trade after the war.

(The remainder of the article is here printed in the record, as follows:)

GERMAN SUBSTITUTES FOR OIL PRODUCTS.

In the case of American petroleum and its products, Germany had already begun before the outbreak of this war to establish elaborate central electrical light and power plants, on the American system. This will do away increasingly with the use of petroleum as an illuminant. These central plants are organized with state and municipal assistance, and furnish light and power at cost. It may also be added that in Germany "spiritus" (Grain and potato alcohol) forms an important substitute for petroleum; and in addition there are calcium carbide and acetylene. The most important German substitute for petroleum, as a motor fuel, however, is coal tar benzol, which can be extracted in almost unlimited quantities from coke. The technical difficulty of its practical use has been overcome by a simple change in the carburetor. The substitution of lignite coal for petroleum as a lubricant has thus far been kept back in Germany only by the abundant and cheap supply of the American oil products. But should lignite coal once firmly establish itself through the forcible prohibition, for any length of time, of the importation of American petroleum, the German market would certainly be lost to us.

Once more, it is not a question of a temporary interruption of our exports, but of a crippling dealt to them, whose effects will last.

GERMAN SUBSTITUTES FOR AMERICAN FOODSTUFFS.

So far as American wheat is concerned, Germany has a substitute in the rye which it grows, and which hitherto it has freely exported. But beside rye the Empire possesses a most valuable substitute for wheat in the potato, which proved its importance in times of war as long ago as the days of Frederick the Great. In ordinary times Germany produces annually 55,000,000 tons of potatoes. Of these 25% are used as food, and 40% as fodder. Until quite recently 10% of this harvest, that is, 55,000,000 tons were lost because the potatoes were spoiled by being kept too long. This huge loss, however, has been done away with by two scientific inventions—the evaporation of the potato, and its preservation by a chemical process in which bacteria cultures play the chief part. Already before the war Germany had 600 "driers" for evaporation of potatoes, an economically most important industry, as it made the potato trade independent of seasons. Since the beginning of hostilities 300 more of these driers have been put up by the Government. A reduction of the production of potato alcohol and of starch to the absolutely necessary will complete this translation of waste into foodstuff sufficiently great to supply Germany's present lack of wheat. The use of potato flour, in baking the so-called "war-bread" of the Empire has already been made familiar to readers of the American press. As a matter of fact, however, this form of bread, with its 10% to 15% of potato flour, is nothing new in Germany. It has been used by the German farmers in different parts of the country for many years because the potato flour admixture serves to keep it fresh.

I may here refer also to our exports of fodder for cattle—oilcake, bran, husks, etc., unconsidered by-products whose total amounted in our export account with Germany in 1913 to the tidy little sum of $15,000,000. For these, too, Germany has found a substitute in the potato.

The list of agricultural substitutes which Germany is learning to use instead of our products might be considerably enlarged, but enough has been said to prove the growing danger that threatens the future of the American export trade in its four most important commodities.

It is not a question of inconveniences and losses during the war alone, or even chiefly. It is a permanent loss of most valuable foreign markets that threatens us. It is not Germany that is being starved, it is the American producer and exporter of copper, cotton, oil, and foodstuffs. Think it over.

Maj. HUMES. Since you have had your recollection refreshed from that article, Mr. Konta, I call your attention again to the statement in Mr. Albert's letter to you, of January 27, wherein he says, "The statement that substitutes were produced even before the war is not correct, as for example, in the case of cotton they had not thought of it." With your recollection refreshed, do you not think the letter of January 27, 1915, was a reply to your communication submitting the article?

Mr. KONTA. I am not sure about that. It is probable. The article was handed to me, and I sent it to him. I had nothing to do with the article. It is not my style. I do not know anything at all about this.

Maj. HUMES. The statement also appears in the article, does it not, that "the principal import of cotton into Germany goes from the United States to Russia"? That statement is made in that article, and Dr. Albert, in this letter to you, says that that is rank nonsense, does he not?

Mr. KONTA. You have the letter before you, Major.

Maj. HUMES. Does not that indicate that this letter is a reply to yours submitting that article?

Mr. KONTA. This letter seems to be a criticism on the article.

Maj. HUMES. Yes.

Mr. KONTA. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. Then what is meant by this: "The reference to the Evening Post is comprehensible to the extent that the material is naturally known, in expert circles?" What reference had you made to the Evening Post, that called for a reply of that kind?

Mr. KONTA. I do not recollect exactly what it was. If there had been any reference made by letter, it must be in the files. It must be some other article, perhaps, or something. I do not know what it is.

Maj. HUMES. I show you Exhibit No. 1151, as the only other letter in your Albert file. Did you have any other correspondence with Dr. Albert than the letters you have produced here?

Mr. KONTA. I do not think so. I am quite sure I did not. All the correspondence I had is in my file.

EXHIBIT No. 1151.

JAN. 25, 1915.

Mr. VON ALBERT,
45 Broadway, New York.

DEAR MR. VON ALBERT: I have engaged the tickets to the banquet of the Explorers' Club on Jan. 29th at the Hotel Astor, and count you, of course, as one of the party.

Trusting to have the great pleasure of seeing you on this interesting occasion, I remain,

Cordially and sincerely yours,

Maj. HUMES. You have produced no letter containing any reference to the Evening Post. How do you account for the absence of that letter?

Mr. KONTA. There is just one explanation possible for it. If there was anything at all pertaining to an article in the Evening Post, if there was a letter written of a few lines, it may have been written in they had a Christmas tree, and little presents for everybody, and that was the first time that I met him, was in that party.

Senator WOLCOTT. Did you see much of him at that party?

Mr. KONTA. I did not.

Senator WOLCOTT. You just saw him there as one of the guests?

Mr. KONTA. I just saw him there as one of the guests, yes.

Senator WOLCOTT. Do you recall having any rather intimate conversations with him on that occasion?

Mr. KONTA. I emphatically had none; no conversation.

Senator WOLCOTT. And then on January 27 you invited him to this dinner at which Admiral Peary was to be present?

Mr. KONTA. Quite so.

Senator WOLCOTT. Had he asked you, at the Christmas party at Mr. Tausher's house, or expressed at that party a desire to meet Admiral Peary, do you recall?

Mr. KONTA. No; I do not recall that at all, because he did not, on that occasion.

Senator WOLCOTT. What was the date of this dinner to Admiral Peary; do you recall?

Maj. HUMES. January 29 was the date of the dinner.

Mr. KONTA. January 29.

Senator WOLCOTT. What is the date of the letter of Mr. Konta sending this article to Dr. Albert?

Maj. HUMES. We have not that letter. We have the reply, January 27; that was the date of the reply of Mr. Albert.

Senator WOLCOTT. Here is what is striking me as rather curious, Mr. Konta; it seems, from your statements to me, that your relations with this man Albert were purely formal, and perhaps best described by saying that they were merely casual; and yet, even before you met him so intimately as at the Peary dinner, you had been sending him articles reporting to him on cotton, transmitting to him for criticism an article on the United States industrial interests after the war, and you had also, evidently, written to him about some matter in connection with the Evening Post. How does it come about that you should bother yourself to communicate such things as that to a man whom you only casually knew?

Mr. KONTA. It is quite true, Senator, that I only casually knew this man. I do not believe that I met him, all told, more than about four or five times, to talk to him, face to face. He used to 'phone me. He was a friend of Mr. Tauscher's, and it seemed Mr. Tauscher was with him almost every day—at least I think so—and Mr. Tauscher used to come up to see me, in that particular period, believing that I could help him to place an article of that sort; but I could not. The best proof that I could not is that it has not appeared. That is all.

Senator WOLCOTT. You were sending it to him, then, because of your known interest, on his part, in spreading propaganda that would be of assistance in creating pro-German sentiment? That seems to be the situation? That seems to be the situation to me. Is that correct, or not?

Mr. KONTA. It is not correct, Senator, because there was no such interest on my part, to start German propaganda. If there would have been, I would have gone about it in an entirely different way. I would have personally seen to it that such an article, clearly statistical——

Senator NELSON. Why did you send him this article?

Mr. KONTA. At the request of Mr. Tauscher. This man Van Westrum brought it to me and I sent it to him. I never read it. It is the first time I heard it, this article.

Senator WOLCOTT. Why do you imagine you were used as an intermediary by this man?

Mr. KONTA. As an intermediary? I imagine it was only because it seems Mr. Tauscher, who knew that I very often wrote something occasionally for the papers, thought perhaps I might be used for the publication of such material; but they never did use me. They could not; that is all.

Maj. HUMES. But over your own signature you say you sent that article to the New York Times. They were using you, were they not?

Mr. KONTA. I do not think I ever said that, Major.

Maj. HUMES. The notation you wrote at the head of that article said that the original had been sent to the New York Times, and you signed that memorandum yourself, did you not?

Mr. KONTA. Will you be kind enough to have that read? I never said that.

Senator KING. Did you not state that the original had been sent to the New York Times, of your own knowledge?

Mr. KONTA. Not that I remember, Senator. I did not say that. There seems to be some kind of a mistake here.

Senator KING. Did I ask you whether you sent it?

Mr. KONTA. I do not remember whether you asked me, Senator. I do know that I have no such recollection, of ever having sent this article to the New York Times.

Senator KING. How do you know that it was sent to the Times?

Mr. KONTA. I do not know that it was sent.

Senator KING. Why did you state that, in the memorandum that you annexed to the article?

Mr. KONTA. To be sent to the New York Times—is not that it, on the article? That meant that they should send it, if they wanted to; if they had somebody to send it.

Maj. HUMES. It says the original was sent to the New York Times. That is what the memorandum is.

Mr. KONTA. Then Mr. Von Westen must have sent it to the New York Times. I did not. I had nothing to do with it.

Senator KING. Your language is not in futuro, but relates to something that had been done—the original "sent," which would indicate that it had been sent.

Mr. KONTA. That is easily establishable, if it was sent. If it was sent, it was not sent by me. Had I sent it, I would not hesitate to say so; but it was not sent by me.

Senator KING. Do you positively affirm, now, that you did not send it?

Mr. KONTA. I am absolutely quite certain that I did not send it to the Times. I may have taken charge of this manuscript and sent it on to Mr. Albert, but I never read it. It is the first time that I heard the contents of this article, because it is dry, and never interested me.

Senator KING. Did you see the original?

Mr. KONTA. The original?

Senator KING. Yes.

Mr. KONTA. Senator, I saw one German copy, which was in the Albert file in German; German statistics; and there was written on it "Albert"; and that was handed over to Mr. Harper, district attorney, in the Albert file; but unfortunately it has not been returned. We only received the Albert file back a few days ago. As soon as we knew that we would have to produce the Albert file, my attorney demanded from the district attorney the return of the Albert file.

Senator OVERMAN. Did you say Mr. Van Westrum brought it to you and asked you to send it to the New York Times?

Mr. KONTA. Mr. Van Westrum?

Senator OVERMAN. Yes.

Mr. KONTA. That is very probable—no; Mr. Van Westrum brought it to be sent back to Mr. Albert. That is my recollection of it.

Senator OVERMAN. You said he could not get it in the Tribune, and wanted you to get it to the Times, as I understand?

Mr. KONTA. Not me, at all. He did the translation; that is my recollection. I know I did not.

Maj. HUMES. Do we understand you to say that this is merely a translation of the German statistics that you had?

Mr. KONTA. This article here?

Maj. HUMES. Yes.

Mr. KONTA. No. From what I heard here, it is a little bit more than a translation. It is an original article written by some writer who incorporated, undoubtedly, the material which he received from these people.

Senator KING. Did you know that Mr. Van Westrum had been employed by representatives of Germany to write articles prior to the time when this particular article was brought to you by Van Westrum?

Mr. KONTA. I did not know anything at all about that; and I would be very much surprised were I to learn that such is the case.

Senator KING. Then when he brought you this article, you knew that he had been employed by somebody representing Germany to write this particular article?

Mr. KONTA. I knew that he knew Mr. Tauscher very well, and I knew he met Mr. Albert and some of these other men, and I knew that he was in sympathy with them—with their cause—although he was a Dutchman; but he was pro-German at that time, in 1915. April, 1915, he was pro-German.

Senator KING. You knew this, at any rate, that this article was written by him at the request of some representative of Germany?

Mr. KONTA. Of Mr. Tauscher.

Senator KING. Why did you not think it remarkable that he should bring that article to you, rather than transmit it through the person who employed him to produce it?

Mr. KONTA. I did not think that at all extraordinary, because Mr. Van Westrum used to come up to my office twice a week. I stated that before. He and I would go out to luncheon together, and discuss topics.

Senator KING. Why did you not ask him to hand it to the man who employed him?

Mr. KONTA. I did not care to do that because he was in the employ of the New York Tribune, and perhaps that was his reason.

Senator KING. But did he come to you and say: "I have been employed by Germany to write this article, but I am ashamed to deliver it to the man who employed me, and want you to deliver it?"

Mr. KONTA. Nothing of the kind; because he would not have been ashamed. He was undoubtedly a man of honor.

Senator KING. Have you given the only explanation you care to give, or can give, as to why you came into possession of this article?

Mr. KONTA. Why I came into possession of this article?

Senator KING. Have you given the only explanation you care to, or that you can give, as to the reason why you came into possession of this article?

Mr. KONTA. That is the only explanation I can give.

Senator KING. All right.

Mr. KONTA. It is not a question of care. I would like to give you all the explanation I am capable of.

Senator KING. Speaking for myself, I find no explanation in your explanation.

Maj. HUMES. Mr. Konta, is it not a fact that you frequently visited Dr. Albert's office in the fall of 1914?

Mr. KONTA. That is absolutely and emphatically false.

Maj. HUMES. Did you occasionally visit his office in the fall of 1914?

Mr. KONTA. Never. I have been there just once, when he invited me to luncheon; just once.

Maj. HUMES. Did you ever meet Dr. Fuehr?

Mr. KONTA. Where?

Maj. HUMES. Any place?

Mr. KONTA. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. Where?

Mr. KONTA. At Mr. Tauscher's house.

Maj. HUMES. When?

Mr. KONTA. About 1916; in the latter part of 1916.

Maj. HUMES. And not until 1916?

Mr. KONTA. That is my recollection.

Senator WOLCOTT. I thought you said the first time you saw Dr. Albert since leaving St. Louis was in December of 1914?

Mr. KONTA. That was at Mr. Tauscher's house, at the Christmas party.

Senator WOLCOTT. But now you have just said that you did see Dr. Albert in the fall of 1914?

Mr. KONTA. No; that is a mistake, Senator.

Capt. LESTER. He said he saw Dr. Fuehr.

Senator WOLCOTT. No; I am going back a question or two.

Maj. HUMES. That is true, Senator.

Senator WOLCOTT. You said in response to Maj. Humes, just a moment ago, that in the fall of 1914 you saw Dr. Albert upon an occasion when he invited you to luncheon. Am I not correct in that, Major?

Maj. HUMES. Yes; in the fall of 1914.

Senator WOLCOTT. And yet a little while ago you told me, when I was tracing the relationship between you two men, that the first time you saw Dr. Albert since leaving St. Louis was in December of 1914, at this Christmas party.

Mr. KONTA. Well, Senator, I do not know——

Senator WOLCOTT. If there is a mistake there, clear it up.

Mr. KONTA. There is just this to be said, Senator: I stated that the first time after I had seen this man in St. Louis, in 1904, was only on one occasion, and a disagreeable one for him. I have seen him again once, at this Christmas party in 1915, I think—1914; but this luncheon had not taken place, as you think, and as you thought that I stated, in 1914. The luncheon was the occasion when this man wished to repay to me the invitation which I extended to him to come to the Explorers' Club to meet Admiral Peary. Then he invited me to luncheon; and that was the only instance that I ever have been in his office.

Senator WOLCOTT. Your fixing of the time, then, as the fall of 1914, was erroneous—was a mistake?

Mr. KONTA. I do not remember having fixed the time as 1914; but if so, then it certainly is a mistake; because it is absolutely clear to me, now, that the luncheon was occasioned only by this man wishing to repay my courtesy in inviting him to the Explorers' Club to meet Admiral Peary. Having been my guest at that Explorers' Club dinner, he wanted to give me a little luncheon.

Maj. HUMES. And you never met Dr. Fuehr until 1916?

Mr. KONTA. Such is my recollection, Major.

Maj. HUMES. Is is not a fact that in the fall of 1914 you and Dr. Albert had several conferences looking to the purchase of a large New York daily newspaper?

Mr. KONTA. That is absolutely and most emphatically false; and I want to state that in unequivocal terms, so that there will be no mistake about it, that that is false; I never have been in his office in 1914, and never had any meetings, never discussed newspapers with him, at all.

Maj. HUMES. Did you not, at that time, devise a plan for the purchase, and after consultation with Dr. Albert, secure the approval of your plan, and was it not decided that Dr. Albert should ask the imperial chancellor of Germany for a sum of money, up to 2,000,000 marks, for the purchase of a controlling interest in a newspaper?

Mr. KONTA. Most emphatically no.

Senator OVERMAN. Who was this man Fuehr, with whom you were associated? Let us get these things straight in the record. You were associating with Mr. Tauscher, a German agent, and with Dr. Albert, a German agent, and a German sympathizer Van Westrum. Now, who is Dr. Fuehr?

Mr. KONTA. I think it was stated in my statement yesterday that he was a gentleman who came over here—at least I was told that he was a gentleman who came over here—at least I was told that he came over here from China and could not proceed to Germany; he was a very charming man, a man of the highest education, and one of the best read men I have ever met in my life?

Senator OVERMAN. He was a German?

Mr. KONTA. Undoubtedly, a German.

Senator OVERMAN. An agent for the German Government over here?

Mr. KONTA. I do not know anything about that at all, Senator.

Senator OVERMAN. Where was his office? Was it in the offices of the Hamburg-American Line?

Mr. KONTA. No, sir; I never have been in his office. I do not know whether he had an office, I do not know that he had an office, and I do not know anything at all about it.

Senator NELSON. Had he not been a representative of the German Government in some oriental country before he came here?

Mr. KONTA. That I do not know anything at all about, Senator. All I do know is that he came over here from Germany and that I met him at Mr. Tauscher's home; that I do know, and that he was a really interesting man to meet, a historian, and a splendid writer.

Senator NELSON. Oh, I have no doubt he interested you.

Maj. HUMES. Do you know Marcus Braun?

Mr. KONTA. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. How long have you known him?

Mr. KONTA. Ever since I have been in New York.

Maj. HUMES. Do you not know that he was in the employ of Ambassador von Bernstorff?

Mr. KONTA. I do not.

Maj. HUMES. Did he not participate in some conferences that you had relative to the purchase of a New York newspaper?

Mr. KONTA. Never.

Maj. HUMES. Did you ever consult with Mr. Braun on that subject?

Mr. KONTA. I never did. Major, may I produce some evidence now?

Maj. HUMES. I suggest that we go on with the examination, and then you can explain anything you want to afterwards. That will make a more orderly procedure.

Mr. KONTA. All right.

Maj. HUMES. You are familiar with the time that Dr. Dernberg came to this country in the spring of 1915, are you not?

Mr. KONTA. I am not.

Maj. HUMES. You know that he came to this country in the spring of 1915?

Mr. KONTA. Not necessarily so. I met him once.

Maj. HUMES. You wrote him a a letter in 1915, did you not?

Mr. KONTA. I did.

Maj. HUMES. That was shortly after he came to this country?

Mr. KONTA. That was the result of that meeting.

Maj. HUMES. That was very shortly after he came to this country, was it not?

Mr. KONTA. That I do not know, Major.

Maj. HUMES. Are you acquainted with Mr. George Sylvester Viereck?

Mr. KONTA. The last time I met George Sylvester Viereck was about 12 years ago.

Maj. HUMES. That was the last time you have seen him?

Mr. KONTA. Absolutely the last time.

Senator OVERMAN. Did you ever meet Mr. Bernstorff?

Mr. KONTA. Never.

Maj. HUMES. Were you ever at the office at 1123 Broadway?

Mr. KONTA. Never. 1123 Broadway?
Maj. HUMES. Yes.
Mr. KONTA. What kind of an office is it?
Maj. HUMES. Dr. Fuehr's office.
Mr. KONTA. Never in my life. I never put my foot in it.
Maj. HUMES. Or in Mr. Viereck's office?
Mr. KONTA. Never in my life.
Maj. HUMES. Or William Bayard Hale's office?
Mr. KONTA. Never in my life. I do not know him. I never saw him.
Maj. HUMES. Is it not a fact, Mr. Konta, that as a result of your conferences on the subject of the purchase of a New York newspaper, after Dr. Dernburg came to this country, you found that he was opposed to a program of that kind, and that his opposition resulted in a number of conferences; and that finally, under pressure of all the other German agents in this country, Dr. Dernburg agreed with them that Marcus Braun ought to go to Germany to consult the Imperial German chancellor with a view of securing the necessary financial support looking to the purchase of a New York newspaper?
Mr. KONTA. I do not know anything at all about what you said to me just now, Maj. Humes. My relations with Marcus Braun, as you will see immediately, are not such that he would come to me with any kind of a proposition.
Maj. HUMES. I did not say that he came to you. I said you used him as the messenger to go to Germany.
Mr. KONTA. I used him?
Maj. HUMES. The conference.
Mr. KONTA. No, Major; that is so false that words fail me to tell you what I think about this, or whoever brings this accusation.
Maj. HUMES. Did you know of the fact that Mr. Marcus Braun did go to Germany?
Mr. KONTA. Now, that is different. I believe in—let me think—1916, I think it was, this man, Mr. Braun, came up to my office and said: "I am going to go to Europe. What can I do for you?" And I said: "You can not do anything at all for me. If you go to Budapest, go and see my brother and tell him I am well and alive. That is all."
Maj. HUMES. That was in 1916?
Mr. KONTA. That was in 1915 or 1916; I am not sure.
Maj. HUMES. Did you not testify a minute ago that you had not seen Marcus Braun for 12 years?
Mr. KONTA. That was Mr. Viereck—Sylvester Viereck, and not Marcus Braun. That is what I testified—Sylvester Viereck; that I have not seen him for 12 years, nor spoken to him during 12 years; but not Marcus Braun.
Maj. HUMES. But you have been on friendly terms with Marcus Braun?
Mr. KONTA. I have not been on friendly terms with Marcus Braun. I will show you presently what my terms with Marcus Braun have been.
Maj. HUMES. Did Marcus Braun tell you what he was going to Germany for?
Mr. KONTA. Certainly not.

Maj. HUMES. About what season of the year did he go to Germany?

Mr. KONTA. I could not remember that so distinctly. I paid no attention to it.

Maj. HUMES. What was Marcus Braun's business at that time?

Mr. KONTA. Mr. Marcus Braun's business at that time was that he owned a weekly paper; I think it was called the Fair Play.

Maj. HUMES. Fair Play?

Mr. KONTA. I am quite sure.

Maj. HUMES. Did you know that Ambassador von Bernstorff was the owner of a considerable portion of the stock of that periodical?

Mr. KONTA. I did not know anything about that at all. It did not concern me, and I never asked any such questions, and had nothing to do with it, and did not care what Marcus Braun did.

Maj. HUMES. Are you still on friendly terms with Marcus Braun?

Mr. KONTA. Mr. Marcus Braun called on me about two weeks ago, and I was very much astonished that he should call on me; and he then suggested that he would like to go to San Francisco to get certain information regarding some Hungarian who was or is connected with the Alien Property Custodian, but that he had no money, and he wanted to know whether I would not finance him. I said, "No; I am not interested at all." And I did not finance it; of course not.

Maj. HUMES. Had there been an estrangement prior to that time between you and Marcus Braun?

Mr. KONTA. There was no particular estrangement, just as there never was any friendship between Marcus Braun and me. I will presently show you, if you will allow me, the whole Marcus Braun file. I have brought that with me.

Maj. HUMES. What induced you to bring the Marcus Braun file with you when you came down here on this occasion?

Mr. KONTA. Because I have been informed that there is going to be an investigation in connection with the Hungarian Loyalty League, and with Hungarians in particular, and I thought I would bring along all kinds of files so that if anybody asked for anything I might be in a position to supply you with it.

Maj. HUMES. Was Mr. Braun connected with the Hungarian Loyalty League?

Mr. KONTA. Most emphatically not; because he opposed it from the very beginning, and he was fighting it from the very beginning; because he thought that he is a loyal citizen, and does not need to join a loyalty league. He never was a member, and never had anything to do with it.

Maj. HUMES. Mr. Konta, did you not assist in the preparation of the memorandum that Mr. Marcus Braun carried to Germany for submission to the German Government with relation to the purchase of this newspaper?

Mr. KONTA. Most emphatically and most positively, no.

Maj. HUMES. How long did Mr. Marcus Braun remain in Germany, or in Austria?

Mr. KONTA. How should I know? How do I know Marcus Braun? I will show you my relation with Marcus Braun that will open your eyes.

Maj. HUMES. Were you not a frequent visitor at Dr. Albert's office up to January, 1917?

Mr. KONTA. I stated to you, Major, in unequivocal terms, and I meant it, that I have been in that office only once. I went there because this man invited me to luncheon; and that was shortly after the dinner at the Explorer's Club. He said: "Come and have luncheon with me." And I went down and had luncheon with him, and never before nor since have I entered his office.

Maj. HUMES. Did you ever receive any remuneration of any kind, or any money for any purpose from Alexander von Nuber, the Austrian consul general at New York?

Mr. KONTA. I never did, and I stated it yesterday, I never had any financial transaction of whatsoever nature with Mr. von Nuber, or his predecessors, or anybody in connection with the consulate. I never put my foot into the Austro-Hungarian consulate for the last seven years. I never had any transactions with them. And the file with Mr. von Nuber is here, respectfully submitted.

Maj. HUMES. Was there an estrangement between you and the Austro-Hungarian consulate and Mr. von Nuber?

Mr. KONTA. It was an estrangement caused by the visit of Michael Karolyi in 1914, June or July; and, of course, Mr. Karolyi did not visit the Austro-Hungarian consulate, because he was not in sympathy with the embassy and the consular officials.

I received Mr. Karolyi and the five members of the independent party. They were my guests, and I took them up to Albany, and I took them to meet Mayor Mitchell, and sent them on their road in this country for the purposes proposed, with which you are familiar; and, naturally, the consul general did not like it. First, he felt hurt that this man, Karolyi, who is an important man—he is to-day the governor of independent Hungary, if newspaper reports are true—did not call on him. He felt hurt in his vanity, and he did not like the entire move, which is natural; because it was not a movement that an Austro-Hungarian consul general would like.

Maj. HUMES. From the time of this visit, then, you were not on friendly terms with the consulate or with Mr. Von Nuber?

Mr. KONTA. I was not on very friendly terms with the consul general or any member of the consular staff. I reiterate it to you again, that I never put my foot into the Austro-Hungarian consulate, and do not know where it is to-day.

Maj. HUMES. Yes; in August, 1915, Mr. Von Nuber invited you as his guest and the guest of the consulate to the birthday celebration of Emperor Franz Joseph?

Mr. KONTA. That is quite true. That is an event that has been arranged every year, and this was the eighty-fifth celebration of an old man, at a very rare old age, and some of my other acquaintances insisted that I must go. He could not very well not invite me, because, after all, in the colony, if this word is permissible, I had some little prominence, and he had to invite me.

Maj. HUMES. Do you know George Von Skoll?

Mr. KONTA. Yes, sir.

Maj. HUMES. Who was he?

Mr. KONTA. George Von Skoll is a German newspaper man, and also a correspondent for some German newspapers in Germany. If

I am not mistaken—but then I did not know him—he was connected with the Staats Zeitung, perhaps the editor, even; but I did not know him at all until after the war.

I met him once, in connection with the bazaar—the German bazaar, the German Austor-Hungarian bazaar—held at Madison Square Garden.

Maj. HUMES. On what date?

Mr. KONTA. That is something I can not remember.

Maj. HUMES. What year was it?

Mr. KONTA. Oh, they had it twice, I believe.

Capt. LESTER. December, 1915.

Mr. KONTA. Was it December, 1915?

Capt. LESTER. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. Were you active in that bazaar?

Mr. KONTA. I was made by the Hungarian colony the honorary president. I never took part in their deliberations, and never was present at their meetings, but they made me honorary president, and I have collected for them a great many donations and sent them in.

Maj. HUMES. You furnished a photograph of yourself that was published in connection with the program for that bazaar, did you not?

Mr. KONTA. I did not; for the simple reason that I have no photographs taken for the past 25 years.

Maj. HUMES. Your photograph was published on the program, was it not?

Mr. KONTA. Then somebody must have taken a flashlight picture.

Maj. HUMES. And you were active in that affair?

Mr. KONTA. I was the honorary president of the Hungarian branch, and I was active because it was, at least I thought it was, charity; and I got them all the meat that they needed for their kitchen, and I got them all the beer which they needed for their purposes; because they had a Hungarian branch in this bazaar, and they had a goulash kitchen, and so they needed meat and they needed beer, and I got them the meat and I got them the beer.

Maj. HUMES. And this was in December, 1915, some seven months after the sinking of the Lusitania?

Mr. KONTA. That is the date; yes.

Maj. HUMES. Did you ever hear of the Iron Cross Society?

Mr. KONTA. I did not.

Maj. HUMES. Did you not know Mr. Von Skoll as a member of that organization?

Mr. KONTA. I did not. What? The Iron Cross?

Maj. HUMES. Yes.

Mr. KONTA. No; I did not.

Maj. HUMES. You knew that Von Skoll was a German agent, and was in the employ of Dr. Albert?

Mr. KONTA. I did not know anything at all about his being a German agent; not at all.

Maj. HUMES. You knew that he was in the employ of Dr. Albert?

Mr. KONTA. I did not know that. I did not know that he was in the employ of Dr. Albert. I thought he was in the employ of Mr. Von Papen, and I think you are mistaken about that, Major.

Maj. HUMES. Did he not occupy an office with Dr. Albert?

Mr. KONTA. That I do not know, because I have only once been in Dr. Albert's office and I did not see Von Skoll there.

Maj. HUMES. Do you know Wolff Von Igel?

Mr. KONTA. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. Did he occupy offices near Dr. Albert?

Mr. KONTA. I know nothing at all about it.

Maj. HUMES. Do you know where his office was?

Mr. KONTA. I never have been in his office.

Maj. HUMES. You did know Von Papen?

Mr. KONTA. I did.

Maj. HUMES. You thought Von Skoll was an employee of his, rather than of Dr. Albert's?

Mr. KONTA. That is what I thought.

Maj. HUMES. You knew Von Papen was a representative of the German Government, did you not?

Mr. KONTA. I believed that he was the military attaché of the German Government. That is what I believed.

Maj. HUMES. Then you knew that Von Skoll was connected with the German Government as an employee of Von Papen?

Mr. KONTA. Quite so.

Maj. HUMES. When did you get acquainted with Von Skoll?

Mr. KONTA. I will tell you, Major, when the question of financing—I do not know whether you are familiar with this part of it, but inasmuch as you asked me, I have to explain it. The papers are in the hands of the alien property custodian, as you know. They had the Bridgeport Projectile Co. Do you know something about that?

Maj. HUMES. Yes; I know something about that.

Mr. KONTA. Surely. They wanted to finance this Bridgeport Projectile Co. and make a corporation out of it and bring it on the market.

Maj. HUMES. Who are "they"?

Mr. KONTA. Mr. Hoadley, who came to see me about it, and Mr. Tauscher, of course, and some man in Bridgeport; I believe his name was McNeill. All of the letters and correspondence are in your possession, or in the possession of the Custodian of Alien Property. Everything was looked into very carefully. We sent a man to Bridgeport to look over this factory, and our intentions were, if we could get it free of any ties and we could make out of it a regular munition factory for the allies, that it might be a very fine financial proposition.

Senator OVERMAN. For the allies?

Mr. KONTA. For me and for the bankers who were connected with it; because there were some bankers connected with it.

But then the trouble came. The Germans said that the basis of this contract for the refinancing of this corporation was an agreement between the German Government and this Bridgeport Projectile Co., which was undoubtedly built by German capital for purposes of their own; but they refused to show that contract. They said they could not show that at all, and of course nothing happened. All the attorneys in connection with this deed, I can name them to you, and the bankers I can name to you.

Now, on this occasion it looked as if they might agree that this Bridgeport Projectile Co., which they had built up out of their own funds, might be taken charge of by another corporation and worked in the interests of an American company. This man Von Skoll came up and said, "Now, here, we will have to have a newspaper propaganda, and I have been told that I am going to make this propaganda in the German papers, for the sale of the shares in the Bridgeport Projectile Co., to be created—to be reorganized"; and this other man, McNeill, he was the one to look after the American papers.

That was the only occasion that I met Von Skoll, to fix it; but I knew who he was. I knew he was editor of the Staats Zeitung in years gone by, and I knew he was a correspondent of German papers.

Maj. HUMES. In connection with the Bridgeport Projectile Co., you submitted to Mr. Hoadley and to Mr. Tauscher and to Mr. Heynen several propositions as to how the concern could be refinanced, did you not?

Mr. KONTA. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. What year was that?

Mr. KONTA. Let me see; that could have been 1915 or 1916—was it not? I do not remember. Please help me out, Major. There is no desire on my part to deny anything at all about that.

Maj. HUMES. It was either 1915 or 1916.

Mr. KONTA. Well, when was it?

Maj. HUMES. Did it not cover a considerable period of time? Did it not cover portions of both years?

Mr. KONTA. The papers in connection with this are all in your hands, and all you have to do is to look them up, and I will not deny it. This is a clear case; there were so many Americans connected with this. I do not want to make a statement that I do not know anything about at all.

Maj. HUMES. The question was as to how the stock could be put upon the market?

Mr. KONTA. Quite so.

Maj. HUMES. You knew at that time that that concern was practically owned by the German Government, did you not?

Mr. KONTA. Quite so.

Maj. HUMES. You knew that the Bridgeport Projectile Co. was organized for German purposes?

Mr. KONTA. Quite true.

Maj. HUMES. You knew that one of the purposes of the Bridgeport Projectile Co. was to furnish a means of causing industrial disasters that might spread into other munition factories?

Mr. KONTA. Most emphatically and positively not. I did not know anything at all about that.

Maj. HUMES. Did you, in the spring of 1915, hear of any industrial troubles in the Union Metallic Cartridge Co. and the Remington Arms Co.?

Mr. KONTA. I certainly did not.

Maj. HUMES. You knew nothing about that?

Mr. KONTA. Nothing at all.

Maj. HUMES. Did you hear of any labor difficulties at the Bridgeport Projectile Co.?

Mr. KONTA. I did not. I did not know anything at all about it.

Maj. HUMES. Did you ever meet Mr. David Lamar?

Mr. KONTA. I did not.

Maj. HUMES. You do not know him?

Mr. KONTA. Never. 1123 Broadway?

Maj. HUMES. Yes.

Mr. KONTA. What kind of an office is it?

Maj. HUMES. Dr. Fuehr's office.

Mr. KONTA. Never in my life. I never put my foot in it.

Maj. HUMES. Or in Mr. Viereck's office?

Mr. KONTA. Never in my life.

Maj. HUMES. Or William Bayard Hale's office?

Mr. KONTA. Never in my life. I do not know him. I never saw him.

Maj. HUMES. Is it not a fact, Mr. Konta, that as a result of your conferences on the subject of the purchase of a New York newspaper, after Dr. Dernburg came to this country, you found that he was opposed to a program of that kind, and that his opposition resulted in a number of conferences; and that finally, under pressure of all the other German agents in this country, Dr. Dernburg agreed with them that Marcus Braun ought to go to Germany to consult the Imperial German chancellor with a view of securing the necessary financial support looking to the purchase of a New York newspaper?

Mr. KONTA. I do not know anything at all about what you said to me just now, Maj. Humes. My relations with Marcus Braun, as you will see immediately, are not such that he would come to me with any kind of a proposition.

Maj. HUMES. I did not say that he came to you. I said you used him as the messenger to go to Germany.

Mr. KONTA. I used him?

Maj. HUMES. The conference.

Mr. KONTA. No, Major; that is so false that words fail me to tell you what I think about this, or whoever brings this accusation.

Maj. HUMES. Did you know of the fact that Mr. Marcus Braun did go to Germany?

Mr. KONTA. Now, that is different. I believe in—let me think—1916, I think it was, this man, Mr. Braun, came up to my office and said: "I am going to go to Europe. What can I do for you?" And I said: "You can not do anything at all for me. If you go to Budapest, go and see my brother and tell him I am well and alive. That is all."

Maj. HUMES. That was in 1916?

Mr. KONTA. That was in 1915 or 1916; I am not sure.

Maj. HUMES. Did you not testify a minute ago that you had not seen Marcus Braun for 12 years?

Mr. KONTA. That was Mr. Viereck—Sylvester Viereck, and not Marcus Braun. That is what I testified—Sylvester Viereck; that I have not seen him for 12 years, nor spoken to him during 12 years; but not Marcus Braun.

Maj. HUMES. But you have been on friendly terms with Marcus Braun?

Mr. KONTA. I have not been on friendly terms with Marcus Braun. I will show you presently what my terms with Marcus Braun have been.

Maj. HUMES. Did Marcus Braun tell you what he was going to Germany for?

Mr. KONTA. Certainly not.

good enough to give bail for me." I said, "Tauscher, I do not particularly enjoy this situation, but of course I will gladly do that."

Then they arrested Tauscher and took him up to the Department of Justice building, and I followed, and there I arranged with an insurance company to give bail for him; but the next day I informed the insurance company that I did not care to remain on his bail at all and it was taken up and somebody else went on his bail.

Now, Mr. Chairman, may I ask a few questions?

Senator OVERMAN. Of whom?

Mr. KONTA. I would like to ask a question of you.

Senator OVERMAN. All right.

Mr. KONTA. Mr. Chairman, there have been a great many questions asked me in the last 25 minutes of which I know nothing at all, and I am absolutely sure and certain that some one must have furnished such information against a citizen who for 30 years has lived in this country, and who has never had a single instance of misunderstanding with any branches of the Government. I never was fined in 30 years. Yet I am asked whether I know Von Rintelen, and whether I know this man, and whether I know that man, and whether I had any dealings with Marcus Braun, and so on. Do you not think, gentlemen, that a citizen is entitled to know, at least, who his accusers are? I would like to know. Because, really, this is America, and I would like to know who my accusers are.

My conscience is absolutely clean. I came here to this court with clean hands, and I defy any branch of any Government to show that I have ever been guilty of anything that a self-respecting American citizen would have to blush for.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I want to know who my accusers were. I know that there have been a lot of the scum of the earth that have been asked questions about me, about my past, about by name, and about my crimes, and all that; and now I am entitled to know, because I am a citizen; I have lived up to my duties to Uncle Sam in every respect and at all times; and this has got to stop; and if it does not stop, gentlemen—I may be a victim, and some more like me, poor victims, but the result is going to be very bad.

Senator OVERMAN. Well, let us have no more of that now.

Maj. HUMES. Have I asked you of an acquaintance with anyone except Von Rintlen that you have not known?

Mr. KONTA. You have asked me whether I am intimate with Marcus Braun, and you have asked me whether I knew Von Rintelen.

Maj. HUMES. Have I asked you about an acquaintance with any man except Von Rintelen that you have denied knowing?

Mr. KONTA. I have emphatically denied to know Von Rintelen.

Senator OVERMAN. That was not the question. He asked you if he had asked you about anybody except Von Rintelen that you did not know. Has he asked you about any man except Von Rintlen that you have not known?

Maj. HUMES. You have known every other man that I have inquired about, have you not?

Mr. KONTA. I have.

Maj. HUMES. That is all. Just a moment. Do you know Mr. Burgomeister?

Mr. KONTA. I do not. What is his name?

Maj. HUMES. Burgomeister?

Mr. KONTA. I do not.

Maj. HUMES. Formerly connected with the Hamburg-American Line?

Mr. KONTA. I do not. I never traveled with the Hamburg-American Line in my life. I always go over every year to Europe, but I do not know who Mr. Burgomeister is.

Maj. HUMES. Did you not know Mr. Burgomeister or meet Mr. Burgomeister when you were in Dr. Albert's office, and did you not know that he was Dr. Albert's assistant?

Mr. KONTA. I did not. I did not know him; and I do not know whom I met there. I do not know him. I never was introduced to him. I would not hesitate to tell you if I did know him.

Maj. HUMES. Do you know Karl Heynen?

Mr. KONTA. Yes, sir; I know Karl Heynen.

Maj. HUMES. You met Karl Heynen in connection with the Bridgeport projectile matter, did you not?

Mr. KONTA. And I met him at Tauscher's house several times.

Maj. HUMES. Karl Heynen is now interned, I believe?

Mr. KONTA. That is what I believe.

Maj. HUMES. Did you not, in 1915, discuss with Dr. Albert a shipment of flour to Germany?

Mr. KONTA. I never did. I have told you all I know about Dr. Albert.

Maj. HUMES. I should add here that David Lamar is another man that you were asked about that you did not know.

Mr. KONTA. I know him by reputation only. He is known as the "Wolf of Wall Street."

Maj. HUMES. You are acquainted with Mr. Horvath and Mr. Berko?

Mr. KONTA. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. They were connected with you in the organization of the American Hungarian Loyalty League, were they not?

Mr. KONTA. Not Mr. Berko; just Mr. Horvath. Which Mr. Horvath do you mean? Horvath is a very common name.

Maj. HUMES. The publisher from Cleveland.

Mr. KONTA. He is just the New York representative of the Cleveland publisher. Yes; he was the treasurer of the Loyalty League.

Maj. HUMES. And you and Mr. Berko and Mr. Horvath and some others were the ones that, after consultation with Mr. Creel, organized the American Loyalty League?

Mr. KONTA. That is not quite so, Major.

Maj. HUMES. In what particular is it in error?

Mr. KONTA. Because Mr. Berko was not asked, was not a party, was not in the Hungarian Loyalty League organization. He was not a member of the executive committee. Mr. Berko is just the publisher of a New York daily.

Maj. HUMES. Was not Mr. Berko in the party that came to Washington to consult and confer with Mr. Creel?

Mr. KONTA. Most emphatically not. More than that, when I went to Cleveland to start the league, Mr. Berko attacked the league, and attacked the meeting at Cleveland; and I sent the secretary of the league to Judge Lamar and informed him so, and Mr. Churchill——

Senator OVERMAN. Who is Judge Lamar? Of the Post Office Department?

Mr. KONTA. Judge Lamar, of the Post Office Department, and Mr. Churchill, who was then——

Senator OVERMAN. An intelligence officer?

Mr. KONTA. No; he was the publicity manager of foreign papers connected with the Bureau of Public Information. Now, this is almost amusing, Major——

Maj. HUMES. We are glad to have anything that is amusing.

Mr. KONTA. When I went to Cleveland, nobody was at Washington but myself, and then it was arranged—that was the wish of the bureau—that this league should be formed out West, and not East. When I started to go out West an editorial appeared in Mr. Berko's paper attacking that whole meeting and the society, and the reading of this article caused my relations with Mr. Berko to be unfriendly; and they became only friendly after the League was formed because I needed him.

Maj. HUMES. You needed him? And after these attacks you took him into the league and gave his paper a very considerable amount of advertising, did you not?

Mr. KONTA. Major, the Hungarian Loyalty League was formed for the purposes as clearly enumerated here last night. There are two daily Hungarian papers in America, one at New York and the other at Cleveland. It would be impossible to start any movement and to carry it out to a successful termination without the cooperation of the daily newspapers. Unfortunately 80 per cent of the Hungarian immigrants in this country are still not citizens; and I regret to say to you gentlemen that they do not learn English as fast as other immigrants; but that is not as much their fault as it is the fault of our immigration laws.

I realized that if I wanted to make a success—and we have made a gigantic success of this league—we would have to have the cooperation of the daily papers.

So, then, after the league was formed and I received my appointment from the Government, which I have here with me——

Senator OVERMAN. Who appointed you?

Mr. KONTA. Mr. Creel.

Senator OVERMAN. Did he pay you a salary?

Mr. KONTA. One dollar a year.

Senator OVERMAN. How much money did they give you to spend?

Mr. KONTA. Two thousand and forty dollars; and every postage stamp is accounted for, and the account is here, and the man who handled the money is here, and it was a special account in a bank, and we are ready to submit to you an accounting for every postage stamp. I paid more than $2,000; it cost me more than $4,000, because I paid all my own expenses. I would not accept anything from the Government, and I have devoted nine months of my time to it. I kept these Hungarians whose hearts were not with us in order, and there was not a single strike; there was not a single disturbance. Time and time again employers of labor sent for us, and I left my home and my business and I went there and settled all the strikes. I have letters from large employers of Hungarian labor and I have letters here from Government officials who were present when I handled the situation out in the country, hundreds of miles from New York; and, of course, this is not a direct reply, but this is just informatory to this honorable committee, but I want to give you the reasons why I, who had some grievance against this man, realizing that I had to have his newspaper, used his newspaper after both proprietors, both editors, agreed that everything that the United States Government wished them to do—everything that any branch of the United States Government wished them to publish—they would publish free of charge. And they did it. The Department of the Interior, the war-savings stamps, and this other——

Senator WOLCOTT. The Liberty loan?

Mr. KONTA. The Liberty loan; thousands and thousands of inches, free of charge.

Maj. HUMES. Was that secured by you or by Mr. Hamerling? Mr. Hamerling said yesterday that he had accomplished all of that free advertising.

Mr. KONTA. I do not know anything about that. If you wish to class me with Mr. Hamerling, that is all right. I will tell you what I did. What I tell you I can prove. Mr. Hamerling had nothing whatsoever to do with these things which I state to you. I can show you, by the inches, and I can show you the accounts of this league; and although it was not necessary, because we know that seven men may form a league, I insisted that the treasurer of the league had to send a regular monthly statement with bills, amounts paid, a sworn statement, to Washington.

I have the copies here, and you can look at them, and you can keep them here. You can inspect the books, and I guarantee to you that there is not a postage stamp that has not been accounted for, moreover, not a cent that has been spent unnecessarily, or without reason or cause.

Maj. HUMES. In addition to financing your office and your headquarters, the Committee of Public Information also directly financed the branch offices over the country, did they not?

Mr. KONTA. Major, I stated to you yesterday that of all the petty cash which my office received, not a penny have I ever used. It was deposited to a special account at the Equitable Trust Co., and it is right here to show you.

Maj. HUMES. That is not answering the question.

Mr. KONTA. Pardon me.

Maj. HUMES. I was not asking you about your accounts, but if there were other accounts?

Mr. KONTA. The other accounts were paid directly by the Government, Treasury checks.

Senator OVERMAN. We will take an adjournment until 3 o'clock.

(Whereupon, at 1 o'clock p. m., the subcommittee took a recess until 3 o'clock p. m.)

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The subcommittee, pursuant to the taking of the recess, reconvened at 3 o'clock p. m.

TESTIMONY OF MR. ALEXANDER KONTA—Resumed.

Senator OVERMAN. The committee will come to order. Proceed, Major.

Maj. HUMES. Mr. Konta, there was some discussion this morning of this German bazaar. Were you a regular attendant at that bazaar?

Mr. KONTA. I was there on three or four different occasions.

Maj. HUMES. And you had a general interest in the financial outcome, and the entertaining features, as well?

Mr. KONTA. I did not; I was just a visitor.

Maj. HUMES. You were just a visitor?

Mr. KONTA. That is all.

Maj. HUMES. You were there on three or four different occasions, you say?

Mr. KONTA. I was there on three or four different occasions.

Maj. HUMES. Is it not a fact that at that bazaar they used French and English soldiers as the targets in the shooting gallery that was one of the sources of income of the bazaar?

Mr. KONTA. If that is a fact, I do not know it; because it was not connected with the Hungarian section of the bazaar. There was nothing like that in the Hungarian section. When I went there I was naturally interested only in the Hungarian department. They had about 20 different booths, and there were no English and French soldiers there, at all.

Maj. HUMES. There was a shooting gallery as a part of the bazar, was there not?

Mr. KONTA. That may be. If there was, I do not know it.

Maj. HUMES. You did not see it?

Mr. KONTA. I did not see it. I had nothing to do with the arrangements of the bazar.

Maj. HUMES. Are you acquainted, or were you acquainted, with Mr. Pernitzer, president of the Transatlantic Trust Co.?

Mr. KONTA. I have seen Mr. Pernitzer to speak to only once. I have seen him years afterwards, once at the War Savings, again when he came to America, I believe it was about 1912—no; I am not sure whether it was 1912 or 1911; I can not say. He called on me and asked me to open an account at his bank, something that I did not do, and I never had an account, and never had any transaction with him whatsoever, or with the Transatlantic Trust Co. My books will show that, and the books of the Transatlantic Trust Co., which are now in the hands of the Alien Property Custodian, must show it. There is not a chance in the world of my name being on his books in any way, directly or indirectly, because I had nothing whatsoever to do with the trust company.

Maj. HUMES. Mr. Konta, you say that you met Dr. Fuehr in 1916?

Mr. KONTA. That is my recollection.

Maj. HUMES. Was that the first time you ever met him?

Mr. KONTA. Such is my recollection. I met him long after the big war started, and the story told to me is just as I told you before, that he came from China with his wife.

Maj. HUMES. He was a German agent in China?

Mr. KONTA. I do not know anything at all about that.

Maj. HUMES. Before the war?

Mr. KONTA. I do not know anything at all about that.

Maj. HUMES. That is, he was a commercial attaché at Tokyo, Japan, was he not?

Mr. KONTA. He was?

Maj. HUMES. Did you not know that fact?

Mr. KONTA. I did not.

Senator OVERMAN. You knew he was a German sympathizer?

Mr. KONTA. Oh, he was a German-born man, a German, and still German, and I suppose that a German is likely to be a German sympathizer.

Maj. HUMES. You met him at the house of Hans Tauscher?

Mr. KONTA. That is the only place I ever met him.

Maj. HUMES. That is the only place you ever met him?

Mr. KONTA. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. You were at the home of Hans Tauscher on the 28th of May 1916, when Dr. Fuehr was also there, were you not?

Mr. KONTA. That is possible, but I do not know whether it was on that particular date. Can you explain to me, Major, the occasion? Then I might remember it. The 28th of May, 1916?

Maj. HUMES. Yes.

Mr. KONTA. I do not know.

Maj. HUMES. How many times did you meet him there?

Mr. KONTA. I met Dr. Fuehr altogether perhaps five or six times; not more.

Maj. HUMES. Always at Hans Tauscher's house?

Mr. KONTA. Never anywhere else.

Maj. HUMES. How frequently were you a visitor at Hans Tauscher's house at Stamford, Conn.?

Mr. KONTA. In which year, may I ask?

Maj. HUMES. From the time the European war started up until the time Hans Tauscher returned to Germany.

Mr. KONTA. Well, from the time of about the 15th of June, 1915, until his departure, my visits were not as frequent as they used to be before that.

Maj. HUMES. From about the 15th of June?

Mr. KONTA. From about the 15th of June, 1915.

Maj. HUMES. 1915?

Mr. KONTA. Yes. There is a reason for that.

Maj. HUMES. But you did go there after that time?

Mr. KONTA. There is an explanation for that.

Maj. HUMES. Just answer the question, please.

Mr. KONTA. I did.

Maj. HUMES. How frequently did you go there after the 15th of June?

Mr. KONTA. Oh, perhaps once or twice in a fortnight.

Maj. HUMES. Once or twice in a fortnight?

Mr. KONTA. Yes; in two weeks; perhaps once a week.

Maj. HUMES. You averaged once a week at his house, at Stamford, Conn., from the 15th of June, 1915, until his departure for Germany?

Mr. KONTA. He did not live all the time at Stamford, Conn. He lived there only for a few months, for the summer.

Maj. HUMES. How much of the time did he live there?

Mr. KONTA. That is for the summer season. I could not tell you exactly how much.

Maj. HUMES. He lived there during the summer of 1915, and also the summer of 1916, did he not?

Mr. KONTA. Where was it? Stamford, Conn.?

Maj. HUMES. Yes.

Mr. KONTA. Is it Stamford, Conn.?

Maj. HUMES. Was not the place?

Mr. KONTA. I do not think so.

Maj. HUMES. Where was it, then?

Mr. KONTA. It was Long View Cottage, Awixa Avenue, Bay Shore, Long Island.

Maj. HUMES. What year was he living there?

Mr. KONTA. I have a letter here dated the 17th of June, 1915.

Maj. HUMES. In the season, the summer season of 1915, he lived on Long Island?

Mr. KONTA. Bay Shore, Long Island.

Maj. HUMES. Where did he live during the summer season of 1916?

Mr. KONTA. He lived in the country; but where was it?

Maj. HUMES. Was it up near Port Chester, N. Y.?

Mr. KONTA. I hardly think so. I am trying to think. I was not there very often.

Capt. LESTER. Mamaroneck?

Mr. KONTA. No, no. He did not live in West Chester County at all. 1916?

Maj. HUMES. Yes.

Mr. KONTA. I am just trying to think. I could not tell you. I could not remember it. I was not there very often.

Maj. HUMES. But you were there an average of once a week, you said?

Mr. KONTA. In 1915.

Maj. HUMES. You said you were once a week from June, 1915, up until the time he went to Germany?

Mr. KONTA. Well, I have been there as often as, perhaps, once a week, or once in a fortnight, but not more often; because I had some trouble with him.

Maj. HUMES. Where did you go when you went to see him?

Mr. KONTA. To his house.

Maj. HUMES. Where was his house?

Mr. KONTA. That is what I am trying to think. It was somewhere in the country. It will come to me in a minute. It was somewhere in the country. It was not in Bay Shore, as he only lived there one season.

Maj. HUMES. Was it not over in Connecticut?

Mr. KONTA. It may have been. It might have been.

Capt. LESTER. Near Greenwich, Conn.?

Mr. KONTA. Near Greenwich, Conn.? That may have been.

Capt. LESTER. That would be just back of Port Chester.

Mr. KONTA. Port Chester?

Capt. LESTER. Between Port Chester and Greenwich, Conn.; just over the Connecticut line.

Mr. KONTA. I am unable to tell you.

Maj. HUMES. Under what circumstances did you make these regular trips, these weekly or fortnightly trips, Mr. Konta?

Mr. KONTA. As I explained to you, several years before the war they were my neighbors at the St. Regis. They lived at the same hotel, and we became very well acquainted. And in 1913 I went to Europe, and we motored there, about 5,000 or 6,000 miles, together: so that we became very well acquainted and became good friends.

Maj. HUMES. Were you in the habit of spending week-ends with him?

Mr. KONTA. I was in the habit of spending week-ends until June 14, 1915. I did spend some week-ends with him.

Maj. HUMES. What year was that?

Mr. KONTA. June 14, 1915.

Maj. HUMES. Did you have some trouble with him at that time?

Mr. KONTA. Yes, sir.

Maj. HUMES. Were you on intimate terms with him after that?

Mr. KONTA. On friendly terms, but not intimate; caused by the answer to my letter, which I have here, in his own handwriting.

Maj. HUMES. You were, however, in the habit of visiting him once a week, or at least once every two weeks, from that time on until he left the country?

Mr. KONTA. I was.

Maj. HUMES. The relation was not very strained at that time, then, was it?

Mr. KONTA. It was not strained, but it was not half as friendly as it was before the war.

I have been away, of course, you understand, Major, always during the summer, somewhere, for a month or two months or ten weeks; and then, naturally, I did not go to see them.

Maj. HUMES. Did you ever spend any of those vacations at his home?

Mr. KONTA. I did not.

Maj. HUMES. This morning we were discussing the American Hungarian Loyalty League.

Mr. KONTA. Just a moment, Major; do you not want to put this letter in the record?

Maj. HUMES. You can put it in the record.

Mr. KONTA. My letter and his answer, in his own handwriting, will explain all this. It will really shed light on this subject.

Maj. HUMES. It depends upon whether it is pertinent to the inquiry or not.

Mr. KONTA. I think it is very pertinent to the inquiry.

Maj. HUMES. If it was simply the result of a personal misunderstanding between you, the committee is not interested in that.

Mr. SAXE. We will offer it at the end of the hearing.

Senator OVERMAN. You may have it put in at any time.

Mr. SAXE. Do not bother about it now. We will offer it at the end of the hearing.

Mr. KONTA. Just as it pleases you.

Maj. HUMES. Now, Mr. Konta, there was something said about a visit that you made to Mr. George Creel. Did you not, at one time, visit George Creel with Mr. Horvath and Mr. Berko and Mr. Fay from Chicago, and possibly others?

Mr. KONTA. Never; at no time.

Maj. HUMES. Did you not, on that occasion, arrange with Mr. Creel to go with you to the White House to meet the President?

Mr. KONTA. Never; at no time.

Maj. HUMES. Did Mr. Berko join with any committee for that purpose at any time?

Mr. KONTA. I do not know; I have never been there. They never were with me at Washington since the league was founded. Mr. Berko never had any executive or any other office in the league.

Maj. HUMES. You were being antagonized by Mr. Berko at that time, then, were you?

Mr. KONTA. At what time?

Maj. HUMES. At the time of Mr. Berko's visit to Washington.

Mr. KONTA. I do not know where he was.

Maj. HUMES. Do you not know that Mr. Berko was a member of the committee that called on Mr. Creel, and then went to the White House?

Mr. KONTA. I do not.

Maj. HUMES. I call your attention to Exhibit No. 1152, it being a letter written by you to Mr. William Churchill, Committee on Public Information, Washington, D. C.

EXHIBIT No. 1152.

JANUARY 24, 1918.

WILLIAM CHURCHILL, Esq.,
Committee on Public Information, Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR MR. CHURCHILL: This letter will be given to you by Mr. Julius Tenner as my representative in connection with the American Hungarian Loyalty League. I have already informed you by wire of Mr. Tenner's coming.

You will recall our conversation a short time ago regarding the "Nepszava" and its attitude towards American interests, also what I told you about Berko, its editor. This paper has been, and is, inimical to our government, although in its columns there is to be found an occasional protestation of loyalty. During recent years this paper has been, to almost general knowledge, in the service of the Austro-Hungarian Consulate. It was Berko, its editor, who, after the Hungarian delegation was received by President Wilson on February 23, 1916, took a taxi from the White House to the Austro-Hungarian Embassy In Washington and told them all that happened. It was this same gentleman who, in an editorial in the "Nepszava" on February 25, 1916, who termed the visit of the delegation an attempt to white-wash Wilson's administration, and the same, who, before his paper received the government license has been publishing articles advising Hungarians to return to Hungary at the close of the war.

In this morning's "Nepszava" appears a leading editorial attacking the Hungarian American Federation of Cleveland, and the meeting which will be held under the auspices of the Federation in Cleveland on Sunday next. Mr. Tenner will show you this article and translate it for you. Or, if you prefer, one of your staff may translate it. You will probably agree with me that, considering the very vital national interests which are involved in the work of the American Hungarian Loyalty League and the Hungarian American Federation, any attack of this kind on the Cleveland meeting should be met at once and in no uncertain manner. As I am leaving for Cleveland tonight, I must leave to Mr. Tenner the task of emphasizing the importance of this hostile attitude of the "Nepszava" and the necessity of checking it immediately. It is on no personal grounds that I ask for it, but solely in the present and future interests of the country.

May I suggest that a message from Judge Lamar or yourself cautioning the "Nepszava" from publishing anything intended to counteract the work of the Hungarian-American Federation or the American Hungarian Loyalty League, and calling attention to a possible suspension of their privileges if these attacks should continue should be sent to Editor Berko at once. This will most quickly bring results and help forward the success of the Cleveland meeting which promises to be of far-reaching importance.

Very truly yours,

Maj. HUMES. Do you not in that letter comment on a visit that Mr. Berko made to the White House and the comment that he afterwards made in his paper?

Mr. KONTA. May I be permitted to read something to you?

Maj. HUMES. Just answer the question and then explain.

Mr. KONTA. This letter explains itself. This visit was on February 23, 1916, and the league was founded in 1918. I was the chairman of this committee in 1916, two years before, as the result of the mass meeting in Madison Square Garden. I explained that to you last night, but that was not in connection with the league, as the league was not even thought of and Mr. Creel did not exist at that time. I never knew anything about Mr. Creel in 1916; at least I did not—this was in 1916. You find it here in the letter:

It was Berko, its editor, who, after the Austro-Hungarian delegation was received by President Wilson on February 23, 1916, took a taxi from the White House to the Austro-Hungarian Embassy in Washington and told them all that happened.

Maj. HUMES. Who was with Mr. Berko on that occasion?

Mr. KONTA. On that occasion?

Maj. HUMES. Yes.

Mr. KONTA. My poor self and a delegation of about 12 people, some 5 or 6 Catholic priests; and one of them is right here in the room, who was a member of that delegation. These delegates were named by the mass meeting held at Madison Square Garden in 1916, as described to you in my paper last night.

Maj. HUMES. Then you were at one time a member of that delegation of which Mr. Berko was a member that called at the White House, were you not?

Mr. KONTA. I was the chairman and spokesman of that delegation, but I had nothing to do with Mr. Creel. It was in 1916.

Maj. HUMES. Are you acquainted with Mr. Fay, of Chicago?

Mr. KONTA. I am.

Maj. HUMES. Do you know of any visits that he made to Mr. Creel?

Mr. KONTA. I do. That was in 1918.

Maj. HUMES. Were you present at that time?

Mr. KONTA. I was not. That was the Chicago Hungarians. They formed what is called a Society of New Freedom, and this Society of New Freedom was encouraged by the State council of defense of Illinois, and Senator Lewis, I think—I am quite sure that Senator Lewis arranged a reception for this Chicago delegation by the President.

They proceeded to the White House and were received by the President, and subsequently they went up to Mr. Creel, and, as I heard, they tried to induce Mr. Creel to permit them to go ahead with this league work independently of the American Hungarian Loyalty League; whereupon Mr. Creel told them, so I was informed, that that would not do; that they had better go up to New York and see me and try to make an arrangement with me. And so it happened. They came to New York and they saw me, and I explained to them the situation, and then they asked me how many jobs I would give them, and I told them that I would not give them any; that I would come to Chicago in a few weeks myself and look over the field and select my own men if I needed any. And it happened as I am telling you. I went to Chicago, and when I got to Chicago I had applications from about 50 or 60 men, and they all wanted jobs at a hundred dollars a week or more. I engaged nobody, but I reported back to Washington that the Chicago situation was pretty bad and that we had better wait to see what we would do.

Maj. HUMES. You afterwards appointed Mr. Fay as the representative, did you not?

Mr. KONTA. I never did.

Maj. HUMES. Did he not have charge of the Chicago organization?

Mr. KONTA. He did not.

Maj. HUMES. Who did have?

Mr. KONTA. Dr. Barothy, a physician of repute and a very old citizen. It is just as well for you to know, Major, that I appointed no one unless he was a citizen, because such were our instructions, and Mr. Fay is not a citizen; hence, he could not have been appointed.

Maj. HUMES. What is the name of the paper that Mr. Fay publishes?

Mr. KONTA. The Sigyeloo.

Maj. HUMES. A Hungarian paper?

Mr. KONTA. A Hungarian weekly.

Maj. HUMES. Is not the office of the Hungarian League in Chicago in the office of Mr. Fay?

Mr. KONTA. No, sir; not in the office of Mr. Fay. It is next to the office of Mr. Fay.

Maj. HUMES. It is next to his office?

Mr. KONTA. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. It is in the same building?

Mr. KONTA. Yes; next to his office.

Maj. HUMES. They are adjoining offices?

Mr. KONTA. Adjoining offices; yes, sir.

Maj. HUMES. And it was placed there so that it would be convenient for Mr. Fay?

Mr. KONTA. That I do not know anything at all about; but I do know that after it was determined that Illinois ought to be looked after and that a small office ought to be taken for the purpose of starting the work in Illinois, we wrote to Dr. Barothy and asked him to see to it that an office should be rented, and an office was rented for $20 a month. I did not see the office. I could not go everywhere. I saw the office the day when Mr. Dernberg's letter was published in the newspapers, because I arrived in the midst of that, and that was my reception there. That was the first time I saw the office. It was $20 a month. And as soon as I returned I immediately requested that the office should be given up, and the stenographer who received——

Maj. HUMES. We do not care about those details.

Mr. KONTA. Very well.

Maj. HUMES. The question of the stenographer's fees or anything like that.

Mr. KONTA. I just wished to tell you that there was no other employee but the stenographer, at $12 a week; I think that is all.

Maj. HUMES. Did the American-Hungarian Loyalty League have a constitution or by-laws, or anything of that sort?

Mr. KONTA. No; it had no constitution and had no by-laws, but it had an executive board of carefully selected men. The names are at your disposal here.

Maj. HUMES. Now, suppose we just confine ourselves to answering question, so that we can get through.

Mr. KONTA. Very well.

Maj. HUMES. What was the purpose of the organization as outlined to the persons whose membership was sought?

Mr. KONTA. The purpose of the organization was, as outlined to the membership, to explain to the Hungarian workers, the Hungarian colonies all over the country, their duty to Uncle Sam during the war, and to bring them all together into one solid organization for this purpose.

Maj. HUMES. What was the evidence of membership that was given to those who joined?

Mr. KONTA. The evidence of membership was a card, which every member received as soon as he sent in his dollar for permanent membership card. This card showed that he had become a member of the American-Hungarian Loyalty League. Later on he also got a button from the Bureau of Public Information.

Maj. HUMES. And was it not represented to those who joined the league that their membership in the league would protect them from the Pan-Slav movement or activities of any kind?

Mr. KONTA. If it was represented, it was not represented by me; because I know that it will not protect them, and I know that I had to protect some of them against unjust accusations in certain parts of the country.

Maj. HUMES. And was not the impression that was given out to the Hungarians in the country who joined this organization, that by joining this organization it would give them the stamp of governmental approval, and protect them from any governmental activities or from any action on the part of the Government?

Mr. KONTA. Certainly not.

Maj. HUMES. That was not the representation that was made to them?

Mr. KONTA. I never made such representation.

Maj. HUMES. And you got about 14,000 members?

Mr. KONTA. More than that; about 25,000.

Maj. HUMES. About 25,000, at $1 apiece?

Mr. KONTA. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. In addition to the money that the league paid to you, they opened and financed offices in different parts of the country?

Mr. KONTA. The league did not pay me anything.

Maj. HUMES. I mean the bureau of public information.

Mr. KONTA. The bureau of public information paid me nothing. I never handled a dollar.

Maj. HUMES. I did not ask you that. I asked if the Committee on Public Information did not finance the local offices that were opened up by this league in different parts of the country?

Mr. KONTA. Quite so.

Maj. HUMES. And the amount expended for that purpose was very considerably more than the amount that was turned over to you for your purposes?

Mr. KONTA. I know of a statement made by Mr. George Creel, who is the chairman of the Bureau of Public Information, that the Hungarian Loyalty League did cost the Government $14,000 until such a date, about four or six weeks ago. Anyway, in this $14,000 were the $2,040 for expenditures for which we have vouchers here. That was included. That is for 10 months' work.

Maj. HUMES. Then you know of about $12,000 that was expended by the Committee of Public Information in addition to the amount that was paid to you or to your headquarters?

Mr. KONTA. I know only by this letter which was published in the newspapers.

Maj. HUMES. And that was expended by the Committee of Public Information as advertising, was it not—charged as advertising?

Mr. KONTA. I hardly think so. That had nothing to do with advertising.

Maj. HUMES. Where are the various offices of this association?

Mr. KONTA. The various offices of this association do not exist. They had only one office in New York, and they had a small office in Chicago, and they had a little office out in Detroit for about three or four months, and they had a little office in Cleveland for about four months, and that is all.

Maj. HUMES. Was this league a success?

Mr. KONTA. It was a tremendous success.

Maj. HUMES. Were there offices in Pittsburgh?

Mr. KONTA. No, sir.

Maj. HUMES. Were there any efforts made to organize in Pittsburgh?

Mr. KONTA. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. Did you not, in your report of your organization, say that it had opened offices in Pittsburgh?

Mr. KONTA. I appointed a banker there and paid him a dollar a year, and he took an oath of office, just as prescribed by the Bureau of Public Information, and paid all his own expenses, and it was never charged up to the Government nor to the league. This man's name, I think, is Rankey.

Maj. HUMES. Did you have an office in Trenton, N. J.?

Mr. KONTA. No; but we had an agent there, who is the editor of a local paper, and his name is Zambory.

Maj. HUMES. Did you have an office in Youngstown, Ohio?

Mr. KONTA. No, sir.

Maj. HUMES. Did you have an office in Johnstown, Pa.?

Mr. KONTA. In Johnstown, Pa., we had an agency.

Maj. HUMES. In Bridgeport, Conn.?

Mr. KONTA. We had an agent, and they paid all their own expenses.

Maj. HUMES. And these offices were opened or secretaries were appointed in the localities, in the industrial centers, where the essential industries were located?

Mr. KONTA. That was the main purpose, to have reliable, dependable men right there. That was the main purpose.

Senator NELSON. All this took place in 1916, did it?

Mr. KONTA. No, Senator, in 1918. The league was formed in 1918.

Senator NELSON. I refer to this organization that existed before.

Mr. KONTA. There was no organization, Senator, as far as I know. There was just a mass meeting at Madison Square Garden in 1916, and at this mass meeting resolutions were passed; and I was per mitted to read them here, last night; and a committee was appointed to take these resolutions to Washington, and it so happened.

Maj. HUMES. Did you not especially select the places where there were munitions plants, for your activities?

Mr. KONTA. Certainly not; but the Hungarians have been employed in munitions plants, and have been employed a great deal, always being employed in mining districts, especially in Pennsylvania and West Virginia; and I am very proud to say that wherever Hungarians were, there was no trouble.

Maj. HUMES. You sent out traveling organizers about the country, did you not?

Mr. KONTA. We did.

Maj. HUMES. Who paid the expense of those traveling organizers?

Mr. KONTA. Of the traveling organizers we had—let me think about it—perhaps three, and these three were paid by Washington, after proper vouchers received.

Maj. HUMES. Was Marcus Braun one of the organizers of this league?

Mr. KONTA. I stated to you this morning that he never at any time was connected with the league.

Maj. HUMES. Just answer the question yes or no, because it is a direct inquiry.

Mr. KONTA. He is not even a member of the league.

Maj. HUMES. Did he go to Bridgeport in behalf of the league?

Mr. KONTA. If he went, he never went in behalf of the league, because the league has never given him any kind of a commission of whatsoever nature.

Maj. HUMES. Now, Mr. Konta, you stated yesterday that you lost all sympathy for the German cause with the sinking of the Lusitania?

Mr. KONTA. I did.

Maj. HUMES. Yet subsequent to that time you continued to make weekly or fortnightly visits to Hans Tauscher during the rest of his stay in this country, and you were active in the German bazar?

Mr. KONTA. The Hungarian bazar.

Maj. HUMES. You attended the dinner on the eighty-fifth anniversary of the birth of Franz Josef, and you were in a meeting with Dr. Fuehr at a time subsequent to the sinking of the Lusitania?

Mr. KONTA. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. Now, how do you reconcile that with your claim that you ceased to be interested in the German cause, or friendly to it, subsequent to May 7, 1915?

Mr. KONTA. Well, I had known these people. I had arrived with them at a clear understanding that in my presence—I have special reference to Mr. Tauscher—there should be no war discussions; and, in fact, I wrote him a letter, which I have here, and I have his answer which I tried several times to produce. My keeping up acquaintance with these people, whom I knew very well, did not mean that I was a German sympathizer—that I sympathized with the German cause. That is only human. You know people, and you do not throw them overboard. That is the only explanation I can give. If we would have done that, we would have had to sever our relations with every neighbor.

Maj. HUMES. Why did you find it necessary to write to Mr. Tauscher to get your letter back from Dr. Dernburg? Why did you want to get that letter back?

Mr. KONTA. Because Dr. Dernburg never answered my letter, and I thought it was so rude that I insisted that I wanted that letter back. That is the reason.

Maj. HUMES. Was it only as punishment to Dernburg for his rudeness to you?

Mr. KONTA. It was not punishment at all. It was simply that I wanted the man to know that I am through with him; and I so expressed it in the Tauscher letter. I expressed my opinion of Dernburg.

Maj. HUMES. Did you not want to make possible the destruction of that written evidence of your connection with the German Government and with German agents?

Mr. KONTA. If that would have been my attitude or my thought. I would not have left the Dernburg letter in my files. I would have destroyed the Dernburg letter, and that would have been the end of it. But I left the Dernberg letter in my files, and as soon as one agency of the Government demanded it I produced it.

Maj. HUMES. How did it become known that you had this connection with Dr. Dernburg?

Mr. KONTA. I had no connection, Major, with Dr. Dernburg.

Maj. HUMES. How did it become known that you had written this letter to Dr. Dernburg?

Mr. KONTA. Does not my letter to Tauscher plainly say that I wanted the letter back, and did not Tauscher——

Maj. HUMES. Just answer the question, please.

Mr. KONTA. That is the explanation.

Maj. HUMES. In other words, was not the fact that you had written the letter to Dernburg public property before you turned your copy of it over to anybody?

Mr. KONTA. If it was, I do not know it.

Senator NELSON. Has that been put in?

Maj. HUMES. Yes; it is in the record of the first hearing, Senator.

Now, Mr. Konta, did you know John Nemeth?

Mr. KONTA. I know John Nemeth.

Maj. HUMES. Was he a member of this league and active in it?

Mr. KONTA. John Nemeth was a member of this league and a member of the executive board, but he has never shown up; he always sends the manager of his bank. He is the head—I do not know but perhaps even the owner—of the John Nemeth State Bank, incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. But he has never shown up. He enjoys a very good reputation, as far as I know. I never had any dealings with him.

Maj. HUMES. Was the organization of the Hungarian Reformed Church used in any way in promoting the interests of this league?

Mr. KONTA. I should have liked to use them, but I was not able.

Maj. HUMES. Why were you not able to use them?

Mr. KONTA. Because they were not in sympathy with the cause—with the purpose and the objects of the league. That is the reason why. I tried mighty hard.

Maj. HUMES. What was the sympathy of the Hungarian Reformed Church?

Mr. KONTA. The Hungarian Reformed Church's sympathy, of course, was with Hungary, which is very natural if you know the reasons, which I will explain.

The reformed ministers for years have been receiving a subsidy from the Hungarian Government for purposes which I have outlined, and to which I have called the attention of the Government and several branches of the Government, and which I though were un-American.

This arrangement was perfected perhaps 10 to 12 years ago, when Count Degenfeld, the brother-in-law of this man Tisza who was assassinated not long ago, visited the United States and made arrangements with these Protestant members of the Reformed Church, and agreed to pay them every year so much in subsidies; and the purpose was to keep the Hungarian spirit and the Hungarian traditions among their flock.

Senator NELSON. Were they Protestants?

Mr. KONTA. They were Protestants.

Maj. HUMES. To what extent did the Hungarian Government subsidize the Hungarian Reformed Church?

Mr. KONTA. The amount is more than I can tell you; but I can ascertain it, right in the room here, if you are interested, if I may. I have a man here who knows it. I do not know the amount.

Maj. HUMES. Yes; ascertain.

Mr. KONTA. Do you know how much the Protestant ministers received in subsidies from Hungary, Dr. Freulich?

Dr. FREULICH. $800 a year.

Maj. HUMES. This $800 a year was a part of the salary of each minister in the church?

Mr. KONTA. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. Do you know how many ministers of this denomination there were in this country at the time we entered the war?

Mr. KONTA. I could not give you the exact number.

Maj. HUMES. Approximately?

Mr. KONTA. Oh, 20 or 24.

Maj. HUMES. Is that right?

Dr. FREULICH. About 36.

Maj. HUMES. How were they paid?

Mr. KONTA. That is more than I know.

Maj. HUMES. Were they not paid through Alexander von Nuber, the Austrian consul general?

Mr. KONTA. That I am unable to tell you. My relations with the consulate and with the consul general have been so formal that I do not know what they do.

Maj. HUMES. Do you know of the subsidization of any newspapers in this country by the Hungarian Government?

Mr. KONTA. I do not. It has been stoutly denied to me. I know the accusation has very frequently been made, but it has been very positively denied to me. Now, that is all I know about it.

Maj. HUMES. Do you mean that persons connected with the Hungarian Government have denied it, or that the publishers who were charged with receiving the money have denied it?

Mr. KONTA. The publishers have denied it to me.

Maj. HUMES. I show you Exhibit No. 1153, and ask you if that is a report of yours on the activity of the American-Hungarian Loyalty League?

Mr. KONTA. It is.

EXHIBIT No. 1153.

DEC. 5, 1918.

The rapid growth of the American-Hungarian Loyalty League and the important influence which it is now exerting on the Hungarian communities of the United States render desirable the following brief account of the League, its history, progress and activities, from its inception in December 1917 to date.

ORGANIZATION OF LEAGUE.

The project of establishing a League to co-ordinate and make effective the loyalty of all Hungarian-born citizens of the United States and the sympathy with American ideals in the war of unnaturalized Hungarian residents throughout the country was discussed during the last weeks of December 1917 between the Chairman of the Committee on Public Information in Washington and the present Chairman of the League. It was felt by both that the establishment of such a League would be the most effective and timely way to secure the co-operation of the Hungarian peoples in the work of the Committee on Public Information, to make clearer to the less-educated and informed members of the Hungarian communities the objects for which the United States had entered the world-war, and at the same time, to afford Hungarian citizens and non-citizens an opportunity to express, in practical form, their appreciation of the friendly attitude taken towards them by the Government in not having classified Hungarian non-citizens as alien enemies of the United States.

The actual organization of the League took place in the first week of January 1918. The name of the League was suggested by the Chairman of the Committee on Public Information. Alexander Konta of New York City was appointed Chairman or Director of the League.

FIRST MEETING OF LEAGUE.

It was deemed advisable that the first announcement of the establishment of the League should be made from the West. Accordingly, in connection with a convention of the Hungarian-American Federation arranged for January 27, 1917 in Cleveland, preparations for a mass-meeting in that city were immediately made. On January 26, the objects of the proposed League were outlined, and unanimous support was voted by the Federation. On the following day, at the mass meeting, attended by the representatives of most of the prominent and influential Hungarian societies of the United States, these objects were further outlined, and, in Resolutions passed by the meeting, the formal endorsement of the League was made.

OTHER MEETINGS

Arrangements were now put in hand to hold meetings in support of the League in various large industrial centers. Since February 1, the following meetings, organized mainly by local committees and mostly in direct connection with the head office of the League, have been held:—

Feb. 17, Lorain, Ohio; Mar. 10, Bridgeport, Conn.; Mar. 17, Alpha, N. J., New Brunswick, N. J., Toledo, O., West Pullman, Ill.; March 23, Trenton, N. J.; April 23, New Brunswick, N. J.; May 5, Youngstown, Ohio; May 12, Bridgeport, Conn.; June 27, Johnstown, Pa., Berwick, Pa.; June 30, Detroit, Mich.

The above meetings were the more important ones. Between fifty and sixty meetings have been held altogether. At Lorain, Professor Moran of Purdue University was the principal speaker; at West Pullman, Judge Clarence Goodwin; at Youngstown, Hon. Carl Vrooman; and at Detroit, Arthur E. Bestor.

It may be said here, regarding all these meetings, that, in addition to the enlistment of members for the League, a general effort has been made to explain why America is at war; why we must win the war; why all anti-American propaganda ought to be suppressed; and why the governmental object of bringing native and foreign-born peoples together in common loyalty to America should be supported. It has been gratifying to observe that, at all the meetings this support has been enthusiastically accorded, and that, in the majority of cases, resolutions of unswerving loyalty to the United States have been passed unanimously. Every meeting, moreover, has been wholly representative of the Hungarian community in which such meeting was held.

EXPENSES OF MEETINGS.

It may also be said here that the cost of holding these fifty or sixty meetings has been borne almost entirely by the local organizations. A few small items only, such as traveling expenses of speakers, etc., have been charged up against the government. In other words, the American-Hungarians have not only come forward in surprisingly large numbers at these meetings to testify their feelings towards the United States, but have voluntarily assumed all the expenses involved in their meetings, processions, hire of hall, bands, and incidentals. This, it need hardly be added, is a record of which they need not be ashamed.

MEMBERSHIP OF LEAGUE.

On March 20th last, a report was made to the Committee on Public Information showing the membership to that date as 1985. Since that date, the growth has been as follows:—

April 1, 2,925; May 1, 6,729; June 1, 11,593; July 1, 15,816; July 23, 19,579.

GENERAL SCHEME OF ORGANIZATION.

It was early decided that the success of the League and the quick development of a strong membership depended on (a) the holding of public meetings wherever Hungarians were gathered in large numbers and (b) direct individual solicitation of members in districts which, owing to distance from large centers and scattered population, could not be reached successfully except by canvass. In order to carry on both forms of work, offices were opened at 123 East 23rd Street, New York City, and a clerical staff engaged with an organizing secretary, all working under the immediate supervision of the Chairman at 20 Exchange Place, New York City. In addition to this, branch offices, with local organizing secretaries in charge were shortly opened in certain industrial centers as Cleveland, Detroit, Pittsburg, and secretaries were appointed in other localities, such as Trenton, N. J., Bridgeport, Conn., Youngstown, O., Johnstown, Pa. The expenses of the larger offices were arranged to be borne by the Government, whereas, in the case of many minor offices, the expense was borne by the secretaries. In certain cases, salaries have been paid by the Government to the secretaries, but in the majority of cases, the organizers have given their services on the dollar per annum basis.

The opening of branch offices helped not only to keep the League in direct touch with the congested centers of population and to make more pronounced the effect of the meetings arranged by the local secretaries, but also to relieve the head office of much detail work. It was understood, moreover, that the branch offices were of a more or less temporary nature, and that, in case the results in membership did not justify expenditure they would be closed. In two cases, this closure has since taken place.

As regards the canvassing of scattered districts, a number of so-called traveling organizers, under salary, were sent out during the spring. These men worked mostly in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and New Jersey, arranging small meetings (which they addressed personally), soliciting members, and generally explaining the objects of the League and the Government. Through their efforts a very large number of men and women were reached—many of them ill-informed regarding America's attitude in the war—who could have been reached in no other way.

MEMBERSHIPS AND QUALIFICATIONS.

Any Hungarian-born citizen or non-citizen of the United States is eligible to membership in the League. At the meeting in Cleveland in January last, the question was discussed whether or not a membership fee should be required, and it was unanimously decided that a fee of one dollar for permanent membership should be asked. It was further decided that the fund accruing from these memberships, that is, for the payment of advertisements and reading matter in influential Hungarian-American papers.

Applications for membership were accepted at the Cleveland meeting. Since that time, applications have come in to the League offices, either directly from applicants, or through the branch offices, or through the traveling organizers, or from local members acting voluntarily as solicitors. The figures of membership given on Page 2 show that although the growth of the movement was slow at first—less than three thousand members being secured during the first three months of organization, it began to move quickly when the full organization was at work.

MEMBERSHIP CARDS.

To each applicant for membership a card of membership was issued, dated, signed by the Chairman and Treasurer, and stamped with the official seal of the League. Each card was numbered, and bears the name of the member. The inscription on the cards reads:

"This certifies that _____ of _____ on payment of one dollar has become a permanent member of

and is entitled to the aid, advice and protection which membership in the League guarantees to the loyal Hungarian residents of the United States of America. In evidence whereof is hereon stamped the official seal of the League."

In connection with his card of membership, it may be said that the members, in due course, made a wide demand for a League button, in order that they might more clearly be identified as members of the League. This button [League Button] has recently been supplied by the Committee on Public Information and on Independence Day last was delivered to each member as a feature of the loyalty celebrations. Reports show that the League Button is a great success. Important mention should be made of the fact that the issuance of the button is closely protected, all buttons being sent out directly from the offices of the Committee on Public Information to addresses supplied by the League. In this way, since no official of the League is permitted to hold any buttons, except his own, in his possession, the League and the proper holders of the buttons are protected against misuse of the button by disloyal persons or swindlers.

PROTECTION AGAINST SWINDLERS.

The League card of membership, on account of the protection it gives, and its prima facie evidence that its holder is a loyal American, has been greatly coveted by disloyalists. But, so far as is known, no successful attempt to secure a card by nefarious means, or by forging it, has been successful. It was expected, also, that swindling collectors might attempt to deceive the League, or that, even in the head offices, all funds received by mail for memberships might not be properly accounted for. To test this latter possibility, it was arranged by the Chairman on five different occasions, from five different parts of the country, applications for membership accompanied by the dollar fee should be sent to the New York offices and it is a pleasure to state that all moneys were received in proper manner. Also that, except in one case, probably due to the rifling of a letter-box on March 20th last at the New York offices, no complaint of loss of money, or second application for a card for which money has been sent, has been received. One case of misappropriation of money was reported, and the money has been refunded.

LEAGUE FUNDS.

The income of the League is exclusively from membership fees, the total income to any date always being shown in dollars by the total membership. In other words a membership of twenty thousand means that the League has received the sum of $20,000 and is responsible for that sum. All moneys received from membership fees are handed to the Treasurer of the League, and are immediately deposited in a special account with the Equitable Trust Company of New York City, and can be drawn upon only by check signed by the Treasurer and countersigned by myself as Chairman.

TREASURER'S REPORTS.

Immediately after the Cleveland meeting in January, Mr. Joseph Horvath, manager of the New York office of the Cleveland "Szabadsag", and a responsible American citizen of Hungarian birth, was appointed Treasurer of the League.

Mr. Horvath renders to Washington monthly a report of income and expenditure of the League. The last report of the Treasurer, rendered on July 1, 1918, showed that the balance on hand on June 20th was $7,128.27.

PUBLICITY.

According to the arrangement arrived at in Cleveland and in return for the money expended with them for advertising and reading matter, the larger Hungarian newspapers have given the fullest publicity to the League, its meetings and general activities. This publicity has aided greatly to build up the membership. It may be added that the moneys disbursed to the press for the above-mentioned purposes are itemized each month in the Treasurer's Report.

In addition to publicity given to the League, these Hungarian papers have greatly aided the government by publishing in translation some of the pamphlets, etc. officially issued in Washington. The text of "German War Practices" for example, was so translated at the request of the League, and published. These papers have also translated and published official material supplied by various governmental departments relating to income tax payments, Liberty Loans, War Savings Stamps, etc. etc., none of which has been paid for. That is to say, the Hungarian press has gratuitously performed these important services for the government in return for the payments for special service made to them by the League.

FIELD WORK

The growth of work in the field, and the need of a perfected organization to handle it, resulted, in May last, in the appointment of Mr. Karl Schenk, Vice President and Cashier of the John Nemeth State Bank of New York as Director of Field Work. Since his appointment, this Director has enlisted the services, as solicitors for the League, of over fifty responsible agents, mostly bankers in various parts of the country, who are daily sending in applications for memberships, from their own clients. All these solicitors are local organizers, at one dollar per year, and new agents are being appointed daily, as the scope of the work broadens. The result of this new organization of field-work is that the services of paid agents and traveling organizers are not so much required as before; that the acquisition of members is being made at a minimum of cost; and that the pay-roll of the League has been considerably cut during the past two months. This policy is in line with economy and efficiency, both of which are expected by Washington from the League.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

The growth of the League also made necessary the appointment of an Executive Committee to act as an advisory board, and to relieve the Chairman of certain matters of detail. An invitation to join this Committee was extended to nine gentlemen of high reputation and responsibility in various parts of the country, and eventually the Committee was organized as follows:

Alexander Konta, Chairman, New York City; Dr. Arpad M. Barothy, Chicago; John Dezso, Bridgeport, Conn.; William Feder, Gary, Ind.; Joseph Horvath, New York City; Emil Kiss, New York City; John Nemeth, New York City; George Pipoly, Youngstown, O.; H. E. Varga, Cleveland, O.; Julius Volgyi, New York City.

The first meeting of the above committee was held at 20 Exchange Place, New York City, on June 18, 1918.

OPPOSITION TO LEAGUE.

Since its formation, the League has encountered considerable opposition, most of which has been directly and indirectly traceable to disloyalism. Briefly put, all Hungarians in America who in the past have had close official affiliation with the Austro-Hungarian embassy or consulate; all clergymen, Catholic or Protestant, who have worked, in the interest of the mother-country, to prevent the assimilation of the Hungarian immigrant with American institutions; and all, who for their own reasons, have sympathized with America's enemies in the war, have done their utmost to prevent membership in the League. In this work, certain large banking interests, it is regrettable to say, have also been involved. The result has been that time has been lost in counteracting malicious falsehoods and slanders particularly circulated regarding the disposition of the funds secured from membership fees—a very natural way of exciting suspicion against the League amongst the people who could not be aware of the exact and defined purpose of the acquired funds.

This form of opposition has been met, wherever possible, with prompt measures. It has been less easy to meet the opposition of those Hungarians who have, since the beginning of the world conflict, secretly sympathized with Germany and her Allies, and who, since the United States entered the conflict, have been difficult to convince that loyalty to the United States was their first and greatest duty. It may be recorded here that, when the work of the League started, the Chairman, to his dismay, quickly discovered that less than five per cent of the Hungarians in the United States could be ranked as loyal or friendly, and a statement to that effect was made, not only to the Committee on Public Information, but also to the office of Military Intelligence in connection with manifestations of disloyalty, or opposition to the League which, even at that time, had begun to be felt.

One other reason for opposition to the League ought specifically to be mentioned. For over eighteen years the Hungarians of the United States have been generally adherents of the so-called Independent Movement started by Louis Kossuth. Shortly before the outbreak of the war in 1914, the present leader of the Hungarian Independent Party, Count Michael Karolyi, visited America and made an appeal for funds for party use. The response was immediate and enthusiastic, and many thousands of dollars were collected. On Count Karolyi's return to Europe, suddenly caused by the outbreak of the war, these funds were deposited with the Equitable Trust Company of New York City, and when it became known that they were withdrawable only on Count Karolyi's signature, the anger of the Austro-Hungarian officials in America was well defined to counteract the effect of what Karolyi had done, and to keep the Hungarians in line with official aims, an extensive propaganda in the Hungarian newspapers was started, one result of which was that the Hungarians of America gradually became sympathetic with the cause of the Central Powers.

When this state of affairs became clear, the present Chairman of the League, as is easily establishable by reference to the records of the time, naturally opposed these activities with all the means at his disposal, bringing upon himself the frequent attack of the Hungarian press. And, it is interesting now to note that, on June 19th last, Count Karolyi delivered a speech in the Hungarian parliament protesting against the attacks upon himself and the Independent Party for their strong anti-German attitude, and declaring in unequivocal terms that the Austrian-Hungarian alliance with Germany was most unfortunate for the future of Hungary.

GENERAL COMMENTS ON THE WORK AND FUTURE OF LEAGUE

In face of all these oppositions, the work performed by the League in seven months may rightly be regarded with the highest satisfaction. The present membership of twenty thousand is an amazing proof of a change of feeling in the Hungarian communities of the United States towards the European war, and of a realization, concretely expressed, of the duty of every individual member of those communities who have become a member of the League to support America in the conflict. More than that, it proves that the idea of loyalty to America, which at first, was practically non-existent, and was, at first, so difficult to instil into the minds of the ill-informed is gradually making its way through all sections of the country where Hungarians are gathered. There is no reason, now that the foundation has been laid, and these Hungarians are beginning to see the light, carried to them by present members of the League, why the membership should not increase to at least one hundred thousand by the end of the present year. Such a success is merely a matter of organization and the strength of the idea itself, on which the League was founded.

(signed) ——— ———,
Chairman the American-Hungarian Loyalty League.

Maj. HUMES. Did the American-Hungarian Loyalty League do any advertising with Mr. Berko, in his paper?

Mr. KONTA. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. To what extent?

Mr. KONTA. I have the statement here, which I would like to submit to you.

Maj. HUMES. Approximately; I do not care for the exact amount.

Mr. KONTA. I believe in 10 months the two daily papers received about $5,000 each; but not from the Government money. It was from the League's money; not the Government's money.

Maj. HUMES. In other words, of the $27,000 that went through your hands, or through the hands of your headquarters, about $10,000 of it went to Mr. Berko and Mr. Horvath?

Mr. KONTA. Not Mr. Horvath. Mr. Horvath is only an agent.

Maj. HUMES. Well, his newspaper?

Mr. KONTA. His newspaper; quite so.

Senator OVERMAN. What is your business, Mr. Konta?

Mr. KONTA. I am a manufacturer. I have two factories. I am running two factories. One is an automobile accessory factory and another one is a woodenware factory, or toys. That is a later factory. I have also been in the financial district for many years.

Senator OVERMAN. A broker?

Mr. KONTA. But I have no private trade; no customers.

Maj. HUMES. A good deal of opposition developed to this league, did it not?

Mr. KONTA. It did.

Maj. HUMES. What was the nature of that opposition?

Mr. KONTA. Well, the first opposition was by all those who were engaged in it for about a month, and who were promptly discharged because they were inefficient, not dependable; and I did not propose to carry a man on the Government pay roll who did not do his duty, so I discharged them. The first thing they did they began to throw bricks at me, naturally.

Maj. HUMES. Then you feel that it was largely personal, and due to personalities—to jealousies?

Mr. KONTA. No; not altogether personal. There was a great deal of opposition to the league by such Hungarians as did not like my speeches, because they still thought that Hungary came first, and in my speeches, for over a year, in all parts of the country, I made it very plain to them that America came first, second, and last; not forgetful, however, that the human element, of course, is always present. I did not leave it out, naturally. These men have their brothers and sisters and sweethearts over there, and their mothers and fathers, and it is almost unthinkable that they should forget them all. That is unthinkable. But we kept them in line, and we had no trouble with them. Never in the history of the Hungarian colonies in America has it been accomplished that, in spite of bitter opposition on the part of men who have been disappointed because they thought there was a golden barrel to be tapped, so much has been accomplished; and they thought that I was the only one who would tap it, and they did not get anything out of it, and they created the opposition; and still we brought 25,000 members together in nine months—something that has never happened and never will happen again.

Maj. HUMES. That is all.

Senator OVERMAN. Did you want to put some papers into the record, Mr. Konta?

Mr. KONTA. I will put in everything that the committee wants.

Senator OVERMAN. The committee does not want anything, especially, but you may put in anything you desire.

Mr. SAXE. It was only a letter that he wrote to Mr. Tauscher, and the reply on the matter they had disagreed about.

Senator OVERMAN. I thought there was a letter that he had tried to put in.

Mr. KONTA. My records are all at your disposition, Senator.

Mr. SAXE. I do not think it is necessary to put that in.

Maj. HUMES. Are you still connected with the league?

Mr. KONTA. On paper, yes. I resigned. Of course, the league is still in existence. If you do not want me to be connected, I will give you my resignation.

TESTIMONY OF MR. ARTHUR BRISBANE.

(The witness was sworn by the chairman.)

Maj. HUMES. Mr. Brisbane, in a communication addressed to the committee, under date of September 28, 1918, you made this, among other requests:

> I request most earnestly that you allow me to appear before your committee and answer charges that are implied in a letter from A. Mitchell Palmer, made public through the Senate and the Senate resolution.

Are you desirous, now, of making any explanation or statement in connection with that matter?

Mr. BRISBANE. Yes; I should be very glad of the opportunity.

My business is writing for newspapers, and the esteem of the public is, of course, very important to a man who writes, especially if he expresses editorial opinions, and so on.

The newspapers of the country, all of them, practically, have carried either the direct statement or the implication that I had been in some way retained in the interests of Germany; that I was, in other words, pro-German, and a disloyal citizen.

A great many thousands of articles have been printed, and they were printed and made privileged, that is to say, practically exempt from the bringing of libel suits, if that had been desired—although I think a newspaper man who brings a libel suit is rather ridiculous; and I wanted, if you would kindly give me the opportunity, to reply publicly in the only place where I thought I could reply adequately. I see that you are very indulgent listeners, and if you will give me five minutes, I shall be very glad to answer what I think are the charges that have been made in the public prints.

Senator OVERMAN. We shall be very glad to hear you, Mr. Brisbane.

Mr. BRISBANE. First, the question of pro-Germanism, which, to me, is the only important thing. The other thing is how I bought the Washington Times. Assuming that I borrowed the money from men who were of age and had the money, and who were willing to lend it to me, I presume that is a matter which is my affair and the affair of the men who loaned me the money, unless it be shown that there was some evil intention, or some dishonest transaction involved in it.

Mr. Palmer made a political address in Pennsylvania and stated that a brewer named Ehret, whose property had come into his possession, had loaned me $50,000 to buy the Times, and this property had been taken over because the brewer was supposed not to be neutral and consequently pro-German. The assumption from that, although Mr. Palmer assured me that he did not intend it or make it, or imply it, was that this money was loaned to me to further pro-German enterprises.

I called on Mr. A. Mitchell Palmer, and he said to me, Mr. Brisbane, I have made no charges against you. I have read your editorials for 20 years, and I have been educated by them. I will quote his words as nearly as possible. He said: "I make no charge whatever against you. Don't you want to buy another newspaper?" And he tried to sell me the Evening Mail, of New York, which he holds as public custodian; and I take it for granted that he would not have offered to sell me the New York Evening Mail and thereby increase my possibilities of reaching the public and influencing the public if he had any thought or any evidence to indicate or imply that I would use it disloyally.

I told Mr. Palmer that I had about as much as I could attend to, but that I would consider the Mail if it were cheap. I offered him $750,000 for it, offering to give him a check to bind the contract for a month while I would see whether or not I could finance the proposition. He told me the paper was losing $7,000 a month.

I am supposed to be a skillful newspaper man, and I thought that that loss, which is not much on a daily newspaper, could be changed into a profit, and I was very much interested in looking into the matter.

However, I talked to the attorney for the owners, and he told me that the paper owed $700,000 in debts, and that it was losing $7,000 a month, and he did not want to continue the loss.

Upon investigation, I was told by Samuel Untermyer, attorney for the creditor of the paper, that it was losing $30,000 a month.

I wrote Mr. Palmer that that was the case, and that I could not think of taking the paper with such gigantic losses; and he said he was mistaken in his original statement to me; and there the matter was dropped. Mr. Palmer said to me that he would be glad to take up with me again the matter of selling me the paper at private sale, although that would be an unusual proceeding, providing the President gave him permission.

So much for the charges which have been made against me and published in thousands of papers repeatedly, that I was pro-German and disloyal. Some of these newspapers are hostile to me because the editor of a small newspaper and the owner of a small newspaper does not cut much of a figure. A great many of them are hostile because they are unsuccessful competitors of the newspapers by which I am employed.

So much for Mr. A. Mitchell Palmer.

Now, as to the question of my pro-Germanism. If a man is accused of a crime—if I accuse one of you gentlemen of a crime—and it is the kind of a crime which is only set to words, or in writing, it is rather difficult for you to disprove it.

When the war broke out, I went to Atlanta, Ga. Shortly after, I was there in a hospital. I was extremely ill and not expected to recover. I had, in fact, 10 doctors, so that it is rather remarkable that I did recover.

I want to say that when I was a boy I went to school in France for four years. My father lived in Paris in 1828. That is a long time ago; 90 years ago. He had lived there, off and on, ever since, until his death. I have a great many friends in France. I felt very strongly on the question of the war. I was not able, at any time, to maintain the neutrality which the President recommended; and until we entered the war, I wrote very little on the subject of the war—practically nothing except very strong—I think—editorials urging the construction of flying machines, long before our war began, saying that the only way to make the Germans stop this war was to drop dynamite on Berlin. I wrote these editorials repeatedly. While I was in the hospital at Atlanta I cabled Lord Northcliffe. I got to thinking over the war, and although I was very ill and not able to move, I wanted to be of service, and I telegraphed Lord Northcliffe, who is a friend of mine, that I believed the hydraulic mining machinery used in the West against mountains, to wash down the gravel beds, would be of value in attacking the German trenches.

Senator STERLING. When was this?

Mr. BRISBANE. In 1914, shortly after the war began, when I was in the hospital at Atlanta.

I took up the matter of the hydraulic-mining machinery by telegraph with California. I got in touch with the Joshua Hendley Iron Works, who manufacture these machines, which are called "giants," that, under terrific pressure, aim streams of water against solid embankments, and would wash down cavalry or infantry like ants before a garden hose. And I sent by express, at my own expense, to Lord Northcliffe, a sample of every kind of hydraulic engine made. The express bill alone amounted to some thousands of dollars, and the cost of the machinery, of course, was very great. I cabled Lord Northcliffe and he said that I could send it, and he would take it up with the Government.

I mention this merely to show you what my feeling was at that time; that is, even before America had become very much aroused about the war.

The machines to which I have referred, however, and which were sent over to Lord Northcliffe as I have described, were not used. For some reason they said it was not practicable.

I took up the same matter with Secretary Baker here and he told me that he had tried experiments, when he was in Cleveland, with a rotary pump, of which I knew nothing, that had worked very well, bringing down stone walls.

I offered to turn over these instruments to the Government without charge, but it did not prove practicable. I simply mention that to show my feeling in the matter. A man can not prove his loyalty by words alone.

I have an estate of 6,000 acres in New Jersey, on which I farm and cultivate a great deal. I got word that the Government would like to have 1,000 acres of it, and I was asked what my charge would be for the 1,000 acres. I wrote to the man who asked me that I had nothing to sell to the Government, but that I should be very glad to have them take the property and use it. I urged its acceptance on the Secretary of War, and he wrote me kindly about it. I said I would be glad to have it used without charge during the war, and if the Government spent any money on it which would improve its value that I would be glad to turn it over to the Government for $1 after the war, to be used for public purposes.

Now, in regard to my purchase of the Washington Times. I have sent Senator Overman every editorial that has appeared in this newspaper since the day I bought it.

The Washington Times is the first newspaper I ever owned and controlled. For thirty-two-odd years I have been an employee, writing for owners; first for Charles A. Dana and next for Joseph Pulitzer and then for William R. Hearst.

From the day I owned the Times I wrote as vigorously, as savagely and as earnestly on the subject of the war against the German side and in favor of America as I have ever done on any subject in my life. If any member of the committee or the representative of the Government will read my editorials I am sure that he will see that they are written with sincerity and effectively.

Senator STERLING. What was your attitude toward England, as shown by these editorials?

Mr. BRISBANE. My attitude toward England is the attitude that I was delighted to have England in the war, of course. I have, in regard to England, some doubts as to whether, when the war ends, we shall not have our difficulties and discussions, as we may have with France and other countries.

Senator STERLING. Do you not think your editorials manifested an intense opposition to England?

Mr. BRISBANE. I do not think so, Senator.

Senator STERLING. Soon after you acquired the Washington Times?

Mr. BRISBANE. I do not think so.

Senator STERLING. Were not your editorials calculated to stir up enmity in this country against England?

Mr. BRISBANE. They were not intended to, and I do not think they were calculated to.

I may add that Lord Northcliffe was living in this country at the time. He was in Washington, and I was in Washington, and he repeatedly invited me to go to England and visit England and go to the front with him. I should think a good judge of that matter, perhaps, would be Lord Northcliffe, who is a very strong English journalist, and who was in this country, and who read those editorials, and with whom I discussed these questions. He may have said, "I do not agree with you about this," and so on, "I do not think you are right about this," but he knew what my feeling was, and he invited me to go to England as his guest and that of the British Government—not once or twice, but repeatedly; and when he was in France he cabled me a number of times to do so.

I do not think any editorial I have ever written can be interpreted except as I felt and believed; and I had no other feeling except being in favor of anything that would destroy the German Empire and win the war—from the day the war started; long before we were in it.

Frankly, the only thing I have to reproach myself with about what I wrote is that sometimes I wrote so bitterly that I think it was calculated to stir up dangerous ill-feeling in this country among people of German names who were loyal.

So much for the charge of pro-Germanism, which Mr. Palmer withdrew to me, and I presume will withdraw publicly, as he did privately, saying to me that he had no ground for it.

I used my money in sending machinery to the English Government, to Lord Northcliffe, and wrote to Lloyd-George, and cabled them, and have had letters and answers from him. I spent my money sending machinery to England, to be used against Germany. I offered my land, on which I spent practically all I have made for the past six or eight years, to the Government, for use without charge; and I came to Washington and I wrote these editorials, and I have had assurances from the President of the United States—I shall not produce the letters unless I am subpœnaed to do so—thanking me for my support of the war and of the Government. I believe if he were questioned, he would say that no newspaper in the United States has supported the war more strongly than I have. I have the same statements from Mr. Daniels, and from Mr. Burleson who is the man responsible directly for the attitude newspapers take. Every article I have written I have sent to them.

Now, shall I go ahead with the rest of my statement?

Senator STERLING. I hope to be able to call your attention to some items in your editorials in the Times, soon after you acquired the paper, that attracted my attention at the time, and I think attracted the attention of other Senators at the time.

Mr. BRISBANE. That is the question of pro-Germanism, again. In regard to the purchase of the Washington Times, it was stated that I bought the Washington Times because the brewers wanted an agent, first, to protect their interests, and second, to favor Germany, they being supposedly German because they had German names.

The only brewers I know are men who were born in America, as it happens, although I might have known others.

To explain my attitude on prohibition and temperance: There are some Senators whom I know who are very strongly in favor of prohibition, and in connection with that matter I should like to say this. I went to Paris when I was a boy, and went to school there for four years. Now, about my attitude for more than 20 years: I have been the editor of a newspaper for more than 30 years, and my opinions on this subject have been the same, especially on the question of prohibition.

I have lived in France as a young man, and as a boy was a student in Paris.

Senator NELSON. Let me ask you this: Were you editor of the Times before you bought it, Mr. Brisbane?

Mr. BRISBANE. No, sir. I bought it from Frank Munsey, and had nothing to do with it until I purchased it.

As I say, I was at school there in France for four years, and no boy in school ever drank a glass of pure water. Many of you gentlemen know that, as you have traveled. The drink was very weak claret, with 1 part claret and 4 parts water, or perhaps 10 parts, for all I know, and the boys drank that. I lived at school. I was a boy there until I was nearly 19, in France, without knowing that drunkenness was a common thing. You did not see it in Paris. Men drank red wine. I am speaking of nearly 40 years ago; 1878, and shortly after the Franco-Prussian War; so that, following that war, I saw what the feeling was in France, and I got my strong attitude on the German question from living there then.

I went from Paris to New York, and became a reporter on the Sun, under Charles A. Dana, at 19, and saw the young men on the newspapers drinking whisky, and a great deal of drunkenness. In those days the newspaper men drank a great deal more than they do now, and drunkenness was much more common.

My first opportunity to write a story of any interest was when I was sent to get the names of prominent people at a fight in which John L. Sullivan participated, and some of the experienced newspaper men were drunk, and that gave me my first opportunity to write a good story. So that I owed that to whisky. Perhaps I am the only man who can say that he owes anything to whisky.

Later I succeeded T. P. O'Connor as correspondent of the New York Sun in London, under Dana, before I was 21. In connection with my duties as correspondent, I went to the House of Commons, and saw Gladstone, nearly 80 years of age, and other famous men, when they used to stay all night in the House debating; and I interviewed him, and knew him and knew his son extremely well, and knew what their habits were; and I saw those men, who drank these very moderate, temperate liquors, strong and healthy in old age; and I went to St. Peters in Rome, and saw Pope Leo, nearly 90 years of age; and I had read his poem, advocating the use of red wines very moderately; and I felt and saw that these things were comparatively harmless.

I reported, for the New York Sun, the dreadful Jack the Ripper murders in London, and I went into the White Chapel district, where gin is drunk, and saw the horrid misery caused by the drinking of spirits. And then I went to Paris, where there is no drinking of spirits to mention, where the people are temperate, and there is no drinking problem whatever.

After that, when I came back to this country, whenever I wrote for the newspapers I wrote in favor of light wine and beer, and against whisky. I do not believe there is anyone who has written more strongly in favor of temperance and against whisky and drunkenness than I have, or who has done more to arouse a feeling against whisky in this country. I have written hundreds of editorials, published in newspapers all over the United States, Sunday after Sunday—not dozen or scores, but hundreds and hundreds. I did that from the day I came back.

In 1898 I began writing editorials. Up to that time my newspaper work had been writing news and managing newspapers.

I was the editor of the Evening Sun, which at that time had the biggest circulation, I was the editor of the Evening World, which had the biggest circulation, and was editor of the Sunday World, which had by far the biggest circulation. At present I am the editor of the Evening Journal, which has by hundreds of thousands the biggest circulation in the United States.

I wrote what I believed to be true, that absolute prohibition is not possible—we are now going to make an experiment, so we will know—and that whisky ought to be classed with cocaine and opium and morphine, and that light wine and beer, which workmen require, should be classed with tobacco, as harmless.

I presented these questions to Mr. Dinwiddie, who has drafted some of the most important legislation on prohibition in this country, and I saw Mr. Dinwiddie, and—with his permission I am telling you this—he said to me:

"I think your beer and light wine are as bad as anything possibly can be, and I don't know but what tobacco is in the same class."

He said, "I promised never to smoke, but when I was about 30 I got permission to smoke, and it made me very sick, and I think it is the worst thing on earth."

I do not smoke, as it happens, but I have seen Maj. Humes smoking here, and if I suggested taking away his cigar because it does not agree with me I think he would consider me impertinent. But if I saw him smoking opium or using cocaine I should not hesitate to suggest to him that he ought to stop it. That has been my attitude about whisky. Tobacco is harmless. Light wine and beer are required by workmen to keep them contented, in my opinion, and can be used harmlessly, but whisky and the other spirits are poisons.

I have presented these opinions of mine in hundreds of editorials that I have written on this subject, beginning in 1898, before I ever saw any brewer. In fact, I tried the experiment on myself to see if there was anything in it.

When I became editor of the Evening Journal I undertook a hard task. When I left Mr. Pulitzer he said: "Do not go on any evening paper, because the Evening World is preeminent." I was anxious to see whether the Evening Journal could not be developed into an equally prominent position. The Evening Journal had 50,000 circulation and the Evening World 350,000, and I made up my mind that within seven years the Evening Journal should pass the World.

I said to myself—although I have not been out of employment for 35 years—I said, "I will not take a drink of claret or anything else until the Journal passes the World." It worked so well that I kept it up for three years. I went to bed at half past 8 and got up at half past 4 and went to work at 5.15, and it took less than two months to accomplish what I was after. And when I got through, the Journal had a bigger circulation than the World. That was my experience with total abstinence. And in the course of that experiment my weight went from 190 to 153, and I found that it did not agree with me. I was working too hard. And I do not believe it would agree with working men under similar conditions.

Senator WOLCOTT. You do not mean to argue that total abstinence reduced your weight? Do you not imagine it was the hard work?

Mr. BRISBANE. No; but it worked so well that I thought I would keep it up forever; but one morning in the house in the country where I went, to sleep, and from which I came back to the office to work, I woke up lying flat on my back, with a lamp in my hand, which fortunately had gone out. I was looking for water, which, apparently, was not my natural beverage. I had this attack of heart failure, and my doctor said, "It is extremely foolish. Go back and take your claret to-morrow."

I have had other experiences. When I was so ill in Atlanta I stopped completely, and I went to Dr. Murphy, of Chicago, who was the great surgeon, and he said to me: "Never drink any claret or anything after this."

I said to him: "Doctor, just as soon as I eat my next meal I shall take claret with it, and if you do not take claret, in my opinion, you will die long before I do, though you are a much healthier man now, apparently."

He is dead now, I am sorry to say. I have said that to some of the most distinguished men in the country, that I do not believe, for a very active man, it is the healthful course; and that has been my sincere conviction. I wrote on this subject every day that something seemed to suggest it. When murders were committed they always found evidence of the bottle of whisky which told the story; and I wrote editorials about it. I have written hundreds of editorials against whisky.

Senator WOLCOTT. You do not know my attitude, at all, but I am what is called a "dry" man. I think the fact that you choose to write, expressing these opinions of yours, is nobody's concern but your own, and people who do not like the newspaper do not have to read it.

Mr. BRISBANE. I would not have injected my opinions in the matter except for the bearing that it has upon these charges.

Senator WOLCOTT. I just wanted to suggest, for my part, that it is no affair of this committee as to the opinions you express in this paper——

Mr. BRISBANE. It has simply this bearing, Senator, that it shows that I have constantly written in this way before I came in contact with the brewers.

I went to Milwaukee, and I was invited to speak to the brewers at Milwaukee, at a convention that they had, and I spoke at this convention, 12 years ago, I think it was, or 10 years ago, and I said to them: "Gentlemen, you have manufactured beer, which is a temperate beverage, and which is used separately; but you put saloons on all four corners, and in order to make them pay, these men have to sell whisky in all those saloons, and it is just exactly as if a cigar store had tobacco for sale on one counter and cocaine or opium on the other. The people would close up all the cigar stores." And I told them: "They will close you up." I told them that years ago.

I have always been in favor, however, of light wine and beer, and I told them so; and they appreciated my attitude toward their industry. There were only one or two of them who spoke to me after I had made this speech, and I said to them: "Every one of you will get the discredit of selling whisky, because these saloons do sell it; and you have got to stop it or the Government will stop you."

Senator OVERMAN. Are these the reasons why you bought the Times and got these men to lend you the money?

Mr. BRISBANE. When a man buys a newspaper—a newspaper is not a property on which you can borrow money at a time when it is losing $2,000 a week and has very little circulation. What you could borrow on that would be less than nothing, ordinarily. In that case a man who establishes a newspaper must get the money from other sources, or, as I have said before, marry the money as a short-cut to the editorial chair. You must borrow the money, or you must gradually earn it. I asked Mr. Munsey if he would not let me buy the paper and pay for it out of the profits, and he said no, that he had to have $250,000 cash and $60,000 for various supplies on hand; and I had to have that amount of ready money.

I thought of buying the Newark Star, offered by former Senator Smith, who got into financial difficulties and wanted to sell it, as is a matter of public record. I went out to look at it and talked the matter over with the president of the trust company in Newark, Mr. Feigenspan. I wanted to get the money to buy a paper, and I said to him, "Mr. Feigenspan, you know my attitude and what I have written on your industry. My name is attached to it, and you know what my opinion is. I think it is to your interest to increase my influence, if you can. If I decide to buy this paper, would you lend me the money to buy it, or help me to finance it?" And he said he would. When I looked into the property, however, I decided that it was not a desirable property, and nothing came of it.

When I came to Washington I saw Mr. Duart, representing Mr. Munsey, and he said Mr. Munsey had asked several times why I did not buy the Washington Times. Mr. Munsey asked me that, for a year, half jokingly, and I said I might, possibly, some time.

Finally I took the matter up seriously, and when I wanted to buy the Washington Times I went to Mr. Feigenspan, and I said to him what I had already said about the other paper, without repeating it. I state this to show why these men should lend me the money. If I had been a strong advocate of absolute prohibition I might have gone to some man like Rockefeller, who, I understand, is in favor of prohibition, and I should have said, "All my life I have advocated prohibition. It is to your interest to increase my influence."

So I went to Mr. Feigenspan, and I said: "I want to borrow this money. I shall pay it back and pay you interest. I can not borrow from a bank." And he was glad to lend it. He said: "I may not lend it all to you, but I will guarantee, among my friends, that I will let you have this money." And he agreed to lend me $500,000. I did not believe that would be sufficient to establish the paper, really, and thought I should have to borrow elsewhere later on. When you begin to get a paper in good shape you can borrow money. However, all I have ever borrowed on this paper was $375,000 because the paper succeeded very rapidly.

Senator OVERMAN. You did not know the other men who went in on this loan?

Mr. BRISBANE. No.

Senator OVERMAN. It was all done through Mr. Feigenspan?

Mr. BRISBANE. Not only that, but I never knew who they were until the thing was published by Mr. Palmer. I never knew their names, and did not know who they were, except two or three. Col. Pabst I knew. I knew Mr. Uihlein. He came to my office and put down a check for $50,000, and said, "I am going to put this in the paper to help you with this proposition." And I indorsed that check for $50,000 to Mr. Feigenspan and sent it to him and asked him to put it in with the fund, and that I would pay him back all together.

They lent me that money because I was on their side of a public question.

The point I want to make here is that I had always been on that side; and I could cite to you hundreds of editorials that I wrote before I ever met a brewer, on exactly the same lines as those I have written since publishing a newspaper of my own, purchased with money that I borrowed from brewers.

Senator OVERMAN. You gave no collateral?

Mr. BRISBANE. No, Senator; for this reason. I asked Mr. Feigenspan to take a mortgage on my real estate, and he declined, because, he said, "I do not want to go on record as trying to influence the press." He said, "We are glad to lend it to you, but we do not want it known." And I said, "Very well. It does not make any difference to me."

Senator OVERMAN. Their purpose in lending you the money was to have that sort of a paper here in Washington?

Mr. BRISBANE. They would have been very glad to have me have a paper anywhere, Senator. They knew how I felt on the question of prohibition, and how I wrote about it, and they would have been glad to have me have a paper in Chicago or anywhere else—in Milwaukee, where I have just bought a paper; in fact, I have bought three there.

Senator WOLCOTT. Do you regard that transaction as a loan, strictly, Mr. Brisbane, or does it not come pretty close to being a gift?

Mr. BRISBANE. It is absolutely a loan, Senator. Those men I believe would, if I had asked them, considering what I had done or endeavored to do, first by the advice that I gave them as to what was going to happen to their industry because of selling whisky, and secondly, because of my attitude always on the subject of prohibition—if I had asked them to give me $1,000 or $5,000 or $50,000, they might have done it.

Senator WOLCOTT. But from their point of view it is tantamount to a gift? That is to say, they can not collect it.

Mr. BRISBANE. Yes, they can; because Mr. Feigenspan has my note at the present time.

Senator WOLCOTT. But the terms of that note, as I recall, briefly stated, are about as follows: You are given an unlimited time in which to repay the loan.

Senator NELSON. Without interest.

Senator WOLCOTT. And there is no interest. You are to repay the loan; you are obligated to repay the loan; you are obligated to repay it only out of the profits that the paper makes; and then it is left entirely in your discretion as to how much of those profits, and when, out of those profits, you shall make payment?

Mr. BRISBANE. Yes. That was the idea, that while I ran the newspaper, using my influence as I always have done, on this side, these men would be well repaid, and in the end, of course, they would get their money with interest.

I could not say, "I will borrow this money and pay it back at a certain time." I could not tell within a year, or five years, how long it would take to put the Times on a paying basis. As a matter of fact, I did it in six months. It might easily have taken, however, two or three or several years, and I did not want to be compelled at any definite time to repay the money. I should have been glad to say to them at any time, "If you are in a hurry for your money, you can take the paper." They could have had the paper at any time if they had chosen. But I paid them their interest——

Senator WOLCOTT. But you were not under obligation, though, to do that?

Mr. BRISBANE. No; but I preferred to do it, and I expected to do it, and was able to do it, and so I did.

Senator WOLCOTT. But I say, from the viewpoint of the lenders of the money, it really was a gift; that is to say, the money had gone out of their reach and they could not force you to repay. They would have to trust entirely to your disposition to repay or not?

Mr. BRISBANE. They could have taken over the property here. They had a claim against me for $375,000.

Senator OVERMAN. Suppose you had died. There would be no claim then?

Mr. BRISBANE. They would have had the property in which their money was invested—a lien on the Washington Times.

Senator OVERMAN. There is no arrangement in this note giving them a lien on the Times?

Mr. BRISBANE. No; they did not want it. I wanted them to take a mortgage on my real estate, and I asked Mr. Feigenspan to do that, and he said he did not want to do it.

Senator OVERMAN. But there is no lien on the paper?

Mr. BRISBANE. No; there is absolutely no lien on the paper. I could not run a paper with any liens on the paper itself. This was a personal loan made to me, which I agreed to repay.

Maj. HUMES. The obligation was the obligation of the Growing Circulation Corporation?

Mr. BRISBANE. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. You owned all the stock of that concern, did you?

Mr. BRISBANE. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. It is a corporation, I believe?

Mr. BRISBANE. It is a corporation.

I sent Mr. Feigenspan my personal note for the full amount of money when I found what it was going to be. I drew this money in installments as I required it to meet the losses on the paper. As I say, I arranged a loan of $500,000, but I only drew $375,000 out of it. When it became clear that that was the total amount that I was going to draw, I said to Mr. Feigenspan, "Make me up a statement of the interest due to date," and I paid the interest—$22,000—in August and sent him my personal note for the full amount of the loan.

Maj. HUMES. Then, in addition to the note which was given to Mr. Feigenspan by the Growing Circulation Corporation, you have since furnished him with a personal note?

Mr. BRISBANE. I sent him my personal note.

Senator OVERMAN. What is that corporation?

Mr. BRISBANE. The Growing Circulation Corporation.

Senator OVERMAN. You are the owner of that?

Mr. BRISBANE. Yes.

Senator OVERMAN. When was that corporation formed?

Mr. BRISBANE. That corporation was formed about a year before, I think.

The original note was to be returned to me, and my note taken in place of that of the Growing Circulation Corporation; and the money was paid as it was because he did not wish it known that he had advanced money. As far as I am concerned, I asked him to take a mortgage on my property.

Maj. HUMES. Your note has been substituted for that of the Growing Circulation Corporation, now?

Mr. BRISBANE. Yes; it will be returned to me as soon as the Public Custodian, Mr. Palmer, returns it to Mr. Feigenspan.

Senator OVERMAN. You say the Times now is paying?

Mr. BBISBANE. Yes. I expect to be able to pay these men in full in the course of two years. They will get their interest in the meanwhile.

While that amount of money, $375,000, seems large for a newspaper man to borrow, it is not a large amount in my case. I have a large income. If the Times had not paid, I could have paid these gentlemen.

I have one salary, as editorial writer, of over $100,000 a year, which would enable me to pay a debt of that size. I borrowed last year a million dollars from S. W. Strauss & Co., bankers in New York, for building.

I am able to make newspapers pay, and I knew that after I had had this newspaper for a short time its borrowing value would enable me to carry it on successfully.

Senator OVERMAN. How many newspapers are you connected with now, Mr. Brisbane?

Mr. BRISBANE. I own this newspaper in Washington, and I own the Milwaukee (Wis.) News. I bought three newspapers in Milwaukee, and combined them into one.

Senator OVERMAN. You combined the three papers into one?

Mr. BRISBANE. Yes; they had a great many too many.

I write for Mr. Hearst's newspapers, and have for 20 years, as a salaried employee of his newspapers.

Maj. HUMES. What are the three papers in Milwaukee to which you referred?

Mr. BRISBANE. The Evening Wisconsin, the Daily News, and the Free Press.

Maj. HUMES. Do you own or control either the Leader, the Journal, or the Germania, the Germania Herold, or the Vorwaerts, in Milwaukee?

Mr. BRISBANE. No.

Senator OVERMAN. Do you own any of the stock in the Berger paper in Milwaukee—I do not know what paper that is.

Mr. BRISBANE. That is the Leader, in Milwaukee.

I received an intimation that some information would be likely desired of me in connection with my acquaintance with Victor Berger. Shall I make that statement now?

Senator OVERMAN. You may put in anything you desire.

Mr. BRISBANE. This is not of any importance to me, but I will put it in if it is desired. I do not own any stock in the Berger paper. I loaned him some money. I met him at Anson Phelps Stokes', the New York banker, with Peter Dunne, who writes the Dooley articles, and formed a high opinion of his intelligence and integrity, which I still have. I consider him a very good, honest man.

They built a building which contains all the offices of all the labor unions in Milwaukee—the mechanics and everything else are all in this building—and they named it the Brisbane Building. They told me they were short of money, and wanted to know if I would take some stock in the building, as they had named it the Brisbane Building, and I took $5,000 of stock in this building.

Subsequently Mr. Berger was going to start a daily paper, and I advised him strongly against it, as I thought he could not possibly make it pay. However, he was going to start it, and I loaned him,

I think, $8,000. Then he said he did not have control of the paper. And I will say to you now what I wrote to the President last spring, when this matter came up. He said he was anxious to have control; that is, to buy sufficient stock to have control—I am speaking of Mr. Berger—and he wanted to know if I would take stock instead of this money which I had loaned, which I did not get back, or the interest, and I said, "Very well." And I took stock in this paper.

Lately, last spring I think it was, Mr. Berger wrote me that he wanted to buy the stock back, and would pay for it when he could, and I returned the stock, and he sent me a thousand dollars in liberty bonds on account of payment.

He came to see me in Washington. I had not seen him for years, and I had not seen his paper. It was financially and as a newspaper a failure. It was simply propaganda.

He told me that there was a question of his being indicted, and assured me that he had done nothing illegal. I had not read his paper. I wrote to the President, and wrote an editorial about Berger, from which I would like to quote two things. This is a part of the editorial that I sent to President Wilson last spring when I wrote him about Victor Berger.

Senator OVERMAN. Was the editorial printed?

Mr. BRISBANE. No; it was written for the President. I did not want to print it and put in my paper anything that seemed to condone the publication of any newspaper even accused of disloyalty; but this is the opinion that I had of Victor Berger.

Here is the opinion of the New York Times:

On August 27, 1916, under the heading "A man and in Wisconsin" the New York Times published a leading editorial from which an extract follows:

Victor L. Berger himself was born in Germany. He lives in Milwaukee, a city full of men born in Germany. But he is an American. He hitches no hyphen on his allegiance. Here is the answer his newspaper, the Milwaukee Leader, makes to the hyphenated proposal of his constituents.

The Times quotes from a vigorous, patriotic editorial, published by Victor Berger in his Milwaukee Leader, and adds this comment:

"That is the answer of a man. In this time of truckling, of politicians who are afraid to say their souls are their own, it is worth while to see here and there the exception. Whether he wins or loses the election, this German-born Socialist in a German-born constituency has given a living illustration of what an American should be and what too many Americans born on this soil are not."

That is from the New York Times.

The Baltimore Sun said practically the same thing, and the Philadelphia Record said practically the same thing.

The merchants of Milwaukee say that Berger is a law-abiding man and defends nothing illegal. They do not agree with his theories, perhaps, any more than I do, about being able to make the human race perfect overnight, but they say he is absolutely honest.

The Republican governor of the State has told me—he detests Berger's socialistic theories, I presume, but he says he is honest.

Well, Berger came to me in distress, and I wrote a letter to the President and made this point: Berger is an educated man, and I believe he is honest. I do not believe he would suggest or do anything opposed to the law or Constitution of the country; and if he is put out of his position as a leader, it would be to substitute for him as leader some dangerous individual of a totally different character, because these Socialists in Milwaukee are mechanics and people of a different grade from socialistic bodies in some other places; and my suggestion was that it would be a bad thing, unless it were necessary according to law, unless he had really done something which I did not know of, to put him out.

The President asked me to see Mr. Burleson about it, and I talked to Mr. Burleson, and he said to me: "I was in Congress with old Berger, and I know him; but," he said, "if he is printing any nonsense in his paper he will have to take the consequences." And he showed me some things which Berger had said which seemed to be utterly foolish, and I dropped the matter.

This is the extent of my connection with Victor Berger.

Maj. HUMES. You are not, at present, a stockholder in his paper?

Mr. BRISBANE. No.

Maj. HUMES. Your relation with the paper has changed since September, 1917—with the Leader?

Mr. BRISBANE. With the Leader?

Maj. HUMES. Yes; you were a stockholder in October, 1917, were you not?

Mr. BRISBANE. Yes; I gave Berger back his stock last spring some time.

Maj. HUMES. The report to the Post Office Department October 1, 1917, shows you as a stockholder.

Mr. BRISBANE. Yes; it was last spring.

Maj. HUMES. Have you any knowledge of the financing of newspapers, or loans being made for the purchase of newspapers, other than your transaction with the Washington Times, by the brewing interests of the country, or the large brewers of the country?

Mr. BRISBANE. None.

Maj. HUMES. Did the brewing interests or any of these brewers participate with you in the purchase of the Milwaukee papers?

Mr. BRISBANE. No.

Maj. HUMES. They have not loaned you money in connection with the transaction?

Mr. BRISBANE. No. They knew nothing about it until they saw the announcement in the newspapers that I had bought it.

Maj. HUMES. Mr. Uihlein or Mr. Pabst had no part in it?

Mr. BRISBANE. None whatever.

Maj. HUMES. A moment ago you commented on a telegram that you sent to Lord Northcliffe. Did you ever send any other telegrams to Lord Northcliffe with relation to the newspapers of this country?

Mr. BRISBANE. I do not know. I very probably have telegraphed and written to him many times.

Maj. HUMES. Did you send him a telegram on the 19th of November, 1917, relative to the antagonism against some journalistic friend of yours?

Mr. BRISBANE. I should think it likely. I do not recall it.

Maj. HUMES. In what connection was that telegram sent?

Mr. BRISBANE. The newspapers owned by Mr. Hearst had trouble with the English authorities, and the use of the cables, etc., were stopped at one period and afterwards renewed. Lord Northcliffe cabled me that if I would come over—he thought this was due to a misunderstanding, and he cabled and wrote me that if I would come to England—he would take me to see whoever it was necessary to see—the premier, or whoever it was necessary to see—and he felt this thing could be adjusted.

I intended to go, but I had pneumonia and was not able to go, so I did not. He sent his manager to see me in New York at the Gotham Hotel.

I cabled him and I wrote him on different occasions, telling him that I thought it was poor policy for the English Government to take this attitude toward American newspapers and undertake to say what an American newspaper owner could claim in the United States, just as I should think it would be foolish for the President of the United States to say that Lord Northcliffe, in England, could not print what he chose in his paper in England; that I thought for each country to attend to what its own newspapers were doing was sufficient. I do not recall the details of what I may have written.

Maj. HUMES. Was not the cause of that trouble due to the news that was coming from Germany, rather than due to any news that was coming from England?

Mr. BRISBANE. I do not know what actually caused the difficulty. No; I think not. My impression is that, as I say, Lord Northcliffe telegraphed that he thought it was a misunderstanding and could be adjusted, and he said that if I came to England—he telegraphed me, and I could find the cablegram—if I came to England he thought it could be adjusted.

Maj. HUMES. As I understand, your relation with the various Hearst papers is purely a contractual relation, as an employee?

Mr. BRISBANE. That is all. I have no ownership and no authority beyond that of an employee.

Senator OVERMAN. Have you anything to do with the policy of the paper?

Mr. BRISBANE. Nothing whatever, except that Mr. Hearst, I think, would listen to my advice, probably; but he very rarely asks for advice.

Senator OVERMAN. Are you given a free hand to write what you please?

Mr. BRISBANE. No. My understanding is that I write what I please and he publishes it if he pleases; but if Mr. Hearst has a campaign, for instance, I do not write what I do not please.

On one occasion Mr. Hearst was advocating the election of a Democrat, and I was making speeches in New York City and informing people that I knew, that I was not supporting that man, that I was against him. I made speeches for Oscar Straus while Mr. Hearst supported Mr. Sulzer; and Mr. Hearst had no objection. He does not wish to be told anybody's views—at least not mine. He rules his papers absolutely, and trusts to me, as I know about what his line of thought is, not to go outside of that.

Occasionally, if he sees something in the paper that he does not like, he throws it out, naturally. The papers are his property.

Maj. HUMES. Was not the whole reason for the closing down of the cables the presence in Berlin and the activities there of William Bayard Hale, who was an employee in the Hearst newspapers?

Mr. BRISBANE. I never heard that even suggested.

Maj. HUMES. Mr. Hale was in Germany, was he not?

Mr. BRISBANE. I believe so.

Let me tell you that these matters related to the New York American, which is a morning newspaper, with which I have no connection and by which I am not employed. My connection is entirely with the Evening Journal, an evening newspaper, for which I write.

Senator OVERMAN. You do not edit the morning paper at all?

Mr. BRISBANE. Not at all. I have nothing to do with it. My work is confined to the evening newspapers, except in Chicago I edit a morning paper, and have been since last spring.

Maj. HUMES. Was not Mr. Hale employed for both of those papers?

Mr. BRISBANE. No. The Evening Journal does not print special correspondence of that kind.

Maj. HUMES. Do not both of those papers handle the International News Service?

Mr. BRISBANE. The International News Service comes to both papers.

Maj. HUMES. Yes. Was not Mr. Hale representing the International News Service in Berlin?

Mr. BRISBANE. I believe he was; but I know nothing about the detail of that. It is a separate corporation. My work has been entirely editorial writing, and I have nothing to do with the news management.

Maj. HUMES. You have no connection with the news matter?

Mr. BRISBANE. So far as the International News or the New York American is concerned. In a general way, in the evening paper, it is under my direction, but I could not tell you the names of the assistants or the executives.

Senator OVERMAN. As a matter of curiosity more than anything else, let me ask you this: How can you edit so many newspapers at the same time—this paper here in Washington and one at Chicago, one in Milwaukee, and one in New York?

Mr. BRISBANE. The thing that simplifies it is that I say the same things in every place.

Senator OVERMAN. You write one editorial for all?

Mr. BRISBANE. I write an editorial every day, which is published in my own newspapers and published in all the Hearst newspapers. Then I have in each city a competent editor and publisher, and I live in a Pullman car a great deal. For instance, for nearly a year I made the trip between Chicago and New York twice a week. I have a phonograph and a secretary in the Pullman car.

Senator OVERMAN. Pardon me, I just asked for curiosity.

Maj. HUMES. On which one of the New York papers was Mr. Francis an editor?

Mr. BRISBANE. The New York American.

Maj. HUMES. On the New York American?

Mr. BRISBANE. An editorial writer.

Maj. HUMES. And you were not employed by that paper?

Mr. BRISBANE. That is correct. I was not employed by that paper.

Maj. HUMES. And William Bayard Hale was an International News correspondent?

Mr. BRISBANE. That I never knew. I do not know, really.

Maj. HUMES. Which paper was Anthony Arnaux connected with?

Mr. BRISBANE. I do not know. I could not tell you. I do not know anything about it.

Maj. HUMES. By which of the other Hearst publications were you employed, or for which did you write, besides the Journal?

Mr. BRISBANE. I wrote for the Evening Journal, the Boston American—that is, I had no editorial connection except with the Evening Journal; that is, general management; I was one of the general managers; but my editorials I wrote for the Evening Journal, and if they were suitable in Boston, they would be put in the Boston paper, and if suitable for Chicago, they would be put in the evening paper there. But outside of New York the editors of the local papers used their judgment about printing them.

Maj. HUMES. Who was Carl Von Wiegand?

Mr. BRISBANE. I never saw him. I do not know.

Maj. HUMES. Do you know of his being a representative of the Hearst papers?

Mr. BRISBANE. I have seen that since this matter was discussed. When he was a representative I never knew it.

Maj. HUMES. Do you know Mr. Sweppendick?

Mr. BRISBANE. I do not recall his name.

Maj. HUMES. Or Mr. Montigliossi?

Mr. BRISBANE. No.

Maj. HUMES. Or Mr. Schreiner?

Mr. BRISBANE. No.

Maj. HUMES. Or Mr. Kunz?

Mr. BRISBANE. No.

Maj. HUMES. Mr. Brisbane, were you acquainted with any of the German agents in this country?

Mr. BRISBANE. No; I was not.

Maj. HUMES. Were you acquainted with Dr. Fuehr, or Mr. Albert?

Mr. BRISBANE. Dr. Albert I met at luncheon at the Ritz-Carlton one day some years ago.

Maj. HUMES. Were you ever at his office?

Mr. BRISBANE. No.

Maj. HUMES. Did you call at his office about the 18th of January, 1917?

Mr. BRISBANE. I never did, one of my secretaries might have called, possibly.

Maj. HUMES. Did you have any connection with the International News Service?

Mr. BRISBANE. None whatever.

Maj. HUMES. Do you know the news service that was coming to Dr. Fuehr's office?

Mr. BRISBANE. No; I do not know who Dr. Fuehr is.

Maj. HUMES. You know by reputation who he is, do you not?

Mr. BRISBANE. I really do not. I pay very little attention, and really could not tell you who he is.

Maj. HUMES. Do you know Mr. Claussen?

Mr. BRISBANE. No.

Maj. HUMES. Of the Hamburg-American Line?

Mr. BRISBANE. I never met him.

Maj. HUMES. Are you familiar with the activities of various interests in trying to secure control of the American Press Association?

Mr. BRISBANE. No.

Maj. HUMES. The American Press Association, I believe is managed by some relative of yours?

Mr. BRISBANE. My brother-in-law is president of it.

Maj. HUMES. Do you know of the effort made by brewing interests to acquire control of that association?

Mr. BRISBANE. No.

Maj. HUMES. And a subsequent effort which was made by the German agents to secure control?

Mr. BRISBANE. I saw the publication in a newspaper. That is all I know about it. My brother-in-law has not told me of that.

Maj. HUMES. What is the name of your brother-in-law?

Mr. BRISBANE. Courtlandt Smith.

Maj. HUMES. Then the Growing Circulation Corporation was organized simply as a small corporation to cover up the transaction and for the benefit of Mr. Feigenspan?

Mr. BRISBANE. No; I was going to undertake the delivery of our newspapers by a separate company, myself. I was interested in automobiles, and I thought I would like to test using automobiles in place of horses, and I started to organize a corporation for delivery, with the idea of making this test. But nothing came of that idea. I found the man who had the contract for delivering the papers was extremely anxious to keep it, so that, although I could have taken the contract if I chose, I abandoned the idea; and this corporation was in existence; it was in existence long before that, and was organized for that purpose, and when it was organized I had no idea of buying the Washington Times at that time.

Maj. HUMES. Your ownership of the Washington Times was an absolute ownership, was it?

Mr. BRISBANE. Absolutely.

Maj. HUMES. It was not a trusteeship in any way?

Mr. BRISBANE. Not in the slightest.

Maj. HUMES. Did you have any contract with Mr. Hearst with regard to the taking over or acquiring of the Washington Times?

Mr. BRISBANE. Mr. Hearst knew nothing about it until after I had bought it, when I told him I had bought it.

Maj. HUMES. There was no agreement between you and Mr. Hearst by which he agreed to take the Times off your hands if you so desired?

Mr. BRISBANE. This is my agreement with Mr. Hearst: I was under contract with Mr. Hearst. I bought the Washington Times in May, 1917. This was the first paper I ever bought. Under my contract I had to give my exclusive services for five years, which would be until 1922. I bought the paper, and then told Mr. Hearst that I had bought it. He objected, very strenuously. He was paying me a salary of $104,000 a year—$2,000 a week. He said: "I am paying you to look after my papers. Now you will look after your own and neglect mine." I said: "I think I will not; because what I write for your papers will be in my own, and as it goes in my paper I shall be interested in making it good. However, if you feel that my ownership of the paper would probably interfere with your work I will agree that you can take the paper at any time you like for what it cost me." Later on I said: "As long as I made that agreement with you I think you should say that if I find that I have undertaken too much you will buy the paper." And he said that he would do that. The idea was that he did not want to be in a position of having me working for my own newspaper while he was paying me a salary to concentrate on his. He objected very strongly at first to my buying it.

Maj. HUMES. Does he not offer any objection to your using material that you were writing for him, at $2,000 a week, in other newspapers of your own?

Mr. BRISBANE. Not the slightest. One reason why I wanted the paper was that he allows me to use everything that he prepares for his own newspapers, very generously, in my own newspaper, which makes it possible to make the paper successful quickly.

Maj. HUMES. Has he loaned to you the services of any of his regular employees?

Mr. BRISBANE. No.

Maj. HUMES. Mr. Brisbane, is it not a fact that from the profits of the Washington Times certain payments are from time to time being made to the people from whom Mr. Hearst purchased one of the Chicago papers?

Mr. BRISBANE. No, sir.

Maj. HUMES. Is it or is it not a fact that a sum of approximately a thousand dollars a week is being paid over to Mr. Levi Mayer, who represents the persons from whom Mr. Hearst bought one of the Chicago papers?

Mr. BRISBANE. No, Major. I will tell you what the $1,000 is being paid for, or was being paid for. I subscribed $100,000 to the third liberty loan there in Chicago. I made the subscription at the Continental & Commercial Bank, and sent a thousand dollars a week to the Continental & Commercial Bank to pay for my liberty bonds. That is every dollar that the Times has ever sent to Chicago. It never sent a penny to Levi Mayer, who was attorney for Mr. Rosenwald and the others who owned the Herald, which I purchased from him, as agent for Mr. Hearst.

Senator OVERMAN. How is that?

Mr. BRISBANE. I bought it as agent, acting as agent. Mr. Palmer asked me something of the same kind, and I told him he was off the track on that.

Senator NELSON. Do you own the Chicago Herald?

Mr. BRISBANE. No; I am an employee of the Chicago Herald.

Maj. HUME. Then any statement to that effect made by Mr. Levi Mayer is incorrect, is it?

Mr. BRISBANE. Yes; and Mr. Levi Mayer has denied, publicly, that he ever made any such statement, or that I ever paid a cent, or had any interest in it. He had an interview in the Christian Science Monitor some time ago. I do not know what was said to make that mistake; but the only money that has ever gone is as I have described it. I never have drawn a check for the Washington Times in my life. The publisher of the paper, Mr. Shaw, signs the checks. If you would like, I will show you one of these stubs, because I had heard of this very thing, and the memorandum I received from you suggested that that might be called for. I thought I had one of those stubs here. Apparently, I have not got it. However, each check was written to the order of the Continental & Commercial Bank, to pay for liberty bonds, and the total amount sent was $22,000 on account of that payment.

Maj. HUMES. My authority for that statement comes from a man who tells me that Mr. Mayer told him personally that that was true.

Mr. BRISBANE. He misunderstood Mr. Mayer; because that was Mr. A. Mitchell Palmer, and he told me, and I said to Mr. Mayer: "What kind of a ghost story have you got into Mr. Mitchell Palmer's mind?" How he managed to do it, I don't know. May I show you how this thing was done?

Maj. HUMES. Did Mr. Levi Mayer call on Mr. Palmer at your request in connection with this matter?

Mr. BRISBANE. No; he did not. Mr. Levi Mayer told me that he knew Mr. Palmer, of course, and many gentlemen said they would speak to Mr. Palmer when they saw this statement that I was pro-German, and so forth—including Mr. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury, and others who said they thought it was outrageous, inasmuch as my record was perfectly clear in the papers.

Senator OVERMAN. Let me see that paper you have there, please.

Mr. BRISBANE. This is the letter to the Continental & Commercial Bank, Senator, sending them a thousand dollars to apply on the payment of my liberty bonds.

Maj. HUMES. As I remember, you stated that Mr. Philip Francis was one of the editorial writers on the American?

Mr. BRISBANE. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. Who are the other editorial writers on the paper?

Mr. BRISBANE. Mr. Montague writes editorials sometimes; Mr. Bradford Merrill occasionally, I believe, writes editorials; Mr. Willis J. Abbott also. They are not signed, so that you can not identify the different editorials. They are written anonymously.

Maj. HUMES. Are yours written anonymously too?

Mr. BRISBANE. Yes; in Mr. Hearst's newspaper, except that I write one column "To-day," which I sign. I began it when I bought the Washington Times. The regular editorial column in the Hearst newspapers is printed anonymously, but I write a column every day, which I call "To-day," that I started when I bought the Washington Times, and that Mr. Hearst has used in some of his newspapers.

Maj. HUMES. Was Mr. Augustus Beach one of the editorial writers?

Mr. BRISBANE. I do not know him.

Maj. HUMES. You don't know him?

Mr. BRISBANE. I never heard of him.

Maj. HUMES. Was Mr. Carvallo an editorial writer?

Mr. BRISBANE. No; he was the general business manager.

Maj. HUMES. Of which paper?

Mr. BRISBANE. Of all the Hearst papers.

Maj. HUMES. Who controlled the set-up of the paper and the selecting of the editorials and the arrangement of them?

Mr. BRISBANE. All newspapers have a night man in charge, a night managing editor, who decides the different pages—the editorial page being in charge of one man, the sporting page in charge of another man, and the news page in charge of another. They use their judgment. It is a part of the mechanical-editorial end of it.

Maj. HUMES. Did Mr. Hearst himself frequently control those set-ups of the editorials?

Mr. BRISBANE. I do not know, because I am never in the morning American's office. The editorial page is made up at night. I should think that quite often he would tell what he wanted done.

Maj. HUMES. You do not know, as a fact, then, that he frequently did designate the style of set-up for the editorials?

Mr. BRISBANE. No; I do not. It can only be done at night. I am never in my office after 5 or 6 o'clock in the afternoon, and the morning paper is made up between 6 o'clock and midnight.

Maj. HUMES. To whom would Mr. Hearst give directions of that kind?

Mr. BRISBANE. It might be any one of a dozen men. It might be Col. Van Hamm, or Mr. Ranck, or it might be Mr. Palmer, in charge of the editorial page. He might telephone, and he would give instructions to anybody that he got on the telephone to tell somebody else—the instruction would be given to whoever happened to come along.

Maj. HUMES. In writing editorials for the Hearst publications, did your editorials sometimes appear in the Deutsches Journal?

Mr. BRISBANE. I believe they sometimes published editorials on Sunday that I wrote. Those were essays on moral questions, with large cartoons. I believe they reprinted those, although I never saw them. Whatever I wrote for Mr. Hearst could be printed in any of his publications that chose to use it.

Maj. HUMES. The Deutsches Journal is still being printed?

Mr. BRISBANE. No.

Maj. HUMES. When was it discontinued?

Mr. BRISBANE. I think about the time the war broke out Mr. Hearst stopped it. I never had any connection with it. Mr. Hearst bought the Deutsches Journal when he bought the Journal; the two things existed at the same time.

Maj. HUMES. I call your attention to some alleged reprints of editorials of yours, and ask you to look them over and tell us if they are correct quotations of those editorials.

Mr. BRISBANE. I do not know whether they are mine. It would be rather hard to say from an extract. Let me see. Yes: I think this one is mine [indicating], in which I objected to the movement that men of German names could not be sent over as Red Cross nurses. I think so. I am not certain, because it does not seem exactly like my style. But I remember I felt it was very strange that a woman who was born in America, because she had a German name, could not go as a nurse in the Red Cross. I still think so.

These are extracts taken from different editorials. This I did not write, for instance [indicating]. I am sure it is not my style. But a separate line is hard to identify, when you consider that I write every day in the year four or five thousand words of matter; I could not be certain whether a certain paragraph is mine or not.

In this paragraph here I say, "When dear old England made a bargain with Japan, she has bargained with somebody a little bit smarter than herself." I think that is true. Japan is about the smartest of the nations, diplomatically.

I should say that, as a rule, those are accurate quotations—isolated quotations from my editorials. However, I would like to have you look at the editorials I have written and have these checked up.

The question is not between America and England. The question is between America and Germany; and my editorials dealing with Germany are the matters to be considered.

Senator NELSON. Suppose you take those articles and mark those that you do not recognize as yours, which have not been published in the paragraphs of the Times.

Mr. BRISBANE. I should like to take them and have the committee see the editorials of which they were a part. It is rather difficult to judge of an editorial by a brief extract of this kind.

Senator NELSON. Those are taken from the first column of the first page.

Mr. BRISBANE. Are they?

Senator NELSON. Yes; which is a lot of paragraphs.

Senator WOLCOTT. Not altogether. Are they from the New York Tribune?

Mr. BRISBANE. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. Yes.

Senator WOLCOTT. I have taken the pains, with a great deal of care, to check up those quotations with the excerpts that Mr. Brisbane has sent in here, and generally speaking they are from the "To-day" column.

Mr. BRISBANE. They are?

Senator WOLCOTT. Those quotations. But now and then they are from the editorial page.

Mr. BRISBANE. I dare say these are correct quotations. Is there anything in favor of Germany in any of these quotations? Because if there is, I did not write it.

Maj. HUMES. I confess that I have not read them all myself.

Senator WOLCOTT. I want to say to Mr. Brisbane, now, that I read those excerpts, as they are gotten together, in your hand there, and my impression, the impression that was made upon my mind, was that your newspaper, the Washington Times, was—how shall I express it? I will not say engaged in propaganda, but at all events that you were saying things that I thought were not designed to be helpful to America, but inciting, often, against England and Japan, and decrying war, and so on. But, recognizing the lack of value of excerpts, detached from the whole context in the series of editorials, I went to a great deal of pains to read all of these quotations in your paper.

Mr. BRISBANE. I am very much obliged to you, Senator.

Senator WOLCOTT. And the net result of it all, to my mind, is that no man can justly say that you have been engaged in any pro-Germanism.

Mr. BRISBANE. I am very much obliged to you.

Senator WOLCOTT. I started out with a different impression, I confess.

Mr. BRISBANE. Thank you very much.

I have never worked as earnestly in my life at anything as I have at this effort to inspire Americans, those that read my newspapers, who are of all classes, and who run into millions. I have the opportunity of talking, every day, to at least six million or seven million people in the United States, because I have at least that number of readers of the papers.

Senator STERLING. Do you not think the tendency of some of these editorials of yours was to discourage the American people in this war—to break down the morals of the American people?

Mr. BRISBANE. Quite the contrary, Senator. My intention and desire, and I feel the tendency was to protect victory.

Senator STERLING. Let me call your attention to one or two quotations here. On July 8, for example, you say——

Mr. BRISBANE. 1918?

Senator STERLING. 1917; a short time, as I understand it, after you acquired the paper?

Mr. BRISBANE. Yes.

Senator STERLING. "The European nations are bankrupt, engaged in the murder game. They don't know how to stop."

Of course that blames the European nations generally—all of them—our allies, then, as well as Germany; and it is called, indiscriminately, a "murder game" and our allies are engaged in the game of murder, as well as our opponents.

A little further, on August 16, you say:

Is this civilized word to be nothing more than a field of death? And Europe, so glorious and flourishing, is it going, as if stricken by universal madness, to run to the abyss, and to lend its hand to its own suicide?

And then, on August 20, you speak of it as "the game of murder."

Now, on July 28, you say:

Don't you wish you had such an uncle? Uncle Sam figures that he must lend $500,000,000 a month to his allies, and our financiers told us that we could not possibly have Government ownership of railroads, because the country could not afford it. We can afford more for international murder than for national organization.

Does not that attribute international murder to the United States?

Mr. BRISBANE. No, I do not think so, Senator. I do not think anybody could read these editorials and find anything but the most earnest approval of the war.

This is calling attention to the fact that when it was a question of the Government taking over the railroads, or taking over public property, that those who opposed it said it was impossible that any such amount of money could be raised, and that that which could not be done for peace purposes had been surpassed for war purposes. Of course I say war is a game of murder.

Senator STERLING. We could not make this loan, or afford to make this loan, according to your contention, because we were in this war, and because we were in this war—that is the plain inference—we were engaged in international murder?

Mr. BRISBANE. I think that war is international murder. How would you define international murder?

Senator STERLING. Would you think that, under the circumstances, that was a good idea—we being engaged in war at the time—to inculcate in the minds of the American people?

Mr. BRISBANE. I do not presume to teach the American people, or to do anything more than comment. If a man writes every day, he makes a great many mistakes, and especially if he writes very rapidly. But I say—and I am very glad, indeed, to have the Senator from New Jersey confirm my earnest intention—that these editorials are the strongest effort that I could make, and I think as strong as anybody in my profession could make, to make Americans want to go through with this war and win it.

Senator STERLING. In all these excerpts and these editorials, I have not seen a word, or at least I do not now recall having seen a word, in which you spoke about the justice of America's cause in this war—not one word.

Senator WOLCOTT. I think you will find numerous instances, Senator.

Senator STERLING. But you speak of it as "international murder."

Mr. BRISBANE. I think you will find numerous instances. I think there are a great many. I believe you have found it so, Senator.

Senator WOLCOTT. Yes; I think you can pick out a great many, Senator, to bear that out.

I confess, as I said a moment ago, that you can select sentences and paragraphs from this great series of editorials and comments, and put them together so as to make it look like Mr. Brisbane had been pursuing a plan of inflaming the public mind in this country against war. But, as I read the whole series, and got through with them, that impression has entirely gone from my mind. That one editorial that you just read, Senator, I remember very distinctly. I tried to analyze the psychology of Mr. Brisbane as he wrote that. I rather gathered that Mr. Brisbane was trying to emphasize the point that it was foolish to argue that we could not afford to take over the railroads, and, being a skillful journalist, he seized upon this rather striking comparison of the cost of the railroads, with the amount of money we were lending to the allies. That is about the way I interpreted his ideas. I should not have done that, if I had been writing for a newspaper. I should not have used that particular comparison for fear that it might be twisted in some way. Yet I do not think it is pro-Germanism.

Mr. BRISBANE. If it was bad judgment on my part, as the Senator intimates, you must consider that I write an editorial every day of my life, seven days a week, for an evening paper, and that I write an article every morning, seven days a week, for a morning newspaper, and, in addition, I run newspapers in different places; and I write under pressure. I dictate to the phonograph, or to a rapid stenographer, and my chief difficulty is to read the stuff after I have written it. If I have a good stenographer, I frequently do without reading it. Just as I talk very rapidly now, I write under pressure, and it would be difficult for me to write every day for 30 years, and to write throughout this war, without having done things which might be condemned or which might be susceptible of a false interpretation.

Senator STERLING. Does it not occur to you now that the average reader, reading a statement like that—the average American citizen—might come to the conclusion, or would come to the conclusion, that the editor at least believed that America was engaged in international murder?

Mr. BRISBANE. No; I do not think it would be possible, Senator. I think that my articles are read by people who read them continually; they are not read occasionally by Senators, who might not bother much with reading editorials and who are busy with other matters; but they are read by the masses of the population, who read them every day.

Senator WOLCOTT. Interrupting you for a moment right there: Does not that emphasize the duty of the editor to be extremely careful what he says?

Mr. BRISBANE. Yes, undoubtedly. But it is to be remembered that it is not what a man gets by one paragraph or by three lines, isolated from the context, but what the reader gets at the end of a week, or at the end of a month, or at the end of a year.

Senator STERLING. You contend that you have been strongly anti-German from the beginning?

Mr. BRISBANE. Yes.

Senator STERLING. Do you think that an attack upon our strongest and greatest ally in this war is a good way to show your opposition to Germany and Germany's course?

Mr. BRISBANE. I do not know exactly what you have in mind, Senator, but I think that telling the truth to grown men is important at all times. I have not a bit of friendship for Germany, and never have had; and in this, as in regard to other matters, I have written what I thought to be the fact for American readers.

Senator STERLING. Let me call your attention to an extract published in the paper of August 14, 1917:

> How many millions do we want to spend? How many men do we want to kill, in order to get not only the peace that would satisfy us, but the peace that would satisfy England and the other allies? Which is the dominating voice in the peace making question? Is it the voice of America, which is now paying the bills, supplying the food, and asking nothing but an end of murder? Is it the voice of England, not always renowned for her unselfishness?

Now, is not that an editorial calculated to arouse suspicion of England, or opposition to England, calculated to weaken our force and our spirit in this war?

Mr. BRISBANE. I think it is calculated to arouse thought on the part of public officials and on the part of the general public, and I think that is extremely important. I thought then, and I think now, that it is very important to know whether this country controls the making of peace and other questions, or whether England controls them.

I say England has not always been renowned for her unselfishness. Is it her unselfishness that has given her Canada on the north, or that has given her her empire?

Senator OVERMAN. England is not entirely unselfish now?

Mr. BRISBANE. No. And I hope, Senator, you will keep this in mind after this peace treaty is over. I think England will come out of this—and I think she deserves it—much better off than when she began. Should not Americans have a right to express an opinion on that subject?

Senator STERLING. If you were so anti-German from the start, must you not conclude that England, indeed before we got into the war, was, in a way, fighting our own battles?

Mr. BRISBANE. I did not conclude that England was fighting our own battles. I concluded that England was attacked by Germany, and was defending herself.

Senator NELSON. Did you not realize, Mr. Brisbane, that if Germany should succeed in conquering and destroying England and France, that it would give Germany absolute control in Europe, and that we would be at her mercy? Did that never dawn on you?

Mr. BRISBANE. Oh, yes; Senator. It dawned on me, and I talked it over with Mr. Hurley, the head of the Shipping Board, and I told him that I believed they fought the battle of civilization, which is more important than her selfish battle.

I should not like to think that any individual seriously went into this war to defend himself against an attack from Germany; but the Germans were killing innocent and unprotected people.

Mr. Hurley said:

If the Germans want to come and attack us by sea, I would build a dock for them. If they tried to come over the sea, I would be glad to build a dock for them, and see them try to land.

Senator NELSON. We have demonstrated, in this war, one thing, and that is that a big army can be transported across the Atlantic Ocean.

Mr. BRISBANE. When it has the fleet of England to help them to do it, and a friendly base to land the armies upon. If the Germans arrived here they would not have that advantage.

Senator NELSON. But the Germans were trying to get a base in Mexico. That would have given them a base?

Mr. BRISBANE. Undoubtedly. I do not think I feel any differently than you do in regard to that matter. And I believe my articles will bear that out. I am glad the Senator from Delaware took the trouble to read them, as he has stated. My articles are the strongest anti-German articles that could be written. They may not all have been looking upon England as unselfish, I will admit. I hope she will get everything she wants—colonies and all, if she can take care of them. I hope we will not get them. But, as an American, I do not see why, when I am writing for American citizens, I should not discuss even England. The English papers do not hesitate to discuss anything or anybody, as you know, I am sure. They retain freedom of discussion, in war as in peace.

Senator WOLCOTT. I have heard the kernel of that idea expressed in conversations with prominent men here in Washington, though perhaps not quite so forcibly; that is to say, we ought not to fight any longer than the broad necessities of the case require; that we ought not to continue for the sake of getting England something she might want.

Mr. BRISBANE. I think this is the greatest country, and its interests are paramount, and that it should decide things affecting itself.

Senator OVERMAN. Is there anything else, gentlemen?

Senator NELSON. Do you not want to put these papers in the record, Maj. Humes?

Maj. HUMES. I understood they were to be checked up first.

Mr. BRISBANE. Do you wish me to check all of these?

Senator OVERMAN. You can not do that now.

Mr. BRISBANE. Oh, no; it would take me quite a long time. Shall I do it, and mark those that are mine?

Maj. HUMES. Yes; mark the ones that you are the author of.

Mr. BRISBANE. Everything that I have written is in a certain book.

Senator OVERMAN. They are published in the Times?

Mr. BRISBANE. Yes; the Washington Times.

Senator NELSON. From the time you became the owner of it?

Mr. BRISBANE. Yes.

Maj. HUMES. And also state whether or not you are the author.

Senator NELSON. Yes; that should be stated.

Mr. BRISBANE. It has been suggested that doubtless the committee would be glad to have me emphasize the strong opinions I have written on the other side. As a matter of fact, here are 130 articles, all of them violently anti-German, strongly anti-German, and a little newspaper which belongs to the class that I mentioned where the proprietor marries money with which to buy it, and he selects from my articles certain extracts and brings them to the Senators and makes rather a poor case by picking out, here and there, something which is not quite friendly enough to England.

I went to school in this country before I went to school in France, and I had the impression that an American was allowed to express his opinion as to England, or as to Japan, or as to any other country, provided he was loyal to his own country, and when he was talking to intelligent American citizens.

Senator WOLCOTT. I was about to suggest, myself, that if these other articles are to go into the record you should have an opportunity to select such other articles expressing your opinions as you might care to file with the committee.

Mr. BRISBANE. Thank you very much, Senator.

Senator WOLCOTT. That is entirely by way of suggestion. I should favor your having the opportunity to put in any extracts or writings of yours that you wish to file.

Senator OVERMAN. You have the right to put anything you want to.

Mr. BRISBANE. I am not anxious to encumber the record, gentlemen. I have such possibilities of publicity, as I said before, that I can reach millions every day, and I can create opinion, if I am on the right side.

Senator OVERMAN. But in our report, if we are going to put this in, do you not think it would be best to have submitted to us also such articles as you may desire to put in? We do not want to encumber the record; we would like to have it complete.

Mr. BRISBANE. I shall be very glad to select certain of my writings and submit them as indicative of my attitude in this matter.

Senator STERLING. I do not know what has been done in this record, as I have been out a part of the time, but I think there are other statements made by Mr. Brisbane in the Washington Times here which I have not called his attention to. I do not know whether any one else has called his attention to them or not, but I believe they should go into the record.

Senator OVERMAN. Anything you want, Senator, can go into the record.

Senator STERLING. Very well.

Maj. HUMES. I did not go over the editorials, because I knew Senator Wolcott was making a study of those editorials.

Senator OVERMAN. Yes; I appointed the Senator a committee to do that.

Maj. HUMES. I did not have the time to read them, and I have not given them any close attention.

Senator WOLCOTT. I assumed the gratuitous task of preparing to harrow Mr. Brisbane on cross-examination on these editorials; and I confess my inability to do it, after having read them.

Senator OVERMAN. Is there anything else, gentlemen? Do you desire to file anything further?

Mr. BRISBANE. Not at this time.

Senator STERLING. I would like to go over these and submit them for the record to-morrow. I shall not have time to do it now.

Senator OVERMAN. There are no other questions that you want to ask, Maj. Humes?

Maj. HUMES. No other questions, Senator. I think everything I had here has been covered.

Senator OVERMAN. That is all, then we will adjourn until half past 10 to-morrow.

Mr. Brisbane, do you desire to come down in the morning to present these articles? If so, you may do so.

Mr. BRISBANE. May I send them in, Senator?

Senator OVERMAN. Yes.

(Thereupon, at 5.25 p. m., the subcommittee adjourned until 10.30 o'clock a. m. to-morrow, Friday, December 6, 1918.)

Senator STERLING. I would like to go over these and submit them for the record to-morrow. I shall not have time to do it now.

DEAR MR. ANDREAE: I beg to enclose, for your consideration, copy of letter from Mr. Hugo A. Koehler, President of the Independent Breweries Co., Saint Louis, and copy of my reply thereto. I cannot find any record of our having given any endorsement to the "Neue Zeitung", which is referred to in the correspondence.

SAINT LOUIS, Nov. 7, 1913.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX,
Secretary United States Brewers' Association,
50 Union Square, New York, N. Y.

DEAR SIR: We have recently been solicited by a representative of G. Schubert of New York for subscriptions to the publication called the "Neue Zeitung." He claimed to have the endorsement of the United States Brewers' Association, and upon information from Mr. Vahlkamp, of the Lemp Brewing Co., confirming his statement, we, in common with other brewers in this city, have extended to Mr. Schubert a limited amount of assistance.

The thought occurs to me in connection with this paper that great care and discrimination should be exercised by brewers before they give their support to new publications. Many so-called anti-prohibition organs have sprung up like mushrooms throughout the country recently. In my opinion their influence on public sentiment is insignificant, and in many cases they have been started merely for the purpose of making a living out of brewers, liquor dealers, and others engaged in kindred lines.

I hope you will not construe these remarks as a reflection on either the above publication or the support which the Association has given it. I only want to convey the idea that it might be advisable to warn brewers to give their support to the old and tried publications instead of new ones, unless the latter have been thoroughly investigated, and not only have a good field to work in, but have ability and sufficient financial backing behind them.

Would it not be worth while of the Association's new Publicity Department to compile a list of meritorious publications in the United States representing liberal thought?

Very truly yours,

(Signed) HUGO A. KOEHLER, President.

Nov. 11, 1913

Mr. HUGO A. KOEHLER,
President The Independent Breweries Company,
Suite 934 Pierce Building, Saint Louis, Mo.

MY DEAR MR. KOEHLER: This is in answer to your letter of November 7th about the "Neue Zeitung."

The Rev. Dr. J. Schubert to whom you refer, came to us with credentials from brewers in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and I understand that he is a minister in high standing in the German Lutheran Church, and is said to be highly regarded by the leaders of the German American Alliance. He turned up at our Convention after previous preliminary conferences with Mr. Andreae, Mr. Gardiner, and others, and I was finally instructed to advance him $300, to enable him to pay his expenses in getting to some important church meeting in Saint Louis.

At the Convention he made the acquaintance of a number of our people, and I recall seeing him at dinner with some of the leading brewers, amongst whom I think were Mr. Clauss and Mr. Vahlkamp. How he got in touch with them I do not know, as I was too busy with Convention matters to give him any attention myself.

His paper is, of course, an experiment, as any new publication would be. I understand that it is to be published weekly, and is to act as an interpreter of progressive ideas to the German people of the United States, advocating the separation of the Church and State, and upholding personal liberty. Whether there is any particular field for such a publication in addition to the other German American periodicals that already exist, I do not know, but my impression is that the important question in this case is the personality of Dr. Schubert, which may or may not be an affair of any national consequence.

I appreciate your writing me so frankly, and will put the matter before Mr. Andreae and Mr. Gardiner, as it seems to come under their purview.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

MY DEAR MR. LEGNER: I enclose herewith copy of a letter sent to Mr. Richard Bartholdt by the Rev. H. M. Brooks of Paris, Ill. It occurs to me that possibly you may be able to make some use of him in your State? In any event we should like to have a line on him. If he is a man in high standing and has actually been boycotted by his church because of his views on the prohibition question, it would form the basis of a good article, and I should think he would be useful to the Liberty Leagues.

PARIS, ILLS., Nov. 6, 1913.

Mr. RICHARD BARTHOLDT,

HONORED SIR: I am a minister of thirty years experience. Have held one pastorate of six years, another seven and another of ten, and I have married more than 800 couples, and conducted more than 1,300 funerals. I mention this that you may see that I have had some experience.

Four years ago while doing Evangelistic work I was asked during a revival service to preach a sermon in favor of Local Option and I respectfully declined, but the matter was pressed until I was compelled to tell them plainly that "I do not believe in Local Option" and from that time until this day the church has not given me a week's work. I was getting $50.00 per week and expenses when this boycott was begun and since then I have had nothing only the little work I could gather up here and there.

Local Optionists and Prohibitionists will not meet me in debate on the questions; they fight like gorillas.

My proposition is that Prohibition either local or general is unscriptural, has no foundation in equity and is therefore ethically wrong. The Bibles common sense and experience all teach and commend the legitimate use and condemn the illegitimate use of all intoxicants just the same as all other things that God created. The people should be taught moderation in all things. Drunkenness is a one-sided question—nobody believes in it, and the sale of all intoxicants should be regulated by law. What I want to ask you is this: Is there any way for a man to get enough to eat and wear for advocating the rights of man in this country? Or is the embargo placed so heavily on freedom that a man who is outspoken in its advocacy must starve?

I write this at the instance of some of my life long friends. If I had a little help I could go where I please and preach what I please. Unless there is something done in this country we will be controlled by hypocrites and fanatics in a few years. I have pity for the fanatic and contempt for the hypocrite.

I am enclosing one of my circulars that you may see something of my standing as a man and as a minister.

Please excuse this long letter, and if you think it worth while, let me hear from you.

Very kindly,

H. M. BROOKS.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX,

United States Brewers Ass'n., 50 Union Square, New York City.

DEAR MR. FOX: In reply to your favor relative to the letter from Mr. Hammerling, I would suggest that you write him that you understand I have communicated with him on the subject he refers to.

I want, first, to have some assurance regarding the character of articles that are to appear in the American Leader, before inviting our people to subscribe to the paper. If this assurance is satisfactory, I propose to endeavor to interest the brewers individually in the American Leader.

I have a twofold object in doing this. In the first place, I believe that the brewer himself should read and familiarize himself with the purposes of the American Leader, and he is more likely to do so if he subscribes for the paper, and adds a few subscriptions for people whom he thinks will benefit by reading it; and, secondly, I want to get the individual brewer in touch with the work we are doing along these lines.

I am, therefore, having sets of envelopes addressed, not only to the brewers, but to the distillers and wholesale liquor dealers, and shall from time to time, as I intimated in my talk in Atlantic City, appeal to them individually for assistance and co-operation in my work. This will serve the double purpose of informing them as to the progress of that work, and interesting them in its details. I have some hope, moreover, that by constantly keeping in touch with all brewers, I may succeed in bringing a few more into our national association.

Very truly yours.

GENTLEMEN: We beg to confirm telephone conversation of the 28th inst., and state that beginning with the December 11th issue, Hon. Charles Nagel, ex-secretary of Commerce and Labor will contribute articles on Personal Liberty to The American Leader, and we will inaugurate a campaign to have the foreign language press re-publish the articles, which we believe will have a far-reaching effect on your industry.

As we are not in a position to defray all these expenses, the writer while in Chicago, explained to Mr. Percy Andreae how the situation could be overcome, which is to have your 1500 breweries subscribe to four copies of The American Leader each issue. This would make 6000 copies per issue at $2.00 for each subscription, per year, making a total of $12,000 for one year. Of course, you could pay this in monthly installments or at one time. This would give us an opportunity to make up the translations and do the work properly.

I would greatly appreciate if you would take this matter up with your officers and advise us as soon as possible, so that we do not lose any time, as we are not only doing it for your interest, but for the interest of our people whom we must defend.

[Translation.]

On the letter-head of "Der Deutsche Kultur Traeger" (The German Culture Courier) to the United States Brewers' Association, New York:

JANUARY 9, 1914.

HONORED GENTLEMEN: I most humbly allow myself to remind you that I have as yet no answer to my letter of November 7th, 1913, of last year, in which I offered to you my support in your battle against the proposed national prohibition proposition in return for a certain consideration. My friend Dr. Frederick Grosse of New York who in response to my request was to speak to you personally on this subject was not admitted to see the gentlemen who have charge of the matter because the latter were occupied at the time.

I inform you that Dr. Grosse will attempt to talk with you again on the matter and I trust that the gentlemen in question will find the time to receive Dr. Grosse.

My offer is as follows: I am prepared to place at your disposal in every number of my monthly publication from three to four pages in the editorial part. Either you send me the articles that you wish to have printed or I will write them myself. In return for this you order 5,000 copies of my monthly at the regular annual subscription price less a rebate of 50%, making a cost to you, therefore, of $1.00 per subscription. If you wish to double the quantity of the propaganda I am prepared to furnish you 10,000 annual subscriptions at the total price of $7,500. The Deutsche Kultur Traeger would then immediately appear in an edition of 15,000, which would continually be increased.

The Brewer's interests are facing serious times and they should not overlook a publication which in its first year has become popular. It is true that from my own private convictions I am against prohibition in any form but I can not understand why I should carry on your battle without any recompense while other newspapers and publications are receiving very considerable campaign funds from you.

I beg to refer you to Mr. Joseph Uhlein, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, of the Schlitz Brewing Company.

Awaiting your further advices,

Respectfully your humble servant,

(Signed) FRED R. MINUTH.

DEAR SIR: In perusing the "Current Thought" under date of January 17th, which I understand to be the mouthpiece of the Chicago "Wets", I was horrified to read an article on page 4 entitled "The Liquor Business". Although most of what this article states may be true, it is absolutely suicidal to print it. You can imagine with what joy the "Drys" will republish this article all over the United States as soon as a copy gets into their possession.

This periodical "Current Thought" should at once suspend publication as instead of doing good it is only injuring the cause, and if you have any influence with the organization backing same, wish that you would use it toward this end. I have read this publication for some time and before the date of the terrible mistake referred to, had reached the conclusion that the publication was absolutely worthless. We look for a State Wide Prohibition fight in Colorado this year and the re-printing of this article would do incalculable injury.

Respectfully submitted.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: Will you look at the April number of Everybody's Magazine, and note their announcement regarding their Symposium on Rum? We have sent a short article outlining the attitude of the U. S. B. A., and the distillers have done the same, and I am arranging to have a number of articles sent in by writers of high standing. However, the Magazine wants particularly to hear from non-professional writers, and, of course, the whole plan is to build up its circulation, and interest its readers. I should think it would be well to have some of the liberal organizations and foreign societies represented in the Symposium, and also to have the matter dealt with from the standpoint of personal liberty. I understand that Everybody's has a circulation of some 400,000 copies, and think the Symposium may be made valuable to us, if we can over-balance the "other side".

Can you get Windle to write something also?

DEAR MR. SCHMIDT: I beg to notify you of the following developments since I last reported progress.

On April 14, at the invitation of the American Hotel Protective Association of the United States and Canada, I made an address before the convention of that Association on the subject of Nation-wide Prohibition and its effect upon the American Hotels and their patrons, and obtained the unanimous passage of a resolution by which the Association pledged itself to take a poll of the traveling public on the question of national prohibition.

I inclose the address and the resolution, which are being sent out by the Hotel Association to 22,000 hotels in the country. I have undertaken to organize this work, and superintend the carrying out of it in all its details.

The Labor Press of the country at its recent Convention in St. Louis passed very strong resolutions against the Hobson, Shepard and Works amendments, and the delegates present agreed with the editor of the brewery workers journal to carry on an educational campaign in their papers against the prohibition movement, the material for such campaign to be issued to the labor press generally by the Journal of the Brewery Workers. I have been asked, and have agreed, to supply the necessary articles, either weekly or bi-weekly, and arrangements to this end have already been perfected.

MY DEAR MR. FOX: I am obliged for your letter of the 5th inst. with enclosures.

The articles in the American Leader are now being made shorter. They have, of necessity, to be written in a style fitting the Leader itself, and are intended more for the editors of the individual papers than for their readers. Every editor has been personally seen, and been requested to use these articles as a basis for editorials worded to meet the intelligence and taste of his particular readers. In most cases this is being done, but it is manifestly impossible to write the articles in language suitable to the taste and understanding of all those whom they are intended to reach.

I wish you would let me know whether you received the 25 advance copies of the address I made in Cleveland. Everything issued from here of that kind is sent to you, and these copies should have reached you.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX,

DEAR MR. FOX: Mr. Royal E. Cabell has prepared and submitted to the Saturday Evening Post a very comprehensive article in refutation of Mr. William Allen White's statements regarding Kansas. A request has been made upon the Saturday Evening Post to print an answer from another source, and I learn today that the Editor replied that you had been asked to answer, and that he did not care to cover the same ground twice, but, that if you should not send in your comments, he would print the article offered.

I happen to know that Cabell's article is now under the consideration of the publication committee of the Post, and suggest therefore that you delay sending in an article for a week or two, in order to prevent any clash.

I think you will agree with me that Cabell's name carries great weight. He has spent quite a time in Washington, at my suggestion, verifying statements from the government records, and the answer prepared is in every respect a clinching show-up of Mr. White.

Of course, I cannot guarantee that Cabell's article, or any other article, will appear, but Cabell speaks with quasi-governmental authority, and nothing should interfere with the chance we have of getting his statement before the public.

I am going to Atlantic City for a week's rest, and shall be at the Marlborough Blenheim from next Wednesday on.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24, 1914.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
3357 So. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: I have your letter of the 22nd with regard to Mr. Cabell and the Saturday Evening Post, but fear that it comes too late, as we sent our article to the Post last Friday. I may add that we have been trying in every possible way to break into the Saturday Evening Post, and have had articles sent to them by some of the best writers in the country, all of whom were turned down. After a correspondence extending over a month, in which we finally intimated that the William Allen White article was being used as a campaign document in a number of different States, and that it would be necessary for us to issue an open letter to the Saturday Evening Post, correcting the misstatements, and appealing to the editor as a matter of common justice and fair-play, Mr. Lorimer finally agreed to give us space for 1,000 words. Our article was based on data supplied by Mr. Koren, and supplemented by official data from Kansas itself, and by a very careful scrutiny of the files of Mr. White's paper "The Emporia Gazette." I think it will be absolutely conclusive, but, of course, it is possible that after all they may want to edit it.

If we had known that you were taking this up with Mr. Cabell, we might, of course, governed ourselves accordingly. As it is, we appear to have been working at cross purposes. The article has been answered in a number of different ways. For example in the Seattle Times and several of the California papers, and we have just arranged for an article by Dr. Williams in a Nebraska paper, but we have continued to direct our guns on the Saturday Evening Post, because we felt that the correction should have the same circulation as the original article.

Of course, if the Saturday Evening Post prefers the Cabell article, so much the better, but I think, under the circumstances, we had better wait for the editor's reply to our letter of last Friday, before doing anything further.

Yours very truly,

HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

MARCH 18, 1915.

Mr. E. A. SCHMIDT,
Pres., U. S. Brewers' Assn.,
50 Union Square, New York City.

MY DEAR MR. SCHMIDT: From July 5 to July 10, both dates inclusive, an International Press Congress is to convene at the Exposition in San Francisco, which will be composed of editors and publishers from all over the world. On each day there is to be one address delivered on behalf of a certain section of the world's press, and an invitation has been extended by the Exposition authorities in charge of this feature to the President of the American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers to deliver the address on July 6, taking for his topic "The Foreign Language Newspaper in the United States."

I received yesterday the following telegram from Mr. L. N. Hammerling, President of the American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers:

"At meeting of some of our Directors held yesterday I suggested that we shall ask you to be one of our fourteen delegates to attend the International Press Congress at San Francisco July sixth and that you shall deliver the speech on the Foreign Language Press of the United States instead of myself. Would you accept such an honor. If it is necessary that you speak as official representative of this Association we would be glad to elect you a Vice President. Wire or write at once on this matter.

"LOUIS N. HAMMERLING."

After conferring over the telephone with Mr. Hammerling I notified him of my acceptance of the offer. This is so signal a recognition of the Foreign Language Press as an important factor in the country by the Press at large, that the importance of the occasion, I think, cannot be overestimated.

Of course, the address will have to be along newspaper lines, but the opportunity to speak generally on the duties and obligations of the Press as the guardian, par excellence, of the constitutional and individual rights and liberties of the American citizen is a splendid one, while the fact that I shall appear before the Press of the country as the selected mouthpiece of the Foreign Language Press cannot but aid me materially in the prosecution of the work I am doing in that press.

Will you give this matter some thought, and if anything occurs to you that might help me in preparing my address let me know of it.

I take this opportunity to inform you that I have received and accepted an invitation to address the forthcoming Congress of American Hotel-men which convenes at Galveston, Texas, between May 3 and 6. This Congress consists of delegates from all State and local Hotel Associations in the country, and the special subject I am desired to present and discuss is the method by which the Associations of Hotel-men can join in the common defense of all those whose existence is threatened by the Prohibition movement, the object being to enlist the co-operation of the hotels throughout the country in raising a defense fund by means of the stamp scheme. Quite an influential section of the members of the National Hotel Men's Association, including the officers of the Association, are anxious to join the National Association of Commerce and Labor and put the stamp scheme in operation, and I have agreed, after the Congress adjourns, if its action shall prove favorable, to have each State Association visited, either by myself or a substitute, in order to give all necessary detailed information regarding the working of the scheme.

MY DEAR MR. I note that you have accepted this honor, for I certainly consider it an honor, to have been selected as the mouth-piece of so important an organisation.

I also observe that you are to address the Congress of American Hotel Men, which convenes at Galveston, Texas, May 3rd. The Hotel Men, if they should become associated with the National Association of Commerce and Labor, would add very materially to its influence and strength; and, I have no doubt, would be instrumental in collecting a large sum of money, through the stamp system, for the Association. I trust that you will be able to awaken a keen interest in these gentlemen to join in the fight for our common defense.

Looking forward to seeing you at the next Board of Trustees' Meeting, when we can talk over this matter further, I remain, with kindest regards,

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: I have a letter from Mr. Noble of the Brewers' Association of Massachusetts, dated the 20th inst., reading as follows:

"Concerning L'Opinion Publique, I have been looking into this matter for some time, and I hope to be able to give you some facts upon which to base an opinion in a few days.

"The value of this and other French publications in Massachusetts, in my mind, depends upon two things: First as to the effectiveness of an organization known as the Cercle Lacordaire; second as to whether these French papers can combat the influence of that organization.

"The Cercle Lacordaire was organized a few years ago in Fall River. It is a temperance organization among the French similar in a way to the Catholic Total Abstinence Society among the Irish, with this difference: Cercle Lacordaire appears to be adopting a militant attitude by influencing its members to vote against license. It is claimed that this organization has caused considerable defection among the French voters of Lowell, Lawrence, Salem, Lynn, Fall River and possibly other French centers.

"The proposition of the editor of L'Opinion Publique is to run a series of counter articles in his paper, which I understand he is circulating by manner of free subscriptions to the amount of 5000 weekly. I have a man out investigating this whole situation and will have something definite to report in a few days."

Very truly yours,

BREWERS' ASSOCIATION OF MASSACHUSETTS,
March 31, 1915.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX,
Sec'y U. S. Brewers' Assn., 50 Union Sq., New York.

MY DEAR MR. FOX: I enclose herewith two copies of a report which I had Mr. Pfeil make of the activities of the Cercle Lacordaire. This matter relates to the solicitation for financial support made by the French Paper, L'Opinion Publique of Worcester.

To my mind the value of this French paper and of similar French papers in Massachusetts lies in their ability to offset the activities of the Cercle Lacordaire. The French vote in this State has always been considered as being solidly for license, but I am now thoroughly convinced both as the result of Personal inquiry and of Mr. Pfeil's investigation that the Cercle Lacordaire is becoming a menace.

The activities of this Society were called to my attention originally by a French newspaper published here in Boston called L'Opinion. This is the only French Sunday paper printed in New England. The editor of it is also the editor of the French daily newspaper, L'Etoile, in Lowell. L'Opinion is a new publication and since it started has been running in every issue a strong well-written article prominently displayed devoted to our cause.

While the Cercle Lacordaire has not as yet established a branch in Worcester, there is no doubt that it shortly will, because in Worcester and the surrounding towns there is a considerable French Canadian population. L'Opinion Publique, the Worcester paper, has a circulation of 6,000 copies, so the editor says, circulating in Worcester and Worcester County. I believe that both of the papers mentioned, namely L'Opinion Publique of Worcester and L'Opinion of Boston are worthy of support by Mr. Andreae's organization. I intend to recommend to our advertising brewers that support be given to both these papers but in addition to that I feel that if Mr. Andreae can see his way clear to do so it would be well for him to give them a helping hand. Perhaps you would like to send Mr. Andreae one of the copies of Pfeil's report herewith enclosed.

These French newspapers seem to offer the only practical medium of publicity to offset the activities of the French Total Abstinence Society named. The French Canadian people as you know are not given to reading newspapers to the extent of some other nationalities. Thousands of them read only those newspapers printed in their own language. Therefore, in order to reach them we must use such French papers as are available. There are quite a few French daily and weekly newspapers in this State that have apparently become champions of the Cercle Lacordaire's cause. They uphold that cause in a very fervent spirit, such as one would never find in a newspaper printed in the English language.

Trusting that this information may be of some value to you, I am,

Very truly yours,

HOWARD NOBLE, Secretary.

CERCLE LACORDAIRE.

A total abstinence society for French Catholics founded by Father Jacquemet at Fall River, Mass., Feb. 5, 1911. The society is for men only—boys of the age of discretion are also admitted. To join, it is necessary to take the oath of total abstinence before some priest. The candidate then passes through four stages of probation covering four years. There are today 22 societies in 16 cities and towns. The present membership is upwards of 2,500. There are societies in Fall River, Salem, Dodgeville, New Bedford, Lawrence, Lowell, Mass.; Manville, Central Falls, Woonsocket, Warren, Oakland, Mapleville, Centredale, Albion, Phenix, R. I.; and Manchester, N. H.

Each society has a club room which is fitted up for social entertainment. Members pay an initiation fee of which, I understand, One Dollar goes to Pere Jacquemet, the founder. In addition they pay weekly dues. The object of the Cercle Lacordaire is the promotion among French Catholics of total abstinence. It is in this respect a counterpart of the Societies already existing in the Irish Catholic Church. Members of the Cercle Lacordaire make it their duty to bring users of alcoholic drinks into the Cercle with the object of reforming them.

According to Pere Jacquemet, the Cercles do not mix up in politics or the license question, but he admitted that some of the stronger societies had a tendency to do so. When confronted with the question of "what about the saloon which you claim as the cause of drunkenness," he answered that might have to be dealt with later but that it was his desire to keep out of politics. His idea in fighting for abstinence is that in time the business of the saloon will be so damaged that it will go out of business. He believes that the people should be educated to the harm and danger of drink. To this end there is published literature in the French papers, plays are given and a monthly magazine called "Revieu Antialcoolique" (Antialcoholic Review) is published. This is the official organ of the society. An example of the sort of stuff contained in this Review is the following translation:

Errors and prejudices that must be combatted, or the truth on the subject of beer.—"There persists in certain quarters a desire to spread harmful illusions on the subject of the nutritive value of alcoholic beverages, notably beer and wine. If you have not given this subject thought until now, dear reader, here are some truths gathered from a reliable source.

"Treating of the food value of intoxicating drinks, Dr. Liebig in his 'Lettres sur la Chimie' says 'We are able to prove with mathematical certainty that the quantity of flour that one is able to put on the point of a pocket-knife possesses more nutritive value than five glasses of the best Bavarian beer, and that a person consuming daily this quantity of beer has taken, at the end of a year—and this is the most favorable case—exactly as much nutritive material as is contained in five pounds of bread or in three pounds of meat.' With no less truth, Dr. De Wilde of Brussels University says 'It would be more economical to nourish oneself on (flaut) than on beer and wine.

"Listen now to the authoritative voice of Dr. Bieufait:

"'Neither whiskey, nor brandy, nor rum, nor any spirituous liquor is nourishing I tell you, but is this also true of beer and of wine? These drinks are made of grains and of grapes. They should possess a real food value. We do not hesitate for a moment to affirm that this again is an error. Grain and grapes are nourishing. Yes; but beer and wine are not. In effect, these materials are subjected to a change, and it is precisely by these operations that the useful substances are dispersed; they have been partially transformed into alcohol. Beer of the best kind contains from three to five per cent and wine one per cent of useful materials. Bread, on the other hand, contains more than fifty per cent. The difference is colossal; beer for instance, instead of being "liquor bread," fools the stomach without assuaging hunger, because its large volume simply fills up the stomach. We note in passing that a goodly number of stomach troubles have no other origin than the use of beer and wine, and this without these drinks even having the merit to be classed among the nutrients.'"

Although Father Jacquemet, the founder, is wise enough to say that the Cercles will keep out of politics, there is no doubt that some of the stronger among them have already become active. In Lowell and Lawrence for instance the license vote seems to have been affected by work done by the Cercles. The Cercle in Lawrence has 750 members and the one in Lowell about 500. Before these Cercles were started the French people were as a rule license voters, but partly due to the strong influence and sway of the priest exerted through these Cercles this license sentiment has been changed. Each separate club has its own spiritual advisor, who is usually the parish priest. Nothing is done without the approval of this priest. It is said that the clubs get together and decide how to act and vote on certain issues. Up to the present time the Cercle Lacordaire has not come out openly against license and the saloon, but it seems impossible for it to keep out of politics. The trend in that way.

I had a long interview with Pere Jacquemet, the founder. Due to his impression that he was talking to a newspaper man for publication he was especially anxious to avoid giving the article any political complexion. It was plain, however, that in the founder's mind there was no real repugnance towards political activity by the Cercle Lacordaire; it was simply a question of not being yet ready to avow it. Judging from what I gleaned from many persons who have closely watched the operations of this Society, both from a sympathetic standpoint and otherwise, I should say that the Cercle Lacordaire is a positive political influence against the cause of license and may easily become a much more serious menace.

MAY 1ST, 1915.

Mr. Stone has sailed for Europe to visit the various foreign bureaus of the Associated Press and get a line on conditions in various countries during wartime. He has secured letters from the British, French, German and Russian Ambassadors and from the State Department in Washington, and is also armed with letters to a number of the leading editors, publicists and statesmen in London, Paris, Berlin and Petrograd. For the purpose of this trip, he has been appointed by the Associated Press as a special inspector of Associated Press agencies. We expect, through this undertaking, to establish a chain of permanent correspondents who will keep us thoroughly informed as to all the developments, and, at the same time, will send items and articles of special interest to American publications.

Dr. Edward H. Williams has written an excellent article for the Medical Record on "The Peace and War Footing of Alcohol", and is now writing an article for the American Journal of Surgery.

The Metropolitan Magazine for May has an exceedingly able and important article on Billy Sunday, by John Reed, which was arranged for by the editors of the magazine at Mr. Stone's suggestion.

The American Magazine has accepted an able article by Miss Martin on the Ford Automobile plant which is the result of her recent investigations. She is now in West Virginia studying the finances and general conditions of that State under prohibition. After she completes this investigation we are planning to send her to South Carolina to study the County Dispensary Plan, and then to North Dakota to study prohibition conditions in that State.

Mr. G. Myers is now in the Province of Quebec getting material for articles on the Compensation Plan, which has been adopted there in connection with saloons that are put out of business.

Mr. J. G. Rice has an excellent article in the Louisville Journal on conditions in Tennessee, and is continuing his articles in other Southern papers.

Longmans, Green & Company are reprinting for us, Prof. Shadwell's excellent book on "Drink, Temperance and Legislation", which will be sent to all the libraries.

Mr. Koren is writing an article for Appleton & Company and for the North American Review. He writes us that the Carnegie Foundation is not to take up the liquor problem, but that their nutrition laboratory has been carrying on physiological experiments with alcohol for a number of years, and may soon publish results. The Rockefeller Foundation is not yet ready to take hold of the question. As soon as the Census Publication on Crime comes out, Mr. Koren is to prepare a hand-book for us on the latest comparative statistics relating to crime, insanity and pauperism.

In connection with our advertising campaign in Georgia, 165 letters were sent out to the country papers offering them our beer advertisements. So far only about [illegible] newspapers have accepted and about 40 rejected.

We have been writing to the various State Associations, suggesting that they take up cooperative advertising, either as associations or through groups of brewers and the matter is now being considered in several of the States in the middlewest as well as in the east. Such work has already been done most effectively in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Massachusetts, and in several of the southern States.

Memo. for Mr. Fox.

From the standpoint of publicity, it would be much better to offer a series of prizes for a solution of the saloon problem to a string of newspapers or a magazine than it would to simply have the Convention offer prizes and let it go at that.

The advantages of the first mentioned scheme, I think, are obvious. If the Hearst newspapers for example, could be gotten to co-operate with the brewers for months before the awards are made, they would carry editorials and articles to stimulate interest. People would send in manuscripts and the winning articles would be widely read and discussed. On the other hand, if the U. S. B. A. offered a prize through the Convention, the Associated Press would carry a short announcement of the fact. People would be interested, but their interest would not be stimulated. If they were interested enough to submit manuscripts, a great many would not know where to send their manuscripts. As to getting the winning manuscript nation-wide circulation that would be next to impossible. The most that could be hoped for would be favorable editorial comment. Nevertheless, I think this idea of offering prizes is an excellent one if properly carried out. It ought to go far to convince the public that the brewers are really in earnest in their effort to clean up the disorderly saloon.

Another thought occurs to me on the same subject: Why not bring over to America Alexander E. Part, the young man who has so successfully managed the Public House Trust of England. He could make an extensive study of the saloon situation in this country and offer his suggestions. It is possible that something practical might come out of this visit—the organization for example of a saloon trust in America. If it did not, however, the publicity received would more than justify the outlay of money and you would be emphasizing the fact that you are in earnest about this business.

Again there is a possibility of securing the co-operation of the People's Institute in any proposition to improve the saloon. I think that Mr. Collier's pamphlet shows their attitude toward the proposition, and he might be the man to handle such a place on the lower West Side, the neighborhood in which he is particularly interested.

The suggestions above it seems to me, ought to be embodied into the settled policy of the brewers, consistently followed up and not abandoned after a few sensational and sporadic efforts have been put forth. Its effect would be twofold:

First, it would go far to convince the American people that the brewers are honestly seeking a solution of the "drink" question, not a solution that would merely place it in the same category as prostitution—that is prohibited but not disposed of.

Secondly, (and this I consider even more important). It would place the brewers squarely on the side of progress instead of being considered an obstacle in the way of progress. In other words it would become the ally—and the ally whose friendship would be appreciated—of the social reformer and of the forces of law and order generally. In this connection let me say that there is a great deal more antagonism to the brewery because of the general belief that the brewer is behind the dive saloon in politics than there is to the sale of beer.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

Consistently with this general policy, the brewers, if they did not lend active aid in suffrage would not at least oppose it. Nothing it seems to me can be more short-sighted than the policy of the brewers in some States in actively opposing, and therefore, arousing the hostility of what is undoubtedly the most fanatical of all groups in American politics today. In the line of ideas, it is not only fanatical but in the practical aspects of life, it has the insiduous power of enforcing its boycott.

By leaving out of consideration its indirect power, there can be no question that suffrage will be extended to many more States within the next year. This means that the voting population of these States will be doubled. In some of the suffrage States prohibition will come and there will be the question of compensation to the brewer. Why arouse the antagonism of one half the voters? Why not educate them—and before they have the vote?

What I have said bears indirectly on the question of publicity. The work of a publicity man would be ten times easier if it were not for the hostility of the brewers toward suffrage. There are few editors, even if they were favorably inclined to the brewers, who would care to face the protests of their women subscribers by espousing the cause of the brewers.

I think the effect that the brewers attitude has had upon publicity may best be illustrated by the following incident. I had made an investigation of crooked politics in Delaware County, Pa., at the request of the Citizens' Rights Association of that county and had found the local brewer in the muck up to his neck. In my article I described the situation and expressed the resentment that the citizens naturally felt at this. I concluded by saying that if the brewers wished an explanation for the growing sentiment of prohibition they might find it in situations such as that in Delaware County.

Mr. Walter Lippmann, one of the editors of the New Republic, took sharp issue with me on my article because he thought it stood for prohibition. Prohibition he described as one of the worst movements that this country had seen, and he added that he wished he could get a good anti-prohibition article. "Of course" he said, "I can't go to the brewers for stuff."

Here was a publication against prohibition but feeling, nevertheless, that they could not come to the brewers for material. Why not go to the brewers? I think the answer is to be found in the New Republic of August 21st. The New Republic does not believe in the methods employed by the Texas brewers, who masquerading under the name of Farmers' Union et al attack woman suffrage. "The methods of the Texas Business Men's Association furnish an excellent example of how public opinion is poisoned against woman suffrage."

Lippmann, Weyl and Crowley, the three editors of the New Republic, have written books on political economy that are in use in various universities of the country. The New Republic is rapidly gaining the place held by the old Collier's as the most influential weekly in America, is quoted in newspapers throughout the country, is opposed to prohibition, yet publishes editorials that can be used by the prohibitionist and refuses to get material from the brewers because of the position taken by the brewers towards woman suffrage.

As to the other publication, exercising a nation-wide influence, there is hardly one that dares to attack the movement. Collier's, Everybody's, the Metropolitan, American and McClure's are actively for suffrage. Such publications as The Times, the Sun, and Life, that were formerly bitterly opposed, have tempered the tone of their editorials in the past few years. The Ladies' Home Journal lost circulation so heavily that they were compelled to drop their anti-campaign and they have never been able to recover the lost ground.

The editor, with his finger on the circulation department, is always the first to detect signs of public disapproval. The editors of New York have taken a reef in their sails, as I have shown here, and the brewers may well take a reef in time. It may be true that in some States the brewers may be able to successfully fight woman suffrage for years, but these few should not be allowed to sacrifice the industry in other States where suffrage is strong.

From what I have written, Mr. Fox, you will see that I believe that there is as much work for your publicity man in your organization as there is outside of it.

M. MICHELSON.

There is also offered in evidence Exhibit No. 86, which is a report on the American Press Association and the desirability of securing its cooperation and utilizing its services.

Report on the American Press Association.

Investigation has convinced me that the American Press Association is probably the most powerful agency for influencing public opinion in the United States. Unquestionably, this is true of public opinion in the small towns and in the rural districts. The Associated Press supplies telegraphic news matter to a large number of newspapers, many of which, however, can afford to have their own staff of special correspondents, and these newspapers can thus secure the particular service they desire to suit their editorial and general policy. Moreover, the Associated Press dispatches can be scrutinized or altered by the editorial staff; they can be used, changed, or left out, according to the judgment of the news editors.

With the American Press Association, the case is very different. The Association supplies stereotype plates, notices and news matter to eleven thousand newspapers in the United States and Canada. These newspapers are small daily, bi-weekly or weekly newspapers which lack the resources to supply a news service of their own. Consequently, they use whatever is sent to them by the American Press Association, the services of which they get for a stated sum. The matter supplied by this Association comes in prepared form, generally in the form of plates. It comprises editorials, news dispatches, special articles, fiction, jokes, etc. Whatever is sent out by the offices of the Association is used by these papers, and it has an immense effect in influencing the opinion of the people in the small towns and rural districts.

The American Press Association's main office is at Nos. 45 and 47 Park Place, New York City, and it has offices in Philadelphia, Boston, Buffalo, Pittsburg, Detroit, Chicago, Cincinnati, Columbus, Indianapolis, St. Paul, Omaha, Des Moines, Atlanta, Dallas, San Francisco, and Portland (Oregon). Its capital stock is $1,600,000. Its officers are Jesse Holdom, president; Courtland Smith, vice-president and general manager; W. G. Brogan, assistant general manager; Albert Bernet, second assistant general manager, and J. M. Hazzard, third assistant general manager.

My attention was first attracted to the methods and influence of this Association when I was in Florida recently. Nearly every day I would go to the office of the local paper, the Sanford "Herald." This newspaper received exchange copies of all of the newspapers published in Florida. In daily going over piles of these newspapers, especially those published in the smaller cities such as Orlando, Daytona, Petersburg, etc., I was impressed with the identical nature and abundance of matter the obvious purport of which was to show the evil effects of liquor, and the progress of prohibition. This matter was "boiler-plates"—that is stereotyped matter sent out by the American Press Association. I could see how systematic press agency work was being done to discredit the brewing interests and magnify the results of prohibition. For instance, three distorted news items were artfully linked under a single head in one article. One paragraph referred to the falling off of the production of beer in Milwaukee, and ascribed it to the progress of prohibition. The next paragraph described a murder in a vicious saloon, and the third paragraph dealt with crime caused by indulgence in liquor. This grossly distorted "news" matter appeared in all of the exchanges that I read. It was but one example of many examples. I did not come across a single article or news item telling of the defeat of the Anti-saloonists in any quarter, but I did notice a number of items telling Prohibition victories. These victories had occurred sometime before in small places, and as news were stale, but they were published as fresh news.

These facts opened my eyes to the real manner in which the rural districts were being influenced. I could begin to see the cumulative effects upon the average mind of the constant publication of such reports and articles. That they were being manipulated from a central source I could not doubt.

My inquiries in New York have confirmed that belief, and have made me realize the vast influence exerted throughout the United States by such methods. I found that the American Press Association is doubtless the most effective, although the least known, agency in this respect. Most people are not aware of its great influence; much as I know of current methods of influencing public opinion, I had never given it attention.

I found that for years the matter sent out by the American Press Association has influenced the rural population in booming publications for the Presidency and for many other political offices; in rehabilitating discredited politicians; in minimizing the force and counteracting the effect of damaging legislative investigations; in creating popularity for certain men or measures, and in hundreds of similar ways.

One specific instance that I heard of on the best of authority was that of Mark Hanna's using this means to make McKinley the Republican nominee long before McKinley's nomination in 1896. A certain writer was employed by Hanna to write Democratic editorials for the Democratic newspapers in the service of the American Press Association. In these editorials McKinley's stand on the tariff and other questions was severely attacked. The same writer, at the same time, was employed to write Republican editorials for the Republican newspapers in the service of the American Press Association, warmly defending McKinley's views and personality. This persistent campaign made McKinley the Republican issue, in the mind of the rural population, long previous to the Republican convention of 1896, and prepared the way for his nomination, and in fact practically insured it.

The insurance legislative investigations of 1895 revealed, I find, a regular system of counteracting the effects of that investigation. During the great coal strike of 1902, when President Baer of the Reading Railroad was being severely denounced in some of the large city newspapers, special articles and news dispatches were appearing in the "boiler plate" newspapers, eulogizing him and his career, and describing him as a popular, likeable, public spirited man. Senator Depew has been rehabilitated largely by the same means. During the recent investigation of the New York Senate into the charges of bribery made against Senator Allds, news dispatches were constantly appearing in the "boiler-plate" newspapers in New York State, the evident purport of which articles was to create the impression that the investigation was breaking down, and that Allds was a very much abused man.

These are a few examples of the methods of influencing public opinion. How far they are the results of a centralized system is a matter not to be determined off-hand. One can judge somewhat, however, by the evident nature of the methods. They seem to imply a regular system of insidious use of the rural newspapers for the purpose of moulding public opinion. At the general offices in New York no information can be obtained; but it is very probable that if talks are had with the managers in other cities by persons who are personally acquainted with them, some very highly interesting information could be obtained.

The following additional exhibit is also offered in evidence:

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., September 25th, 1909.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX,
#109 E. 15th St., New York, N. Y.

DEAR MR. FOX:—Relative to the press of Indiana: practically all of the Republican papers stand with the Republican party on the county unit, or local option and with some of the Republicans now talking state-wide prohibition. There are very few papers of this political faith that are willing to handle editorial matter opposing county option. I do not mean by this that every Republican editor is in favor of the county unit, or in favor of state-wide prohibition, but they are hammered into line by the party, and very few have the courage to express their own opinion, if they oppose the position into which the Republicans have been placed.

The Democratic press is just the opposite. It is the exception when one of their papers favors county option, excepting as provided in their platform, which is for the licensed and regulated saloon, and county option to be applied by ward and township. Practically all of the Democratic papers would accept beer advertisements, or other paid advertising, and some of which could be run as reading matter, and, in many papers, you could get some favorable comment editorially. As you have a newspaper directory, there is no need to mention the Democratic papers.

You appreciate, of course, that when the papers in Indianapolis take a position, that it influences the smaller publications over the state. The Indianapolis News, an independent publication, has been writing dry articles for two or three years, and I think the brewers have had some "ramble" with this paper in the past which did not help matters any. Of late, the paper has been more moderate in its articles, and has been publishing whiskey advertisements, and I have no doubt but that we could put in beer advertising if we so desired. The Star is an independent paper, but is looked upon as the official organ of the Republican party. It is a part of the Star Syndicate, and is now in the hands of George Hitz, receiver, who is supposed to be a Prohibitionist. Hitz was appointed, I understand, through the influence of Senator Beveridge, who has taken the dry side for the reason that he supposes it is going to benefit him in his fight for re-election. The Star has been publishing some whiskey advertisements, but they are always attacking the liquor traffic editorially. The Sun has weekly editorials favorable to the traffic, and carries some whiskey and beer advertising. I have never attempted to do anything with the state papers, although I think I could use their columns with rational matter and advertising to a liberal extent. I have been doing most of our publicity work through the country papers, both dailies and weeklies, thinking that it would, in time, have some influence with the papers published in Indianapolis.

I will endeavor to make you up some kind of a list in a short time, but, for the present, I think this general explanation will answer your purpose.

Very truly,

J. R. JOHNSTON.

Trustees; Local Secretaries; Members of the different Committees.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5, 1908.

To the Members of the United States Brewers' Association.

GENTLEMEN: Collier's Weekly announces a prize of $100.00 for the best article, not over 1,000 words long, on "The Saloon in Our Town."

The articles are to be submitted before March 15th. Besides the prize article, they will use others that are of special interest, for which they will pay $25.00, and they also state that a proportionate rate will be paid for portions of any articles which they may use.

There is no doubt that a great many articles will be submitted, and I think that it is probable that the majority of them will be of the "Horrible Example" type. It is important to secure the submission of as many articles as possible that will be favorable to the Industry.

Will you not try to interest able writers in your City and State to enter the contest? We shall, of course, be glad to furnish them with literature on the subject, and you, for your part, can give them practical points for their information and guidance. Wherever it is possible to do so, discreetly, it will be well to try to get copies of the articles, so that eventually we may be able to use them ourselves, in case they are rejected by Collier's; provided, of course, that the subject-matter is of such a character as to make it available.

If we can, by this means, secure the submission of several hundred articles to Collier's, there is a fair chance that one or two of them may be accepted. Even, however, if none of them prove to be winners, the cumulative effect of the submission of such a large number of articles supporting the Saloon as a necessary social institution, must have its effect upon the minds of the Editors of Collier's Weekly and influence their judgment. The present attitude of the Editors makes this most important.

The matter should be taken up without any delay. Please consider this confidential.

Very truly yours,

HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

New York, N. Y.

MY DEAR MR. FOX: I enclose you copy of our publicity report presented at our last annual meeting, as I promised you. There are matters referred to in the report which I think should be considered as confidential, therefore request that you give it no publicity.

Am sorry that I was unable to give you the time that I wished to talk with you about your matter, but I have a general idea of its purpose and will be glad to co-operate with you so far as it is possible and practicable in our territory.

If you desire to correspond with me more in detail about it, I shall be glad to take the matter up at any time.

Very truly yours,

W. H. AUSTIN, Secretary.

EXHIBIT No. 94.

(Confidential.)

GENTLEMEN: In the few minutes that can be allowed this department, I am going to ask you to consider with me the daily and weekly press of the state and its attitude toward our industry. The thing desired is that you may appreciate both the power of the press and the method by which the editors arrive at their conclusions with reference to our business. I think you will all agree with me that outside of a few newspapers, we are facing a hostile force. Unfortunately, many editor's estimate of the brewer is identical with his estimate of the saloon, and when I say hostile, I mean that the very large proportion of the press of the state are antagonistic toward the saloon as a factor in the local life where both are located. In other words, you can count on the fingers of your two hands the cities and villages where the local newspapers approve and endorse the kind of saloons that exist there. While we realize that the brewers are in no way responsible for the kind of saloon in 90% of these localities, the newspapers do not seem to accept statements to this effect and the people follow the belief of their papers. And it is through the vicious influence and unfair tactics of a few newspapers of the state that the people have been led to believe that the brewers are responsible for every bad feature of the present-day saloon. I could name you several cities where saloon conditions are perhaps as nearly perfect as they can be with our kind of population, but in these very same cities I will name you one or more newspapers which will at any time turn their energies and use their influence in favor of making that city dry. We must face the fact that many of the newspapers are hostile and will remain so—but the important thing to keep in mind is that these are counterbalanced by the group that are friendly and while the Radicals may outnumber the Liberals, the latter probably have the more influence, including, as they do, the press of Milwaukee. Summing this up, we find that we have a few papers friendly and a few hopelessly hostile—but that leaves the large middle group that are what we might call neutral.

This large number of papers are positively swayed by local conditions as they find them at home. And the glass through which they view the entire industry is the saloon. They immediately condemn the manufacturer if there happens to be a disreputable saloon in their vicinity. They have you coupled closely with their local dispensing system and this relation must be severed insofar as it relates to the selection of the licensee by the brewer, before you will be relieved of this responsibility in the eyes of the public. This is manifestly unfair but, nevertheless, it is a fact.

I recall now one instance some years ago when a single saloonkeeper's meddling in politics offended the local editor, who was the absolute "boss" of the county and he announced that he would make the city dry within six months and he did it. The press is one of the most sensitive potentialities that you have to deal with. And I hope to impress upon you as forcibly as I can that this great power in influenced and controlled almost without exception by the saloon conditions which surround it. We have some papers that will always support Prohibition but they are few in number compared with the large group that are not, as yet, lost to our cause. Better men back of the bars who will observe and even assist in securing sane regulation will help much. The brewers must come to this premise,—and I am sure you all will—that majority local sentiment must to a certain extent be met because it will force itself in the end. We will find a more friendly and favorable press just as soon as some of the evils that are now disturbing us are removed, and it would seem to be the duty of the brewers to redouble their efforts to clear up the situation. Much has been done recently but we are still at a disadvantage before the public because of faults that are not wholly ours.

Reversing this review completely, I want to tell you briefly of the special advertising campaign which we have been conducting for several months in the German and smaller English weekly press of the state. There had long been complaint from these editors that they were largely the supporters of the license system but that they did not profit or share in the advertising of the industry. This was a fact, as the brewers, especially the larger brewers, did not find it profitable to place advertising with them. It failed absolutely of results. These papers were not satisfied with only the advertisements of their local brewers and were offended every time they saw a foaming glass in the large metropolitan papers which, as they declared, "do nothing to fight your battles." It was to meet this situation that your Executive Board devised the campaign I refer to. The papers used were the following:

Antigo Herold, Sauk City Presse, Marshfield Demokrat, Fountain City Republican, Jefferson Journal, Racine Correspondent, Green Bay Landsman, Pt. Washington Herold, Janesville Journal, Oshkosh Telegraph, Marinette Volksbote, Schleisingerville Botschafter, Portage Wecker, Fond du Lac Courier, Mayville Banner, Arcadia Anzeiger, Mayville Pioneer, Kiel Zeitung, La Crosse Volksfreund, Kewaunee County Banner, Wausau Wochenblatt, Plymouth Post, Appleton Volksfreund, Sheboygan Demokrat, Sheboygan Zeitung, New Glarus Courier, Neillsville Amerikaner, Merrill Thalbote, Watertown Weltburger, Monroe Herold, Manitowoc Wahrheit, Medford Waldbote, Manitowoc Post, Appleton Wecker, Madison Staats Zeitung, Pt. Washington Zeitung, Eau Claire Herold, Kenosha Volksfreund, West Bend Beobachter, Wausau Pioneer, La Crosse Abendpost, La Crosse Nordstern, La Crosse Nordstern Blatter, Beaver Dam Argus, Elkhorn Independent, Jefferson Banner, Superior Leader Clarion, Spooner Advocate, Portage Register, Waukesha Despatch, Oconto Enterprise, Humbird Enterprise, Stevens Point Journal, Ashland News, Monroe Times, Wood County Reporter, Oconomowoc Enterprise, Kenosha Courier, Bangor Independent, Green Bay Gazette, Edgerton Reporter, Mondovi Herald, Juneau Independent, New London Republican, Burlington Standard Democrat, Marshfield Times, Menasha Record, Two Rivers Chronicle, Wood County Times, Appleton Crescent, Mauston Star, Madison Democrat, Wausau Record Herald, Monroe Journal Gazette, Sauk County Democrat, Vernon County Censor, Janesville Gazette, Berlin Journal, Menomonee Falls News, Shawano Journal, Florence Mining News, Oshkosh Northwestern, Columbus Democrat, Stevens Point Gazette, Oconto Enquirer, Marinette Eagle Star, Burlington Free Press, Port Washington Star, De Pere Democrat, Jefferson County Union, Progress, Marinette Tribunen (Swedish), De Volksstem (Hollander).

You all know what this campaign cost but I am firm in the belief that, considering the character of the advs. used and the influence it has had with these one hundred editors that it has been a good insurance investment for you. The expressions that we have had from these men justify us in telling you that you never spent money for which you received more in return. You can afford to do it again. We could not include some of the papers which we wanted to help, for our funds would not permit it, but these are all down for remembrance next time and the list will be somewhat modified. If any man here has a deserving paper at home which was not included in this list, he should notify us so that we can use it, if the funds will permit. Daily papers have not yet been included and some of these editors are quite offended that they have been overlooked. We also had a number of papers which refused to run our ads. A list of these will be given any member desiring it.

This all leads to the conclusion: Cultivate your home editor. It may in some cases be distasteful, but it will pay you good dividends. We are meeting the demands of these papers that they be given a slice of advertising. They feel better already. It was a good remedy. But do not forget that they will again quickly sicken and their community along with them if compliance with law and recognition of local regulation are not faithfully complied with by the dispensing end of the system. That is a duty before you in so far as you have power to influence it.

There is also offered in evidence Exhibit No. 95, it being a letter from Louis N. Hammerling, president of the Association of Foreign Language Newspapers, to Bernheim & Schwartz, dated March 17, 1915, telling of the control over the foreign-language press, and what that association has accomplished.

[American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers, Inc.]

NEW YORK, March 17, 1915.

BERNHEIM & SCHWARTZ,
Amsterdam Ave. & 12th St., New York City.

Attention of Geo. Bernheimer.

MY DEAR SIR: At the instance of our Board of Directors, I take the liberty of addressing you in behalf of the foreign language press of this city, as it seems to us that it is either an oversight on your part or a misunderstanding that no portion of your advertising appropriation goes to the foreign language press.

According to the United States Census of 1910, there is a total population in Greater New York of 5,736,520. Of this total there are 2,729,282 actually foreign born and 4 669,162 of foreign birth and foreign and mixed parentage. By using the foreign language press you will reach these people, which according to statistics and information we have and with which we are sure you are also acquainted, are the largest users of beer in this city and the United States. Furthermore, the foreign language press has for the past two years waged a campaign for Personal Liberty and the enlightenment and education of their people on this topic and the necessity for guarding against infringement on their personal habits and customs, as well as the justification for the existence of your industry. The writer has not only written articles on this question for The American Leader, the Official Organ of this Association, of which we are sending you under separate cover a copy marked personal, but has also delivered addresses and lectures on this subject and plans to continue doing so. The articles on Personal Liberty which are being published in The American Leader are also being republished by over 400 foreign language newspapers throughout the United States.

Besides all this, we are entitled to a share of your patronage as consumers of your product, and we would like to know why we are ignored. It is true that the agencies to whom you may entrust your advertising are not acquainted with the real problem and with the value of the foreign language press. In fact, we have found that some advertising agencies avoid giving their clients the benefit of the Foreign language papers for selfish motives, such as small commissions, etc., from the papers, hence this Association is obliged to do a great deal of missionary work and give knowledge which otherwise might not be presented.

May we ask you to give this matter consideration and advise us your decision. We would appreciate it if you would give the writer an opportunity to call on you, or grant a hearing to our Board of Directors who would call on you in a body. We feel that this is a very vital matter to all concerned and want to go into this matter thoroughly and find just why this situation exists which has no justification and which, on the contrary is working a great hardship to all interested.

Breweries located in other parts of the United States where our people are not nearly as numerous as they are in this city have placed a great deal of advertising in our papers as they have realized that it is our people who have built up this great industry and who are maintaining it in prosperity.

May we now ask you to be good enough to look over the enclosed page advertisement which we recently put on, which will give you an idea of what we are doing.

Awaiting your reply, we are,

Very truly yours,

AMERICAN ASS'N OF FOREIGN LANGUAGE NEWSPAPERS, INC.
LOUIS HAMMERLING, President.

REPORT OF THE SECRETARY TO THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

Nov. 9, 1908.

I respectfully submit the following report in regard to special matters which will be the subject of your deliberations:

MEMBERSHIP.

I enclose a statement showing the actual status of our membership at the present time. Repeated letters have been sent to delinquent members; and I am now preparing a statement setting forth the activities of this Association and its value to the individual brewer. This will be sent to every brewer in the country, and will be followed up by a final appeal for co-operation and support, and where possible, by personal interviews with the brewers.

We are also taking advantage of every opportunity to meet the State and Local Brewers' Associations, with a view to kindling their enthusiasm, and making them realize the seriousness of the situation and the manner in which it is proposed to handle it.

We have employed a local collector during the summer, who has succeeded in a number of instances in securing the payment of back dues.

When all of these efforts have been made, I believe that the members, who have persistently failed to pay their dues, and who do not answer our communications, should be dropped from our membership list.

The membership report, which is herewith submitted in detail to each member of the Trustees, shows that the members who are in good standing as to dues, represent, approximately, 70% of the total beer output of the United States.

EDUCATION.

The Association is now fairly committed to a long and comprehensive campaign of education. I submit herewith a report showing in detail the publications which we have issued during the past six months. We are now supplying our leaflets and post cards in quantities to any of our people who ask for them, and who will agree to distribute them.

The Year Book, which you authorized, is now in preparation and will be issued about the first of January.

Under the direction of Dr. Nathan Oppenheim, we have had prepared a complete bibliography of the whole liquor question in all languages, which includes all publications since 1893. It is the only complete bibliography of the subject in existence. This will be published and sent to every University and Library, and to all important publications and newspapers in the country. We believe that the character of this bibliography and Year Book is such that they will be consulted by the press and by students of this subject generally, as the standard references.

We have made a mailing list of three thousand important newspapers and publications, to which we shall send our literature and special letters, and believe that in the course of a few months we shall have won the confidence of the press in the accuracy of our information and the value of our data, and that this will open up avenues of publicity which will enable us to get a fair hearing, and will be most useful in the educational campaign.

We are now receiving an average of five thousand newspaper clippings a month, which are carefully examined, and those of special importance filed and indexed. These serve to keep us in touch with the developments from day to day, and enable us to feel the public pulse and gauge the trend and force of public sentiment throughout the entire country.

We are gradually building up a library on the liquor question and all related subjects, and are constantly gathering data so that this office may be eventually recognized as the one complete fact station in this department of knowledge.

I suggest in this connection the employment of a trained librarian, preferably a linguist, who will not only keep the data indexed, but will be able to use it objectively. We ought to be in a position to prepare comparative statements at short notice for any State or community, showing the local facts as to license revenue and its application to public utilities; and the status of the community in the matter of drunkenness, pauperism and crime, and the general character of the community, as indicated by health standards and its economic status.

An expert librarian or statistician could not only assemble the facts, but interpret them in popular terms, so that all of the material would be made available and could be brought into action at any time. In special cases printed matter should be prepared in various languages to reach the foreign voter.

We are planning, in fact have already started, important lines of investigation and research, with a view to gathering a body of facts which will help to establish certain definite principles in regard to licensing and the whole question of saloon regulation.

We are endeavoring to establish lines of communication and cooperation with municipal experts and civic organizations; and to win the confidence of all serious students of government in the consideration of the liquor problem.

ABOUT ADVERTISING.

We have been making a study of the advertisements in the Prohibition and Temperance papers, and shall shortly issue to our members a list of the concerns that are supporting these papers by their advertising. This list will be indexed by trades, and by States. I suggest sending copies of this list to the various Merchants' and Manufacturers' Associations, and members of the allied trades.

I suggest for your consideration, the advisability of our making a thorough study of the whole subject of brewery advertising. This cannot be done without the cooperation of the brewers' themselves. It involves getting from each brewer a copy of all the advertising matter which he has issued during the past year, a list of the publications which he has patronized, and possibly, an approximate statement of the total amount of money which he has spent for advertisements in the public prints. Besides this, we should have a record of the advertising done through bottling and other agents, in the country papers. A tabulation of these facts would show the total amount spent by the brewing business in this form of advertising, and enable us to make a statement to the newspaper publishers and proprietors, which might secure for our interests more recognition. Through our clipping service, we could then check off the papers that persistently misrepresent the trade, and that refuse to give us a fair hearing. I am also inclined to think that eventually it would enable this Association to improve the character and telling qualities of much of our trade advertising, and would open up a vista of possibilities in the advertising line, both from the trade and the publicity standpoint, that would be of incalculable service to brewers, as individuals, and to the cause which we represent.

If we could count upon the willing and intelligent co-operation of the brewers, I would also suggest the same intensive study of other forms of advertising, such as saloon signs and display features, and of course street car advertising.

This is a matter in regard to which we need the counsel of men of experience in the trade, with a view to deciding whether, if we undertake this very considerable piece of work, we should act in conjunction with the advertising agents of the principal brewers, or whether we should keep the matter entirely in our own hands.

ELECTION LESSONS.

The recent victories in Indiana, Ohio and Rhode Island clearly indicate the value of the educational method of campaigning, when it is efficiently conducted, and is combined with the thorough organization of the trade and of our friends, and especially of the labor element. We must not, however, allow these victories to make us over-confident. Within the past week, President Eliot of Harvard, and Cardinal Gibbons have both come out with a public endorsement of local option. The brewers in the middle west, and in the New England States seem to have accepted local option, with the municipality as the unit, and to have adapted themselves to it. I doubt, however, whether the trade at large is prepared to accept municipal option as a fixed principle to such an extent as to warrant us in giving it official endorsement. The New Jersey and Pennsylvania brewers are certainly opposed to it most vigorously. Of course, we are all agreed that county option means county prohibition, and shall argue accordingly. My own impression is that our brewers in some sections of the country have given in to their adherence to the option principle much too readily. I believe that a thorough study of this subject will show that the constant agitation of the license question has a demoralizing influence and tends to keep the saloon in politics.

Investigations which have been conducted recently in our behalf, in Massachusetts and Vermont, prove that no license towns are backward as compared with license towns, and will not stand comparison with the license towns from either the physical or moral standpoint. There is sufficient doubt about the whole matter to show the need of a thorough first-hand investigation of conditi ns in the eastern states and in the middle west, before committing ourselves finally to any form of option on the license question.

The continuance of the fight against the saloon and the liquor trade does not depend entirely upon the Anti-Saloon League or the Prohibition Party. The people are now so thoroughly aroused that the saloon problem is a household topic, and we must be prepared to discuss the whole temperance question in a constructive fashion. In other words, we can only win in the long run, upon our merits. In the settlement of this question, and all that it involves, new problems will present themselves from time to time. The village saloon will have to be entirely remodeled, or it will disappear. The trade will, probably, have to find new ways of distributing its product, in some localities. It may be that in some respects the product itself will change somewhat. In all of these changes there are possibilities of friction and new difficulties will arise which must be faced, and overcome. Take, for instance, a large brewing state in which over half of the counties go dry. The Breweries in those counties will continue manufacturing, and will be forced to seek new markets. Naturally, they will try to find an outlet in the nearest wet counties. The brewers in these wet counties will chafe under this added competition. Whether a brewer in a wet county can ship into a dry county, within his own State, is yet to be determined. In any event the shipping brewer from another State will compete with him for the trade in the dry county. There is no use in borrowing trouble over it, and I merely call attention to indicate the growing complexity of the problem, both commercially and from the standpoint of this Association. This much is certain,—that the Association and the trade need the experience and judgment of its wisest heads, who can adapt the Industry and the Association to the new order of things.

A LOOK AHEAD.

As we study this question thoroughly, we cannot escape the conviction that there is a long and hard fight before us, and that we must look and plan a year or two ahead. The people at large are taking a hand in this fight, and our appeal must be made to them, if we can hope for success. Our Association must be so equipped that it can furnish efficient service to the entire brewing industry. There are some State organizations that are so well officered and equipped that they may be able to get along without our assistance. We are, however, constantly being called upon for personal assistance in the matter of organization, preparation of special material and in the matter of speakers and journalists. The Organization Committee has already suggested the forming of a Speakers' Bureau. The possible wisdom and practicability of such an undertaking should be thoroughly discussed. In the event of your deciding upon such an enterprise, I would suggest that we call a meeting in this building of the executive officers of the State and Local Brewers' Associations, and of some of the Merchants' & Manufacturers' Associations for the consideration of the project. In this connection we should also consider the possibility of arranging a course of instruction for our workers. A syllabus might be prepared covering not only the controversial phases of the subject, but such practical questions as political management, publicity, advertising, organization, etc., etc.

There are some able men within our own ranks who might serve as class leaders on various phases of the subject. We might supplement these by employing specialists to lecture on the economic, social, legal, and physiological aspects of the question. By this means we ought to be able to gather up the sum of the knowledge and experience gained in all the various State campaigns, and to establish the effective cooperation of all the forces that the brewing trade can command through organizations with which it is in touch

In short, I believe that the function of this Association is to furnish competent service to its members, instead of making contributions to them in cash for their campaigns. We cannot keep our members together by any other means. Our present method of conducting campaigns is expensive and wasteful, and does not lead to a permanent settlement of the question.

In two or three States the Brewers' Associations have secured voters' lists, which have been classified by occupations, and educational matter is mailed to all of the individuals on these lists from time to time. If this was done persistently for a year without regard to the imminence of any special contest, the cumulative effect of it would be of the greatest value.

OUR WORKERS.

The report of the Organization Bureau, which you will hear read, speaks for itself. I should like to add that it is impossible to form a fair estimate of the value of this branch of our work, without regard to the reports which are sent in by the agents of the Bureau, or without personal observation of its methods.

The recent contest in Rhode Island clearly indicates the practical efficiency of the Bureau. A few days of intense work, a week before election, resulted in a roundup of the brewers, the wholesale liquor dealers and the saloon men, and all of the principal labor organizations in the State. The No-License League of Rhode Island was led by the Bishop of the Episcopal Church, and comprised all the Protestant bodies, but in spite of this handicap, we not only held all of the cities and towns that were wet, but regained seven dry towns

I should like to say a word here in appreciation of our workers. The men employed in the Organization Bureau have made good without exception, and several of them have done brilliant work. The staff in our home office has worked most faithfully and zealously. It has been necessary to call upon them to do a great deal of extra work out of hours, and they have one and all responded in fine spirit of willingness to the call. We employed a trained newspaper man, Mr. Brewer, to do press work in the Indiana campaign. Mr. Brewer was formerly employed by the Model Licese League and has done such valuable work that we should like, if possible, to employ him permanently. Mr. Carradine did similar work in the Ohio campaign until his health gave out. Through the courtesy of Mr. Gardiner and the Pennsylvania Brewers' Association, Mr. George Muller of Philadelphia, has made personal investigations for us of the conditions in Massachusetts and Maine, and his report is so extremely valuable, that we are about to issue it to the press. We employed a young woman to make a study of conditions in Vermont. She proved to have a talent for investigation and has presented an exhaustive report, which is also of the greatest permanent value. This we are now trying to have published in one of the magazines, failing which, we shall send it out to the press and to our members.

The Trustees are entitled to know of the untiring labor of the President of this Association. I doubt if any Banking institution in New York has had more able and devoted service from its President than this Association has received from Mr. Liebmann. The Finance Committee and the Treasurer have also been called upon to give a great deal of time and personal attention to the affairs of the Association.

OFFICE EXTENSION.

Whether you adopt the program which I have outlined in whole or in part, we must face the question of office extension. It would be a grave misfortune if we had to separate ourselves from the various State and Local Organizations which occupy and control this building. However, the Organization Bureau will undoubtedly have to be brought to New York before long, and we are already so overcrowded in our present quarters that we cannot work to the best advantage. I take the liberty of recommending that, if possible, arrangements be made with the Trustees of this building, at a suitable rental, to enable us to occupy the entire basement of this building, and at least one of the committee rooms on the first floor, in addition to our present quarters, and that the necessary alterations be made in the basement, so that the work can be done there under healthful and comfortable conditions.

There is also offered in evidence Exhibit No. 100, is being a summary of the work of the United States Brewers' Association.

EXHIBIT No. 100.

(From U. S. B. A. files.)

SUMMARY OF THE WORK OF THE UNITED STATES BREWERS' ASS'N.

During the current year the U. S. Brewers' Association has taken an active part, and in many cases, the leading part in the direction of the following campaigns:

Maine, Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

In addition to this, investigations have been conducted and preliminary organization work started in Alabama, California, Iowa, Kansas, Maryland, Montana, Oklahoma, Oregon and Vermont.

This Association took entire charge of the recent campaigns in Rhode Island and South Dakota; and handled exclusively the press end of the successful campaigns in Georgia, Ohio and Indiana.

This Association has distributed over two million pieces of literature, the educational effect of which has been recognized by our opponents; and in some of the campaigns we are informed that the statements of facts which were prepared in our office, turned the scale in the elections.

Through the efforts of the Organization Bureau, in co-operation with the Secretary, twenty-six (26) Merchants' & Manufacturers' Associations and Liberty Leagues have been organized. These have been exceedingly effective in a number of States in handling the campaign, and in distributing literature to the voters.

Several State Federations of Labor and a score or more of the Labor Unions have passed resolutions in opposition to Prohibition; and we have rallied the forces of labor to our side most effectively in a number of the recent State campaigns. In several States the wholesale and retail liquor dealers Associations have also been welded into compact bodies and their influence used in the elections.

During the past month and on November 3rd important victories were gained for our side in the following States:

Connecticut, Illinois. Indiana, Kentucky, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Jersey, Ohio, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah and Wisconsin.

In fact the latest returns indicate that on November 3rd we won every contest in which we were engaged, outside of New York State. We are about to take up license campaigns in Fall River, Worcester, Lynn and other Massachusetts cities, in co-operation with the New England Brewers' Association. There is, however, a long and hard fight ahead of us. not only to hold our ground, but to regain lost territory, and we cannot afford to relax at any point.

There is also offered in evidence Exhibit No. 103, it being minutes of a meeting of the officers of State Brewers' Associations.

MEETING OF EXECUTIVE OFFICERS OF STATE BREWERS' ASSOCIATIONS

Held at the call of the Organization Bureau of the United States Brewers' Ass'n. In Chicago, Ill., on Tuesday, December 29, 1908.

Mr. William Hamm in the chair.

The following gentlemen were present from their respective States: Messrs. Paul Esselborn of Portsmouth, Ohio; Jude Kohn and Reichart of Louisville, Ky., Henry Nicolaus, Philip Stock and E. S. Clauss and C. J. Lemp of St. Louis, Mo., Albert Fischer of Salt Lake City, Utah; D. C. Huntoon of Des Moines, Ia.; L. L. Caufy, W. H. Austin, Gustave Pabst, Joseph Uihlein and Oscar Schmidt of Milwaukee, Wis.; A. Lieber and Joseph Bell of Indianapolis, Ind.; J. B. Haynes and Wm. Krug of Omaha, Nebr.; A. M. Eppstein of Denver, Colo.; F. W. Zollmann and Wm. Hamm of St. Paul, Minn.; E. R. Diederich of South Dakota; W. C. Manchester of Detroit, also F. A. Tusch of Grand Rapids, Mich., J. J. Hoch of Ypsilanti, Mich. and H. Darmstaedter of Detroit, Mich., Ernest Fecker, A. J. Doyle, Rudolf Brand, Joseph Theurer and C. J. Vopica of Chicago, Ill., and Mr. Robert Crain, of Baltimore, Md.

In addition to these, the entire staff of the Organization Bureau was in attendance.

On motion, Mr. Fox was made Secretary of the meeting.

After Mr. Hamm had stated the object of the meeting, which was to exchange experiences and consider the problems which we now have to face. He called upon the representatives from the various States to explain the situation from the standpoint of his State.

Mr. Esselborn of Ohio, stated that 62 counties had gone "dry," 9 "wet" and 17 had yet to vote.

The Ohio brewers will endeavor to amend their law so as to exempt municipal corporations from the county option provisions, in accordance with the Kentucky plan. They will also advocate the appointment of county licensing Boards with discretion to enable them to apply a character test.

Judge Kohn of Kentucky says that until recently the brewers have done all the fighting in his State. 97 counties are "dry" and 7 are "wet" with dry spots. He strongly advocates the separation of the beer from the whiskey traffic.

Mr. Reichert of Kentucky says that members of the Assembly are inclined to favor compensation for losses and fixtures rendered valueless under the operation of the county unit bill. During the past year they have been getting support from the whiskey interests. Under the increased license in Louisville, saloons have been reduced from 857 to 650; and the Red Light district cleaned up. An enormous percentage of the whiskey business in the Kentucky manufacturers is a mail order business, and the whiskey men only came into line with the brewers when prohibition of the manufacture of whiskey was threatened. Nobody in Kentucky wants prohibition. The color question is not much of a factor; it is a religious question in the rural districts.

Mr. Bell of Indiana stated that under their law petitions for license elections can be signed by the power of attorney, which holds until rescinded, and that this is most mischievous. The remonstrance law recognizes the ward and township as units. The Indiana brewers will advocate a reform bill in the Legislature providing for a fine and short suspension for the saloon keeper's first offence, and imprisonment for the second offence. He said that the literature distributed in our interests deals too much with past history, and that in our argument the economic standpoint should be emphasized. He declares the lawful saloon to be the key to the situation.

Mr. Crain made a report for Maryland and the District of Columbia. He emphasized the necessity for thorough organization and absolute observance of the law, and declared his belief in high license, as a general rule, and the observance of the Sunday laws. He explained that in drawing the bill increasing the license fee in Maryland, provision had been made for the payment of a certain portion to the State for the maintenance of good roads, and that this had disarmed the opposition of the farmers.

Mr. McDermott reporting for Missouri, stated that the outlook was good and that the Legislature and the Governor are believed to be O. K.

Mr. Huntoon of Iowa, spoke of the very effective clean up movement that had been conducted by two of the Iowa brewers, in co-operation with Mr. Zollmann of Minnesota. He explained the working of the Mulct Act, and stated that if the prohibition question was resubmitted to the people of Iowa, it would receive the majority of their votes.

Mr. Fischer of Utah reported that Salt Lake City with a population of 90,000 has 106 saloons—a few of them are bad, but this is due to municipal negligence and police "graft." The Mormon religion forbids the use of tobacco, coffee and tea as well as intoxicants. The sentiment is particularly strong against whiskey; and he leans towards the separation of the beer interests from the whiskey interests. He reports that Idaho will probably pass a county option law.

Mr. Austin of Wisconsin said that their common councils have the power to license and revoke. The sentiment against the saloon is growing, and we must get ahead of public sentiment by proposing remedial and constructive legislation, and take an affirmative position ourselves. Under present circumstances in Wisconsin, it is practically impossible to get a license revoked, because the saloon keeper is such a factor in local politics. He is proposing to introduce bills to provide for the appointment of a non-partisan and non-political State Commission of Revocation, with varying terms of appointment, so that no one Governor can control the Commission. Also a bill licensing bar-keepers, with a view to establishing a standard of character and fitness. Also a bill prohibiting the licensing of saloon dance halls, and all places which may be resorted to for prostitution. Mr. Austin declared that the brewer is actually soliciting his own responsibility for the saloons by putting his brewery signs over them, and he would advocate legislation to prohibit brewery signs on the saloons entirely. The Wisconsin Association employs three men to investigate saloons in different parts of the State, and, when necessary, will prosecute offenders. He declared emphatically that beer and hard liquors must be divorced if we are to save the business, and that this can be done by Congressional legislation, requiring the issuing of separate special licenses for beer and whiskey. These should be in different colors, so that at a glance it can be seen which license a man has. If a man has a Federal license for whiskey, it is prima facie evidence that he is selling whiskey. He recommends the attempt to secure compensation in connection with all county option laws, and called attention to the Ontario law which requires a ¾ vote to make a "wet" county "dry" or a "dry" county "wet" again. Only with this preponderance of sentiment can local option be enforced. He does not advocate the enforcement of Sunday closing laws when they are contrary to the general sentiment of the people.

Mr. Zollmann, reporting for Minnesota and South Dakota, gave an interesting explanation of his methods of conducting campaigns. He emphasized the need of considering the nationality and local questions in distributing literature. The voters should be divided into occupations and a classified mailing list made up which may be roughly classified as follows: Hotels, Real Estate, Merchants, Ministers, Physicians and Teachers, Farmers, Labor Men, Lumbermen, etc. He does not believe in using speakers, if the question is one between candidates. If, however, the Prohibition or County Option issue itself is directly at stake, speakers should be used.

Mr. Eppstein of Denver, Colo. spoke of the effect of Woman Suffrage. 80 per cent of the women in Colorado vote and their general sentiment in Colorado is strongly for Prohibition. The attempt to organize a Manufactures' & Merchants' Club there has failed, because the women visited the men with whom they are doing business and threatened to boycott the men if they joined such an Association. A general election in Colorado to-day would mean Prohibition. He is opposed to separate the beer from the whiskey interests, and says that it is impracticable. He advocates the organization of a law department by the United States Brewers' Association to examine all bills offered in the different States to see if they do not contain "jokers."

Mr. Manchester of Michigan emphasized the fundamental principles of free government which are involved in our liquor problems and declared that we were getting away from our American theory, which regarded the individual as a unit and held him responsible for his individual acts. He declared that we must create issues ourselves. The Michigan law prohibits the manufacture, as well as the giving away, of malt, vinous and spiritous liquors; and that the Anti-Saloon League is now trying to get a search and seizure law passed. The brewers are going to try to have laws passed to limit the number of licenses to 1 to 500 (new saloons), and to revoke licenses on the 3rd offence. He called attention to the danger of blackmailers putting up jobs on saloon men, when the penalty was too great for a first offence.

Mr. Hamm then called attention to the dangers involved in the initiative and referendum principle, and in constitutional conventions, and in measures to codify and revise the laws, and also the Women's Suffrage Movement.

Mr. Doyle of Illinois stated that in the last State primaries of the liquor interests, the allied trades had combined, with the result that they have won great victories and have the Legislature well in hand. The policy of the Illinois brewers is to keep out of court. He said that the seven thousand saloons in Chicago are all open on Sunday, in spite of the law. There had been 13 prosecutions under the law for Sunday selling, but no convictions.

Mr. Fox in closing declared that even if we perfected our political and business organizations, and put the Anti-Saloon League out of business, we should still have only taken the first step towards the solution of the problem. The present agitation is the culmination of 20 years of temperance education. The issue is a public one of paramount importance, and must be discussed on its merits before the whole people. We must be prepared to meet every question that is raised fairly and intelligently. We must base our argument on absolute facts and precise data. He called attention to the fact that the Scientific Committee of the Women's Christian Temperance Union contains a better library on the liquor problem than all of the liquor interests combined, can boast of. He expressed the opinion that the fight will last for years to come, and that the brewers must set aside a certain sum every year for the protection of their business which should be regarded as insurance and that this should be a fixed charge on the cost of production.

A resolution was passed unanimously to hold another meeting on Saturday, February 20th, 1908.

There is also offered in evidence Exhibit No. 104.

[1909 reports.]

REPORT OF SECRETARY OF THE UNITED STATES BREWERS' ASSN. TO THE TRUSTEES, JANUARY 22ND, 1909.

MEMBERSHIP.

The membership report which is presented herewith needs a word of explanation. The list of delinquents must not be taken to indicate any sudden change in the affairs of the Association, or any depreciation in the interest of its members. It simply shows that for a number of years the Association has been carrying a lot of dead wood. As a matter of fact, we have collected per cent more dues from our members than last year, and more than at any other time of which we have records, in spite of the depression in our business, and the hard times incident to the panic of a year ago. On the whole, the statement shows that the Association has gained ground steadily during the past year, in the sound and healthy character of its membership, and that if the habitual delinquents had been taken off the list of members a year or two ago, we should be able to show an actual increase in the present regular membership of the Association.

PUBLICITY.

The experiment which has been tried since the last meeting of the Trustees, to secure publicity through the press, seems to have already justified itself. Besides the résumé of the result of the election in November, which was sent out from Milwaukee, we have sent sets of our leaflets to a picked list of 3,000 newspapers and special publications. We have tried to keep track of the result through our clipping service. Our scrap book, which I have in evidence here, shows that columns of matter have been printed by the press, as the direct result of our efforts. Of course this only includes the leading newspapers, but the result is encouraging when it is considered that we have had to face the prejudice and distrust of the papers, and that we have had nothing to offer in the way of advertising, and that very little of the matter has been of such a character as to give it news value. It clearly indicates, however, a recognition on the part of the press that the liquor question, and the saloon problem, are public issues, and that a spirit of inquiry has been aroused which we must take advantage of, and which will give us an opportunity for a hearing, if we present facts in an interesting and judicial way.

Leading newspaper and magazine editors and writers have expressed their personal interest in the frank method of publicity which we have adopted, in contrast with the underground methods so generally used in the past by other large commercial interests. Only two or three unfavorable comments on our publications have come to our attention, and these from sources that are manifestly prejudiced.

THE MAGAZINES AND ADVERTISING.

A number of the popular magazines are exploiting the fact that they decline to receive advertisements from brewers or liquor dealers, and the character of the articles which they have published on the liquor problem, clearly shows that they are playing up to the temperance sentiment in the interest of their circulation. It is futile to engage in controversy with them, and in fact I question the wisdom of the controversial method in dealing with this question from our standpoint. If, however, we can secure the publication of original matter which will carry conviction to the mind of the public, and which in substance will answer the prejudiced statements of our opponents, without referring to them directly, it will be much more effective. A magazine is just as much a business proposition as a brewery, and if it prints an article exposing prohibition, it is the result of collaboration between the publisher and the editor. The editor considers the article favorably because of its general interest and its literary or dramatic quality. The publisher accepts it because he thinks it will appeal to his subscribers, or will enlist new subscribers, or will bring in more advertising, or that at any rate it will not offend the readers of the magazine. Anything that we can do to put the publisher in this frame of mind, either by increasing the circulation, and especially the subscription list for the magazine, or by giving it advertising, is of the greatest value. I mention the matter now because of favorable avenues which are being opened to us in this connection, through such eminently reputable concerns as the Harper publications and Appleton's Magazine. Mr. Schaefer, the Chairman of the Publication Committee, suggests that we might ask the brewers to subscribe to half a dozen periodicals, which we might pick out, and that the receipt of the thousand subscriptions from our members to these publications, would certainly make a most favorable impression upon them. The matter is well worth considering.

The point which I want to make clear is that no reputable magazine would either accept pay for the publication of an article, or even allow a special interest, such as ours, to contribute directly to the expense of making an investigation or procuring material for an article, but there are a number of reputable magazines, and a good many daily papers which can be favorably impressed through their advertising columns, and to a smaller extent, through their subscription lists. This is a case in which the individual brewer can not only help himself, but the whole cause, more effectively than it can be done by an organization.

EDUCATIONAL METHODS.

The recent developments in States where the saloon has figured in the elections, show more clearly than ever the absolute necessity of presenting our case to the people on its merits. The saloon question and the liquor problem are public issues and we must conduct an educational campaign on a national scale. The Anti-Saloon League has announced its plans with regard to the erection of a printing plant at a cost of $100,000, which will serve as a center of publication for all its printed matter, and it is evidently preparing for a wide extension of the literary end of its activities. The work which we have been doing during the past six months, is merely scratching the surface. It is, however, futile to suggest larger plans until we are in a position to finance them.

Our own special leaflets and reprints of magazine and newspaper articles, ought to be sent to the home addresses of every legislator in the land, and such officials as Governors, Mayors, Sheriffs, Prosecutors, and to County officers in all the States, entirely regardless of whether a campaign is going on or is impending. In the same way literature should be sent constantly to members of the learned professions. This general literature should have no reference to specific campaigns, for which latter purpose the State Associations should prepare special matter to be sent to all of the voters, well in advance of the election. We are trying to give our publications such variety that something may be found to meet every phase of the question, and to appeal to individuals of each particular class. It is a sheer waste to fire it out indiscriminately, and there are only a few of our State and local Associations that appear to be using good judgment in the distribution of our material. I am inclined to believe that the general educational campaign can be conducted most effectively from this Association as a center, but that the objective work which is done in connection with local elections, must be done by the State associations.

The following additional exhibit is also offered in evidence.

[Minutes of meeting of executive officers of State and local brewing associations. (Held at the call of the secretary of the United States Brewers' Association, in Hotel Pontchartrain, Detroit, Michigan, July 21–22, 1909.)]

The Meeting opened at 10 A. M., July 21, with Mr. John Gardiner presiding and H. F. Fox acting Secretary. The roll of those present was taken and is attached hereto. The Secretary read very interesting letters from Mr. J. B. Haynes of Omaha and Mr. F. G. Deckebach of Salem, Oregon, regretting that they could not attend the Conference, and making suggestions with regard to publicity and campaign management. Letters expressing interest in the movement, and regretting that they could not attend were also received from Mr. Lawrence Fabacher of Louisiana, Mr. H. V. Huse of Massachusetts, Mr. N. W. Kendall of Connecticut and Howard Gray of New Hampshire.

Mr. Gardiner stated that the purpose of the Conference was to increase the effectiveness of the working forces concerned in the campaign for the brewers' interests and called upon representatives from the various States who were present at the meeting to give a brief statement of the conditions in their several States. Addresses were made in this connection by Colonel Schwartz of New York State, Mr. Austin of Wisconsin, Mr. Zollman of Minnesota, Mr. Ess Born of Ohio, Mr. Reichert of Kentucky, General Crow of Missouri, Mr. Brewer of Illinois, Mr. Muller of Pennsylvania, Mr. Kingsley of New Jersey, Mr. Reymann, West Virginia, Mr. Manchester of Michigan and Mr. Fleming of Indiana.

The Meeting on the afternoon of the 21st was presided over by Mr. Fox, as Mr. Gardiner was obliged to leave on an early train. Before leaving Mr. Gardiner made a statement as to the work which is being planned by the United States Brewers' Association, in reclaiming "dry" territory and directing campaigns in the States where the brewing interest is not strong enough to conduct the fight alone. Mr. McDermott outlined the work of the Organization Bureau, and Mr. Fox explained the work and methods of the Publicity Department of the United States Brewers' Association. A general discussion on publicity work then took place, Mr. Gordon, of Michigan, stating his views as a practical newspaper man.

In connection with the correlation of work between the United States Brewers' Association and the State brewing associations, Colonel Fecker made a motion, seconded by Mr. Reymann, that it is the sense of this body that the State associations should send delegates to the Convention of the United States Brewers' Association, who shall constitute an advisory committee to the Trustees of the U. S. B. A. After some discussion, Mr. Austin moved that the Chairman appoint a committee of five, with Mr. Zollman as Chairman, to whom the motion of Mr. Fecker should be referred, and this committee should be asked to report a plan of action to carry out the purpose of the Conference, and to take into consideration the tentative suggestions submitted by the Secretary of the United States Brewers' Association for the consideration of the Conference. With the consent of Mr. Fecker this motion was then put and carried, and the Chair appointed Messrs. Zollman, Austin, Fecker, Esselborn and Reyman as the Committee.

The Meeting on Thursday morning was presided over by Mr. Carl Hoster, President of the United States Brewers' Association, Mr. Fox acting as Secretary. Mr. Hoster extended a word of greeting and congratulation upon the Conference, and then called upon Mr. Zollman to read the report of the Committee of Five, which is attached hereto. On motion it was decided to discuss the report section by section.

Colonel Schwartz moved that Section 1 should be amended so as to provide a permanent association to include local as well as State associations. Carried unanimously. Section one was then voted on as amended and carried.

Mr. Reichert moved a re-consideration of the vote on Section 1, particularly with reference to the election of officers, but the motion was lost. Sections 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6 were then adopted in turn unanimously. Mr. Reichert then moved that a Section 7 be added to provide that the executive officers must be members or employees of a brewery, or some person filling an executive capacity with a brewery. The motion however, was voted down. The question of the adoption of the report as a whole then came up, and Mr. Muller opposed its adoption on the ground that Mr. Gardiner had not been consulted as to accepting the office as President. On motion of Mr. Ettla the question of the adoption of the report was put to vote and carried, Mr. Muller voting No.

On motion of Messrs. Forster and Esselborn the Committee of Five was continued for the purpose of drafting by-laws, copy of which they were instructed to send in advance of the next meeting to members of the local associations, etc. On motion it was decided that these proceedings should be considered confidential, and that no report of them should be given to the trade papers or to the press.

A resolution was passed thanking the Committee for its labors.

Mr. Forster then delivered an interesting address on the Anti-Saloon League Movement in New York, and explained the principles, etc., of the Original Rights Society, which he urged the members of the Conference to support. Mr. Diederich on invitation informed the Meeting of his investigation of the moving picture business in Michigan and in Chicago with reference particularly to the use of films exploiting alleged saloon sensations. He suggested that the matter should be taken up locally by our various associations, who should interview the proprietors of moving picture shows and endeavor to secure their co-operation. Moved by Col. Schwartz, seconded by Mr. Renner that the members of the Conference take the matter up and report at the next meeting. Carried.

Mr. Tusch suggested that in connection with moving pictures in churches, etc., something might be done with the City electricians, in connection with dangerous and illegal wiring.

Colonel Schwartz then addressed the Conference with regard to trade problems and urged a policy of non-interference between outside and local brewers. On the motion of Mr. Hess an adjournment was then taken, with the understanding that the next meeting should be held in Cincinnati on Wednesday and Thursday, November 10 and 11. Carried.

There is also offered in evidence Exhibit No. 110, a communication from the secretary of a county brewers' association to that association, reporting upon the result of the Atlantic City convention and the proposed activities of Mr. Andreae.

EXHIBIT No. 110.

[Report sent to member of U. S. B. A. convention (1913) by Mr. Hoch, its secretary. From U. S. B. A. files. Office copy. Please return this copy to the file.]

To the members of the Country Brewers Association of Michigan.

GENTLEMEN: Pursuant to instructions from our President, Mr. Louis W. Hine, I proceeded to Atlantic City, and attended the 53rd Annual Convention of the United States Brewers Association, as your representative.

The meeting was opened with an address by Mr. Jacob Ruppert, President, in which he emphasized the danger which confronts our Industry, not in any particular locality, but all over the United States. Notwithstanding the fact that the consumption of beer is steadily on the increase, national legislation is dreaded and feared, and drastic steps must be taken to check the growing sentiment, which is produced principally by the politician, who carries the favor of the Brewer, and who makes political capital for himself of the Liquor traffic.

The speech of the President was followed, after minor other lectures, etc., by a masterly oration and exhortation by Mr. Percy Andrae, who has been chosen as the chairman of the National Organization Bureau. He pointed out in most forceful manner, the necessity for "Concerted Action;" the urgency of every Brewer in the United States affiliating with and being a member of the National Organization. Not so much for the purpose of increasing its revenues, although sinews of war must also be provided, as the necessity of having a proper working organization. No one hearing the able oration of Mr. Andrae could be indifferent to his appeal for concerted and organized effort on the part of the Brewers, and contributing to the maintenance of such organization. Sixty-five per cent of the Brewers Barrelage is represented in the Association, but only forty per cent of the Brewers of the United States are members. This shows conclusively that the large breweries contribute to its maintenance principally. Mr. Andrae must have the moral influence, as well as the physical force to bring about his noble aims. His warfare will mean the death of the Demagogue and Hypocrite, whose slogan is the "Liquor traffic" to land him in office. He proposes to ascertain the standing of every office seeker, and deal only with men of principal and high integrity for office, and not allow men who pretend friendship turn upon us after election, believing that thereby they may advance a step or two on the political ladder. A list of the Brewers of Michigan, not members of the United States Brewers Association will be furnished me by Mr. Fox's office and special efforts must be made by our board of Control to induce every member of our own Association to join the National Association.

We, in Michigan, need the assistance of the United States Brewers Association, and direction of Mr. Andrae, Mr. McDermott and others, in our fight to avoid State wide Prohibition in 1914. I regret that the meeting of our Associa-

Schmidt, acting as chairman of the meeting, read the following which was adopted at the convention of the U. S. B. A. in October, regard to the creation of the Interstate Conference Committee:

a new Standing Committee shall be established, to be known as the Conference Committee, which is to be appointed by the industry in owing State as follows: each State Brewers' Association shall be to appoint one representative on such committee, and in States where ers are not organized as a State Brewers' Association, the local mem- the U. The Committee shall hold a joint meeting with the Board of Trustees at least once a year. The Secretary of the U. S. B. A. shall act as Secretary of the Interstate Conference Committee"— and then stated that the various delegates would be called upon in turn for a report as to conditions in their State.

Mr. Davis reviewed the recent election in the State of Washington, which he said went dry by a majority of a 5% vote. The last legislature did nothing one way or the other, but the sentiment has changed since the last election. The election was lost because the people who patronized the saloons voted dry, and it was not the rural districts, but the cities that were responsible for the State going dry. He said that business has become stagnant especially in building and real estate, and that rents have dropped 25%. At present the State is facing financial difficulties and must have a bigger fund. The small communities have always felt that they got no benefit from the license fund, or from the revenues from the liquor business, but that if a State tax on liquor was imposed which would bring $1,000,000 to the State, all of the citizens would feel the benefit of it, and it would undoubtedly affect public sentiment very materially. To this end a referendum measure has been drawn, which it is proposed to initiate by petition next January, with the intention of bringing it to a vote in November, 1916. This bll is to provide for revenue by a stamp tax on all alcoholic beverages as follows:

One cent per quart and one-half cent per pint on such liquids or beverages containing 5 per cent or less of alcohol.

Five cents per quart and two-and-one-half cents per pint on such liquids or beverages containing more than 5 per cent and not over 17 per cent of alcohol.

Twenty cents per quart and ten cents per pint on such liquids or beverages containing more than 17 per cent and not over 34 per cent of alcohol.

Twenty cents per quart and ten cents per pint on all sparkling wines containing alcohol.

Twenty-five cents per quart and twelve and one-half cents per pint on all liquors or beverages containing more than 34 per cent and not over 55 per cent of alcohol.

Fifty cents per quart and twenty-five cents per pint on all liquids or beverages containing more than 55 per cent of alcohol.

That when such liquids or beverages containing alcohol are stamped in original packages containing 5 or more gallons such excise stamp tax shall be at the following rate:

Forty cents per barrel of 31 gallons, twenty cents a half barrel and ten cents a quarter barrel on all liquids or beverages containing 5 per cent or less of alcohol.

Ten cents per gallon on such liquids or beverages containing more than 5 per cent and not over 17 per cent of alcohol.

Forty cents per gallon on such liquids or beverages containing more than 17 per cent and not over 34 per cent of alcohol.

Fifty cents per gallon on such liquids or beverages containing more than 34 per cent and not over 55 per cent of alcohol.

One dollar per gallon on such liquids or beverages containing more than 55 per cent of alcohol.

The Chairman stated that this would establish a precedent which would be most mischievous, and that he regarded it as the most dangerous question that had ever been put up to us.

The argument of our opponents is that our people are big enough to assume the expenses of the government regardless of the liquor business, and we do not believe that conditions would be improved in any degree by increased taxation.

New Jersey. Mr. Potts moved that the Washington brewers be requested to withdraw any measure which imposed a stamp tax, or any other direct tax on the liquor business.

Wisconsin. Mr. Oscar Schmidt stated that the Missouri beer tax which is called an Inspection Tax, has proved most unfortunate, and is not a help to the industry at all. In a dozen State Legislatures a tax ranging from 25 cents to a dollar on beer has been brought up every year or so, and has had to be fought very hard. He seconded Mr. Potts' motion.

Washington. Mr. Davis stated that he had been in touch with the voters of Washington for twelve years, and that our people must have some new proposition in order to win. The proposed plan would bring in one-eleventh of the total revenue of the State. They are not pushing it now; the Legislature has adjourned. They are willing to have the matter thoroughly investigated.

The resolution should not be put through at this time.

Mr. Zollman said that the policy is conceived on the wrong principle. It would not have any effect in deterring the prohibitionists, but would only operate as a weapon in other States. Our people have had to consider the question in Minnesota, but the proposition has always come from our opponents. The revenue question was at one time a very weighty one, but it has no weight now. The industrial question is at the present time the most important. The educational method is the only remedy.

Mr. Davis suggested that the matter go over until the fall. He did not realize that this Committee had any authority which would bind the Trustees with the U. S. B. A.

New Hampshire. Mr. G. H. Steele thought the matter was sufficiently serious to be considered by the Trustees, and suggested that a committee from this body confer with the brewers from the State of Washington.

Mr. Becker then moved that a Committee on Resolutions be appointed to consider these resolutions, and bring in a general resolution of the recommendations of this Committee to the Board of Trustees. The motion was adopted unanimously, and the Chairman appointed the following Committee on Resolutions:

G. L. Becker, Chairman
Oscar Schmidt
R. L. Autrey
W. P. Hansell
Hugo A. Koehler

Mr. Edward A. Schmidt then had to retire to attend the meeting of the Executive Committee of the U. S. B. A., and called upon Mr. Potts to take the chair.

Texas. Mr. R. L. Autrey reported that it had been an off-year in Texas, but that present conditions were very good. The Liquor Committee of the Legislature did not even have a meeting. Prohibitionists in Texas are on the defensive. At the same time the situation is serious as indicated by the fact that there are 256 dry counties in Texas, and only 20 counties entirely wet, and 32 partially wet. The next election for U. S. Senator will hinge on the National Prohibition issue. The Texas brewers have no feeling of security.

Referring to Mr. Davis' tax suggest on, it simply meant that the brewer should be the collector for the State, and that the matter is merely one of expediency without regard to principle.

In Texas the liquor interest provides 25% of the revenue of the State, but they think it so unimportant that the brewers disregard it entirely in their campaigns. The question is—does the citizen care enough about his liberty. In Texas the law is promptly enforced in the dry counties. In the early stages of the wet and dry fights the sales in the dry counties kept right on, but new laws have eliminated this. The last straw was the adoption of a license fee of $4,000 for the selling of non-intoxicating malt liquors in dry counties, and this has prevented the brewers from shipping into dry counties. Any liquor which goes into a dry county is brought at once under the taxing power. The recent action of the courts has, however, made it possible for the individual citizen in dry counties to bring liquor in for his personal use, and for the use of his family, but he cannot even give it away to anyone else.

Utah. Mr. Becker said that the situation in Utah is very serious. He referred to the passage of the prohibition law by the Legislature which the Governor vetoed. A law of a drastic nature was also passed and signed, which prohibits shipments into dry counties except to drug stores and individuals. Our concern at present is the election of the next Legislature. We have to make an open fight on the merits of our case, and are planning a very extensive educational campaign during the next year and a half, appealing to the reason of the leaders and winning the sentiment of the people.

New Hampshire. Mr. Steele said that the industry had been fairly successful for the past ten years in New Hampshire. The New Hampshire law is unique in some respects and has certain attractive features. For example the State Licensing Board can license hotels in dry towns. In New Hampshire there is a vast investment in resort hotels.

Vermont is to vote on prohibition next March. The units of the State are overwhelmingly no-license, and an educational campaign is their only reliance.

Mr. Haffenreffer reported that the Massachusetts brewers are spending $25,000 on a newspaper campaign, and they believe thoroughly in the educational method.

Mr. Brehm stated that the Maryland brewers are trying to ward off prohibition in the Legislature. He stated Anderson, former superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League conducted his campaign in the open, but Hare, the present superintendent still hunts and visits the people in the country districts, and gets acquainted with the family. He had charge of the Virginia and West Virginia fights.

Mr. Brehm said that if Maryland goes dry, the District of Columbia will of course follow, and a dry wave will sweep up the Atlantic Coast. He urged that the non-members of the U. S. B. A. should be visited personally, and he suggested that Mr. McDermott of the Organization Bureau go to Baltimore, and visit the non-members personally. The Baltimore brewers have conducted a newspaper advertising campaign, which has been very effective. Special consideration should be given to the distribution of pamphlets, and the U. S. B. A. should make suggestions as to where they should be sent, and the class of men that each pamphlet should be sent to.

Louisiana. Mr. J. P. Sullivan referred to the recent passage of the "Blind Tiger" Act, which prohibits shipments to dry places, and he stated that he had served notice on the Anti-Saloon League that if the League did not offer a bill regulating the illicit trade, he would do so. He joined with them in the passage of such a bill, but was opposed by the whiskey interests. Mr. Sullivan stated that 7 out of 8 congressmen in Louisiana have voted against the Hobson Resolution in Congress, and that the prohibitionists are making a fight on them in their districts. In Louisiana the solution of the question has been the passage of the Gay Shattuck Law, according to which a saloon in any district can be closed for misconduct by petition of a majority of the people. When the "near-beer" law was first passed there was a good deal of complaint as to the sale of substitutes particularly at soda water fountains, which made people ill, and it also served as a cloak for "blind tigers." Hence the passage of the bill which allows the sale of near-beer only in places where it is sold exclusively. The license fee for the sale of this near beer is $50 minimum. The Louisiana brewers have engaged a competent newspaper man to attend to publicity matters, and are publishing a paper called "Facts" which reaches 175,000 voters once a month. He stated that statutory prohibition prevails in all Southern States that have gone dry, and that Mississippi has never had an election on the prohibition question. He called attention to the Westerville Publishing house of the Anti-Saloon League, and said that all voters could be reached in each State by the publication of such a paper as "Facts".

Mr. Sullivan gave an interesting account in which he said that the whiskey men would load up wagons with flasks of whiskey which they would take to saw-mills and lumber camps when men were paid off, selling the flasks of whiskey for 25¢. That is the reason why every saw-mill man in the South is a prohibitionist. A law should be passed prohibiting the shipment of liquor into dry territory in every State.

Referring again to the publication of "Facts," he stated that he had secured paid subscriptions on 20,000 copies through the assistance of individual brewers, and that the $5 000 received as a contribution from the U. S. B. A. for publicity purposes had been put into this paper.

Iowa. Mr. H. Thuenen submitted a written report in regard to the State of Iowa, for the consideration of the Board of Trustees of the U. S. B. A. Iowa is now dry by the repeal of the Mulct Law, which takes effect January 1, 1916. At that time every brewery will be closed and all saloons banished from the State. The Legislature has adopted a resolution submitting to the people of the State an amendment to the constitution providing for state-wide constitutional prohibition. This resolution must again be adopted by both Houses of the Legislature in the 1917 session, and if adopted, will then be submitted to the people at the general election in 1918. The next battle will be at the next session of the Legislature. The margin in the State Senate in favor of Constitutional Prohibition is very small indeed, and there is a general feeling that the Legislature made a grievous error in repealing the Mulct Law.

While the brewers of Iowa will go out of business January 1, 1916, they have arranged to maintain their organization so as to co-operate with the U. S. B. A. if any effort is made to continue the fight.

Missouri. Mr. H. A. Koehler reported that the situation in Missouri is satisfactory except in regard to Congressmen. The sentiment in Missouri is for local self-government, which is the key-note of all of the campaigns in that State. The State gets a revenue of half a million dollars from the beer inspection tax of 20¢ per barrel, but there is a division of opinion as to whether it is worth what it costs. There has been agitation among the brewers to organize for the purpose of limiting the number of saloons, but they are afraid of the Anti-Trust Law, and will probably advocate limitation by law.

Mr. Busch is anxious to try out the family resort idea. The U. S. B. A. should use all its efforts to repeal the present war tax as soon as it may be expedient.

Mr. Koehler thinks that the Interstate Conference Committee should meet semi-annually, if not quarterly.

Ohio. Mr. Wm. Hess said that Ohio has had everything in the way of local option laws that could be devised. At the last session of the Legislature 14 adverse measures were considered, all of which were defeated except the bill giving the county officials the right to appoint license commissioners, instead of having them appointed by the State. Ohio will have a prohibition fight this year to abolish saloons and the liquor traffic. The brewers are doing a great deal of publicity work. A million copies of their "Home Rule Almanac" were distributed. The newspapers have been used freely in the campaigns, and in the last campaign a speakers' bureau was established. A school for speakers was conducted for six weeks, and out of 70 candidates, 40 young lawyers were selected, and they did good work. Mr. Hess said that there are 2,000,000 barrels of beer brewed in Ohio on which the Ohio Brewers' Association has been unable to collect dues.

Pennsylvania. Mr. W. P. Hansell said that Pennsylvania is now at peace, but preparing for war. The recent Legislature defeated the county option bill by a large maority, which was entirely due to organization. The brewers, distillers and wholesalers and their employees are all working together. Pennsylvania practically has local option now under the Brooks Law. Only 60% of the barrelage is paying dues to the State Association.

Wisconsin. Mr. Oscar Schmidt says that Wisconsin has a very effective organization. The Legislature is still in session, but every adverse bill has so far been defeated, and three of the Senators from dry counties have been defeated for re-election. Only 60% of the barrelage from Wisconsin is paying dues to their organization. Mr. Schmidt has been devoting three days a month (as President of the Wisconsin Association) visiting brewers personally and getting them to join. With reference to the saloon situation he said that the brewers must not rely on the reports of their sales managers. There are 2200 saloons in Milwaukee, and 1000 to 1500 would be enough. Some brewers, however, are actually trying to increase the number of saloons. License fees are only $200. Chicago brewers are selling bottled beer in Milwaukee at 35¢ per dozen without charging for bottles or cases. Some of the Chicago brewers who do not belong to the Cook County Associatin are supplying salonkeepers in Milwaukee, who are under the ban of the Milwaukee brewers. Mr. Schmidt said that Wiscon brewers have not asked for any assistance from the U. S. B. A. except in a literary way. The wholesalers and distillers in Wisconsin have not given them a dollar.

Mr. Schmidt said that it was his idea to have meetings of the Interstate Conference Committee at various points quite frequently. There ought to be another meeting before the October Convention.

Nebraska. With reference to Nebraska, Mr. Oscar Schmidt reported that Mr. Bryan had been a bitter opponent, and that he had gone so far as to go before the grand jury three times to try and get indictments against the Nebraska brewers.

Referring to the general situation, Mr. Schmidt said that the people, and not the brewers, are responsible for bad saloons. He said that in Tennessee an offer was made to eliminate saloons in towns of less than 1000 people, which have no police protection, but this did not satisfy the other side. Texas hired attorneys to put the dives out of business, without impressing our opponents. Mr. Schmidt said that he believed we should always have to fight for the protection of our business, and advanced the opinion that there is no trade in which the sales force is given so much leeway.

He stated that a compensation bill is of the greatest importance. All we ask is to have our property rights protected, and let the damages be fixed by the jury. He believes that such a bill can be passed in Wisconsin. If ten big States were to pass such a compensation bill, the effect on Congress would be very great.

Illinois. Mr. A. Doyle submitted a written report, which in substance is as follows:

Under the law which allows women a vote in the municipalities, which has been upheld by the Supreme Court, the spring elections of 1914 in the towns, cities and villages resulted disastrously. Elections were held in 251 places and no less than 154 towns, cities and villages which had been wet were voted dry through the women's vote. There is no material change in the vote of the men. The population of the State residing under Township prohibition is 41.21 per cent, while those residing in license territory equal 58.79 per cent.

Since 1912 the Anti-Saloon League has raised over $100,000 a year. The situation in Illinois is a serious one, and it is of the utmost importance that there should be a strenuous defense of our industry, particularly in Chicago, because of the special concentration of the opposing force on what is called the "Dry Chicago in 1916" campaign.

Michigan. Mr. G. A. Kusterer reported that in 1916 Michigan would vote on state-wide prohibition under Initiative & Referendum. They have had no real organization of brewers for several years, but have formed a publicity bureau through a group of individual brewers who have formed a sort of Vigilance Committee. Only ten per cent of voters are required for signatures to a petition in Michigan. Efforts are now being made to bring about one State organization of brewers, and a general conference is to be held about the middle of July. Under the present conditions of dis-organization we, the brewers of Michigan, are bound to lose. Already 43 out of 83 counties are dry. Our opponents gained 10 counties this spring. It was the vote in the large cities that made the counties dry, as the large manufacturers have been intimidating their men into voting dry. The rural vote has not materially changed.

Kentucky. Mr. L. Reichert reported that there is a joint committee in Kentucky of all interests—distilling, brewing and distributing—and that there will be a state-wide fight in Kentucky. Out of 120 counties only 13 are now wet, and some of these are only partly wet. Officers of the U. S. B. A. should go through the State and see for themselves what the situation is.

Connecticut. Mr. Orr stated that an advertising campaign well handled would be very effective, and that literary material from the U. S. B. A. has been used mainly through newspapers, also that in Connecticut the city papers are read in rural districts, and advertising should be done there in the city papers, and not in the rural press. The advertising of the shipping brewers has not been of any assistance. Mr. Orr believes that shipping brewers should ask for suggestions from the Connecticut Brewers' Association in their advertising campaign.

Connecticut is one of the greatest beer-drinking States in this country, and it must be kept in line, but the co-operation of the outside brewers is absolutely necessary. At a recent session of the Legislature an effort was made to get a special measure through providing for the sale of a temperance beer containing less than 2% of alcohol, under special conditions. At the legislative hearing Prof. Jenkins of Yale, and a professor from Trinity College, also an expert from New York testified in favor of the measure, but when they were asked if they would give the beverage to their children, they all said "no" and this killed the measure.

The license fee in Connecticut has been raised from $500 to $750 by the recent Legislature. Mr. Orr stated that the outside brewers who do business in Connecticut ought to become a part of the Connecticut Brewers' Association.

The Resolutions Committee then presented the following report, which was unanimously adopted (except by Mr. Davis, who desired to be recorded as ruling "no") as a recommendation to the Board of Trustees of the United States Brewers' Association:—

"Resolved, that it is the sense of this meeting that the imposition of a direct State tax on alcoholic beverages is unsound in principle, and would be a serious detriment to the brewing industry of this country, and we believe that it will not serve to deter the people from voting for prohibition. We urge the brewers of Washington to confer with the Executive Committee of the U. S. B. A. before taking any further steps to promote such legislation.

"Resolved, that we believe the issues now confronting us must be met on their merits, and that a campaign of education must be conducted in each State, for the purpose of securing sound sentiment, based on accurate information.

"Resolved, that we endorse the suggestions of the Joint Harmony Committee in regard to the betterment of Saloon Conditions, and recommend that local organizations give the matter their earnest and practical aid in putting these suggestions into execution.

"Resolved, that this Committee meet the day preceding the opening of the convention.

"Resolved, that the members of this Committee exchange their publicity matter, and that a report of this meeting be sent to each member of the committee.

"We recommend that the Executive Committee consider carefully conditions in the several States in the forthcoming campaigns, and that all the activities of the U. S. B. A. should be so centralized and its resources so conserved that the weight of its aid and influence may be placed where the greatest needs exist."

The meeting adjourned at 4:40 P. M.

There is also offered in evidence Exhibit No. 113, which is a statement of the membership of 1914.

[From U. S. B. A. files.]

United States Brewers' Association, Association's Office, 109 and 111 East 15th Street.

NEW YORK, January 6, 1999.

To the Members of the United States Brewers' Association.

GENTLEMEN:

Organized Strength of the Brewers.—The United States Brewers' Association is now in its forty-ninth year. Of the 1,600 brewers in the United States, only 823 are members of the Association. Their output, however, represents eighty per cent. of the entire brewing business of the country.

In addition to the parent association, there are now over 50 State and local organizations of brewers, many of which have been started under the impetus of the parent association. Every effort is being made to increase the number of such organizations, so that the entire country may be thoroughly covered by men who know the situation, in each locality, and who can get into personal touch with all the interests involved.

Organization Work.—During the current year the United States Brewers' Association has taken an active part, by disseminating our literature and educating the voters, in the following States, where the license question was a campaign issue: Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska,

New Jersey, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

In addition to this, investigations have been conducted and preliminary organization work started in Alabama, California, Iowa, Kansas, Maryland, Montana, Oklahoma, Oregon and Vermont.

This Association took entire charge of several of the recent license campaigns in Rhode Island and Massachusetts, and the campaign against constitutional Prohibition in South Dakota.

During the past month and on November 3rd, important victories were gained for our cause in the following States: Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Jersey, Ohio, South Dakota, Utah and Wisconsin. In fact, we won nearly every contest in which we were engaged.

* * * * * * *

Our Literary Bureau.—Since the opening of the Spring of 1908 we have printed 2,000,000 pamphlets, editions of some 50 originals, and have reprinted many important newspaper and magazine articles. Most of the material for these leaflets has been collated and prepared under our direction. The total quantity of leaflets, etc., which we have printed is 2,500,000. Of this quantity 1,750,000 have been distributed, direct, to our members, and through the State and local brewing and allied trade organizations. The more important pamphlets are plated, so that we can reprint new editions as they are called for, without delay.

The best testimony as to the value of our publications comes from our opponents. The head of the International Reform Bureau recently appealed to the so-called temperance organizations to get together and suppress much of their present literature and combine for the issuance of new matter which should compare in quality and character with our publications. He told them, in effect, that they were simply outclassed, so far as their literature went.

In Touch With The Press.—We have just completed a list of three thousand important newspapers and publications, which will constitute a mailing list for our literature, and intend to keep them constantly informed of new developments of public interest. We hope, in this way, to gradually win the confidence of the press, with the result of securing a larger measure of helpful publicity. Already we can trace a marked difference in the tone of the thoughtful newspapers with regard to our business.

We are planning, and in fact have already started, important lines of investigation and research, with a view to assembling a body of facts which will help the brewing trade to establish certain definite principles in regard to licensing and the whole question of saloon regulation. We are endeavoring to enlist the coöperation of municipal experts and civic bodies, and of all serious students of government in this connection.

In the Enemy's Camp.—We have been studying the tactics of the forces opposed to us, with a view to measuring their strength. This is not a mere skirmish—it is a "seven years' war," which is destined to cover the whole country. Do you know that—

There are over one hundred temperance and Prohibition papers published in this country? That the Anti-Saloon League alone publishes thirty weekly, bi-weekly, and monthly papers throughout the United States, of which 500,000 copies are sent out?

What we have to Reckon with.—That the League has over a hundred business offices, and at least five hundred men and women on its regular salary list, in these offices alone? That besides this, it employs large numbers of speakers on contract, from the Governor of Indiana down to the local pastor of a Methodist church?

That it confesses to an annual income of over $400,000 and probably has a much larger sum at its disposal?

Do you know that the Anti-Saloon League and the Prohibition party maintain well-equipped press bureaus, and send out plated matter every week to all of the newspapers of the country? That the Lincoln Temperance Press of Chicago, and the National Temperance Society of New York, and the Anti-Saloon League are publishing and distributing, broadcast, their leaflets, books, songs, prohibition buttons, etc.?

Do you realize that the men who are managing those movements have capitalized the temperance sentiment which has been evolved in a century of preaching and agitation?

Do you realize that the sentiment of the people of this country against the disreputable saloon, and the saloon influence in politics, has also been capitalized by the Anti-Saloon League, and that it has temporarily won the votes of thousands of men who are not naturally our opponents, and who are men of liberal habits themselves, but who have been induced to support the league, for the sake of getting a crack at liquor people, because some of them have abused their privileges?

* * * * * * *

Evils We Must Cure.—Second, we may as well admit the fact, and face it squarely, that there is some ground for complaint, and that there are real evils connected with the saloon business which must be overcome. Unless we can get rid of the saloons of disreputable character which resort to disorderly practices, the agitation will continue to grow. This is the most essential and the elementary thing to do. Of course the number of such saloons is exaggerated, but there are still enough of them to cause scandal in most of our cities. However, enough has already been done in the way of correction to be an earnest of the intentions of the brewers, and to show them it is not by any means a hopeless undertaking.

Organization Imperative.—Third, we must ourselves present a solid front to our opponents. Every brewer should join his State Association, and all brewers, of course, ought to be loyal members of their National Organization. These organizations must be thoroughly well equipped, and brought to the highest point of efficiency, so that in intelligence, general character and ability we may completely outshine our professional adversaries, and win the respect and confidence of the thoughtful public.

Fourth, we must prove by our open-mindedness and sincerity that the interest of the brewers and that of the community at large coincide. We must willingly and frankly cooperate with civic organizations and individuals who are trying to study the liquor problem justly and intelligently, with a view to working out some system that may improve conditions.

* * * * * * *

All this spells ORGANIZATION, EQUIPMENT, INTELLIGENCE, EFFICIENCY, and a combination of the resources of the trade, and the best thought and energy that money can buy. I believe sincerely that the brewers have the best argument on their side. I believe that if they will show faith and hope in their own cause, the final outcome of this contest will be a condition of business which will prove a benediction both to the trade and the public.

Will You Now?—In the meantime, it is an expensive undertaking, and the question is whether you will make your investment at this critical time, when it is most needed and will bring about the best results, or whether you will spread it out thin over a period of years, and perhaps fail in the end. A man who is brave and intelligent faces an operation, if it is necessary. A weak or a foolish man staves it off with tonics and palliatives which do not cure the evil, until sometimes the operation itself is too late to save him.

HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

There is also offered in evidence Exhibit No. 119, with reference to the organization and showing the purposes of the Interstate Executive Association, an organization composed of the executive officers, attorneys, and secretaries of all of the State and local associations, for the purpose of coordinating the action of the several organizations.

NEW YORK, July 22, 1909.

Your Committee, to whom was referred the motion of Mr. Fecker and the matters pertaining thereto, and which by subsequent motion was authorized to consider the other matters referred to in the tentative suggestions of Mr. Hugh F. Fox under date of July 9, 1909, herewith beg leave to submit the following report:

First. We recommend that a permanent organization be and hereby is perfected of the executive officers, attorneys and secretaries of the various state and local organizations, and such other officers as may be designated by said various state and local associations; to be known as the INTERSTATE EXECUTIVE ASSOCIATION; that the officers of such Association shall be: President, Vice-president and Secretary; that such officers shall hold their respective offices for a term of one year and until their successors are elected and qualified. And we recommend that John Gardiner of Philadelphia, be elected as President; William C. Manchester of Detroit, Vice-president, and Hugh F. Fox of New York, Secretary. And we further recommend that this Association hold quarterly meetings, at some place to be designated by the Association and that special meetings be called by the President at any time he deems advisable.

The general purpose and object of this Association shall be to interchange ideas, information and literature bearing upon educational and publicity methods, trade problems, campaign management, legislation and such other matters as may be of general interest to the brewing industry. We recommend that the various state associations secure information of the conditions in their various states, as the same may pertain to the liquor traffic and the brewing industry, and the movement for the regulation or prohibition of the same and that such information so obtained be transmitted by each state to every other state association and the headquarters of the U. S. B. A. from time to time as the same is secured, to the end that such state so receiving same may utilize such information in the work in each such state, so far as practicable.

Second. We believe that there should be a closer affiliation between the various state and local organizations and the United States Brewers Association, and that advance information should be sent from the United States Brewers' Association to the various state and local organizations as soon as practicable, to the end that use can be made thereof to the best advantage by the various state and local associations. We also believe that the various state associations should endeavor to secure the admission as members of every brewer within their jurisdictions, first with the state association, and second, with the United States Brewers Association. We do not deem it advisable that a digest of the liquor laws and court decisions of the various states should be compiled by the United States Brewers' Association, but we do recommend that the various state organizations separately compile a digest of their liquor laws and court decisions, and that such compilations be interchanged.

Third. We believe that there is need for a campaign book covering general topics for use in the various states and that such campaign book should be issued annually by the United States Brewers' Association.

Fourth. We believe that beverage advertising would be advantageous to our cause and to the trade as a whole, and we recommend that the President appoint a committee of three or five to thoroughly consider this subject in all its details and devise some plan by which such advertising can be made feasible, and report same at the next meeting of this Association.

Fifth. Campaign management and legislation is largely a matter for each state individually, but we believe in a general outline under the auspices of the National Brewers' Association and in a Speakers' Bureau to be organized along national lines.

Sixth. As to the other matters contained in the tentative suggestions above referred to, we believe that they should be left to an open discussion upon the floor of this meeting and subsequent meetings.

Inasmuch as the majority of the members present are not engaged directly in the brewing business, but are employees of the various state organizations in the capacity of attorneys and secretaries, Mr. Fecker, who made the motion resulting in the appointment of this Committee, has consented to withdraw the same, and your Committee believes that such withdrawal should therefore be assented to.

Respectfully submitted.

NEW YORK, July 23, 1912.

To the Members of the United States Brewers' Association:

GENTLEMEN:

* * * * * * *

Constitution: * * * ARTICLE IV. Provides for nine standing committees, of which the Finance Committee and the Committee on Federal Relations shall be chosen by the Board of Trustees. The other seven standing committees—viz: Advisory Committee, Vigilance Committee, Labor Committee, Publication Committee, Membership Committee, Crop Improvement Committee and Committee on Transportation and Rates—shall each consist of five members, who shall be elected annually at the regular Convention. The Chairman of each of the nine standing committees shall become a member of the Board of Trustees upon his election or appointment. The scope and duties of each committee are carefully defined in Articles 5 to 13 of the By-Laws.

The provision that the Trustees shall not appropriate any money for local or State interests, except by two-thirds of all the members of the U. S. B. A., is eliminated.

ACTIVITIES OF THE UNITED STATES BREWERS' ASSOCIATION.

The Organization Bureau.—This department, which is our fighting field force, is financed by a voluntary fund. It has taken an active part during the past two years in State and local campaigns throughout the country. No less than 46 States and Territories have had the personal service of the Bureau. The statement with regard to the elections of November 8, 1910, which has gone out to our members, indicates the extent of the recent work. There were 27 State campaigns in which we were interested, and we won substantial victories in all except one of them. Surely this speaks for itself.

The Campaign of Education.—During the years of 1909 and 1910, we have distributed over three million pieces of printed matter. We have been sending leaflets and books, at frequent intervals, to a list of three thousand newspapers and periodicals, and to two thousand public libraries and also to the reference libaries and departments of economics and sociology in five hundred colleges and universities. Special studies have been made for us of conditions in Prohibition States, and the "dry" territory in County Option States, which have been worked up into magazine articles. We have employed the best talent to make these investigations, and also to supply us with absolutely accurate data on the social aspects of the liquor problem, in order that no statement might go out from the U. S. Brewers' Association which could be challenged from the standpoint of its accuracy or authority. During the past two years a large number of articles have been published in the principal popular magazines and weeklies, which are the result of this work and have had a marked influence in the education of public sentiment. By these methods, we have won the respect and confidence of the men who are the leaders of thought in this country. The Scientific Societies and professional men in journalism and in the universities are coming to us constantly now for information. We have succeeded in impressing such men with the fact that they can get more material from our office than anywhere else in the country, and that we are actually a central Clearing House of information on everything that is related to the liquor problem and the beer business. Some extent of the campaign may be gained from the fact that our newspaper clipping service brings us in about 15,000 clippings a month. These are examined and those that are of any value filed and indexed. Our Secretary is a member of all of the national societies which have anything to do with public health, political science, social science and economics, criminology, charities and school higiene. The acquaintance thus gained with public men has proved most valuable. We have also been making a thorough study of the tactics of our opponents, and in various ways, which I cannot take time to specify here, have undermined the confidence which contributors and churches have had in them.

Federal Relations.—Our counsel has guarded our interests in the matter of Federal Legislation with most remarkable success. During the last two sessions in Congress over 200 bills adverse to our interest have been introduced, many of which have had the backing of the entire Prohibition and Temperance organizations in this country, including the W. C. T. U. and the National Reform Bureau. Only one measure affecting our interests has passed Congress in this period and that went through with our assent. You can readily imagine what this has meant in winning and keeping friends in the Congressional Districts. It is also literally true that Congress has been kept from doubling the tax on beer by our unaided efforts. These, of course, are confidential matters.

Labor Committee.—The Chairman of our Labor Committee occupies a unique position. He is respected alike by capital and labor, and has been selected as one of the Conciliation Committee of Five of the National Civic Federation, which is called upon in any very great and far-reaching strikes which affect the public, and has also been elected a member of the council of the American Association for Labor Legislation, which is a most important body. We are constantly called upon to advise our members in regard to their contracts and labor difficulties, and in addition have succeeded in solidifying the ranks of labor in the various Prohibition and License campaigns. For example, Fall River and Worcester, Mass., were reclaimed from the "dries" last year by the organization of the labor vote.

Advisory Committee.—The Advisory Committee has conducted a very large correspondence with brewers throughout the country who have asked for information and advice in regard to the label and pure food laws and other technical matters.

New Order of Things.—New Times require new methods. The brewer cannot afford to ignore public sentiment. On the contrary he must educate and influence it. Above all we must present a solid front to our opponents. Membership in the U. S. Brewers' Association as well as in our State and local organizations should be taken by every intelligent brewer as a matter of course. It should be charged to insurance. If we are willing to spend money in insurance to protect our property against fire, accident and all the other hazards of business, why should we not also insure ourselves against the destruction of the business itself. It is absolutely necessary that these organizations, and particularly the U. S. Brewers' Association, should be brought to the highest point of efficiency so that in intelligence, equipment, character and ability we may completely outclass our professional adversaries. We must be able to command the best thought and energy that money can buy. This is the time for us to show by our works that we have faith and hope in our cause.

There is also offered in evidence a skeleton of the reorganization plan.

SKELETON OF REORGANIZATION PLAN.

The various activities of this association naturally group themselves as follows:

(1) Political Organization: This includes State campaigns, Congressional campaigns, the Washington Bureau and the Organization of Voters.

I shall not attempt to deal with this department except to say that it must be organized with a view to getting as much work as possible out of other people. The problem will be how to keep up the interest and activity of affiliated bodies upon whom we must rely, at a minimum cost. (To illustrate: If a central bureau attempted to deal directly with a body of ten million voters, it would cost $200.000 to send out a single letter). Undoubtedly, we shall have to supply organizers who can head these movements nationally and they, in turn, will have to call out the active assistance of our forces in the various states and centers of population.

(2) Education: This includes the whole work of publicity, maintenance of the library, exhibitions and our relations with organizations and individuals engaged in the work of social welfare.

The object of our educational campaign is to develop public sentiment, based upon sound information. The work must be corrective and constructive; that is, it must correct false impressions while the building-up process is going on. No organization in this country is big enough, or rich enough, to reach all the people of the country directly, much less to educate them. Recognizing our natural limitations, we must, first of all, reach and teach the teachers. This includes the colleges, libraries, newspapers, magazines, instructors in economics and physiology, and the men who are the leaders of thought in their communities. With the coming of Woman's Suffrage, this is more than ever necessary. We must supply campaign material on demand, and assist our members and allies in all matters relating to publicity and newspaper work. The scope is enormous, and the value of this department is limited only by the amount of money that the Association can spend upon it.

(3) Labor: The Labor Bureau should have two objects, First, the assistance it can give to our own members in making contracts, adjusting differences and standardizing the cost and conditions of labor. This necessarily means the establishment of a bulletin service, keeping our members informed from week to week of all the news in the field of brewery labor, such as new contracts, new conditions, local difficulties, etc.

In addition to this, the Labor Bureau might be of very great value in our political organization by establishing a permanent working connection with the other labor bodies who make up the American Federation of Labor, and who have any direct or indirect connection with or relation to the liquor industry. There are probably a score of trades and crafts included in this category.

(4) Law: This includes Federal, State, County and Municipal Laws and Ordnances relating to excise and license regulations and judicial decisions thereon: Also Federal and State Laws, Regulations, Standards and Decisions relating to pure food, weights and measures, trade-marks and copyrights, industrial insurance and factory regulations.

(5) Executive Department: The Executive Department should have the general oversight and direction of the work of all the other departments, except the Political Department. In addition to the matters mentioned above it should perform the work initiated by the Membership Committee, the Advisory Committee and the Crop Improvement Committee.

Under the Executive Department should be included the entire clerical staff, consisting of: Membership Clerk, Librarian and Assistant, Stenographers, Filing Clerks, Mailing and Shipping Clerks, Telephone Operator and Office Boy.

This would require a force of about fifteen employees, in addition to the heads of departments, the field staff and the men employed in the Political Department.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20, 1909.

To the Inter-State Executive Association.

GENTLEMEN: With the gradual improvement in the beer business and the great expansion of the trade in bottled beers, there is a more general disposition on the part of brewers to advertise in the newspapers. We have received a number of inquiries recently asking for information as to which papers are fair and reasonable regarding our interests, and which are absolutely antagonistic.

With the change that is taking place in public sentiment, a number of papers that have been inmical to us are now veering round. Of course we must expect that a newspaper will print anything of news value, no matter who is helped or hurt by it, but the fairness of the paper can be easily tested by its editorial utterances and the emphasis which it gives to one view or the other, even in its news columns.

I am writing to ask you to send me, in confidence, a list of the papers in your State that you regard as conspicuously friendly or unfriendly, and shall assume that the papers of any importance that you do not mention may be considered reasonably fair. If you have any papers that refuse to print beer advertisements they should be mentioned.

In any use that may be made of this list, we shall, of course, be very careful not to quote you or anybody connected with our interests, in any way.

Soliciting your co-operation in this important matter I am,

Very truly yours,

HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

DECEMBER 6, 1910.

To the Members of the Interstate Executives' Association.

The Interstate Executives' Association will meet at the office of the Brewers' Exchange, No. 1021 Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill., at 10 o'clock a. m., on Wednesday, December 28th, 1910.

The deliberations will take the character of an experience meeting in connection with the recent campaigns, and a survey of the field of action with a view to the work that is to be done in the near future. It is believed that the meeting will prove particularly valuable, and that there will be a large attendance.

Please let me know if you will be present?

Yours very truly,

HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

JANUARY 18, 1911.

To the Members of the Interstate Executives' Association.

GENTLEMEN: I am sending herewith a list of the members of the Interstate Executives' Association. This is supposed to comprise the principal executive officers and attorneys of all State and local brewers' associations, together with the officers and trustees of the U. S. Brewers' Association and such other persons as may have applied for membership in the Interstate Association, or who by reason of their special activity in the general conduct of affairs should properly be included in our membership.

This Association is organized to collect and exchange information and literature bearing upon educational and publicity methods, trade problems, court decisions, campaign management, legislation and policy in the various States and such other matters as may be of general interest to the brewing industry.

Hitherto all publications of State and local associations have been sent in bulk to my office and mailed to the members of the Association, which has, naturally, involved some delay. At the last meeting of the Interstate Executives' Association it was decided that hereafter such matter should be sent direct by the local association, etc., to each member of the Interstate Executives' Association. The enclosed list will, therefore, constitute your mailing list for this purpose, and your co-operation is urgently requested in the prompt transmission of all information and publications that accord with our object.

If there are any omissions in the list of members, so far as your State is concerned, will you kindly notify me at once? I beg to inform you that at our recent annual election of officers, Mr. Percy Andreae was elected President, Mr. Oscar Schmidt, Vice-President and Mr. H. F. Fox, Secretary, for the ensuing year.

Very truly yours,

HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
Transportation Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: The Atlantic Monthly is going to publish a series of articles on "Alcohol & Society" which will deal with the social, economic, physiological and legislative aspects of the question. Mr. John Koren will have an important part in the matter. Mr. Albert J. Nock will also write several articles.

The British Association for the Advancement of Science has sent a Mr. Florance to this country to investigate industrial accidents, and we have put him in touch with Mr. Koren, who has given him a number of letters to people in Washington and other places. His work is important and he seems to be convinced that there is no close connection between accidents and drink, and he is making a special study of the relation of fatigue to industrial accidents.

Yours very truly,

H. F. FOX, Secretary.

There is also offered in evidence Exhibit No. 148, it being a report of and correspondence with I. T. Martin relative to the meeting of the Anti-Saloon League in Atlantic City, and of her methods of operation as an employee of the United States Brewers' Association.

(The exhibit referred to is here printed in full in the record as follows:)

EXHIBIT No. 148.

[From U. S. B. A. files. I. T. Martin, July 10—15.]

Report of Anti-Saloon League Convention, Atlantic City N J July 6 to 9, 1915.

The official program, enclosed herewith, gives the list of speakers, etc., so that it will not be necessary to refere to same in this report. The fee paid for admission to the convention, includes a printed copy of the convention proceedings, with the addresses of the principal speakers. That will come, as soon as published.

The convention headquarters—Hotel Chalfonte—offered a very meagre exhibit—the usual startling and sensational posters issued by the League, with the various maps and charts. It created practically no attention, was not mentioned in the press. Literature was sold from this booth—nothing was given away. Under separate cover, I am sending samples of the literature distributed.

An admission fee of one dollar was charged all delegates and visitors. The Million Dollar Pier was taken over by the League for the convention, and judging from the crowds, it must have been a financial success.

Miss Cora Frances Stoddard of Boston—the Scientific Temperance "authority," seated among the delegates during the convention, had her pocket picked, and claimed to have lost a watch, as well as a couple of small purses.

Jonathan K Taylor, President of the Provident Trust Company, of Baltimore, gave a check for one thousand dollars to Rev P A Baker, for the work of the Anti-Saloon League.

The publicity booth gave out advertising material for the manufacturers of the National Calendar—Matt Parrott and Sons Company of Waterloo, Iowa. The sample enclosed herewith, shows the names of some of the firms who use the calendar. It seems that many of them should not be interested in the League. The fact that the League distributed quantities of advertising pamphlets for the calendar, shows that the manufacturers must be interested in the League. It was the only thing given free during the entire convention!

Rev. Purley A. Baker, in his opening address, said that the religious end of the liquor fight had been won, and that the anti-drink orders of various railroads and corporations, followed on the "conversion of the churches"; that such orders could not be issued, unless the churches would lend their moral support to the movement.

The Chalfonte Hotel owner, I learned, also owns the Atlantic City Review, and that paper put an Anti-Saloon League worker on the staff, or at least, used his articles to cover the convention, as will be seen by clippings sent in from the Atlantic City Review. That paper contained a page adv. July 5th, announcing the convention, the speakers etc. Current gossip had it that the page was the gift of the paper to the League. It contained the statement that "it takes ten beers to make you drunk; one beer will make you one tenth soused." The Review, on July 5th also editorially welcomed the convention, and announced that the services of Rev. Doctor Robert Arthur Elwood had been secured, to cover the convention.

James R. Mann, leader of the House, was roundly scored by almost every convention speaker, and termed a "liquor employee" in some instances.

Mrs. Florence D. Richard, of Columbus, Ohio, president of the Ohio W. C. T. U., one of the convention speakers, started a terrific outburst of applause, when referring to woman suffrage, she said: "When women walk to the polls, good-bye Mr. Booze."

A plan was announced, to secure prohibition in Hawaii, through Congress, as well as to make Washington, D. C., "dry." The claim was made that saloons in Washington, D. C., had been reduced from 1,200 to 300 and that Washington would soon resemble Russia from the prohibition standpoint.

The League announced its intention to wage war upon all candidates who refuse to pledge themselves to the prohibition movement. This will be done by the formation of bible-classes throughout the country. League officials predicted a membership of 20,000 in such "political bible-classes." The League also expressed its determination to keep on with the fight until liquor was not only barred from the mails, but all liquor advs. of any kind or character.

A few prohibition "thrillers" were thrown upon the screen at a couple of moving picture houses.

A defense of Hobson, for his attack upon the president, or for his suggestion that Wilson become a total abstainer, as against the editorial of criticism published in the New York World, was published in the Atlantic City Press, July 10th.

The Mayor of Westerville, Ohio, called on the Mayor of Atlantic City, and during the interview, the latter official was charged with having said that "with no saloons, you haven't much need for a police force." This was alleged to have been said to J. H. Lorimore, editor of the National Daily, also Mayor of Westerville, Ohio. The Atlantic City Union, July 10, printed this story, but I think I succeeded in keeping it off the wire, the statement sent out, so far as I could learn, only quoting the Atlantic City mayor as saying that arrests for drunkenness had increased since the Anti-Saloon League hosts reached the resort. However, on all sides, I heard it expressed that the Mayor of Atlantic City had furnished the "drys" with a choice bit of publicity material.

FINANCES.

The Anti-Saloon League, following its usual custom, made no public announcement of its funds, except to say that six thousand dollars was subscribed at the Business Men's Lunch, one thousand dollars given by J Taylor, (heretofore referred to); twelve thousand dollars collected by J. Taylor; five hundred dollars for the "Railsplitters Quartet"; thirteen hundred dollars from the hotels (from delegates, for literature, and other sources) and four thousand five hundred dollars, registration fees, a total of twenty five thousand three hundred dollars. Most of this sum was in the form of "pledges," however, and represented a very small amount of real cash!

BUSINESS MEN'S LUNCH.

It was announced that a "Business Men's Lunch," was given at the Rudolph, to map out a way to raise a fund of two million dollars, to wage war on the liquor traffic. Previously, the annual banquet scheduled for the same hotel, had been canceled, on account of the hue and cry raised by the delegates, when they learned that the banquet was to be held in a hotel with a bar attached. Invitations had been sent to business men throughout the country, to attend the luncheon, but it is doubtful if any but Anti-Saloon League officials were in actual attendance. They claimed to have 200 business men present, but that number was not in evidence about the hotel the hour of the luncheon. The invitations were sent out "to consider and promote methods for the elimination of the beverage liquor traffic," and were signed by the following: Governor Arthur Capper, Kansas; William F Cochran, Baltimore; Foster Copeland, President City National Bank, Columbus, Ohio; William M Gordon, of the North Philadelphia Trust Company; John Walton, a manufacturer of Frankford; A. Harbison, of Pittsburg; and Charles L. Huston, of Coatesville; other members of the committee having the matter in charge are: Governor George A. Carlson, of Colorado; B H Fancher of New York City; ex Governor Eugene Foss of Massachusetts; ex Governor Glenn of North Carolina; Henry M Leland of Detroit; Governor Ernest Lister of Washington; ex Governor Mann of Virginia; L B Musgrove, of Birmingham, Alabama; J R Pepper, of Memphis, Tenn; ex Governor Stubbs of Kansas; George D Selby of Portsmouth, Ohio.

The League announced that twenty millionaires were at the luncheon, and that six thousand dollars was subscribed! They claimed that Kellogg of Battle Creek pure food fame was among the number, although other reports had him ill in Alaska. Congressman Mann was attacked again at the dinner and Lynn Haines, Secretary of the National Voters' League said: "James R Mann, so far as I can judge, exerts a wider, a more menacing influence, than any other individual in American politics." Commenting on the delegates to the convention, the Atlantic City Review said that "it is not a prohibition body, it is an abolition movement"; the names of Henry Ford and the DuPont Powder Works were freely used as putting the taboo on liquor for its employees.

Governor Carlson of Colorado gave to woman suffrage, the credit for enacting the State-wide prohibitory law of that State, and blamed the saloon for the Colorado troubles of recent years.

Home Rule, compensation for saloon property and creed prejudice were roundly denounced by almost every speaker at the convention.

Ex Congressman Hobson said that even though he knew it meant political death to him, he intended to give the convention some of the inside secrets of the 1916 Democratic convention; that Wilson plans to be re-nominated, and that he will be supported by Bryan; that the President will write the platform and that he will insert a plank, leaving the question of prohibition entirely to the decision of the States. Hobson also declared that in the fight for national prohibition, the whole influence of the President was used to block the bill.

Rev. Purley Baker, however, made it plain that he did not include President Wilson among the candidates for the Presidency regarded as "friendly to the traffic.' Mr. Baker declared that the message of the convention to the country was:

"Press the battle against the liquor traffic in every town, township, county and State in the Nation, and against every candidate for Congress and the United States Senate who is not in favor of the submission of a joint resolution for national constitutional prohibition; also against any candidate for the Presidency who by sympathy or conduct, past or present, are known to be friendly to the traffic."

Dr. Baker commented rather sarcastically on the fact that "good" business men always gave liberally to churches and charities, but that "big" business men were reluctant to contribute time or labor or money to rid the Nation of the saloon. He said, too, that the cities were against, and the rural districts for prohibition, and that when the business men help finance the fight, a saloonless Nation would result.

It was rumored that Booker Washington did not appear to address convention, because the board walk hotels had refused to accommodate him. The League maintained, that he was "unavoidably detained elsewhere."

THE JOHN L. SULLIVAN EPISODE.

Perhaps the most effective piece of publicity work of the convention was the story of the slight tendered John L. Sullivan at the session of Anti-Saloon League officials, held a day or two prior to the opening of the convention. In discussing and preparing the program, one of the members of the Board referred to the telegram from General Miles, wherein he refused to appear on the same platform with Sullivan. The telegram was read before Baker put the quietus on any further discussion of the matter. Every possible effort was made to suppress the incident at Atlantic City and it might have succeeded, had not the story been sent out on the wire. This was managed as follows:

I had a letter to a city official, from Mr. James R. Nicholson; the city official told me that he knew of two newspaper men who would suppress as much news as possible, covering the convention, and prevent the Catholic Prohibition League from sending out any general publicity matter from Atlantic City, but that the men would have to be "fixed." He told me he knew one to be absolutely reliable, although the other might sell out to the other side, if he was offered any money. I met the first man; knew him, and while he knew my connections with the Association, no mention or comment was made in regard to that fact. I told him that I did not want to interfere with the League, but explained the status of the Catholic Prohibition League; told him that I had interviewed the Catholic pastors of Atlantic City and learned that they had had a meeting the week previous, to discuss the notification of the Bishop of Trenton, that the Catholic Prohibition League had neither asked nor received the sanction of the church authorities, and decided to ignore the convention. I explained the status of the Catholics making up the prohibition organization and asked that the "drys" be confined to facts and not permitted to exploit the Catholic end of the affair. He told me to write out my story, which I did. After he agreed to look after the matter as suggested, I told him I would square it right with him for his time. That evening, he came to the hotel and I paid him. Later, the John L. incident came up, and it cost only twenty-five dollars to give that story country wide publicity. The "drys" made a great fuss over it and put a couple of innocent and unsuspecting newspaper men out of the committee meetings, as they were considered "friends" of the liquor traffic. The man who was doing the real work was never even suspected! I started the story on its way and whoever got hold of John L in New York and had him send in the two caustic telegrams, finished the job perfectly. The telegrams and the entire incident were the one thorn in the side of the "dry" leaders, during the entire convention. The telegrams from John L. read as follows:

"I have no desire to address convention of bigotry and narrow mindedness which holds sway with a pretense of doing good, and which is presided over by an arrogant, prejudiced, self-centered, strutting old Peacock, now in his dotage. I have never been jealous of any fighter. Why should Miles be jealous of me?

Yours for Temperance,

JOHN L. SULLIVAN"

The second message as printed in the Atlantic City Union July 8, is herewith attached, and parts of it should make an interesting leaflet.

The Atlantic City Union July 6, 15 printed the following from copy furnished:

"The Catholic Prohibition League, an organization that is not supported by the Catholic Church but is composed of a number of individuals of that faith who believe in prohibition, held its first session this morning."

Also the following, which appeared in the New York World and other papers from copy prepared at Atlantic City:

"The Rev. John J. Curran, a Roman Catholic priest of Wilkesbarre, Pa., presided at one morning (A S L) meeting. He urged Catholics to take a part in the League's work and closed with an assertion that may start a controversy.

"This league," he said, "is not Protestant nor Catholic; it is not Republican nor Democratic; it is Christian. It is to the credit of Protestants that they belong to it and it is to the discredit of Catholics that they hold aloof."

Nearly every delegate, if not indeed every one, to the Catholic Prohibition League, was given an office as follows:

Rev. John J. Curran, Wilkesbarre, Pa., President.
Rev. J. C. MacErkain, Jersey City, first Vice-President;
Rev. W. P. Hogarty, New Haven, Ky., second " "
Rev. C. P. Baron, Indianapolis, third " "
Major Dan Morgan Smith of Chicago, General Counsel
Rev. George Zurcher, North Evans, N. Y., Treasurer.
James F. Judge of Scranton, Pa., General Secretary
Executive Committee, Chairman, Major Dan Morgan Smith, Chicago
F. L. Campbell, Coatesville, Pa., John P. Cunneen, Chicago, Miss Alice O'Connor, Chicago and A. J Helfer of Minoa, N. Y. F. L. Campbell of Coatesville, a newspaper publisher, was made chairman of publicity committee.

Major Dan Morgan Smith, Miss A. H. O'Connor, Rev. C. P. Baron, and F. L. Campbell were appointed a committee to co-operate with the Anti-Saloon League. The Catholic Prohibitionists passed the following resolution:

"That we, the members of the Catholic Prohibition League of America, now in session, send hearty greetings to our fellow brothers and sisters of the Anti Saloon League of America, now here in convention assembled and pledge our earnest support and co-operation for the total and irrevocable prohibition of the liquor traffic and all the evils for which that wicked business stands."

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION.

The expenses of Miss Alida O'Connor of Chicago were paid by the Anti Saloon League, and it is entirely probable that the expenses of others were borne by the League. While she would not admit being a salaried employee of the Anti Saloon League, Miss O'Connor said she "worked for the League's interests in Chicago, and would work with them in the movement to make Chicago 'dry.'" Miss O'Connor is connected with the Catholic Total Abstinence Union, and looks after subscriptions etc. for the publication of that organization. There is undoubtedly an attempt being made by the Anti Saloon League to use Miss O'Connor for her official connection with the Catholic Total Abstinence Union, which has repeatedly refused to join hands with the prohibition movement in any form.

Some of the Catholic papers, with prohibition leanings, have recently been publishing the story of the Forty-Seventh Annual Convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union in Chicago. Such a convention has not been held, as the annual convention will be held in Pittsburgh early next month. There may have been a meeting of the Chicago branch with which Miss O'Connor is affiliated. The news report of the Chicago "convention" say that the C. T. A. U. has joined forces with the Dry Chicago Federation. I inclose herewith, a copy of the resolutions passed, as well as the list of officers elected at Atlantic City, by the Anti Saloon League. It will be noticed that Rev. J. C. Curran of Wilkesbarre, President of the Catholic Prohibition League, has been placed on the National Board of the Anti Saloon League as one of its Vice Presidents, also, that there is a very decided accent on the "Father" when referring to Rev. J. C. Curran.

I enclose, too, an advertisement for a book "The Fallacy of Prohibition," which appeared in the Atlantic City papers during the convention. The fact that its author was named "Martin" made the situation very delicate for me, especially in those quarters where I was probably criticized for my failure to turn in the minutes, when made secretary at the last convention of the Catholic Prohibitionists. I think, too, the advertisement, most untimely, as no one at the resort would bother reading it, if presented with a copy during the holiday period!

The Anti Saloon League has evidently decided to play the Catholic Prohibition movement for all that it is worth. The organization was in debt to the extent of two hundred dollars, Father Zurcher told me, and he only accepted the office of treasurer with the organization on a solid footing, with no debts. The debt contracted was in connection with the convention, and Campbell of Coatsville presented the amount and I am morally certain that it came from the Anti Saloon League funds.

A plan of persistent campaign in the leading Catholic papers should be started at once, in my opinion, to prevent the Catholic movement from gaining ground. I would suggest using space in the Angelus here, to combat the Catholic Prohibition publicity, which will be well financed, Mr. Campbell pledging five hundred dollars for a start, and agreeing to furnish printed matter without cost.

We could get space in the Angelus for twenty five dollars each week, sufficient to keep abreast of the movement, and the paper has a general circulation throughout the country, particularly in the Sunday schools. I suggest the Angelus because for the present, at least, we can secure reading matter, with no signs of advertising and with no one knowing who is paying for the space.

Unless some decided action is taken to offset the Catholic Prohibition movement, if necessary calling attention to its existence, to the highest church authority, the movement will be very apt to spread as did the Anti Saloon League. While the few now at the head of the movement are looked upon as bordering upon fanatics by church authorities, Father Zurcher, the treasurer notably so, the general public is not aware of this and there are many who would join the organization.

In this connection, one of the officers of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union is the daughter of a Kansas City man who formerly kept a saloon, and still rents his building for saloon purposes, unless a change has been made since I was in Kansas City last. This might be an important point, if any attempt is made to secure the endorsement of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union at its convention next month, by the Catholic Prohibitionists. Father Curran is a former president of that association.

53 HARPER AVENUE, DETROIT, MICHIGAN,
August 15, 1914.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX, New York City.

MY DEAR MR. FOX: Enclosed you will please find my report of the convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union. It is brief, because I knew, of course, that you would only be interested in such phases of the work as might interest the association. You will find in the clippings referred to at the end of the last page of the report, the resolutions passed, officers named, etc. The convention will meet, next year, just before the International Anti-Alcoholic Congress, at Atlantic City. I think before that time, when the Catholic prohibitionists, the C T A U, the Anti-Saloon League, and the various other "dry" organizations, try to get their share of the $40.000 they say the United States will appropriate for expenses of delegates, there will be some fun in the "dry" zone!

You will note how gracefully Father Curran backed down on his Catholic Prohibition Movement, in his statement to the press, and also to the convention, that the organizers "intend to submit the by laws and constitution to the hierarchy and upon their approval or disapproval, final action for or against would be taken." However, Father Curran also told the convention that with "the passive, if not actual consent (of the Church) the plans will be perfected." He made the former statement after he had been practically thrown out of the convention! I think the Catholic prohibition movement will never get any farther than its first conference, particularly if the attention of Cardinal Gibbons is called to the matter. Cardinal Farley, too, would be interested, and when I return to New York, I will make it a point to see Father Carroll, his secretary, with whom I am personally acquainted, and put the literature etc of the organization in his hands.

I am not at all sure that Father Riley, the Paulist priest whom I met at the convention, will not start something of the kind himself. He took all of the literature I gave him, away with him, and I managed to get him a copy of the Anti-Saloon League pamphlet: "Catholic Temperance," with the cartoon of the priest in his robes, his mouth closed by a hand from a whiskey barrel, as he stands in the pulpit.

It was a lucky piece of business that we looked after the C. T. A. U. convention, I think. I do not think there would have been any objection to the prohibition conference in general, had not the attention been called to their literature and resolutions. The delegation would have been given the floor, the good will of the C. T. A. U. though the movement would not have been endorsed, and the fakirs like Mr. Judge of Scranton would have proceeded to make the most of it, in the press. The literature was the only chance we had to start something and I made the best of it. I met Father Riley in the reading room, while the delegates were presenting their financial reports to the convention proper and asked him what he thought of the prohibition movement: learned that he was opposed and that it would not be endorsed and then I asked him what he thought about the literature. When I told him about it, he asked me to have all the facts in his hands early the next morning, and also to get him copies of the literature—the worst of it had been taken from the table at the C. T. A. U. convention. I had the matter in his hands at eight o'clock the following morning, and he made good use of the material. I do not think the literature would otherwise have been noticed at all. Father Curran, Father Zurcher and Mr. Judge were taken by surprise and could make no excuses for the literature, though Father Zurcher did say to one delegate that they (Cardinal Gibbons and Cardinal Farley) were in politics, and so "we treat them like politicians."

The order for the removal of the literature gave us our only chance for press work. I left the room to phone Buffalo, as I knew it was about time for the papers to be on the press. I talked to Mr. Clark of the Buffalo Times, and Mr. Reilly just then came in and took the story over the phone, wrote the headline and gave us splendid location. He told me that if I had been two minutes later, it would have been too late for the afternoon papers, and it would be dead news, of course, the next day. I gave the story also to the other Buffalo papers, the Niagara Falls papers and to the Associated Press and also sent it out myself. I saw the Associated Press man earlier in the day, and he told me they would not give the convention much space, unless it came out for prohibition; when I told him of the order to remove the literature and the adjournment of the meeting when an endorsement of the new movement was asked for, he seemed glad to have the story. There were no reporters present when the trouble started, but I gave the story to all of them. The Associated Press man is a reporter on the Niagara Falls Journal, and he used the story in the local paper as you will note by the clippings. I do not think, however, that the Associated Press took the story, as neither of the Detroit papers made any mention of the meeting at all.

I think I see the results of the article in last week's edition of "The Angelus," in editorials in the "Ave Maria" and "The New World" of Chicago, copies of which I enclose, and I think both would make effective pamphlets, in case the "drys" should use the Catholic prohibition movement to any extent.

I enclose a copy of this week's "Angelus," and have sent 200 copies to you to-day, by express. You will note that my original article was toned down a little, but I think you will agree with me that it is all right, anyway. The editor asked my sister, who took the copy in for me, why I did not take a base ball bat at the movement, and be done with it! The people here have never been able to get any thing into "The Angelus," though the editor has never yet refused to print any copy I offered.

Next week, "The Angelus" will get out a political edition or supplement, and the editor told me today that an article would be ready for me Monday, to approve or re-write, on the general prohibition question. This, in addition to the article which I will send in, covering the recent convention. I will send copies of both articles to you, later.

I enclose my Niagara Falls expense account, and will send copy for Irish World, the Baltimore paper, and the advertisement for the Internal Revenue publication, tomorrow.

I am sorry that my work on the moving picture matter did not meet with your approval. I did not intend the criticism to be anything but a plain statement of facts; if you think you can decide which pictures to reject and which to retain, I am willing to try again, if you want me to do so.

I am sending marked copies of "The Angelus," to the editor of the Philadelphia Public Ledger today.

Very Truly Yours,

I. T. MARTIN.

The Catholic Church and Temperance Editorial.

(The New World, Chicago, August 14, 1914.)

"All reforms must be founded on moral principles. The Church strives first of all to sow in the hearts of individual children her precepts of Christian morality. Time honored wisdom shows that men are not made good by law. For this reason total abstinence in the Catholic Church aims primarily at the good of the individual. In no sense of the word can the Catholic Total Abstinence Society be regarded as a political party. Therefore it will find it very difficult to join hands with the cry of prohibition which, as it is evident to every fair-minded man, has the aim and means of a political party. The Presbyterian general assembly when it advised its members to quit clubs that sold liquor was doubtless quite within its rights and certainly logical in its attitude, but Presbyterian papers which strive to minimize that piece of legislation are certainly not making out a very strong cause for themselves. The virtue of temperance has nothing in common with prohibition. In fact, prohibition is notoriously intemperate. We all know that liquor has been a great evil but the remedying of an evil ought to be not by insincerity and untruth, but by fair dealing and candor."

From Notes and Remarks, The Ave Maria, Notre Dame, Indiana, August 15, 1.

"Zeal unto sobriety," it must be admitted, is not always shown by all the advocates of total abstinence. Some of these worthy persons seem to regard failure to employ their language or to adopt their methods as opposition to themselves and indifference or antagonism to the cause they have so much at heart. But we submit that one may be most thoroughly persuaded of the evils which intemperance has wrought, and most strongly in favor of the restriction of the liquor traffic, without feeling obliged to indulge in indiscriminate censure of all who have any connection with it, or called upon to preach total abstinence from the housetops Any one who has ever, even once, been drunk should be exhorted never again to expose himself to the danger of drunkenness; but it is going too far to say that because some men sometimes get intoxicated no man shall at any time drink anything that intoxicates. This is the error of prohibition.

The best intentioned advocates of the most meritorious cause often defeat their own aims by ill-considered speech and ill-advised action. There is no excuse for becoming intemperate while preaching temperance. A total-abstainer, of all men, should be a man of sober mind and sober methods.

A priest from Dubuque diocese, whose name I could not get, but who said he was the President of the Temperance Societies of the Archdiocese of Dubuque, said he had been a priest for 25 years, and always worked for temperance. Said temperance work in the arch-diocese was flourishing, on account of the example of Archbishop Keane; that where the "head is right, the body is right," and the head of the archdiocese of Dubuque is right on the temperance question. He said he had the permission and authority of Archbishop Keane, to go through the diocese this fall, reorganize all the temperance societies that had disbanded and organize new societies throughout Iowa.

Archbishop Canevin of Philadelphia did not attend the conference, and Archbishop Keane of Dubuque was the principal speaker. He declared, at the opening meeting, that much harm was done the temperance cause by exaggeration. Addressing the delegates at St. Mary's Church Wednesday evening, he told of the great field of temperance work, and said the work must be done through education and through moral suasion. He did refer, however, to a visit to Ireland and another visit to Luxemburg, stating that it was necessary for every man to be a total abstainer, if he wanted to avoid the danger of becoming a drunkard! He said he asked the priest of Luxemburg why his parish had dwindled away to a mere nothing, and was told that the Lutheran neighbors were sober and forged ahead, saving their money and practicing thrift, while the Catholics, not wishing to do away with an old custom, drank beer, and so lost out, financially and otherwise; that the priest hoped to revive the parish, via the temperance route.

It was said at the convention that Bishop Colton of Buffalo is also a total abstainer of tea and coffee!

Rev H T Riley, the Paulist priest of New York, in telling of the work of his branch of the C T A U in that city, said that they were making a quiet crusade against the disorderly saloon, and the saloon known to sell liquor to minors; that when such saloons asked to have licenses renewed, they tried to prevent it; that they worked with the Committee of Fourteen, a "voluntary committee, willing and ready to take complaints or statements of facts, from reliable sources." Father Riley said that his organization had 959 members, 707 women and 250 men, an increase in membership over last year, of 306 women and 75 men. He said that as the Paulists house (on W 59 St) was known as a sort of a temperance center, the priest on duty almost any day in the year, would give the pledge to from 6 to 10 people.

Father Riley explained that during the year, a course of lectures covering a period of about six months, were given by the Paulists, with temperance talks sandwiched in, here and there. Four other temperance talks were given during missions, and Father Chidwick, former chaplain of the Maine, gave a temperance talk for them, that was followed by a reception of 72 members into the C T A U. Father Riley said he had given a talk on "The Press and Total Abstinence, Viewed from Advertisements and Editorials," and that the pledge had been given to about 6000 people last year. Temperance pamphlets, or one temperance pamphlet, was printed by the Paulist Press, and was found in most of the churches of New York, either in the pews or in the racks at the church doors. That demands for this pamphlet and for a "thirst card" issued by the Paulists, came to them from all over the United States and from Canada.

In discussing the Catholic Prohibition Conference, Father Riley said to me:

"I think there is something back of the new movement, probably politics. Mr Judge of Scranton, Pa., I have known a long time, and I believe he is thoroughly honest and sincere. But somewhere, some one is in the background, trying to "work" the Catholic Church into the prohibition movement. I was approached in New York, and asked to lend my name to the call for the conference, and refused to do so. I think if some one got at the record of Father Zurcher and exposed it, that would settle the Catholic Prohibition movement." (Father Zurcher had been suspended, as previously reported, for "intemperate temperance work," and an attack on the Catholic monks. I think Father Zurcher, an old man, is honest and sincere, but childish, if not quite out of his mind.)

"I was going to make a comparison of these Catholic Prohibition delegates," said Father Riley—"these men are honest and sincere, but their minds are exceedingly narrow. They harp on the one subject constantly, until finally they can think of no other. It becomes the sum total of their existence. They come to believe themselves heroic martyrs, until their mind is affected. The comparison I was going to make, is one of insanity. I believe these men are almost insane, at least on that one particular subject, and I think this the greater reason for the immediate suppression of their activities. Such men hurt the temperance work.

"The trouble with the prohibitionist," said Father Riley, "is that he wants to make the priest a policeman. He wants the priest to take mankind by the neck, put him in harness, throw him in a corner, and order him to stand there, with the threat that he will whip him if he don't. We have evidence that Christ drove people out of the Temple, but never into it. He tried moral persuasion, but never used force. The prohibitionists think they can make men good by machinery. They want to say to mankind: 'Stay in the corner where I have placed you; come into the Temple, and be good, or we will whip you.' It can't be done, and the sooner the prohibitionists find out this truth, the better for the sobriety of the nation."

Rev H T Riley, a Paulist priest of New York City, in concluding his address to the delegates of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union Convention at Niagara Falls, said:

"I had scarcely reached the convention headquarters, when my attention was called to the literature distributed the other day by the members of the "Catholic Prohibition Conference," and delegates from that conference are distributing the same literature during this convention. I ask that it be removed from the tables. Such literature is an insult to Catholic Church and people, and is unfair to this organization. Surely when we come here, we do not come, expecting to be insulted."

Father Riley's words were received with continued applause. Many of the delegates hurried to the tables to get samples of the literature, and as soon as the session adjourned, groups of two and three, here and there, were discussing and denouncing the literature. Rev J J Curran of Wilkes Barre, Pa., the delegate of the Prohibition Conference who later addressed the C T A U convention, was surrounded by a group of indignant delegates:

"You are responsible for the sins of Father Zurcher," said one delegate to Father Curran. "You have no right to permit such pamphlets to be circulated in any meeting, masquerading as Catholic."

Father Curran made no reply to the accusations, and none of the three delegates from the Catholic Prohibition Conference present (Father Curran, Father Zurcher, or James F Judge of Scranton, Pa) attempted to reply to the criticism of Father Riley, but let his charge go unchallenged.

It was the intention of the delegates from the Catholic Prohibition Conference, to secure the endorsement of the movement from the Catholic Total Abstinence Union, or failing in that, to ask that the members of the Conference be received as "fraternal delegates" to the C T A U. There was some discussion as to whether or not the delegates be given the privilege of the floor, but Father Curran of Wilkes Barre Pa., was finally given the privilege; he read a paper on "The Prohibition Movement," as per attached copy, and then asked permission to read the resolutions passed by the Catholic Prohibition Conference, and his request was granted. As he concluded reading the resolutions, Father Beane of Pittsburg, was on his feet, with a speech in favor of "any men or set of men," opposed to the liquor interests; he said that while the two organizations could not possibly agree on matters of policy, the hand of fellowship should be extended to them, and he made a motion that the Catholic Prohibition Conference or organization be given the good will of the convention, and that success and "God speed the movement," be given to them. Before Father John G. Beane, Pittsburg, concluded his speech, Father Peter S. Kane of Scranton Pa (the birth place of the Catholic Prohibition movement) was on his feet, with his hand raised, to be sure that he would be the first man recognized by the Chair. Father Kane merely said: "I move that this body adjourn." Instantly, another priest was on his feet to second the motion, and before the "drys" knew what had happened, the meeting was voted adjourned. Some one declared that the meeting was not adjourned, and demanded a roll call of the vote. The women, not delegates, were asked to remain seated, and only delegates vote. A rising vote was taken, and it seemed as though every delegate was on his feet. When those opposed to adjournment were asked to stand, they were so few in numbers, that the Chair announced the meeting adjourned. Father Curran and his two fellow delegates from the Catholic prohibition movement, declared the "convention was with them," but the "enemies" were afraid to let the question of endorsement come to a vote. The question of the offensive literature came up again, but Father Curran made no reply to the many criticisms of the matter. He told me, later, that the action of the convention would not interfere with his plans for the Catholic prohibition movement, just as he had told the convention, at the close of his address earlier in the day, that "no matter what became of the Catholic Prohibition Movement, he would still continue to do, as in the past, all in his power against the liquor traffic and the saloon."

Father Curran told me that he could not understand the action of the Philadelphia North American; that the editor asked him to send in a story of the Catholic Prohibition Conference, and that he sent in a "good one"; and that not a line of it had been printed. Mr. Judge told me he was asked to send 250 words to the Philadelphia Ledger, and also told me that he had sent in the story that appeared in that paper, concerning the prohibition conference. So, the exaggerated figures and absolutely false story of the meeting, published in the Public Ledger, came from Mr. Judge himself!

I talked with Father O Callahan, Pdesident of the C T A U, at St Mary's Rectory, Niagara Falls, and he told me that while he was friendly with anti saloon league officials, he could not directly affiliate with them, and assured me that there was no danger of the C T A U coming out for national prohibition, no matter how much pressure might be brought to bear in the matter. He also told me that the C T A U, being a religious body, could not endorse the Catholic prohibition movement,—a political body—but that any individual member of the C T A U could belong to either organization, and that all had his good will.

Father Scully, the pastor of St Mary's, was evidently disgusted with the Catholic prohibitionists:

"Are you a Catholic?" he said to me; "then you know there is no such thing as a Catholic prohibition movement, and never will be. There are cranks in the Catholic Church, as elsewhere, but they have no right to use the name 'Catholic' in connection with their organizations. Father Scully intimated that the Catholic Prohibition Movement would have a short life. The general opinion, expressed openly at the C T A U convention, was that the action of the C T A U meant the death of the Catholic Prohibtion movement.

Copy of Resolutions passed. See Buffalo Courier clippings, Aug. 14/14. Note approval of the Sec'y Daniels "dry" order. Note the election of officers (Buffalo Courier, Aug. 14/14) and statement of Father Curran, Niagara Falls Journal, August 13/14.

There is also offered in evidence Exhibit 149, it being correspondence between I. T. Martin and officers of the United States Brewers' Association, relative to her activities at the first conference of Catholics, favoring prohibition, at Niagara Falls, N. Y., on August 4 and 5, 1915.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Aug. 4, 1914.

Mr. A. G. HUPFEL, Jr.,
New York City.

MY DEAR MR. HUPFEL: The meeting here was a decided "frost" but it is keeping me busy, and I expect to be busy until midnight, for the speakers do not seem to know when to quit! I had to enroll to be admitted, though I told them I was a journalist and not a prohibitionist. They promptly elected me temporary Secretary when the meeting was called to order! Talk about jokes! They won't get any minutes of the meeting, however, if they are expecting me to supply them.

I am taking chances on the enclosed meeting your approval for this week's edition of "The Angelus," Detroit. I will cover the conference properly in next week's paper, when I have time to write it properly, and after the session is concluded.

Also, I will send in report and suggestions on the Chicago moving picture affair within a day or so—as soon as I can get time to prepare it in detail.

I received the approved copy you sent to me here, and will see the editor of the Buffalo Times after this conference adjourns to-morrow.

Very truly yours,

I. T. MARTIN (signed).

[From U. S. B. A. files.]

The first conference of Catholics favoring prohibition, was held at Niagara Falls, August 4 and 5th., with a handful of delegates in attendance. But nine Catholic men answered the call for the conference, eight of them, the leaders of the movement, and the other, representing a "three day's liquor cure," which he adroitly exploited during his address at the conference. The fact that the Bishop of Buffalo and the Rev. Father Scullen of Niagara Falls declined to attend the conference, threw cold water on the meeting, and may be accountable for the failure of the Catholic people of the Falls to turn out to hear the speakers.

The leaders of the movement will make an effort to perfect a National Prohibition organization, to follow the lines of the Anti-Saloon League. During the conference, a telegram from the Chicago Anti Saloon League, was read as follows: "The Convention of Anti Saloon League Field Workers of Central District, assembled at La Salle Hotel, salute the first convention of Catholic prohibitionists and welcome its constituency into the fight for national prohibition." The telegram was signed by S. E. Nicholson, secretary of the League, and was welcomed by the conference. even though the same Anti-SaloonLeague, through its Texas superintendent, was last week attacking the Catholic Church in that state.

The Presbyterian Church was represented at the Catholic Conference, and Mrs. Anna Helfer of Minoa, New York, told of a prohibition meeting in her town, held in a Methodist Church, and addressed by a Catholic priest, as the local pastor of the Catholic Church would not permit the use of his church for the meeting. She told of organizing the German Catholic children of her town, into a branch of the W C T U and explained that, since the Catholic priest would neither approve the movement, nor permit the organization to be perfected in the church, she was compelled to form the organization in her home. "The Catholic mothers," explained Mrs Helfer, "were willing to have their children join a Protestant organization, as long as I promised to look after them, even though the local priest gave no strength to the movement."

Since she could find no Catholic literature on the prohibition question, she added, she was forced to distribute the literature of the various Protestant sects, to the children.

A copy of "Catholics and Prohibition," edited by Rev Geo Zurcher, and printed in January 1912, was distributed at the conference, the leading article calling attention to the fact that the per capita consumption of liquor in the United States in 1907, was just double what it was when Cardinal Gibbons was elevated to the cardinalate in 1886. The article also called attention to the fact that the venerable Cardinal had attended no convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union, except the one held at Wilkesbarre, Pa. some few years ago. and concluded with the statement that "Great men, like the sun, have spots and blemishes."

It is just such intemperate speeches and the radical attitude exhibited by the handful of zealots at the Niagara Conference, that keeps the Catholic Church turned like a stone wall, against prohibition. As Father Rolé said last Sunday, when preaching at the Church of the Blessed Sacrament: "The Church is opposed to prohibition, because it realizes that to all men has been given the blessings of free will. The man who is bound to make an animal of himself, can not be benefited by a prohibitory law. Character can not be formed by the legislative route, and the Catholic Church stands unalterably for temperance in all things,—temperance in the use of liquor, as well as temperance in speech."

In addressing the Niagara Conference, Chas D McShane of Pittsburg, said that his local pastor told him he would be opposed to prohibition as long as he lived. Other priests and prelates, as well as prominent lay men, were quoted as opposed to the movement, because they considered it strictly a Protestant propaganda, with no leanings or inclinations towards Catholicism.

53 HARPER AVENUE, DETROIT, MICHIGAN, July 15, 1915.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX,
New York City.

MY DEAR MR. FOX: Enclosed herewith, I am sending you a brief report of the Anti-Saloon League convention, with particular reference to the Catholic Prohibition movement. I have arranged for a copy of the complete proceedings, so do not suppose you want to be bothered with more than a brief resume of the more important points.

I am anxious to know how the plan worked—the effort to keep the League from sending out any considerable publicity. I know it worked as far as the Catholic prohibitionists were concerned, and they came prepared to deluge the country with a tale of the "conversion" of the Catholic Church to the great cause of prohibition. I wish you would let me know how much general publicity the entire convention received. I asked that the clippings be sent to me, but they did not come yet.

The Detroit Free Press gave practically no space to the convention. I hope other papers throughout the country gave it like treatment.

I sent out the John L. Sullivan story, or rather arranged for having it sent out, and it created consternation in the "dry" camp. I had a long talk on two or three occasions with a delegate to the Catholic Prohibition convention, and have arranged to keep in touch with their plans for publicity.

I do not know whether you want me to cover the Catholic Total Abstinence Union convention at Pittsburg early next month, and will await your instructions in the matter.

I have sent the story to the Angelus, for publication Saturday, and will express 200 copies to you Saturday. Am also sending you by express today, a package of literature and clippings which I secured at Atlantic City.

I think the action of John L. Sullivan proved a sad loss to the League. The visitors paid no attention to the gathering, but if John L. had appeared, the gate receipts of the League would undoubtedly have increased and that is probably what the League banked on, with Sullivan on the program.

I "arranged" matters with two newspaper men at Atlantic City, and think we could send out almost any important story at any time, in the same manner. Had it not been for the letter from Mr. James Nicholson, this could not have been accomplished and we are really indebted to him a great deal.

I enclose expense account and will appreciate it if you will send me a check at once, as I will need it for publicity bills Saturday.

Very Truly Yours,

T. T. MARTIN.

There is also offered in evidence Exhibit No. 150, it being an unsigned letter written, from the notation written by Mr. Fox, to the members of the committee.

[Interstate Exect. Com.—New.]

DEAR SIRS:

It is of paramount importance, in view of the efforts now being made by the Anti-Saloon League to procure prohibitory legislation nationally on the floor of Congress, that certain systematic work be undertaken by the Inter-State Executives' Committee through its members in each State, with the object of giving those in charge of our joint interests in Washington as full and complete a knowledge of the political complexion of each Congressional district in the United States, with special reference to the sentiment of the component Counties on the wet and dry question, as most of us possess with reference to the political complexion of the Counties and senatorial districts in relation to their representation in our own particular State.

To this end it becomes necessary that our Committee, which has already outlined this work, should be immediately placed in communication with those to whose charge you have entrusted your interests within your State, so that the details of the policy to be pursued may be made known to them, and their attendance at a future meeting of all the active workers in the industry, to be held within the next two months, may be secured.

We urge you to give this your immediate attention, and to see to it personally that your State is represented without fail at that meeting by the person who actively directs or has directed the Anti-Prohibition campaign in your State. The expense involved consists of no more than the traveling expense incurred in attending the meetings of the Inter-State Committee, and we need hardly point out that such expense to your organization is out of proportion small as compared with the importance of the ends that are to be achieved.

We hope, of course, wherever convenient, to see the executives of the various organizations affiliated with the Inter-State Executives Committee themselves attend that Committee's meetings. But our chief object is to have the actual workers in each State in closest touch with the Committee, so that they may form a compact body within the Committee acting with one purpose and along uniform lines that will place our national representatives in the position of commanding at any moment the local knowledge and experience possessed by them and of utilising the concentrated influence which such a body, acting in unison, cannot fail to wield nationally from one end of the country to the other.

Awaiting your prompt action in this matters, I am,

Very truly yours,

HWJ*

(These instructions are for the use of the committee only.)

SUGGESTIONS FOR A LOCAL OPTION CAMPAIGN.

1. First of all conduct your campaign from an educational standpoint, impressing strongly morality before business.
2. Do not antagonize the prohibition party, the newspapers, or the public in general.
3. Do not engage in useless debates through the newspapers. Never make statements that can be successfully contradicted by the opposing party. Use facts, and nothing but facts that you can substantiate. If possible, be friendly with the newspapers, so that if anything presents itself on the subject they may be in a position to honestly say a word in your favor.
4. If necessary to exchange views on the subject with anyone, do not call your opponents fanatics or narrow-minded, but instead make a reply along the line that they may be perfectly honest and sincere in their convictions and mean all right, but point out to them in a reasonable way and show them that they are mistaken.
5. Impress upon the people that local option means prohibition and confiscation of property, and that prohibition does not and will not prohibit.

EXHIBIT No. 153.

METHODS FOR ORGANIZATION.

1. The first step that you should take in the way of organization should be to appoint a committee of five or less from the members of your county liquor association. This committee should have full power to act and conduct the campaign, and it should be thoroughly understood among the men in the business that each individual in the county should follow out the suggestions of this committee and assist the committee in every way possible and not allow any poster or printed matter to be circulated in the county unless sanctioned by the committee.
2. This committee should take active charge of the campaign, but inasmuch as the members of it are engaged in the liquor business they should not appear too prominently before the public.
3. A business men's organization should be formed, and it should work in co-operation with the chairman of the liquor association. In every community there are influential men standing high in business circles, who realize that regulation is better than prohibition, and every effort should be made to get such men to take as active a part as possible in the campaign.
4. Each township should be organized, and in organizing the townships, endeavor to procure the best men possible, men who are of good moral character and high standing in the community. In some townships you can get one such man to look after the entire township, and in other townships it will require four or five such men. And these leaders in the townships should have the help of others who are also of good standing, so that they will be able to get a hearing before any party or audience if necessary.

5. Be sure and have the workers in each township take a complete canvass of their respective townships before registration day, and see that every liberal man is gotten to the polls on registration day for registration if he has not registered, and on election day that every man in favor of our cause is gotten to the polls and votes NO. Do not neglect to attend to this part of the work thoroughly. This is a point that the Anti-Saloon League is strong on, and the only way to offset their work is to do our work more thoroughly than they do theirs.

6. An extremely important feature at the time of election is to instruct every voter how to vote. All those who wish to vote "wet" should vote NO.

7. It is important that you get out instruction slips with the word NO marked in proper column by an X. Also get out skeleton tickets and mail to every voter with a facsimile of the original ballot printed on colored paper.

8. When making use of the daily papers and in your arguments be very careful to use only such articles as give a fair, just and honest version of our cause, and arguments that cannot be contradicted, and, as stated before, never enter into a newspaper controversy, as it is liable to lead to a point where you will alienate friends that you might otherwise retain.

9. It would be well for you to have the business men's organization draft up a good article from the moral standpoint with a protest against prohibition, giving among other reasons that it would be detrimental to the welfare of those concerned to carry local option prohibition, and the condition of the state under prohibition when places were run openly without regulation, and have the members of the business men's organization and other prominent business men sign it. Then mail this circular to voters in your county a few days before election, and, if possible, use a full page in your daily paper the day before election and have this circular printed in full with a complete list of the names attached.

10. You will obtain better results if you will always have your workers come in to see the chairman of the committee in making arrangements, rather than have the chairman go to the party whom you wish to represent you in any part of the county.

11. Get a man in each shop or factory to look after the men in such shop or factory.

12. In procuring the services of an attorney, try to get one, if possible, who has not always been identified with the liquor interests. At the same time assure yourselves, however, that he will earnestly and honestly work for your interests.

13. In making arrangements with your workers in townships, give them to understand that they are solicited through the business men's organization.

14. When possible create a fund from business men and property owners for campaign use. Even if not successful in raising a large fund, the very fact that such people have seen fit to contribute to the cause will have its favorable bearing on the campaign.

15. Above all, never allow the matter to enter into politics.

16. Be sure and see that all printed matter which you circulate bears the union label.

17. These instructions are for the use of the committee only.

LABOR MEETING.

Acting under instructions from the Organization Committee, at which the President and Secretary of the U. S. Brewers' Association were present, I called together representatives of half a dozen labor unions directly concerned at our office in Chicago, and they issued a call to representatives of the following international unions, directly or indirectly concerned in the economic side of our question:

American Flint Glass Workers.
United Brewery Workmen.
United Brotherhood of Carpenters & Joiners.

Int'l. Union of Steam Engineers.
Int'l. " of Carriage & Wagon Makers.
Cigar Makers Int'l. Union.
Int'l. Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen.
Glass Blowers' Ass'n. of U. S.
Int'l. Union of Journeymen Horse-shoers.
Int'l. Ass'n. of Steam & Hot Water Fitters & Helpers of U. S. A.
Hotel & Restaurant Employees' Int'l. Alliance.
Metal Polishers' Int'l. Union.
Coopers' Int'l. Union of N. A.
American Federation of Musicians.
Int'l. Union of Plumbers, Gas Fitters, Steam Fitters, & Steam Fitters' Helpers of U. S.
National Brotherhood of Operative Potters.
Int'l. Brotherhood of Teamsters.
Wood Workers' Int'l. Union of America.

They called a meeting at Cincinnati, which was held on April 28th. At this meeting were present representatives from the Waiters & Bartenders, Cigar Makers, Brewery Workers, Coopers, wood workers, musicians, Glass Blowers, Firemen, Engineers, Teamsters, and Horseshoers Unions, together with Mr. Geo. J. Thompson, our Labor Bureau man, and your manager. They are going to draw up a proposition, which I submit to you, and which can be changed in any way to meet our approval.

The question of the financing of this is a matter that must be settled at once. The Brewery Workers' Union are taking under consideration the question of furnishing half, or at least one-third, of the cost of maintaining the sub-bureau working from this organization to handle the labor end of it.

CHICAGO, ILL., June 1st, 1908.

Mr. JULIUS LIEBMANN,
President, U. S. Brewers' Association,
#109 E. 15th St., New York.

DEAR SIR: Following is report of the Organization Committee of the United States Brewers' Association, as appointed by you under resolution of last annual convention.

The Bureau was organized November 1st, 1907, by the appointment of Mr. John A. McDermott, of St. Paul, Minn., as Manager. Mr. Phil. A. Grau, of Milwaukee, Wis., was appointed as assistant organizer January 1st, 1908, Mr. W. F. Schad, of El Reno, Oklahoma, as assistant organizer February 1st, 1908, and Mr. Edward R. Diederich, of Chicago, Ill., as assistant organizer March 9th, 1908. In addition to the above, we have appointed Mr. Geo. J. Thompson of Chicago as special worker among the labor unions, and the Honorable Geo. W. Peck of Wisconsin as a special writer.

Permanent headquarters of the Organization Bureau were established in the Schiller Bldg., Chicago, Ill., December 1st, 1907.

Since the organization of the Bureau, thirty-six out of the forty-six States of the Union have been visited by representatives of our Bureau. Representatives have been at 14 of the State Brewers' Conventions.

Manufacturers and Dealers Clubs of the Allied Industries are in active working order in Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Boston, St. Louis, Detroit, New Orleans, Omaha, Milwaukee, Louisville, St. Joseph, Mo., Kansas City, Mo., Sedalia, Mo., Peoria, Ill., Burlington, Dubuque and Davenport, Iowa, and Wheeling and Huntington, W. Va., and also M. & D. Clubs in Indiana, New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania, which are State associations.

Traveling Men's Liberty Leagues and Personal Liberty Leagues have been organized and are in working order in Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Louisiana, Ohio, Wisconsin, and New York.

In the State of Florida, the business men have organized an association called the Mercantile Protective Association of the State of Florida, with headquarters at Jacksonville, Florida, and in Washington, D. C., the business men's association is called the Washington Mercantile Association.

Preliminary organizations are in existence in St. Paul, Duluth, and a number of other cities. Traveling Men's Liberty Leagues will be formed in Missouri and a number of other states in the course of the next few months.

We have not been very active in organization work in some of the states because of the fact that they have strong state brewers' associations well able to handle conditions, but we have devoted a good deal of attention to states where the organizations are weak or where they have no organizations, and especially in the southern states.

We have organized State Brewers' Associations in Nebraska Michigan and Louisiana, and a joint organization in Colorado of the brewers and wholesale liquor dealers, and practically every state in the Union will be visited before the end of the year and organization work done in all of them.

The United States Maltsters' Associations have been visited and are working in harmony with us. The barley dealers of the Boards of Trade of Chicago, Milwaukee and Minneapolis have been visited and are helping us in the movement by moral and financial aid.

We have helped state campaigns in Florida and North Carolina, and also local campaigns. Through the work of the Organization Bureau publicity of a good character has been secured in a number of the large cities in the United States through open meetings of Manufacturers and Dealers Clubs and Liberty Leagues, and co-operation of the business men has been effected, so that the education of the business men of the country on this question has been started.

The Manager of our Bureau attended the Southern Brewers' Convention at New Orleans, La., on February 29th, 1908, in company with officers of the U. S. Association, at which conditions in the south were thoroughly discussed. It is our opinion that a hard and energetic fight should be put up in all of the southern states to hold the, if possible, against the present agitation, and if same is stopped there, it is bound to have its effect on the balance of the country.

The Hon. Geo. W. Peck, of Milwaukee, Wis., was engaged as a special writer for the Bureau on April 1st, 1908. He has just returned from a trip through the southern states, and Oklahoma and Kansas, where he has been studying prohibition conditions, and writing a series of weekly letters on the conditions, which are being published in seventy-eight of the leading Sunday newspapers all over the United States, and are also appearing in a number of the trade papers and journals. He visited Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma, and Kansas on his trip, writing a letter governing the conditions in each state.

It is recognized by the trade in general and by our Committee that we need the support of the laboring classes in our campaign, and along those lines, we secured the services of Mr. Geo. J. Thompson, formerly connected with the International Cigar Makers' Union, who has been doing very valuable work for us in Nebraska, Florida and North Carolina. At his suggestion we called a meeting of the representatives of the international unions most directly and indirectly interested at Cincinnati, at the Hotel Savoy, on April 28th, 1908, at which time the question of forming as an adjunct to our Bureau a Union Labor Bureau, to take up the question of thoroughly organizing and educating their different unions and trade journals as to what prohibition would mean to the laboring men of the U. S., was discussed. This matter is in its preliminary stages, and we are not committed to the proposition, and it is one that the Association should pass on.

CHICAGO, ILL., November 7th, 1908.

REPORT OF ORGANIZATION BUREAU, U. S. BREWERS' ASS'N. By Mr. JOHN A. McDERMOTT, Manager.

ALABAMA.

At the time our Bureau was organized the statutory prohibition bill had passed in Alabama and nothing has been done so far towards repealing or amending it except that Mr. J. A. McDermott, the Manager of our Bureau, has an engagement to go to Birmingham to meet a gentleman who will have something to say about the administration of the state in the next two years

ARKANSAS.

The fight in Arkansas has been handled by the St. Louis brewers and handled very well. State Prohibition will be defeated in the Legislature the coming winter and in the county option elections in October we gained two counties.

CALIFORNIA.

One of our representatives, Mr. Phil. A. Grau, visited California and has made a thorough report on conditions there. The trade in that state are becoming thoroughly aroused on the prohibition movement and all the wine growers have formed a strong state association under the leadership of Mr. A. Sparboro. California we regard as one of the safest states in the Union on account of its wine growing industry.

COLORADO.

We assisted in the formation of the Colorado Brewers and Wholesale Liquor Dealers Association, and also had Mr. Geo. J. Thompson, of our Labor Bureau, consult with the union labor leaders, and at the municipal elections held in the spring we held our own. A fight will be made for county option at the coming session of the Legislature, but the bill will not be passed, as the Legislature and state administration elected at the general election are favorable to us.

CONNECTICUT.

We assisted, by advice, in the organization of the Connecticut State Brewers' Association, of which Mr. Kendall is President and Mr. Orr, Secretary, and in the municipal elections held this fall for license we gained two towns.

DELAWARE.

As yet we have done nothing in Delaware, as the elections were held before the Bureau was started, but Mr. John G. Hartmann of Hartmann & Fehrenbach Brg. Co. of Wilmington is anxious that we organize a Manufacturers and Dealers Club in that state as soon as possible.

FLORIDA.

In the State of Florida state wide prohibition was made the main issue at the primaries for the nomination of state officers and Legislature held in June. Through the efforts of this Bureau a strong organization was built up in the State of Florida, headed by Hon. H. H. Buckmann, of Jacksonville, Fla., State Senator and Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, and as a result of this organization's work a liberal candidate for Governor and the majority of the State Senate were nominated and have just been elected at the general election against state prohibition.

We made several trips to Florida, and Mr. Geo. J. Thompson, of our Labor Bureau, did very effective work in swinging the entire union labor vote of the state towards the liberal side. The parties in charge of the campaign in Florida give us entire credit for having held that state "wet."

GEORGIA.

At the primaries held in June our interests were active in the defeat of Governor Hoke Smith for re-election, and Mr. Reed Carradine, assistant to Mr. Fox in the Publicity Bureau, did very effective work in a publicity way in the Georgia campaign. The brewers of Georgia, assisted by our Association and the wholesale liquor dealers, are formulating plans for the next meeting of the Legislature, which we think can be carried through, to make Georgia a "wet" state.

IDAHO.

County Option has been made the main issue in the Republican platform in that state, but in the general election just held we won the Senate by one vote and the House split even. We assisted in the organization of the Idaho State Brewers' Association, who were called on by Mr. Grau, and Mr. Thompson made a trip to the state and succeeded in interesting the union labor leaders all over the state, but it is still one of the states that considerable work is necessary to be done in on account of its extreme length.

ILLINOIS.

In the State of Illinois our Bureau has been active, and organized a Traveling Men's Liberty League, which was afterwards merged into the Liberal League of the United Societies. The Manufacturers and Dealers Club, which was ordinarily a trade organization, became active in the work against the prohibition movement at our suggestion, and through their Publicity Committee, consisting of Messrs. Cooper Lyon, H. C. Davenport and George Turner, they have carried on a strong and active campaign in the way of posters, circulars, arguments, etc., and have started a paper called "The Farmers and Manufacturers Alliance" with a large circulation.

We have worked in conjunction with the Illinois State Brewers' Association and local brewers' associations and in the election of members of Legislature a joint committee from the Illinois Brewers and the Distillers' Associations handled the matter, of which our Manager, Mr. McDermott, was a member, and the Legislature is strictly opposed to county option and may possibly amend the present township and local option law on the books. The present township and local option law is a very unfair one and was the cause of many cities and villages located in the townships going "dry" at the last spring elections held in this state.

INDIANA.

We attended the meeting of the Indiana State Brewers' Ass'n. in 1907, at which time we took up the question of organization. They believed at that time they were safe and asked that we do no work in that state until called upon. In September we were called on to organize a Manufacturers and Dealers Association, which we did, composed of fifty of the leading allied trades firms, with Mr. Phil. A. Rappaport as Secretary. As the Republican party declared for County Option and the Democratic party for village and town option our interests united in the support of the Democratic ticket for Governor and Legislature. Governor Hanley seized this opportunity to call a special session of the Legislature and forced the County Option bill through. We were called into conference with Mr. Albert Lieber, President of the Indiana State Brewers' Association, Mr. John Bell, their Attorney, and Mr. Thomas Taggart, and we furnished Mr. George J. Thompson for two weeks to work on the union labor proposition in that state; arranged through Mr. Thompson to have Mr. Gompers make a special trip through that state, secured the support of all of the officers of the State Federation of Labor, and sent Governor Peck in that state for one month at the disposal of their state committee, and Mayor Rose of Milwaukee for one week.

The Manager of our Organization Bureau, Mr. McDermott, also assisted in the formation of the Liberal League of Indiana, which now has a membership of three thousand paid members in the large cities of the state, and which is going to take up active work of organization in the state towards making a fight against county option elections.

IOWA.

We have attended several meetings of the Iowa State Brewers' Association, and have organized a Traveling Men's Liberty League for the state of Iowa at Des Moines, composed of five hundred members, which, however, has not been active because of the fact that their officers are not awake. We have also organized Manufacturers and Merchants Associations in Dubuque and Burlington, and have formed preliminary organizations in half a dozen of the other large cities. The Iowa Legislature is in good shape on matters affecting our interests.

KANSAS.

We have laid preliminary plans for the work of reclaiming Kansas, which will take a year or two to carry out, but we will keep in thorough touch with the situation.

KENTUCKY.

We attended a meeting of the Kentucky Brewers' Association in November, 1907, and in April, 1908, we organized a large Manufacturers and Business Men's Association composed of five hundred of the best business men of Louisville in a public mass meeting, and since then we have assisted in the formation of the Civic Liberty League, and at a large mass meeting of the League held on October 24th, 1908, we furnished the speakers, consisting of Ex-Governor Peck of Wisconsin, Rabbi Samuel Sale of St. Louis and Clarence Darrow of Chicago. The meeting was a grand success and has had its effect in southern Indiana as well as in Kentucky.

The situation in Kentucky is much improved over a year ago, especially with the defeat of Ex-Governor Beckham for the Senate, and through the elegant work of the Kentucky Brewers' Association led by their efficient Secretary, Mr. Chas. D. Goepper, and the active work of Mr. Frank Fehr, of the Frank Fehr Brewing Co., Louisville.

Louisville.—At the request of Mr. Lawrence Fabacher of the Board of Trustees, we sent to the state of Louisiana Mr. W. F. Schad, and ourselves organized the brewers into an association, and also the wholesale liquor dealers and they are working together as a state association. They opened up the Southern Intelligence Bureau, under the management of Mr. Sidney Story, who, however, has since resigned. We also organized a Liberty League for the State of Louisiana and a Manufacturers and Dealers Association, and secured the speakers for their large mass meeting which was held April 2nd, 1908.

The bill for state prohibition was beaten in both Houses of the Legislature and a license bill with new forms of regulation and restriction was passed through the efforts of our people, and the state administration is also liberal in tendencies. Our idea is that the Southern Intelligence Bureau should be continued to look after the parish elections and carry on educational work, as the danger is not over in Louisiana by any means.

MAINE.

The conditions in Maine were investigated by Mr. Miller of Philadelphia, at the request of Mr. Gardiner, and while none of our Bureau did any work in Maine, with the exception of Governor Peck, who made a visit there, their vote at the state election showed that if it were not presidential year Maine would have voted for re-submission. Our opinion is that plans of organization should be carried out in Maine and active work should be started immediately for re-submission in two years.

MARYLAND.

The County Local Option Bill was killed in the Legislature through the active and efficient work of our interests under the leadership of Mr. Robert Crain, General Counsel. We were not called on in the Maryland situation, although Mr. Gottlieb has since asked that as soon as possible arrangements be made for the establishment of a permanent Manufacturers and Business Men's Association.

MASSACHUSETTS.

The Manager of our Bureau attended the meeting of the New England Brewers' Association, and would say that as constituted at present this Association does not amount to much. We think that the suggestion made by some of the brewers that permanent state organizations with an efficient secretary and publicity man be formed is a very good one, and we also wish to say that we think considerable work is necessary to be done in Massachusetts, such as reclaiming Worcester and holding Fall River, and an amendment to the present law secured if possible. In our opinion, Massachusetts is one of the states that is going to be attacked by the Anti-Saloon League next year. A preliminary Manufacturers and Dealers Club was formed at Boston, which, however, has not amounted to anything.

MICHIGAN.

We organized the brewers of Michigan in January, 1908, into a permanent association, called the Michigan State Brewers' Association, with Mr. J. J. Hoch as President, and they have selected an able and efficient attorney, Mr. Wm. C. Manchester, as Secretary. This Association has done good work in the Legislature and state elections, but were not thoroughly aroused in the Local Option Elections last spring, with the result that eleven out of the fourteen counties that voted went "dry." We also organized the Manufacturers and Dealers Club of Detroit, containing two hundred of the leading business men of the city, and under the leadership of Mr. Harry Rickel it has done very efficient work. The Michigan Liberty League was also organized, which now has a membership of several thousand, and under the leadership of Mr. Allen Cox has done very good work. Our opinion is that Michigan to-day is one of the most dangerous states in the Union, and as something like thirty-five county option elections will be called for this coming spring we recommend that a special meeting of the Michigan State Brewers' Association be called looking towards the establishment of a permanent publicity bureau to handle the county option elections in that state, otherwise the state will be half dry in a year.

MINNESOTA.

We organized a Traveling Men's Liberty League in Minnesota in December, which has done very efficient work in the campaign for Members of the Legislature and Governorship at the general election just held. We have attended several meetings of the Minnesota State Brewers' Association, which Association, under the able leadership of Mr. Wm. Hamm as President and Mr. F. W. Zollman as Secretary, has handled the situation in Minnesota in such shape that at the general election just held county option was decisively beaten by a vote of two to one in both the Senate and the House.

MISSISSIPPI.

Mississippi passed a statutary prohibition law in February and we were not called on to do any work in that state, and in our opinion it will be useless to attempt to do anything there for at least two years.

MISSOURI.

We attended a meeting of the Missouri State Brewers' Ass'n. and urged on them the necessity of organization, especially of the business men, and we organized the St. Louis Manufacturers and Merchants' Association, composed of three hundred of the leading business firms of that city. This Association held a large public meeting on February 25th, 1908, which resulted in a vast amount of publicity and in the creation of public sentiment in our favor. This business men's association has been of immense value to the trade in Missouri and in the local option elections held throughout the state. Preliminary meetings for the organization of Manufacturers and Merchants' Associations have been held in St. Joe and Kansas City, but active work has not yet been undertaken by these clubs, but should be carried on to successful conclusion.

MONTANA.

Our representative, Mr. Phil. A. Grau, called on the Montana brewers and they stated that they had the situation in their state well in hand. Montana has county option at present but expect to have no trouble with the Legislature in the coming year.

NEBRASKA.

We organized the Merchants and Manufacturers Association in Omaha in January and they selected a paid secretary in the person of Mr. J. B. Haynes, who has done very effective organization and publicity work throughout Nebraska. We also assisted in the formation of the Personal Liberty League for the entire state of Nebraska, with headquarters at Omaha, which did very effective work in the legislative elections.

We also attended the meeting of the State Brewers' Ass'n. and thoroughly discussed the situation with the officers and members of the Nebraska Association, and the results of the general election just held in Nebraska are very satisfactory to our people. County Option was the issue in the Legislative elections and has been buried very effectively. The Legislature, as it will be constituted, when it meets, is absolutely opposed to County Option.

NEW JERSEY.

The question of Local Option was one of the main issues in the legislative elections in New Jersey at the late general election and returns show that the Local Option candidates were decisively defeated.

NEW YORK.

We attended the meeting of the New York State Brewers' Association and organized the Manufacturers and Dealers Club of New York, but have not been called on for any work in New York, as the situation is well in hand in that state, being handled by the New York State Brewers' Association.

NORTH CAROLINA.

At the elections in North Carolina on May 26th, our Bureau, including Messrs. Grau, Thompson and myself, assisted the business men's organization in that state, but the odds were all against us, and the results of same are well known. The politicians of the Democratic party who were with us said this would be bound to have its affect on the fall election. This prophesy has come true in the fact that the Republicans have gained thirty members in the Legislature and three members in the House. Hon. S. B. Adams, Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, said that if the Legislature was Republican a repeal of the law might be effected.

The North Carolina situation should be looked after and plans should be laid for reclaiming that state.

OHIO.

The election of Judson Harmon for Governor over Andrew Harris in the late general election was the result of months of organized effort on the part of all our interests and of the Ohio Personal Liberty League, assisted by the State Brewers' Association, and the Manufacturers and Dealers Clubs of Cleveland and Cincinnati. Our Manager attended the meeting of the State Brewers' Association of Ohio in October one year ago and also this year. We organized the two Manufacturers and Dealers Clubs mentioned above and also organized the Ohio Traveling Men's Liberty League, which was merged into the Personal Liberty League of Ohio as now constituted and sent into that state Mr. Phil. A. Grau, our ablest speaker, who rendered good service for the past month under the auspices of the Personal Liberty League. The result in Ohio is very gratifying because of the fact that it marks the collapse of the Anti-Saloon League as a factor in Ohio politics and in spite of the fact that the counties are going "dry" if concentrated efforts are made on the others a number of them will be held in the elections to ensue, and with a liberal Legislature an amendment to the law should be passed.

OKLAHOMA.

Mr. W. F. Schad of our Bureau made a trip to Oklahoma and thoroughly investigated conditions and found out that prohibition was a failure and that the business men of the state are ready for a change. It is not advisable, however, to attempt to do anything in that state for two years. The Sons of Washington, a liberal organization, are now starting to organize the state and have asked us for assistance, which is a matter that the Association should take up.

OREGON.

Mr. Phil. A. Grau made extensive investigations of conditions in Oregon and found them very discouraging. There seems to be no life in the Brewers' Association in that state, and 22 out of the 33 counties in the state are "dry." Unless something in the way of organization, publicity and education of the people in Oregon is started at once, our opinion is that Oregon will be dry inside of two years.

PENNSYLVANIA.

We assisted in the formation of the Manufacturers and Dealers Association in Philadelphia for the state of Pennsylvania, which has done very effective work, under the guidance of the Pennsylvania State Brewers Association and their able President, Mr. John Gardiner. Outside of that we have done no work in Pennsylvania, nor have we been called on for any.

RHODE ISLAND.

The Supreme Court held that under the present license law a general election was necessary every year on the question of license or no license and under this decision a general license election was held for the entire state on November 3rd. Accompanied by Mr. Thompson our Manager, Mr. McDermott, spent ten days in the state of Rhode Island assisting the R. I. Brewers and Wholesale Liquor Dealers Association in making the fight. The results were very satisfactory and were accomplished by the effective work of their trades associations and their publicity man, Mr. Steele. In spite of the fact that the Anti-Saloon League claimed to be going to carry a great many towns we held all that were "wet" and gained seven of the "dry" towns, and the total license vote in our favor was about twenty thousand.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

We have not been called on for any work in the State of South Carolina nor have we gone into that state, but indications are that something should be done in that state at once, as our opinion is that the Anti-Saloon League are going to try to pass statutory prohibition in that state.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Under the Initiative and Referendum a general election was called for November 3rd for a county option law, to be voted on all over the state. The three small breweries doing business in the state formed an Association with the shipping brewers, headed by Mr. Wm. Hamm of St. Paul, and on the death of the manager of the campaign selected our Bureau was put in charge of the fight, with the result that after three month's work we sustained a great victory, defeating county option by seven thousand majority and if it were not for the fact that the ballot was a blanket ballot with other questions on it, we would have had a majority of ten thousand. Credit for the winning of the South Dakota fight should go to Mr. E. R. Diederich of our Bureau, who had practical charge of the campaign under the direction of Mr. Hamm, Mr. Zollman, and Mr. J. A. McDermott, Manager of our Bureau. Mr. Diederich was ably assisted by Mr. W. F. Schad and Mr. Geo. J. Thompson of our Labor Bureau.

TENNESSEE.

At their primary held on June 20th, Governor M. R. Patterson was renominated and has just been re-elected. He was opposed by the Hon. E. S. Carmack, the candidate of the Anti-Saloon League, who had declared for state wide prohibition. We assisted Mr. Patterson in every way possible, through union labor circles, by work of Mr. Schad and Mr. Thompson, through business men's associations, and other assistance furnished by the Association. Mr. Patterson was victorious but the Legislature that is elected is still in doubt, but we think it will be opposed to state wide prohibition. Very effective work in the Tennessee campaign was done by the Tennessee Brewers' Association and the Wholesale Liquor Dealers Association, and by Mr. Chas. M. Lewis of the National Distillers' Association.

TEXAS.

Under the present law as constituted, the Democratic party voted at their primaries by a slight majority of the votes counted for a bill to be passed by the Legislature submitting a constitutional amendment in favor of state wide prohibition. The question now at issue is whether the Legislature will pass it or not. The state Senate is supposed to be Anti-prohibition. The fight was fought under the management of Mr. J. L. Wortham, of Dallas, Texas, a high grade business man, who was assisted by the Texas Brewers' Association, and Mr. Geo. J. Thompson of our Labor Bureau did some very effective work on the union labor and farmers' unions end of the fight. Had we been called into the fight a month or two in advance we feel that we could have won in the state of Texas. Since the primary elections a general convention has been called of all of the business men in the state opposed to state wide prohibition. They have elected Hon. J. F. Wolters as Chairman of their Executive Committee, and they wish to have a meeting with our Bureau and the brewers doing business in Texas, and also the Texas Brewers' Association, to take up the matter in detail.

UTAH.

The question at issue in the state of Utah at the general election was for a law in favor of local option, which was declared for by the Republican party, and which our people have modified into a local option law. The Utah brewers and wholesale liquor dealers have formed a state association, and Mr. Geo. J. Thompson of our Bureau did some work among the retailers and labor unions in that state, and they feel that they are safe in spite of the declaration of the Mormon Church on this question.

VERMONT.

The question did not enter into the general election in Vermont, but our reports are to the effect that the Anti-Saloon League in that state will try to pass a county option bill at the coming session of the Legislature.

WASHINGTON.

Mr. Phil. A. Grau of our Bureau visited Washington and called on the brewers of the state and met the officers of their association. They expect to have a local option bill passed at the coming session of the Legislature but do not look for anything more than village and township local option. They refused to take up the question of the organization of a business men's association or Liberty League and are depending entirely upon political work.

WEST VIRGINIA.

The result of the general election in West Virginia is not decided as yet. A bill for the submission of a constitutional amendment was defeated by one vote at the last session of the Legislature and inquiries are: "With the election of Republican Governor and Legislature what question will come up at this session of the Legislature?" Mr. E. R. Diederich of our Bureau organized a strong business men's association at Wheeling, W. Va., and also at Huntington, and both are doing good work and will do better as the time for legislative work comes on.

WISCONSIN.

We attended the meeting of the Wisconsin Brewers' Association last December and organized the Wisconsin Liberty League on January 1st, and also the Manufacturers and Dealers Club of Milwaukee, and all of these organizations have done very good work. The Executive Committee of the Wisconsin Brewers' Association, assisted by their general counsel, Mr. W. H. Austin, succeeded in thoroughly defeating the county option candidate at the general election and the German-American Alliance of this state also did effective work.

The work of th's Bureau during the past year has not been devoted to a campaign for membership, but has been devoted to a campaign of organizating and arousing the trade and the business men of the country to the dangers that confront them in the prohibition movement, and as the question that has been asked us in the soliciting of members is: "What has the United States Brewers' Association done to help us?" We now feel in a position to go before the brewers of the United States and show the result of the work that has been accomplished in the past year, and in conjunction with plans to be formulated by our Secretary, Mr. Hugh F. Fox a consistent campaign for membership will be entered upon, and every brewer in the United States should become a member of the National Association.

Among other things that the Bureau has accomplished in the past year is the solidifying of un'on labor in the United States in our cause. The manager of our Bureau, Mr. McDermott, has had several conferences with Mr. Gompers and other officers of the A. F. of L., and while they do not want this matter to come up in a national way they are all willing to help us, and this part of the work of the Bureau has been ably and efficiently handled by our Mr. Geo. J. Thompson.

While we have not done any work in our Bureau towards any publicity we have assisted in the same by the fact of our public meeting of our business men's associations, which has been obtained through regular sources and has been of immense benefit.

There are always a number of other matters constantly coming up in the work and we are called into conference with the officers of the Association, with Mr. Brand and the members of our Committee which can not be reported on in detail. The hotel keepers of the United States are commencing to awaken to this proposition and we have been the means of getting several articles in through our work with the different hotel keepers and members of their associations.

Respectfully submitted.

(Signed) JOHN A. MCDERMOTT.

There are offered in evidence also exhibits from 167 to 421, they being correspondence between Percy Andreae and Joseph Keller of the German-American Alliance, relating to the activities of the German-American Alliance, and to the financing of the organization work of that alliance by the National Association of Commerce and Labor with the money of the United States Brewers' Association and the Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association.

DEAR MR. ANDREAE. Confirming your favor of to day, I wish to state, that I will be in Chicago on Thursday Jan. 15.

I cannot come on the 13, as on that date a mass meeting of the delegates of all our societies will take place here.

Regarding the letter of Mr. Proebstle. You will readily understand, that the Headquarters of our National Alliance will not be moved from Philadelphia to Indianapolis, but, that only the National bureau of Organisation and Publication will have its seat in the latter city, where I happen to live. To close, and to an intimate relationship with the said bureau in Cincinnaty would not be the proper and wise thing for our alliance. I will have Mr. Moersch come to Chicago, and the Iowa and Texas plans will then be fully mapped out. We believe, we have found the right man in Chicago, to do work for us in Iowa.

Wishing you a good journey

INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA; February 6, 1914.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE
Chicago.

DEAR MR. ANDREAE, Mr. P. T. Barth returned early this morning from a trip to Burlington, to see me in a matter, I now lay before you, asking you, to kindly consider this confidentially. I first sent Mr. Barth with a letter of introduction to Dr. Ed. L. Durand, President of the Iowa Alliance, in which I offered him my assistance in building up his organization, asking him of his advice, kind help and co-operation etc. Dr. Durand at once told Mr. Barth, that the Alliance of Iowa was assisted annually by the brewers of that state to the amount of 3000 to 4000 dollars and that Mr. Henry Thuenen jr. of Davenport had advised him that from on, he would have to look to the National Alliance for help. Dr. Durand is now trying to perfect a district or congressional organization, putting one man in each district, which I consider a good plan, if the right man is put in the right place. Mr. Barth will be a close observer and I will look over the territory myself in time. I have sent literature to every city, town and hamlet in Iowa, with the exception of the Catholic congregations which Mr. Barth will visit in person. He will mail me a list of all those priests and societies which he called upon and who are friendly to our cause and then an appeal will be made to them from this buro. I will explain to you later why we are doing this. Now, will you be kind enough and tell me if the amount that Dr. Durand mentioned is correct, so that I will know where I stand and how far I can go? You are aware of the fact, Mr. Andreae, that it is absolutely necessary that I have the help and good will of the Iowa organization, if our work should prove a success. I have sent word to Dr. Durand, that he should not be uneasy and that he would be taken care of.

I write you this, that you will absolutely understand the situation.

Very truly yours,

JOS. KELLER.

INDIANAPOLIS, 27 March, 1914.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
3357 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago.

DEAR MR. ANDREAE: I returned from my trip yesterday, and I originally intended to stop off at Chicago, to see you; but I contracted a severe cold in Iowa and of course took the first train I could get out of Chicago. I am more than pleased with the outlook, and the enthusiasm, that prevailed all through the meeting. Every district of the state was represented, and with no exception, every man understands the gravity of the situation, and will do his utmost in his district to line up his men for the coming election.

The "liberale Buergerbund" of Sioux City since joined the Alliance, also 2 new societies of Davenport, and the Turngemeinde of Burlington. The State Alliance has subscribed for 50 copies of the "national Mittellungen," and will immediately start with the publication of a monthly paper in both languages. Dr. Durand will edit the German part, and Mr. H. Miller of Waterloo the English. Dr. Durand also will visit every district in the state, and will address our people. At my suggestion, an executive of three men was named, to manage the campaigne. This committee consists of a prominent business man of Burlington as Pres. a very prominent business man of Waterloo as Treasurer, and Dr. Durand as Secretary. The Treasurer will handle all funds, but the items will not go though the books of the reg. treasurer of the Alliance. Every voucher has to be signed by two officers—this will give us a controll of all expenses, and the funds are in the hands of high class men, in whose integrity I have the fullest confidence.

I now understand the fallacies of the Iowa laws thoroughly, and must openly tell you, that shameful conditions exist in that state. The barrooms are made as obnoxious and unsanitary as possible, and the worst of all is, that the classes, who patronize these "drinking barns" are satisfied with the conditions, and I find, that the mulct law, as infamous as it is, is exceedingly popular. Nevertheless, if the legislature should become democratic, and Mr. Hamilton become Governor, an effort will be made, to overthrow prohibition; if this cannot be done, they will try, to change the modus operandi of the present form of petition to the secret ballot, and to repeal the crazy moon law, and the unjust manufacturers law.

The executive board will submit to me a budget of the estimated expenses, which I will mail you immediately upon receipt.

Mr. Thuenen in Davenport, with whom I had a lengthy and interesting talk, told me frankly, to go ahead, and he would see to the right etc. I called on five of the most prominent German Newspapers, subscribed for them, and will from time to time write articles for them. In Davenport I had a conversation with the leading lutheran minister, and arranged a meeting between him and Dr. Radenhausen of the local branch, which will bring these two strong organisations together.

Whenever all your lists of all the candidates are prepared, please send them to me, and I will forward them to Iowa.

On April 22 is the last day for legislative and judicial candidates to file their papers with the secretary of state, and on June 1. is the primary election,—

On June 27, county conventions will take place, and not later than July 29, and not earlier than July 1. all state conventions must be held.

I promised the executive board a check for $500. which will go forth by April 1.

At the request of the state alliance I will deliver several addresses in about 5 of the principal places of Iowa a few weeks before the election. All the datas I have so far collected, will be copied and sent to Dr. Durand for his information.

Our Mr. Barth is now at work in the northern and northwestern part of the state.

With kind regards, Very Respectfully, JOS. KELLER.

MY DEAR MR. KELLER: I am in receipt of yours of April 7th enclosing letter to Mr. Wirmel, and beg to state that we have called him to Chicago for a conference and will hand him your communication on his arrival here. He will remain here only a short time, but will get in communication with you before he returns to Texas.

Very truly yours,

DEAR MR. ANDREAE: I had Mr. Soergel here yesterday and I think it would be well, to start him out at once, that means of course, after he had acquainted himself somewhat with the Texas situation.

Would you not advise me, to bring him to Chicago, to go over the datas you have gathered, and to give him all the information possible? If this should be suitable to you, we will be up at the end of this week.

Kindly advise and oblige

Yours very respectfully

Jos. KELLER.

DEAR MR. ANDREAE: I acknowledge with Thanks the receipt of the copies of your Address on Nation-Wide Prohibition, part of which were sent out to-day. I inclose you clippings of a German Newspaper in San-Antonio, stating of a convention of all the large German Organisations in that city, wherein you can see, that the overwhelming sentiment is for Ferguson. Mr. Soergel is hard at work; he finds the situation within the State Alliance rather perplexed on account of the arrogance of the President Mr. H. Moeller. Through the help of a friend of mine, Mr. E. Schramm, whose Son in law is the owner of the organ of the Sons of Hermann, we will have a complete list of all the lodges and their officers within a week. Mr. Soergel is telling me, that the Brewers were helping both sides financially; that the East and the Northeast of Texas demands most of the work. Captain Schramm was with him for two days, giving him all the necessary information. I have in my possession now a complete list of all the County Organisations of the German Alliance.

With the highest regards, very truly yours,

INDIANAPOLIS, May 16, 1914.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,

DEAR MR. ANDREA: This mornings report tells me, that at a meeting in Fort-Worth a few days ago, it was decided, to submit the question of Prohibition to the people at this primary, but they could not agree, whether the question should be put on the top or on the bottom of the ballot.

On account of the payment of the polltax the antis have gained the right of 70,000 votes, the Prohis only 14,000 over the last election.

Mr. Koehler, President of the City Brewing Co of San-Antonio seems to be a queer character, he seems to be under the impression, that he practically has the state in his pocket, and nobody does any effective work but himself.

Representation	140.00
Salaries	162.00
Office Expenses	195.00
Campagne-Letters & Postage Acc't	300.00

INDIANAPOLIS, May 14, 1914.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
3357 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago.

DEAR MR. ANDREAE: Pardon me, if I again ask for some of your valuable time, but two reports I received to-day from Texas are of such a nature, that I consider it my duty to inform you about them.

At a gathering of some prominent men in San Antonio the remarks were made openly, that the Brewers did not care, whether Mr. Ferguson or Mr. Ball were elected, and one Gentleman even made the remark, that he knew, that the Brewers were under same cover with Mr. Ball.

The question of submission would in no way be touched at the next Primary election, but Mr. Ball had declared himself only, that in case he would be elected, he would ask of the legislature, to submit the question to the people at the next election, and if the legislature would refuse this, he would try to find a way, to close the Saloons. Therefore the people will not vote directly for submission at the next primary election. The question regarding the brewers naturally causes consternation and uneasiness. The German voting strength in Texas is about 50,000 out of a total vote of 400,000.

My call for the Order of the Sons of Hermann went forth this morning.

With the kindest personal regards, very truly yours,

JOS. KELLER.

DEAR MR. ANDREAE: Both machines are in use, so I am compelled to reach for the pen.

Mr. Haxthausen has sent a most encouraging letter this morning, where he offered his help and his influence to get his entire organization into our ranks.

He issued an article in the official Organ of the Order, where he addressed all lodges personally and asked them to join hands with our alliance for our common cause.

We are now writing to all secretaries as I told you in my letter yesterday, and inclose to every member of his lodge a circular, with the headline "Warning." I ordered the printing of 20,000 of these circulars this morning.

Hoping to hear good news from our Iowa friends next Monday.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 28. 1914.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE
3357 S. Michigan Ave, Chicago.

DEAR MR. ANDREAE: Relative to the Texas work, I wish to inform You, that I am now in possession of the names of all the lodges and their secretaries of the Sons of Hermann in Texas, and that we commenced, to send our appeal to them, with other literature. There is all in all about 267 societies with a Membership of about 22000.

The protestant ministers of all synods have received three pamphlets each, they have also sent me the names of the individual members of about a dozen churches, not counting the state alliance of the catholic societies, and the individual membership of the catholic churches, which Mr. Barth has gathered. Last sunday, a new local alliance was formed in Houston, and some of the ministers have called attention to the mass meeting from the pulpit. Mr. Haxthausen went with Mr. Soergel to Galveston, to organize annother branch. Haxthausen has travelled for over 30 days in our cause, and I was asked to reimburse him for his expenses, which I think is not more, than proper. In a letter, I received this morning from Mr. Soergel, he tells me, that Mr. Faust of St. Louis, who was in Houston for a few days, and Mr. R. L. Autrey of the Houston Ice and Brewing Co. were the principal advocators of the conference between yourself, Mr. Haxthausen and myself, "wherein the situation in Texas should have been thoroughly discussed, especially ways and means should have been found, to solve the financial problem, to get the voters out for the primary, etc." Funds should be placed in the hands of Messrs. Moeller and Haxthausen etc. etc.

Now, that is all well and good, but I remember, what you Mr. Andreae once told me in a similar case like this, that where there is more work demanded, the funds must be forthcoming from that side.

The Iowa people are following this plan.

Only when you tell me, that out of our allotment a certain sum shall go to Texas for political purposes, then the money will go south, and not before. You, as I know, look to me to do constructiv work, organisation-work, that will count, and not to spend the money for election purposes. Some of these Gentlemen seem to be of the opinion, that I can do with this fund, as I please, and I will let Mr. Soergel know, that it would be better, to ask for more information, before he can make any promises, and put us in a peculiar position with the Texas people. Otherwise Mr. Soergel is working hard, and his reports show thorough training und understanding.

Mr. Barth writes the most encouraging letters, his people all seem to belong to the Antis. He now is going into to more doubtful counties.

With the highest personal regards

Very Resp. yours

JOS. KELLER.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 1st 1914.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
3357 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago.

DEAR MR. ANDREAE: I am up in the office this morning, and the first letter I wright, shall go to you.

I wish to express to you my sincere thanks for the interest you have shown towards me, during my sickness. Let me assure you Mr. Andreae, that I will always show myself worthy of your confidence and your friendly feeling towards me. I still have pains on my right side, and the digestive organs still fail to do their duty, but I am able to be up, and with the proper care will no doubt be able soon, to regain my full health.

The things down in Texas look bright; our Friend Soergel is making a hit as speaker, and shows success as an organizer. The German press, some of it antagonistic at first, and dissatisfied with the brewing interests, is doing good work, Mr. Barth has lined up his people, letters and literature have been sent broadcast, Mr. Haxthausen personally is on the stump, and I feel, that Mr. Fergusons nomination is assured. Dr. Durand and Mr. Miller plan a meeting of the executive of their alliance, and asked me for another $500, which I will send them tomorrow.

After July 25, Mr. Soergel and Mr. Barth will come north, and then the campagne in Iowa will be started with all, there is in it. Would it not be a good idea Mr. Andreae, to have your speech on "personal liberty" reprinted and distributed? Of course I do not like to do this without your consent.

Just as soon as my health will permit me, I will come up, to see you.

I am with the kindest personal regards

Thankfully yours

JOS. KELLER.

JULY 2, 1914.

Mr. JOSEPH KELLER,
613 Merchants Bank Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

MY DEAR MR. KELLER: I was delighted to see your handwriting again and to know that you are once more in harness. But be careful. It is false economy to risk a relapse by trying one's strength too early.

I note the remittance of $500 to Mr. Miller, and when Mr. Hartley returns from Ohio, where he went yesterday, I will see that this amount is refunded in the usual way.

Our reports from Texas are very good, as regards Ferguson, but everyone seems to feel doubtful about defeating the submission of prohibition. I wonder whether it would be well for you to emphasize this particular point, when you write Mr. Soergel again.

In regard to the speech on personal liberty, please use your own judgment. I am going to send you an address which I am preparing to deliver in Cleveland, O., on July 22nd, on the occasion of the annual outing of the Personal Liberty League. This outing is usually attended by between forty and fifty thousand people, and I am using the occasion to make a strong appeal for the inauguration of a National Liberty Day, to be observed annually by all liberals in every centre of the country.

You will find that there are some very strong things in this address, possibly too strong for your purposes in Iowa. But, if not, I believe that the distribution of this speech (after it is delivered, of course) will have more effect than that of the personal liberty speech.

With very kind regards,

Yours very truly,

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,

DEAR MR. ANDREAE: Relative to the short conversation I had with Mr. Hartley over the phone this morning, I wish to reiterate, that I did not intend to send any money to Texas before I had heard from Mr. Soergel, to whom I have written last Friday. The noon mail to-day brought me a letter from him, wherein he strongly advocated, that some means should be sent at once to Mr. Haxthausen, and some to Mr. Hugo Moeller.

I know Mr. Andreae, that the submission question is very doubtful, and I have therefore previously instructed Mr. Soergel and Mr. Barth to emphasize this particularly.

Furthermore, an appeal will be made to all the voters of Texas through the entire German press, to vote against submission, and I have promised the different newspapers, that I would pay them for the space. I have endeavored to get the good will of the German press, and this can only be done if we pay them occasionally for their publications.

I inclose you a letter from a newspaper man in Waco, which will show you the feelings some of these fellows have.

I will have your last speech reprinted and will use the same in the Iowa campagne.

With the kindest personal regards, I am

Very truly yours,

JOSEPH KELLER.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
3357 South Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: We returned from Wisconsin last week and I am happy to say, that I feel considerably stronger.

We have mailed about 1,000 of the N. A. G. U. pamphlets to Texas and will now take up the work again in Iowa. Mr. Soergel will be in Manning on the 29th of this month attending the meeting of the Iowa Executive.

I had a long and interesting talk with Mr. F. Schmidt of the Illinois Alliance, when the preliminary arrangements for the Illinois campaign were made. The Illinois State Convention takes place on September 6th and 7th, and I will go there to address the meeting.

I assure you, my dear Mr. Andreae, that the terrible Europeon crisis causes me much concern and uneasiness, and I only hope, that awful conflict will soon be over.

According to your request in your letter of July 1th I send you herewith a statement of the funds forwarded to Texas:

Mr. A. Haxthausen	$200.00
Mr. H. Moeller	150.00
Texas newspapers for Advertisements and plates	83.40
Total	$433.40

With kindest personal regards to yourself and the gentlemen in the office.

Yours very truly

JOS. KELLER.

MY DEAR MR. KELLER: As you doubtless know, Mr. Andreae was compelled to take a much needed rest, and will be absent from the city for the next ten days or two weeks.

I am enclosing you a copy of a letter from Samuel Woolner, Jr., of Peoria, Illinois. Mr. Woolner is the President of the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers Association, and is one of our sincere friends. You will note what he says in his letter concerning the Congressional fight in his district.

If it is possible for you to assist Mr. Woolner by conveying his wishes to the members of your organization in his district, I am certain that it will be greatly appreciated both by him and Mr. Andreae.

Sincerely yours.

GERMAN-AMERICAN ALLIANCE FORMED.

and a polished gentleman, and his remarks in both German and English were carefully listened to and at times were duly applauded as he told of many important achievements of the Germans and paid high tribute to them as American citizens.

"All we Germans want is fair play and impartial rights accorded to any citizen," said Mr. Soergel, "and we also want the truth."

Mr. Soergel spoke upon the subject, "What we need most at the present critical time," and said in part as follows:

"What we need is a better understanding of each other and a more honest, unprejudiced confidence in each other as citizens, patriots, lovers, and admirers of this our great Republic, and last, but not least, we need more honest believers in personal liberty and the individual right given to us by the will of God Almighty and guaranteed to us by the Constitution of our country. We always must keep in mind that this country has no nationality of its own, but we just as well might call it the bride and country of all nations, or, as the greatest man of this country, George Washington, so fittingly expressed it, 'All Europe, not England, is the mother of this country,' and in his honest spirit and true patriotism we to-day should aim for a better and for an honest, true, and just government by the people, of the people, and for the people. And I maintain, and history will prove it, that the called imported citizens of this country, and especially the German-Americans with the Irish on their side, always have been loyal to their adopted country and always will believe in the Jeffersonian principle, 'Equal rights for everybody and special privileges for none.' In the latter days, however, it seems that this honest, true American principle is not dominating at all any more, but it is rather a Government of classes for certain classes; therefore the German-American Alliance, which I have the honor to represent, stands especially for the maintenance of human rights, for the freedom of mankind, and its highest development. It glories, and with full right, in the merits of the German forefathers, who since the dawn of civilization in this country have in time of peace and war done their share to develop this country in such a way that to-day wherever the Stars and Stripes are unfolded America is recognized as the greatest and most powerful Republic the world has ever known and undoubtedly ever will know.

"The Germans and Irish should be found in true comradeship side by side to oppose such undemocratic and un-American doctrines. We certainly believe that under the fundamental laws of this great Republic we shall not only enjoy personal liberty and freedom one day during the year, which we usually celebrate as the Fourth of July, but personal liberty and freedom shall be enjoyed year in and year out, and we, as the lovers and protectors of liberty, should whenever opportunity arises, and so especially you German-American citizens of this beautiful town, should serve notice on those who threaten to deprive you of that liberty that you stand united as one man ready to defend it against all comers.

"And, therefore, our organization always shall and will raise its voice against prohibition, not on account of the drinking question involved, but on account of the moral question. We don't believe that a certain class of men in any community, town, city, county, or State shall have the right to dominate the minds and souls of their fellow men and render them mentally and morally subject to their particular views and notions, and thereby threatening human, God-given right, liberty, and freedom.

"We furthermore are against prohibition because prohibition never prohibits; prohibition, as it has been proven, never makes better men or people; just the contrary. It is an established fact that wherever prohibition apparently did prevail, hypocrisy, intolerance, fanaticism, and nativism are at home. It has made the worst enemies out of the best friends. The prohibition question here of late has become more and more a political question, and for reasons best known to our political friends. Therefore the remark made by a minister in your own State not long ago that the churches as such have no right to take any hand in any political fight, no matter which aim the same has got, and that in his opinion the churches should not interfere with their affairs.

"As I said before, the Constitution requires of every good, honest, liberty-loving, and freedom-seeking citizen to defend this, our great country, not only against all foreign, but also against all domestic enemies. What we need is organization, irrespectively of party affiliation, irrespectively of religion, irrespectively of social or commercial standing.

"We need an honest, true organization of liberty and freedom loving citizens, and therefore you should use all possible means to bring about such an organization which at the opportune time will with the greatest weapon the American citizen has got—the ballot—defeat the biggest domestic enemy this country has got—fanaticism, hypocrisy, and intolerance—and give birth to a new and invincible brotherhood among men—the great brotherhood of American freemen.

"Our organization, which only a few days ago has adjourned its biannual meeting at San Francisco, has adopted strong resolutions in this very respect. So far as the European question is concerned, our organization believes in an honest, fair, square, Christian American neutrality. We condemn the attitude shown by our country in this great European struggle by praying for peace on Sunday and furnishing ammunition during the week days to the European countries, so prolonging this murderous struggle. We also consider it a great insult to doubt for one moment the loyalty of the lately so often criticized and frequently denounced 'hyphenated' citizens of German birth, ancestry, or extraction. The time no doubt will come again when the now denounced 'hyphenated' citizens will show beyond any doubt that they are the most loyal to this our country. Another right which we claim is to have a voice in the decisions as to our national policy. Above all consideration we went to keep this our beloved country out of the war, and we do not propose to have the British diplomacy hurry our national administration to that terrible consequence. We also raise our voice in protest against the barbarous export of ammunition. While the same is not against any international law, we consider it violation of true Christian American principles.

"We hope that a time will come when our Congress will see fit to enact a law which will put true Christian American neutrality over the lust of mammon, and this is what we also need most in this present critical time."

MY DEAR MR. KELLER: I think your suggestion to issue, from your office, a call to all the German societies of Ohio and the German people generally is most valuable. You know my opinion that outside influence is necessary to awaken effective activity in our Ohio friends. A communication from you will do this, not only because it will be effective in itself, but because it will be something different from the routine matter to which the members of the Alliance have become accustomed.

A man may be lulled to sleep by hearing a favorite melody always played on the same instrument. But give him the melody on a new instrument, and it is likely to awaken him and enthuse him like a new song.

spoke in Burlington; from there we went to Cedar Rapids, Davenport, Clinton, Waverly and Waterloo, where I spoke Friday night. Mr. Thuenen sends you his kindest regards. I find the Iowa people more alert and more enthusiastic than at my last visit, and the fight they made this year is in my opinion not a lost one.

Mr. Hamilton has a fair chance to be elected, and the election of Mr. Harding is assured. Conolly's chances are doubtful, as Cummings's strength as a politician is asknowledged. Though some optimists predict Conolly's election. Mr. Salinger for the supreme court will pull through, Seth Thomas's changes are doubtful.

We figure on the house with 62 members on our side, in the senate 28.

McDonald in the second district has a fair chance, though Mr. Hull his opponent is not a crank. Now, Mr. Andreae, may this all become true, and then we have all reason to rejoice. Lets hope for Ohio and Iowa.

With the kindest personal regards.

Truly yours,

JOS. KELLER.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: I acknowledge with thanks the receipt of your letter of Nov. 3 and the inclosed check for $500.00. I also wish to thank you for your generous offer to reimburse Mr. Schmidt for his loss.

I could not come to a conclusion as yet, how to approach Mr. Schmidt, but I will let you know soon, how the matter was squared.

I inclose you a dispatch from Dr. Durand regarding the Iowa election, but I am a little bit skeptic about it. Mr. Schwaab and Mr. Soergel wired me also, and a letter of thanks by Mr. Schwaab reached me this morning.

Our constitutional convention scheme here was defeated, so really our work was not wasted.

With the highest regards

I am very truly yours,

DEAR MR. KELLER: In accordance with my promise, I beg to enclose herewith a complete statement of moneys received and expended. The Doctor tells me that there are still a few more bills coming in, and the shortage will be in the neighborhood of $600.

I am a little sorry that the shortage occurred at all, but did not know just what obligations Doctor Durant had placed himself under.

I have attached itemized statements so that you may fully understand how the money has been spent.

It should be kept in mind of course that $500 of this had been furnished sometime during 1913, and that this money should really not be charged up to present expenses.

Inasmuch as these bills will have to be paid, I join the Doctor in the request that you kindly arrange to have a draft go to us so that we may start in with a clean sheet.

INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA, March 26, 1915.

Mr. JOSEPH KELLER,
Chairman of the Propaganda Committee of the National German-American Alliance, Indianapolis, Indiana.

MY DEAR SIR: I herewith beg leave to submit to you my report about the situation and conditions I have found in the different cities of the state of Illinois visited by me.

Before doing so I would like to call your attention to the fact, that the state of Illinois, according to the official census of 1910, shows a total population of 5,638,591, of which 1,014,408 are born in Germany and 208,844 in Austria, whose direct descendants number 813,050. There is no doubt in my opinion, that with a proper educational campaign work, the influence of this foreign element can be made a mighty and powerful one in the state of Illinois; but where-ever I went I found lack of interest on account of the small attention having been paid to that element in the past. Where-ever and when-ever, however, the interest of these sleepy Germans and Austrians has once been aroused by personal agitation or by mass-meetings, it was distinctly shown that they are only too glad and too willing, true to the traditions of their fore-fathers, to take up the German cultural work in the sense, spirit and aim of our organization. To give you a striking and certainly convincing example of the possibility of organizing the foreign element in the state of Illinois, especially the German speaking class, upon a solid foundation, I would like to refer you to the experience I personally made in the city of Alton. There the German speaking citizens were in many instances total strangers among themselves, until the bugle call for concentration and organization was sounded by the representative of the National German American Alliance. The result was that a branch was founded which to-day shows a membership of over 500 American citizens, while the census of 1910 for the city of Alton shows 685 Germans and 48 Austrians immigrated. Similar results no doubt, can be accomplished in all other cities of the state, where strong German speaking population exists. The official census of 1910 certainly shows quite a number of such cities. Especially gratifying and promising is the fact, that our organization has made an inroad, which can not be estimated highly enough into the circles of German American churches, whose ministers with very few exceptions now have taken up the call of our organization to maintain and transplant the higher German ideals. I consider it a great importance to bring the German Society and German Church element nearer to each other, which has already been accomplished in a number of cities in the state where the National German American Alliance has furnished the only and proper basis for the concentration of these two most influential elements, which has been recognized as such, as you have seen from the reports and newspaper clippings I did send you from time to time.

In connection herewith I would like to call your attention to one fact, which in the past has been a great obstacle in affiliating the German Societies and Churches and this fact has been the dominating attitude of the brewers, distillers, and saloon-keepers in those different German Societies, who have for revenue only, in most cases, supported these societies, and who did not seem to care a continental for the maintenance of German ideals.

I can assure you Mr. Keller, that the German speaking element in the state of Illinois can be and is only too willing to be united into one big strong influential organization and is at any time ready to join the cause of the German American Alliance to uphold the principles of the same, which must be dear to every liberty, freedom, justice and truth loving citizen. It is only a question of time and of educational campaign work to accomplish this. Coming down to plain facts I would like to make this statement that the German speaking element in the state of Illinois, by proper care at the hands of our organization can be made a great factor of influence, whenever the welfare of the state of Illinois is at stake.

Now kindly allow me to give you a short resume of the work I have done in the state of Illinois until now. I visited the cities of Alton, Aurora, Belleville, Bloomington, Danville, Edwardsville, Elmhurst, Freeport, Kankakee, Moline, Mt. Olive, Ottawa, Rockford, Rock Island and Staunton. In most of these cities I found German Societies working independently of each other unaware of their power and influence if concentrated and united. The church and society element in most cities I found directly diagonal to each other. Mass-meetings were arranged in all of these cities with the exception of two and addresses delivered by myself made a change in the sentiment of the people with most gratifying results. Most of these meetings were not only attended by the societies, but also by the church element and the ministers themselves, who in the past very rarely could be persuaded to attend such meetings. New branches we organized in the following cities: Alton, Aurora, Freeport, Bloomington, Elmhurst, Kankakee, Mt. Olive, Ottawa, Rockford and Rock Island.

Yours very respectfully, ROBERT L. SAERGEL.

APRIL 6, 1915.

Mr. JOSEPH KELLER,
1255 Wright St., Indianapolis, Ind.

MY DEAR MR. KELLER: I have been thinking a great deal about our conversation yesterday afternoon, and the more I have weighed the matter the stronger my feeling has grown that as President of the National Alliance your possibilities of achievement are almost incalculable.

Of course, as a friend I could not wish to see you accept an office which might prove a serious strain upon your health, no matter how great interests were at stake. But this has occurred to me in thinking over all that you said to me. You have, I understand, practically agreed to relieve the Doctor of the greater burden of the work now devolving upon him as President. Does this not, therefore, already commit you to that portion of the Presidential responsibilities which are most wearing upon the health? The title itself cannot add to those responsibilities, or to the work they involve.

I cannot help writing you this, and I hope that in doing so, I am not unconsciously trying to represent matters to suit my own wishes. I don't want to conceal from you my very ardent conviction that, if you accept this office, it will mean a new era for the German American Alliance, but, on the other hand, I am equally anxious that you should believe that my feelings of personal friendship for you would not permit of my urging you to do what might in any respect prove detrimental to your health and well-being. No one who knows you can doubt that, with your conscientiousness, the burden of so important an office will be very great, and for this reason no one ought to urge you to accept it against your own better judgment. I am simply reasoning from the fact that you have already to all intents and purposes offered to take that burden upon yourself, without the title which will largely increase the possibilities of accomplishment that it involves. So, why not take the title too?

INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA, May 4, 1915.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
1132–1137 Transportation Bldg., Chicago, Illinois.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: Judge Schwaab will be in Indianapolis, most likely next week, to arrange definite plans with us for the future activities in Ohio. At a meeting of the Presidents of the different state branches of Ohio, which took place in Columbus lately, a resolution was passed to employ a special organizer for the state alliance. The Judge wrote me, that the Liberal League would not make any allowance for such a purpose, and he personally had no funds to carry it out. He told me, that he had six applicants for this place, but of course he wants Mr. Soergel under all circumstances. He intimidated, that it would cause a little trouble as he could not use anyone of the six men on account of shortage on funds, and that he would unload his trouble upon my shoulders.

I believe, Mr. Andreae, a little diplomacy here might help the cause and I believe it would be a good move to let the Judge pick one of the applicants and employ him about six months.

In this way we would satisfy the hungry one, and comply at the same time with the wish of the Columbus meeting and of Judge Schwaab. What is your opinion regarding this, and can it be possible, to arrange for this special expense?

Hoping to hear from you soon, I remain with the kindest personal regards,

Very truly yours,

JOS. KELLER.

MY DEAR MR. KELLER: I am in receipt of your communication of the 4th inst., and in reply beg to say that Mr. Gibson will be in Cincinnati Wednesday of next week, and will take up with those in charge of the Ohio campaign the matter of the selection by Judge Schwaab of an organizer to work under his direction, as suggested by the Columbus meeting.

I feel that it will be an impossibility for me to bear the expense of this additional organizer at this time, and I think that the Ohio people can be induced to see the wisdom of the employment of such an organizer, especially in view of the fact that your Bureau is to supply other workers for the Ohio campaign.

I would suggest that Mr. Gibson be given the opportunity of discussing this plan with our Ohio friends before you have your meeting with Judge Schwaab in Indianapolis.

Mr. Gibson will report to me immediately after he has had his talk with the Ohio manager.

Hoping that this suggestion meets with your approval, I beg to remain

INDIANAPOLIS, May 29th, 1915.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
3357 South Michigan Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: After some more correspondence with Cincinnati, we have earnestly begun the work in Ohio. I had the pleasure to meet Mr. Hunt, and I am now thoroughly informed about the existing conditions between Mr. Hunt's organization and our mutual friend.

It will be rather hard, though, to remove the existing friction entirely, but we will do our utmost to conclude the work successfully in Ohio.

Mr. Barth is still in southern Illinois, and is doing good work. A meeting of the Illinois Executive will be held today, in Chicago, and I am informed, that Mr. Soergel's letter, which he wrote to me in March, regarding the existing conditions in Illinois, and wherein he complained of the indifference of certain brewers and liquor people, will be the cause of unfriendly comment. I am informed, that said letter has been distributed broadcast in Illinois.

Can I ask you at this time to be kind enough, and to have some of the necessary funds forwarded to our friend in Baltimore? With the kindest personal regards, I am,

Respectfully yours,

JOS. KELLER.

Mr. JOSEPH KELLER,
1255 Wright St., Indianapolis, Ind.

MY DEAR MR. KELLER: I am sending you 30 typewritten copies of the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Texas, which is to be submitted to the voters of that State on July 24 next.

The enclosed draft of a letter which is going to the foreign language press on this subject will explain fully the serious nature of this amendment, and I would greatly appreciate it if you would address a letter in the same or any other terms you may prefer to the editor of each of the 26 German newspapers in Texas urging prompt and energetic action to thwart this insidious attack upon the rights hitherto enjoyed by the foreign-born citizen in Texas.

I am sending you 30 copies of this amendment under separate cover, so that you may not have the trouble of preparing same.

Trusting that you are much better again and are taking good care of yourself, believe me

Very truly yours,

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: Before leaving for the National Convention in San Francisco, I deem it my duty to inform you, that all our work, as originally planned, is progressing to our entire satisfaction. The Texas literature is all mailed out, and Mr. Barth has twice gone over the entire territory in Illinois. Mr. Soergel is at work in the northeastern part of Ohio, having arranged meetings in Alliance, Salem, Youngstown, Canton, etc. I intend to start Mr. Barth in Ohio about the 15th of August.

Mr. Soergel was instructed to look after the German newspapers especially, and to pay attention to the church organizations in the country towns. I find out that plenty of good work is awaiting us in Ohio. While I am away the same will go on as usual, as I prepared everything beforehand. Mr. Berg, the man I have in the office is entirely familiar with his duties and all the reports will be filed properly and the literature mailed out. I hope it will be possible to see you in Chicago about the middle of next month. It was a great pleasure to me indeed to read that beautiful address delivered by you in San Francisco.

With the kindest personal regards, I remain,

Yours very truly,

INDIANAPOLIS, August 16, 1915.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,

Chicago, Illinois.

MY DEAR MR ANDREAE: The strenuous days of the convention in San Francisco are behind us.

What has happened there principally, you most likely have read, and some other things, that may interest you, I will tell you when I have the pleasure to see you personally. With great pleasure I have read the splendid address you have delivered before the International Press Congress in San Francisco.

The work in our office is progressing, as I have mapped it out before I left.

Mr. Soergel was able to revive five of the old branches, which formerly belonged to the Ohio State Alliance, with a membership of about 2,000. Of late he has visited and has sent reports from Akron, Lorain and Sandusky.

Previous to these places he spoke and organized in Norwood, Salem, Canton, Youngstown, Massillion, Alliance, Canal-Dover and New Philadelphia. In the last four weeks at least 5,000 pieces of literature were mailed out from our office to these branches: they related to the present conditions, the Prohibition Issue, The National Alliance, its aims, purposes and results, etc., etc.

Mr. Barth has returned from Illinois. I had a talk with him and Mr. Schmidt, the state president of Illinois.

Mr. Barth is ready to start to work in Ohio at once. He attended the National Convention of the German Catholic Societies in St. Paul, Minn., to get in touch with the heads of that great organization.

Mr. Soergel has sent me a copy of a letter, which he wrote to Mr. Hunt, in Cincinnati, but not knowing the full facts of his conference with that gentleman, I am unable to judge fairly and precisely, until I have talked with him personally.

Mr. Andreae, will you be kind enough and replete the nearly empty purse of our friend in Baltimore? If you have any wishes regarding the campaign in Ohio, then kindly let me know and I will see that they are fulfilled promptly. I am with the kindest personal regards,

Very respectfully yours,

Jos. KELLER.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 10, 1915.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,

DEAR MR. ANDREAE: Mr. Soergel and myself met at 2:00 P. M. yesterday, with Messrs. Hauck and Renner at the Hotel Havlin. Our friend Judge Schwaab came an hour later on account of a law-suit which detained him in court. The whole situation was thrashed over and over and Mr. Hauck as well as Mr. Renner are thoroughly familiar with the existing conditions in Ohio. They know the attitude of the gentleman in question entirely and they also told me frankly, that if Mr. Andreae and his organization and his friends should lay down their work, Ohio would be absolutely helpless. Mr. Hauck told me, that he would consult with Mr. Renner again this morning and that he would see Mr. Freiberg and have him to call on Mr. Schantz. Judge Schwaab in all probabilities will now get his organizers for which we asked some time ago, but were turned down by Mr. H. I assure you though, this gentleman was not handled with "kid gloves" during our conversation, but I still wonder and I asked several times yesterday, why it was, or how it could be, that an organization with such tremendous interests at stake could not keep in control a man whom they directly employ and who certainly could be made to "dance to their whistle." When I left I felt, that things may take a better turn in a short time. In fact I was told so, but I assured the gentlemen also, that no time should be lost as every day will count. Mr. Soergel and Mr. Barth have their trunks packed and are ready to start out, but I cannot send them before I have heard from Mr. Tjarks in reference to the question I brought before your attention when in this city. I would be thankful to you if you would wire me when such has been done, so the two men can start to work at once.

With the kindest personal regards, I am,

Truly yours,

Jos. KELLER.

[Printed circular headed "A Last Word to the German Voters of Ohio in this Severe and Critical Time! To Be German Means to Be Free—To Be German Means To Fight! Propaganda Committee of the National German American Alliance, Indianapolis, Joseph Keller, Chairman. Forever shall those pictures live that have given this land heart and spirit! Branch Society of Ohio, John Schwaab, Pres." The circular refers to the campaign of the liberal element as one against darkness, a campaign of truth against falsehood and deception, a fight of freedom against tyranny and despotism, which the citizenship of German descent is forced to go through during this severe and critical time. It calls upon all citizens of German descent to fight for their liberty. "The same dark puritanical spirit which is seeking in this country to root our liberty has sprung from the same people which has forced the weapon into the hands of our old Fatherland. Here English hypocritical and puritanical baseness, in the Fatherland English jealousy, covetousness, hatred and the damnable spirit of the shopkeeper. We fight against prohibition because we know that prohibition poisons the people and conjures up hypocricy and lawlessness * * * The advocates of prohibition tell us that they represent the Churches and that their views are founded on keeping to the Bible, but every reasonable person knows that the drinking question is not a religious question but a social and political one and that highly placed and serious leaders of the Church, as for example Cardinal Gibbons, damned the teaching of prohibition. If these people speak of the Church in general then they have left out of their account the German churches, who have again and again refused as all truly religious people have refused to place their activities in the service of climbing politicians. Wherever we look, wherever prohibition has been, there has been a decadence, a decline financially and commercially a retrogression in commerce and industry and what is much more important a very marked lowering of the moral standard. * * * The time has come in Ohio also when we must realize that if we would not lose everything, that we must throw off our aloofness and strike in mightily in the politicians of the country. If you wish to break a path for German customs, then you must first speak German at the ballot box." The circular contains much more of the same kind of denunciatory matter.]

INDIANAPOLIS, October 5, 1915.

MR. PERCY ANDREAE,
3357 South Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: Things begin to hum in Ohio. Almost every day new meetings are arranged especially in the smaller places, such as Ottoville, Cloverdale, Glendorf, Delphos, Steubenville, Massillon etc., also in Cleveland, Akron, Dayton and Springfield. Judge Schwaab and Mr. Barth were in Lima and Bucyrus yesterday and today. Mr. Soergel will be in New Bremen, Celina and Wapakoneta the next few days.

Mr. Barth will be in Fostoria, Tiffin, Upper-Sandusky and Marion this week and will reach Columbus next Sunday where he will work for a big meeting. Akron today telegraphed for 2,000 phamplets (Ein ernstes Wort in ernster Zeit) which were forwarded this evening. The German Reformed Church in Ohio is openly favoring our opponents and Mr. Soergel suggests to send each minister "Rev. Sellinger's" phamplet, a copy of which I have mailed you last week. The German voters in the country seem to be very indifferent and should be appealed to in the strongest possible terms by postal or letter, to go to the polls on the 2nd of November.

The German Newspapers should be helped along and special articles should be written for them.

You know, Mr. Andreae, that such a propaganda takes more money than I feel to spend, especially after I learned the true conditions of affairs, of which you informed me in Cincinnati.

Our expenses the last month were very large as I had to pay the salaries and running expenses for two months—$1,853.04—and you know, what it takes, when three men are in the field, and when thousands and thousands of pamphlets and printed matter have to be mailed out. I feel that should not contract for large amounts without your knowledge and your consent, and as the maintenance of this bureau until the first of the year will naturally consume some money, I should like to know, what I shall do and what your advise to me would be. By the first of next month our funds with our friend in Baltimore will be exhausted and I feel that you will not think hard of me if I inform you of these facts.

Awaiting your kind reply, believe me to be,
Very truly yours,

JOS. KELLER.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: I have just returned from Springfield, Ohio, where I spoke before a very large and representative gathering in the new High School auditorium.

Professors of the Wittenberg College, Clergymen and Three Hundred students from the High School and the upper German classes were on the stage. The High School Orchestra furnished the music. The meeting was very impressive and will do a lot of good.

I will leave at 3:00 P. M. today, for Dayton, where Mr. Soergel and myself will speak in the auditorium.

Mr. Barth is in Tuscarawas county and Judge Schwaab was in Crestline yesterday. Mr. Soergel had three or four good meetings at the end of last week.

Today and tomorrow about 10,000 pamphlets will be mailed out and another 10,000 will come from the press in a few days.

Regarding your inquiry in your letter I will tell you that Mr. Tjarks sent me in the year 1914—$12,500.00 and in 1915, $11,750.00, which will make a total of $24,250.00.

I will see you in Chicago, the beginning of November, as I was asked to speak in Davenport on the 6th. Things are looking bright in Ohio and I am now entirely confident that our cause will triumph.

With the kindest personal regards, I am, Yours Respectfully,

I would have gone to Akron myself, but my physician absolutely forbid me to go out another time. EXHIBIT #400.

A multigraphed letter on the letter head of the National German American Alliance, Committee for Organization and Publication, Joseph Keller Chairman, dated Indianapolis, November 1915 and addressed to the President of the German American State Alliance of Ohio. Circular calls attention to the "victory" which the organized Germanism of Ohio has won in the last election under your fearless leadership. The liberal cause in Ohio would have been lost had it not been for the close organization of the National German American Alliance at the head of which the State Alliance of Ohio has stood for many years. The result of the election is the more gratifying, due to the fact that the addressee during the last campaign has accepted the help offered by the National Committee in such a gratifying manner. A table of statistics is enclosed which indicates that in those counties where any Germanism had been organized and has accepted the help of the State Alliance and the National Alliance the result has been far more favorable to the liberal cause than in those counties where such assistance was refused. The fact remains that the only hope of the liberal element in the State of Ohio and in the entire election is in the support of the foreign speaking citizenship, and in the organization of that citizenship, with the German citizenship at the head and in support of the foreign language press, particularly the German. The question remains whether this support is being recognized in the "quarters interested" in a proper manner. It appears that in this respect, particularly with regard to the German language press, a great deal remains to be done, for it is evident that the crumbs that fall from the table of the Lord are often very indigestible. The German press should certainly in times of peace be better supported by the interested circle. Let us make our people understand that the cause of Germanism in this country does not fall with a beer glass, nor can it be rescued by the beer glass, but that Germanism must be organized in order that it may take the part which is justly due it in the development of this republic. We must fight more with the weapon of the spirit than with the beer glass. We often hear from certain quarters: "Why should we pay any particular attention to the Germans or to the German press, in view of the fact that 95% of them vote with us anyway?" This very question calls upon us to assert ourselves and our position. As chairman of the Propaganda Committee of the National German American Alliance, the undersigned trusts that he can co-operate with the addressee in the future in order to bring a change in conditions in order to maintain German-Americanism on the highest plane and in order to preserve it from the scandal and slander of American materialism.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., 1915.

MONONA, IOWA, December 1, 1915.

HONORED SIR: At the request of the worthy Wartburg Pastoral, Conference of the German Lutheran Synod of Iowa, I turn to you with a heartfelt request. As German pastors we desire no longer to stand as silent spectators around the arena of political truth and social justice, but we desire in view of friend and enemy alike to step into the arena, and with the talent and powers which have been given to us, to aid the brave champions of the German cause to the best of our ability.

We pastors—at least the most of us German Lutheran Pastors—have lain altogether too long in well covered and protected trenches, and we have been more or less merely passive participants in the tumult of battle. But, thank God, we have been shaken out of our indifference, and have decided to go into the open battle line and to take part in the forum of the people in the fight for truth and righteousness. Until now our activity as reformers has been limited to the quiet precincts of the Church and the small circle of the congregation. From now on we desire to help in carrying the light of German truthfulness, the German sense of honor, and German faithfulness into the wide masses of the people, in so far as we can accomplish this. And to that end I request your valued counsel and your active help.

With special esteem, your,

OTTO WAPPLER, Pastor.

MONONA, IA., den 1 Dezember 1915.

SEHR GEEHRTER HERR: Im Aufrage der ehrw. Wartburg-Pastoral Konferenz der deutschen lutherischen Iowa Synode wende ich mich an Sie mit einer herzlichen Bitte. Als deutsche Pastoren wollen wir nicht laenger als stille Zuschaper auf dem Kampfplatze politischer Wahrheit und sozialer Gerechtigkeit im Hintergrund stehen, sondern im Angesicht von Freund und Feind in die Arena eintreten und mit den Gaben und Kraeften, die uns verliehen sind, den wackeren Vorkaempfern der deutschen Sahce dienen, so gut wir es vermoegen.

Allzulaneg haben wir Pastoren—wenigstens die meisten von uns deutschlutherischen Pastoren—in wohl verdeckten und geschuetzten Schutzengraeben giegen und sind mehr oder weniger nur passive Teilnehmer am Kampfgetuemmel gewesen. Doch, Gott lo, wir sind aufgeruettelt aus unserer Saumseligkeit und haben uns entschlossen, an die offene Front zu treten und aktiv an dem Kampfe fuer Wahrheit und Gerechtigkeit vor dem Forum des Volkes teilzunehmen. Bisher war unsere reformatorische Taetigkeit auf den stillen Ort der Kirch und den kleinen Kreis der Germeinde beschraenkt. Von jetzt an wollen wir das Licht deutscher Wahrhaftigkeit, deutscher Ehrlichkeit und deutscher Treue hineintragen helfen in die breiten Massen des Volkes, soweit wir sie nur erreichen koennen. Und dazu erbitte ich mir eben Ihren werten geschaezten Rat unde Ihre tatkraeftige Mithilfe.

Mit vorzueglicher Hochachtung Ihr,

OTTO WAPPLER, Pastor.

Mr. JOSEPH KELLER,
Merchants Bank Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

MY DEAR MR. KELLER: This is to inform you that I am to-day mailing Mr. Tjarks a check for $1,500.

I go to St. Louis to-morrow for a conference on our matters and the future of the organization. I speak there before the Business Men's League on Wednesday, and shall be back here by Thursday evening, when I shall get in touch with you.

Meanwhile take care of yourself and nurse your health.

Yours very truly,

DECEMBER 14, 1915.

Mr. JOSEPH KELLER,
1255 Wright St., Indianapolis, Ind.

MY DEAR MR. KELLER: Will you kindly communicate through the usual channels with the German Press of Texas and also the Sons of Hermann and the branches of the German-American Alliance urging the importance of every foreign born voter in that State paying his poll tax before February 1st. In view of expected legislation inimical to all that which this element of the citizenship holds sacred and precious, every man with any love of his race and that which his race stands for should without fail place himself in the position to defend his interests as a voter by paying the poll tax and thus enabling himself to exercise the right of franchise.

Matters here are progressing steadily but somewhat slowly, and as soon as I am able to talk definitely regarding future work I will call on you.

Mr. Lieber was here a few days ago, and mentioned having had a little talk with you relative to your seeing Mr. Daussmann of Evansville.

Would you go with me to see Mr. Daussmann? I am very desirous of laying certain matters before him of which you know, and your support would be very helpful to me. We could at the same time see the Cook people.

Are you taking a rest? You really ought to, not only for your own sake, but for others', and now would be an excellent time. Why not make up your mind to go away for two or three weeks and forget all work and worry? It did wonders for you when you tried it once before, and you would greatly please me if you would try it again right now.

Kindest regards,

Yours very truly,

INDIANAPOLIS, December 23, 1915.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
3357 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

MY DEAR SIR: I was compelled to stay at home for a few days. The old trouble you know, hence the delay of answering your letter.

Regarding the trip to Evansville, I wish to say that I am willing at any time to go down with you to see Messrs. Daussmann and Hartmotz, but don't you believe it would be just as well for us to see them here in Indianapolis, as they are coming up here almost every month.

As it is only a short time to January 1st, I believe it is necessary for me to know in which states we have to start our organization work next year, as I like to prepare everything before hand and get Messrs. Soergel and Barth to work at once. Texas, Ohio, Iowa and Illinois have all written to me for help in the coming year, but of course I am not in a position to answer them properly.

When and where would you like to see me so we can discuss and arrange the program for our future work?

I enclose you herewith a letter that goes forward to Texas, to the Newspapers and the different branches of the Alliance and to the lodges of the Sons of Hermann.

Wishing you and yours a Merry Christmas and A Happy and Prosperous New Year, I am, as ever,

Truly yours,

JOS. KELLER.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
3357 South Michigan Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: First I must ask your pardon for not seeing you last Saturday as it was originally intended, but circumstances arose which could not be controlled previously.

I informed you when you were here, that I had called the officers of our State Alliance for a meeting here early in January to discuss the political out-look in Indiana. Secretary Dreisch, of Evansville, informed me last Thursday that he had received word from the members of the Executive Committee, that on the 10th and 11th of January the gentlemen could come here and that he had called the meeting for that time.

I believe that our work in Chicago would not last longer than two hours or so and that we would have sufficient time to see you. The death of Bloedel in Pennsylvania, one of the members of the Financial Board, The proposed Conference with the four large German Church Organizations of America and the Officers of the National German American Alliance, The National Prohibition Question etc., kept us busy until 5:00 o'clock in the evening and we had only time to rush to the depot to make my train. I instructed Mr. Barth to go up to see you Monday and explain the matter.

Mr. Barth will work in Illinois, until I hear from you and we will take up the work in Ohio as soon as possible, that means after we have a thorough understanding with our friend Schwaab.

With the kindest personal regards, I am,

Yours very respectfully,

JOS. KELLER.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 21st, 1916.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
3375 South Michigan Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: For the last ten days our Mr. Barth has worked in Illinois, mostly in the northern part of the state. He returned from Rock Island, Wednesday, has also organized a new branch in Crystal Lake, has done effective work in Elgin, Carpenterville, Dundee and other places. Our arrangements for Ohio are now complete and Mr. Soergel will start to work in that state as soon as I return from Decatur, where I will address a mass meeting next week. We will devote most of our time with the church organizations in the country; we secured the addresses of the ministers of all the German denominations. Our friend, Mr. Schwaab, seems to be entirely satisfied with the plans, we have made so far.

We have just finished the preparation of a new pamphlet, which will be sent broadcast, and of which we have ten-thousand in print. The same does not deal with the prohibition question, but is a strong appeal to every society in the country standing outside of our national organization as yet. I shall mail you several copies of the same early next week. Of course you understand, that we could not evade the all absorbing topic of the present murderous struggle across the seas.

Pardon me, if I must ask you, to kindly replenish our fund with Mr. Tjarks, as I need money for the first of the month, and do not like to draw too close on the bank in Baltimore. I am with the kindest personal regards.

Very truly yours,

JOS. KELLER.

Circular calls attention to the tendency throughout the United States to force restrictive laws upon German Americans, and to undermine the influence of German Americans in every respect. Circular calls attention also to the fact that the poll tax must be paid on or before February 1, 1916 and urges everyone to pay this tax in order that they may be able to vote and take part in preserving those things which are dear to every German American. The circular asks the addressee to call attention to the payment of the poll tax in their societies and in the circles of their friends for "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." DECEMBER 17, 1913.

Dr. C. J. HEXAMER,
Philadelphia, Pa.

MY DEAR DOCTOR: You have doubtless learned through the newspaper press of the demonstration recently made in Washington by the United Anti-liquor forces of the country on the occasion of the introduction in Congress of the Hobson, Shepard, and Works resolutions providing for the nation-wide prohibition of the manufacture, sale and importation of alcoholic beverages, copies of which I herein enclose.

Huge petitions praying for the adoption of these resolutions by the Congress were presented on this occasion, and they are being followed up by floods of letters and telegrams from all parts of the country insisting upon the passage of the resolutions.

Unless, therefore, those opposed to nation-wide prohibition make their sentiments and opinions promptly known to Congress, it is clearly evident that those resolutions will be passed.

May I suggest that you issue a general call to all your local German-American Alliances, requesting them with the utmost promptness to pass strong resolutions protesting against the passage of these resolutions and to forward these protests (giving the total membership of the Alliances) to the respective members of Congress from their districts, to the United States Senators from their State, and also to Hon. Henry D. Clayton, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the House, and Senator Charles A. Culberson, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, which Committees have these resolutions under their consideration.

May I also ask you to let me know when you have done this and what I may figure the bulk and extent of the protests to be that will go forth from the Alliances. You will readily understand that this knowledge will be of considerable value to me in the general progress of the campaign.

Very truly yours,

Furthermore, it will be sent to everyone of our State Branches and their sub-branches, and if possible, to any German Society of any kind throughout the United States. Judging by the results I obtained by a similar agitation for a petition in favor of the Boers at the time, we should have at least four millions of protests entered in Congress against these obnoxious measures.

This is a circular in multigraph in the German language, sent "for your attention and for publication and comment in such a manner as to attract attention in the next issues of your valued paper." The circular is headed "National German American Alliance, Central Office, 419 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa., December, 1913." The body of the circular is addressed to "The President of every State Alliance with an Appeal to the Presidents of all of our Subordinate Alliances, To all Organizations standing on our Side, To the Branches and Subordinate Alliances of these Organizations, as well as to all Citizens and Women Voters Sympathizing with us and Friendly to our Cause." The circular calls attention to H. J. R. 168, S. J. R. 88 and S. J. R. 50, and to the petitions that are being sent in by the prohibitionists for the passage of these resolutions. The circular calls upon the persons addressed to obtain signatures for the petition enclosed, Exhibits 447 and 448 and to address these petitions to their respective Congressmen, to every Senator representing their respective States and further to send a copy to the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the House and another copy to the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the Senate. The circular further calls upon the addressees to get individuals to write letters of protest against these measures. The circular is over the signature in multigraph of C. J. Hexamer, President.

Dr. C. J. HEXAMER,
National German-American Alliance, 419 Walnut Street,
Philadelphia, Pa.

MY DEAR DOCTOR: I am very much obliged for your letter of the 24th inst., and your prompt response to my suggestion to have protests sent to Washington against the Hobson, Works, and Shepard resolutions.

I anticipate the very best results from your appeal.

With kindest regards,

Very truly yours, ——— ———.

PROHIBITION—FLAYED BY ALLIANCE—GERMAN-AMERICANS WILL GIVE AID TO LIBERALS—VICTORY FOR KAISER, IS PRAYER OF EXECUTIVE—POSITION OF SOCIETY WILL BE APPRECIATED FULLY AFTER WAR ENDS, SAYS DR. HEXAMER—FRIENDLINESS BETWEEN WASHINGTON AND BERLIN SOUGHT.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 2.

Dr. C. J. Hexamer, of Philadelphia, speaking at a dinner to-night of the German-American Alliance, said that while the war lasted it was not to be expected that the German-American position would be fully appreciated.

"Germany is fighting to-day for the principle which will bring world peace nearer to us than all the efforts of pacifists and dreamers," Dr. Hexamer said. "Germany is fighting for the principle of the open door on the oceans as well as on land. If this principle was to receive general recognition many of the causes for future wars would be eliminated.

"Therefore, hail and victory to German and Austrian arms on the seas, on land and in the air.

"The purpose of this alliance, especially since August, 1914, has been to promote friendly relations between Germany and the United States, and it is the hope of German-Americans that these friendly relations never may be disturbed."

"MOST HUMAN OF NEUTRALS."

"I do not want to be prophetic," he added, "but I believe you can take this message from here that the future will prove us right. The time will and must come when the American, even the boldest Anglo-American, will admit that the German-American is the most Americanized and therefore the most human of all neutral American citizens. They will then praise us as much as fellow citizens as we are now being condemned by a small minority."

Among other speakers was Dr. Leo Stern, Milwaukee; Prof. Kuno Meyer, Dublin, Ireland; Dr. Philip Applemann, Burlington, Vt., and Representative Julius Kahn, of San Francisco.

To-day the alliance began a three days' convention here, more than 500 delegates having seats. In the first business session Dr. Hexamer emphasized that the organization stands for the perpetuation of friendly relations between the United States and Germany. The convention adopted the Secretary's report, embodying the recommendation that nation-wide prohibition be opposed.

The eighth biennial convention of the National German-American Alliance of the United States organized to-day for three days of business sessions.

After the task of assembling in committees the business for the next two days the delegates sought relaxation to-night at a banquet given by the California branch of the Sons of Hermann.

The report of Secretary Adolph Timm, of Philadelphia, called attention to the plan of campaign of the Prohibitionists as outlined at Atlantic City recently, and expressed the belief that "strong agitation by the liberal element is absolutely necessary." The report added a recommendation that German-Americans obtain from their representatives copies of the Congressional Record as a reminder that they are following the doings of Congress.

President Hexamer said to-night that it was expected resolutions dealing with the prohibition question would be introduced before the convention during the session. The German-Americans, he said, were rather opposed to the method of prohibition than the result sought, and felt that education was a better means of controlling the drink habit.

Reports from various state leagues showed a membership of 2,500,000 and the existence of more than 10,000 German-American societies affiliated with the alliance.

While the contest for the 1917 convention was not formally opened, Milwaukee and Omaha and Atlantic City have been proposed.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., December 29, 1913.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: I have just returned from Washington, and things look rather blue; our friends are badly depressed. I have done everything to cheer them, and infused new hope. I have appointed a number of prominent residents, who are members of our District of Columbia Branch, to form a standing Legislative Committee of the National German American Alliance in Washington, and I have been fortunate in securing the Hon. Simon Wolf as Chairman of that Committee. Mr. Wolf is not only one of the most respectable Citizens of Washington, a great orator, Ex-President, and now Hon. President of our Washington Branch, but he is also—which is very important for our purposes—one of, if not the most influential of Jews in the United States. He will therefore, bring in a vigorous and persistent element of our population to work for us. He suggests that the Alliance should have a permanent office in Washington so that matters could be more quickly and more efficaciously disposed of. The Alliance has no money for this purpose, and I beg leave to inquire whether you will advance the $600.00 a year the amount necessary. Mr. Wolf will take no compensation whatever, and the expense will be simply for office rent and incidental expenses.

Kindly let me know at your earliest convenience what you think of the project. If you are not favorable to it, I will drop it.

With kindest regards, and wishing you a prosperous and happy New Year 1914, I am

Yours sincerely

C. J. HEXAMER.

Dr. C. J. HEXAMER,
419 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

MY DEAR DOCTOR: I have read your letter of December 29th with great interest, and hasten to say that I shall be very glad to contribute the $600.00 required for the purpose you mention.

If you will let me know to whom this sum is to be sent, I will see that it is remitted by New York draft.

I shall be absent from Chicago all next week, but will attend to this matter the moment I return and receive your advices.

My best wishes for the coming year.

Yours very truly,

Doctor C. J. HEXAMER,
419 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

MY DEAR DOCTOR: Returned on Sunday from the West where I made a number of addresses. I made use of the German American Alliance in all addresses, as an advocate of personal liberty, of unrestricted immigration, and against national legislation restricting liquor traffic, all of which was received with great applause.

I have been under the weather for three or four days, but hope to be all right in a day or two. I shall see the gentleman from Baltimore to-morrow.

I have been in constant touch with our friends in Congress, and am thoroughly posted as to the prospects. While the Immigration Bill may pass as submitted by the Committee on Immigration, there is now serious doubt as to the passage of any legislation affecting the liquor traffic; at least this session. There are other measures, however, pending, of which I have ordered copies that may interest our Association, and will keep you advised.

Very sincerely

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: Inclosed please find copy of a letter I received to-day. I was utterly dumfounded when a few days ago, at Baltimore, I was told by a stranger that the National German American Alliance was receiving large sums of money from the Brewers. Now I get this letter, which seems to indicate that some fools are castrating the strength of the Alliance in its fight against Prohibition. This must be stopped at once, or else we might as well give up the fight, as we will have no standing.

With kindest regards, yours sincerely,

Copy of a letter addressed to Dr. C. J. Hexamer Philadelphia, Pa., by E. L. Durand and dated February 4, 1914 (The letter encloses a draft for $78.07 representing the poll tax of the State Alliance of Ohio). The writer states that it is well that the beer barrel should not stand in the foreground of the National German American Alliance, but that in view of the unscrupulous practices of the prohibitionists the good citizens must enter the fight. "The brewers of Iowa formerly have given us some material support but this year they indicated to us that the National Association of Brewers had the matter in hand, and that it would give to the National Alliance such means, of which a good part would come to Iowa, for the campaign. Up to the present time, however, nothing whatever has occurred in this respect and I therefore commit myself to put the question whether out of those sources money has already been appropriated for us. We must have sufficient means at hand for organization, circulars, etc., or our entire fight in the state of Iowa is hopeless. Hoping for an early reply, I sign myself with genuine German greeting, yours, E. L. Durand."

"ORGANIC LAW UPHELD BY HEBREW SOCIETIES—THREE GREAT ORGANIZATIONS FAVOR CONTINUING PRESENT GOVERNMENT PLAN IN DISTRICT.

"Three great organizations, with members having more than 3,000,000 votes in the United States, represented in Washington by Simon Wolf, are in favor of the present plan of taxation and relationship between the District of Columbia and the nation, according to a statement made by Mr. Wolf today.

"These organizations are the National German-American Alliance, with headquarters in Philadelphia; the Order of B'nai B'rith, with headquarters in Chicago, and the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, with headquarters in Cincinnati.

"MEMBERS ARE A UNIT.

"Mr. Wolf said the members of these organizations are a unit in believing in the proper development of the National Capital along the lines followed since the adoption of the organic act, and in the fair treatment of the District by the rest of the country, acting through Congress.

"Mr. Wolf declared that there is danger of Washington being greatly harmed if the present policy of some members of Congress is continued very long, and that care should be taken to spread accurate information concerning the situation here in order that there be no misunderstanding of the facts.

"CIVIC FEDERATION APPROVES.

"Richard B. Watrous, secretary of the National Civic Federation, announced some time ago that that organization would stand back of the present partnership between the District and the federal government, and therefore Mr. Wolf's statement makes it certain that four great associations with members in all parts of the country will take the same stand.

"Mr. Wolf also said today that a great deal of injury is being done through the way in which some property in the District is being assessed. He cited several cases of property which he said is overassessed. He declared that undoubtedly there are some properties in the District which increased in value between the last assessment and the one before that, but added that additional values were placed on a number of properties which actually decreased in value.

"FAVORS PERSONAL LIBERTY.

"Commenting on what the organizations which he represents in Washington stand for, Mr. Wolf decried the tendency to restrict the personal liberty of the residents of Washington. He said that the city will never be made better through legislation, and that the churches and similar organizations should be utilized for improving the morals of the people.

"He referred to the Jones-Works excise law and the Kenyon 'red light' bill as evidences of the increasing tendency to an effort to reform the city through laws. He declared that laws are made to punish wrongdoing. Efforts to make people better through legislation have been made almost since the world began, said Mr. Wolf, and have always proved fruitless."

Dr. C. J. HEXAMER,

MY DEAR FRIEND: Last evening there was a conference held at the Arion Hall, at which there were fifty gentlemen present. At my suggestion the Chairman of the evening was Mr. Wiegand, the President of the Central German Association. I made a motion that a committee of five be appointed to secure the names of one hundred men of this city, whose liberal ideas are well known, and that there was to be no saloon keepers or any one interested in the saloon or beer business in that list. The said committee to be appointed was to meet and select an executive committee of nine or twelve to call a public mass meeting whenever, in their judgment, it was deemed important and essential, to the end of combating the nation-wide prohibition—all of which was unanimously carried, and a great deal of enthusiasm shown. It seems to me that something like this ought to be done in every city and town of the country. There were representatives at this meeting of the Italian Society, Labor Unions, German Associations, of course, Catholic and Jewish Organizations; and independent of these Organizations, we will secure leading men of leading spirit who are simply fighting for a principle and not for self or business purposes. Think this matter over and put it in motion all over the country if you think well of it.

Very sincerely,

S. WOLF.

"An appeal to Liberal Minded Citizens throughout the United States, and to all Organizations of every National Extraction, to Labor Unions, Clerical and Political Associations of all Parties:

"We are fighting for a principle and not for any selfish interests in opposing certain bills in Congress proposing a nation-wide prohibition amendment to the Constitution of the United States. Our call, therefore, goes forth to every liberal minded American Citizen of every national extraction, creed or political faith, who is opposed to coercive measures and is in favor of true temperance. For prohibition, like the forbidden fruit, engenders the lust for strong drink.

"We call upon liberal minded American Citizens in every city, town, borough, or hamlet, to form committees and to confer with other committees of the district or neighborhood to select an Executive Committee in a central place, with the understanding that there be no saloon keepers, or anyone interested in the liquor traffic, connected with that committee. The Executive Committee to call a public mass meeting whenever in their judgment it is deemed important and essential, to the end of combating the nation-wide prohibition idea. Nation-wide prohibition and the principle of prohibition in general is an injudicious attack upon the freedom and the personal right of the individual to seek happiness in his own way. It is a vicious, retrogressive movement, that wherever introduced hampers the respect for law, causes endless friction, and tends to lower the ethical standard of our citizenship through hypocrisy and blackmail, causing that which is prohibited by law to be done on the sly.

Dr. C. J. HEXAMER,
419 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

MY DEAR DOCTOR: I was greatly interested in your letter of the 12th inst., enclosing copy of the letter you have received from Mr. L. Wolf, of Washington.

The idea is excellent. There is, in fact, a movement in contemplation to call for gigantic demonstrations in the shape of parades and mass meetings in about one hundred of the chief centers of the country, the meetings to be addressed by the most prominent speakers obtainable.

I would suggest, for your consideration, whether it would not be well to time these meetings in such wise that they occur together, by which I mean not on any given day or week, all over the country, but locally at the same time.

There is some difference of opinion among certain large organizations which are interested as to when such demonstrations are likely to be of the greatest effect, and had you not written me on the subject I would very shortly have consulted you in this regard.

What is your opinion? The Press is doing splendid work in stirring up the liberal elements and educating them to the necessity of taking some drastic action. The question is whether that work has progressed to the point at which a really enthusiastic response can be expected. The German Press, of course, has, as always, been first and foremost in the field, but a very vast campaign of the same kind is now going on in the so-called foreign language press, and it may take a little longer before the fruits of this campaign will become ripe.

I shall much appreciate any advice you may be able to give me on this subject.

Very truly yours,

PA/P.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: In rply to your favor of the 14th inst., I beg leave to state, that I do not think it would be wise to have any public demonstrations during this session of Congress.

From all that I can learn, the Democratic Party will not dare to do anything until after the November elections, and in all probability, not then, during the present administration. Wilson is anxious for a second term, and cannot get it without the German vote.

My idea is, that it would be better to keep our powder dry until actual need arises to shoot off our heaviest guns. If we should do so at the present time, we will, no doubt, weaken any effect we would want to produce later on.

In re: Mr. Kellers work in Iowa:

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
Chicago, Ill.

DEAR SIR: After a mental revue of my conference of yesterday with Mr. Joseph Keller and later with Mr. Peter J. Barth, Mr. Kellers employee, I come to see, that we have been talking about all sorts of topics, but have failed in a thorough discussion of the issues which are up in Iowa, and which are to be determined by the fall election.

I consider it however very important that both Mr. Keller and Mr. Barth should be thoroughly conversant with that subject.

Since Mr. Keller is to return to Chicago, some time in the near future, I thought it best to call your attention to our oversight of yesterday.

May I suggest that some one from your office take the trouble to go over the entire subject with both gentlemen mentioned?

Truly yours,

JULIUS MOERSCH.

In re: Protests from Minnesota to Congress.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
Chicago, Ill.

DEAR SIR: The following German organizations of our State have thus far send protest resolutions against the Prohibition measures before Congress to Washington:

State Alliance, Germ. Am. Natl. Alliance,
Branch of St. Paul and 43 separate societies and lodges,
" " Minneapolis. Number of local societies protesting not known,
" " Duluth and 2 societies,
" " Winona and several societies,
" " Red Wing,
" " Hastings,
" " Stillwater and 3 societies,
" " Mankato,
" " Elmore,
" " New Ulm and several societies,
" " St. Cloud,
" " Brainerd,
" " Crookston and several societies,
" " Lester Prairie,
" " Fairmont and county organizations.

The protests in every instance set forth the reason why protest has been made.

Several of the members of the Minnesota Congressional Delegation and the chairmen of the Judiciary Committees have acknowledged receipt of the protest resolutions.

Respectfully yours,

JULIUS MOERSCH.

DEAR MR. MOERSCH: I have to-day sent Mr. John Tjarks a New York draft for $5000 in conformity with the understanding arrived at during your and Mr. Keller's last visit to Chicago.

I think it was quite understood that Mr. Keller would return to Chicago in order to familiarize himself in detail with the important data we have gathered in Iowa and Texas. But to make sure that there was no misunderstanding about this, I have to-day written Mr. Keller recalling the fact to his notice and asking him, as soon as convenient, to pay us a visit for this purpose.

I am much obliged for the information you were kind enough to send me in your letter of January 18th.

Very truly, yours,

DEAR MR. ANDREAE: I am very thankful to you for having favored me with copy of your addresses which you held recently before the National Hotel Keepers Association and before the Brewers of the State of New York.

Flattery is out of place you know, but permit me to say that I consider both addresses most valuable and dealing with the problem of National Prohibition in a manner of which I highly approve. It is something different from the dope handed out by some of the offices which are supposed to be fighting the battles of the Liquor Interests. I like particularly that part of your speech before the New York Brewers in which you open their eyes to their own shortcomings. Such are conditions which I experience all along. Last Sunday I was called to Duluth to address a large gathering (mostly Germans) together with Congressman Miller from Minnesota and a representative of Governor Eberhard. Both gentlemen being candidates for re-election, spoke on general subjects and it was left to me to discuss the National Prohibition question and to urge the voters to action. But what do you suppose, after the meeting one of the prominent brewers came to me and said: "Mr. Moersch your address was very fine, but permit me to say that you talked to much of prohibition". It is this cowardice and "Leisetreterei" (laying down) which is disgusting.

I do think if these gentlemen feel that if they had a just cause to defend they should have the courage to come out in the open.

I will appreciate it very much if you will put my name on your mailing list for any literature that may be sent out in the future from your office. Thanking you in advance, I remain

Very truly yours,

JULIUS MOERSCH.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: It is getting high time for a start to be made with the German-American Alliance in this state. Our state organization is constantly on my back, and I am having difficulty in holding them off. Have you made arrangements with the National Organization to move in this state? All that would be necessary at this time, would be to perfect organizations, and to urge upon each organization the necessity of unity of action so that when we get word to them as to who should have support on the different tickets for the nomination, we can wield some influence in favor of our candidate.

As soon as you have time, I wish you would kindly take this matter up and see that Dr. E. G. Durand, of Burlington, Iowa, President of the State Alliance, hears from the National Association.

DEC. 18, 1913.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
No. 3357 South Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: We have the organization in Iowa moving fairly well. The investigations have all been completed, and I have had four men in the field for several months, and after January first I will have the entire intended force operating.

The expense is running quite heavy, as was expected of course, and I find that in order to keep our own funds in safe condition, it will be necessary to have some of the help agreed upon.

I have analyzed the situation carefully, and this is what I would like, if it is agreeable to you and Mr. Gardiner. The understanding was that you and Mr. Gardiner were to aid us to the extent of $37,500.00, which was one-half of the estimated cost of the campaign.

I would like one-third of the amount you were to let us have, on or shortly after January 1st, 1914. This would be $12,500. Then one-third on March 1, 1914; and one-third on May 1, 1914.

Our Association has made complete arrangements for more than their share of the expense, as agreed between us; but our funds come in installments, and I would not like to deplete our treasury and then get the last half from you. I think it would be much more satisfactory all around if you could let us have this money in installments, as suggested, and then we would always be in a reasonably satisfactory financial condition.

Trusting this arrangement will meet with your approval, and that I may hear from you in the very near future, and wishing you great success in your work, and a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, I am

Yours very truly,

HENRY THUENEN.

I suppose of course that you have overlooked the matter, and for that reason I am calling your attention to it again. We have sufficient funds to carry the campaign at its present gait, but I am enlarging the expense now and within a few weeks will be spending more money than I am getting in. Naturally, I would feel much easier when I have a little surplus. I would thank you very much for giving the matter your attention.

DEAR MR. ANDREAE: Mr. Thuenen, as you know, has asked that the appropriation for Iowa which you and I jointly agreed upon, shall be paid to him in three equal installments of $12,500 each and he likewise has asked that the first installment be paid at once.

Upon the receipt of his request to this effect, I communicated with Mr. Sunstein and he remitted to me his proportion of the first installment which amounted to $4,166.66. As you and I agreed with one another that the amount to be contributed by the brewers should come equally from your fund and mine, I have accordingly had a check made out for the amount of Mr. Sunstein's proportion, $4,166.66 plus one-half of the balance of $12,500 or $4,166.67.

I accordingly enclose the check referred to drawn to the order of Henry Thuenen, Secretary for $8,333.33 and would ask that you kindly forward it to Mr. Thuenen along with your check for the difference between its amount and the sum of $12,500 or $4,166.67 which is the equivalent of the amount which has been paid by my fund.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
 # 3354 So. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: I beg to suggest that we have received one-third of the contribution which it was understood you and Mr. Gardiner were to make toward the Iowa campaign, leaving a balance of $25,000.00 which we are still to receive.

In my former letter, I suggested that this contribution be made in three installments. You will understand that we have our Primaries on June 2, 1914, and the bulk of the expense comes before that time. I would therefore like to have the last of this money not later than May 15th., if you and Mr. Gardiner could make it convenient. This will leave our treasury in a reasonably safe condition, so that we will be in a position to proceed with our work without fear of financial disaster.

Under these circumstances, it would not come at all amiss to have another contribution at this time, and I suggest that you take the matter up with Mr. Gardiner and send me $12,500.00 at as early a date as you find it convenient. I will write you again about May 1st., for the third and last installment.

Trusting you will find this satisfactory, and wishing you success in your work, I am

Yours very truly,

HENRY THUENEN.

P. S. An identical letter to this I am sending today to Mr. Gardiner.

MY DEAR MR. THUENEN: I have your favor of the 13th, and note contents. Mr. Gardiner has been in Virginia, but probably returned to Philadelphia today, and I shall await advices from him in regard to the matter you mention.

I am ready with my proportion of the contribution, but I presume it will be best to remit the total, when received.

Very truly yours,

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: Mr. Thuenen having requested some few days ago the payment of the second installment of $12,500. of the Iowa appropriation. I am enclosing herein our check to the order of Henry Thuenen, Secretary, for $8,333.33, which includes Mr. Sunstein's proportion of the installment amounting to $4,166.66 and one-half of the balance chargeable to our bureau amounting to $4,166.67. If you will forward the enclosed check and your own check for an amount equal to our proportion or $4,166.67, to Mr. Thuenen, I will be very much obliged.

With kind regards, I am,

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: In accordance with my previous agreement, I am calling your attention to the balance of the amount which you and Mr. Gardiner agreed to contribute towards the Iowa campaign.

You have already contributed $25,000.00, in two installments, and the third and last installment, amounting to $12,500.00, is still unpaid.

As I wrote you, I would like this money by the middle of May, at the latest, if you can possibly make it convenient. The primary campaign is the big end of the battle, and we are right in the midst of it now. It will last until June 1st, when the primaries will be held. I would like to have this fund a little in advance of that date, so that when the primaries are over, our treasury will not be completely depleted.

I trust you will pardon me for my persistance in asking for these controbution, but it seems that it takes a large amount of money to keep an organization likes ours, working so extensively, going.

Thanking you in advance for giving this matter your attention, I am

Yours, very truly,

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
No. 3357 So. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: Now that the first engagement of the battle is over, I presume you will be glad to hear something of the results.

I am not in a position to give exact details, as the votes have not been canvassed by the different Boards of Supervisors, and their findings sent to the Secretary of State. I can report however as to the more important offices.

You will remember that we had practically no contest for the republican nomination for Governor. While there were three candidates, the present incumbent was entitled to re-nomination by precedent, and we made no fight on his nomination since he would probably be as satisfactory as either of his opponents.

On the contest for the republican nomination for lieutenant governor, we had a clear-cut fight. One of the two candidates is the Superintendant of the Anti-Saloon League, while the other candidate is an avowed liberal, with a record in the legislature as well as in the office of lieutenant governor distinctly wet. We were successful in nominating our man by a very satisfactory margin, his majority probably ranging from between 20,000 to 30,000.

In the democratic contest for governor, you have no doubt been advised that we had the satisfaction of nominating our man by an overwhelming majority.

The contest for lieutenant governor on the democratic ticket is still in doubt, with the indications pointing to the nomination of Mr. Sheldon, whom we supported.

These are the big state offices in which we interested ourselves, and as you see, we have won in every instance.

You will remember that our greatest fight was on the contest for the democratic nomination for United States Senator. Our opponent was a trained politician, with the most perfect organization ever developed in Iowa, and with funds without limit, it being estimated that he spent in the neighborhood of $100,000. Our candidate was comparatively poor, and I am informed that his total expenditure will be under $10,000. And yet we won this contest by a majority of at least 20,000 votes. Mr. Connolly's manager leaned entirely upon us, and depended upon us for practically all the work that was done.

Under the circumstances, I feel that we are to be congratulated on the result. When you consider that we had a contest in nearly every senatorial and legislative district in the state to look after, and did practically all the work for Mr. Connolly, against the most aggressive kind of a campaign, behind which was an unlimited amount of money, you can see that it was something of a triumph to win.

I am free to say that in my judgment, this contest could not have possibly been successful had it not been for the effectiveness of the organization created by us under your directions. Generally after a contest of this character one can figure a great many things which were neglected, or which should have been done; but as I look back upon this contest, I feel that every element of organization possible in the state was developed to its best and greatest strength, and that without this organization we must have met with a humiliating defeat.

I have already sent to Mr. Gibson a report of the results of the Primaries in the Senate and House, which is, to say the least, very gratifying. With the exception of only a very few instances, we were successful in our many contests.

This being the first time that the so-called Andreae system of organization was put into practise in Iowa, I feel that you are to be congratulated upon the results obtained in this state. We still have the election before us, which will be the final engagement of this particular battle, and no one can forecast the result; but I am as certain as I ever can be of anything, that with the continued application of the system of organization we have commenced in Iowa, it cannot be more than one or two battles until we will find ourselves in possession of the fort. I am sure that if we can continue this work through another, or at least two more campaigns we will be practically in a position to dictate legislation on the liquor question, within such reasonable bounds at least, as both you and I would freely accede.

Trusting that your work in other states may be as successful and satisfactory as it has thus far proven itself to be in Iowa, and with kind personal regards, I am,

Yours very truly,

HENRY THUENEN.

Mr. HENRY THUENEN,
Davenport, Iowa.

MY DEAR MR. THUENEN: I received your most welcome letter just before starting for a trip to Kentucky and Ohio, which is the cause of my delay in answering and thanking you for it.

Nothing has so much gratified me for a long time as the facts mentioned in this letter and the expressions with which you state them. To know that you so thoroughly approve of our methods after having tried them means infinitely more than it did to know that you believed in those methods before you tried them.

I want to be very frank with you, however, and say that the methods themselves form the easiest part of the achievement. The real test is the manner of their application, and we here are all agreed, and have been for some time, that in this respect the work performed in Iowa has been simply ideal. In other words, to use a theatrical simile, if we wrote the play, we also know that it would have been a complete failure but for the excellence of the Company that produced it.

Let us hope that when the last curtain is rung down, it will be amid the applause of the audience, and that author and actor will, as they should, go before the curtain together to share in such laurels as may be accorded them.

With kindest regards, Yours very truly,

JUNE 22/13.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX
United States Brewers Assn 109 E. 15th Street New York

DEAR MR. FOX: I have been absent, in conference with the gentlemen of the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association, hence my belated reply to your favor of the 16th inst.

Of course, any plan that will give us additional publicity is worth pursuing. You are aware, I presume, that all large advertisers in our business have arrangements with the newspapers by which a certain amount of reading matter is accepted from them editorially for publication. As an instance, about a week ago I met a gentleman connected with the firm which manages the advertising of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association, who told me that his firm had had the open letter to Dean Sumner republished in eighteen hundred newspapers. He went on to say that their trouble was to obtain really effective matter for this purpose, it being necessary to supply the newspapers with material that, in addition to its argumentative features, possessed some news value. But he made it clear to me that the basis of all large advertising contracts is the securing of an amount of reading space in the newspapers for articles in defense of the trade, and I have been wondering whether sufficient attention is being paid to this important privilege by the advertising brewers themselves. If its use is left entirely in the discretion of the firms who place the advertising, it is questionable whether all such firms devote the intelligent attention to the matter which it requires.

I offer this for your and Mr. Kuppel's consideration. The only fear I have about the proposal to the advertising brewers to give up one third of their advertising space for the purposes in question is that it will appear tantamount to a request for a contribution in money, and while we are straining every effort to induce them to provide sufficient means for our campaign of organization, this additional request may seem out of proportion large to them. But there is no harm in trying.

You will have received the pledges of the Ohio brewers to the extent of about 2,200,000 barrels, and I think I can promise that you will have the same from Illinois within a few days. Should other States be dilatory in this matter it seems to me that the only way to tackle it will be by personal appeal in each brewing centre. I believe there should be no difficulty in obtaining the necessary assurance, by the present written form of communication, from brewers selling 25,000,000 barrels. But we should not stop there. If Mr. Gardiner would be willing, later on, to accompany me on a trip to the chief brewing centres, I believe, that, with the help of our friends in each locality, we would succeed in adding subscribers selling another 5,000,000 if not 10,000,000 barrels.

The National Wholesale Liquor Dealers have pretty well covered the ground in their own ranks since their Louisville convention, and I know the results to be very satisfactory.

I wrote Colonel Ruppert on June 6, and again on June 11, but have received no reply. Would you mind ascertaining whether he has received my letters, which I addressed to the brewery.

With best regards,

Very truly yours,

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: May I venture to ask for your advice with reference to the Manhattan Brewing Company of Chicago, who write as follows:

"In accordance with our agreement to contribute three cents a barrel on 200,000 barrels in four yearly installments for five years, we herewith enclose our check for $1,500.00 as the first payment, due December 1st, 1913, the other payments to be made on March 1st, June 1st and September 1st of every year."

There is nothing in their agreement which provides for the periodical payments they mention. There is no objection, of course, to the quarterly payments, only that by accepting their first payment now, in accordance with their letter, we lose three quarters of their dues and assessment for the current year. Of course in the long run it would work out all right as far as the assessment is concerned because they bind themselves for five years, beginning with December 1, 1913. Do you think it advisable to raise any question about it?

I also take the liberty of enclosing a statement showing the standing of our Chicago members. You will notice that a number of the Chicago brewers who signed the agreement have not even paid their dues yet.

DEAR MR. FOX: Replying to your favor of the 6th inst., I think it would be best to let the matter relative to the contribution of the Manhattan Brewery stand as it is. As you say, the agreement is for five years, and the amount of the assessment will work out correctly in the end.

I am taking up the matter of the contribution from Illinois generally with the Association here. But I would suggest that a personal letter should be written by you to each contributor strongly urging prompt payment. A uniform letter can be drafted, to be used in each separate case and signed by you. Printed communications are rarely effective.

JUNE 11, 1913

Colonel J. RUPPERT, Jr.,
c/o The Jacob Ruppert Brewery, New York.

MY DEAR COLONEL RUPPERT: All lines have now been laid for the organizing of certain large aggregations of men, which I need not name, under the direction of one central head, and it is all-important that no delay should take place in starting this work.

It was manifestly inexpedient for me even to hint at the nature of these plans in the presence of a large body of men such as met in New York last week. But the necessity of placing immediately a fund of at least $100,000 at my disposal to enable me to go ahead and put my workers in the field in these directions would be the more evident to you if you could realize the scepticism regarding our sincerity which I had to meet and overcome on the part of those whose co-operation I have enlisted. Yet I dare not proceed without having sufficient funds at my command to at least assure the carrying on of this work for the next six months.

While I am not authorized to say what the Wholesale Liquor Dealers will agree to do, I have the best reason for believing that they will be willing to contribute 50 cents for every dollar we put up, and I am writing their Association on the subject to-day.

Will you kindly take this matter up with the Treasurer of the U. S. B. A. and let me know whether I can rely upon these funds? I have spent the month of May in laying out these important plans in conjunction with the leaders of the organizations in question, and there is a great deal more of the same kind to be done in other directions, but I dare not go forward in any other direction until I know that the means will be forthcoming in sufficient proportions to carry out what can be done in those quarters. But to remain inactive now in respect to the campaign so far laid out and agreed upon would not only entail a loss of time and money, but alienate confidence in our earnestness of purpose on the part of the men whose time I have taken up in discussing and perfecting the plans.

I have arranged to get away for six weeks rest on the 5th of July, and if I can only have the assurance that these first funds can be relied upon, I shall be able to engage and send out the men who are now merely waiting for my instructions to proceed, and shall know that progress is being made while I am away. On the other hand, if I am left high and dry, all the work already done will be wasted, and months of costly time will have to pass without producing any tangible results.

I am anxious to have an opportunity to address our convention next October on the important matter of the individual co-operation of the brewers in this organization work. Our business depends entirely upon the so-called foreign element of our citizenship, but because these people are our friends we think that there is no need to worry about them. This is the worst of the many mistakes we have made in the past, for it has had the effect of embittering the very people against us without whose sympathy and support we cannot continue to exist. This policy of starving our friends and feeding our enemies which has obtained with us, both in legislative and in all other directions, should be reversed, and if every individual brewer will help to reverse it, there is no doubt whatever about the success of our campaign.

With best regards,

Very truly yours,

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
3357 So. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

DEAR SIR: At a meeting of the Finance Committee which was held to-day, it developed that a number of the brewers who signed the assessment agreement cannot pay this year, and others decline to continue. (Some of them have not paid their 1913 assessment yet.)

In view of this, and of the heavy expenses that we are under, the Finance Committee feels compelled to withhold all present expenditures that are not absolutely necessary. We have, accordingly, instructed the Treasurer to defer making further remittances to Mr. Oertseifen, for your account, at least until after the Board of Trustees meets. At the same time, I am directed to inform you that the Committee desires to have a statement from your Treasurer, at his earliest convenience, of his receipts and expenditures, and of the balance which he now has on hand, together with the obligations incurred by you, which are now pending or outstanding.

Awaiting your reply, I am, yours very truly,

DEAR SIR: I beg to enclose herewith the statement of Mr. Adam Ortseifen, Treas. showing his monthly receipts and disbursements since May 1, 1913.

The items of the disbursements are on record in the various accounts kept in my office, and will take some time to classify under their respective heads. Foreign Language Newspapers	$50,000
German American Alliance Organization	25,000
Salaries	30,000
Poll of hotel guests, to which over five thousand hotels have agreed, estimated	25,000

FEBRUARY 16, 1915.

Mr. E. A. SCHMIDT,
Pres. United States Brewers Association, 50 Union Square, New York City.

MY DEAR MR. SCHMIDT: In accordance with the request of the Secretary of the U. S. Brewers Association, I give below my actual obligations for the next twelve months:

Foreign Language Newspapers:
Written contracts [where are they]	$32,040
Verbal contract regarding expenses necessarily arising from the above, such as the preparation of articles, meetings of publishers at varoius centres, travelling expenses of directors of the A. A. F. L. N., and outlays incidental to the general campaign work among the foreign press	21,000
		$53,040
German American Alliance Bureau:
Fixed obligation in salaries	6,800
Office in Indianapolis, with attaching expenses, travelling, printing, publication and general campaign work in starting new branches of the Alliance, based on actual figures of last year	14,000
		20,800
General staff:
L. H. Gibson, survey and organization department	7,500
Gale M. Hartley, survey and organization and general charge of Foreign Language Newspaper work, direction of office, and campaign work	6,000
John Lloyd, captain of survey and organization staff	3,000
C. H. Wirmel, former commissioner of labor of State of Ohio, in charge of labor work	5,000
Adolph Kummer, from Brewery Workers Union	3,000
J. M. Gregory, in charge of Editorial work and News Bureau	3,600
		28,100
		$101,940

The report in your hands giving a statement of the amount required for the conduct of the work during 1915 covers all items of urgent necessity. The sum amounts to $324,000, or roughly $30,000 per month, and includes, of course, the contractual obligations already cited.

All this work is inter-dependent, and it would be practically useless to prosecute one item unless the other items were provided for. Thus the German American Alliance work goes hand in hand with our survey and organization work, and one would not be effective without the other. The same applies to the Foreign Press Work. The literary end of this work merely paves the way for the practical campaigning wherever the foreign element can be made a factor at the polls.

The balance in the fund of the National Association of Commerce and Labor is	$77,763.96
The balance in the fund held by Mr. Ortseifen, Treasurer, is	57,417.18
I expect from the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers Association the payment of the balance still due on the contribution promised for last year	20,000.00
Total	$155,181.14

It is fair to estimate that the payments to the fund of the National Association of Commerce and Labor during the next twelve months will equal the payments made during the past year, which, after deducting expenses of collection, amounted to roughly, $90,000. But, of course, this is problematical income, though I believe that with the cooperation of the U. S. Brewers Association, now promised, this source of income can not only be maintained, but very considerably increased.

I trust these facts and figures will give you the information you require.

Yours very truly,

Mr. HUGH F. FOX,
Secy., United States Brewers' Assn., 50 Union Square, New York City.

DEAR SIR: On May 22, 1915, I wrote you as follows:

"Mr. Andreae informs me that his understanding is that the National Association of Commerce and Labor is to receive from the United States Brewers' Assn. $8333.00 per month from April 1st. If this has been passed by the Board, I would request you to forward same to the Finance Committee National Assn. of C. & L."

To date I have had no reply from you and at a meeting of the Finance Committee of this Association today the question was raised by the members as to when we could count on your check for April and May, and if in the future arrangements could not be made to receive check monthly.

Yours very truly,

By ————————, Treas.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX,
Sec., U. S. Brewers' Assn., 50 Union Square, New York City.

MY DEAR MR. FOX: I regret very much that it will be impossible for me to be in New York on Friday, as all arrangements have been made for me to leave at the end of this week for San Francisco with the delegation of the Foreign Language Newspaper publishers to the International Press Congress. I am the Chairman of this delegation, and am now in the midst of the preparation of the address I have been invited to deliver before the Congress.

I understand that all the members of the Finance Committee of the National Association of Commerce and Labor appointed by the U. S. Brewers' Association, including Mr. Keeley are going to New York, and since they are familiar with every matter concerning my organization, all information regarding the same will be available through them.

Yours very truly,

NOVEMBER 29, 1915.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX,
Sec. U. S. Brewers' Assn., 50 Union Square, New York City.

MY DEAR MR. FOX: In reply to your favor of November 26, you may remember that, at the instance of the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association, my bureau contributed $1,000 a month to the National Model License League with the understanding that its publicity work should be conducted under my direction. I was asked repeatedly to give the League a general letter of endorsement, which it could send out to the trade when soliciting membership, but I always declined to do so, and only wrote Mr. Gilmore a letter confirming the understanding that I was to be consulted on the publicity work. I enclose copy of this letter, which speaks for itself. I know of no other document which Mr. Gilmore or any one representing him could show as coming from me.

Yours very truly,

(Copy of minutes produced on subpœna by Cooper Lyon.)

[Minutes of the Joint Committees of the National Association of Commerce and Labor and the United States Brewers' Association, held at the Chicago Athletic Club, Friday, January 22nd, 1915.]

Those present were: Messrs. Anheuser, Pabst, Landsberg, Keeley, Lilienthal, Berger, Davenport, Andreae.

The question of amending the By-Laws of the National Association of Commerce and Labor to create a Finance Committee with powers to determine and control the expenditures of the National Association of Commerce and Labor was discussed.

It was moved by Mr. Lilienthal and seconded by Mr. Keeley that the following amendment to the amendment as adopted January 15th, be recommended for the approval of the Executive Committee:

"There shall be a Finance Committee, consisting of three members to be appointed by the National Association of Commerce and Labor and three members to be appointed by the United States Brewers' Association.

The Finance Committee shall meet at least once a month or oftener if necessity arises, and shall have full access at all times to the books, accounts and vouchers of the Association.

The Finance Committee shall determine and control the expenditures of the Association."

Motion carried, made by Mr. Pabst and seconded by Mr. Lilienthal, that Mr. Percy Andreae be Chairman of the Finance Committee without a vote.

Motion carried, made by Mr. Lilienthal and seconded by Mr. Landsberg, that Mr. Keeley be Treasurer of the Finance Committee of the National Association of Commerce and Labor.

Motion carried, made by Mr. Pabst and seconded by Mr. Berger that Mr. Lilienthal countersign all checks of the Finance Committee of the National Association of Commerce and Labor and act as Secretary of the meetings of the Finance Committee.

Motion carried, made by Mr. Pabst and seconded by Mr. Anheuser, that Messrs. Keeley, Landsberg and Lilienthal be appointed a Committee on Banks to determine whether the moneys of the National Association of Commerce and Labor shall be deposited.

On motion made by Mr. Pabst meeting adjourned.

Meeting of Executive Committee of National Association of Commerce & Labor, held at the offices of the Association, 1136 Transportation Building, Chicago, Friday, February 25, 1915:

The meeting was called to order by President Andreae.

Those present were Messrs. Burger, Ruh, Wehmiller, Tabor, Scarborough, Bartholomay, Lilienthal, Horix, Parker, Roney, Fischer, Andreae and Lyon.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and discussed.

It was moved by Mr. Burger and seconded by Mr. Lilienthal that the following amendment to the Amendment, adopted January 15, 1915, be adopted and made a part of the By-Laws of this Association:

"There shall be a Finance Committee, consisting of three members to be appointed by the National Association of Commerce & Labor and three members to be appointed by the United States Brewers' Association.

The Finance Committee shall meet at least once a month or oftener if necessity arises, and shall have full access at all times to the books, account and vouchers of the Association.

The Finance Committee shall determine and control the expenditures of the Association."

In order to transfer the funds to the Treasurer of the Finance Committee, the following letter was read by President Andreae, and it was moved by Mr. Lilienthal and seconded by Mr. Burger that it be forwarded, properly signed to the Depositor's State and Savings Bank:

"By a resolution of the Finance Committee of the National Association of Commerce & Labor, Mr. Thomas F. Keeley was elected Treasurer of the Committee, and it was ordered that all checks drawn on the funds of the said Finance Committee be signed by the said Thomas F. Keeley, and countersigned by the Secretary of the Committee, Mr. C. J. Lilienthal.

You will please honor all drafts on said account accordingly.

(Signed) PERCY ANDREAE,
Chairman Finance Committee.
THOMAS F. KEELEY,
Treasurer Finance Committee.
C. J. LILIENTHAL,
Secretary Finance Committee."

Motion was carried made by Mr. Roney and seconded by Mr. Burger, that the following be added to Article 7 of the Constitution and By-Laws:

That all members of the Joint Finance Committee shall become members ex-Officio of the Executive Committee.

It was moved by Mr. Lilienthal and seconded by Mr. Burger that Article 3, Sub-Head Membership, of the By-Laws be amended as follows:

Membership shall comprise such organizations as subscribed to the objects and principles of the National Association of Commerce & Labor and are acceptable to the Membership Committee, and each organization shall be entitled to one vote at the annual convention.

It was moved and seconded that Mr. Scarborough's resignation as temporary Treasurer of this Association be accepted with regret.

Mr. Roney moved that the financial statement of the Association be referred to the Finance Committee for approval.

Upon motion made by Mr. Horix and seconded by Mr. Scarborough the amended By-Laws were adopted.

On motion made and seconded it was moved that a copy of the Minutes of the Joint Committee meeting of the National Association of Commerce & Labor and the United States Brewers' Association, of January 22nd, 1915, and a copy of the amended By-Laws adopted at this meeting, be sent to all members.

On motion made by Mr. Lilienthal meeting adjourned.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the National Association of Commerce and Labor was held in New York City on Monday, January 24th, 1916, in the Imperial Hotel at 8 P. M. There were present:

Mr. Percy Andreae.
Mr. Chas. J. Lilienthal.
Mr. W. V. Hersch.
Mr. J. A. Roney.
Mr. Herman T. Wolf.
Mr. Carl F. Burger.
Mr. Otto Horix.

Mr. Fred Wehmiller.
Mr. Edward Landsberg.
Mr. Thos. F. Keeley.
Mr. Harry A. Poth.
Mr. Cooper Lyon.
Mr. Lilienthal Presided.
Mr. Lyon, Secretary.

On motion of Mr. Keeley, seconded by Mr. Roney, and duly carried—the resolution read by the Chairman relating to the action of the Executive Committee of the U. S. Brewers' Association was approved.

On motion of Mr. Roney, duly seconded and carried, Article 7 was amended to read as follows:

"The annual meeting shall be held in the Fall of each year time and place to be designated by the Executive Committee. All meetings of the Executive Committee to be subject to call of the President or on written application of four members of the Executive Committee."

On motion of Mr. Roney, duly seconded and carried, Article 4, Section 3, was amended to read as follows:

"Finance Committee.

There shall be a Finance Committee, consisting of three members to be elected from the National Association of Commerce and Labor at the annual meeting of the Association, and three members to be appointed from the United States Brewers' Association.

The Finance Committee shall meet at least once a month or oftener if necessity arises, and shall have full access at all times to the books, account and vouchers of the Association.

All payments to or for the account of the Association shall be made to the Finance Committee who shall have complete control over all contracts made and obligations assumed of any kind, nature or description and who shall have complete control of receipts and disbursements for or on account of the Association.

The Poll of the Vote being as follows:

Nay—Andreae, Burger, Heinemann.

Yea—Lilienthal, Roney, Wolf, Horix, Wehmiller, Keeley, Landsberg, Poth, Hersh, Lyon.

On motion of Mr. Roney, duly seconded and carried, Article 5, Section 1, was amended to read as follows:

"The President shall preside at all meetings of the Association. He shall, by and with the consent of the Executive Committee, appoint all committees, except the Finance Committee, and be ex-officio a member of all subcommittees except the Finance Committee."

The Poll of the Vote being as follows:

Nay—Hersch, Burger, Horix, Heinemann, Wehmiller.

Yea—Lilienthal, Roney, Wolf, Landsberg, Keeley, Poth, Lyon.

Mr. Andreae thereupon tendered his resignation and vacated the meeting room.

The Chairman addressed the meeting deploring the action of Mr. Andreae—recommending that the resignation be not accepted—and insisted that the members present vote upon the acceptance or rejection of the resignation so tendered.

The Poll of the Vote was as follows:

Nay—Horix, Heinemann, Wehmiller, Landsberg, Keeley, Poth, Lilienthal, Lyon.

Yea—Burger, Hersch, Roney, Wolf.

Thereupon the Chairman instructed the Secretary to inform Mr. Andreae of the non-acceptance of his resignation—and to request a reconsideration of his action with a view to retaining the position of President of the National Association of Commerce and Labor.

Upon motion the meeting adjourned.

Maj. HUMES. I also offer in evidence exhibits 552 to 644, they being correspondence of the National Association of Commerce and Labor with various persons. This file embraces the data relative to the meetings of brewers in Chicago of February, 1913, where the special 3 cents a barrel contracts were agreed upon.

JAN. 17, 1913.

Confidential and important.

To the Brewers of the United States:

GENTLEMEN: Recent developments make it clear that the brewers are approaching a crisis in their business. In view of the very grave situation the Board of Trustees of the United States Brewers' Association has decided to call all the brewers of the country together in a special conference, which is to be held at Masonic Drill Hall, Masonic Building, State Street, Chicago, on Thursday February 20th, at 10 A. M.

Further particulars will be sent you shortly, but we are writing now to impress the importance of this matter upon you, so that you may arrange to send one of the members of your firm (either a partner, or one of the principal officers of your corporation) to represent you at this meeting, without fail.

Please return the enclosed post card to let us know that we may count upon you and if possible, state who will represent you.

I can only say at this time that the meeting is so important to you, that you should cancel any previous engagement that may conflict with this date and arrange your affairs so as to be at the meeting, whatever happens.

Yours faithfully,

(Signed) HUGH F. FOX,
Secretary.

Enclosure.

Confidential—very important.

JANUARY 27, 1913.

For Brewers Only—NOT for Publication:

Have you answered the Notice of the Chicago Meeting for Thursday, February 20th, 1913? If not, do so at once, and make your arrangements to be present without fail.

The Board of Trustees of the United States Brewers' Association, after due deliberation, believes the situation so serious as to demand an extraordinary conference of all the Brewers in the United States.

The following are among the matters which threaten our Industry:

NATIONAL PROHIBITION.—RAILROADS AND EXPRESS COMPANIES NOT PERMITTED TO HANDLE BEER.—NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PUBLICATIONS NOT PERMITTED TO PRINT ADVERTISEMENTS OF ANY ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGE.—THE LABOR QUESTION.

This is the situation that confronts us. We ask you, is this serious enough to demand your personal attendance?

Most of these matters are covered by Bills pending in Congress.

The national prohibition bill is offered by Congressman Hobson of Alabama.

The time is now at hand when we must meet these issues.

Petty jealousies and grievances must be set aside.

We must have the active work and influence of every individual brewer.

Will you be in Chicago on Thursday, February 20th?
Please reply at once to

HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

NEW YORK, February 5, 1913.

LAST CALL—EXTREMELY IMPORTANT.

To the Brewers of the United States:—

In addition to the matters mentioned in our second notice of the Chicago meeting of the brewers of the United States, which is to be held on Thursday, February 20th, there are other and still more serious matters to be brought to the attention of every brewer, which it is impossible to dwell upon in a written communication.

For this reason the personal attendance of every brewer who desires to protect his business from complete destruction is imperative.

No brewer, who is not blind to his own interests, will fail to attend this meeting.

If you have not yet answered the invitation, please do so by return mail. I enclose identification card, which should be presented at the door by the member or officer of your corporation whom you may designate to represent you.

The meeting will be held at Masonic Drill Hall, Masonic Bldg., State Street, Chicago, on Thursday February 20th., at 10 A. M. sharp.

NEW YORK, April 12, 1913.

Report of the joint meeting of State delegates and the trustees of the United States Brewers' Association, held in New York, April 10–11, 1913.

This meeting was held in accordance with the action taken at the National Conference of Brewers which met in Chicago on February 19th and 20th, 1913.

Appended is a list of Delegates and Alternates appointed by the brewers in each state, and of all persons who attended this meeting, together with the committees chosen.

Mr. Ruppert was elected Chairman of the meeting and Mr. Fox Secretary.

It was decided that a National Committee should be organized, consisting of the delegates or their alternates and of the officers and trustees of the U. S. Brewers' Association, and that the National Committee for the year beginning April 1st, 1913, should consist of those now appointed, together with the Officers and Trustees of the U. S. Brewers' Association.

It was resolved that an Executive Committee of Fifteen should be elected, with the President of the U. S. Brewers' Association as a member and Chairman thereof, with full power to transact all business in the interim of the meetings of the National Committee. Annexed hereto are the names of those comprising the Executive Committee of Fifteen.

The President of the United States Brewers' Association was instructed to appoint a Committee of Five at Large on Organization, and a similar committee on Education, of which he should be an ex-officio member, and the following committees were so appointed:

COMMITTEE ON EDUCATION.

James R. Nicholson, Boston, Mass.; Gilbert R. Potts, Newark, N. J.; Adam Ortseifen, Chicago, Ill.; S. B. Fleming, Fort Wayne, Ind.; G. J. Jung, Cincinnati, Ohio; Jacob Ruppert, Jr. (Ex-officio), New York, N. Y.

COMMITTEE ON ORGANIZATION.

John Gardiner, Philadelphia, Pa.; Carl J. Hoster, Columbus, Ohio; Gustave Pabst, Milwaukee, Wis.; E. S. Clauss, St. Louis, Mo.; Frank Fehr, Louisville, Ky.; Jacob Ruppert, Jr. (Ex-officio), New York, N. Y.

At the request of the meeting, Mr. Percy Andreae presented an outline of a plan for the organization of all the existing liberal associations and leagues of the country into a national body, for the purpose of concerted action and mutual support. The plan does not contemplate any change in the present identity of any such association or league, but merely a coalition of all the forces represented in them and the employment of those forces in the attainment of the objects which are common to all, under one leadership. This national organization will be, as this description clearly implies, entirely separate and apart from the brewing industry, and the details of its promotion and maintenance were exhaustively discussed at the meeting.

The Committee of Fifteen is to meet in Chicago on May 1st to take favorable action in regard to the plan above outlined, with such changes or modifications as shall be satisfactory to Mr. Andreae, with the understanding that he will assume charge thereof and devote his entire time to its direction. This is to be entirely separate from and in addition to the work not being carried on by the U. S. Brewers' Association, which will be continued as before and extended as required. It will be necessary to raise an even larger sum of money than was contemplated at the Chicago Conference, and the success of the undertaking depends upon the prompt action of the brewers, in pledging their support. It is therefore urged that the State Brewers' Associations, and the individual brewers in States where there are no associations, be called together at once, so that a full report may be made at the meeting which is to be held in Chicago on the first of May. Each of the delegates and trustees to whom this is addressed, is requested to give it immediate attention, using this report as the basis of the statement they may make to the various groups of brewers when they are assembled.

HUGH F. FOX
Secretary.

APRIL 14, 1913.

To the Brewers' of the United States:

This is to inform you that in accordance with the action taken at the National Conference of Brewers, which was held in Chicago on February 20th, 1913, a National Committee of Brewers has been organized, which consists of delegates or their alternates, appointed by the various State Brewers' Associations and by the groups of brewers in those states where there is no State Association, together with the Officers and Trustees of the U. S. Brewers' Association.

At a general meeting of the Committee held in New York on April 10 and 11th, 1913, an Executive Committee of Fifteen was elected, consisting of the following:

COMMITTEE OF FIFTEEN.

Jacob Ruppert, Jr., Chairman, New York; Percy Andreae, Illinois; J. R. Nicholson, Mass.; N. W. Kendall, Conn.; John Gardiner, Penn.; L. J. Hi... Ohio; L. B. Schram, New York; E. S. Clauss, Missouri; F. Fehr, Kentu... A. Fitger, Minn.; J. Lippman, Utah; Joseph Uihlein, Wis.; Paul Wess... Oregon; R. L. Autrey, Texas; Conrad Mann, Missouri; Hugh F. Fox, S... retary, New York.

Committees were also appointed on Organization and Education as follows:

COMMITTEE ON EDUCATION.

James R. Nicholson, Boston, Mass.; Gilbert R. Potts, Newark, N. J.; A... Oertseifen, Chicago, Ill.; S. B. Fleming, Ft. Wayne, Ind.; G. J. Jung, C... cinnati, Ohio; Jacob Ruppert, Jr. (Ex-officio), New York, N. Y.

COMMITTEE ON ORGANIZATION.

John Gardiner, Philadelphia, Pa.; Carl J. Hoster, Columbus, Ohio; G... tave Pabst, Milwaukee, Wis.; E. S. Clauss, St. Louis, Mo.; Frank F... Louisville, Ky.; Jacob Ruppert, Jr. (Ex-officio), New York, N. Y.

The Executive Committee is to meet in Chicago on the first day of M... and in the meantime the various State Brewers Associations are to meet ... the purpose of considering a plan of action.

This is to urge you to attend the meeting of your State Association whe... is called, and to assure you that the matter is of the greatest and most pre... ing importance, as we are facing a condition that materially affects the w... fare of every brewer in the United States. We cannot go into the matter ... correspondence, but assure you that it will be to your interest to respond ... the call.

Very truly yours,

HUGH F. FOX.
Secretary.

DEAR SIRS: No doubt you received the Confidential Report of the Nat... Conference of Brewers, which was held in Chicago on February 20th. As result of this Conference, a National Committee has been organized consis... of two delegates from each State, together with our officers and Board Trustees whose duty it will be to extend our educational work as far as ... sible. In the campaign that we are planning, we need the local influen... every brewer in the United States. The crisis that the brewing indus... facing can be turned to good account for the permanent welfare of industry, if all the brewers will stand together and bear their share of work and the expense of the undertaking.

The Executive Committee of Fifteen, elected by this new National C... tee, is to meet in Chicago on May 1st, to plan the work, and in making budget we must know at once what resources we can count on.

May we enroll you as a member of this Association?

Awaiting your prompt reply, I am,

Yours faithfully,

JANUARY 3, 1914.

DEAR MR. ———: I urgently request you to arrange to attend a meeting of the leaders of our organizations in the various STATES to be held at these offices at 10:30 A. M. on January 15th, for the purpose of laying out the work to be undertaken in the Congressional Districts of the country.

The matters to be discussed and considered are:

1: The general complexion of the present Congress in relation to the question of prohibition.

2: As it is expedient to take the vote on the Webb-Kenyon Bill as a basis upon which to found conclusions as to the attitude of representatives and senators on the question of national prohibition, a careful analysis of the votes cast for and against that measure has been prepared; and the following questions will be discussed:

(a) How many of those voting "Aye" or "Nay" on that bill have been re-elected, and how are these expected to stand on the question of nation-wide prohibition?

(b) What is the attitude, if known, in your particular State of the new members of the House or Senate regarding the nation-wide prohibition question?

3: What are the known conditions relative to liberal or anti-liberal sentiment, and the possibilities of awakening and organizing the former in those Congressional districts which are at present represented by pronounced "Dry" congressmen.

4: The selection of men from our own industries in each State to act as the local representatives of my organization and to keep in daily touch with its investigation and organization work in each state.

I need scarcely emphasize the extreme importance of your being present at this meeting and bringing with you such data as you may already possess bearing upon the questions that are to be discussed. It is not the intention to call upon you to attend more than this one meeting, and if you should be able to decide at once whom you will select as the person in your state to act there in conjunction with us, I suggest that you have him accompany you, so that we may confer with him in greater detail when the meeting has completed its labors.

I may mention, for your private information, and with especial reference to the plan of organization, which I outlined on October 3rd, last, that the German American Alliance has now perfected arrangements for really effective organization all over the country, under national auspices, in conjunction with our general plan of organization; that the labor unions directly interested in our cause are preparing to conduct their campaign among all labor unions in conformity with the policy outlined at our headquarters; that the foreign language press, through its national association, with a membership of over 600 newspapers, having a circulation of over seven million, is starting a carefully prepared educational campaign which has been so outlined as to assist and promote our organization work, and that, last, not least, the National Association of Commerce and Labor, consisting of the thousands of firms depending upon our industry, has perfected methods for raising the additional funds needed for the successful prosecution of all this work, which methods merely require the co-operation of the brewing and distilling industries to become automatically effective.

The enlisting of the co-operation, in this general scheme, of the retailers of the country, is the only task yet to be accomplished in order to render the general organization complete, but I shall have the privilege of addressing the National Retail Liquor Dealers Association on this subject at its forthcoming convention in Washington, on which occasion I have no doubt, from my knowledge of the leaders of that organization, that I shall secure the most enthusiastic and intelligent co-operation of that large and influential body and its constituent organizations in the various States.

I take this opportunity to inform you that all organizations affiliated with us throughout the country have been, and are being, called upon by this office to enter emphatic protests in Washington against the Works, Shepard, and Hobson resolutions, and to do this both by petition and by individual letters and telegrams.

In this connection, it will interest you to learn that I am in receipt of information to the effect that the National German-American Alliance has placed itself in communication on this subject with every German newspaper, every state branch and sub-branch of the Alliance, and every German society and club in the country, and that from those sources alone the National Alliance estimates that at least four million protests will shortly reach the Congress in Washington. The same activity is in preparation in labor union and other circles.

Please inform me by return mail whether I can rely upon your presence here on January 15th, and whom, if anybody, you decide to bring with you to the meeting.

Very truly yours,

I am very anxious to have the benefit of General Crow's knowledge and experience at this meeting, and if you could prevail upon him to accompany you, I would very much appreciate it.

Mr. EDWARD A. SCHMIDT,
U. S. Brewers' Assn.,
50 Union Square, New York City.

MY DEAR MR. SCHMIDT: I have just returned from Ohio and find your favor of January 19th.

At the meeting held here on Thursday, January 15th, there were forty-four representatives of the brewing and distilling interests from sixteen states present, and the situation in every congressional district in these sixteen states and several others adjoining them was discussed in detail, with more particular reference to the possibilities of securing liberal representation from these districts as indicated by the attitude of the voting population on the subject of the wet and dry question within each district itself.

The information obtained, according to the expressions of all present, was considered of great interest, and in order to act upon it with the best possible effect, a man was designated, or agreed to be designated, in each state to act in conjunction with this office in carrying out such organization work in the districts selected as further investigation of the apparently favorable conditions existing in them may render advisable.

I regretted very much that owing to other engagements the representatives of our industry in New York and Pennsylvania who were invited to this meeting could not attend, so that the information bearing upon the conditions in these states was not at hand and no action could be taken towards preparing for organization work in them.

The matter of the circulation of protests against the Hobson, Sheppard and Works resolutions was likewise discussed and a form of protest agreed upon, copy of which I enclose. This form has been sent with the enclosed letter to all organizations actively engaged throughout the country in prosecuting this work.

The States represented at the meeting were: California; Connecticut; Illinois; Indiana; Iowa; Kentucky; Massachusetts; Michigan; Missouri; Minnesota; New Jersey; New Hampshire New York; Pennsylvania; Ohio; Wisconsin, and Nebraska.

Very truly yours,

PA/W

EDWARD A. SCHMIDT,
United States Brewers Association, 50 Union Square, New York City.

Your letter received with enclosed copies of telegrams. Regret extremely that resolutions should have been misinterpreted. I discussed with Fleming the brevity of resolution and likelihood that it might be misunderstood. I therefore in debate preceding adoption pointed out, and I thought clearly, that it was not my intention to have propaganda of Andreae revised by Association before action, but that in important matters you should confer so that executive heads, meaning yourself and Andreae, should be apprised of one anothers doings. A resolution calling for censorship could not in my judgment be adopted at any time. It would not be in accord with terms of Andreae employment. Even Crain and other executive heads in appealing to Association pleaded Andreae should be given carte blanche to render work effective. Furthermore let me add with apologies because I do not wish to be misunderstood that I can see no possible harm flowing from introduction of petitions although some congressmen object to being deluged. Such tactics are best practice everywhere. It is precisely the sort of work Crain pleaded for years should be resorted to in times of stress.

FEBRUARY ELEVENTH, 1914.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX,
U. S. Brewers' Assn., 50 Union Square, New York City.

DEAR MR. FOX: Your favor of February 5th.

My understanding is that the National Association of Commerce and Labor has as its members most of the Manufacturers' and Dealers' Associations of the country. It has an Executive Committee on which all the leading Associations are represented, and at a meeting of this Committee held in Chicago about two months ago a basis of assessment of the membership was recommended which met with the approval, of all but one member of the Committee.

The carrying out of this suggestion, however, depends on the co-operation both of the brewers and those who supply them. In Chicago the brewers favor it, and have signified their intention to carry it into effect. In New York, I understand there is opposition on the part of the Manufacturers' and Dealers' Association. But what the attitude of the brewers of New York State is I do not know. I wrote quite extensively to several of the leaders in the New York State Brewers' Association on the subject some weeks ago, but have received no reply.

Under the circumstances it is rather difficult for me to advise what should be done in the matter of the associate membership in our national organization.

Very truly yours,

_____.

MY DEAR MR. SCHMIDT: A meeting of the joint Committee of the U. S. Brewers' Association and the National Association of Commerce and Labor was recently called to meet here, when the following situation arose. As I understand from Mr. Landsberg, both he and Mr. Pabst decline to serve on the Committee unless the members appointed by the National Association of Commerce and Labor are the same men who appeared as a committee before the Board of Trustees in New Orleans in order to learn what the views of that Board were concerning a working agreement to be arrived at between the two Associations.

Inasmuch as that committee consisted of four members and the committee to be appointed as a permanent conference committee is to consist of three members from each body it was impossible to have the committee of four act as a committee the membership of which is confined to three.

So far as I could learn from Mr. Landsberg, his particular objection is that a brewer should be a member of the committee appointed by the National Asso-

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: At the meeting of the Board of Trustees which was held yesterday, the resolution was passed unanimously instructing the President to appoint a committee of seven, with himself as ex-officio, to be a subcommittee of the Board of Trustees, and to be called the Executive Committee, for the purpose of investigating all the work now being done by the Publicity, Educational and Organization Bureaus, for the purpose of securing unity of action and greater efficiency and a reduction of expenditures. This committee is instructed to report to a special meeting of the Board of Trustees to be called by the President as soon as possible.

The Resolution contemplates the retention of this Committee for the purpose of deciding all future work to be undertaken, and all moneys to be expended, subject to the Board of Trustees. I am instructed to request you to present a complete statement to the President at the earliest possible moment, in regard to the following matters:

1. Your actual obligations for 1915. This should include:

(a) Rent, salaries, office expenses, and other administrative charges. In connection with the members of your staff, kindly state in detail their names, duties, qualifications, salary, and term of employment.

(b) Your contractual obligations to other organizations, such as the German-American Alliance, Louis Hammerling, and others, with whom you may have outstanding agreements.

2. In addition to these actual liabilities already incurred, a statement showing the minimum amount required for the conduct of the work that you consider either necessary or of special importance during the current year, with particulars as to the cost of each suggestion separately.

3. A statement of the funds that will be available for the conduct of this work from other sources than the United States Brewers' Association.

In making this report will you please bear in mind the fact that the beer sales show a very large decrease, which will reduce our income materially, and that we have also lost approximately one million and a half barrels in the States that have gone dry during 1914. No doubt, the present industrial depression will make collections unusually slow, so that strict economy is necessary.

Requesting your prompt action in this matter, I am,

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: I am enclosing draft of proposed letter regarding the National Association of Commerce and Labor. In changing or adding to it, will you please bear in mind these points:

1. The letter must be of such a character that it could safely be made public property.

2. The Eastern brewers are not willing to attach the stamps themselves, but will, I believe, co-operate if this is done by the dealers and manufacturers.

During the discussion of the matter at our Trustees' meeting, Mr. Nagel stated that the Buffalo brewers have a local system which they are operating for their own benefit, and have been collecting $8,000 a year in this way, for their local publicity work, but they are willing to drop this, and have the funds sent to the National Association of Commerce and Labor, if the matter is taken up in a national way, with the endorsement of the U. S. B. A.

I take it that all the N. A. of C. & L. wants from us is a formal notice of endorsement, and that it will follow this up in its own way, as it sees fit? Awaiting your reply, I am,

Yours very truly, H. F. Fox.

MARCH 12TH, 1915.

To the Members of the United States Brewers' Association.

GENTLEMEN: At a meeting of the Board of Trustees held on the 11th of February, a resolution was adopted endorsing the National Association of Commerce and Labor's plan of raising funds for the maintenance of its educational work, by means of special stamps to be used by mutual agreement between the brewers and those from whom they purchase goods. It must be clearly understood that the operation of this plan is conditional upon the voluntary consent of the merchant or manufacturer with whom the brewer does business, and that it must be a matter of mutual understanding. The particulars may be obtained by applying to—

The National Association of Commerce & Labor, 1132 Transportation Building, Chicago, Illinois.

Our Board of Trustees recommends that these stamps shall be affixed by the merchants and manufacturers to their bills, but that it should be the duty of the brewers to see that this is done.

The National Association of Commerce and Labor will now take this matter up with the various State and Local Brewers' Associations, as well as with individual brewers, in their own way. We trust that you will give it your prompt consideration, and request your cooperation.

NEW YORK, June 4, 1915.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF COMMERCE & LABOR,
Transportation Building, Chicago, Ill.

Attention Mr. Percy Andreae.

GENTLEMEN: A number of brewers in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York have called our attention to the fact that representatives of the National Association of Commerce and Labor have called on them to solicit them to buy the stamps issued by your Association.

I am instructed to recall to you the Resolution passed by our Board of Trustees on the eleventh of February, which provides that the stamps shall be affixed by the merchants and manufacturers, to their bills, but that it should be the duty of the brewers to see that this is done.

The President wishes me to say to you that the solicitors of the National Association of Commerce and Labor should be instructed accordingly, and that their missionary efforts should be directed to the members of the allied trades rather than to the brewers.

It is suggested that your Association should notify the brewers from time to time of the arrangements that have been made with specific industries and trades, as well as with individuals. If, for example, the Crown Cork and Seal Company can be induced to come under the Stamp Plan, a letter might be sent to all brewers notifying them accordingly, so that they might see that the stamps are affixed by the said company upon presentation of their bills.

The President wishes that you would take the matter up at once, with your solicitors, and if necessary, would recall them, so that they may be thoroughly instructed as to their procedure in the future.

Yours very truly,

JUNE 14, 1915.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX,
30 Union Square, New York City.

MY DEAR MR. FOX: I have your letter of June 4th regarding the matter of the stamps.

Let me explain how we have proceeded and ask Mr. Schmidt to give consideration to the difficulties we have encountered in presenting the stamp scheme both to the manufacturers and the brewers.

First, if you will refer to your own letter to the brewers, you will find that you informed them that the Board of Trustees recommended that the stamps should be affixed by the manufacturer, and that this Association would communicate with the brewers individually. You also lay specific stress in the first part of that letter upon the necessity of the brewer coming to a mutual understanding with the manufacturer before the stamps can be used. Indeed, it is solely through the medium of such understanding that the arrangement can be perfected.

Each one of our men has had with him a copy of this letter, and also a letter from me to the brewing trade explaining the whole plan and referring in particular to your letter to the brewers with instructions to use these letters as the basis of the negotiations. As far as I can rely upon the reports I have received, these instructions have been strictly carried out.

In New Jersey, for instance, Mr. Feigenspan requested that he should himself take up the matter with the other brewers of the State, so that all might act uniformly along the line recommended by the Trustees, and I am informed that, in deference to his wishes, no other brewer was seen there.

Elsewhere some brewers have declared that they preferred to affix the stamps themselves, and in one case our man was flatly informed that the brewer in question would have nothing to do with the stamps unless he could affix them himself. You will readily see the difficulty arising in such cases. We could hardly refuse to supply the stamps in such instances on the ground that the Board of Trustees had provided "that the stamps shall be affixed by the merchants and the manufacturers," as Mr. Schmidt's instructions now read, for we would be seeming to impute to the Board of Trustees that it intended to leave the individual brewer no liberty of action in the matter, which would surely not be placing a correct construction upon your original letter embodying the resolution of the Trustees.

In Philadelphia, Mr. Sweany informs me that he had two meetings with the Manufacturers Association to sell the stamps to the Association. But it was decided by the Association that its members would first agree among each other what percentage each trade should pay, and then take up the matter with the State Brewers Association. And there the matter has rested until today, when I received a letter from the Manufacturers Association asking, first, whether we could give them special stamps, second, whether we would allow a discount to pay for the distribution, and, third, requesting to have a copy of our schedule classification of the various trades and their respective stamp assessments.

I have instructed Mr. Sweany to see the Association again, though he tells me that he has answered all these questions in person.

I am most anxious to comply with anything Mr. Schmidt or the Board of Trustees desires in this matter, but I can assure you that the plan of operating the stamp scheme through the manufacturers and dealers is fraught with insurmountable difficulties, just as we found it to be the case in the Western territory. All I am working for is to make the plan successful, and unfortunately that is impossible wherever the brewer and the manufacturer can not be induced to arrive at a mutual agreement, as your own letter so admirably suggested.

If, under the circumstances, Mr. Schmidt desires me to cease operating in the three States mentioned, I will do so. But I earnestly hope he will not. In every locality we meet with different views and conditions, and if we are compelled to insist upon the compliance with one man's, or one body of men's, views as to the method of procedure, it is evident that we can make no headway.

Yours very truly,

_____ _____.

GENTLEMEN: I am instructed by the Executive Committee to inform you that they recommend that in order to prosecute the stamp plan, proper schedules be prepared, showing the amounts agreed upon with the various classes of merchants and manufacturers in regard to their respective materials, and that these schedules should be sent by you to all the brewers in the United States.

In accordance with the previous resolution of the Board of Trustees the Executive Committee desires me to notify you that in all States where the practise of affixing stamps has not been introduced, and successfully carried out already, the stamps should be affixed by the merchants, manufacturer or dealer; but that in those States where the brewers have been in the habit of affixing the stamps themselves, this practise should be allowed to continue.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF COMMERCE & LABOR,
Transportation Building, Chicago, Ill.

Attention Mr. Percy Andreae.

GENTLEMEN: A number of brewers in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York have called our attention to the fact that representatives of the National Association of Commerce and Labor have called on them to solicit them to buy the stamps issued by your Association.

I am instructed to recall to you the Resolution passed by our Board of Trustees on the eleventh of February, which provides that the stamps shall be affixed by the merchants and manufacturers, to their bills, but that it should be the duty of the brewers to see that this is done.

The President wishes me to say to you that the solicitors of the National Association of Commerce and Labor should be instructed accordingly, and that their missionary efforts should be directed to the members of the allied trades rather than to the brewers.

It is suggested that your Association should notify the brewers from time to time of the arrangements that have been made with specific industries and trades, as well as with individuals. If, for example, the Crown Cork and Seal Company can be induced to come under the Stamp Plan, a letter might be sent to all brewers notifying them accordingly, so that they might see that the stamps are affixed by the said company upon presentation of their bills.

The President wishes that you would take the matter up at once, with your solicitors, and if necessary, would recall them, so that they may be thoroughly instructed as to their procedure in the future.

Yours very truly,

H. F. FOX, Secretary.

JUNE 14, 1915.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX,
30 Union Square, New York City.

MY DEAR MR. FOX: I have your letter of June 4th regarding the matter of the stamps.

Let me explain how we have proceeded and ask Mr. Schmidt to give consideration to the difficulties we have encountered in presenting the stamp scheme both to the manufacturers and the brewers.

First, if you will refer to your own letter to the brewers, you will find that you informed them that the Board of Trustees recommended that the stamps should be affixed by the manufacturer, and that this Association would communicate with the brewers individually. You also lay specific stress in the first part of that letter upon the necessity of the brewer coming to a mutual understanding with the manufacturer before the stamps can be used. Indeed it is solely through the medium of such understanding that the arrangement can be perfected.

Each one of our men has had with him a copy of this letter, and also a letter from me to the brewing trade explaining the whole plan and referring in particular to your letter to the brewers with instructions to use these letters as the basis of the negotiations. As far as I can rely upon the reports I have received, these instructions have been strictly carried out.

HUGH F. FOX, Esq.,

DEAR MR. FOX: I find that Eugene N. Foss, on September 15th, in Worcester made an attack upon the Old Colony Breweries Company of which the following is a partial copy.

I would like to know if we are the only brewers in Massachusetts that are putting these stamps on our bills, and also if other brewers in Massachusetts are sending out similar letters.

You can find a copy of this speech in the Boston Evening Record of September 15th, 1915.

Yours respectfully,

P. S.—I would not be surprised to be summoned before the grand jury on account of affixing these stamps and deducting these amounts from the bills.

as I have heard an inkling to that effect. In case this is so, and I should be summoned, will you kindly advise me just what my stand should be in connection with the questions that may be asked of me, during such a hearing, as I am not very familiar with the workings of the association for which we are affixing the stamps. Any information that you may give me will be appreciated.

NOVEMBER 15, 1915.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX,
Sec. U. S. Brewers' Assn.,
50 Union Square, New York City.

MY DEAR MR. FOX: In reply to your favor of the 9th inst., which came during my absence from the city, I received and accepted an invitation extended to me four weeks ago to address the Business Men's League of St. Louis on December 8. Mr. Hoehler has been informed of this, and of the subject on which I am going to speak, and is satisfied that this address will meet the case.

In this connection I would ask you to bear in mind that arrangements are under way to have me deliver similar addresses before commercial bodies having for their object the arousing of the business man to the danger involved in the present confiscatory trend of legislation. These invitations are being extended to me as the spokesman of the organized foreign language press, and if I were to appear at the same time as a representative of the brewing industry championing the specific cause of anti-prohibition, it is manifest that my appearance before these commercial bodies would no longer be welcomed. I believe, and I think Colonel Pabst agrees, that an organization of the business men generally against freak legislation and interference with business rights and business property is the most effective form of propaganda against prohibition, and you will therefore readily understand how anxious I am that what I have been endeavoring to build up in this direction should not be destroyed or jeopardized by having me stamped as a so-called "wet" speaker.

Yours very truly,

There is also offered in evidence Exhibits 661 to 717, inclusive, they being from the files of the National Association of Commerce and Labor, with reference to the political activities of that association and those of the alliance with it in Texas.

JANUARY FIFTH, 1914.

Mr. R. L. AUTREY,
Houston Ice & Brewing Co., Houston, Texas.

MY DEAR MR. AUTREY: We had expected to hear from you before this as to whom you had selected to conduct your campaign in Texas.

The reports from your state are coming in very rapidly, and it is essential that they should not be permitted to accumulate too far in advance of the analysis, but that such analysis should be made as rapidly as possible so that they may be put in the hands of your campaign manager for campaign purposes.

We presume that by this time you have some definite idea, if you have not made your permanent arrangements, as to who will be in charge of your campaign affairs in Texas. If you have such knowledge at the present time we think it will be very desirable if you can have your campaign manager accompany you to Chicago so that you may be here next Monday, January 12th.

It might not be amiss for you to bring the young man who has been conducting your poll tax campaign along with you and your campaign manager, as the reports ,which we now have in our office will undoubtedly prove of great interest to him in acquainting him with the headway made in the more populous counties as to the number who have qualified as electors.

The reports very plainly show that the sentiment against the continued agitation of the prohibition question is becoming more pronounced throughout the counties which have been investigated, and points rather plainly to the character of campaign which should be made in your state. The point has almost been reached where consideration should be given as to who should be nominated for Governor, who would be in sympathy with the plan of campaign to be decided upon and carried out. It is hardly necessary to remind you that every day's time now must be taken advantage of so that your forces will be fully prepared for the campaign with which they will be confronted in your state, for it must be as apparent to you as it is to us that the opposition to your interests are going to leave no stone unturned to precipitate a submission of the question in the form of a constitutional amendment, or what would be worse still in the form of statutory prohibition.

Mr. Andreae left the city this morning to be gone the balance of this week, but will return to Chicago some time next Sunday, or at least not later than Monday morning. He has appointments already made for the 14th and 15th, and it is for this reason that I suggest that you try to be here so that we may take up and thoroughly discuss Texas matters next Monday and Tuesday, the 12th and 13th.

As I recall, Messrs. Morgan and Koehler left entirely in your hands the decision as to your campaign manager, but I presume that you have conferred with them upon the subject and that you are fully prepared to have whoever you have selected co-operate with us in mapping out and following the plan of campaign to be decided upon.

I do not know how to more strongly impress the necessity for early action and an early conference with us than I have expressed in the preceding paragraphs of this letter. It will be our own fault if the enemy takes us unawares, and so far as the work is concerned from this end we are fully prepared to see that such advantage is not placed in their hands.

If you could leave Houston on Friday afternoon, bringing with you the men who are to accompany you, you could be in Chicago Sunday morning and even if Mr. Andreae is not in the city we could take up a discussion of affairs in your state preliminary to his return, when the conference could be continued.

Hoping that you will be able to come and bring with you the gentlemen whom you have decided to conduct your campaign, I remain, with wishes to you of a very Happy and Prosperous New Year,

Very truly yours,

(GIBSON.)

Mr. R. L. AUTREY,

C/o Houston Ice and Brewing Co., Houston, Texas.

DEAR MR. AUTREY: Confirming my talk with you over the long distance 'phone, Mr. Andreae will expect you in Chicago February 3rd. As I said to you over the 'phone, he expects to leave here on the 6th, and by your arrival on the date indicated will be able to give the consideration to matters in your State to which they are entitled.

As I said to you, we will have in our office by that time, reports from one hundred and twenty-two Counties, covering 69% of the population of your State, and we believe that the data contained in these reports will show you the thoroughness of the campaign contemplated by Mr. Andreae's plan.

This is also to confirm my suggestion to you over the 'phone that we have a very competent man who can take charge of the campaign in the State of Texas, and develop the plan of organization which will be suggested based upon the data which we have secured.

I realize the importance attached to the poll tax matter, and agree with you fully that it is the foundation of any campaign which might be made in the State.

The next assignment of counties to be sent to the men in Texas consists of one hundred and five, leaving twenty-two counties for final investigation, this making the total of two hundred and forty-nine Counties in the State. From this you will see that our prediction that the first assignment of the more populous Counties could be completed by from the 15th to the 25th of January, has been borne out. We are fully expecting to be able to cover the second assignment by the first of March.

The remittance requested by Mr. Hartley so that no delay would be occasioned in the work going forward in your State has not yet reached him, and I presume that you are attending to this matter, from what you said to me over the telephone. It is highly important that there be no delay along this line, as you can readily understand that the movement of the men with the greatest degree of facility is very essential.

With very kind personal regards, I beg to remain,

DEAR GIBSON: Nothing new has developed in the situation here up to this writing.

Our people have come to the conclusion to get behind Ferguson and as he seems to be the strongest man available there is nothing to do but to clear the field and center our support on him.

He spoke here last night and made a very good impression. He is alright with labor and the Germans here will support him.

I am going to San Antonio to-night and get the sentiment from all sources at that point.

In a talk with Colquitt to-day I gathered that the situation in the legislative line up at the present time was 56 Anti 55 Pro. and 31 doubtful in the lower House. Of the 31 doubtful he figured that the Antis would get 16.

The Senate in his opinion would be 16 Anti 15 Pro. He based his figures on the information he could gather from county and district leaders.

The Pros. filed their petition to-day with the necessary 24,000 signers which will place the question of submission on the ballot at the July primaries.

You can send my mail as usual as I have arranged here for forwarding.

Mr. R. M. COLQUITT,
301 Beatty Building, Houston, Texas.

MY DEAR MR. COLQUITT: I desire to thank you for your very kind letter of March 2nd calling my attention to an error in connection with the Medina County report.

By referring to the report we find that our investigator must have inadvertently placed the name of Mr. Garner as the representative from that Flotorial District. It is apparent that this was a clerical error for the reason that by referring to the Uvalde County report you will find that our investigator has Hornby down as the representative from the Flotorial District of which Medina County is a part. You will also find attached to the Uvalde County report a special report upon Mr. Garner, and by reading it you will notice that he is covered as being the Congressman from the District of which Uvalde and Medina Counties are a part. From this you will see that the investigator possibly became confused in referring to his notes and placed Garner in the representative class.

I am very glad that you called this slight error to my attention, as it only goes to give me greater confidence in the reports because it shows that at least the investigators were human.

I note also what you say concerning the report on Palo Pinto County, in which the investigator says that there are no prominent foreign elements. We are making a notation upon our report in conformity with the information which you give us, to the effect that there are approximately 1,000 Italians in the County with a voting strength of 300.

I am especially glad to see that you are giving these reports such close scrutiny and I can only assume, in view of the fact that but two of them were slightly incorrect out of the large number you have before you, that the information obtained by our investigators must be in accordance with the information which you have so completely at your finger tips.

Again thanking you for your kindness, and beginning to assure you that we appreciate any suggestions of any kind, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours,

HOUSTON, TEX., Apr. 2nd, 191.

Mr. E. S. CLAUSS,
St. Louis, Mo.

DEAR SIR: Yours of Mch. 31st. received.

If Mr. McDermott has told you of conditions here then you are informed up to the date of his visit to Houston. The political map changes here not only daily, but hourly. When the Antis followed the example of the Pros, and called for precinct primaries in order to nominate a candidate to oppose Thomas H. Ball by the Elimination process, there were three strong Antis in the field:—Speaker Terrell, of San Antonio, Clarence Ousley, of Ft. Worth, and Sam Sparks, of Austin.

When Mr. McDermott was here Terrell and Ousley had withdrawn, and Sparks has withdrawn since, leaving the field clear to Jas. E. Ferguson, of Temple. Today a very important event occurred when Bryan T. Barry, of Dallas, Chairman of the Anti-Prohibitionists, announced that the primaries for the selection of a candidate will not be held, because the Elimination process expected to be accomplished, is now a fact, making the Primaries and Convention unnecessary.

I am sorry to say that there is discussion in our own lines about the wisdom of stopping the holding of the Convention, but it takes a firm hand a determined purpose to shape the course of events. I feel that I am right in having pitched the fight under the auspices of the farmers, and that the chances for success are very much greater than they could be under any other plan.

The situation is now critical, having reached the season when the standard bearers have been named and their respective sources of relative strength defined.

The Prohibition candidate, Colonel Thomas H. Ball, of Houston, has the undivided support of the political Pros, who include all the preachers of the Protestant churches, and the strict membership of the Methodist, Baptist, and Presbyterian Churches. He also has nearly all the big corporate interests, including railroad officials and officers and salaried men of corporations.

Mr. Jas. E. Ferguson, of Temple, has not pitched the fight along Anti-Prohibition lines but has pitched it along the lines of peace on the liquor question for four years, his liquor plank being very brief, stating simply that he will veto any liquor legislation of any sort, whether originated by a Pro. or an Anti. His support consists of tenant farmers, small farm owners, and the entire membership of the Labor Unions, including railroad and industrial workers. It is expected that the large land owners and large farm owners, including the cattle men, will support Ball. The class of voters that is left out, and for which both candidates must fight, is the trading business man and merchant class, and whichever of the two candidates gets this class wins the fight.

The business men herein referred to as constituting the vote to be sought are meant to include that numerous class of such that are not church members. If this analysis is accurate then Ferguson has largely the advantage and should win by a large majority.

Another issue which is beginning to loom up in the fight is the famous Bailey issue. It looks now like the fight will largely be aligned on Bailey and Anti-Bailey ground, and if so Ferguson will get the Anti-Bailey vote and Ball will get the Bailey vote in North Texas, whilst the entire vote in South Texas will be out solidly behind Ferguson, because the Bailey issue has never been a burning one in South Texas.

I do not want to appear optimistic but believe that the synthesis of the case is here properly presented, and that therefore a favorable outcome is a reasonable expectation.

Our efforts in the direction of electing a majority of both branches of the legislature have been constant, in fact much more attention has been paid to that work than to the Governor's race. I am hopeful of success.

Very truly yours,

DEAR SIR: The fight is on in the bitterest and most intense way, and events succeed one another so fast that one can not be off watch for one hour.

I presume you are following the fight by reading two or more Texas papers, and are informed. Today the Convention of the Antis has been called off and we have finally gotten down to Ferguson as our candidate.

I am enclosing copy of letter I am writing to Mr. Clauss.

[Rice Hotel, Homer D. Matthews, Manager.]

HOUSTON, TEXAS, April 5th, 1914.

DEAR GIBSON: I returned this morning after a week's trip through the counties of Gonzales, Guadalupe, Bexar, Comal, Travis, Williamson and Bastrop; these are the leading counties in what is known as "little Germany."

The State headquarters of the Herman Sons, German Alliance and the Catholic Central Verein are located at San Antonio in Bexar County. Several of the State labor leaders are also located here.

The sentiment in this section, as stated before the Ft. Worth meeting was called off, would favor the man endorsed at that meeting. What the conditions are there now can only be surmised.

From information I gathered (and I had no difficulty in obtaining it as they were all eager to talk) in Austin, Travis County, from the leading Germans and labor men, the situation is all but encouraging as far as Ferguson the Anti Candidate is concerned.

This was a strong Sparks section and they look upon his withdrawal as a frame up and since the meeting has been called off they seem more than convinced that such was the case.

The labor men were strong for Sparks but I think they can be lined up for Ferguson. Their legislative committee will wait on the leading candidates and ascertain their views on certain labor measures before any decided action is taken in the gubernatorial matter.

The Germans in Austin are wrought up over Ferguson's farm tenant ideas. Of course this comes from the landowners, whose sentiments are voiced by the "Wochenblatt" a weekly which circulates extensively among the Germans in Travis, Williamson and Bastrop Counties. Mr. Preankman the editor was strong in his criticism of the Antis and their failure to arrive at any fixed policy. He does not give expression of these views in his paper but he is openly opposed to Ferguson's land tenant plank. Judge Rogan, Ex-Gov. Sayres, Chairman of the Compensation Commission and Maj. Littleford, a leading banker, all of Austin and all Antis, are for Ball for Governor.

In Williamson County, mostly all German, there is some unrest as they were mostly for Sparks. Peter Shram party leader here told me he has the job of his life to keep Sam. Sparks from coming out openly for Ball. This is the only county I found where they were looking after the legislative end of it. They have an Anti and an Anti for the flotorial whom they claim can beat the two pro-incumbents.

In Bastrop County I met Rep. Rodger Byrne and while he was telling of the many virtues of the Ferguson platform, the folly of the Antis in looking for information in wet territory and giving the assurance that Bastrop County would give Ferguson a majority upwards of 500, he was suddenly interrupted by one Burleson a pronounced Anti and a distant kin to the Burleson of national fame, who, while declaring his intention to vote for Ferguson, was willing to bet that the latter would be the worst licked man that ever ran for Gov. of Texas.

These are merely incidents but in the aggregate they are factors that must be reckoned with.

I determined to come back here at once and take the matter up with Autery. I might have exceeded my authority in putting it to him as strong as I did but he took it in the right spirit. I told him from what I had gathered, and that in territory where the Anti forces should, at the very least, be united, and be guided by some fixed policy, that our cause was lost; that if an election were held at this time Ferguson would be defeated by an overwhelming majority and that unless something was done at once to get the county organizations in line and convince them that we were trying to get to some fixed policy here at headquarters, we might as well throw up the sponge. He agreed that the situation was bad and pleaded that he was carrying the entire burden, that no one else identified with the industry was active in the work. Mr. Colquitt also came in for mild censure as he (Autery) "didn't think he was as active as he ought to be."

To make matters worse a handful of "leading Democrats" are going to get together on the day appointed for the Ft. Worth meeting, and announce Ousley as the real dyed in the wool Anti. What Mr. Colquitt and Senator Watson who is his associate in the directing force of the Antis, are going to do to offset this, I am unable to say, as I could not locate them today. Colquitt has gone to Austin and the Senator is out of the city.

Autery asked me to go to Beaumont, Orange and Pt. Arthur to get a line on the senatorial matter in that, the 14th District, the candidate announced is according to Autery, a light weight and cannot win. I haven't been able to get any inside information from Colquitt and I doubt very much whether he has any as Watson is by far the shrewder of the two but aside from declaring his undying faith in nominating Ferguson, says very little.

I may be somewhat previous, since the election is a long way off and many of the wrinkles may be ironed out by that time, but I cant help but notice a marked lack of energy in the directing force of the Antis.

I will follow Autery's suggestion and look after the senatorial and the legislative end of it, as that and a hot fight against submission is our only salvation at this stage of the game. Please drop me a line and let me know if you want me to go ahead as suggested above.

Write or "night wire" me care of the Rice. Will be back here about Wednesday.

Mr. R. L. AUTREY,

DEAR MR. AUTREY: I thank you for your letter of April 2nd, with its attached copy of the letter you wrote to Mr. Clauss.

It seems to me that you have made a very able analysis of the condition existing in the State, and one that impresses me as being based upon the conditions which prevail there, so far as I can determine them upon the face of our survey of the State, and the newspaper articles which I have read from time to time relating to the progress of the campaign in Texas.

I think it was very wise to call off the elimination convention, especially in view of the fact that the elimination actually proceeded without the necessity of such a convention.

I hope you will keep us informed from time to time of the progress of affairs in your State, as you must realize that we are very much interested in seeing them develop along the right line.

Very truly yours,

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 8th. duly received.

I am sorry I missed you because I am very anxious to know what you found in the 14th. district,—I mean the Beaumont district.

I know all about Mr. King, of Nacogdoches, and how Mr. Saenger regards him. There are reasons why he should not be the selection, but we may have to take him.

The Governorship situation continues so all-absorbing, and will so continue until the 14th., and probably thereafter, that everybody, including myself, neglects the senatorial districts and I had hoped you would give four senatorial districts your undivided attention.

DEAR SIR:—Yours of the 15th. received and note contents very carefully. I am placing your letter in the hands of Mr. Colquitt. An effort will be made by our friends to have the candidacy of J. E. Ferguson endorsed by Texas Federation of Labor at El Paso meeting next June and names of all the parties in your letter will be valuable to attain that end.

I would like very much to hear from you with information as to the result of your trip to the Beaumont district. I understand Mr. Gibson keeps a file of Texas papers and presume you are following the Texas fight and know of the smashing to pieces of the Constructive Democrats meeting at Ft. Worth. APRIL 22, 1914.

Mr. R. L. AUTREY,
Houston Ice & Brewing Co.,
Houston, Texas.

DEAR MR. AUTREY: Your favors of April 11th and 17th were handed me on my return here today.

In my letter to you of April 8th I thought I fully covered the situation as I found it in the Beaumont District.

I called upon Mr. Sanger as you suggested, and after discussing the senatorial situation in that district Mr. Sanger was of the impression that Mr. Steve King was the strongest available candidate and the only Anti able to make a creditable showing in the Northern part of the District. Mr. Sanger was certain the Mr. King would sweep the Beaumont section, but was in doubt about Port Arthur.

I visited Port Arthur and found that the sentiment among a large number of the labor men favored the present Senator, Mr. Collins, whose strength among this element was due to his activity in helping bring about the passage of the Workmen's Compensation law. On the other hand, I learned that there were a number of men employed at the plants of the Texas and Port Arthur Refineries who were dissatisfied with the workings of the Compensation law and who might be induced to change their views on Collins. I mentioned this matter to Mr. Sanger on my return to Beaumont, and he suggested that at the proper time someone prominent among the labor people accompany Mr. King to that section of the district, as he was of the opinion that a move of this kind would help very materially in bring about Mr. King's election. Mr. Sanger insisted that I bring this matter to your attention on my return to Houston, and I was under the impression that the facts in my letter fully emphasized the conditions above set forth.

I note in your letter of the 11th you were under the impression that I would be able to give my undivided attention to four senatorial districts. Do I understand from this that it is your desire that I return and give my attention to this line of work?

Mr. Andreae is deeply interested in the progress and ultimate outcome of your work in Texas, and is desirous of assisting along the lines of organization agreed upon at the time of your visit here.

Mr. Gibson keeps a file of clippings from the Texas papers, and we are pretty well posted on the progress of affairs in your State. We note that the issues now are clearly drawn between Ball and Ferguson, and it now behooves all the Antis to put forth their united efforts to nominate Mr. Ferguson for Governor.

With best wishes for success, I remain,
Very truly yours,

DALLAS, TEXAS, 5-4-14.

DEAR GIBSON: In making the rounds of the labor organizations here I find the sentiment overwhelmingly in favor of the Antis and naturally for Ferguson. Have started an "executive" committee of representatives of the Cigar makers, Cooks, Waiters, Musicians, Brewery workers, Engineers, and State employees here and we have now a substantial nucleus to work with. Have laid down a system of organization whereby they will be able to spread out and take in representatives from other unions. The two organizations who will most likely balk are the printers and the carpenters.

Mr. R. B. Stickley of the Cigar makers International union was sent here by Mr. Perkins from Chicago and he has instructions to stay in the State until the middle of July. He is thoroughly schooled in this line of work and puts up an able and convincing argument in his Anti discussions which he always argues from a labor viewpoint. Met him at the Building Trades Council just 35 minutes after he landed here. Met him the first time however in Ohio in the stormy days of 1908 and 09 and on several occasions since when he would call at Columbus.

Called at Ft. Worth yesterday and found conditions among the labor people in good shape. Met Mr. Weeden of the Texas Brew Co. who sends his compliments to Mr. A. and warm expression of appreciation for the interest taken in the Texas situation. Aside from the Ferguson Club in existence there he is now forming an organization from the business and professional people which with the activity among the labor element ought to produce the desired results at the polls. The increase in poll tax payments amounts to something like 6,000 which ought to insure the election of the Anti Senator who claims he can give a good account of himself in that part of the district outside of Ft. Worth.

Received a letter from A yesterday in which he commented on the convention proposition and the "danger of sending too many delegates" as "this campaign is pitched on lines departing entirely from the old system." If that implies that some of the votes will not be on the floor of the convention why we will have to get along as best we can. Am of the opinion that we can put it over regardless of what Austin does in the matter as we have reports on Austin, San Antonio, Ft. Worth, and Dallas which practically insure success.

No doubt the suggestions previously made to him were submitted to the inner circle at Houston.

As we have an able corps of experienced labor men going down with the delegation to El Paso I may go on Friday night as we received word from our friends there that the advance guard of the Pros is on the ground.

If you desire to wire me at El Paso you can reach me care of the Sheldon Hotel which will be the convention headquarters. Will return here Saturday or Sunday 13th or 14th of the month. Will have mail held here until my return here.

Will keep you posted on the progress of the work at El Paso.

HOUSTON, TEXAS, 5-8-14.

DEAR GIBSON: In discussing the situation with A. yesterday I told him, as you suggested, that we wanted a clear understanding as to whether the service we had rendered so far was of any value, whether any further service was desirable and whether the plans suggested in carrying on the German propaganda was satisfactory to him. Also made plain our disappointment in not hearing from him occasionally on the progress of the work in Texas, since Mr. A. and his entire staff at Chicago had given their best effort in preparing the preliminary work for the campaign in Texas and were deeply interested in the final outcome.

In reply he said that the work done at the Chicago end was perfectly satisfactory, that they were relying entirely on the county reports we had furnished them, that the names of leaders and others given in the reports had proven so accurate, that they prepared their mailing list from same; this having been verified by men who were called in and conferred with from many parts of the state.

When told that the analysis of several districts had not been sent in, he stated that he was aware of that, but as they were following the suggestions in a general way, which were given in the reports at hand, he did not want to hurry us as he was of the opinion that we had our "hands full." He said however, that he would appreciate the complete data on the State. As to our suggestion of carrying on the work which is to be undertaken by Sorgel, he is perfectly agreed and will furnish the necessary material support when advised by Mr. A. to do so. When told that Mr. A. would be immediately advised of his concurrence in our plan he reiterated his former statement of being in full accord.

He was keenly disappointed in not having met Mr. A. or yourself at a meeting which was held in St. Louis on Thursday April 30th which was attended by McD. of N. Y. and the representatives of the A. B. interests of St. Louis and had for its principal purpose the perfecting of plans in meeting the Texas situation.

Had he known it in advance he would have wired you to meet him there. He seemed disappointed at the outcome of the meeting and beyond admitting that it was the unanimous opinion of the gathering, that the situation here was a bad one, he could not be induced to give any details. I told him of a previous talk with McD. here in which the latter said that, "the boys here have the situation well in hand" but aside from a negative shake of the head I could get nothing further from him. Told him also that it was the policy of the Chicago office to be represented on all occasions when requested to do so and that the absence of either Mr. A. and yourself was in all probability due to the fact that you had no knowledge of the meeting. Suggested also, that since he had lost 5 days going to St. Louis it might have been to his advantage to lose another day by going on to Chicago, since Mr. A. would have been glad to meet him. If you think it advisable send me a night letter on this. His actions indicate his suspicions of "a nigger in the woodpile" and I want to set him right as far as our end is concerned.

Sorgel has gone on to San Antonio and no doubt will be in his element as the environments there are in full accord with his Teutonic tastes and hereditary inclinations.

We are "feeling" out the delegates of the Farmers Union who are in convention here and the sentiment among whom is in keeping with that expressed in the enclosed clipping.

As the entire group here is busy along these lines we wont be able to get together on anything until tomorrow. There are many new angles in the situation which have developed since I was here which I will discuss tomorrow. Received your letter, the usual mail and the package from Cin, which contained my "labor commission" and the paraphanalia as an A. F. L. organizer.

Yours etc.

[Rice Hotel, Homer D. Matthews, Manager.]

HOUSTON, TEXAS, 5-8-14.

DEAR GIBSON: Our people are making preparations for the meeting at Dallas next Tuesday which will be attended by picked men from all over the State and will have for its purpose the perfecting of a plan to defeat the submission question at the primaries. It seems to be the opinion in many quarters that this proposition is doomed to defeat. That seemed to be the opinion of quite a number of Pros. whom I met at the Farmers convention. On the other hand again some of the delegates were sadly disappointed with Ball's "elastic" views, as they termed it, which he gave out in his opening speech. This of course applied to his declarations on the Pro. question and this sentiment was expressed by Pros. who looked upon him as the lesser of two evils.

While this may lose him some Pro votes he will more than make up the loss by his gains from the Antis, all the prominent leaders of which are practically in the Ball band wagon. Ferguson is making an energetic campaign, delivers two speeches a day and apparently is gaining support. But he isn't getting the necessary publicity through the press. Ball with his one or two efforts per week gets more newspaper attention than Ferguson with his dozen or more meetings. This however does not discourage Ferguson who, as Autery declares is building up a good working organization in every county in the State and as it will be impossible for him to cover the entire State his interests are being looked after by his following in their respective counties.

Another feature which has crept into this campaign and which, while not appearing on the surface, is gaining ground as the campaign advances, is the Bailey question.

Nearly all of the prominent Bailey men are lined up with Ball. Of course this does not include Wolters or Jonathan Lane, but they are about the only prominent exceptions. Those on the inside know where the Governor stands, but they fear that a declaration on his part will do more harm than good. He, no doubt, having his weather eye open for higher political honors, is content to remain silent.

State Senator T. H. McGreagor of Austin has been taken in by Colquitt and Watson and is assisting in an advisory way in carrying on the work. The program at this time is to elect Ferguson, defeat submission and get control of the legislature. To succeed on the legislature end it is their purpose to center the fight in four senatorial districts. The districts under consideration are the 6th, 9th, 14th, and 30th. This has not been definitely decided but will be within the next few days. Haven't as yet had the opportunity to go over the reports on the matter in question, and don't think it advisable as they seem desirous of assuming all responsibility. Have looked into the labor situation and aside of the fact that they have decided on the man from Austin who was mentioned in my report and a man here in Houston of their own selection, no decided action has been taken. While no doubt, these men are fully capable and wield considerable influence in their respective districts, the importance of the 14th Dist. in which Beaumont and Pt. Arthur are located, seems to have been overlooked, that is, from the labor end. At San Antonio they seem to be depending upon the brewery and German influence to bring about success as the labor end has been entirely dropped by the managers here. Where the rumor started that the El Paso State Labor Convention would endorse Ferguson, I have not as yet been able to ascertain, since, from what I could learn from the labor men here, there is no possibility of the convention taking sides on the gubernatorial question. Will have a better opportunity to-morrow of meeting A. and getting into the "gut fat" of the matter. (Pardon my reference to the classics (?).)

These people may have it right and may come out successfully, but I haven't been able, as yet, to see how they are going to do it.

Yours Etc.

R. L. AUTREY

EXHIBIT No. 685.

(From Andreae's files by G. N. M.)

HOUSTON, TEX., May 13th., 1914.

Mr. JNO. GARDINER, Philadelphia, Pa.

DEAR SIR: The Governor's race is suffering for want of publicity, because of the attitude assumed by the Colonels, who control the daily papers. I refer to Col. R. M. Johnston, of the Houston Post, Col. Clarence Ousely, of the Ft. Worth Record, and Col. W. J. Wortham, of the Star Telegram, of Ft. Worth,—the Bailey men who have in the two first instances declared out and out for Ball, and the latter, who is sulking. The Galveston Dallas News is also in a sulking attitude.

All of the big dailies in the State seem to be in a combination to give no publicity to the candidates, especially denying space to Ferguson. All these Anti-Prohibitionists have declared themselves strongly against submission, however, and I consider it likely they will devote much space in their papers to a fight against submission, in order to square themselves with their past records as Anti-Prohibitionists, and to prevent the loss of prestige to their papers consequent upon their sudden change of heart.

The fight against submission has opened up by organizing yesterday at Dallas, as you will see by enclosed clipping of the Dallas News.

Hon. Barry Miller, of Dallas, has been chosen as permanent Chairman of the Anti Resubmission Organization, and Mr. Rollin M. Colquitt is Secretary. By the selection of Mr. Colquitt we have complete control of the organization and can direct its movements. Active steps will be taken now to organize the entire state and although we have only seventy days left the material is so readily at hand that we anticipate no trouble. This organization will of course be a Ferguson organization and will do as much or more work towards electing Ferguson than defeating submission.

The chances to elect not only the necessary one third to defeat submission, but a majority of both branches of the legislature continue very favorable.

The work of the Farmers' Union is proving the effective means in the legislative fight. We have twenty three normally Prohibition districts where the candidates have aligned themselves with the Farmers' platform, and fourteen other normally Prohibition districts in which some of the candidates, and the ones likely to be elected, have also declared for the Farmer's Platform. The President of the Union, W. D. Lewis, and three of the most capable and aggressive Farmers' Union lecturers are candidates themselves for positions in the House, and will be elected beyond peradventure, and their presence in the body of the House will insure that their policy of peace in the matter of liquor legislation throughout the meeting of the legislature will be assured.

It would not do to only elect the men and then rely upon them to carry out the Farmers' policies, without being urged while the legislature is in session. There is an annual meeting held by the Farmers' Union every year and this year the meeting was held at Houston and came off last week. The attendance was the largest ever known,—about 1200 men. I had them sounded carefully from many angles, so as to be sure to ascertain the sentiment among them correctly, and learned that they were for Ferguson in the proportion of six to one for Ball. I take it as an assured fact that the tenant farmers and the small land owning farmers, and even quite a number of the landlord farmers are for Ferguson. I am also further confirmed in the information that the Railroads and Industrial Unions are for Ferguson, with a unanimity more pronounced than has ever been known in previous campaigns in this State.

The Bailey issue is daily becoming more prominent and I look for it to take the center of the stage now quickly, being forced into the campaign by the defection of the Bailey Colonels, Anti-Prohibitionists who have gone over to Ball. The situation is ideal for a vigorous and pungent staff writer, to show the alignment of the big corporate interests and Bailey and also the newspapers and politicians aligned with Ball, and on the other side the Farmers, Labor Unions, and the small business men aligned with Ferguson. Many are the staff writers in Texas, of whom I learn there are none for Ball, but on the contrary, all warm supporters of Ferguson, but who cannot write anything because their papers will not let them, to lay the situation bare before the people, and turn the tide of publicity toward Ferguson and get back all those followers of Ball who have climbed with him because they believe he is driving the band wagon.

Another clipping enclosed taken from the San Antonio Express gives you a good idea of how the declaration of Bailey for Ball is viewed. The San Antonio Express clipping should be brought by you, if you can do it, to the notice of Mr. Burleson, and I believe it will urge him more to make a declaration for Ferguson than any other force. It is very important to get an interview from Mr. Burleson as quickly as possible.

Very truly yours,

———— ————.

Believe we will finally adopt Ferguson. He seems to be gaining ground.

EXHIBIT No. 687.

(From Andreae's files by G. N. M.)

RICE HOTEL,
HOUSTON, TEXAS, 5–13–14.

DEAR GIBSON: Mr. A's wire was received and while A, after being apprised of its contents, fully appreciated the intent of the Chicago office to do the right thing as far as Texas was concerned, he could not understand why the other parties had not asked you to be present. He said he had made repeated attempts to get you on the phone that Thursday night, but as he called after office hours his efforts were futile.

The anti-submission meeting which was held at Dallas yesterday was attended by close on to fifty representatives from every senatorial district in the State. Very flattering reports were made at this gathering regarding Ferguson who was reported as gaining ground in all sections. Especially was this the case from the farming sections in the northern part of the State, where his tenant plank, which has now become the paramount issue among the farmers generally, is meeting with universal approval regardless of the sentiment on the prohibition question.

The representatives from the southern section report but few desertions from the Ferguson ranks and they further claim that the accessions of anti leaders to the Ball ranks will have no bearing on the rank and file, who will assert their anti convictions by voting for Ferguson.

Those who came from the railroad towns, claim that his early experience in practical railroad work and his declarations in favor of the "full crew bill," has won for him the favor of the railroad men.

The meeting was composed principally of those who were active in the 1911 State-wide campaign and, after electing Miller as permanent chairman and Colquitt as secretary, a chairman was selected for each district with authority to organize the counties and precincts along anti submission lines.

Have seen Mr. Walters and discussed at length the entire situation. He was very much enthused over the outlook and confident of Ferguson's success.

While the latter isn't getting the newspaper attention which is usually given a gubernatorial candidate, the reports received by Mr. A. show that the meetings are well attended. This is accounted for by the fact that the farmers, who at this season are not particularly busy, have the time to attend meetings and hear the candidate.

He is accompanied by experienced campaigners some of whom act as an advance guard and arrange the preliminaries in true Johnsonian style. This, of course, minus the tent. Aside from this, Pres. Hexthausen of the Herman Sons, is conducting a speaking campaign among the Germans particularly in the close counties. While the Germans are known to be right they must be roused to activity.

This is particularly the case among some of the German Alliance people which Sorgel intimates in the brief report I received from him. Apparently he was not very favorably impressed by Mr. Moeller.

The State Saengerbund which is safely estimated at being over 99 per cent anti, held its annual fest at Dallas, and its membership, being as strenuous, engrossed in alternately chanting their hosanahs and lubricating their vocal organs, could but vigorously nod an affirmative approval, of anything and everything that savored of a Ferguson or Anti flavor.

In a recent report I suggested that the balance of our reports which included the analysis of the counties and districts of Texas should be forwarded here.

My only reason for doing so was to safeguard ourselves in the event of defeat and a possible come back. While they are using all the information contained in the reports it is my firm opinion that they pay little or no attention to the analysis.

Mr. A. and I have repeatedly called their attention to the importance of giving some attention to those elements of organization other than political, and particularly the labor end.

They in turn, according to my knowledge of men, have made a studied effort to avoid the consideration of this matter, always giving one reason or another as an excuse for doing so.

After making three futile attempts to have them consider the matter I informed Mr. A. that my services here were done. That if they did not want to give the matter any consideration, it was only fair that they say so. He then for the second time unbosomed himself and ripped Colquitt up the back right. He showed me into an inner office and pointed out the work he was compelled to do on his own hook, on account of the indifference and inactivity of Colquitt. The work was of a publicity nature and was run out as boiler plate among a chain of country newspapers, and purported to be coming from a source which would have the right influence. He enjoined the strictest confidence and was more fearful of Watson and Colquitt learning of it than anyone else. This work is done at the brewery and under cover. He urged me to stay and let him what assistance I could in looking after the labor end and other matters that may arise. I told him, that pending other instructions from Chicago I would gladly be at his service, but since those gentlemen had assumed the selfish attitude of ignoring both he and I, we could not be expected to assume any responsibility for the final outcome of the Texas situation. He concurred fully on this viewpoint and again requested that I stay on those conditions.

With that understanding we went went to work and secured the service of a prominent labor man in north Texas who has headquarters in Dallas and will give his entire time to the campaign. I am going over to Beaumont tomorrow to get the work started there.

They've determined on centering the senatorial fight in the three districts which include Dallas, Ft. Worth, and Beaumont.

I have given you a general outline of affairs as they exist in the state at large and a brief statement of the facts as to the inner workings here in Houston.

It is evident that the relations between A. and the other parties aren't of the best, but for some reason they seem to hold the whip hand. The campaign being so far advanced it would hardly be possible for him to break with them without getting hurt.

It might be just barely possible that other influences are responsible for the attitude of these gentlemen towards us.

I will return here about the end of the week. Should you desire to alter the course as outlined above you can wire or write me here. As I will be busy with detail matter you may not hear from me unless something important develops.

Yours, etc.

RICE HOTEL,
Houston, Texas, 5-24-14.

DEAR GIBSON: Returned last night from Beaumont and Pt. Arthur where arrangements were made with the labor men to look after one end of it. Was compelled to make an extra trip over there in order to accompany the Senatorial candidate Mr. King and get him in touch with the union men. His opponent, Collins, being very strong in the southern end of the district. The conditions there are in keeping in every detail with reports from that district which are on file at the office.

The Pros. of Beaumont are circulating a petition asking for local option. This has started the antis to work in earnest as they fear the influence of the two big refining plants located there. Held a meeting of the Houston delegates to the El Paso labor convention here today. The line up here is about 4 to 1 (favoring the antis). As the convention will be held in the farthest extreme of the state a large attendance is not anticipated. But every mother's son will be laden with Proxies,—which are permitted, not to exceed five votes per delegate.

While the Anti's are busy gathering them up, the fact that the Pros. are equally as busy, must not be lost sight of. Feel confident that if A. is willing to play the old 1909 Toledo game we can put it over. Will put the proposition up to him on his return here to-morrow. The convention will be held beginning June 8th. Understand that Proebstel of the Brewery Workers Union will be there.

The labor fellows among the Anti's know how, and are willing to play the game, but up to the present time have not been given the necessary encouragement.

Mr. Sorgel, who is here in Houston, has been very successful in his work among the German element.

He is instilling activity and enthusiasm among them wherever he goes; he has gotten the Herman Sons and the German Alliance of the State working together and aside from holding frequent meetings of the various branches, he is furnishing their official organs with articles which have the necessary "punch." He succeeded in bringing the different factions of Houston together and organized an alliance here this afternoon and they held their initial meeting in the Sunday school room of a certain German church.

Our articles are beginning to appear in the "Brauer Zeitung" and will be reproduced in the various labor papers. Met Mr. Haxthausen of the Herman Sons here this evening. As previously stated he is active in behalf of Mr. Ferguson. He is deeply interested in our methods of doing things—suggested a plan of closer relationship between his organization, the German Alliance and Mr. A. and suggested a conference at some early date with that purpose in view.

Expect to get to Austin, Dallas and Ft. Worth early the coming week. Will send you a night letter when I leave here so that you will be able to keep in touch with me.

Yours, etc.,

C. H. W.

Mr. S. T. MORGAN,
Dallas, Tex.

DEAR SIR: This introduces Mr. C. H. Wirmel, who is in Texas at the request of Mr. Andreae, and who has been doing valuable work among the labor ranks in the Beaumont district, and now goes to Dallas and Ft. Worth, and will do all he can among the labor people in those two districts in behalf of the Senators we want.

He will keep in close touch with you.

DALLAS, TEXAS, 5–30–14.

DEAR GIBSON: Held a lengthy conference with the executive committee of the Travis County Club just after mailing you my partial report on Austin.

This committee of twenty composed of representatives of friendly interest and including representatives of labor, merchants, German societies and fraternities turned out to a man.

Gave them complete outline of a systematic organization to which they acceded with a vim and they immediately selected committees to look after the different branches of the work. These people had some knowledge of organization but were willing to be shown and eager to carry out suggestions for better results. The poll tax payments of Travis County has doubled over 1911 and they estimate that 75 per cent of this gain is anti. When the possibilities of this asset were made plain to them they unanimously agreed to take their coats off and go to work. They have a local situation there that will have to be ironed out by a persuasive process of elimination. There are three anti candidates for representative against one Pro. One of the Antis, a thorough exponent of the theories of perennial candidacy, whose chances for election have always been equal to those of his "grape juice" ideal, will have to be eliminated on a substantial Chatauquan basis, since he has the reputation of finding pleasure and enchantment in the jingle of the "twenty pieces." The other one, can be assured by less strenuous methods "that the people aint calling him yet." Have reported the entire matter to A. at Houston. The parties there claim sole rights in the elimination work.

The situation here in Dallas is in fair shape. The party they have selected to look after the labor end is prominent among all classes and well known among the labor men throughout the State. Heard favorable comment at Houston, Pt. Arthur, Beaumont and Austin. As a worker he is what Hartly would call "a pippin." In the two days I've been here he has gotten me in direct touch with a good many persons who are prominent in all circles.

We make nightly visits to the different labor organizations, where we are at liberty to inject just as much "moisture" into our discussions as would be tolerated in a brewery workers meeting in Cincinnati, and, in return are greeted with enthusiastic appreciation. The first night we visited the printers, engineers, bakers and finished at midnight among the Germans at the Turn-Verein. Last night we visited the Central labor Council, of which the party in charge of our affairs here, is president, and we received invitations through the delegates to visit every union in town. They the Germans think Sougel can do a lot of good in this part of Texas. They will guarantee him a record meeting here if he will come up. Have written him and Haxthausen of the importance of work among the Germans of North Texas. The increase in poll tax payments is considerable. Haven't the exact figures but think it in the neighborhood of seven thousand and is over two thirds anti. A bet posted yesterday of 1000 to 500 that Ferguson would be next Governor found no takers. Not even in small amounts, which was optional with the takers. While no doubt it was a "feeler" it had the desired effect and every-body is talking about it.

Mr. Geller who is the party active in our work here will be a delegate to the El Paso convention. Anticipating undue activity on the part of the pros, which is evident everywhere, we are drafting several antiresolutions to be offered by different delegates. They will range from extreme radical to something we can well afford to tie to as a compromise. By stirring up the right kind of a fight we hope to have them fall for our compromise. Have dug up 15 votes that will be right if gotten to convention. These votes can be polled by three delegates who ought to be gotten to convention. Have given A. full details and made repeated requests but haven't up to this time received a reply. The people here know and play the game and will not leave a vote behind as all details have been completed.

Have arranged with the "Nord Texas Presse" to reprint articles from the "Brauer Zeitung" and have written Proebstle who is well know in Texas and will be at El Paso, to put the "Presse" on his exchange list. Mr. Kuenstle the editor will carry an article on the recent Cincinnati demonstration in the next edition.

One oversight that caused us some worry and annoyance among the labor people was the absence of the printers label on our printed matter. Brought the matter to the attention of A. who will immediately remedy the matter. Another matter that would help us some would be the adjustment of differences between labor and the Schlitz agency here. These things are magnified by the P'ros. and peddled among the labor men. The Schlitz agency is rated as "unfair."

Received a copy of a general letter sent out over the country by the Glass Bottle Blowers Association, of which John Voll is first Vice Pres., and which calls upon labor to protest against Nation wide Pro. Sent the roster of the Texas Federation to John with a request to send copies of letter to each individual. I feel that he will get in immediate touch with these people as he is usually prompt in such matters.

Am also writing for information on the State convention of the Virginia Federation of Labor as it might be well to have those people get in on it in time.

Will get this through Tom Donelly at Cincinnati.

You may wonder at this spurt of enthusiasm. The reason is plain. It's a case of environment. The people at Austin and here, unlike some I have met at Houston, are dwelling right down here on earth and, unlike others of the same place and of a sort of assumed nobility, have some gray matter under their hats and good red blood coursing through their veins.

Please send all mail to Adolphus until further notice.

MAY 28, 1914.

Mr. R. M. COLQUITT,
301 Beatty Building, Houston, Tex.

MY DEAR MR. COLQUITT: I am herewith sending you the following analyses:

First Senatorial District:
- Second House Legislative District.
- First House Legislative District.

Second Senatorial District:
- Thirty-third House Legislative District.
- Thirty-fourth House Legislative District.

Third Senatorial District.
Fourth Senatorial District.
Sixteenth Senatorial District.
Seventeenth Senatorial District:
- Seventieth House Legislative District.
- Seventy-second House Legislative District.

Twenty-first Senatorial District.
Twenty-second Senatorial District.
Twenty-third Senatorial District.

The analyses for the other Senatorial Districts in which all of the counties of such district were completed by our survey will be forwarded to you within the next few days.

I do not know whether the analyses have proven of any benefit to you in formulating your campaign, but assume that those sent to you earlier laid before you in complete detail the general plan of organization which in our judgment might prove effective in the conduct of your campaign.

After all, it resolves itself into organizing those elements which are, or should be, liberal, and which only require organizing into compact forces to make them of material aid in the campaign. I know that you saw the general scheme of our plan when you were here, and from those analyses which were sent you, and consequently have not sought to enforce my views or opinions upon you, in view of the fact that your past political experience has undoubtedly taught you as it has me, the importance of utilizing every element at one's command when they are engaged in such a big contest as you are handling in the State of Texas. In fact, I have been rather loathe to place before one so experienced as you what the survey has so plainly shown to me, for I was certain that you would as quickly see the same conditions as were manifest to me.

The same elements of organization which can be utilized in formulating the campaign in the Senatorial Districts, can be utilized in the campaigns in the Flotorial Districts, of course, with such rearrangement of the Counties as is made necessary by the different district boundary lines. The same elements for organization are also available in these Legislative Districts consisting of but one County.

I am quite certain that you have already seen in the formulation of your campaign in Texas how important it is to know just exactly where these liberal elements for organization are to be found, and how important it is to perfect them so that you can move them as a solid fighting force at your primary election in behalf of the right candidate for Governor, against Submission of State-wide Prohibition, and for the proper Legislative candidates.

I know that the time for the close of entries in connection with your fight is fast approaching and want to impress upon you that any assistance which we can render, any suggestions we can offer, or work of any of Mr. Andreae's numerous organizers, will be gladly placed at your disposal.

I wish you would at your earliest opportunity, if it does not trespass upon your time, write me fully as to how you view the situation in your state from the various standpoints in which our friends are so vitally interested.

With very kindest personal regards, and wishes of success, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours,

LHG: P.

MAY 27, 1914.

DEAR GIBSON: Replying further to your telegram I beg to say that we had talked over the matter of establishing closer relations between the German Alliance and the Herman Sons, which we are beginning to realize, is a great advantage in a campaign of this nature.

Sougel and Haxthausen both suggested a get-together meeting in Chicago as I understood it, at some future date, which you will note in a previous letter. He did not tell me he wired Keller until my return to Houston late that night. Nor did I know that he suggested an early meeting until I received your wire next day. After receiving your wire we again got together and they told me they had a plan whereby they could handle the German end of the campaign at very little cost. I then took the proposition up with Autery and he said he would attend to that from this end. Of course this applied to the Herman Sons only and would have no bearing on the present status of the Alliance as explained to me by Mr. A. and yourself before I left Chicago.

On Monday night after we had this understanding, we were invited into a conference which Mr. Autery, Col. Jake Wolters, Haxthausen, and Messrs. Faust and Henne of St. Louis, participated. The reports from the political, German and the labor sources were gone over thoroughly and situation discussed from the various angles. Everybody seemed to be well satisfied with the progress of the work. The recommendations of Soergel, Haxthausen and myself in which we urged more substantial encouragement to the German and the labor element in carrying on campaign work, were considered and Autery was advised to carry out our suggestions. Laid before them our Ohio plan of meeting such conditions and they suggested that we follow that plan and authorized Autery to look after all needs in order to insure success.

I learnt later, however, that Haxthausen had suggested, in a private conversation with Faust, the advisability of conferring with Mr. A. at Chicago.

Faust should have said that that was a very good idea and he would take up the matter.

While I fully agree that the Herman Sons are a valuable asset and their friendship and support should be encouraged and firmly established, I don't think it necessary at this time to negotiate directly with Chicago since the local parties have assured us they would take care of the matter. This assurance was given me by Mr. Autery without any parleying.

We parted company in good grace last night. Soergel and Haxthausen going to Galveston after which they will return to Houston and then work north so as to finish the campaign in the doubtful sections. I came on here to look after the labor end and obtain as many delegates and proxies as are availble for the coming El Paso convention. All recommendations are made direct to Autery and he works through the local agents. If he carries out the recommendations as he has agreed to do there is no question about who will control the convention.

If you recall, my previous reports from Austin were far from encouraging.

Most pessimistic at that time was a Mr. Traenkman Editor of the German paper here. Saw him today and he told me that in all his experience and observation he never saw a man gain in public favor as Ferguson has in this and surrounding counties, during the past four weeks. And, he adds, that the enthusiasm sticks, as he makes a lasting impression by his clean cut methods of campaigning.

Mr. McKeever of the "Labor Forum" says that Ferguson's concurrence in all of the propositions labor has submitted, contrasting as it does with Ball's straddle of one important proposition, cannot but win labor's support to the Anti candidate.

Mr. Kirk president of the labor Council who was non-committal on my previous trip is outspoken for Ferguson and arrived at these conclusions after hearing both candidates. He says Ball's meetings are composed largely of women and children while Ferguson's meeting here was attended by three times as many voters as was Ball's and, he added, they had their poll tax receipts within easy reach.

Major Littlefield, the leading banker here and known by the farmers in the surrounding counties, who gave a half hours interview, is very enthusiastic over his success in winning back, as he claims, several prominent antis who partly climbed into the Ball band wagon, and he further claims they'll be all back by election day. He is active in the Ferguson organization here and the moving spirit in the campaign.

We will hold a meeting tonight which will be composed of about 40 active workers in the campaign. They want our views on organization. Will try to accommodate them.

Think it important that I go to the convention. Weather conditions and other things are not as agreeable as we would like to have them, but I am more than willing if you are. Please send my mail to the Adolphus, Dallas, until further notice. Will go there tonight.

Yours etc

DALLAS, TEXAS 6–1–14

DEAR GIBSON: Called on Mr. Eppstein here today as I was anxious to get his ideas on the situation.

As to the situation among the labor people he was not in a position to discuss as Mr. Morgan usually looked after that end of it.

He was advised however by parties coming in from the rural sections that Ferguson was steadily gaining ground among the farmers and judging from these reports he was inclined to the belief that he would be a winner. He said that many Pro farmers would support him, which of course is absolutely essential to success in north Texas.

From what he could gather the sentiment was about evenly divided on the submission question, some Antis favoring submission on the strength of thei belief that it would be overwhelmingly defeated if put up to the people.

Chief of Police Ryan who returned yesterday morning from the police chiefs convention, where he had incidentally taken a poll of the delegates present, reported that ninety per cent would support Ferguson and were guided in their views by the sentiment in their home communities.

Confirming yesterday's wire I might add that I received a letter from Autery stating that the recommendations I made on getting the three delegates mentioned in a previous letter, would be carried out and the 15 votes would be at the convention.

All arrangements for the local delegation have been made. Autery was very anxious that Mr. Andreae be advised of the improvement of conditions in Austin and Dallas. The labor men will leave here Saturday morning for El Paso and I will go with the party. You can continue to send my mail here. Will order it held until my return from convention. Send wires direct to El Paso. I will arrange there for delivery to hotel.

Will go to Ft. Worth during this week. Will run over during the day as we have engagements for every evening this week.

I enclose herewith clipping from the "Dallas Dispatch" the evening Scripps-MacRea paper, which may be of some value in the future.

MR. C. H. WIRMEL.
Adolphus Hotel, Dallas, Tex.

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 1st. received.

Arrangements have been made with the brewery workers to send Silliman and Armsted. We must be careful not to have too many paid men at El Paso. There has been too much of that sort of thing in previous years and we must not take any steps in this campaign that bear resemblance to old methods. This campaign is pitched on lines departing entirely from the old system.

If you go to Chicago, advise me, so that I may not send you any mail that will miss you. I want you to inform Mr. Andreae of what you find. I have nothing but good news to add to your reports, although I have not written Mr. Andreae.

WACO, June 18-11.

DEAR GIBSON:

Your letter of the 15th came to hand at Dallas yesterday and as affairs in that part of the state are working nicely I came here last night. Confirming my night letter of this day I beg to add that Mr. Woodman is looking after Ft. Worth, Mr. Geller after Dallas and Mr. Stickley who was sent into the state by Perkins of the Cigar makers, will remain until the primary election and work the towns of Denison, Sherman and Palestine. All these men were at El Paso are familiar at the game and agreed to look after the towns enumerated above. In addition to that Mr. Colquitt will open the Anti-Submission Headquarters at Dallas tomorrow. This of course will be the base of operations for northern Texas.

Among the workers who assured me of their help and support at the El Paso Convention were the delegates from Houston, Austin, San Antonio, El Paso, Galveston and Port Arthur—and, I must add Waco. These men of course will work principally among the labor people and circulate any and all literature where it will do the most good. I am making a list of these people whose names and addresses I obtained and will send it to Autrey. While the prospects for success look favorable in the Ft. Worth and Dallas senatorial districts, where the available anti-vote if gotten to the polls will be of such strength as to put over almost anything, the situation in the Beaumont district where King is running against Collins, does not look encouraging.

I saw evidence of apathy there when I was in that district and brought it to the attention of Autery. The parties I met at El Paso who hail from that district claim that up to the time of their leaving for the convention, there was no surface indications of Anti activity. Joe Broebstle of the Brewery Workers showed me a letter in which a proposition to put three men to work among the railroad men, and other doubtful quantities, had been turned down by Houston. I intend to cover these propositions in a tactful manner in my letter covering the general situation to Autery. Joe at first was determined to go down and blow up the brewery but I think I prevailed on him to use some tact. I trust that the letter from Autery on Keller's proposition is satisfactory to Mr. Andreae.

The situation here in Waco from what I was able to gather from the few sources visited today looks exceedingly favorable for Ferguson. The Anti submission end will have to be boosted. Mr. Henry is an avowed Anti both State and National and stands for Ferguson. He not only declared himself along those lines to me but I verified his attitude through Mr. Lindde, the Anheuser & Bush representative here, Mr. Striebbling one of the leading attorneys and a number of labor men whom I learnt to know at El Paso.

Henry seemed surprised and was really delighted to know that the liberal people were taking such a deep interest in his candidacy and after telling me of some of his experiences here and in Congress, his future aspirations to serve his state at "the other end of the capitol," a few anecdotes on Jim Cox, Alf. Allen, Senator Pomerene and other Ohio notables, he pointed out a few spots at Temple, Marlin and here where we would be just the people to "fix the fences." He gave me the lay of the ground but left the manner of procedure entirely with myself, as he was going to follow Jim Ross' example, by going down into the tall weeds to exterminate the cut worms and the rattlesnakes. He gave me a few pointers on Wilkerson and a Clint Parmer, the latter being the local disseminator of "Cascade" whiskey. Will look this matter up tomorrow and if matters become desperate I'll wire, if not I will keep you posted by mail. As to your hint to exercise caution. The fellows in this part of the State dont give you a chance to be cautious. After my credentials were presented I had nothing to do but listen or run away. Being hungry for knowledge I shut up and stayed.

Was agreeably surprised to learn that Colquitt returned to terra firma. A few prods in the fet locks by some of these "long horn" Pros, might have brought him to a realization of the fact, that he couldn't keep it "all in his head." At that Gib, there is always hope for the fellow who acknowledges the corn; still, it wouldn't be a bad idea to preserve that document.

Gale sent a request for another article for the Brewers Journal. Have been very busy the last few weeks getting the line up for the El Paso Convention. My room in Dallas was the headquarters for all the labor fellows. All the correspondence with the boys in all parts of the State was carried on from there and it was next to impossible to get any time for myself. I dont like to entrust my correspondence to the ordinary stenographer so a good deal of this work will devolve upon myself. Tell Gale if I can get Sunday to myself I will fix something up for him.

John Voll writes me that the Germans in Youngstown are revolting against Cox. That Cox had asked him to get me to go over and fix things up.

I told Voll that it was impossible for me to leave this State before the latter part of July. That I didn't think Cox would need any help in the primaries as Ed Moore and his following were just waiting for a chance to wallop Whitaker. That when the general campaign opened up the Germans no doubt would be lined up for Cox as against Willis and Garfield.

Now if our people have decided on any fixed policy in Ohio and want to look into the matter the proper parties to see among the German element there are Father Kluete and Henry Dietz of the Imperial Hotel. I merely suggest this to you in the event that you decide to take action. I enclose letter which you can hold for me.

The matter in reference to the executive board of the Glass blowers I will discuss with you on my return. Yours Etc.

C. H. WIBMEL.

If you decide to look into the Youngstown matter I think Kummer is aquainted with the parties mentioned and can render the desired service.

The Virginia labor convention has already met. They were silent on the Pro. question.

JUNE 21ST, 1914

DEAR GIBSON: Owing to Mr. Wilkerson's absence from the city I did not get to meet him until this morning. Found him to be an interesting and pleasant fellow.

Told him that I represented the engineers and with other labor men was going around the state trying to do what we could in the interest of Ferguson and against submission.

He is strong for both but told me confidentially that he would vote for Judge Scott for congress as a matter of personal friendship. He added however that the anti's were for Henry, but that no one knew just where Henry stood [illegible] on that question.

I showed him a copy of a letter sent out by Sam. Gompers advocating Henry's support by the labor people but as I did'nt want to "muddy the waters" I wanted to advise with him before going any further.

To this he suggested that I go ahead and hustle for Henry as he was not making any noise about Scott because all the anti interests were for Henry.

He also pointed out several spots in the district where I might be able to do Henry some good.

He also suggested that I make his office my headquarters while in town and offered to accommodate me in every possible way.

To be candid with you, I am of the opinion that he is pretty wise and will I verify his statements from a reliable source, I will take his information with the customary grain of salt.

In the mean time if anything important turns up I will send a night wire.

Henry is desirous that I stay here for a time at least. Will have a meeting of the labor fellows here tomorrow night where I hope to perfect some semblance of a campaign organization among them.

Am enclosing an article for your consideration. Same is in response to Gibson's request of last week.

If it is possible I will send another in about a week or ten days. Have been afflicted with a sort of fever during the past week but am getting alright again.

Send all communications to above address until further notice.

Mr. C. H. WIRMEL,
Hotel Waco, Waco, Tex.

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 22nd. received. Also your previous lengthy letter giving me an account of the El Paso meeting and of your observations since your return from El Paso. I am turning over the article which accompanied your letter to Max Andrews, with the suggestion that he insert it in the Houston Labor Journal.

I understand you to say you are working in behalf of Mr. Henry and am glad you are doing so, because I understand that Mr. Henry supports Ferguson actively, and besides, he is a strong national figure and his opponent is not likely to win and has not much faith in his own chances for success.

I think you are optimistic about Ferguson beyond a cautious justification. The reports that reach me daily continue to indicate that Ferguson gains steadily and holds his ground. So far as I know there is no disaffection anywhere. The organization of Ball's headquarters in Dallas and Houston cannot do him much good. If it makes him a few votes among the Antis it will lose him many more among the Pros. The new Ball Anti organization is very active, however, and they are getting a good deal into the Press and if they hit on something startling they may still gain ground, although I cannot conceive of any possibility for them to turn the tide against Ferguson. The new organization is Ball-Bailey-Anti machine and is the final step to accentuate the Bailey fight in this campaign, all of which does not do us any harm.

I do not feel sanguine about submission. I am afraid we will lost it.

Very truly yours,

R. L. AUTREY.

WACO, June 26th, 1914.

MY DEAR GIBSON: As suggested in my last letter I called at several points in the district in order to verify what Wilkerson has told me. This was also urgently requested by Henry who has been down with a serious attack of ptomaine poisoning and was unable to get around. His case shows some improvement today however and at the present rate of improvement he ought to be about in a few days.

Called at Temple in Bell county and sought out a Mr. McCalmont who, in verification of the report made in our survey, I found to be the leading spirit among the labor men. Was assured by that gentleman that among the 800 labor men of that county, about 98 per cent of whom were paid up on poll tax, Ferguson, Henry and Anti-submission would get all but about 20 votes.

Mr. Earl Winn, the Anheuser-Busch man there, who deals with Wilkerson and whom the latter always calls on when in town, assured me that the Antis were for Henry for Congress. He said that while no one knew Henry's position on the liquor question from a local standpoint, his record in Congress on the Nation-wide proposition was satisfactory to the Anti's of his district.

Mr. Robt. Gresham, editor of the Temple Mirror, who individually and through the columns of his paper is right on all of our propositions, told me that Henry need have no fear of the outcome in Bell country, that he was stronger today than at any time during his public career.

Also called at Belton the county seat, where I met a Mr. S. Walker, who had sent out a half dozen scouts to sniff the winds in various sections of the county. He reported that the people were strong for Henry but that there was considerable opposition to Ferguson because of financial transactions among the farming element. He said, that unless the sentiment could be changed Ferguson might lose his home county.

Returning to Temple I managed to locate Messrs. H. Rader and H. Wiggers who, according to our reports, and, in fact, are president and secretary, respectively, of the local Herman Sons. As was to be expected, these people are right on all propositions. There was some doubt among their membership as to Henry's stand on the local option question but they are well pleased with his stand on the Nation-wide question and for that reason will support him.

Also visited Ferguson's campaign headquarters and renewed the acquaintanceship of his campaign manager and others whom I had met in various parts of the state. They were in high glee over the glowing reports that were coming in from all sections of the state and exceptionally profuse in expressing their appreciation of what the labor men had done at El Paso.

Mentioned to them the deflection reported at Belton, the county seat. Also discussed with them the importance of giving some attention to the recent speeches of Ball, who, in commenting on Colquitt's stand for Ferguson, declared "that no governor was ever big enough to name his successor."

This is one of the strongest cards the Pros have played and it is opening up unnecessary discussion among those Anti's who are liable to be swayed from anything the governor may suggest.

His recent criticisms of the administration's Mexican policy are not in accord with the general sentiment of the people of the state, who, as a rule, are warm in their support of the national administration.

This is a well known fact to those on the inside of our own camp, among whom, and especially Autery, there seems to be a constant misgiving that the governor, who no doubt is sincere, will say something that will make room for attack by the opposition.

This point was dwelt on with particular emphasis by Ball in his speech at Marlin yesterday and was received with unstinted and prolonged approval by his audience of about 700, among which was about 100 women, mostly members of the W. C. T. U.

I talked with a number of those in attendance after the meeting and learn that while a goodly proportion of his audience came there out of curiosity a were Ferguson men at heart, they did not approve of the governor "buttin' in.

Will bring this to the attention of Autery in my report to him.

Found the situation in Marlin in good shape. This is a strong Germ section and the sentiment is proportionately in our favor. Located a M. Turner there who is called upon by Wilkerson on the latters business tr and learnt that while this county is the home of Judge Scott, Henry's oppon the sentiment favored Henry. Also met a Mr. Hale president of the carpen union, who is an ardent admirer of Henry's who also stated that the mem of his union are hustling to make Henry's majority in the county oversha all previous efforts. He also claimed that the members of his union could relied upon to carry out the "order" of the El Paso convention as regards prohibition and candidates for office.

Coming back to Waco I might add that Mr. Luedde of the Anheuser-Bus people, who has sub branches in every wet town in the district will take of the people he does business with and as he is widely known and has a lar amount of influence among all classes of people, there is no reason why He should'nt win by a majority exceeding that of his previous campaign. At t latter's request however I will remain in the district for several days to after the labor people and some of the Germans.

Had an amusing experience here with one A. B. Goodman, of German-Hebr extraction, who operates several wholesale houses here and handles the pro of the I. N. Harper, distillers, which may interest you and which, by way digression may be worth mentioning here. We learnt that this cumbers chunck of the earth's salt, who unfortunately is extremely deaf and w imagines everybody else in the same fix, was in the habit of spasmodic declaring himself for "Chudge Schkott" and, in tone of voice at that, wh would carry into the adjoining townships. Accosting him in German, I w able to gain what little confidence would be trickling from an intellect w matured in these German-Hebrew characteristics for thrift and caution. response to my query as to how the Baptists stood on Anti-submission. shouted "finster, finster." (Woeful gloomy) Asked if he knew that "Chu Schkott" was prominent in the Baptist Church and was teaching a sunday sch class in order to gain the Pro vote, he replied in the negative, and forthw told "Chake" his faithful understrapper to call up Stribling "and find about it." Stribling is his lawyer and our friend, knew the facts and was on the play as Goodman consults him on everything but the Jewish relig Presently "Chake" shouted back from the telephone that "Stribling says ri right." Well, Jim Ross in his palmiest day never executed such artistic h and foot work as did this distracted Hebrew, while gesticulating over the fa pretenses of "date Schlamiel (scoundrel) Schkott," who had been "trink in gwart lots mein joicest blands for nuddin." He shouted to the now pa stricken "Chake" to call up "de odder two blacés and tell 'em watt Strib said." It is needless to add that there will be at least three Hebrews in t town telling a different story to the thirst-ridden pilgrims, who come in fr adjoining territory, than has been their custom heretofore.

Another matter that may interest you is that in a poll taken on the tr to Marlin yesterday, Ball had 20 Ferguson 10 and 14 non-committal. In v of the fact that Ball and his escort was on the train the poll may be loo upon with considerable doubt.

Just received a letter from Autery in which he is extremely doubtful of chances of defeating submission.

Candidly speaking, I am of the opinion that if one half of the effort that being directed in Ferguson's interest were used to defeat submission it wo be an easy matter to accomplish the end.

I am frank to say that I haven't seen a single piece of campaign literature bea ing on that question, in any part of the state I have visited. Have on the o hand, had repeated requests from parties interested, to furnish them with s reading matter when same was available.

Have written Autery in reference to these inquiries and furnished him w the names of parties desiring the printed matter, and, with the exception his letter to me today, he has never mentioned the matter in his replies to m letters.

In his letter today, the only reference to my request for material from wh I am able to obtain any meaning is: "I do not feel sanguine about submiss I am afraid we will lose it."

We have four more weeks left for campaigning and in that time we ought to be able to put up a fairly creditable fight.

It looks to me as if they are going to depend on the new Ball-Anti movement, which from outward appearance looks like a scheme to cater to the Anti's in order to bring them over to Ball, and, having gotten the Anti's started for Ball, submission and particularly its defeat, will go glimmering.

Autery claims that the new organization is a "Ball-Bailey-Anti machine and is the final step to accentuate the Bailey fight in this campaign, all of which does not do us any harm."

Again referring to Autery's "near-swan song" on the fate of anti-submission, we can not help but call to mind several happenings, which to my mind are somewhat unusual, which have taken place during the past few weeks. On our return from El Paso Joe Proebstle, commenting on the noticeable lack of activity of the Antis said: "there are men high in the councils of the Antis in Texas, who are willing to milk the cow as long as there is the least sign of her being fresh and I am going right down to Houston and tell Autery what I think of this business." And he added, "I know the history of the Anti's in Texas and know what I am talking about," and continuing further, he said, "you will find this out to your own satisfaction and I hope that you will tell Mr. Andreae all about it." That is almost his exact language and it left such a lasting impression upon me I can almost recall it word for word. I had intended to await developments before mentioning this conversation to you but since the expected seems to be in course of development, I think it time to mention it.

Following the above conversation by a few days came your letter mentioning Colquitt's outburst of appreciation of our work on the survey and Sorgel's good work among the Germans of south Texas. A singular procedure on the part of a Colquitt, all of whom, have the reputation among the politicians and others of this state, of never having let go of any honors, or things more tangible, whenever it was possible to cling to them.

Since Autery, in today's letter is somewhat solicitous about Henry's canvass and is "very glad" that I am helping him, I am almost led to believe that the "distress signal" sent you in Henry's behalf, was part of the "barney fight." Were it not for the fact that I found evidence of deflections here, which were mentioned in your letter (and which by the way could be staged at that) I would be convinced that this play was part of the game. Now understand me correctly Gib, no reflections on you or any of our people, but it may be just possible that this bunch may be using our entire groupe in order to get some people away from the scenes of their supposed activities.

A brief analysis in my estimation will show that. An appreciative letter to Chicago for service rendered in making the survey and a hint that the suggestions made in the analysis were being carried out, would satisfy that end of it, that all was well.

Soergle in "little Germany," somewhat remote from Houston, would be at a safe distance from that supposed source of activity and would not be liable to pry into the workings at that point.

Wirmel in Henry's district would be equally as remote from the base of operations at Dallas and would not be liable to disturbe the continued peace and tranquillity of the real, dyed in the wool anti-submission headquarters at that point.

With all these out of state interlopers exiled the anti-submission campaign will follow the even tenor of its way regardless of the consequences.

I am of the opinion that a good, stiff, four weeks campaign would defeat submission and I am going to urge upon Autery in my reply to his letter, that this be done.

Have been in touch with the labor man at Dallas right along and he has kept me posted on what was going on and was always prompt in his replies.

Three days ago I wrote him in regard to the progress of the work in the Anti-submission headquarters there and urged him to express me any available printed matter for distribution among a labor committee, which I organized here, whose membership had volunteered to do the distributing at this end. Up to the present I have'nt heard a word the party is usually very prompt and has his replies in my hands within twenty four hours.

Am just beginning to wonder whether they have gotten to him.

Now Gib, I might be unduly suspicious or afflicted with the intense heat of which this community is getting its proportionate share, I am going to leave it to your judgment as to how you would size up this situation, with the f[illegible] as given above.

I have gone into this work with a determination to get results and ev[illegible] proposition we have undertaken we came very nearly cleaning up, in sev[illegible] far beyond their greatest expectations, but what gets my goat, is to see th[illegible] fellows lay down on the anti submission question before they have start[illegible] to fight.

JUNE 28th, 191[illegible]

Mr. R. L. AUTREY,
Houston Ice & Brew. Co., Houston, Texas.

DEAR SIR: I noted with extreme interest your opinion on the probable [illegible] come of submission as given in your favor of the 25th.

No doubt, your inquiries and investigations in various sections of the s[illegible] have prompted you to entertain some doubt as to results.

While we will be seriously handicapped by the loss of the republican [illegible] negro vote, which will not be available at this election it might be well to c[illegible] every effort upon those who are eligable to vote at this time.

I have received repeated requests from our friends in various sections of [illegible] state for some sort of printed instructions which could be used as an argu[illegible] against submission.

In reply to their requests I told them that beyond any question of doubt, [illegible] committee having the anti submission campaign in charge, would furnish [illegible] necessary printed matter at the right time during the campaign.

It seems that a method of that kind ought to be fruitful of some good res[illegible] and as the time will soon be at hand when it could be applied-it might be w[illegible] to consider it.

We are all working for a victory and the defeat of submission, but if we [illegible] not secure both, a good big vote against submission will be an encourag[illegible] forerunner to the main fight next year.

No doubt your committee has fully considered this part of the campaign w[illegible] and will apply it at the proper time.

This may bring about far different results from what you seem to anticip[illegible] let us hope so at least.

If you have any printed matter on the above subject available, send [illegible] samples. What do you think of the above suggestion?

Very truly yours,

Mr. C. H. WIRMEL,
Hotel Waco, Waco, Tex.

DEAR SIR: Yours of June 28th. received.

The whole fight has been pitched along the lines of peace in the liquor le[illegible] lation. It is the keynote of Ferguson's speech; it is the keynote of the Far[illegible] ers' appeal for the election of business men to the legislature. It has not be[illegible] the intention to discuss the evil effects of Prohibition. The tendency has be[illegible] to treat the Prohibition question as one which obstructs needed legislation [illegible] subjects pertaining to the material wellfare of the state.

I have requested Ferguson headquarters at Temple to send you a supply [illegible] pamphlets that they have just got out, showing the attitude of organized la[illegible] towards Ferguson. The pamphlet that will be distributed by Brewery work[illegible] will be ready in a few days and a supply will be sent you.

Very truly yours,

JULY 1ST., 1914.

DEAR GIBSON: Confirming my wire of last night I beg to advise you that the situation in this district as far as Henry is concerned is in nice shape. It appears from what I could gather at the different points I visited, that Wilkerson has heeded the request of the St. Louis people.

The situation in regard to Ferguson is likewise in pretty good shape, but there has'nt been anything done, outside of the selection of a committee, to push the fight against submission.

Mr. Geller, of Dallas came down Monday and asked that I come back to Dallas as it was thought by the people there that I might look into the work at that end of the state and be of some help to them.

He said that Colquitt had opened the Anti-submission headquarters and in a few days would have the thing running in full blast. I received the enclosed copies of campaign material which would be sent broadcast in a few days, from Mr. Geller this morning. Might add also that the request that I come over to Dallas came from Geller and Morgan of the Dallas Brewery.

Will meet Soergel at Dallas Sunday and will do all we can in urging a more aggressive policy in the campaign against submission.

In discussing that feature of the campaign with Mr. Luedde of the Anheuser-Busch concern here, this morning, Mr. Luedde was very much concerned over what Autery told an intimate of his concerning the fight against submission. He was also very emphatic in his comment on the lack of activity of the Anti's.

Autery had told his friend just what I quoted in a recent letter I sent you. Luedde, upon getting this information had written Autery urging that something be done and when I handed him a copy of the enclosed campaign matter, he was agreeably surprised that something would actually be attempted subsequent to July 3rd, the date of the letter.

I will finish up here Saturday as Henry would like to have me look after the town of Rogers in the lower part of his district before I go to Dallas.

Have visited the towns of Temple, Belton, Riesel, Marlin, West and here, and, after taking a day or two at Rogers I think we will have done all he could reasonably expect.

Have received letters in reply to my inquiries on anti-submission activities from Austin and Pt. Arthur. The parties report that there has'nt been anything done along those lines up to the time of writing.

Have given you the facts and leave to you to draw your own conclusions.

Am hoping and will work for the best if it can be done without the other fellow accusing us of "muddying the waters."

You can have my mail sent to the Adolphus, Dallas until further notice.

Am anxious to get your letter.

Trust that article was satisfactory. The labor papers in several parts of the state published it.

Yours Etc. C. H. W.

JULY 1ST., 1914.

DEAR GIBSON: Since writing you a previous letter of this date, I had the good fortune to find Henry alone and in a receptive mood; an opportunity I have been eager to embrace ever since I came here.

We went into the matter pending at Washington and as he seemed eager to disgorge, it was discussed along clean cut, "gut fat," lines, as you in your characteristic and picturesque way, would put it.

He said, before coming down here the matter was discussed by his committee, and although the committee was evenly divided, he believed it would not have required much of an effort to change change enough votes to bring it out. At the suggestion of Ferguson, it was held up until after the present campaign. Texas, as the gubernatorial candidate feared that it would impair his chances for the nomination.

He said that the committee is no doubt ready at this time to bring it out. The Wilsons' recent turndown of the Suffragettes, would put sufficient backbone into the timid ones to get them up on their hind legs and stand pat with the administration.

He added, that he would remain in Texas until the close of the campaign, expected to be back in Washington by the first of August, and as everything was fixed on that end he would immediately arrange for a caucus of the Democrats and have them resolve, that the question at issue is not a national proposition, but one that should be left entirely with the people of the states.

His committee would then make the necessary recommendations so as to bring it to a vote as early as possible.

Asked if he thought the resolution would be defeated, he said undoubtedly so, that a number of Republicans would come over into the bandwagon and that the Democratic members who were going home for re-election, could find plenty of solace and shelter behind the policy of the national administration which was against prohibition and womens suffrage along nation-wide lines.

Asked if the outcome of the present campaign in Texas would have a bearing on the plans at the Washington end, he said absolutely not, and that he intended to follow that program, regardless as to whether Ferguson or Ball brought home the coonshin.

He said in conclusion, that after the Washington program was consummated he would come back to Texas in the early Fall to arrange the preliminaries of his canvass for U. S. senator and that he was going to run on a clean cut straight out, Anti, platform.

The above may be ancient history to you, but as history often repeats itself I thought it could do no harm to jibe it down and rush it in before it is gotten cold.

Yours Etc. C. H. W

JULY 1, 1914.

Mr. C. H. WIRMEL,
Adolphus Hotel, Dallas, Texas.

MY DEAR CHARLIE: Your wire was received this morning, and I am extremely glad that you will find it possible to go to Dallas, where I hope you will be able to put some ginger into the Anti-Submission fight.

It is a rather difficult matter to understand a situation such as now exists in Texas. From all that you have written, and from such other sources as we have been able to gather information, the nomination of Ferguson seems probable, and from what Mr. Colquitt said in his letter, the legislative fight seems to be assuming excellent form, when viewed from the standpoint of our interests and therefore, one can hardly understand why Submission should be in doubt. It would seem that Anti-Submission would be the strong feature of the campaign, for there are many Democrats for Ball who are opposed to Submission. This is true, I believe, of the publishers of several of the leading newspapers in the State of Texas.

I think you are unduly exercized as to the desire of those in charge of the fight in Texas to keep you in the "sage brush" country. I know you are wrong as to the request for the trip to Waco. That came from an entirely different source, and in no way had any connection with the people conducting the fight in Texas. I also think that your ideas as to Soergel being sent to certain territory are wrong. The territory in which Soergel has been working is that in which the Germans are located, and in addition to that neither can you can be said to be working under the directions of those conducting the fight in Texas, but only in an assistant capacity to them through the organization with which you are affiliated.

We have been very much pleased with the reports you have made concerning your visit to Waco, and the information given in them has been transmitted to those who were anxious to do as much as they could to assist Mr. H.

Pemberton just returned from Oklahoma and while in that State he met Stickley, and it seems that Stickley suffered from an extended gap and proceeded to tell Pemberton everything he knew. Stickley said he had been in the State of Texas working with you, and he spoke of how you had been suffering from the heat, and many other things of that character.

Lloyd has gone to Virginia, and will remain down there until the time of the state-wide election in September.

We received a letter this morning from a party in Texas in which the statement was made that Ferguson seemed to be losing ground. I sincerely hope that this is not true, and that your feeling of confidence of a couple of weeks ago still exists. Do everything you can to emphasize the necessity for the defeat of Submission, as that result will have a more material effect throughout the country than almost any other thing that could happen in connection with the Texas primaries.

Mr. Andreae has been very much pleased with the clearness and conciseness of your reports. The labor article was read by him and favorably commented upon.

I know that you will be glad to get out of the State, and I presume you are counting each day leading up to the primaries much as they count the days that precede Christmas. We will all be very glad to see you upon your return, and beg to assure you now that we accept your kind invitation to dinner. Gale joins me in acceptance of your invitation.

Hoping to hear from you as early as possible after you get back to Dallas, as to the outlook in general, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours,

——— ———.

DALLAS TEXAS, 7–7–14.

DEAR GIBSON: Your letter of the 1st, received Sunday and was very much impressed with what you had to say. By way of digression, I beg to advise you, that I now fully realize why Gale has been so ceremoniously punctual in periodically "fattening" my bank account. The venerable Gem City philosopher anticipates "big stuff" when the plague-ridden dutchman is released from exile and again assumes the exalted position of keeper of the family smoke house. I can't help but express, and at that with the customary agony, my profound appreciation of the many sacrifices you loyal fellows have made in defending my title as official host or "goat," against the ferocious onslaughts of all comers.

Might have been "unduly exercised" at the time of writing my last letter, but the lack of activity on the part of the Antis and the tone of some of the letters I received from Houston, would no doubt have prompted anyone to draw somewhat on their imagination in reaching conclusions. The Anti headquarters here is in charge of a Berry Miller and his assistant Mr. Fannin. Both the gentlemen are agreeable and courteous and showed me every consideration. They are looking after that part of the State north of Waco. At my suggestion they consigned a lot of material to Mr. Luedde at Waco who was somewhat concerned over the delay in getting campaign matter to the voters in his vicinity.

There are over a score of clerks at headquarters here who are mailing direct to every voter on the poll tax books, all the current campaign matter against submission. Have sent you some samples and am sending additional matter by this mail. They have ample facilities here whereby they can reach the voters direct on short notice. The letters of inquiry directed to the county committees have been sent out and replies are expected within a few days. We are anxious for these reports as they no doubt, will be of importance. The article I sent you, just the least bit modified, but still retaining its essential features against prohibition, has been signed by Mr. Wm. Good a labor man of state wide prominence and it will be published in every labor paper in the state.

Soergal was here Sunday and while he made a telling address and has ... those who were there to talking. the attendance wasn't what we expected ... there weren't over 150 persons present. This deflection can be attributed to lack of proper publicity which was in the hands of inexperienced per... Mr. Geller was out of town and I was unable to get here until Sunday morn... and in the absence of some one to direct them, those having the matter charge seemed to depend on Divine Providence in filling the hall.

Mr. Barth was also here and left today for a trip among the German Ca... lics at a few scattered points in north Texas. He expects to finish up and re... at Indianapolis by the end of the week.

Soergal left last night for San Antonio and will work up from that p... He can finish in about two weeks. He will speak at Herman's Sons pi... at Rosebud on Wednesday, where he will divide the time with Henry.

In reference to the letter you received about Ferguson "losing ground," might say that there seems to be a lull in his boom which is manifest at ... particular time. Soergel seems to be of the opinion that Ball and submis... will both win out unless some strenuous effort is made to get our vote to ... polls. He bases this on evidence of apathy he found in some places he vis...

Before leaving Waco I had another talk with Henry who is well on the ... side and in touch with the situation around the state. He was of the opi... that Ferguson would win out by around 50,000 majority and based his con... sions on the Ferguson sentiment among Pro farmers and the support of ... Anti Bailey faction among all other classes.

Ferguson will devote the balance of the time in the northern part of the S... and every effort will be made to line up if possible some of the deflections t... are apparent now.

We have arrived at that point in the campaign where both sides are ... ing every effort to sway public opinion. Another week or ten days will ... everybody fixed in their opinions and determined as to how they are going ... vote, unless, of course, some unlooked for sensation is sprung.

Just now the Ferguson people are getting a lot of political capital out of ... Ft. Worth Record's disclosures of the Attorney General's attack on the C... mercial Secretaries organization. From the reports coming in it seems ... business men and bankers are bitterly denouncing Ball as being implicated ... the move. The articles which Fitzgerald of the Record runs from day to d... will continue to keep the pot boiling during that period preceding the elect... when it ought to do us some good. Am still of the opinion that Ferguson w... win out. While no one can deny that there seems to be an apparent lull on ... this particular time, I don't think he is losing any ground.

The local situation here in Dallas has not changed, if anything, it looks be... than when I was here last. The labor situation is in good shape and at a ... ing of the local Anti's today plans were perfected for a good working organ... tion to get out the vote on election day.

Met Mr. Weeden at this meeting and at his suggestion I will look after sim... work in Ft. Worth. Labor men from here, Ft. Worth and Temple are work... the towns in north Texas and I might go over to Texarkana and neighbor... towns as was suggested to me by Henry. Another ten days or two weeks w... find conditions practically settled and unless it is your desire that I rem... up to the election, I will be ready to pull up stakes. Before doing so however, ... will make all necessary arrangements for telegraphing the results to you.

Before I left Henry, he assured me that he was always at our service for ... help we gave him in his district.

He was well satisfied with what had been done.

Am sending under seperate cover both Pro and Anti material. Would sugge... that it be filed for future reference.

Fully appreciate Mr. A's views on the importance of defeating submis... and will do my best to keep these people hustling.

WESTBROOK HOTEL,
Fort Worth, Texas, July 8th, 1914

DEAR GIBSON: I came here at Mr. Weeden's suggestion to spend a few days ... boosting the local situation. Was here at various times during my previous visit to Dallas and got them started but it seems they laid low and let things drift for them selves.

Before leaving Dallas this afternoon we received word from Houston, San Antonio and Austin, where the Dallas plan in organizing the labor people had been inaugurated, that they were getting good results.

The plan is the old Ohio scheme which was used by the Personal Lib. League at Cincy.

The plan is to have a steering committee visit all labor organizations during the campaign and appeal as working men.

With Ferguson many of his campaigners and about a half dozen capable labor men working north Texas during the eleventh hour, we certainly ought to get some results.

I enclose herewith some of the Anti (?) stuff sent out by the Tom Ball Anti's at Dallas.

JULY 9, 1914.

Mr. CHARLES H. WIRMEL,
Westbrook Hotel, Ft. Worth, Texas.

MY DEAR CHARLIE: Your report of the conversation with the gentleman at Waco was very gratifying.

Your other letter concerning the status of affairs in the state was very interesting, and I hope sincerely that you were able when you returned to Dallas to stir up the people to the importance of winning the submission fight. Your telegram telling me that you had gone to Fort Worth was received this morning, and I am anxiously awaiting the detailed report which you are sending by mail.

It seems to me that you have been able to whip the labor situation into excellent shape, no better evidence of which, I believe, can be had than the result of the El Paso Convention, and Mr. Andreae and Gale both share this opinion with me. In fact, I might say that Mr. Andreae has been very much pleased with the general manner in which you have handled your work in the State of Texas.

We received a brief pencilled notation from Colquitt Monday in which he indicates that he feels certain Ferguson will be nominated, and all of the rest of our friends on the ticket will achieve like success. He also believes that the general assembly will reflect the sentiment of the voters of the state in much the same way as the result upon the gubernatorial nomination. I am writing him to the effect that I hope he will have general success all along the line, including the fight on Submission.

This last phase of the situation is one which apparently needs a great deal of attention to obtain a successful outcome at the primaries, but of course, you realize this much better than I do at long distance.

We will be very glad to see our German friend when he completes his efforts there, as it looks to me now that a little later on he will be required to give a great deal of attention to affairs in Ohio. You doubtless know that our friends in Ohio are initiating a constitutional amendment providing for the repeal of the Rose County Option Law, and the constitutional establishment of the Township and Municipality as the unit. The amendment likewise provides that the Legislature shall not have authority to pass constitutional prohibition. The Anti-Saloon League have retaliated by beginning the initiation of a constitutional amendment providing for state-wide prohibition. The move of our friends apparently took them by surprise, and Mr. Wheeler did gymnastics for several days. The fight is on, and of course, is an important one. The situation is the more interesting in that the women are busy circulating petitions providing for a Suffrage Constitutional Amendment, and they will doubtless succeed in getting the required number of signatures, so that phase will have to be given some attention.

Mr. Andreae, Gale, and all the folks about the office join me in very k· regards and wishes for your success.

Sincerely yours,

LHG : P.

DEAR SIR: The local unions of the Cigarmakers, Brewery Workers, Musi· Bartenders and Waiters of Fort Worth, Dallas, Houston and San Antonio h· perfected a working organization to urge upon all voters to vote for their in·· ests as breadwinners at the primary election on July 25th.

Many of our brothers have lived in Texas all their lives, have reared · educated their children and provided homes for themselves and depend·· These accomplishments and comforts represent a life's effort at a chosen ca· and would count for nothing if a Governor antagonistic to our interests · working men were elected and submission would carry.

Nearly all of the preliminary work that will insure success at the polls h· been done, but to gain a victory, every available vote must be gotten to t· polls. It remains for us to induce our friends to go to the polls and vote.

No doubt, the organizations in your city are doing what the brothers in · above named cities are doing; if you haven't, we urge upon you to get tog·· at once by calling a special meeting of your union and arrange for a j· meeting of all the organizations that are interested. Please do this at once · now is the time to act.

At this mass meeting, make every man in attendance a committee of one · work among his neighbors and friends, and urge them to vote for Ferguson f· Governor and against the submission of the liquor question. Request all m· bers and friends to remain at the voting box after the polls close and see to · that men favorable to our cause are selected as delegates to the county c· vention.

DEAR GIBSON: I discussing the situation, Autery, who called Sunday, was · the opinion, that Ferguson would be elected, that we would get safe major· in both branches of the legislature, but he was in doubt of defeating submis· He said that Col. Stone of Ball's staff had made a rigid canvass among his · lowing in 105 counties and the returns gave Ball a majority of 4000 in t· territory covered. He said also that the New York Herald had canvassed e· county through the party machinery and from the material gathered estim· Ferguson's majority at 60,000. I told Autery that my belief was that the · against submission was lagging. That from what I could gather among the labor men of all crafts, particularly in Waco, Dallas and here, the sentiment was strongly opposed to submission. I gave him an outline of our plan of activity and urged him to have the antisubmission forces both at Dallas and Houston to work along the same or similar lines, as it was yet time to turn the tide in our favor if the anti-committees in the rural parts of the State would just make an effort to hold their own. I urged upon him the necessity of prevailing on the Brewers to get their people and friends to the polls. He asked me to look after this neck of the woods and look after Dallas and Ft. Worth until election day if satisfactory to Mr. A. I assured him that Mr. A. was deeply interested in our success and especially the defeat of submission, as the bearing it would have from a national standpoint would be of lasting importance. I told him I had peremptory orders from Mr. A. to lend every possible assistance and stay until the last dog was hung. And he says "stay." He then urged that I keep him in daily touch with the progress of the work here and at Dallas and he left for that point assuring me that he would stir things up. I went to Dallas to-day and found things moving along nicely as far as the local situation was concerned. Messrs. Morgan and Geller have the situation there well in hand. The antisubmission headquarters of North Texas has started its organization men out in the districts to agitate the work among the district committees and I feel safe in saying that there is something doing in those quarters.

Our steering committee here is doing some fine work and getting to the labor men every night. They took me along as a starter to show them how to put up an argument and now they insist that I continue in the game and they will furnish the necessary stage setting as the injured innocents. I must confess, that I get a great deal of encouragement out of these meetings. As an example: We sought admission to the plumbers meeting Monday night, where our right to the floor was contested by a swarthy native of septillion dimensions who, after decrying our motive as a political scheme, asked God and every one of the party present to bear witness to his protest as a devout and righteous Pro. The party argued that we should have unlimited time and we planted our 15 immortals, who, in many respects, resembled a Mexican wrecking crew, upon the rostrum where they would make a lasting impression while I was sent into the pit to "kill the rats" as one of them put it. Not even in the stormy days of the Columbus street car strike, when they tried to throttle old Uncle Jud, did I make a plea, which in the volume of its flow of briny tears, could equal this effort, and the first to come to the mourners bench was the "righteous one" who declared then and there that he had "never seen it that 'a way." Now Gib, remember, this is none of the Chicago stock yard product, I can get 56 affidavits to prove that this actually happened. Our other meetings of which we have three every night are a repetition of the above. The brewery workers and bartenders, who in past elections have had the habit of going fishing on election day, have fixed a penalty of 10 dollars on every man who fails to report for duty in his precinct on election day. Geller has done the same thing in Dallas. We will have here a working force of nearly 300 men as we are getting volunteers from other crafts as we go along. I enclose a copy of an official letter sent out by every union enumerated therein to their respective organizations in even the remote parts of the State. We will hold a mass meeting Sunday morning and arrange the final details for ward and precinct organization. The Germans met Sunday and with the assistance of a committee from Dallas we re-organized the German Alliance. Will meet their executive committee to-night and will draft a letter urging them to go to the polls and vote. The retailers had a record meeting yesterday and decided to follow our plan of election day organization.

Burleson's endorsement of Ball, having dropped like a spent skyrocket, they have shot their last wad in exploiting Wilson and Bryan. What effect its going to have is as yet to early to determine. From what I can learn here the voters have about made up their minds. Ferguson's recovery from the Burleson punch was quick and lasting and it seems to be the opinion here that he will get by this last effort of the Ball fellows, who have dragged in Wilson and Bryan, with the same success. I am going to stay here until 7 o'clock election night and wont get back until the 27th.

With best wishes to everybody I remain

Yours Etc.,

Mr. JNO. GARDINER,
% Continental Brewing Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

DEAR SIR: The situation with reference to the gubernatorial race has shown steady improvement since the date of my last letter. Ferguson has continued to grow in popularity and to gain adherents in all parts of Texas, north, south, east and west. At several periods it has appeared as if the Ball campaign would collapse but it has each time been prevented by some new powerful incentive being brought forward. Three weeks ago the Ball managers resorted to procuring a number of affidavits maligning the character of Ferguson, charging him with usury, failure to pay taxes, extortion upon tenants on his farms, etc. The affidavit stage was reached and passed and the next big trump played by them was a suit against the Texas Business Mens Association, the concern of which J. A. Arnold is Secretary and Manager. The Attorney General made an investigation of the books of the Farmers Union and made a domiciliary visit, looking for incriminating evidence, showing they had supported the Texas Business Mens Association and contributed to their corporate funds for political purposes. The suit was expected to produce a tremendous sensation and to be productive of revealing the authorship of the Radford-Lewis Farmers Articles, and the sources from which Radford and Lewis were financed.

The Ball papers featured the matter very strongly but the effect was a boomerang and has injured Ball among the business men of the State, instead of doing him any good.

The latest bombs they have exploded within the last four days are the indorsement telegraphed from Washington to Postmaster Burleson, William Jennings Bryan, and President Woodrow Wilson. What the effect of these expressions from the national administration will be cannot be known for four or five days, but our friends do not look for any harm. The whole fight has been pitched on the lines of disregarding the dictation of the bosses. Along the same lines a good deal of resentment is now cropping out against the assumed dictation of the Secretary of State and President of the United States. The way in which the national administration statements appeared, it is evident that they aim at Governor Colquitt, who has opposed Woodrow Wilson in his Mexican policy. It would seem that they fear that a Ferguson victory is equivalent to a Colquitt victory.

My own opinion is that it is too late to do anything upon the part of the Ball managers. It seems to me that the fight is won for Ferguson by a majority fifteen or twenty thousand votes more than Colquitt received, which makes about 60,000 majority, and I do not fear these last trumps played by Ball, which were brought forth by his S O S signals.

Just now I am directing my efforts towards getting out the vote on election day in all the south Texas counties, where we know we are going to get a big Ferguson majority and where five out of every six votes we know are Ferguson votes. I have not been sanguine of defeating submission. On the contrary,—I have been expecting to lose, but it looks to me now as if we will be able to defeat submission by a small majority, the size of the majority depending upon our success in getting the Anti vote out in the cities and the heavy south Texas Anti Prohibition counties.

In your last letter you warned me not to relax effort but to drive ahead, and I assure you I am prosecuting the work without any let-up and to the best of my ability.

Very truly yours,

R. L. AUTREY.

Mr. CHARLES H. WIRMEL,
Westbrook Hotel, Fort Worth, Texas.

MY DEAR CHARLIE: Your letter of the 15th reached me this morning, and I thank you for the information it contained. I had just finished reading Fer-guson's speech at Waco in which he discussed the Wilson-Bryan letters, and it seems to me that he handled it in a very effective and convincing manner. He not only appealed to the citizens of Texas from the standpoint of state's rights, but his reference to those people who are supporting him and who were delegates to the Baltimore Convention, it seems to me, will have a telling effect in forming the sentiment of the people in his behalf.

I would judge from Autrey's request that you remain in Texas until Primary Election day that he must be well pleased with the work which you have been doing. That such work has been excellent we, here in Chicago, know full well, and of course we are gratified to see how it has impressed the people down there.

The letter, a form of which you enclosed, should have a good effect among the labor element of the Lone Star State The only question that occurs to me is whether or not it is as effective upon the Bartenders stationery as it would have been upon the stationery of the Cigarmakers or the Musicians. but I presume you gave that matter full consideration and weighed it well before the letters were sent out.

Your account of the labor meeting where the one lone sinner sought repentance is very interesting, and I am not at all surprised, in view of the fact that you are a mariner of established reputation as the Captain of the good ship Baron Von Blitzenberger, that the tears which you shed in making your appeal to your fellow laborers were briny.

If Autrey's prediction that Ferguson will have a decisive plurality over Ball, and that the Antis will be in the majority in both branches of the General Assembly, should prove to be correct, it certainly goes without saying that it would be a keen disappointment to see Submission carry, and how such a result can come about is beyond my comprehension, although I am frank to admit that that at times is somewhat clouded.

I hope you will not overlook making arrangements that we receive telegraphic information as to the result in Texas as early as there are tangible returns upon which to base a conclusion. It may be possible that I may not be here until the morning of the 27th, so I am herewith sending you Mr. Andreae's home address in order that you may have any telegrams which may be sent on Saturday night or Sunday reach him at his residence. The address is—Percy Andreae, 4738 Sheridan Road.

Mr. Andreae, Hartley, and myself will leave for Cleveland Monday morning, the 20th, arriving there that evening, and remaining there until Thursday morning. We will be at the Hollenden Hotel, if you should desire to reach us.

Mr. Harris has made a memorandum of the fact that you do not want any mail forwarded to you after the 21st.

From Cleveland Gale and I may have to go to Cincinnati to look over the petitions which have come in for the constitutional amendment our friends in Ohio are preparing to submit to the voters. Should we take the trip I will wire you so that you will know where to get in touch with us.

We shall certainly be glad to see your sunburned and smiling countenance a week from next Monday evening and out of compliment to your return we again extend our thanks for your very kind invitation to dine with you that evening, and Hartley has even gone so far as to explain to the management of the Kaiserhof Hotel that you are a "real" fellow of established financial standing, and that you are no "piker" when it comes to the ordering a first-class meal. Just as a quiet tip to you, Charlie, I might say that I tried to impress upon Hartley the fact that it would be an honor for him to entertain you and I, but he insists that he would under no circumstances take from you the pleasure of maintaining your reputation as a host "par excellent"—whatever that may mean.

All of the folks in the office join Mr. Andreae, Gale, and myself in very hearty regards to our German friend and colleague—PROSIT!

Sincerely yours,

DEAR SIR:Yours of the 15th. received. Also circular issued by Bartenders. A similar circular is being prepared and sent out by the Brewers here. The work is going on rapidly, and I look to have a nearly perfect organization, on election day.

We are sending a letter in a Western Union envelope, that will look like a telegram to the person receiving it, and which will be put in the mail the night of the 22nd., asking each voter to have his poll tax receipt ready in his pocket, to vote early on election day, and enclosing sample ballot, showing how to vote on submission, and for Jas. E. Ferguson. This should be a strong factor to bring out the vote.

A like letter is to be sent out in Dallas. I have heard from Galveston and San Antonio and learn that effective means have been taken there to get the vote out. I feel like you do on the question of the Burleson, Bryan and Wilson statements and think that the Burleson letter fell flat, and the effect of the other two cannot yet be defined.

Our friends do not think it will be disastrous, although they all agree that they will do Ferguson some harm. If they had sprung such things earlier it would have been very bad for us.

Very truly yours,

MR. R. L. AUTREY,
Box No. 37, Houston, Texas.

MY DEAR MR. AUTREY: I am in receipt this morning of your communication to Mr. Gardner setting forth what you believe the result will be in your campaign, and it is very gratifying to note that you expect the nomination of Ferguson by such a decisive plurality.

We have noticed by the Texas papers the attitude taken in the campaign in your State by Burleson, Bryan, and Wilson, and also read of the manner in which Mr. Ferguson met the issue when it arose, and it seems to us that he took care of himself in excellent style.

There has, of course, been considerable speculation upon our part of why Submission should be weaker than Ferguson, as we had hoped that the sentiment in Texas against a continued agitation of the liquor question was sufficiently strong to lead the voters to defeat Submission by an overwhelming vote. Naturally, we are pleased to note in your letter to Mr. Gardner that you now hope for the defeat of Submission, and if that result is achieved by even a slight plurality, it is bound to have a beneficial effect in the future on the affairs in your own State, as well as an excellent effect throughout the country, especially at Washington.

I hope sincerely that you have found the survey to be of great value to you in the campaign that you have made, and that the work done by the men whom Mr. Andreae sent into the field to assist you, has been of as effective a character as Mr. Andreae indicated it would be when you were in Chicago last February.

We have followed the campaign which you have been making very closely, and it seems to us that most excellent work has been done to bring about a condition such as you describe in your letter to Mr. Gardner. One more week will tell the tale, and we hope sincerely that next Saturday evening will be an evening of great rejoicing to you and those who have so ably assisted you in the conduct of your campaign.

Mr. Andreae and Mr. Hartley join me in these expressions for your success, and I beg to subscribe myself,

Very truly yours,

I am glad you continue to report things in good shape in labor circles at Dallas and Ft. Worth. I think things are in equally as good shape in Houston and I am satisfied with the outlook all round.

Jim Ferguson was here yesterday and received the largest ovation ever tendered any man that has visited Houston, with the exception, perhaps, of an ovation tendered once to Theodore Roosevelt, after he had left the chair of the Presidency of the Republic. AUGUST 27, 1914.

Mr. R. M. COLQUITT,
301 Beatty Building, Houston, Texas.

MY DEAR MR. COLQUITT: I was extremely sorry that I did not have the opportunity of seeing you upon your recent visit to Chicago, as I had looked forward to a good long talk with you over the Texas campaign, after Mr. Andreae had received your wire to the effect that you expected to be in Chicago.

It has been my experience that every campaign presents some interesting phases that it is well for one to know, and I am certain that the Texas campaign presented many of that character, and consequently I was anxious to hear from the man who had charge of the campaign such matters as came under his observation.

Mr. Andreae told me that you had carried the data gathered by us right up to date with such additional information as could be accumulated. I was very much pleased to hear this, because I always felt that your political experience had taught you that too much information of general conditions existing in the various parts of the State can never be secured. That the information gathered by our survey was of some value to you, of course, you made manifest in your letter early in June, and I was glad to note that you attached the same value to it that I have always attached to information of this character.

If it is not asking too much of you, I wish that you would write me at your convenience wherein you think our survey plan might be improved. You, of course, realize that when one sits down to prepare the questions covering the required data of any particular state, that they are liable to overlook some essential point, and inasmuch as that duty falls upon me, I would like to have any suggestions concerning the questions on Texas as will point out to me wherein I might have improved the survey of your state.

As I said to you when I first had the pleasure of meeting you, I always seek to profit by friendly advice and criticism and I want you to be very frank with me in offering any suggestions concerning the work which Mr. Andreae has undertaken, that may occur to you.

I want to extend my very hearty congratulations to you for the magnificent victory in Texas, and to express my pleasure in having met you, and the equal pleasure which it will afford me to meet you at some future time.

Very sincerely yours,

Mr. R. L. AUTREY,
Houston Ice & Brewing Co., Houston, Texas.

MY DEAR MR. AUTREY: I have hesitated to write you for the reason that I knew that your very strenuous campaign in Texas would bring at least two results—the first that of exultation over your grand victory, and second, to get a much needed rest to catch up with your accumulated business affairs, and not to be bothered while you were doing either of these things, and so we have rested content with our early expression of congratulations to you.

What I am now most interested in is to learn, if possible, wherein the questions covered in our survey of your state could have been improved upon in developing the elements of organization for your campaign. The wonderful work accomplished by you naturally leads me to seek your criticism and advice looking to any improvement which it might be possible for me to make in the plan of survey; and my past political experience has taught me that every campaign gives one a more complete enlightenment of conditions than a person can possess before such campaigns are completed. You have been in the very thick of the battle; in fact, you have been in the very front of the battle in Texas. and suggestions from you looking to a greater perfection of the plans being inaugurated and perfected by Mr. Andreae, would be greatly appreciated.

Likewise, I am anxious to know for our personal information, as to how effectively the men sent in to Texas by Mr. Andreae performed their work.

It seems to me that the Ferguson nomination, and the defeat of Submission. and the wonderful gains you made in the General Assembly, would have the effect of causing many deserters from the ranks of the Pros in the state.

Mr. Hartley, who was confined to a hospital in Cincinnati for the past two weeks, has found it necessary to take a much needed rest, as has also Mr. Andreae, and they are out of the City at this time. If they were here, I am quite certain that they would join me in extending heartiest congratulations and best wishes.

Hoping to have the pleasure of hearing from you at your convenience, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours,

MY DEAR JACK: I am herewith returning you Mr. Thuenen's letter, so that you may have same for your files.

The date of our meeting in Chicago has been definitely fixed for September 25th.

It seems from Mr. Thuenen's letter to Gale that he is anxious for as early a meeting as possible, but I have explained the situation to him and think he will be satisfied with the date set. You can see from his letter that he is rather impatient to get information as early as possible so that I think it would be well to see how completely the 38 Counties can be covered so that you can have reports from as many of them typewritten and ready for the meeting on the 25th. Of course we discussed this when you were here the other day but you can see the reason for my anxiety along the lines indicated.

I will leave here tomorrow morning for Columbus and will probably leave there tomorrow evening for Zanesville. Should you want to reach me Thursday afternoon up until 4.00 o'clock, I will be at Shelter's office. I will see how the work in Columbus is progressing and it may be barely possible that I will have to communicate with you by phone and have you mail a check to Mrs. Pemberton to cover the salaries of those who are working there.

With best wishes, I remain,

Mr. HENRY THUENEN,
Attorney at Law, Davenport, Iowa.

MY DEAR THUENEN: Your letter of September 6th, addressed to Mr. Gale Hartley has been forwarded to me from his office, as Mr. Hartley is now confined in a hospital here in Cincinnati as a result of an operation for Appendicitis which he had to undergo a week ago today. Mr. Hartley was suddenly stricken while here in the City and was rushed to the hospital where the doctors advised an immediate operation, which had it not been performed, might have resulted in his almost certain death, as his condition was very serious.

It was our intention to have a meeting with you and such members of your Committee as you might designate at Chicago, September 15th, but as Mr. Hartley was very desirous of being present at such a meeting, we have postponed it until Thursday, September 25th.

The work has been progressing nicely in Iowa, as I am certain you will ascertain when we hold this meeting. The completeness of the reports which we are securing made the work a little slower than we have anticipated, but the results have been so gratifying that I am positive when you see them you will quite agree that it was better to proceed thoroughly than to rush hurriedly through the work without regard to accuracy.

Mr. Andreae returned from Europe on the 29th of August and is now in Chicago. Should you desire to communicate with him previous to this meeting you will be able to reach him there. It is up to you to determine whom you want with you at the meeting in Chicago on the 25th. I say this for the reason that it is absolutely essential that the information which we will have to lay before the meeting must of necessity be of a thoroughly confidential nature, as our future plans and the execution of them depend very largely upon this information being kept to ourselves.

It is, of course, necessary that your Committee should be informed as to the headway being made and my personal observation of the gentlemen on that Committee whom I have met leads me to the conclusion that they can be relied upon to hold our plans absolutely confidential.

I presume that you will want Mr. Huntoon at the meeting, but of course that is a matter for you to decide.

Mr. Hartley, Mr. Renner and myself met Mr. Andreae upon his arrival in New York and he is acquainted with the information which you gave me concerning the visit of the other gentleman to your State. Should you feel that you desire a meeting with Mr. Andreae and the rest of us before the 25th., I wish you would advise me here by wire and I will see if it can be arranged, but if possible, would prefer the date set so that Mr. Hartley may be there, if he has sufficiently recovered to do so.

I want to thank you for the lists of the "Owls' Nests" and the names of the saloonkeepers in Des Moines County, both of which reached me promptly. In looking through the lists of saloons I fail to find those from Keokuk but assume that you did not have them owing to the readjustment in that City on July first.

I wish you would write me fully as soon as you have received this advising me of anything of importance that may occur to you in connection with the work we are doing.

With very kind personal regards to the folks in your office and to the gentlemen whom I have had the pleasure of meeting, and with best wishes, I remain,

Yours very truly,

DAVENPORT, IOWA, Nov. 3, 1913.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
C/o C. Seipp Brewing Co., Chicago, Ill.,

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE, There was universal regret at the recent annual meeting of the Iowa Brewers Association that you were unable to be with us. Nevertheless, while the regret was keen, I think they all appreciated that as busy a man as you are cannot always do just as he would like.

With the exception of the fact that you were not with us, the meeting was a great success. The whole situation was discussed and it developed that four members of our Association, manufacturing within this state, were not members of the U. S. B. A. Each of these four members promptly signed the application for membership and paid their initiation fee.

We discussed the question as to whether our Association should collect the dues for the U. S. B. A.; but it appeared that a large number of our members had already remitted for the first installment of the assessment, and it therefore became impracticable to do this.

We then called the roll of each member manufacturing within the state, on the question as to whether they would pay the 3 cts per barrel assessment to the U. S. B. A. and each member promptly responded in the affirmative.

I desire to advise further, that the Association assessed itself sufficiently to make up our full share of the fund which it is intended to spend within the state during the coming campaign, and we are now ready for business.

I have written Mr. Gibson, suggesting that at his earliest convenience I would like to see him so that we can start matters moving.

Trusting you are meeting with the success that your efforts deserve wherever you go, and thanking you for your many past courtesies, I am

Yours very truly,

Mr. GALE M. HARTLEY,

MY DEAR HARTLEY. Your favor of the 8th. inst. at hand, enclosing analyses of the districts as indicated in your letter, which I believe covers all of the 99 counties in this state, for which I thank you.

I am fixing up the reports of my men, and will send them to you as requested by Mr. Gibson.

Trusting you are meeting with the success your work deserves, and with kind personal regards, I am

JANUARY FIFTH, 1914.

Mr. HENRY THUENEN,
Davenport, Iowa.

MY DEAR MR. THUENEN: I had hoped to receive from you ere this such reports as you have received from your field men as to the political conditions they find in the various counties in which they have made investigations, so that I might check such reports with the analysis which we made of the senatorial districts and of the representative situations in the various counties.

You will remember that you promised to send me a copy of the reports which you already had in hand at the time that you were up here, but I assume that the holiday activities have somewhat interferred with the compliance of your promise, and besides, my dear Henry, I appreciate the fact that you have some job before you and that every minute of your time is taken up with consideration of the important matters which confront you.

You are doubtless in receipt by this time of a communication from Mr. Andreae inviting you to be here on the 15th, and I hope sincerely that you will be able to comply with this request, and that you will take advantage of the trip which you make to Chicago on that date to bring with you the data which I have requested.

I wish you would convey my very sincere wishes to your competent assistant manager, Miss Mitchell, that she may have a Happy and Prosperous New Year, and to you I extend greetings of the same kind.

With kind regards, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours,

LG/MW

PHILADELPHIA, PA., February 11, 1914.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
3357 So. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: I beg to enclose herein a letter received by me this morning from Mr. Hugo A. Koehler, President Independent Breweries Company, referring to the candidacy of Mr. Henry Vollmer for Congress in the Davenport, Ia. district.

I have written Mr. Koehler that I would refer his letter to you and that you would in all probability unite with me in taking an interest in the situation referred to.

Some time ago Col. Pabst brought to my attention a communication of Mr. Edwin B. Lord, now of Joliet, in which Mr. Lord expressed his belief in his ability to serve our interest in its present extremity. Several letters have since passed about the matter and Col. Pabst requesting that I should communicate with you about it. I have taken advantage of the opportunity of visit to Chicago and the Middle West by Mr. McDermott to give to him the letters and exhibits in the case with instructions that he deliver them to you. I would say that my attention was originally drawn to Mr. Lord by Col. Pabst several years ago when he was a resident of Milwaukee and we had a connection with him whereby we utilized to a certain extent a group of farmers papers in which he was then interested.

While I believe Mr. Lord did everything in his power to further our cause at the time, yet I doubt very much if his efforts produced the results or brought about the change in conditions we had hoped they would. However, this is merely a personal expression and is intended for your information alone. You may have some knowledge of Mr. Lord as he is now a resident of Illinois and you may deem it advisable to look into the matter that he now brings to your attention. Any further information I can furnish you in the case, will be gladly supplied at any time.

With kind regards, I am yours very truly,

JOHN GARDINER.

DEAR SIR: Permit me to call your attention to the candidacy of Mr. Henry Vollmer, attorney at Davenport, Iowa, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of the Hon. I. S. Pepper, M. C. from that State.

Mr. Vollmer was nominated a short time ago, and in my opinion should receive the support and encouragement of the brewers in his district. He is of German-American birth, and is not only an eloquent speaker and a very able lawyer, but holds to broad and liberal views on all public questions.

Yours very sincerely,

HUGO A. KOEHLER, Pres't.

DAVENPORT, IOWA, June 5, 1914.

In regard to the results of the recent Primaries, I will send you a statement as soon as I can get the information. The facts about the matter are that the Primaries were not such a great disappointment to me so far as I have information, as the following statement will show.

The only real disappointment I have had so far is in the Polk County returns, where the man we favored for State Senator was defeated, and one "dry" representative was nominated. It is not by any means certain that the nominee for the senate will be "dry," but he is a protege of a Mrs. Day, whose influence will be bad, although we have some hopes of holding him in line. Outside of that, the Primaries were certainly satisfactory.

We made a fight in the Audubon-Dallas-Guthrie District, and lost, but this was to be expected. I think our man would have been run out of the district any way had he voted right, as this district is one in which we had no right to expect any help, and the result was not a disappointment.

So far as we have returns, the senatorial Primary shows the following:

Dist. No. 1—Lee County.
Republican, no contest.
Democrat—John Cruikshank nominated. He is the candidate we favored. and is the better man by all means.

Dist. No. 7—Fremont-Page Counties.
Democratic candidate is dry. Had no opposition. Fosket received Republican nomination. He is for us and will be elected without a doubt.

Dist. 9—Des Moines County.
Contest on both tickets, and while all candidates were wet, the ones we favored on both tickets were nominated.

Dist. No. 10—Henry-Washington Counties.
No contest for republican nomination. Candidate is dry.
At Democratic Primary John Lindley was nominated. He is wet, and the man we supported.

Dist. No. 12—Keokuk-Poweshiek Counties.
John H. Platt, wet Democrat, had no contest.
We supported C. C. Laffler for the republican nomination, and he won.

Dist. No. 13—Wapello County.
John Webber, wet Democrat, no contest.
We supported Moore for the republican nomination, but he was defeated. This only assures Webber's election, and is of no serious consequence to us.

Dist. No. 17—Audubon-Dallas-Guthrie Counties.
This is the District to which I referred above, in which we had no right to expect any help, although we made a fight, but lost.

Dist. 21—Scott County.
Wet republican, no contest. A. A. Balluff, wet democrat, nominated. While both candidates were wet, we preferred Balluff.

Dist. No. 22—Clinton County.
Have no returns. But both candidates are wet.

Dist. No. 29—Jasper County.
We are very little interested in this, but the best of the two republican candidates won. The Democrat had no opposition.

Dist. No. 30—Polk County.
I referred to this District above.

Dist. No. 37—Hamilton-Hardin-Wright Counties.
No Democratic candidate. We supported Chase for the republican nomination, and he won. While he has always been against us, he has also been against Prohibition, and has now again pledged himself for a Manufacturer's Bill and the Secret Ballot.

Dist. No. 38—Black Hawk-Grundy Counties.
We took no part whatever. DeWulf, a wet Democrat, had no opposition. Grout, was nominated on the republican ticket. We believe without doubt that De Wulf will be elected.

Dist. No. 42—Howard-Winneshiek Counties.
Herman Kull, wet Democrat, had no opposition. We supported Enger for republican nomination, and he won.

Dist. No. 48—Carroll-Greene-Sac Counties.
While we took no hand in the republican primary, the result was no nomination, and the matter must go to the Convention. We expect to elect J. J. Meyers, wet Democrat, who has no opposition.

Dist. No. 50—Buena Vista-Humboldt-Pocohontas Counties.
Jos. Allen was re-nominated. His opponent was also dry.

From this you will see that my only disappointment was in Polk County, and I am free to confess this is a very keen disappointment.

HOUSE.

Adair Co.:—We supported McDermott, Democrat, and he won. This County is now represented by a democrat, and we believe McDermott can be elected. The republican is dry.
Appanoose Co.:—The wet candidate withdrew before the Primaries.
Black Hawk Co.:—One wet and one dry republican nominated. Both democrats are wet, and will probably win.
Boone County:—Wet Democrat won over dry preacher. Expect to elect Democrat easily.
Butler County:—Our man won on the democratic ticket. The republican is dry. No contest.
Calhoun County:—The man we supported on the republican ticket won. The democrat is dry.
Cass County:—Wet democrat—no contest. The republican we supported was nominated.
Cedar County:—Wet republican—had no contest. Wet democrat we supported won over dry democrat.
Cerro Gordo Co.:—Democrat had no contest. All republicans are dry.
Cherokee Co.:—We were not interested here, but have promises that nominee will be wet.
Davis County:—Our man on the democratic ticket won over two opponents.
Des Moines Co.:—Our favorite won on both tickets.
Fayette Co.:—Our favorite on the democratic ticket won. Both candidates will be wet.
Guthrie Co.:—Our favorite, who promised to be fair, won over the dry republican. Democrat had no contest.
Iowa County:—Our candidate won at republican primary. The democrat is wet.
Jefferson Co.:—Our favorite won on both tickets. The democrat is wet—the republican fair.
Johnson County:—No contest at republican primary. Our candidate won at democratic primary.
Lee County:—Both candidates wet.
Lucas County:—All republicans are dry. Our favorite on the democratic ticket won.
Monroe County:—Dry Democrat won, but we recently learned that his opponent was also dry, although we supported him.
Muscatine Co.:—No Democrat contest. One republican dry. The other only fair. Fair man won.
O'Brien Co.:—Wet republican—no contest. Wet democrat—won over dry democrat.
Plymouth County:—Wet democrat had no opposition. Have assurances that republican nominee will be right, although we preferred another man.
Pocohontas Co.:—No democratic contest. All republicans were dry.
Polk County:—One wet and one dry candidate on each ticket. This is my one disappointment.
Scott County:—Two wet republicans—no contests. The best two of three wet democratic candidates won.
Shelby County:—The best of the two wet democrats won.
Washington Co.:—Dry democrat won.
Woodbury County:—We are informed that both candidates on both tickets are wet.

You will see from the above, that so far as our reports, to this time, show we have had very satisfactory success everywhere but in Polk County. There are still some districts to hear from, and I will make a tabulated statement just as soon as I can get complete returns.

Yours very truly,

HENRY THUENEN.

OAK PARK, ILL., Aug. 4, 1914.

B. H. KINGSBURY, Esq.,
Sioux City, Iowa.

MY DEAR SIR: I am a candidate on the Republican ticket for United States Senator. All indications seem to point to the election of the Republican nominee in this State because of the dissention and unmendable factional strife in the democratic party ranks.

My republican opponent, Senator Sherman, ran for Mayor in the city of Springfield in 1911 on the "DRY" ticket and was defeated. The regular Republican organization is not supporting him.

I have taken the initiative in this campaign because of my firm belief in the principles of personal liberty.

The Prohibitionists are agitating their cause in this nation and will continue their agitation in the next Congress. This you are aware of, from newspaper dispatches throughout the country. They are also making desperate efforts to secure a large vote here—the state that supplies one-third of the crops for the malt and liquor industry—which result they hope to utilize as an argument in their cause to the next National Congress. Their success would enhance their standing. They voted 1100 saloons out of business last April.

You recognize the fact that if Congress takes adverse action, it would supercede all legislation in the 48 states.

I am enclosing you those parts of my platform, pertaining to the subject of Personal Liberty and to the Malt and Liquor industry. I want to circulate ONE MILLION of these pamphlets as well as to wage an educational campaign through the state, if I can get the required assistance. The campaign is short; only four weeks.

I do not wish any individual subscription to exceed $25, and if consistent with your principles, I would appreciate your aid.

Will you be good enough to acknowledge this letter?

Respectfully Yours,

MYER J. STEIN.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
3357 So. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

My DEAR MR. ANDREAE: At a meeting of the Board of Trustees, of our Association, held on the past Thursday, at Sioux City, it developed that the National Association of Commerce and Labor is commencing to operate in Iowa. A letter from a Mr. Bush, explaining the situation, was read, and it appeared that some of the concerns dealing with the breweries make an allowance of a fraction of one per cent, and some of one per cent.

The whole matter was referred to a general meeting of our Association, which is called for next Tuesday, Sept. 1, at Iowa City.

It was suggested that it would be very interesting and desirable to have someone connected with this Association, who is fully conversant with the matter, present at this meeting, which will be held at the Jefferson Hotel, Iowa City, at ten o'clock, on next Tuesday.

I have just reached home from the meeting, and am writing you at once in regard to the matter, but presume it will be too late to have anyone with us. If you had a man to send, he could get into Iowa City on Tuesday morning very nicely, and could leave again early in the afternoon, and we would be very glad indeed to have him with us. If this is not practicable, I wish you would write me, sending your letter to Iowa City, C/o Jefferson Hotel,—explaining in detail the whole situation; why some pay less than others, and how the breweries will know what stamps to attach to the various bills. If you cannot do this yourself, would you have some member of the Association of Commerce and Labor do so.

You will receive this letter on Monday morning, and if a reply is mailed to me at Iowa City, I will receive it in the mail on Tuesday morning, and will be in a position to use it at the meeting.

Our people are all very anxious to commence using the stamps so that your organizations will get their funds, and I want them to be fully informed so that they will all understand how it is to be done.

Thanking you for giving this matter your attention, and with very kind personal regards, I am

Yours very truly,

HENRY THUENEN.

P. S.—I thought I understood this matter fully, and supposed that I did, but some of the brewers seem to think the programme had undergone some change since I discussed it with you, hence this request for some light.

Very truly yours,

HENRY THUENEN.

Am sending Harry W. today in to Finn's last territory to check up attitudes and leaders—its light work and believe he will come out alright.

My only reason for wanting Finn's reports back were to get the names of those whom he said he interviewed so the boys could be careful when they went back into his counties—however its probably best for them to go it blind and we will have a better check.

There must be some mistake in your report on Mr. Witthauer. He has been seen by his Democratic friends, and he is absolutely wet. He has also been seen by our people, and they seem to think the report on the back of the sheet must be mixed up with that of his opponent, Edwards, whose report would be in direct line with Witthauer's position, although Witthauer has promised to vote for a secret ballot.

Your report on Laffer is undoubtedly correct insofar as his attitude on the prohibition question is concerned. Our own people have talked with Laffer and he has assured them that he will support a shipping bill and a secret ballot bill. In addition to this, we have an understanding with Mr. J. A. Devitt, of Oskaloosa (a warm personal friend of Laffer) and he assures us that we can absolutely count on Laffer supporting both of the above measures. Laffer would vote for resubmission, but if the issue depended upon his own vote, Devitt assures us that he can induce Laffer to be absent at least.

As to PLATT, there is some mistake. I notice that he was not personally interviewed, but that the information was obtained through others. Platt has pledged himself unqualifiedly to be with us on all of the propositions we put up to him. He has promised to oppose Prohibition; to vote with us on the other questions. He comés from a very "dry" district, but he is receiving and accepting help from us and we feel confident that if elected (which is doubtful) he will make his promises good.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
#3357 So. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.,

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE, I am enclosing herewith copies of two letters sent to Pechstein & Nagel Company, of Keokuk, Iowa, in regard to the National Association of Commerce & Labor tax, which explain themselves.

I am sending these copies to you so you would know what was going on in this regard. When they are of no further interest to you, you may destroy same, and forget the matter.

We are in the midst of a battle royal, as you no doubt know by this time through Mr. Keller. Mr. Keller has been about the state some, and reports to me that everything was looking splendid; and that he had great confidence we would win. I hope his confidence is justified, but I can assure you they are making a dirty fight on Mr. Hamilton. No living man can predict what the result will be, with any degree of certainty.

One thing is certain, and that is that the liberal forces of the state have never been so united as they are to-day, and if we lose, it will only be because the republican majority is so overwhelming it cannot be overcome.

I am making no predictions. I am only hammering away, and the results will have to take care of themselves. I hope, however, to make a report to you within a week or ten days, and I trust I may be able to report something satisfactory.

GENTLEMEN: We have your favor of the 19th. inst., with check for $59.93, amount which with 1% discount of the National Ass'n of Commerce & Labor, we have placed to your credit in settlement of our invoice Sept. 18th.

In reference to the 1% discount, beg to say that we will allow same only on certain goods and for a certain time. Our brewers here, with the exception of one, have refused to become members.

Thanking you for the remittance and past favors, the continuance of which we solicit, beg to remain,

Yours truly,

(Signed) CHAS. EHLERMANN HOP & MALT CO.,
OTTO GIESECKE, President.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 24, 1914.

MESSRS. PECHSTEIN & NAGEL CO.,
Keokuk, Iowa.

GENTLEMEN: Your favor of Oct. 23rd. duly received, and contents had our careful attention. In reply wish to say that when Mr. Koenig was here, he told us that he would get all brewers to take the 1% from all supply dealers, but he did not succeed to get them all, also the supply dealer being a jobber only, should get the manufacturer to stand some of the 1%. We tried the manufacturers, but they would not allow us anything. Now if we take only a brokerage; for instance, on Anhydrous Ammonia and Cooperage, we cannot allow 1%, but we generally mark our invoices that way. If they are not marked, we are willing to stand the 1%. Wish to call your attention though, to the fact that if we sell $400,000.00 goods per annum, we have to pay $4000.00, which is a great part of our profit, and we know of no brewery which was willing to pay so much in proportion.

Now, in regard to giving up the fight, we will not do so. We have always contributed whenever a state had a fight against prohibition for sums that were asked and will do so in future, but we cannot see why we shall pay such big amount for educational purposes. Annheuser-Busch here are the only ones requiring the 1%; no other brewery here consented to it.

Always at your service, we beg to remain,

Yours very truly,

(Signed) CHAS. EHLERMANN HOP & MALT CO.,
OTTO GIESECKE, President.

"Maltsters, as manufacturers, pay only $2.00 on an outlay of $1000.00. We, as jobbers, are forced to $10.00 on same amount."

DAVENPORT, IOWA, Nov. 10, 1914.

Mr. L. H. GIBSON,
#3357 So. Michigan Ave.,
Chicago, Ill.

MY DEAR MR. GIBSON: I am enclosing herewith a report of our work in different counties wherein we were engaged, showing our successes and our defeats.

I am also enclosing a synopsis of the Senate and the House, showing the attitude which we expect the respective members to assume on our question, based upon the results of our investigations. This means your reports and our further investigations.

Trusting same will be satisfactory, I am

Your very truly,

HENRY THUENEN.

EXHIBIT No. 750.

STATEMENT OF DISTRICTS IN WHICH WE OPERATED AND THE RESULTS.

No. 1. Lee County—Joe R. Fraiely, Rep. elected.

This is a Democratic stronghold. Both candidates were liberal, but the Democrat was a negligible quantity, and Frailey, the republican candidate was judged to be a tower of strength in our behalf. We therefore centered on Frailey with great vigor and elected him by over 1200 majority.

No. 9. Des Moines County—Frank E. Thompson, Rep. elected.

This is an overwhelming democratic county. The democratic candidate, however, would have been very weak, if at all friendly, on our question; while the republican candidate was an out and out liberal. We made a very vigorous and energetic fight for him, with the result that he was elected by about 300 majority, although he is the only republican on the ticket who was elected in this county. He immediately telephoned us the result, and gave us the credit for his election. He will be a rock of gibraltor for our cause.

No. 10. Henry-Washington Counties—Jno. Lindley, Dem. elected.

This district is strongly republican. The republican candidate for the Senate was "dry"; and the Democratic candidate has been represented to us as liberal, and we have promises from several sources that he would be friendly to us, especially in view of the fact that he knows we supported him vigorously, and that he owes his election to us. We put up a very vigorous fight against great odds, and won.

No. 13. Wapello County—C. W. Whittemore, Rep. elected.

This County is a very close one. Webber, democrat, has represented the County and was "wet." We made one of our hardest fights to re-elect him, but failed. His defeat was due, however, entirely to his attitude on Capitol Extension, Labor Questions and other important matters.

No. 18. Cass-Shelby Counties—J. C. Voorhees, dem. elected.

This District is a republican district, and by reason of the slump should have overwhelming republican. Tobe Smith, republican, was a candidate to succeed himself, and was "dry." We therefore made a fight on him and succeeded in defeating him by 1224.

No. 29. Jasper County—D. S. Fleck, Dem. elected.

This is a very close district, but, in view of the slump, it was expected to go overwhelmingly republican. We had very little information in regard to the attitude of Mr. Fleck, the democratic candidate for the Senate, but had assurances from several other sources that he would be fair with us, while his opponent was very strongly opposed to us. We therefore centered on Mr. Fleck, and placed him under quite heavy obligations to us. He was consequently elected, and we have no fears but that he will be fair with us.

No. 34. Crawford-Harrison-Monona Counties—G. L. Caswell, dem. elected.

This is a very close district. The republican candidate was a very strong one, and was inclined to be fair by us, but he would have been dominated by the railroads and would make our issue secondary. We therefore threw our influence to Mr. Caswell, who was elected by a substantial majority.

No. 38. Black Hawk-Grundy Counties.

This District is also republican, but elected Senator DeWulf four years ago. We considered this one of our very important districts, and centered on DeWulf against a "dry" man, with great vigor. In view of the overwhelming republican slump it would be expected that a republican candidate would be elected by a large majority. It so happens, however, that DeWulf may be defeated by only about 20 votes, and if so, his defeat is clearly due to his attitude on Capitol Extension, and some local animosities.

No. 44. Chickasaw-Floyd Counties.—Geo. Jackson, Rep., elected.

In this District we centered on Mr. Legel to succeed himself, but before the campaign was over we discovered that his opponent was getting much support from a liberal contingent in his district, and upon an investigation found that he had made some pledges to justify this. The result was that Mr. Legel was defeated, particularly on account of Capitol Extension and other matters in his record. While we were defeated in this District, we were really not hurt, because of the attitude of Mr. Jackson, the successful candidate.

No. 45. Benton-Tampa Counties.—H. C. White, dem., elected.

This is a republican district. Ames was one of the worst "dry" men we had against us during the last two sessions. We therefore made a very vigorous fight to defeat him, and succeeded in electing Mr. White, a democrat, who is at heart liberal.

No. 50. Buena Vista, Humboldt, Pocahontas.—J. H. Allen, Rep., re-elected.

Senator Allen was a candidate to succeed himself in this District. Four years ago he was elected by 3717 votes. He is quite prominent, and is a prospective candidate for Governor. There was no thought that he could be defeated, but we felt that a substantial reduction in his majority would help materially in eliminating him from the gubernatorial race two years hence, in favor of W. L. Harding, the present Lieutenant-Governor. The result of our work exceeded all our expectations. Allen was only elected by about 600 majority.

STATEMENT OF COUNTIES IN WHICH WE WORKED, AND THE RESULTS.

Adair County. A bitter fight was made in this County. We succeeded in electing Mr. McDermott, a democrat, to the House. This is a close county.

Audubon County. Although this is a republican county, we succeeded in electing a wet democrat, Mr. Wittauer.

Boone County. This is an overwhelmingly republican county. The republican representative two years ago was elected by 750 votes. We succeeded in replacing him with a wet democrat, by about 700 votes. Mr. Herman is the democratic representative.

Bremer County. This is a democratic county, but a bitter fight was made on C. W. Miller, the democratic candidate to succeed himself, on account of his attitude on many public questions. We found it necessary to go into that County and do some work, which proved successful.

Butler County. This is a very strong republican county. We made an effort to elect a wet democrat, but failed. We cut the republican majority considerably, but it was not sufficient. Atkinson is the republican representative-elect.

Cedar County. This county is republican by a small majority, and we waged a hard fight in favor of a wet democrat against a dry republican, and succeeded in electing the democrat, Mr. Petersen.

Cherokee County. This is a strong republican county, but we hoped to elect a wet democrat. We failed in this principally on account of the strong republican slump. Wilson is the republican representative-elect.

Clinton County. A strong democratic county. A desperate fight was made to elect two republican representatives, one of whom was "dry." The City of Clinton is a manufacturing town and there are a large number of unemployed. This helped the republicans amazingly. The result of the election was that we elected one "wet" democrat and one "wet" republican, although we had hoped to elect the two wet democrats. Mr. Ingwersen and Mr. Tucker will be the next representatives from this county.

Des Moines County. This is a democratic county. We elected a wet democrat, Mr. Jameson, to the House. This is a county in which we supported a republican for the senate and a democrat for the house, and were successful in both instances.

Emmett County. This is a strong republican county. We put up a bitter fight on account of the extreme bitterness of Bingham, the republican representative against our cause. We failed in electing a democrat, but cut the majority of Mr. Bingham, the republican, very materially.

Hardin County. This is an overwhelmingly republican county, but the republican candidae, Huff, was very dry. We put up a desperate fight and succeeded in electing a wet democrat, Schmedeke, by a small majority.

Howard County. This is a strong republican county. We tried to elect a wet democrat, but failed. Elwood is the republican representative-elect.

Ida County. We succeeded in electing a wet candidate, O. O. Spotts, a republican.

Iowa County. We lent our support to a wet democrat, W. G. Fletcher, and although this is a democratic county, we lost—principally on account of the republican slump. Turner, the republican candidate, was elected.

Jackson County. This is a democratic county. A very hard fight was waged by our enemies, in an effort to elect the republican. We succeeded in defeating the republican, however, and elected a wet democrat, Jos. Kelso, who succeeds himself.

Jasper County. This is a very close county. A bitter fight was waged. We succeeded, however, in electing a "wet" democrat, Craven.

Jefferson County. This is an overwhelmingly republican county, and we would have kept out but for the fact that there were four candidates. This gave us some hope that we might succeed in electing a wet democrat. We failed in this, however. Ball, the Independent Candidate, was elected. We have no report on this candidate, but have an intimattion that he will be fair.

Keokuk County. We made a losing fight in this county. Nordyke, a dry republican, was elected.

Kossuth County. This is an overwhelmingly republican county, but we succeeded in electing a wet democrat, Sullivan.

Lee County. This is a democratic stronghold, but we succeeded in electing a wet representative, Chas. Sawyer, a republican.

Louisa County. This is an overwhelmingly republican county, but we hoped to elect a wet democrat. In this we failed. We cut the majority from 1200 to 200. Wilson, the republican, was elected.

Lucas County. This is a republican county. We tried to elect a wet democrat, but failed. Johnson, the republican, was elected.

Lyon County. This is a close county, but we put up a hard fight and elected a wet democrat, Oldenberg.

Madison County. This is a republican county, but we succeeded in electing a wet democrat, Lenocker.

Mahaska County. This is a close county. We hoped to re-elect a wet democrat, but failed. Wilson, the republican, being elected.

Monona County. This is a republican county, but we made a desperate fight for a wet democrat and succeeded, Rowles being elected.

Osceola County. We threw our influence in favor of a wet democrat and succeeded in electing Steelsmith.

Pottawattamie County. This is a republican county, but we make a desperate fight to elect two wet democrats. We failed however, as two "dry" republicans were elected—Neff and Grasen being elected.

Sac County. This is an overwhelmingly republican county. We endeavored to elect a wet democrat but failed. The dry representative was elected by only 22 votes. Lee, republican, being elected.

Shelby County. This is a slightly democratic county. A bitter fight was made on the democratic candidate for the legislature, who is "wet": but we succeeded however in electing him. Bailey, the democrat, being elected.

Tama County. This is a republican county, but we hoped to elect a democrat who was wet, and failed. Shortress, the republican, being elected.

Union County. We made a hard fight for a democrat, and won out, Coakley, the democrat, being elected.

Webster County. This is an overwhelmingly republican county. The present representative was elected two years ago by 1,880 votes. On account of the fact that Ft. Dodge is located in this county, and has saloons, we had hoped to elect a wet democrat. We made a desperate fight, but failed. The republican was elected, but his majority was cut to 250. Hadley, republican, was elected.

Mr. HENRY THEUNEN,
Davenport Savings Bank Building, Davenport, Iowa.

MY DEAR MR. THEUNEN: Enclosed herewith please find a list of the foreign language papers in the State of Iowa including Bohemian, Hollandish, Norwegian, Danish, Swedish, and German.

It is possible for us to work with all of these papers, and I believe we are in a position to reach their respective nationalities in a very effective manner.

Very truly yours,

NOVEMBER 11, 1914.

Mr. HENRY THEUNEN,
Davenport Savings Bank Building, Davenport, Iowa.

MY DEAR HENRY: I am in receipt of your letter of the 10th inst. enclosing a résumé of the results of the election in your State November 3rd.

It seems to me, after looking them over that one Henry Theunen should pat himself on the shoulders for the excellent work accomplished by him in the year just closed. It is certainly gratifying to see the result of intelligent organization and application such as you have demonstrated during the campaign. I can not see how the situation could be better in your State than is shown by the reports which you have sent me.

Mr. Andreae and Mr. Hartley are out of the city, but will return tomorrow morning, and I am quite certain that they will be as much pleased to see the excellent showing made in Iowa as I can possibly be.

I want you to convey my very kind regards to the real manager of the Iowa campaign—Miss Mitchell. All I have said concerning you and your work I want to express to her with an addition of 100%.

I will be very glad to enjoy the dinner which you promised me some time ago, when I see you in New Orleans. My only regret will be that we cannot have it under the masterful guiding hand of Rev. Miller.

Again thanking you for your kindness in sending the reports, and with very best wishes, I beg to remain,

Sincerely yours,

At a special meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Iowa Brewers Association, held at the Congress Annex, Chicago, Illinois, on Monday, November 16, 1914, at ten o'clock A. M., the following resolution was unanimously adopted by said Board:

"Resolved, That this Association record its deep appreciation of the assistance rendered the industry in Iowa during the past year by the National Association of Commerce and Labor, the organization directed by Mr. Percy Andreae, and that the United States Brewers' Association, and the brewers of the country at large, be urgently requested to continue, and if possible extend, their support to that organization, the effectiveness of whose methods, under peculiarly unfavorable political circumstances, has been most strikingly illustrated during the recent campaign in Iowa.

"Believing that it is of paramount interest to the brewing industry throughout the country to learn in detail of the experience of the brewers of Iowa, this Association hereby records the following facts:

"That while we have heretofore successfully combatted prohibition, in recent years the enemy has made such aggressions in the matter of restrictive laws that a year ago we felt there was no escape from total destruction.

"That, after the organization directed by Mr. Percy Andreae had undertaken to survey the state and develope on the basis of such survey, an educational campaign throughout the state, a most surprising change in conditions took place, resulting in an awakening of the liberal elements throughout the community, and the spreading of a spirit of determined resistance against the prohibition element, which has culminated in such substantial gains in the number of liberal representatives in the legislature that we now feel sure a continuation of said work will soon remove us from all fear of prohibition, and the prospects of relief from existing intolerable laws appears almost certain in the near future.

"This Association is frank to admit that it believed a year ago that such results were beyond the range of possibility, and it has therefore felt it to be doubly its duty to bring the facts to the knowledge of the industry at large.

"Attest:

"JOHN NAGEL, President.
"F. P. MATTES, Secretary."

APRIL 9, 1915.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
 # 1132 Transportation Bldg., Chicago, Ill.,

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: Our work with the legislature is now finished. After repealing the Mulct Law and passing about a dozen law enforcement bills, the legislature has finally declined to authorize the manufacture and sale of a non-intoxicating malt beverage which would contain less than 1/2 of 1% of alcohol.

This was the bill we have been fighting to get through during the last three or four weeks; but the pins were set against us and the "drys" seemed to have had a taste of blood and refused absolutely to listen to us.

This proposition is one which could be put through almost any session of the legislature, but conditions were just such that they would not listen to us this time.

At our recent meeting in Chicago it was suggested that we should have a conference with the St. Louis breweries and the Milwaukee breweries, and explain to them just how the whole matter happened. Our Board directed that this be done as soon as we finished the work at the legislature.

We are now ready to take this matter up and will be glad to do anything in our power.

As I understood the matter, you were to arrange a conference, first at St. Louis, and then at Milwaukee. If you will advise me just what you would like to have done, I will be glad to see that your wishes are carried out.

Was it your idea that Mr. Kemmerle and I should represent our Board at this conference; or that there should be a full Board at same.

I wish again to express to you our very high appreciation of your kindness and your assistance to us. I am as fully convinced now as I have ever been that your system or method of work is the only system that can possibly accomplish any permanent and satisfactory result. The fact that we were unsuccessful in Iowa does not in any sense detract from the system you operate. There is no method of handling this subject that can overcome conditions when they are once set against you. We had an herculean task in Iowa to begin with. We counted 12 out of 29 Holdover members of the Senate as friendly to us, but in fact only 9 out of the 12 stood pat. This left us only 21 Districts out of which to elect enough new members to make 25. This was impossible to accomplish. The bill repealing the Mulct Law had 27 votes in the Senate. The last vote cast would never have been cast against us if that vote would have saved us. It required 26 votes to pass the bill, so it will be seen that the bill had a bare constitutional majority. If the 2 or 3 holdovers that we had counted upon had stood pat, we would have been in a position to say that we had elected enough new members to hold our own, and with the application of the same system for the next election, there would have been no doubt about a safe majority in the Senate to head off any further adverse legislation.

We were defeated by a mere slip, but it was sufficient to do the work.

I feel that your friends among the Brewers should know the facts just as they are. Besides these facts there were at least two senators who can thank us for their elections but who nevertheless voted against us.

Please let me know your wishes in the matter and we will be very glad indeed to do anything for you, or to cooperate with you in any way possible.

With kind personal regards, I am,

Yours very truly,

HENRY THUENEN.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
Chicago, Ill.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE, In pursuance of our agreement we have had a conference with the Anheuser-Busch Brg. Ass'n of St. Louis. I am enclosing herewith a brief report of the conference sent by me to the members of the Board of Trustees of our Association, which explains itself.

All I can say is that we were very highly pleased with the reception and attention which we received, and we are very satisfied that the Anheuser-Busch Ass'n is more alive to the situation than any of the larger brewing concerns with which we are acquainted. There would be a possibility to save the situation if all the larger breweries took the broad view of the situation which this institution takes.

Hoping I may be able to see you personally some time before your visit here in June, I am,

Yours very truly,

HENRY THUENEN

APRIL 16, 1915.

Fred Kemmerle and I were in St. Louis yesterday to keep an appointment previously made with Mr. August A. Busch, President of the Anheuser-Busch Brg. Ass'n.

This conference was in pursuance of our agreement and understanding with Mr. Andreae, and was asked in order to give us an opportunity to discuss the future of Iowa.

We presented the situation exactly as it is, and suggested that a vote on Woman's Suffrage would be had in Iowa next year at the Primary election and that the Constitutional Prohibition question had been passed at the present session of the legislature, and must pass the next session of the legislature when it would be submitted to a vote of the people in 1918.

We explained that the vote on Woman's Suffrage was set for the Primary in order that the woman might assist, if the proposition carried, in electing the next legislature which would have to pass the Prohibitory Amendment proposition. We also explained that in our opinion Woman's Suffrage could be defeated but that at the present time Constitutional Prohibition would carry. We further suggested that if Woman's Suffrage was defeated and the saloons were closed next January, one of two things would happen—either the law would be very strictly enforced and then a great many people heretofore "dry" might be unfriendly to Prohibition; or the law would be laxly enforced and blind pigs would be so common, a majority of the people would prefer the regulated saloons.

We explained to these gentlemen that we had absolutely no financial interest in the matter, but that under the circumstances we felt it our duty to explain the situation to the larger breweries of the West so that if they saw fit to take an interest in the situation in Iowa they would know the facts and circumstances in advance.

We suggested that in our opinion the Andreae organization could be, and would be, the most effective in this work. We explained to them that some prestige might have been lost Mr. Andreae on account of the result in Iowa but assured them that it was certainly not the fault of his organization, or the work done, explaining our situation as it was and the success we had really attained; and that our Lieutenant Governor ran 25,000 votes ahead of the Governor, and the liberal Democratic candidate for Governor was defeated by 25,000 which could easily have been made up in the Eastern part of the state, and that the loss in the Eastern part of the state was due absolutely to commercial conditions.

At this conference there were present Mr. Busch, Mr. Abraham Anheuser and Mr. Klaus. We spent about one and a half hours with them, and when we apologized for taking so much of their time, they expressed great satisfaction with our conference. Mr. Busch went so far as to suggest that it would be worth while to engage us to present this proposition to every large brewery in the country. They assured us that our conference was of the greatest interest to them, and that they were extremely pleased that we called on them and made the presentation which we did. They are enthusiastic supporters of Mr. Andreae, and Mr. Anheuser assured us that they were prepared to go down with the Andreae organization.

Taken altogether, Fred and I agreed that it was as satisfactory a conference as we could possibly have hoped for.

I feel we have done our full duty toward this concern, and am anxious now to get the matter off our hands with the Milwaukee concerns, and then I hope to have an opportunity to explain the results of our conference to Mr. Andreae so he will also know just how the land lays.

In a telephone conversation the other day with Mr. Hartley, he advised me that Mr. Andreae would stop off in Davenport some time in June on his way to San Francisco. I shall take steps to ascertain just when he will be here so that as many of our members as can make it convenient will be present to greet him.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) HENRY THUENEN.

JUNE 20, 1915.

To the Interstate Conference Committee of the United States Brewers' Ass'n.

GENTLEMEN: As you all know, Prohibition has now for many years been the law of the State of Iowa. This has been relieved by what we term the "Mulct Law." During recent years this law has been made more and more stringent by adverse Supreme Court construction, and by legislative enactment, until we have been very little short of actual state-wide prohibition for a long time. The little that was left to us was taken away at the recent session of the legislature by the repeal of the Mulct Law, which takes effect January 1, 1916.

At that time every saloon will be banished from the State of Iowa, and every brewery will be closed under the statutory law of the state.

In addition to this, the legislature at its regular session adopted a resolution submitting to the people of the state an amendment to the constituion providing for sate-wide constitutional prohibition.

Before this can be submitted, however, the identical resolution must again be adopted by both houses of the legislature at its next session which will be held in 1917. The amendment will then be submitted to the people (if the resolution is adopted) at the general election in 1918, unless some other date is fixed by the legislature for its submission.

A resolution for an amendment to the constitution providing for woman's suffrage has passed the last two sessions of the legislature, and the question will be submitted at the next state-wide primary which will be held in June, 1916. This question would have been submitted at the general election next year, but the legislature concluded that it would be an advantage to prohibition to have the question submitted earlier so that, if the proposition should carry, the women could vote at the next general election and assist in the election of "dry" representatives and senators in order to assure the adoption of the prohibitory amendment when the legislature again convenes.

In our state the constitution can be amended only by a vote of the people, after a resolution submitting the proposed amendment has been adopted at two successive sessions of the legislature. It will at once be seen that to have prohibtion written into our constitution will remove Iowa almost permanently from the field of possible wet territory.

As we view the situation in our state there is a feeling that the fight which has been made by the brewers and the liberal interests of the state, is very little short of marvelous in that it has deferred the evil day so long. We believe there has been no way possible to avoid the results we now have, except by absolutely closing the state against the liquor traffic in order that the present generation may have the same experience with state-wide prohibition as the previous generation had from 1884 to 1892. Whether this experience will lead to the same result as it previously did, is a problem that time alone can solve.

Our breweries will be closed and the revenue with which we have conducted our past fights will be removed.

We therefore submit our situation to you in order that you may know all the facts and circumstances, and use your own judgment as to whether you care to continue the fight, or whether you are willing to surrender the state to the enemy.

The first battle that will be fought in the state will be on the Woman's Suffrage Amendment. A defeat in this would make a contest on constitutional prohibition very difficult.

We are of the opinion that Woman's Suffrage can be defeated, although we believe that the liquor interests should not be known as the contending force against this amendment. Action of some kind should be taken to assure a real and active campaign against this measure.

There are a great many elements in the state of Iowa which are dry but which are opposed to Woman's Suffrage. The Swedish and Norwegian population in the Northern part of the state is opposed to the saloon, but is practically unanimous against Woman's Suffrage. A great many of the Americans in Iowa are opposed to it, and it is my opinion that 75 per cent of the membership of both houses of the last two sessions of the legislature will vote against it at the polls.

The next battle will be at the next session of the legislature. The margin in the state senate in favor of constitutional prohibition is very small indeed. If the U. S. B. A. decides to make a fight against resubmission at the next session of the legislature, we believe they should concentrate their efforts on the senate. If this should fail, the only thing left would be a contest at the polls in 1918, when the question will be submitted to the people of the state.

There is a very powerful argument which can be brought against this proposition in Iowa which does not obtain in contests of this kind generally. The opinion is very commonly expressed that the legislature made a grievous error in repealing the Mulct Law. When the constitutional amendment is submitted the State will already be "dry" by reason of the repeal of the Mulct Law. and it will thus be demonstrated to the people that state-wide prohibition is a possibility without a constitutional amendment and that it would be quite useless to write a restriction into the constitution which can be had quite as effectively by a simple act of the legislature.

If constitutional prohibition is defeated the question will remain an open one and the legislature can at any session repeal the prohibitory law and substitute any regulatory measure it may consider wise.

To sum up, what Iowa needs at your hands, if you are disposed to interest yourselves in the state, is—

First. A contest on Woman's Suffrage at the Primary in 1916

Second. A contest for liberal senators at the election in 1916—and if this fails, then

Third. A contest at the polls on the prohibitory amendment, which will be held at the general election in 1918, unless otherwise provided by the legislature.

In this connection I desire to suggest that while the breweries of Iowa will go out of business on January 1, 1916, and will therefore be unable to contribute money to any great extent towards these contests, they have arranged to maintain their organization on an economical basis for some time to come. This organization and each individual member will be glad to co-operate with the U. S. B. A. in any effort to continue the fight, if, in your judgment and the judgment of the Board of Trustees of the U. S. B. A. this should be desired.

Respectfully submitted.

[Iowa Brewers' Association, office of the general counsel, 23–24–25–26 Davenport Savings Bank Building, Davenport, Iowa; Telephone, Davenport 526. Henry Thuenen, general counsel.]

AUG. 31, 1915.

To Iowa Brewers' Association,

In view of recent events in matters of legislation relating to our business, your Board of Trustees felt it to be their duty to submit a brief report to you of the work of the Association during recent years, and therefore directed that the following report be prepared.

After the enactment of the Mulct Law in 1894 by the 25th. General Assembly, there was comparative quiet in the state for a number of years. Occasional contests of petitions of consent were made; and here and there injunction suits against violators of the law were brought. These suits appeared to be largely a matter of revenue for the attorneys who brought them; but they resulted in keeping alive the "dry" organization.

At each session of the legislature "dry" bills were introduced, but none of great importance outside of law enforcement bills were enacted until the 31st. General Assembly, in 1906, amended the law to provide that all general consents shoud expire on July 1, 1911, and that thereafter such statements of general consent should remain valid for a period of five years only.

Resolutions providing for the resubmission of the question of constitutional prohibition were offered at practically every session of the legislature, but they were invariably killed or smothered in the committees.

Rumblings of the storm which was to come were heard as early as 1903 and 1904, when communities like Dubuque and Davenport were forced to recognize some closing hours. These regulations were gracefully accepted by the liberal people, but it was soon found that nothing short of absolute destruction would satisfy the "dry" forces of the state.

By 1907 the wave had reached such overwhelming velocity that in communities which had never before been restrained, all the restrictions of the Mulct Law were gradually but surely forced upon them. Naturally some resentment was felt by the liberal people of these communities, but, on the whole, they consented and the law became effective in a very short time.

Misrepresentations of the true state of affairs existing in liberal communities were circulated throughout the state with the result that the 33rd. General Assembly, which convened in January, 1909, threatened to retaliate by submitting the prohibitory amendment to the people. Through the efforts of this Association, business men, professional men, and even ministers of the Gospel, were induced to lend their support to defeat the constitutional amendment. After one of the most notable liquor fights in the history of the state, the resolution for resubmission was permitted to die in the committee of the Senate after it had passed the House by an overwhelming majority.

It was thought when this was settled that all adverse legislation would be defeated, and our representatives retired from the field confident that this would happen. During the closing hours of the session, however, tremendous "dry" influences were brought to bear, and the Sifting Committees to which all bills had been referred, were forced to report out a number of the most drastic ones, including the bill known as the "Moon" Law which limits the number of saloons to one for every one thousand inhabitants; and the so-called "Bennett" Law providing that no one interested in the manufacture of intoxicating liquors could be interested in any real estate or personal property used in the retail sale thereof.

These disasters, together with the close margin by which resubmission was defeated, convinced us that some very strenuous and effective efforts must be made at once if we expected to save our existence.

THIRTY-FOURTH GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Realizing that, with the growth of the "dry" sentiment throughout the state, and with our limited organization, it would be impossible to control the lower branch of the legislature, consisting of a member from each county and an additional member from nine of the larger counties, we concentrated all of our efforts on the Senate.

At the election of 1910 there were 21 Senators to be elected. We went into each of the 21 senatorial districts and labored with our friends and the political leaders for the nomination and the election of liberal senators. The net result of our efforts was to elect 14 senators.

When the legislature convened in January, 1911, we had the situation well in hand. Out of the 18 "dry" measures introduced we succeeded in killing practically every one in the Senate. A few liberal measures, particularly one to eliminate attorneys' fees in injunction suits, were passed by the Senate, but were killed in the House.

The resolution to re-submit an amendment to the constitution providing for state-wide prohibition (which was introduced at this session as it had been at every previous session) was permitted to be reported out by the Senate, and for the first time in the history of liquor legislation in Iowa, it was defeated on the floor of the Senate by a vote of 27 to 21.

We escaped this session without any adverse legislation.

THIRTY-FIFTH GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Encouraged by the results of the 34th. General Assembly, we hoped for some constructive legislation at the next session of the legislature and concentrated our efforts in developing sentiment in favor of substituting the secret ballot for the petition or general statement of consent. In order to accomplish this, we organized a Publicity Bureau which we operated for a little over two years at a very great expense. We succeeded in having certain mild material in our favor published in over two hundred and fifty newspapers of the State. by paying the regular advertising rates for such material. We soon discovered that the newspapers were willing to take our money provided the material did not in any way commit the paper itself to our side. After two years' experiment we found that we did not gain the active support of a single newspaper whose support we had not had before.

In addition to conducting a Publicity Bureau, we again concentrated on the Senate, knowing that we could not control the House, but hoping that with our publicity work we could develope a sufficient sentiment for the secret ballot to carry it through the lower branch of the legislature.

Political conditions were so chaotic however, that, notwithstanding every effort we were able to make, we suffered our greatest defeat in this election, being the election of 1912. Out of the 29 senators elected we were able to count only 12, and not all of them firm in the faith.

When the legislature convened in January, 1913, our best friends assured us that we would be required to make some concessions and compromise on the various "dry" bills offered and introduced. We assured them that if they would stand firm, notwithstanding our losses at the election, we still had enough members to prevent adverse legislation. It was absolutely impossible to hold them in line, and the result was that a bill shortening the hours of operating saloons—two hours in the morning and one hour at night—was adopted; and the bill known as the "Five Mile Limit" bill prohibiting saloons and breweries operating within five miles of any state educational institution under the control of the State Board of Education was passed. This last bill was made to take effect at the expiration of the general statement of consent. The practical operation of this bill was to prevent saloons in Iowa City only, and the statement of general consent in that city does not expire until January 1, 1916.

The disastrous results of this session, together with our heavy losses at the previous election, and the fact that we would be required to make such tremendous gains at the next election, caused much anxiety and aroused us to the realization of the necessity of extraordinary efforts if we expected to escape destruction at the next, or 36th, General Assembly.

THIRTY-SIXTH GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Even before the adjournment of the 35th. General Assembly, your Board of Trustees realizing the danger which confronted them, appealed to the United States Brewers Association through the branch conducted by Mr. Percy Andreae, for assistance.

Mr. Andreae came into our state in the spring of 1913, with his organization and made what he calls a "survey" of the state, investigating in detail the conditions in every legislative district in the state. As a result of his investigations, he expressed the belief that with a thorough organization along the lines he proposed we might still save our existence, and he agreed that the United States Brewers' Association would provide one-half of the cost of the campaign up to $75,000.00, providing said campaign would be conducted under his supervision and direction. This was promptly agreed to, as reported to you at a previous meeting of this Association, and the U. S. B. A. did in fact furnish more than the stipulated amount, the total actually furnished by said Association amounting to $40,000.00.

The campaign was conducted under the supervision of Mr. Andreae, and in strict line with his instructions and directions. The general scheme was to send representatives into every county and legislative district to induce persons of liberal persuasion to become candidates for the legislature—on both political tickets if possible; or on either ticket if both could not be obtained.

German-American Alliances were perfected and strengthened where organizations existed; Alliances were organized where none existed previously; lodges were visited and members induced to lend assistance; labor organizations were seen and operated upon; foreign language newspapers were sought and encouraged to aid us, and every element of organization which the human mind could conceive of was utilized wherever possible.

We engaged the services of a large number of representatives to cover the state of Iowa, and there was scarcely a county in which some representative of ours was not busy.

After the primaries were over and nominations were made, secret agents were sent into the state of Iowa to make secret investigation of the attitude of the different candidates in order that our own field men might be checked up in their reports on the attitude of these different candidates, and in order that we should not lend our aid to any unworthy or unfriendly candidates. After receiving the reports of these secret agencies, we carefully analyzed the situation in each county, and rendered such support as we were able to render to those candidates who were presumably most friendly to our interests.

During the campaign preceding the election no efforts and no money were spared in furthering the interests of those who were our friends, or were supposed to be our friends. We had as many as 25 men in the field at one time, and nearly that many constantly throughout the campaign. Wherever we found a chance to elect a friend of ours, we rendered such aid as was in our power, not infrequently conducting the entire campaign through friends of the candidate, always, of course, in a perfectly legitimate manner, and without the knowledge of the candidate.

Never in the history of the State of Iowa has so thorough a campaign been conducted in any interest as was conducted by us for the election of 1914. The results of the election were extremently satisfactory, authough we had very many disappointments as well.

Taking th reports of the secret agents sent into the State by Mr. Andreae, and accepting them as all correct, more than 60 members of the House expressed themselves as being opposed to the repeal of the Mulct Law. These were not all pledges made to us, but were expressions of the individual members. Of course, no one supposed that each member would vote his conviction as expressed casually to an outsider.

We also had some disappointments in some of the senatorial districts. Where we had confidently hoped for success, some of our friends were defeated; but it is also true that in quite a large number of districts our friends were elected where we had scarcely hoped for success.

Our greatest disappointments, however, were from members whom we had confidently counted on as friendly to us but who forsook us when the fight was on. Nevertheless, in spite of all these disappointments, had all the holdover members of the Senate upon whom we confidently counted, stood their ground, even as well as they did at the previous session, we would still have come out safely. Our disaster is not due to failure at the last election. It was due entirely to losses sustained at the previous election and in the treachery of holdover members. Had all the holdover members voted right, we would have won the day. Or, conceding the losses there, had all the newly elected members kept their promises we would still have won the day.

As it is, the last session of the legislature repealed the Mulct Law, leaving statutory prohibition the law of the state; passed a resolution to submit constitutional prohibition to the people, which resolution must be adopted by another session of the legislature before the people have a vote on the question, and passed a large number of law enforcement bills, all of which have been submitted to you in printed form.

The net result of all our efforts, after a strenuous fight covering the last [illegible] years, is that we have been completely defeated, and that Iowa becomes a dry state on January 1, 1916.

LEGAL EFFECT OF LAW.

Immediately upon the adjournment of the legislature, this Board directed the General Counsel of the Association to engage the assistance of such attorneys as he saw fit, and to investigate carefully the legal effect of this enactment.

Ever since that time the General Counsel and his Associates have been laboring and wrestling with the problem until finally the General Counsel has submitted to this Board a report, of which we attach hereto a copy.

Believing that this report is a correct one, and that there is no hope of any relief whatever from litigation, we recommend that this Association as such take no action whatever in the matter of litigating any question that may arise, and that we submit to the law as enacted by the legislature.

Respectfully submitted.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX, Sec'y,
50 Union Square, New York, N. Y.

MY DEAR MR. FOX: Upon my return home from a trip to the coast, I find your report by Mr. Thuenen on the recent meeting of the Inter-State Conference Committee.

While I and all the other Iowa brewers feel that they are down and out, I have been engaged in the business for so many years (ever since my childhood and my father before me, I still feel an intense interest in the principles involved, and entertain a hope that the United States Brewers Association may see its way clear to interest itself in the Iowa situation. I am therefore writing you to say that I believe the report on the Iowa situation submitted at your meeting gives the exact conditions of affairs in this state. I want to ask you to bring this report before the Board of Trustees and urge them to give the matter careful consideration, and to definitely determine whether Iowa is to be abandoned, or whether they will take over the fight here.

If they decide to interest themselves in the state, they cannot get busy too soon. There is no time to be lost. I am satisfied that with an energetic effort constitutional prohibition can be headed off in this state, and if this is done, there is always hope of the future, even though it may take some time to get relief, whereas, constitutional prohibition would foreclose us from any relief for so long a time that this generation at least would never be able to enjoy the results.

Yours very truly,

JULY 28, 1915.

Mr. A. F. HEEB,
Dubuque B. & M. Co., Dubuque, Iowa.

MY DEAR MR. HEEB: I have your favor of the 24th. inst. which I have taken up with our President, and we would suggest that inasmuch as the last legin Iowa was conducted by Mr. Thuenen and Mr. Andreae who are particularly familiar with conditions in the State of Iowa, these gentlemen should undertake to conduct the next campaign if one is to be waged.

Mr. Andreae has repeatedly stated that his investigations in Iowa disclosed conditions which led him to believe that there is a sufficient liberal element in the State to positively prevent its going dry if this element is properly appealed to, and is shown the result of voting for illiberal laws. Mr. Andreae has claimed that although the State might not be redeemed in one or two campaigns, ultimately there was no doubt in his mind, of success.

As far as we are concerned, the United States Brewers' Association cannot undertake a fight until authorized to do so by the Executive Committee. This Committee met only recently, and will not meet again now until just preceding our Convention in October. If the Iowa brewers have any requests to make, therefore, they should be addressed to the Committee for consideration at that meeting. Our President, Mr. Edward A. Schmidt, is the Chairman ex-officio of the Executive Committee.

Appreciating your situation, and the motives which inspired you, and with kind regards, I am

Yours very truly,

HUGH F. FOX, Sec'y.

SUMMARY OF THE WORK IN THE U. S. BREWERS' ASSOCIATION.

During the current year the United States Brewers' Association has taken an active part, and in many cases the leading part, in the direction of the following campaigns:

Maine, Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

In addition to this, investigations have been conducted and preliminary organization work started in Alabama, California, Iowa, Kansas, Maryland, Montana, Oklahoma, Oregon and Vermont.

This Association took entire charge of the recent campaigns in Rhode Island, and South Dakota; and handled exclusively the press end of the successful campaigns in Georgia, Ohio and Indiana.

This Association has distributed over two million pieces of literature, the educational effect of which has been recognized by our opponents; and in some of the campaigns we are informed that the statements of facts which were prepared in our office has turned the scale in the elections.

Through the efforts of the Organization Bureau, in co-operation with the Secretary, Merchants' & Manufacturers' Associations and Liberty Leagues have been organized, and these have been exceedingly effective in a number of States in handling the campaigns and in distributing literature to the voters.

Several of the State Federations of Labor and a score or more of the Labor Unions have passed resolutions in opposition to Prohibition, and we have rallied the forces of labor to our side most effectively in a number of the recent State campaigns. In several States the Wholesale and Retail Liquor Dealers' Associations have also been welded into compact bodies, and their influence used in the elections.

During the past month and on November 3rd, important victories were gained for our cause in the following States:

Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Jersey, Ohio, South Dakota, Utah and Wisconsin, in fact, the latest returns indicate that on November 3rd we won every contest in which we were engaged outside of New York State.

We are about to take up, in co-operation with the New England Brewers' Association, no license campaigns in Fall River, Worcester, Lynn and other Massachusetts cities.

There is, however, a long and hard fight ahead of us, not only to hold our ground, but to regain lost territory; and we cannot afford to relax at any point.

DECEMBER 23, 1909.

GENTLEMEN: Among the brewers who are not members of the United States Brewers' Association, or whose membership has been allowed to lapse, I find your name. I take the liberty of enclosing a blank application, which I trust you will fill out and return.

The notable victories which have recently been won in the South and the East have, no doubt impressed you; and I presume it is not necessary to call your attention to the way in which your interests are being guarded by the Committee on Federal Relations?

We are sending our literature to the newspapers, libraries, universities and colleges throughout the country, and have distributed several million pieces of literature in other ways. The result in the change of public sentiment, as reflected by the press, is so marked that it has become a matter of comment among the leaders of the Anti-Saloon League and the Prohibition Party.

There is hardly a single State in which we have not assisted in the work of organization and education during the past year. The war-area is, however, constantly increasing, and we must all stand shoulder to shoulder, if we are to continue our recent victories.

Can you afford to be outside the ranks? New members will only have to pay the initiation fee of $5.00 now, and will not be liable for dues until next April.

Requesting the favor of a prompt reply, I am,

Very truly yours,

HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

GENTLEMEN: I presume that you have received a copy of our circular letter of November 17th, giving the results of the recent elections. In one way or another our assistance was sought in all of the States to which reference was made, besides a number of others that are not included in the list. Over a million pieces of printed matter were sent out from this office; and through our various departments, speakers and organizers were furnished, and in some cases, press agents also. As you can imagine, this involved a very large expenditure of money and a great deal of work.

There are several State-wide campaigns which will engross us during the coming year, besides the usual license elections and the local contests, so that the demand upon our activity and resources is unceasing. Our opponents are seeking to regain their prestige by starting new fights in places where our industry is least prepared to resist. For example, they are trying to make Vermont "dry" to offset their defeat in Maine, and are doing the same thing in the State of Washington to offset their defeat in Oregon. I cite these merely to illustrate their tactics.

The experience of the past year clearly shows that our opponents have so unified their forces that they can concentrate their strength at any point in the country; in other words, the Prohibitionists, under whatever name they call themselves, are now a molbile army, closely federated and practically nationalizd. I am sure you will see how futile it is for us to try to meet such an effective organization by merely local efforts! Every brewer in the country is therefore vitally interested in the continuance of the forward movement which the United States Brewers' Association is leading. The extent of the Association's usefulness depends upon, and is limited by, the measure of support it receives from its members. There is an urgent need for funds, and I write to ask whether you will not send us your dues for the current year, or at least inform us when you are likely to be able to do so conveniently?

Awaiting your reply, I am

Yours faithfully,

Secretary.

[United States Brewers' Association, Association's Office, 109 East 15th Street.]

NEW YORK, November 17, 1910.

To the Members of The United States Brewers' Association.

GENTLEMEN: The elections of Tuesday, November 8th, indicate a further marked decline of prohibition sentiment throughout the country. From the results in several important States it is evident that the so-called prohibition "tidal wave" has almost entirely subsided and that there is small likelihood of its gaining new ground or recovering what it has lost.

Concurrently it appears no less clear that the people are resolved upon a firm administration of just laws governing the liquor traffic. Reviewing the elections as a whole and in an impartial spirit, it must be granted that, taken by and large, they offer a remarkable popular endorsement of the American theory of home rule and the license system. Naturally, the change of sentiment is most striking in the South where scarcely more than two years ago the prohibition agitation assumed the features of a genuine crusade. But North and West and East the influences of reaction are equally at work, as the election results disclose in these sections.

Missouri, Florida and Oregon voted on a proposition to put Prohibition into their constitution. In Florida the form submitted would "prohibit forever the manufacture, sale, barter or exchange of all intoxicating liquor," with the usual exception of alcohol for medical, mechanical and scientific purposes, and of wine for sacramental use. The form of Prohibition offered for Missouri followed closely the constitutions of Kansas, Maine and Iowa.

Oregon voted on a proposition to prohibit not only the manufacture and sale, but "possession" or "giving away" of intoxicating liquors. At the same time Oregon voted on another amendment, giving to towns and cities "exclusive power to license, regulate, control, suppress or prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors within the municipality."

Oklahoma, after a brief trial of prohibition, voted on a proposition to repeal the existing State-wide Prohibition and to substitute for it the local option system. South Dakota considered an amendment to give counties the right to exercise local option.

Following is a bare summary of the more important contests with a word as to their significance:

Alabama—Emmet O'Neal, Democrat, is elected Governor upon a local option platform, thus dsfeating statutory prohibtion. A legislature, Democratic in both branches, has been elected in harmony with the attitude of the Governor. Repeal of the Prohibition law is thus assured.

Arkansas—There was no general election in this State, the election in September having returned a majority of the legislature opposed to Prohibition.

Arizona—The struggle in the Constitutional Convention between Prohibitionists and the Antis for advantage in the operation of the initiative and referendum in cities and counties has resulted in the adoption of the minority report of the Legislative Committee, which leaves the question of the control of cities by counties, relative to local option, as it is in the present territorial law. Under the present law cities and counties are segregated in the matter of controlling the liquor traffic, each preserving its autonomy.

Delaware—New Castle County, the only wet County in this State, has again voted license by an increased majority over that of two years ago.

Florida—The proposition to amend the present Local Option feature of Florida's Constitution and insert in lieu thereof State-wide Prohibition forever was defeated by a majority of 6,500 (in round figures) out of a total vote of approximately 50,000. The amendment was defeated in the majority of the counties of the State, and in the dry counties alone, excluding the vote of every other wet county, a majority was cast against State prohibition.

This campaign was inaugurated at the last session of Florida's Legislature, April 1909, by the Anti-Saloon League, which succeeded in passing through both Houses by a three-fifths vote this proposed amendment, leaving it to the vote of the people to decide.

Idaho—The Democratic candidate for Governor, who is opposed to State wide prohibition, was elected. The Senate will likely be Democratic, and thereby insure the defeat of the prohibition amendment.

Illinois—The House of Representatives will be Democratic and liberal. Only one avowed Prohibitionist was chosen.

Iowa—Republican platform declared for continuance of the mulct law. Democratic platform favored local option. About thirty of the fifty senators chosen are opposed to dry legislation.

Indiana.—A Democratic Legislature has been elected. This means a repeal of county option and a return to town and city option, as pledged in the State Democratic platform. Governor Marshall throughout the entire campaign pledged the Democratic party to a passage of a bill changing the unit as above indicated. The County Option law and the Anti-Saloon League were on direct trial, and the verdict was against the latter by the greatest majority in sixteen years.

Kansas—Stubbs, Republican, for Governor, dragged the liquor question into the campaign, charging that his Democratic opponent was the candidate of the liquor interests. Normal Republican plurality in Kansas is 40,000. Stubbs is re-elected by only 5,000 to 7,000.

Missouri—The license forces have carried the State, defeating the prohibition referendum by a majority exceeding 200,000. Leaving out the cities of St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph, the Prohis are still heavily beaten. The farmer vote figured largely in the result. The victory greatly exceeds the expectations of the liberal element.

Minnesota—This State is now under license. The contest was for present conditions as against county option. A Republican Legislature has been elected, which is opposed to county option in both branches. Out of sixty-three senatorial or upper house districts, the Anti-Saloon League captured but twenty-three and fifty-one out of the one hundred and twenty legislative or lower house members.

Nebraska—Dahlman, the liberal Democratic candidate for Governor, was beaten, but a majority of the new Legislature is opposed to county option.

New Hampshire—General results favorable to liberal side. Three cities and twenty-three towns changed to license, among the cities being Concord, the Capital. Former license cities stood pat.

New Jersey—Election results in this State were disastrous to the Anti-Saloon League forces. Out of twenty-one members of the Senate the League will have but six supporters, five of these being holdovers. In the Assembly the League has only seven out of sixty members.

Ohio—As affecting the liquor industries, the contest in Ohio turned upon the Legislature and Governor. Indications point to the election of a liberal Legislature, which will restore to the towns and cities of the State the right of home rule, of which they are deprived under the present county prohibition law. Warren S. Harding, the defeated Republican candidate for Governor says: "A very important influence in the Ohio fight has not been generally recognized. The 'wets' in Ohio have achieved a significant victory, and the extreme 'drys' have helped them to it."

Oklahoma—It seems certain that the local option amendment is beaten by about 10,000.

Oregon—State-wide Prohibition is defeated by a majority of 10,000 and the unit of local option law is changed from county to city.

Rhode Island—Woonsocket and all other wet cities voted license again for increased majorities and four dry cities went wet. Westerly for the first time in its history voted license.

South Dakota.—County option is defeated by 15,000—a heavy blow to the drys.

South Carolina—Samuel Blease, Democratic Governor elected without opposition on a local option platform.

Tennessee—The election of Hooper, Republican candidate for Governor, is disputed and the contest will probably be taken to the Legislature, the complexion of which is in doubt at this writing, though both sides claim it. Chances favor the seating of Taylor, Democrat and anti-Prohibition.

Texas—Colquitt, liberal Democrat, chosen at primaries on local option platform, elected by 120,000. Legislature, Democratic in both branches, pledged to submit prohibition amendment to constitution in 1911.

Utah—This State rejected State-wide prohibiion as amended by the Democratic platform. The Republicans won with local option, and a Republican Legislature was chosen.

Washington—Increased number of towns voted wet. Wets made gains in the House, but lost in the Senate. No State-wide or county option question was in issue.

West Virginia—Great interest centered in Kanawha County, in whidh Charleston, the capital of the State, is located. Ex-Governor McCorkle was elected State Senator from the capital district (three counties) by 3,000 majority over Grant Hall, Republican nominee, who was indorsed by the Prohibitionists. Democrats carried the Legislature and elected four of the five Congressmen to which the State is entitled.

Wisconsin—No prohibition or option issue in general election. Majority of both branches of the legislature is strongly against county option. The Anti-Saloon League influence has fallen off greatly in this State.

NEW YORK, November 20, 1911.

As President of the United States Brewers' Association, I write to ask you to become a member, both for your own sake and for the good of the cause we represent.

We have been guarding your interests at Washington continually, and but for our activity the beer tax would now be $2.00 a barrel, and the shipment of beer from State to State would be prohibited. With this accomplished, all Local Option areas would soon be made "dry," and so far as beer is concerned Prohibition would become really effective.

Through this Association, the brewing industry has had the benefit of the best legal counsel in dealing with the Internal Revenue Department, the Department of Commerce and Labor, the Agricultural Department, the Board of Food and Drug Inspection, the U. S. Treasury and the Patent Office.

During our recent Convention, in the Executive Session, testimony was given by some of the smaller brewers that five different States had been saved by our efforts within the last year, and that but for the U. S. Brewers' Association, it is probable that all of the Southern States and a number of the States west of Missouri would now be under Prohibition.

We have taken an active part in every State where the License Question has been a political issue, and have distributed during the past year alone, three million pieces of literature. The newspapers, magazines, libraries, colleges, universities and other educational centers are on our mailing list and receive our publicat ons. We are conducting a comprehensive campaign of education, covering every phase of the beer business and the so called liquor problem, and our office is now recognized by thoughtful students as being the best Information Bureau and Fact Station on all the related topics.

We employ a Labor Expert to act as business agent for the brewers, in adjusting local difficulties.

We have recently appointed a Crop Improvement Committee, which is entering upon a campaign of investigation and education in connection with barley and hops.

We are opposed by a compact organization of national scope, with abundant means and a large list of professional workers, who can be concentrated at any given point. We have studied their tactics and measured their strength, and are winning thoughtful leaders to the merits of our cause by the sincerity of our purpose and the intelligence of our mthods. There is however a long fight ahead of us. Our success depends on presenting a solid front to our opponents. Can you afford to be outside the ranks? I ask you to look upon our dues, which are only 1¢ per barrel, as a small but necessary premium for the insurance of your business. Will you not help me in this work, by signing the enclosed application for membership?

Very truly yours,

JACOB RUPPERT, Jr.,
President.

OCTOBER 23, 1912.

GENTLEMEN: There are pending before the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives several bills, all intended to restrict and finally absolutely to prevent the inter-State shipments of liquor. The Anti-Saloon League is making a desperate effort to pass one of these bills. The Webb bill is its pet measure. We enclose you a copy of this bill, and ask you to bring it to the attention of candidates for Congress in your District. This is probably the boldest attempt ever made by the Anti-Saloon League to destroy the Constitution of the United States and the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States by Congressional legislation, and shows its utter disregard for the personal rights and liberties of the people of the country.

The Anti-Saloon League falsely claims that the bill aims only to prevent the sale of liquor in "dry" territory. This is a deceitful statement, made for the purpose of hiding the real intent. The State laws are absolutely supreme in the matter of the sale of liquor and every other regulation of the traffic. The Supreme Court has decided this time and time again, and the agents of the League, of course, understand this as well as they know how to collect money. The real intent of this proposed legislation is not only to make the inter-State shipment of liquors into "dry" territory impossible, but to break up inter-State commerce in liquors entirely. This is bound to be the practical effect of these measures, if any one of them should pass and be upheld by the Supreme Court.

Yours very truly,

HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

NEWARK, NEW JERSEY, July 26, 1911.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX, Secty.,
109 E. 15th St., N. Y.

DEAR SIR: Confirming conversation with the writer yesterday, we herewith beg to give you a memo of the bills in which the New York brewers were interested and which we were able to defeat through the efforts of Messrs. Fitzgerald & Walsh, of New Haven, Conn., viz:

An act amending an act concerning prosecutions for violations of laws relating to the sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors.

Had this amendment to the original bill been passed, it would have meant the elimination each year of at least fifty saloons in New Haven alone, and from 350 to 400 throughout the state. This statement is based upon the number of arrests and convictions in cases of licensed dealers.

Bill One to One Thousand was reported as unfavorable and was killed in the Senate.

The purpose of this bill was to get the number of saloons on this basis at once had it been passed.

The Inspection bill was defeated early in March. For some reason, instead of having it referred to the Committee on Excise, it was given to the Public Safety Committee. Committee report unfavorable.

The bill imposing a protective tariff of twenty-five cents per barrel on Beer which was made outside of the state was also reported as unfavorable by the committee.

Considering the work performed by Messrs. FitzGerald & Walsh with committees and the number of trips they made to Hartford in our interest, we think their bill of $3000.00 for services rendered very reasonable. As talked over yesday, we would thank you to notify the various members who attended the meeting a few months ago, as well as such other brewers who are doing business in the State of Connecticut, including the western brewers, to pay their proportionate share of this expense, as agreed by some of the brewers at our meeting. We would appreciate your getting in touch with them at an early date, so that the matter can be cleaned up.

We are herewith enclosing receipt for $3000.00 advanced by the writer, which explains itself.

Yours truly,

CHRISTIAN FEIGENSPAN (A Corporation).

PABST BREWING CO.,

GENTLEMEN: I have your letter of July 29th before me, relating to the Connecticut matter about which I wrote you on July 27th. I think the position you take is perfectly fair and proper, and it will be entirely satisfactory if you will contribute $100. I do not believe it will be possible to get the number of barrels which the various brewers are selling in the State of Connecticut, and we shall therefore have to approximate. I trust this will be satisfactory.

Of course you understand that this is not a matter with which the United States Brewers' Association has any official connection, and that I acted merely for the convenience of the parties concerned.

I may add that checks for $250. have been received from the following concerns, and there are several other important local brewers still to hear from. I do not think that their total contributions, however, will be sufficient to cover the amount expended by Mr. Feigenspan:

Ballantine Brewery, Newark, N. J.; A. Hupfel's Sons, Newark, N. J.; Henry Elias Brg. Co., New York; Clausen-Flanagan Bry., New York; F. & M. Schaefer Brg. Co., New York; and C. Feigenspan, Newark, N .J.

AUGUST 17, 1911.

GEORGE E. KOEHLER, Esq.,
New York City.

DEAR SIR: This is with reference to my letter to you of July 27th, relating to the Connecticut matter, to which I have no reply.

Checks for $250.00 each have been sent by the following concerns:

Ballantine Brewery, Newark, N. J.; A. Hupfel's Sons, Newark, N. J.; Henry Elias Brg. Co., New York; Clausen-Flanagan Bry., New York; F. &. H. Schaefer Brg. Co., New York; and C. Feigenspan, Newark, N. J.

This comprises half of the amount paid out by Mr. Feigenspan's representative. Several other brewers have replied that their trade in Connecticut was small and that they do not see the justice of contributing an equal amount irrespective of the business which they do in that State. I do not think it would be feasible to get the exact amount of barrels sold by each of the outside brewers in Connecticut, and suggest therefore that you make your contribution according to what you think is fair.

It is evident that such action will be necessary if Mr. Feigenspan is to be re-imbursed for his outlay.

You will, of course, understand that the United States Brewers' Association has no official connection with this matter, and that I am merely acting personally for the convenience of the parties concerned.

Yous very truly,

Secretary.

DEAR SIR: May I take the liberty of calling your attention again to my letter of July 27th, in regard to the Connecticut affair? In response thereto, contributions have been received totaling $2,150.00 from eleven brewers, including Mr. Feigenspan's own contribution of $250.00. This still leaves a balance of $850.00 due to Mr. Feigenspan, and I am asked to write to you to inquire whether you are willing to make a contribution!

This is not a U. S. B. A. matter, and I am merely acting for the convenience of the parties concerned!

MY DEAR COL. RUPPERT: This is to ask if you will kindly reply to my letter of July 27th, regarding the Connecticut matter. Checks have been received from the following:

C. Feigenspan, Newark, N. J.; Ballantine Brewery, Newark, N. J.; A. Hupfel's Sons, New York, N. Y.; Henry Elias Brg. Co., New York, N. Y.; Clausen-Flanagan Bry., New York; and F. & M. Schaefer Brg. Co., New York, making up half the amount expended. Several of the other brewers to whom I wrote replied that their business in Connecticut is very small, and while they are willing to contribute, they do not think that they should be expected to do so on the same basis as the concerns above mentioned. If I am correctly informed, however, your interests in Connecticut are sufficiently important to put you in the class of the larger contributors.

The United States Brewers' Association has no official connection with this matter, and my position has been explained in my previous letter.

Very truly yours,

[Interstate Executives' Meeting. From U. S. B. A. files. Office copy. Please return this copy to the file. Andreae.]

(PROBABLY JAN. 1, 14.)

DEAR SIRS:—It is of paramount importance, in view of the efforts now being made by the Anti-Saloon League to procure prohibitory legislation nationally on the floor of Congress, that certain systematic work be undertaken by the Inter-State Executives' Committee through its members in each State, with the object of giving those in charge of our joint interests in Washington as full and complete a knowledge of the political complexion of each Congressional district in the United States, with special reference to the sentiment of the component Counties on the wet and dry question, as most of us possess with reference to the political complexion of the Counties and senatorial districts in relation to their representation in our own particular State.

To this end it becomes necessary that our Committee, which has already outlined this work, should be immediately placed in communication with those to whose charge you have entrusted your interests within your State, so that the details of the policy to be pursued may be made known to them, and their attendance at a future meeting of all the active workers in the industry, to be held within the next two months, may be secured.

We urge you to give this your immediate attention, and to see to it personally that your State is represented without fail at that meeting by the person who actively directs or has directed the Anti-Prohibition campaign in your State. The expense involved consists of no more than the traveling expense incurred in attending the meetings of the Inter-State Committee, and we need hardly point out that such expense to your organization is out of proportion small as compared with the importance of the ends that are to be achieved.

We hope, of course, wherever convenient, to see the executives of the various organizations affiliated with the Inter-State Executives Committee themselves attend that Committee's meetings. But our chief object is to have the actual workers in each State in closest touch with the committee, so that they may form a compact body within the Committee acting with one purpose and along uniform lines that will place our national representatives in the position of commanding at any moment the local knowledge and experience possessed by them and of utilising the concentrated influence which such a body, acting in unison, cannot fail to wield nationally from one end of the country to the other.

Awaiting your prompt action in this matter, I am,

Very truly yours,

[From U. S. B. A. files. Office copy. Please return this copy to the file. Govt. Ex. 39, 3/16/16. L. D. I. Political.]

Memorandum of conference at the office of Percy Andreae, Chicago, Ill., January 15th, 1914, called for the purpose of organizing the work in congressional districts:

There were present about thirty men, representing the states of California, Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Michigan, Nebraska, Wisconsin, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania.

Mr. Andreae opened the proceedings with a general statement of the work to be done in the various congressional districts. Mr. Gibson was introduced by Mr. Andreae as a man who had been engaged in the work at Washington, and had made a very careful analysis of the vote on the Webb-Kenyon Bill. Mr. Gibson then read the role of states represented, and took up in detail the names of the congressmen from the various States, the districts they represented, and their record on the Webb-Kenyon Bill, and other information he had showing their general attitude on the subject.

The representatives from the different States then gave their information verbally as to their opinion of the stand that the various congressmen could be expected to take on the Hobson and other resolutions now pending for national prohibition.

Other States were referred to and discussed which had no representatives present, for instance, Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Missouri and Rhode Island.

Most of the representatives from the different States were unprepared to state definitely the stand the congressmen would be apt to take on the proposed amendment. There were evidences of a lack of organized effort by the various States, consequently a lack of detailed information. In some States, however, the representatives had made a pole of their congressmen and had personal assurances from them, and told us the nature of the population of the various congressional districts and whether under local option laws the territory represented by them was wet or dry, and what the prevailing sentiment in the various congressional districts was.

Mr. Potts was the spokesman for the New Jersey delegation, and he made the statement that it was not necessary to call the role of the New Jersey congressmen or go into the details of the matter at all, as he could pledge the entire delegation from New Jersey to vote against the Hobson resolution.

During the discussion regarding Maine, Mr. Sunstein, (distillery representative) from Pennsylvania, stated that Secretary of State Davis, of Maine, is in charge of our interests there, and reports that enough men will be elected this fall to the legislature to resubmit the question of prohibition or not. The prohibition law in Maine is now being rigidly enforced, which has created a change of sentiment among the liquor dealers doing business in that State, and they are now in favor of the change.

Mr. Sunstein also called attention to the fact with respect to the general prohibition movement, that the leaders of the Democratic party were opposed to the Hobson resolution because they are afraid it will sweep the party out of power.

Mr. Leber (distillery representative) referring to the question of woman suffrage, pointed out the fact that the movement is gaining rapidly and that the liquor interests should not oppose it; that opposition would be futile, and that in his judgment the movement would succeed and that therefore it would be unwise for us to engage in a losing fight.

After the congre sional districts had been discussed and considered, Mr. Gibson read a list of those United States Senators whose term of office expires this year, and who will come up for election by the people under the new system of electing senators this year. There were quite a good many whose terms expire. Not a great deal of information was forthcoming from the delegates as to the attitude of their senators on this question.

Mr. Andreae read the form of petition which he advocates circulating for presentation to the congressmen and senators against the Hobson and other resolutions. Some objection was made by some of those present to the clause in the resolution stating that the passage of the resolution is a violation of the principle of States' rights. It is believed by the speakers opposed to it that a sectional feeling would be aroused, and that it would be unwise to say anything about States' rights.

Mr. Andreae explained that the form of resolution had been submitted to the trustee of the U. S. B. A., and that that particular clause had been inserted at the request of the trustees who considered it of the greatest importance.

Mr. Manchester, of Michigan, and Mr. Kaltenbach (representative of Fleischman's Distilling Co.) were very strenuous in their opposition to the words "States' rights."

Mr. Potts of New Jersey made a motion that it be the sense of the meeting that the resolution as drafted by Mr. Andreae be adopted and used in that form. That led to a long debate and a number of amendments to the motion, and a general parliamentary mixup. Someone, seeing that the undoubted sentiment of the meeting was against the motion as made and amended, moved to table the motion. Mr. Andreae, however, very cleverly restated the motion and read into it this added clause, that while the sense of the meeting was that the form of resolution was approved still the various States were to alter it to meet local conditions, if necessary. With the motion stated in that way it was carried but with one dissenting vote—that of Mr. Kaltenbach of New York.

Mr. Meyer of Nebraska stated that Nebraska brewers have always taken care of their State legislation, and successfully so, but had never done anything with their congressmen. He stated that the sentiment in Nebraska, in his opinion, would be against national prohibition if submitted to popular vote, but that he was afraid if the resolution passed Congress, that the legislature would adopt it.

Mr. Gibson spoke at some length on the importance of having the congressmen interviewed personally at once by representatives of each State, to get an expression of opinion from them as to their views on the Hobson and other resolutions. He therefore moved that a delegation of one or two from each State go to Washington for that purpose at the earliest possible date. That motion led to quite a discussion. It seemed to be the consensus of opinion that the pledge of a congressman was not worth very much. A great many cases were instanced where congressmen were absolutely pledged to vote against the Webb-Kenyon Bill, but when pressure was brought to bear from the other sid they disregarded their pledges entirely and voted for it. It was also pointed out that most of the congressmen would dodge the issue.

Mr. Howell, from Peoria, Ill., (distillery representative) suggested that if it was considered wise for the delegation to go to Washington for that purpose, that it wait until the petitions were in the hands of the congressmen.

Mr. Gibson still thought his proposition a good one, his point being that it was necessary to find out where our weak points were at once, especially so that we would be prepared at the fall elections to work against those who are opposed to us. The opinion was so strong against Mr. Gibson's motion that the matter was not pressed and the motion was not put.

Mr. Andreae made an address closing the conference, in which he outlined in a little more detail the work that he had in mind.

Referring to his alliance with the German American Alliance and the American Association of Foreign Newspapers, he explained the power of the latter organization, saying that there are thirty-two million foreign born in the United States, only eight million of whom are Germans; that these newspapers are printed in twenty-nine languages; that the organization is headed by a gentleman who stands so high in those circles that he is almost a demigod to them; that he rules the association absolutely, and their printing of Mr. Andreae's articles, and other articles for our side of the question, (all of which are first to be submitted to Mr. Andreae) will be of the greatest benefit.

Mr. Andreae has been invited to address the next banquet of this Association on "Personal Liberty" which invitation he has accepted.

If the representatives present were correct in their poll of how their representatives will vote, the Hobson Resolution will be defeated.

In those States represented at this conference there are more than a majority of Congress. While the poll was not tabulated, there was a decided minority of the representatives who were put in the doubtful or dry column.

FRED MILLER BREWING CO.,
Milwaukee, Wis.

GENTLEMEN: This is with reference to your query as to what is being done by our Association in regard to woman suffrage and the Spring elections in the State of Illinois.

As the Illinois Brewers have their own State Association, we feel that they are better able to look after such matters than anyone else. Their president, Mr. Fecker, is a member of our Board of Trustees, and of course, Mr. Andreae is now an active factor in Illinois, and I will refer your query to both of them.

In regard to the matter of woman suffrage, we are trying to keep from having any connection with it whatever. We are, however, in a position to establish channels of communication with the leaders of the Anti Suffrage Movement for our friends in any State where suffrage is an issue. I am under the impression that a new anti-suffrage association has been organized in Illinois, and IS A RETAIL LIQUOR DEALERS' AFFAIR. I consider it most dangerous to have the retailers identified or active in any way in this fight, as it will be used against us everywhere. The Illinois brewers had a meeting last week, and while I have no definite particulars, I understand that they have made plans for a very active campaign in connection with the Spring elections!

Yours very truly,

——— ———, Secretary.

MY DEAR MR. FOX: We have been directed by President Jacob Ruppert, Jr., of New York State Brewers' Association, to commence work on petitions to Congress in opposition to pending Resolutions providing for National Prohibition. This work is to be carried on through the agency of the State Association throughout the entire State, and therefore will require a large number of petition blanks. I have in hand a copy of the petition which I understand Mr. Andreae desires to have used in this work, and which has been furnished by him.

Will you kindly arrange to furnish our Association through its Secretary, Mr. Charles Warner, with 25,000 copies of such petition, and give us an early installment of 10,000?

To the Members of the United States Brewers' Association.

GENTLEMEN: This is to inform you that at a joint conference of the Officers of the United States Brewers' Association, and the Chairmen of our Standing Committees, and the representatives of our Allied Interests, it was decided that our members be requested to get as many signatures to the petitions against National Prohibition, as possible, and forward them to Washington without delay.

It is desirable that these petitions should be secured by Congressional Districts, and sent to the individual Congressman from the constituency he represents, and a copy sent to the United States Senator.

It is also important that a record be kept of the number of signers to each petition by Congressional Districts, so that we may know how many have gone forward; and also the total number of names that all of the petitions finally represent.

Following telegram signed by Directors of American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers has been sent to-day to every Senator and Congressman in Washington. Telegram begins—The American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers with circulation of over seven million and reaching twenty million citizens protests emphatically on behalf of overwhelming majority of those citizens against Hobson resolution providing National Prohibition. Our people consider same unwarranted interference with rights guaranteed them under Federal Constitution and will resent passage of resolution as designed to destroy their most cherished customs and deprive citizens generally of the individual liberty which is as dear to them as life itself. Almost entire Foreign Language Press has for past three months voiced this sentiment in strongest possible terms and with fullest concurrence of its millions of readers. Telegram ends.

[F. V. Kander, Attorney and Counselor at Law, 602–3–4–5 American Bank Bldg., Kansas City, Mo. Telephones 1466.]

KANSAS CITY, MO., May 9th, 1914.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
3357 South Michigan Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

DEAR SIR: I have been requested by our local brewery interests to write you in regard to a matter which we consider of vital importance.

There has been presented to us the proposition to aid in the election of Mr. J. B. Billard, formerly Mayor of Topeka, Kansas, and a man known throughout the state of Kansas as a gentleman of probity, sincerity and of exceptional high standing. Mr. Billard is the proprietor of the Central Mill and Elevator, a concern of financial standing in Topeka. Mr. Billard is an outspoken anti-prohibitionist, and an advocate of the resubmission of the prohibition amendment to the constitution of the state of Kansas, and as such was a candidate for the nomination for governor by the Democratic party two years ago.

We representing the brewery interests in Kansas City, Missouri, believe that we are acquainted with conditions in Kansas, and are of the opinion that by proper management and an intelligent, careful and aggressive campaign Mr. Billard could be elected Governor of the state. The impression seems to be abroad that the state of Kansas is irrevocably committed to prohibition. This is caused largely by the fact that the Prohibition element of that state is constantly and loudly proclaiming that thought. A careful canvass of the state leads us to believe that a very large proportion of the voters in Kansas would welcome the opportunity to express their views by ballot, and in opposition to prohibition.

It must be remembered that the prohibition amendment was voted on about thirty-three years ago, and the electorate of the state has entirely changed since then. There are large districts in the state thickly populated by foreigners, who have come into the state since that vote was taken, and there is a section of the state populated by large numbers of coal and lead miners, and other parts of the state where oil is being produced, have many foreigners. All of this class of people would be against prohibition.

The intention is that Mr. Billard would run as a non-partisan candidate, thus drawing from all political parties those voters who are in favor of resubmission.

The state of Kansas will use the Massachusetts ballot, thus doing away with the voting of straight party tickets. The names of the candidates being grouped under a heading for the office to which they aspire. Further, the element or influence of candidates for the United States Senate is removed by reason of the fact that the United States Senator is nominated by primary election. Besides all this, and what seems to us of paramount importance, is the fact that all of the political parties are so torn by dissension that this is the most opportune time in the history of the state to elect a man of Mr. Billard's stamp and kind. The Republican party will have as its candidate Mr. Capper, who will probably poll 115,000 votes. Mr. Allen will be the candidate of the Progressive party, and he will poll approximately 125,000 votes. Mr. Hodges, the present governor, and a Democrat, will poll approximately 100,000 votes. He has made himself exceedingly unpopular with his own party. The entire vote cast by the state is about 550,000. (This includes the women.) On the above estimate, it would leave 210,000 votes for Billard. In making the foregoing estimate, we have taken the full vote of the state, but it goes without argument that not over 80 per cent of the entire vote will be cast. But each candidate will lose in number, it is fair to say, an equal proportion by reason of this 20 per cent remaining away from the polls. Putting the proposition in another form, there will have to be three votes of the opposition cast to one for Billard in order to equalize the vote which Billard will get, and we are strongly of the opinion that this goes beyond the probable and reaches the impossible, in view of the fact that Mr. Billard has the support of a strong and active organization.

While we do not intend to be over-sanguine, or even optimistic, the conditions are of such hopeful character that we believe this is the opportune time to overcome the prohibition sentiment that is sweeping the country. The influence of the election of Mr. Billard on a pronounced and unequivocal anti-prohibition platform is inestimable, especially because of the fact that Mr. Billard's platform is non-political and has for its basis the single question of Anti-prohibition. With the canvass of the state for Mr. Billard, the selection of proper candidates for the state legislature will be coupled, and the same element of discord in the various political parties would obtain, and the probability of electing a legislature favorable to the policy of Mr. Billard would be reasonably good. About 45 per cent of the members of the legislature are elected in districts where the entire vote cast for all candidates will not exceed 350 votes. In these districts it would seem that we should have very little difficulty in electing men favorable to Billard, especially in view of the fact that the prohibition element would divide its vote among three candidates.

I might enlarge upon the conditions which I have tried to epitomize, but I am inclined to believe that I have stated the conditions fully enough to convey our reasons for asking your favorable consideration and I would suggest that some one in authority, come to Kansas City at once to take up this matter, at once, as active efforts must be commenced without delay.

The candidates must file with the Secretary of State on or before June 15th, so you see we have no time to lose.

MY DEAR MR. GARDINER: Enclosed letter from Mr. F. V. Kander, and my reply, will explain themselves.

I have written Mr. Conrad Mann that in view of certain resolutions passed by the board of Trustees it is impracticable for me to act on my own initiative in matters of the kind Mr. Kander refers to, and that I understand it to be the wish of the Board that the work involved in such matters be considered as belonging to your organization.

Mr. CONRAD MANN,
Kansas City Breweries Company, Kansas City, Mo.

MY DEAR MR. MANN: I have just received Mr. Kanders' letter of May 9, and am replying to same as per enclosed copy.

I would very much like to be of assistance in any move of the kind indicated in this letter, but matters between what is pleasantly referred to as the Andreae organization and the powers that be in the U. S. Brewers Association have resulted in resolutions being passed by the Board of Trustees the nature of which render it impracticable for me to act in affairs of this kind on my own initiative. As I understand it, Mr. Gardiner's organization is to deal exclusively with political work, and I am therefore, in order to lose no time, forwarding Mr. Kanders' letter to him with the request that he give it immediate attention. Needless to say that if I can in any way cooperate with Mr. Gardiner in Kansas, I shall do so. But the time is very short within which to accomplish anything there in my line of work.

Of course, all this, as you know, is utterly at variance with the understanding under which I gave up my position in the brewery business to undertake the work I am doing. But, all my insisting that the agreement with me is not being carried out is utterly without effect, and as I cannot force the issue without precipitating a struggle that would injure all interests concerned, I have no option but to let things take their course.

Are you never in Chicago? I would so much like to have a talk with you, and it is so utterly impossible, with the work I have on hand, and which I would welcome an opportunity to discuss with you, for me to come to Kansas City.

Yours very truly,

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
3357 So. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

DEAR MR. ANDREAE: On my return from a visit to Virginia I find your letter of the 11th inst. with enclosed letter of Mr. Kander appealing for assistance and support in a contemplated campaign in Kansas. I have no doubt an investigation would disclose the possibilities attending a campaign of the character indicated by Mr. Kander, but in view of the financial condition in which I am at present surrounded, it is impossible for me to take on any new assignments. I therefore return Mr. Kander's letter enclosed herein.

In relation to the Virginia campaign, I find that matters are progressing there rather slowly. There will be a public meeting held in Richmond to-night for the purpose of offsetting the influence of a smiliar meeting held by the opposition some few nights ago. At to-night's meeting there will be addresses made by prominent men from Virginia and also from other southern states and the call for the meeting has been signed by many of the most prominent business and professional men of the city who will likewise grace the occasion by their presence and also give it their patronage.

I saw Mr. Lesner and Mr. Holt, both of whom confirm the statement that while they were not progressing rapidly, still there was no need of speed and I am led to believe therefore, that our forces will become active in ample time to be efficient.

On my return, I stopped at Washington where I met Mr. Westheimer and Mr. Sunstein who were in attendance at the National Liquor Dealers' Convention. I went over the Virginia situation and in relation to the presence of the ten men whom you have in Virginia, I was told by Mr. Sunstein that he had no knowledge of their presence there but Mr. Westheimer told us that you had written him about sending the men there. Mr. Lesner did not know of the presence of the men in Virginia until I advised him of the fact.

With kind regards, I am

At the request of the Miller Brewing Co. of Milwaukee I have sent a man to Oklahoma to confer with a business men's organization that has been formed there for the purpose of campaigning for a local option amendment. I have intimated to Mr. Carl Miller that, in my opinion, the time is too short to attempt anything in the nature of an organization of the kind this business men's association is contemplating before the coming elections, and the purpose of the investigation is understood to be primarily to get in touch with these people and ascertain what this movement really amounts to, and in how far it may be made available at some future time.

I trust this work will disclose conditions that will be useful to them in their future campaigns.

I also note that the Miller Brewing Company, of Milwaukee, have requested that you send a man to Oklahoma to confer with the Business Men's Organization there, formed for the purpose of campaigning for a local option amendment. I, personally, (and I think this is seconded by many of the larger brewing firms of the West) have no sympathy for the citizenship of Oklahoma if they find their prohibitory laws irksome at this time. I deem it unwise for the Brewers to make any expenditures in that State, until the citizens themselves make an effort to improve local conditions.

"No law shall be passed or be in effect prohibiting the sale, furnishing or giving away of intoxicating liquors operative in a subdivision of the state upon the option of the electors thereof, or upon any other contingency, which has force within a territory larger than a municipal corporation or a township outside of municipal corporations therein. All laws in contravention of the foregoing are hereby repealed.

"Nor shall any law hereafter be passed prohibiting the sale, furnishing or giving away of intoxicating liquors throughout the state at large.

The joint interests in Ohio have seen fit to adopt the program as outlined and on next Thursday morning I shall, at the request of their interests, place into Ohio sufficient of my field forces to get the necessary signatures (something over 100,000) to have this amendment placed upon the ballot.

We are fully aware that this action may force the Anti-Saloon League to submit state-wide prohibition this year, side by side with our amendment. If it does this, I am satisfied what with public sentiment as it is to-day in Ohio on our question, it will arouse the liberals in the cities to such an extent as to make our success almost certain.

Very truly yours, ——— ———.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: Thanks very much for your full and prompt reply to my wire about the Clague Agency.

I am advised by Mr. Schmidt and Mr. Crain, that our interests in connection with the revenue tax, are in the strongest and friendliest hands that could possibly be imagined, and that the matter is being discussed with as much care and consideration as if the Committee was composed of brewers themselves! If the additional tax is absolutely necessary, which seems likely, it is probable that it will not be over fifty cents a barrel, and in the event that such an additional tax is imposed, it will be accompanied by additional taxes on spirits and tobacco, and probably by the re-imposition of the sugar duty, and of the check and document stamp tax. It seemed certain last week, that action would be taken in thirty days, but there is a disposition in some quarters now, to try to postpone action until after the elections. In view, however, of the above situation, we are advised that it would be most unwise for the brewing industry to put itself on record as being opposed to any increase in a tax that may be absolutely necessary. I am writing you after consultation with Mr. Schmidt, who expects to sail for Europe next week to bring his wife home. He has been trying for nearly two weeks to locate her.

Yours very truly,

H. F. Fox.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: I received a wire today, stating you would be at the Hotel Shelburne instead of the Marlborough-Blenheim, and I wired you that I had sent an important letter to you at the latter address.

I had a visit today from our friend, Dr. John Wesley Hill, who has been filling some Chautauqua dates in Ohio, and he asks me to say to you, for the benefit of our Ohio friends, that Mr. Warren G. Harding, who is running for the U. S. Senate, has become heartily convinced of the futility of county option, and is a strong license advocate, and will vote and work against national prohibition in case he is elected.

I don't know anything at all about the matter, and am merely passing this on to you for what it may be worth.

MY DEAR MR. FOX: Your favor of October 27 has remained unanswered until today owing to the fact that my whole time has been occupied with Ohio affairs during the last days of the campaign.

I have already been in communication with Mr. Landsberg, and shall take pleasure in meeting the gentlemen you name.

You will no doubt be interested to know that we have not only defeated prohibition in Ohio, but have carried our home rule amendment, which takes from the legislature the power to enact prohibition by statute, and prevents local option from being operative in a unit larger than a township or municipality. This repeals county option, which is henceforth only possible by constitutional amendment.

MY DEAR MR. GARDINER: Is there any likelihood of your being sufficiently near Chicago during the next two or three weeks to make it convenient for you to spend a few hours with me here? I would like an opportunity of seeing you alone and discussing the entire situation with you. The reason I prefer Chicago as the place of meeting is that I have all my records here and would like to have them at hand when we talk.

I am not suggesting that you and I meet alone because I have any reluctance to meet others but because, owing to the peculiar nature of your work and associations and my own, I believe that a quicker understanding of the circumstances surrounding us can be reached between you and me than would be possible under other conditions, and the need of such understanding, prior to the next meeting of the Board of Trustees, is in my opinion essential to the interest we both have at heart.

Excepting the 16th, 17th and 18th of December I can make any date sent me for an appointment after the end of this week.

I received your wire in answer to mine regarding the sending of Charles Wirmel to Tampa, and I have instructed Wirmel to go there and work shoulder to shoulder with Thompson.

DEAR MR. ANDREAE: I do not know if your attention has been drawn to and your services asked in the case of the State of Utah. If not, I should like to refer to it by saying that the legislature is in session now and is dry in quality. It is rather expected to pass statutory prohibition or a joint resolution submitting the question to vote. The Governor is not a dry man but he says he will have to sign any bill of the kind unless the business men of the State by an organized and expressed opposition to the measure shall formulate a basis upon which to build a veto.

This is about the situation as given to me and I would like, if you think well of it, to have you send a man to investigate the situation and to advise what had best be done. 2100 Washington Ave., Philadelphia, Pa.

MY DEAR MR. GARDINER: I received some weeks ago indirectly a request from Mr. Lippmann of the Salt Lake City Brewing Company for an expression of opinion on the Utah situation. I replied that without detailed knowledge of that situation, which I did not possess, I could offer no opinion, but that I would gladly co-operate in investigating the situation, if required to do so and if the necessary means were at my command.

Mr. Lippmann replied stating, briefly, that a bill providing for state-wide prohibition, effective in June, 1916, had been introduced in the senate, that no provision was made for any election or referendum, and that if the bill should pass there would be no occasion for the services or anyone.

If you think I can help, I will gladly do so. The greater part of my staff are now in Maine, and I have just arranged to send Wirmel into Michigan at the request of Mr. Fox, while my German-American Alliance workers are operating in Illinois, so that I am rather short-handed. But I will arrange to have Mr. John Lloyd call on Mr. Becker next week, leaving Maine on Monday, and get at the exact situation and its possibilities. I will then take it up with you again.

MR. E. A. SCHMIDT,
Pres., United Brewers' Association,
50 Union Square, New York City.

DEAR MR. SCHMIDT: The enclosed will show you that the press in Maine has obtained knowledge of the investigation now proceeding in that State. The chief reason why I always kept the knowledge of our men being in a state confined to the fewest people possible was because of the danger of such publicity as this. Fortunately, our men have nearly completed their work, but they have had to go back into the State under another guise.

I do not know where the press got its information from, but there are reasons for concluding that a discharged employee gave the facts to the papers.

May I suggest that it would be well not to have this incident discussed by others. We shall be doing work in other states, and the more people know of the existence of our staff the greater difficulty of obtaining the valuable information we gather, for, at the slightest hint of the real purpose of our investigation we find that both wets and drys immediately become unapproachable.

MR. PERCY ANDREAE,
3357 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

DEAR SIR: The Virginia State Senate passed the "enabling act" with several amendments added to the original House Bill, this afternoon by a vote of 29 to 11. I am enclosing herewith Newspaper clipping, which will, in a measure, give you the details. The Act now goes to the House of Delegates for concurrence, in the Amendments. If the House fails to concur, the next step.

of course, will be the appointment of a Conference Committee. What the outcome of the proposition will be, is problematical. If the Bill as it now stands is concurred in by the House, we shall have a Statewide election by the people in September of this year, and providing the popular vote decides in favor of Prohibition, the State will become Dry effective May 1st, 1917.

The Senate has inserted in the Bill an amendment allowing Cider to be manufactured and Sold in and out of the State that Grapes and Fruit and their by-products in the way of Wines, Etc., can be manufactured in the State, to be delivered to a Common Carrier to be shipped outside of the State, and still another amendment allowing Beer, containing 3½% Alcohol, the same privilege as Wines—to be manufactured in the State, but not sold other than outside of the State.

This is the position today.

THE MINUTES OF THE HARMONY COMMITTEE OF FIFTEEN.

WASHINGTON, D. C.,
April 10, 1914.

A meeting of representatives of the various branches of the liquor trade was held in the Gridiron Club Room at the New Willard Hotel, Washington, D. C. The meeting was called to order by Mr. M. F. Farley, President of the National Retail Liquor Dealers Association at 10:30 A. M.

The following gentlemen were present:

Representing the United States Brewing Association: Peter Doelger, jr., New York; James R. Nicholson, Boston, Mass.; Hugh A. Koehler, St. Louis, Mo.; John A. Cervenka, Chicago, Ill.

Representing the National Retail Liquor Dealers Association: Frank Quinn, New Haven, Conn.; M. F. Farley, New York, N. Y.; Neil Bonner, Philadelphia, Penn.; Hugh F. Harvey, Washington, D. C.; Ernest Kunde, Chicago, Ill.

Representing the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers Association: William Culman, New York, N. Y.; Sol. Freiberg, Cincinnati, Ohio; Emil Nathan, St. Louis, Mo.; John Sinnott, Philadelphia, Penn.; Henry F. Westheimer, Baltimore, Md.

Mr. M. F. Farley of New York addressed the Committee as follows:

To the "Harmony Committee of Fifteen."

Gentlemen: Many years ago, at one of our great National political Conventions, the late lamented Barney Flanagan, from the Lone Star State, made himself famous by demanding in true Celtic language: "What are we here for?"

As the National Retail Liquor Dealers' Association of America, of which I have the honor of being the head, undertook at its last Conference, to bring about the formation of the committees here today, I trust that it will not be out of place, in calling this meeting to order, for me to briefly explain to you the Retailers answer to the question: "What are we here for"?

Away back in 1893, when our National Association was formed, our venerable Secretary, in his address, after outlining the plans of the new National Association of Retailers, said: "In many cases we would not be alone; we would undoubtedly have the assistance of the two great branches of the Liquor Trade, the United States' Brewers Association and the National Distillers and Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association. While the Brewers and Wholesalers require their National bodies to govern their own trade, yet in many cases, their interests are identical with ours and provisions should be made whereby we may co-operate as one great army in the fight."

So you see that this "Get Together" movement is as old as our organization and all through the twenty years of our existence, we have steadily maintained that for the general good there should be the utmost unity among all branches of the trade for "a house divided against itself must surely fall."

In 1896, we were invited by the Wholesale Liquor Dealers Association to co-operate with that organization in the passage of the Bromwell Bill, and we believe that we aided, in our humble way, in the passage of that most desirable measure.

It was during that time we were more than convinced that it was absolutely necessary for all branches of the trade to work together, when we discovered that the Kentucky Distillers' Association were busy at work preparing bills, similar ones of which had been introduced in Congress several weeks before by the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association.—But all this is Ancient History.

It has now come to pass that the Ice has been broken between the various Associations by my being invited to appear before your National Conventions and express the sentiment of the Retailers. Those visits have been returned and the result of these fraternal greetings is your presence here today, representing the three great interests of the Liquor Trade and composing a Harmony Committee of Fifteen—and, as such I bid you welcome and hope and trust that our deliberations will be of lasting benefit to the trade at large.

But again the question: "What are we here for"? The United States Brewers' Association was organized in 1862,—fifty two years ago and, during all those years, has kept the watchmen on the outer walls—ready at all times to protect the interests of the trade. We all realize how well and faithfully that work has been done—and yet, after all these years and the great work achieved—it is to be regretted that not one-half of the Brewers of the country are members of their own organization. As regards to the barrelage of the industry, a very large percentage contribute but the great army of the small brewers are still willing to accept all the benefits of the past and present work of the United States Brewers' Association without giving one cent towards it's support—or aiding in any way, in it's defense.

The same may be said of the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers Association, for, after twenty years existence, not one-fifth belong or contribute towards the support of that organization and its most efficient work.

Be it said, to the shame of the Retailers of this country, we also find ourselves, after twenty years of organization work, that our outposts are so weak that when a concerted attack, on the part of our enemy, is made—as in Illinois this week, that we find our friends retreating in utter defeat—losing their homes and business and the work of a life time completely wiped out.

To remedy this evil is one of the answers to the question: "What are we here for"?

The time has arrived when it is absolutely necessary that we must stand together and buckle on the armor and to be effective, we must "GET TOGETHER".

In the first place,—all animosity must be buried. We have heard in the past, of the strife between the Brewer and the Retailer. The Brewer has had his faults but the Retailer has been by no means, blameless. The e are simply trade questions that can and ought to be settled among the dealers in the locality in which they arise and settled quickly, before some "charlatan" comes along to fan the embers which ultimately bring about a conflagration—which has proven so detrimental to all concerned—in the past.

What we are here for is to allay all such disastrous disturbances within our ranks, which only breed distrust among ourselves and leave us "naked to the enemy."

We must go out into the highways and by-ways and enlist every one in the various branches of the trade, for no one, no matter how poor he may be, is without his weight and influence. It has been wisely said that the little saloonkeeper in the outskirts of the town, that plays pinnocle with his customers at night, has more political influence than the Brewer, in his handsome residence on the hill.

In this cause of enlistment—we must adopt the old Huguenot war cry "All For One"—"One For All". The Brewers and the Wholesalers can assist in the building up of the retailers and the larger the Retailers' organization becomes, the better they can reciprocate in assisting in the building up of both the Brewers and Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Associations.

Within the last few months—a system of this character has been established in Pennsylvania where it is working splendidly. In Illinois, all branches of the trade have, for some time, been united for political work, under the Chairmanship of the President of the Retailers' Association, Mr. Kunde, and I believe that a system is being launched by which material additions will be made to the membership of the State Associations of the Brewers, Wholesalers and Retailers Associations, and quite recently the trade in the Empire State is working in perfect harmony and the Brewers are circularizing the retail trade, urging them to join their respective Associations.

All of this is as it should be. The "drone" who is too indolent or selfish to refuse to contribute to or aid in the defense of the business, should be drummed out of it.

But in this great plan of organization, which should extend all over the country, there are still imperfections that can easily be remedied.

The Retail Organization is a most compact one and it commences from the bottom up. The Individual member must belong to his Local Organization and there he pays his dues of whatsoever kind and nature. The Local pays the members proportionate dues to the State Organization and, in turn, the State Association pays the pro rata dues to the National Association. In this we carry out the idea "One For All." No man can belong to the Retailers Organization unless he is a member of the Local, State and National and he holds his certificate of membership, issued by the National; there is no shirking of financial duties; all must contribute.

It is to be regretted that this is not the case in either the Brewers or Wholesalers Associations. It is a defect that can be easily remedied now. A Brewer can belong to his National Association and shirk his responsibility to his State Association. In the Wholesalers' Association, a man may be mean enough to shirk his responsibility to his State Association, shirk his responsibility to his Protective Bureau and still be a member in good standng in his National Association.

It is therefore difficult for the average Retailer to know who are the men who honestly assist in the protection of his business and who do not. It was only recently that a certain Brewer was asked why he failed to contribute to the State Association. He at once produced his receipt from the National Brewers' Association and many similar instances have arisen with the Wholesalers.

The Retailers are willing to patronize only those who help protect the business, but, under these conditions, how is he to know? "Iron out" this little defect in your respective organizations and the plan of "you help us and we will help you" will be a substantial fact within a very short time.

Our Secretary has received many letters from the leading dealers in many of the States, revealing the condition that exists within their own borders and all breathe the same spirit that we must get together for "united we stand" "divided we fall" as Ben Franklin said when he signed the famous Declaration of Independence: "We must hang together or assuredly we shall all hang separately."

It will also be for you to decide whether the work of this Committee will be of such a nature as to warrant us in recommending to our respective National bodies that it be made a permanent affair. My own opinion is that it should be and that a stated yearly meeting should be held, either a short time before or after Congress meets, in order to have some definite understanding as to the line of action to be taken in regards to pending or prospective Legislation.

These are only a few answers to the question "What are we here for?" As we progress with our deliberations—others may arise and doubtless each one of you have ideas of your own, which will be revealed later.

Now Gentlemen, let us get down to business and the first thing to be done is to complete our organization by the selection of a Chairman and a Secretary.

I am now prepared to receive nominations for Chairman of this Joint Committee.

At the close of Mr. Farley's address nomination of Chairman of the Joint Committee being in order on motion of Mr. Hugh F. Harvey of Washington D. C., Mr. Peter Doelger, Jr., of New York was nominated as Chairman of the Joint Committee and there being no other nominations Mr. Doelger was elected and immediately assumed the duties of his office.

On motion of Mr. Nathan, Mr. Westheimer of Baltimore was elected Secretary and there being no other nomination Mr. Westheimer was elected with Mr. Hugh F. Fox and Wm. R. Halle as assistant Secretaries, on motion of Mr. Westheimer. Mr. M. F. Farley of New York was elected Vice Chairman.

A number of communications were read by the Secretary addressed to the National Retail Liquor Dealers Association of America, relative to the condition of the trade in the several states and the actions of the several branches of the trade as regards to working in harmony with each other in legislative matters. The States of Ohio, Massachusetts, Iowa, Arkansas, New Jersey, Michigan, Colorado, Nebraska, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Idaho, New York and District of Columbia all recommending in the highest sense the "Get together" movement on the part of the different branches of the trade and the beneficial effect that it would have on threatened legislation. Letters from Missouri and Wisconsin were not so satisfactory owing to local conditions which were fully explained by Mr. Nathan and Mr. Hugo A. Koehler of St. Louis and it was suggested that the matter be left in the hands of the officers of the National Retail Liquor Dealers Association to straighten out existing contentions.

Mr. Bonner of Philadelphia explained the effect of co-operation on the part of the Brewers, Wholesalers with the Retailers in building up the organization in Pennsylvania and what was a chaos sometime back was now peace and harmony.

Mr. Quinn of Connecticut presented the following resolutions for consideration:

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas it appears for the best interests of those engaged in the legitimate business of buying and selling liquors, beers ales, etc., that the men engaged in such business should for their own interests associate together to learn about a legitimate consideration of said business, and

Whereas the persons engaged in such business should in every way protect themselves by lawful asssociation and organization, and

Whereas it appears the National Brewers and Wholesale Liquor Dealers are interested in various cities and towns in their state, it is for the best interest of those so engaged in said business to have in each and every State in the Union an organization composed of men who by reason of their standing and business ability in their community be members of their Locals and State organizations. Therefore, be it

Resolved, that we, a committee on conference, from the National Brewers and the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers Association and the Retail Wine, Liquor and Beer Dealers Association of America, do hereby recommend to our respective Associations, that they devise ways and means whereby the Retail Wine, Liquor and Beer Dealers Association in each and every State in the Union, where an organization exists, do their utmost to get within the ranks of said organization each and every dealer, who by reason of his standing in his community, shall be considered a proper and suitable person to join and become a member of said organization, and further be it

Resolved, for the purpose of carrying out this recommendation, that the Secretary of the National Brewers and the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers Association communicate with the State Secretary of the National Brewers and the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers Association in each and every State in the Union and forward to said State Secretary a copy of these resolutions.

Respectfully submitted.

PRESIDENT CONNECTICUT WINE, LIQUOR & BEER DEALERS ASSOCIATION.

Mr. John A. Cervenka of Chicago explained the plan that was being adopted by the Brewers of Illinois by which each member of the Brewers Association were to be furnished with a label or sign designating that he was a contributing member of that organization. The plan was favorably discussed.

Mr. Nathan of St. Louis explained the stamp plan of the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers Association which was having a most beneficial effect in building up their organization.

It was decided that the meeting adjourn until 3 P. M. to give the several delegations an opportunity to confer:—

At three o'clock the Committee again met and the following telegram was read:

[Telegram.]

MILWAUKEE, WIS., April 7th, 1914.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX,
New Willard, Washington, D. C.

Complications in the local situation makes it impossible for me to leave to attend this committee meeting as I had planned.

I trust and hope the meeting will be of great importance to our cause.

(Signed) AUG. LINDEMANN.

On behalf of the National Retail Liquor Dealers Association Committee Mr. Bonner of Philadelphia submitted the following resolution:

RESOLVED.

We recommend the present "Harmony Committee" of Five (5) members from each branch of the trade to wit: Brewers, wholesalers and retailers be continued in force until the annual convention of each branch and thereafter subject to the agreement of each branch to participate and select delegates to the number as at present constituted.

A meeting of the said Harmony Committee shall be held at least once every three (3) months and at other times as necessity demands. One of the aforementioned meetings to be held prior to the convening of the United States Congress at Washington, D. C.

On behalf of the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers Association of America, Mr. Nathan of St. Louis submitted the following resolution:

RESOLVED.

Whereas at a meeting of representatives of the United States Brewers, National Wholesale Liquor Dealers Association and the National Retail Liquor Dealers Association at Washington, D. C., April 10th, 1914; plans for co-operation between the three bodies were considered. It was resolved that the representatives present should report back to their respective organizations the desirability of the formation of a permanent joint committee on co-operation to consider matters relative to the sould licensing, regulation and control of the liquor traffic.

On behalf of the Brewers Association, Mr. Nicholson of Boston submitted the following resolution:

Resolved, It is the sense of this body that the President of each National Association appoint one (1) member of a joint Executive Committee of three (3) on organization, co-operation and standardization, of the liquor business, with power to act until the Committee of fifteen (15) is permanently organized.

After a general discussion of the several resolutions submitted they were withdrawn with the exception of the one submitted by Mr. Nicholson of Boston which was finally adopted and the President of each organization requested to select one member from their respective organizations in order to complete the organization of an harmony committee to report to a future meeting of this joint harmony committee of fifteen to be called at the discretion of the Chairman and that the present officers be requested to retain their respective offices until the completion of a permanent organization.

It was decided that any publicity given to this meeting would be left in the hands of Mr. Hugh F. Fox but the consensus of opinion was that it would not be advisable to give out any statement to the press.

JUNE 30TH, 1908.

Mr. JULIUS LIEBMAN, Pres., U. S. Brewers Assn.

MY DEAR MR. LIEBMAN: Enclosed find report on the Florida situation from Senator Buckman, who wanted me to meet him at Niagara Falls last week or New York this week. As I had the Tennessee situation on hand, I could not do so and this week is out of the question, on account of work here, preparatory to my going to Denver.

Senator Buckman is going to be in New York and I wired him to call on you. I fell satisfied that the acquaintance would be of mutual benefit, as the way the Senator handled things in Florida, shows him to be a man of executive ability and a reliable friend of ours. I merely wanted him to lay matters before you, and, in the mean time, I am going to write to Mr. Simms and Mr. Muller, of Jacksonville; in regard to whose business it is to make up this balance.

In regard to the Tennessee situation, I wish to report fully as follows: I have had several reports from there, and while they were not encouraging, Colonel Pabst and others interested thought I should go down and stay on the ground until after election. Mr. Thompson has been there for two weeks and the Union Labor vote was lined up solidly in the large cities, which is the only place they have any strength.

When I arrived at Memphis, I went over the situation with Mr. Schorr of Tennessee Brewing Co., and Mr. Resher, the Schlitz representative. I then went to Chattanooga between trains, and then to Nashville, where I met Mr. C. M. Lewis, who represents the Distillers Protective Assn., and who has done very excellent work in the campaign in Tennessee. I then called o Mr. Gerst and went over the situation with him. Afterwards, a meeting was arranged between the Chairman of the Patterson Campaign, Senator Austin Peay and Mr. Lewis, Mr. Gerst and myself, and we canvassed the situation thoroughly. From reports received throughout the state, we found twenty five doubtful counties containing 200 delegates, where it was absolutely necessary that something be done at once toward getting the vote our way. The Patterson committee did not have enough money to buy a postage stamp, and were in debt. Our people had contributed all and more than they had agreed to and Mr. Gerst, after consultation with Chattanooga, agreed to pay ⅓ of the amount we were to contribute in the fight against prohibition in Tennessee. We saw that this went to the counties where it was absolutely necessary and I stayed there until 10 O'Clock the evening of election.

The result was that Patterson was victorious by 10,000 popular vote and 150 delegates.

In the state convention which will be held July 7th, this kills prohibition, as far as the Democratic party is concerned for the declaration in their platform, and is going to make it easier for our people to elect a liberal senate.

I had the pleasure of having an hour and a half conference personally with Governor Patterson Saturday afternoon and went over the situation with him. He is opposed to prohibition and is our friend. I will tell you more of our conference when I see you. This check should immediately be sent, if possible to Mr. Wm. Gerst, Nashville, Tenn. I am writing Mr. Schorr to-day so that he will understand.

I wish to say that the Distillers Assn, are going to make a large contribution for the legislature. I also met a representative of the American Tobacco Co., who are also going to make a large contribution. You can see where it was necessary for me to call and have conferences with the principal parties. I am satisfied that our act was a good one and that it saved the state.

With kind regards, I remain,

Yours very truly,

JOHN A. McDERMOTT,
Mgr. Organization Bureau.

(J. L. P.)

P. S. In other words of the 15M set aside by our Assc in Tennessee fight 5M should be sent at once to Mr. Gerst as it was advanced by him and used by the Patterson people as I explained and it will be satisfactory to Schorr & Reib, so please send it soon as possible. I regard Patterson's victory as most important and ½ the battle.

McD.

JULY 17, 1908.

Mr. J. A. McDERMOTT,
709 Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill.

MY DEAR MR. McDERMOTT: Your telegram of yesterday afternoon received saying that the matter had been arranged and that checks to the amount of $6,000.00 would be mailed, and I expect the arrival of the checks to-morrow or the next day. I assure you I appreciate your prompt action in the matter, which relieves the situation immensely and relieves me of a personal strain, aside from the enormous annoyance of getting letters from all over the State intimating that there is no reason for not having the funds on hand to pay these obligations, and this was getting a little galling. While I might have been able to stand that personally, you can realize it was breeding discontent in quarters where we could not afford it. Had I made these obligations directly myself, it might have changed the situation somewhat, but a great deal of the conducting of such matters at the last moment has to be left to the agents you have selected in the different counties, and while they exceeded their authority in creating obligations without my direct authority for it, as these obligations were made to others, there was nothing to do but settle them. It is a chain in which there are many links, and one broken effects all the others both ways in a more or less degree. Until these obligations were paid, I was hampered in my further work. Pardon, therefore, if I have seemed persistent.

I know you appreciate the situation, otherwise I should not have had your prompt acquiescence and help. I do feel that these people should have readily seen that the work accomplished was worth so much to them, that they should not have hesitated a moment, or that I should have been embarrassed at all in relation to funds.

I want to say to you personally that but for your ready grasp of the situation in the beginning, your confidence in me and the influence that you brought to bear upon Mr. Pabst and a few others, who were intelligent enough to take a proper view of the situation, and the further fact that I happened to be in such a position with the business people here as to have their confidence, that the result could not have been accomplished. To you, therefore, must be due and should be given the credit of making this result possible.

This business is a perpetual warfare. You have to climb the ladder one round at a time. You can only build a building by one stone or brick at a time. Therefore, while we have won this fight, it is simply one round of the ladder, one brick or one stone in the wall, and we have to proceed to climb another round or lay another stone. That means the organization of the House and Senate. When you really come to look at the situation, it is astonishing how many men there are that will follow if somebody will lead, but that somebody must have their confidence and must now and then produce some measure of success. On the other hand, the leader cannot always work for glory, and the rank and file too often fail to appreciate the work and strain and the fact that it requires oil to keep the machinery in motion, namely, funds to keep things working.

I have about decided on a president for the Senate, and have written to-day to have him come and see me to see how he lines up. These things have all got to be determined beforehand. While the Speaker of the House is not so essential and may be difficult, that also must be attended to. In addition to that I have organized each county or am doing so as fast as I can. Everybody seems to look to me to do this, when personally I would prefer to step down and out.

For the past year, namely, since the fight commenced in this County last June a year ago, I have given up my time to the matter, and practically I cannot afford it. However, I realize that I am into it. I have some pride in the matter and I am going to do the best I can with the situation, but of course there must be a limit to which I can go. I am writing you thus frankly and freely because you appreciate what all this means. I also appreciate this that at the present time that if I do not keep my personal fingers on the strings (do not construe this as any egotism on my part. Anybody else in my place could do the same. I simply happen to be the instrument at this time) that things would go to pieces for want of a head. It is I, personally, at present that people have confidence in. It is to me that they look to; it is I from whom only they want suggestions and under whom they will act quickly, if at all. It is the situation at present that I represent which can hold things together, at least for the present. I am gratified however, with the appreciation that the business people of the State have shown for what has been accomplished, even though it has been made apparent in no other way than in words of commendation.

The liquor people as a class here seem to think, as they usually do elsewhere (there are some few exceptions) that somebody is always ready to be found to fight their battles, and have taken it for granted. Personally, I want to thank you above all and the people I met with you, who placed their confidence in me, feeling that they at least, since we have been able to make our judgment good, have not been disappointed. Let me assure you that in any way I can serve you, you can always command me.

Trusting to hear from you now and then, and hoping to see you personally before a great while, I beg to remain with regards,

Sincerely yours,

H. H. BUCKMANN.

THE TREND IN THE UNITED STATES.

[From U. S. B. A. files. Digest for distillers' meeting, Dec. 29/14.]

The trend of sentiment in the independent American Journals is against whiskey, and either frankly in favor of beer and other light beverages, or their attitude is one of tolerance towards them. Witness the Hearst papers, and recent editorials in Harpers' Weekly, Collier's, and Detroit Journal, and many other publications.

It is the concensus of opinion that the recent defeats in West Virginia, Virginia, and also in Colorado, Arizona, Washington and Oregon are due to the overwhelming sentiment in the rural districts against whiskey, and against the saloon where whiskey is sold. In Ohio and in California the same adverse sentiment was recorded in the rural districts, and we were only able to win because of the vote polled in our favor in the large cities. It is said to be a fact that we should have lost California if it had been a straight-out vote on the saloons, and the California wine interests appear to be convinced that whiskey and the saloon must be divorced if the present advantage is to be maintained.

The industrial efficiency and safety first movements are likely, during the next five years, to be more far-reaching than the whole prohibition crusade, for the reason that they have back of them the enlightened self-interest of the large employers of labor, in every field of commercial activity. From their standpoint the whiskey-saloon is under the ban, but it is known that some of the largest employing corporations are willing to let their men drink beer in moderation. This means that the whiskey-saloon which adjoins the factory must go. The saloon which caters to the factory hands must be a beer-saloon only.

The attitude of the business world reflects the sentiment of the leading medical writers, and of the men who train college crews, baseball clubs and athletes generally. Whiskey is only allowed medicinally, but beer is recognized as a useful article of diet.

THE EUROPEAN TREND.

The whole trend of the same temperance movement, and of legislative action in European countries is towards a discrimination between spirits and the mild alcoholic beverages. Witness the progressive class system of alcohol taxation in Norway, which, by a slow process moves the consumption from the strongest to the lightest drinks. The lightest beverages are put in a privileged class, not only from the standpoint of taxation, but in the matter of their sale at retail. Sweden and Denmark follow somewhat the same principle, while Belgium also discriminates in favor of beer, wine and cider in its system of municipal taxation.

At the International Congress Against Alcohol, which was held in Italy in 1913, Dr. L. Barette, a celebrated Italian physician advocated an alcohol monopoly so far as distilled spirits are concerned. Her views were not well received by the prohibitionists, but she was overwhelmed with letters of commendation from the foremost men of science, and was promptly invited to present the matter to the Medical Congress which was held the next week at Milan. At the opening of the International Congress against Alcohol, the Assistant Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Falcinni, speaking for the Italian Government, declared that heretofore the anti-alcohol movement had been distrusted in Italy because it was believed to be directed not only against the abuse of alcohol, but also against its proper use. He said that next to France Italy is the largest wine-producing and wine-consuming country and that the Italians have become noted for their sobriety, but that the Italian Government was greatly concerned because of the recent increase in the production and consumption of distilled spirits.

The recent prohibition of Vodka in Russia needs no comment. The Russian Government is not opposed to the sale of beer and light wines, if their sale can be so regulated as to shut out vodka completely.

The International Committee for the Study of Alcohol which is made up of various national groups comprising the pick of the statesmen and publicists of the respective countries, is entirely distinct from the International Congress against Alcoholism, which is made up mainly of fanatics. The sentiment of the International Committee is believed to be in favor of the milder beverages, and the rigid restriction or control, or possibly even prohibition, of all ardent spirits.

WHAT SHALL WE DO ABOUT IT?

There is reason to believe that Georgia and Tennessee would be willing to give legislative sanction to the sale of beer in beer-saloons in the cities. There is a fair possibility that North Carolina would follow suit. West Virginia and Virginia are not believed to be ready for any new legislation at this time, but if they are to be brought back at all, it can only be along this line. In Colorado, Washington and Oregon, such legislation can be initiated by the people, and there is a strong sentiment for it in the cities.

On the other hand, we must expect to lose a number of other States within the next two years if we are to make a defensive fight for the maintenance of the whiskey saloon, though they might, and probably can, be saved so far as the cities are concerned, with a constructive program for beer-saloons. Among these States are: Maryland, possibly Delaware, Nevada, Idaho, and possibly Utah and Montana. It is believed that Kentucky would go dry if the people of the State voted upon it directly.

On the other hand, it may be conceded that in nearly all cities of the first and second class, the sentiment against whiskey over the bar is not yet strong enough to warrant the separation of spirits from beer, and the demand for spirits is so great that it is doubtful whether a saloonkeeper who took out a license for the sale of beer only, could succeed: Certainly he could not afford to pay the present high license fees.

It is evident that the attempt to prohibit the sale of whiskey entirely would break down, as it has in all places where it has been tried without qualification. So long as the distiller can continue to sell to the individual, whether in prohibition territory or in places where the beer-saloon only obtains, his business can and will continue. Of course, methods of distribution, and the character of the business may undergo great changes, and in the process of readjustment serious losses may be faced. The brewer, however, will have to make even greater sacrifices in this transition period, but the distiller cannot fight successfully to maintain the right of selling whiskey over the bar except, possibly, in the thickly populated States and cities.

The brewing interests must be allowed to promote legislation for the beer-saloon as a matter of salvage and reclamation in prohibition territory, without opposition from the distillers. They must be allowed to advocate such action in prohibition campaigns in all doubtful States, without arousing the antagonism of the distilling interests. They must also utilize all the literary material that is helpful to them in the promotion of their interests. To this extent they can and must play their own hand without let or hindrance.

REPORT OF CONFERENCE BETWEEN BREWERS AND DISTILLERS HELD AT 50 UNION SQUARE, NEW YORK CITY, DECEMBER 29, 1914.

The following were present on behalf of the brewers: Louis B. Schram, Brooklyn; August A. Busch, St. Louis; Jacob Ruppert, Jr., New York; C. W. Feigenspan, Newark; Julius Liebmann, Brooklyn; Percy Andreae, Chicago; John Gardiner, Philadelphia; Edward Landsberg, Chicago; Edward A. Schmidt, Philadelphia; S. F. Fleming, Fort Wayne; Eberhard Anheuser, St. Louis;

Robert Crain, Baltimore; Hugh F. Fox, New York; John A. McDermott, New York.

The following were present on behalf of the distillers: A. J. Sunstein, Pittsburgh; Geo. C. Dempsey, Boston; C. H. Hermann, Chicago; Thomas C. Dunehy, Chicago; E. M. Babbitt, Louisville; J. Walter Freiberg, Cincinnati; Geo. F. Dieterle, Cincinnati; Morris F. Westheimer, Cincinnati; H. F. Cellarins, Cincinnati; Joseph Debar, Cincinnati; A. J. Strasser, New York; H. J. Kaltenbach, New York; C. M. Lewis, Levi Cooke.

Meeting was called to order at 11 A. M., Mr. Edward A. Schmidt acting as Chairman, and Mr. Hugh F. Fox as Secretary.

Mr. Schmidt stated that this was a mutual conference to consider conditions, and to discuss the question of whether the relation between the respective interests should be continued along the same lines as before.

Mr. FREIBERG. We want to continue to co-operate with the United States Brewers' Association very much as before. We have found faults in our own organizations that need correction. We believe that we have spread ourselves out too thin, and that we have too many branches which waste money and energy. We believe that our organization should be made more compact, and that we need state organizations of a permanent nature, instead of getting men for local campaigns and letting them go when the campaigns are over.

Mr. GARDINER. The distillers want to know if the rumor is true that the brewers desire to separate from the distillers, and to run their state and other contests alone? I have held that this was not our desire, and that a separation would be fatal. I am personally opposed to any separation of the two interests. (In answer to a question by Mr. Babbitt, Mr. Gardiner declared that he has never personally met any brewer who desired to separate.

Mr. SCHRAM. This conference is held at the request of the distillers, who have met and agreed upon a program. It is up to them to tell us what they want.

Mr. WESTHEIMER. While we expressed a desire for this meeting, it was just as much desired by the brewers. We must learn from the mistakes of the past; our failures this Fall may have been inevitable, or they may have been due to the faults of method. During the recent New Orleans Convention of the brewer, an interview with Mr. Oscar Schmidt of Milwaukee was printed, which stated frankly that whiskey was responsible for the laws of the Western States. The rumor to which Mr. Gardiner alluded was confirmed to some extent by the Report of the Board of Trustees of the U. S. B. A. For example, in the comments on the European trend of the anti-alcohol movement, the inference is drawn that the brewers welcome such a trend. Editorials along this line are, we believe, inspired by brewers, and the advertisements of many brewers, referring to beer as a temperance drink, etc., are not only untrue, but are putting the whiskey men constantly on the defensive. The alcoholic content of the average drink of whiskey is no greater than the average drink of wine or beer. A tonic is regulated by its strength, and the quantity of the dose is regulated or diluted accordingly. In the State of Washington the Olympia Brewing Company advertised, during the recent campaign, that all the evils were due to whiskey, and claimed all the virtues for beer. The constant cropping out of anti-whiskey publicity in Texas seems to be inspired by the brewers. We feel that the U. S. B. A. ought to use its influence with its members to have such advertising discontinued. Remember that the tax on the alcoholic content or unit is only half on beer that it is on whiskey. Some of us think that there should be more publicity and less gum-shoe methods in the state campaigns. These campaigns have been run by the U. S. B. A. men, and there should be a report from that side as to what is being done, and as to the whole method of conduct of these campaigns.

Mr. MCDERMOTT. Mr. McDermott was then called upon by Mr. Gardiner for a report on the recent campaigns. Mr. McDermott explained the conditions in the various States where the campaigns had been conducted, and showed that in Virginia the campaign was regarded as a very doubtful one from the start, and that the sentiment there is against the saloons as now conducted. In Colorado we faced the loss of a large number of miners, and the opposition of the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company, and a Billy Sunday Revival. Rockefeller sent two men from New York, and financed the republican party in order to control the Governor. The conditions of the saloons were also dubious. The people in the trade in Colorado feel that everything was done there that could have been done. In Oregon and Washington we had woman suffrage for the first time, and this, with the condition of some of the saloons, beat us. There are only a few important cities in these States, and the country districts all went dry. The organization and publicity work there was exceedingly w. done. In Arizona the shutting down of the copper mines lost us 5,000 vote.

Mr. STRASSER. Mr. Strasser asked questions as to what Mr. McDermott mea. by changing the character of the saloon? He asked who selected the manag. for these campaigns? To whom was the money paid? At what point did . distillers lose control of the distribution of their funds? He thinks that the. must have been something very wrong with the campaigns, for the results . have been so disastrous. (In reply to those questions it was shown that n. of the money of the distillers went to pay the salary or expenses of any . the members of the Organization Bureau.) The funds were handled by le. people who were placed in charge of the campaigns by the joint interests.

Mr. WESTHEIMER. Mr. Westheimer asked how Mr. McDermott accounted f. the conditions in Colorado. In Los Angeles, for instance, where saloon con. tions are perfect, the people voted dry; whereas, in San Francisco where . conditions are rotten the people gave a large wet vote. Mr. McDermott repli. that Los Angeles voted wet by a small majority, and that the difference . probably due to the character of the people in the respective places, . especially to the sentiment in San Francisco for the Exposition.

Mr. SUNSTEIN. We have no doubt as to the validity of the expenditures. I. our feeling is due to the fact that our people are sometimes not recogniz. We have been called upon for assistance, and on both sides the money i. been paid to Mr. Gardiner, who in turn has paid it out to local committees. . Virginia we had great trouble in getting a man to handle the campaign. W. offered large compensation to two prominent local men in Virginia, who refus. it, and we finally had to go outside for a campaign manager. The coun. should be districted and men employed all the time to handle each distr. both in organization and publicity work, as it is hard to get good men becau. they know that their job is finished when the campaign is over. Our arran. ment with the brewers has gone on now for six years, and the conditions are worse than ever. The cry is for prohibition all over the country. We must divert this to a cry for regulation. We must give the people an excuse w. they should oppose prohibition. Great sacrifices must be made in reducing the number of licenses. Conditions in New Mexico, for example, will have to . remedied or that State will surely go dry. In some of the dry States we should organize and formulate rigid license laws, and then initiate legislation for them.

Mr. FEIGENSPAN. There is a decided sentiment among a number of brewers for a distinction between spirits and beer. While I think they are on the wrong track, this is not a matter which we can control. Many of the brewers see their salvation in this separation. It is not a matter which can really be decided upon by either of our respective interests; it is the public that is say. ing it for us. Many of my friends outside of the trade have expressed th. sentiment to me. With many of the brewers it is a question of salvage, an. you can not stop the brewers whose business is destroyed or threatened wit. destruction, from taking a course of this kind if they think it will be to the. advantage. Personally, I am opposed to any such division, but the moment . for it is growing greatly outside of the industry.

Mr. DIETERLE. The attitude of the brewers is entirely wrong on this question. Our arguments are all based on personal liberty and when you differentiate be. tween whiskey and beer you are undermining our best argument. It is the Anti-Saloon League, and not the general public that you are fighting. Our plans of action have been wrong; our strategy board has failed; our generals are inefficient; we won Ohio because we have trained our soldiers there for 30 years, and have a standing army. The attempt to mobilize three months before an election is useless. The fight is a bigger one than we have ever admitted even to ourselves, and we must enlist in it for life.

Mr. DEMPSEY. We feel that the plans have not been just right. I have ever suggested abandoning the statewide fights and centering on the congressional districts. After we have secured those, we can pick our fighing ground. We have gone into these State fights because the other fellow wanted it. We have gone into fights at the eleventh hour that we should have kept out of. We thought a year or two ago that Mr. Andreae could change conditions by fighting with ideas, and that his surveys would determine the question of whether we should make a fight in a particular state. There is a feeling that his Bureau has not made good; that his work covers too large a field. Mr. Dempsey then pointed out that many States vote for prohibition under a general reformatory impulse, but that they come back as is shown by the number of States that went dry 40 or 50 years ago, and that have now come back, but that to bring them back it is essential that we should keep the National Government in line. The States that were burned over by prohibition in the past, and that have come back, have no sentiment to-day for prohibition, and in coming back they voted the saloon in again as a necessary institution. The real trouble is not with the saloon. Mr. Dempsey stated that the real purpose of this meeting is to bring about better understanding, better organization, and more concentration.

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. Fleming said that in Indiana seventy out of ninety-two counties were dry a few years ago. The distillers contributed $9,000 against a total of $200,000 that was raised by the brewers. In the following campaign they agreed to pay $5,000, but welched, and finally paid $2,500. Last year when the constitutional convention campaign was on they did not put up a dollar. The Terre Haute Brewing Company, which is owned by distillers, won't even affiliate with the State Association. In that State, he said, the distillers have been a absolute detriment to the brewers, and we do not even appeal to them any more for assistance—financial or otherwise.

Mr. FREIBERG. I am interested in a distillery in Indiana, and if no money from us found its way to the joint fund, it must have been lost on the way. The spirit distillers also contributed.

Mr. SUNSTEIN. The Terre Haute distillery sells only in carload lots, and practically all its business is outside the State of Indiana.

Mr. RUPPERT. The distillers are not paying their fair share; instead of paying one-third in these campaigns, they ought to pay one-half. It is clear that we have not checked the prohibition movement. We ought to have a committee appointed to go at the matter more thoroughly. The prohibition sentiment is growing; the question is whether we can keep our heads above water long enough to enable us to reverse this sentiment. We ought to have a joint committee appointed and employ the best man we can get, preferably a politician, to take charge.

Mr. FEIGENSPAN. Let's analyze the situation before we criticise. Nothing of a political nature that we can do is going to stop this wave. We are facing great health movements; the training in the schools and in the colleges; the action of insurance companies and other popular movements which are very far-reaching. We cannot fight such movements merely by political methods; the fundamental thing is an educational campaign. We are in the transition period in our institutional life: nothing could have stopped this wave in the West, especially when you realize that we were handicapped by woman suffrage and saloon abuses.

Mr. FREIBERG. The best educational work that could be done would be to regain one or two dry States. The State of Maine offers the best field for our efforts.

Mr. LIEBMANN. The real question is not about the men that we employ. We are well satisfied with our Organization Bureau and with our Counsel. What has been done by them is really marvelous. Take Alabama, for example, where the condition is better than in some of the great Northern States. The main thing we need is money. The distillers take it amiss that brewers say that their beer is less harmful than whiskey. I believe that it is, and many brewers feel that a distinction should be made, but we do not want a separation. We fought prohibition long before the distillers were organized. You must not take it amiss if we take advantage of the things that others say in favor of beer. It is up to you to show the difference between good whiskey made by the manufacturers, and home-distilled whiskey. Six years ago the French Academy of Political Science published a book by the President of the French League against Alcoholism, which showed that while drunkenness has always existed, "alcoholism" was unknown until distillation began. Mr. Liebmann then went on to say what has been done in Switzerland and in the Scandinavian countries, and stated that while he would like to see co-operation between the two industries continued, the brewers must not be muzzled. If the distillers think it is dishonorable for us to say anything at the expense of whiskey, the best thing to do is to agree not to have a common fund, and to give up our joint relations.

Mr. WESTHEIMER. You cannot prevent prohibition by maintaining that beer is less harmful than whiskey. The strength of the movement is due to the prejudice against the saloon. The members of the U. S. B. A. are responsible for the conditions of the saloons. The saloon is the property of the brewing industry. If we had wanted to do so, we could have joined hands with our opponents in this fight. The distiller gains business by the States that go dry. We have been urged for years to work for the destruction of the saloon, and for the sale of whiskey in the original package. It would not hurt my business if all saloons were wiped out. You are making a tactical mistake in your attitude. The Texas Anti-Saloon League says that the saloon is the most pernicious thing. The distiller can prosper without the saloon. Your separation would force us to co-operate with the enemy. The saloons are dependent on the sale of whiskey and could not pay expenses without it.

Mr. ANDREAE. The crucial point is the question of the saloon and what can be done to remedy it. When I first started out with my work for the brewers, the question was how to convince the public that we are sincere in our plans for reforming the saloon. We have never had a plan presented to us that was concrete. I was called in conference a week ago with Mr. Nagel, who asked what would be the result of the suggestions he made at New Orleans, and that unless some move was made he and his friends would quit. Mr. Andreae was asked by Mr. Nagel if he had a plan, and admitted that he had no definite plan. He would like to demonstrate the obstacles in the way of the trade when they try to better conditions. We must bring home to the real leaders what the cause of the trouble is. This can only be done by a combination of sincere men outside of the industry, working in co-operation with us. Get men such as Mr. Nagel, Dr. Peters, Dr. Butler and Cardinal Gibbons to state what is in their minds, and then ask them to listen to Mr. Andreae for an hour while he gives them his practical experiences. The saloonkeeper is far more sinned against than sinning. They are the victims of a system that has grown up around us. The difficulty is due to corrupt municipal government. When you produce the evidence and go to the authorities and ask them to enforce the law, what do you get? We have found men who were forced to disobey the law. If we could get five or ten men of distinction and prominence to take this matter up nationally, and then appoint sub-committees, we should gain an educational publicity that would be invaluable. We must convince the men who lead the common herd of these difficulties.

[The meeting adjourned at 1.15 for lunch, and re-assembled at 1.50.]

Mr. LANDSBERG. What did the distillers come here for? What is their motive? Of course, this Committee has no power, and will have to put anything that is decided upon up to the Board of Trustees.

Mr. COOKE. The whole problem is a systematic one. There is no one aspect of it that is separate from the whole problem. We have made no progress during the past year. A year ago I urged co-ordination of every method of attack. There are at least six forces at work within our respective trades. The concentrated attack is not being driven home. We must have one unit. We have lost a year because we have failed to follow one consistent plan of campaign. If you divide responsibility and authority it will flow to the lowest level. Messrs. Gardiner and Sunstein have charge of one aspect of the case: Messrs. Crain and Cooke have charge of certain objectives which do not co-ordinate with the others; Messrs. Lewis and McDermott are conducting organization work throughout the country without close co-ordination. All of these activities should be collected together in one common undertaking. What we are fighting is the enemy of alcohol, and we are up against the fanatic. The beginning and the end of the whole fight is alcohol. We have got to defend alcohol, and the united alcohol industry is the only thing that will save them. In response to a question by Mr. Feigenspan as to what particular plan Mr. Cooke has in mind, he said: "If you cannot get an absolute co-ordination let us have two distinct armies, but with a common understanding. We should have a general staff under a common head for publicity, political organization and all our activities. We do not need to consolidate the two interests, but must have a joint scheme of co-operation. The whiskey interests are absolutely united."

Mr. BABBITT. Mr. Babbitt asked Mr. Crain to tell us what the sentiment is in Washington. Is it against alcohol alone or against whiskey?

Mr. CRAIN. This country has been undergoing a process by which a certain class of people want to get rid of alcohol. There is a tremendous force behind it. There are valid reasons why the South should be in favor of prohibition. We can not change the religious fanatic; he is against alcohol. The Anti-Saloon League understands that if whiskey was knocked out and beer substituted his job would cease. All the great interests have been attacked in Washington, even the courts themselves. No law has been passed in Washington, which is unfair to us, excepting the canteen. Nothing would please me so much as to have the Supreme Court say that the Webb-Kenyon Law is constitutional. If it is declared unconstitutional the doctrine of States' rights will be invoked for the passage of a law prohibiting all interstate shipments. We have really suffered less than all of the other big interests in recent years. Some of our activities are criticised because they did not bring results. How could you have started a movement to save West Virginia? Resolutions do not win battles. Individual work with the legislators is necessary. We have been able to stand off fanaticism in Congress, and my judgment is that we have killed national prohibition for ten years. The great fight now will be to absolutely prohibit all interstate business. The States' rights men in Congress will be in favor of this; the very men in the South who voted for us on the prohibition amendment will be against us on this issue. Of course, no brewer is going to favor the prohibition of any kind of drink, but there are certain brewers who believe that they have a right to advertise to the world what beer is made of.

Mr. SCHMIDT. I believe that both our interests have a desire to preserve the saloon as an institution for the sale of our product. I believe that the saloon will stay, and that it ought to stay. Since the November elections I have had a hundred communications from our members, from trade papers, from editors, and from other people outside the industry, all stating that the trouble is due to the saloon. Prohibition succeeds in the agricultural communities where the sentiment against it is dominant, and where the saloon is particularly objectionable. Why not recognize this fact and meet it? Would it not be possible for us to get facts from representative bodies who would undertake a disinterested investigation of the country saloon? Many of our members are of the opinion that unless we remedy this condition the country will go dry. The action of the California interests is a case in point. Others say that they want the privilege and right to determine for themselves what they consider is best for their interests. Our people will insist on the right to say what they think about their product. They will insist on the right to go into a dry State and re-claim it on any plan by which they think it can be brought back. Our whole organization will go to pieces if we try to deny them this. I suggest the appointment of a small joint committee to see if we can not co-operate, and how far we can go on a common basis. Mr. Schmidt then referred to the cheap whiskey which is put up by rectifiers and sold at five cents a glass, and expressed the opinion that the rectifiers' license should be got rid of entirely, and that no whiskey should be sold for less than ten cents a drink.

Mr. KALTENBACH. We object to such advertising as that which has been running in the State of Washington. You can say all you can for beer, but don't condemn whiskey by declaring that it is dangerous or poisonous. [Mr. Kaltenbach then read from the advertisements of the Olympia Brewing Co. such phrases as "drunkenness and distilled liquor"—"whiskey is the real evil" etc.] We have no objection to you booming your own product; I have always been strongly in favor of having one organization controlled by one head which would supervise all publicity matter. We must all get together and work with one end in view. The Anti-Saloon League has attacked your weakest point—the saloon. We must get a committee to control all that is done. Referring to the rectifiers matter he stated that a saloonkeeper is not allowed to mix his whiskey with anything, and that some cheap whiskies only contain about 30% alcohol.

Mr. Dieterle stated that the Committee of Fifty report covers the rectifiers question.

Mr. WESTHEIMER. We believe that there is an opportunity to make North Carolina entirely dry. Our friends advise us to join hands in the movement.

Mr. MCDERMOTT. The superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League in North Carolina has a bill to prevent all shipments for personal use, excepting for medicinal and sacramental purposes. There is a growing sentiment for a campaign to repeal the present law. There is a difference of opinion in different parts of the country as to what would be the result of making a state entirely dry. In the Northwest some of our people feel that if a state is entirely dry the people will eventually be satisfied.

Mr. KALTENBACH. I move that a Committee of 6 be appointed to confer in regard to the feasibility of bringing about closer action and co-operation. Motion seconded by Mr. Landsberg.

Mr. ANHEUSER. We are in favor of Mr. Andreae's plan. We are trying to bring out the broad principle of moderation in our advertising.

Mr. HERMANN. I understood that we were invited to come here and that you knew as much as we do about the object of the meeting. Post-mortems are not very valuable, but I feel that we have not had an equal say as to what should and should not be done. Your field men have had too much leeway. There was too much money spent in Virginia, and I believe it would have been better to stay out of that fight entirely. Spending money does not win campaigns.

Mr. McDERMOTT. The campaign in Virginia was decided upon by the heads of both organizations. For 8 years Virginia has been held by an eye-lash. We have really carried on our fights throughout this country on a shoe-string, and our Organization Bureau has always been under-manned.

Mr. HERRMANN. I do not consider it making a campaign by just giving people what they ask.

Mr. SUNSTEIN. We are too liberal with the Virginia people. We must organize so that we can supervise these fights, and not leave them in the hands of local people.

Mr. Fox. In response to a question put by Mr. Cooke as to whether the prohibition sentiment in the country is growing, Mr. Fox made the following statement: An important part of my job is to follow the trend of public sentiment. We maintain elaborate machinery for this purpose. I think everything that is printed on the alcohol question here or abroad comes to this office and is carefully analyzed and digested. It is my conviction that the anti-alcohol sentiment is growing very fast. I believe it is a mistake to assume that we are merely fighting the Anti-Saloon League. If the Anti-Saloon League was wiped out of existence to-morrow, we should still have the same old fight on our hands, because the Anti-Saloon League is merely the organization of the sentiment against the saloon and against alcohol for political purposes. While it is an exploitation movement it could not succeed if the sentiment did not exist which gives it its backing.

The anti-alcohol sentiment is now being advanced by the large employers of labor from the standpoint of industrial efficiency, and the movement is one which has immense weight because it is backed by self interest. The employer is insisting that the saloon at the factory gate must go, or at any rate, that it must not be allowed to sell whiskey. There are many large employers who would be willing to allow their men to drink beer. This feeling on the part of the large employers is now being utilized and capitalized by the Anti-Saloon League. The Churches are possibly giving less money to the Anti-Saloon League than in former years, but this deficit is made up many times by the new contributions that they are getting from large corporations.

Referring to the Virginia campaign, Mr. Fox said: "It seems clear that the sentiment which had been growing for generations in Virginia against whiskey and the saloons, reached its natural culmination on election day. It was impossible to reverse this sentiment without having something tangible to offer. We have been preaching the continuance of the licensed saloon to the people in Virginia who were already dis-satisfied with it, and telling them that they had better keep what they had got and didn't like, rather than take something that might be even worse. Nearly all of Virginia was dry already It is perfectly futile to try and win back any of the present prohibition States, except possibly the State of Maine, on any platform which would permit the sale of whiskey over the bar. The best the distillers can hope for is the privilege of selling in the original package, and probably this would have to be restricted to the individual in re-claiming such States as Washington and Oregon. There is no use in shutting our eyes to the facts. The whole trend of sentiment in European countries, and in this country, is towards the encouragement of the mild beverages. In manufacturing States, and cities in this country the sentiment for whiskey is probably just as strong as it is for beer, but in the rural districts the whiskey saloon is under the ban. If you analyze the vote in Ohio and California you will see that it was only the large cities that saved us. We were badly beaten in the rural districts.

Mr. SUNSTEIN. Mr. Sunstein declared that it was his experience with manufacturers and mine owners in Pennsylvania that their sentiment is even stronger against beer than it is against whiskey.

Mr. FREIBERG. The army canteen would have been restored long ago if there was any real sentiment for beer, or if the separation of the two interests was possible. The country saloon is a bad institution; the city saloon takes its character from the population. The practical thing to do is to redeem the State of Maine.

The motion to appoint a Committee of Three from each side was then put and carried, with the understanding that the members of the committee would report to their respective bodies.

The meeting adjourned at 4.30 p. m.

STATEMENT MADE BY MR. JULIUS LIEBMANN AT A MEETING OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE UNITED STATES BREWERS' ASSOCIATION FEBRUARY 11, 1915.

The Committee which was appointed at the conference between the distillers, wholesale liquor dealers and brewers, met in New York on January 25th, 1915, and after a day's discussion, adopted the following resolution to be submitted to their respective associations:

Resolved, That it is the sense of this meeting that the two organizations, viz: the distillers and the wholesalers on the one hand, and the brewers on the other, continue to co-operate under the conditions that have been and are at present in force, and that the method of such co-operation be delegated to a Committee of Six, three from each side.

Furthermore, in case of a disagreement on the policy to be pursued in any particular contest, then the several state organizations, or either of the national organizations be free to conduct an individual campaign as they may see fit.

The second part of the resolution simply means that in any State in which the Joint Committee does not ask the brewers and distillers to take joint action, that both the brewers and distillers have a free hand to do whatever they see fit. This would also seem to cover the question of publicity on the part of the U. S. B. A. to advertise beer as a temperance drink—calling attention to the low percentage of alcohol contained therein. To this the distillers take very strong exception, claiming that it is impossible to explain the mild character of beer, and advocating its use in preference to distilled liquors, without implying that whiskey is harmful.

The Committee feels that this contention on the part of the distillers may be true, but at the same time it recommends to the Board of Trustees that we ought to have absolute freedom to say whatever we think is true of beer and beneficial to our industry, without regard to the susceptibilities of the distillers.

The Committee is of the opinion that if the distillers do not object to any plan of publicity on our part—to enlighten people as to the merits of beer, we ought to co-operate within the lines laid down in the resolution.

The Committee feels that in any case we are at one with the distillers in our fight against prohibition. Our arguments at all times have been and will be to maintain the right of every citizen to drink whichever alcoholic liquor he chooses. Our argument showing the futility of prohibition, in view of the impossibility of preventing illicit distillation, is an argument for the maintenance of legal distilleries.

The Committee is in favor of co-operation with the distillers. But it is of the opinion that inasmuch as the brewers have always contributed 2/3s of every fund, it would be better to refuse co-operation if the price of co-operation consists in being muzzled in its publicity relating to beer.

REPORT OF THE MEETING OF THE JOINT HARMONY COMMITTEE HELD AT HOTEL BELVIDERE, BALTIMORE, MD., MARCH 6TH, 1915.

The following were present for the brewers: (Mr. Piel being absent because of illness in his family.) Messrs. Poth, Pennsylvania; Cervenka, Illinois; Nicholson, Massachusetts; Koehler, Missouri; H. F. Fox, Secy. New York.

For the wholesalers: Messrs. Sinnott, Pennsylvania; Westheimer, Maryland; Kaltenback, New York; Freiberg, Ohio; Nathan, Missouri; Mr. Cook, Counsel, Washington.

For the retailers: Messrs. Farley, New York; Bonner, Pennsylvania; Kunde, Illinois; Harvey, District of Columbia; Rinkenberger, Ohio; R. Halle, Sec'y, Chicago.

For the wine growers: Mr. Culman, New York.

Mr. Nicholson was elected President, Mr. Bonner, Vice-President, and Mr. Nathan, Secretary.

Mr, Farley opened the proceedings by making an appeal for co-operation and against any separation of the beer and whiskey interests.

Mr. Kaltenbach followed with an impassioned plea for one organization of all branches of the liquor trade and their allied interests under one governing body. He declared that there is at present no real co-operation between the brewer and the distiller; in fact, there is a lack of confidence between them. The brewer takes the superior position of knowing it all. The efforts of the various interests are scattered, and in the State of Washington the two interests are actually fighting each other. He declared that we only won in Ohio by a narrow squeak, and that Kentucky is on the verge of prohibition.

Mr. Culman said that as long as we have separate organizations we are bound to have trouble. "There must be one organization which should be national in its scope, having under its jurisdiction all state and local bodies; that all the money should go into one common fund and be spent by one governing committee."

Mr. Nicholson stated that in Massachusetts nothing was done in a legislative way without the co-operation of all the interests.

Mr. Nathan asked for an expression of views of the three organizations. The distillers, he said, want real co-operation, and are anxious for the closest relations and voted for it at a meeting of their governing body recently.

Mr. Bonner said that at the recent convention of the retailers, the members declared themselves as unanimously in favor of such co-operation, and that in Pennsylvania the interests worked together in all legislative matters, through a Conference Committee.

Mr. Kunde said that they had such a committee in Illinois for four years and that it worked very well. All legislative matters are referred to a Harmony Committee of five, representing each interest, and that in local option fights the three controlling parties contribute to one state fund, but the trouble is that each man wanted to draw out of the fund and make the contribution in his own district.

Mr. Rinkenberger said that in Ohio all the interests are working together, and that legislative matters are handled jointly.

Mr. Freiberg remarked that even the bottlers worked in harmony in Ohio.

Mr. Bonner stated that the first thing to do is to organize the retailers, and that this can best be done by the assistance of the brewers; and that the retailers' association will urge their men to deal only with organization brewers and wholesalers.

Mr. Nicholson said that such action would no doubt result in increasing the membership of the organizations and developing them.

Mr. Farley stated that the New York retailers had gone on record against any promotion scheme for breweries.

Mr. Nathan: "This is not the time to organize our separate and several organizations, but we want to find out especially where the brewers stand. All our efforts are futile unless we are united on one platform. It is not up to us to help organize the particular interests, but rather to form one vast comprehensive body."

The Chairman then called on Mr. Fox to state the brewers' position.

Mr. Fox said that the brewers did not come to this meeting of the Joint Harmony Committee clothed with any authority to take any action which was binding in any way upon the members of the United Brewers' Association. He understood that this was merely a conference, and that any action taken would necessarily have to be either a mere expression of sentiment of those present, or a recommendation, which would have to be referred back to the parent bodies. The members of the United States Brewers' Association had a perfect right to act as individuals in any way they saw fit. He believed, however, that it was utterly futile to talk about having one organization of all the interests and one fund with one management. The brewers would not consent to this, and it was no use wasting any words about it.

With regard to the State of Washington, Mr. Fox pointed out that the Washington brewers were on a sinking ship and that if they could save the vessel by throwing part of the cargo overboard, it was only human nature for them to do so, and no outside pressure would have any influence upon them.

Mr. Nicholson stated that we were in sympathy with cooperation.

Mr. Nathan said that the distillers had no authority either to speak for their organization.

Mr. Cervenka said that none of us are ripe for one organization; we can, however, come to some kind of a general understanding. The retailers have the best system of organization, which is founded on the principles of the A. F. of L.

Mr. Koltenbach stated that with regard to reclaiming a prohibition State on a beer basis, he felt that we can only win our fight upon the principle of personal liberty; that we ought to have one organization watching all legislation and in matters of publicity we should have only one head.

The meeting then drifted into a discussion of the saloon question.

Mr. Bonner stated that the public demands that saloons and other places where liquor is sold must be properly conducted, and we can help regulate them best from within our own ranks.

Mr. Poth said: "Mr. Bonner has struck on something really constructive. The objection is really revolving about the saloon. There must be some reason for it or the public would not be so strongly against it. It is vain to talk about the States gone dry. The preservation of the wet States is the important question. If we can make conditions right in them we then have a basis of appeal for retrieving the dry States." He then presented his report of the investigations he had been conducting among the brewers of Pennsylvania as to the causes of the unpopularity of the saloon.

Mr. Fox summarized the data secured by Mr. Piel, showing that the causes for complaint are as follows: Selling in prohibited hours, gambling, selling to intoxicated men, rear rooms, unclean places, invading residential districts, the country saloon, the social evil, selling to minors, keeping open at night, brewers financing ignorant foreigners who are not citizens, the American bar, brewery-controlled saloons, cabarets, Sunday selling, treating, free lunch, sales to speakeasies, bucket trade, signs, screens, character of the men, too many saloons.

Mr. Cervenka said that his investigations had led to the same conclusions, and he emphasized particularly the need of limitation to the number of saloons, and the abolition of signs, stalls and cabarets.

Mr. Koehler said that his investigations and his questionnaire had led to the same results. "We must have a platform on which we can work together."

Mr. Kaltenbach said that we should not do anything to encourage the abolition of the saloon, and that if the saloon-keepers can improve matters themselves they should do so without going to the legislatures for remedy.

Mr. Bonner stated that the evils in the retail trade are admitted. In the Pennsylvania coal regions the conditions are very bad, because of the irresponsible men who have been established in the retail business by brewers and others. The free lunch and excess sales of beer in kettles, and the sales by brewers and others to illegal vendors is a serious evil.

Mr. Nicholson said that there is no necessity for the elimination of the saloon; that it can be made a helpful and developing influence in any community. The brewer is very largely responsible for conditions. He had made a similar inquiry in Massachusetts to that made by his colleagues on the committee, and got very similar replies. The Massachusetts Brewers' Association has decided to take up the question of eliminating outside display signs. He appealed for a constructive policy, and said that one reason why Massachusetts was in such good shape was because of the limitation of the number of saloons and the abolition of the screens. Treating on the part of the proprietor had been abolished by the action of the Boston Excise Board.

Mr. Fox then moved that the reports be summarized, and suggested that if all of the interests could agree upon a constructive platform it might be advisable to give it publicity.

Mr. Cook said that we cannot reform our line under fire; that the saloon can only be reformed from within. He said that Los Angeles with ideal saloon conditions, had barely defeated prohibition. The saloon is the most fundamental thing in the business. It is an American institution and part of our national life, and that there should be no publicity regarding saloon reform at present.

Mr. Fox withdrew his suggestion with regard to publicity.

Mr. Kaltenbach declared that we should admit nothing to our opponents.

Mr. Culman seconded the appointment of a committee to make a report to this body now, and suggested that there ought to be no limitation of saloons without compensation.

Mr. Kunde said that the man must be licensed and not the place. Under the limitation of places in Peoria, the brewers and distillers bought up every saloon and there are now no independent saloon-keepers. In Chicago 50 per cent of the places are thus controlled, and these comprise the most disreputable places because the saloon men who run them are not financially responsible. He also objected to the elimination of the residence districts.

Mr. Poth said that recommendations covered Philadelphia conditions and can be modified to suit general situations. We should recognize the right of the residence district to remonstrate. He strongly recommended advertising.

Mr. Harvey said that it is impossible to bring about any reform to satisfy the Anti-Saloon League. In the District of Columbia regulation is better than anywhere else. There are no signs, no stalls or back-rooms, no growler trade, and yet the Anti-Saloon League has brought charges against the Excise Board through the Prohibition Committee of the Senate, whose report is absolutely false. "We have been defeated because we lack organization, and we must concentrate our entire efforts in driving the Anti-Saloon League out of existence."

Mr. Nathan said there is no use trying to convince our opponents, but there is an enormous conservative element which can be impressed. We must do our work quietly and should appoint a committee to formulate this matter.

Mr. Cook said that if the issue could be put before the people of the District of Columbia, they would approve of the improved conditions. He urged the cooperation of the three elements of the trade, so as to solidify the sentiment of the public.

Mr. Kaltenbach then suggested a committee of three to put into proper form the suggestions that had been made by the speakers and that a recess be taken for this purpose.

The Chairman appointed Mr. Fox, Mr. Cook and Mr. Bonner as this committee.

(Their recommendations were subsequently adopted and will be reported later.)

[United States Brewers' Association, 50 Union Square, New York. Joint Harmony Comm. Office Copy. Please Return This Copy to the File. Confidential.]

NEW YORK, April 21, 1915.

To the Members of the United States Brewers' Association:

GENTLEMEN: I am enclosing resolutions which were adopted on March 6th at a meeting of the Joint Harmony Committee, representing the United States Brewers' Association, the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association, and the National Retail Liquor Dealers' Association. These resolutions were approved at the meeting of the Board of Trustees of the United States Brewers' Association on April 9th, 1915, and I am instructed to send them to the brewers for their consideration, to the end that each brewer may use his personal influence with his State and local Brewers' Association, as well as with the local Retail Liquor Dealers' Associations, for the furtherance of the recommendations that are made in the resolutions.

The United States Brewers' Association is represented on this Joint Harmony Committee by the following:

JAMES R. NICHOLSON, Boston, Mass., Chairman
HUGO A. KOEHLER, St. Louis, Mo.
JOHN A. CERVENKA, Chicago, Ill.
WILLIAM PIEL, Brooklyn, N. Y.
HARRY A. POTH, Philadelphia, Pa.

These gentlemen sent a questionaire to a large number of brewers in different sections of the country, before the Committee met, so as to get the concensus of opinion from our own members as to the reasons why the saloon is so frequently and so generally discredited, and we have endeavored to reduce the replies to a brief summary which is submitted herewith, for your confidential information.

Remember that these replies come from the brewers themselves and represent the diagnosis made by the most thoughtful men in the industry, of the cause of our troubles.

The substance of the enclosed resolutions, so far as saloon conditions are concerned, is as follows:

1. That licenses should be issued in response to a normal demand for them.
2. That the artificial stimulation of business by brewers, wholesalers or saloonkeepers is undesirable.

Resolutions Adopted at the Meeting of the Joint Harmony Committee Baltimore, Md., March 6th, 1915.

1. It is the sense of the Brewers, Wholesale Liquor Dealers and Retail Liquor Dealers, as represented, that licenses should be issued to meet the normal demand of the communities for licenses, with such regulations as will benefit the trade not only from the standpoint of commercial betterment but also by commanding the approval of the unprejudiced mass of the public in the communities furnishing licenses.

2. It is the sense of the meeting that commercial activity by the manufacturers and jobbers, under which sharply competitive conditions between saloons are created, or by which any individual attempts to accelerate sales in the individual saloon, whether he be a brewer, wholesale liquor dealer or the saloon-keeper himself, should be curtailed by those primarily responsible, as a matter of individual commercial safety as well as duty to the public as a whole and to the general trade.

3. It is the sense of the joint meeting that for commercial reasons regulations should be advocated by the trade itself, looking to (a) elimination of objectionable practices, (b) complete cleanliness and sanitation (c) elimination of treating by the proprietor, (d) refusal of service to habitual drunkards and persons apparently intoxicated, (e) elimination where possible or reasonable restriction of free lunches and the bucket trade. The sentiment of the trade is unalterably committed to suppression of any licensed business, connected directly or indirectly, with any disorderly house or gambling establishment. Licensees should arrange and conduct their premises so that disorderly men or women shall be excluded, and the charge that the saloon is a place of assignat on be made groundless in fact.

4. It is the sense of the meeting that the trade should consider the general elimination of screens, even though not forbidden by law or regulation, with a view to making the dispensing of liquors free of apparent mystery, secrecy or assumed ill-repute.

5. It is desirable that in future licenses should only be granted to American citizens of known good character.

6. The trade should refuse to sell to speak-easies, unlicensed clubs and other illicit vendors.

7. That it is desirable to encourage the establishment of public family resorts in which all kinds of refreshments shall be dispensed and in which the sale of alcoholic beverages shall be no more emphasized than any other beverage.

8. That the trade should organize within itself, measures to supervise, regulate and discipline its members to the end that all illegal practices should be abolished, in accordance with the Pennsylvania system, with the further determination to suppress all illicit sales.

9. That the three organizations should so co-operate that their trade relations should so far as possible be confined to the respective members thereof.

10. The meeting recommends that the trade advocate actively compensation for law abiding licensees, deprived of their licenses either through reduction of licenses or suppression of all licenses, on the firm doctrine that thereby (a) the individual will not have his investment destroyed and will not be made to feel the injustice of the law or executive action; (b) the public will, having paid therefor, respect its action and itself will respect and approve the law whether of restriction or total suppression of licenses; and (c) those remaining licensed will realize that their business and investment is on a firm basis and worthy of the best conduct under the licensing laws and regulations of which they are capable in the interest of its preservation as a permanent investment.

11. This meeting most urgently urges upon its constituent bodies and the individuals therein the following tenets: The whole trade will live or die by the ultimate decision of the present indifferent public on the question whether or not alcoholic beverages, vinous, malt or distilled, shall be manufactured and sold by a legitimately going industry and trade; co-operation by all branches, manufacturing, distributing and retailing, are essential if the affirmative of the above question is to be upheld by a majority of the public; if the trade as a whole, in all branches, does not present a united front, united in branches, and branches united in individuals, the mass of the public cannot be asked by the trade as a whole, or by any of the branches or by any individuals in the trade to give a united and favorable answer; supposed or possible individual interest, present or prospective, must be subordinated to the interest of the country, its communities and the trade itself.

12. This meeting urges a united purpose by the entire trade in opposition to Prohibition, if the people of the country and the eventual best interest of all branches and elements of the industry are to be subserved.

SUMMARY OF REPLIES TO INQUIRIES REGARDING THE CAUSES OF OPPOSITION TO SALOONS.

Replies were received from 118 representative brewers covering the States of California, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Texas and Washington.

It should be understood that their replies do not constitute an indictment against all saloons, or even any considerable proportion of the saloons, but that the evils they speak of are found to exist in a sufficient number of cases to cast discredit upon the business as a whole.

Over half of the replies refer to the bad character of certain saloon-keepers and bartenders, and of the careless way in which some of the saloons are conducted. Special reference is made in a large number of the replies to the noise and profanity which takes place, not only inside the saloon, but in front of it. Over forty references are made to gambling in saloons, and fifty-five brewers speak of the use of the dive-saloon as a rendezvous for loafers, gangsters, prostitutes and criminals. No less than sixty-seven brewers state that the selling to known drunkards and intoxicated persons is one of the serious evils, while forty-eight brewers cite the selling of intoxicants to boys and girls.

Among the other evils which are commented upon by at least thirty brewers are unsanitary conditions in the saloons, empty kegs on the side-walks, unclean conditions surrounding the saloon, and the window-display of bottles of liquors and of unsightly signs and advertisements. It is the opinion of forty-four of the brewers that there are too many saloons and that the brewers have financed indiscriminately, persons who are unfit to serve as saloon-keepers. Thirty-three brewers refer specifically to such breaches of the law as selling in prohibited hours, and a considerable number of brewers refer to the dance-hall evil.

Among the recommendations made in the replies referred to, the largest number advocate a reduction in the number of saloons, and a system of sane regulation which will be consistent with the desire of the community, together with the strict enforcement of such regulations, under a system of co-operation of the liquor interests. Thirty-five brewers report that they believe brewers and wholesale liquor dealers should be prevented by law from furnishing fixtures and financial assistance to saloon-keepers, or from controlling leases, licenses, etc.

3. That the trade should advocate regulations looking to
   (a) The elimination of objectionable practices.
   (b) Complete clealiness and sanitation.
   (c) Elimination of treating by the proprietor.
   (d) Refusal of service to habitual drunkards and to persons apparently intoxicated.
   (e) The reasonable restriction of free lunches, and of the bucket trade.
   (f) The absolute suppression of any connection, direct or indirect, of any licensed premises with any disorderly house or gambling establishment. To this end licensees should so arrange and conduct their premises that disorderly men and women shall be excluded.
4. The Committee recommends that screens and other obstructions to the view of the premises from the outside should be done away with so that the saloon may be free of apparent mystery and secrecy.
5. The Committee recommends that licenses shall only be granted to American citizen of known good character.
6. The trade should refuse to sell to speak-easies, unlicensed clubs and other illicit vendors.
7. The trade should encourage the establishment of public family resorts in which all kinds of refreshments shall be dispensed, and in which the sale of alcoholic beverages shall be no more emphasized than any other beverages.
8. The trade should organize within itself measures to supervise, regulate and discipline its members to the end that all illegal practices shall be abolished and that the illicit business may be suppressed.

It is hoped that with your co-operation a strong sentiment may be created within the trade itself for the correction of all real abuses, and for the development of a constructive plan which will give the licensing and police authorities the practical co-operation of all the people engaged in the license trade, in the enforcement of existing laws and regulations and in the development of better conditions.

A determined effort should be made to bring all the reputable vendors into their respective organizations, so that their full weight may be brought to bear in an organized way, against any men who are conducting the license business improperly. We believe that the trade can win the encouragement of all fair-minded men, by itself showing its good faith in a practical manner.

Yours very truly,

HUGH F. FOX,
Secretary.

REPORT OF THE MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE.

The total amount of 1912 dues received up to January 1st, 1913, in round figures, is $319,000.00. Payments that are positively promised will bring this up to $350,000.00, which will be Ten Thousand Dollars more than the total of the previous year, in spite of the decrease in the beer sales. In addition to this the voluntary assessment, levied in June 1912, yielded a total of $146,000.00.

There are 1,434 brewing plants now in operation in the United States, of which 634 are enrolled as members of the U. S. Brewers' Association, leaving 800 non-members. Our 634 members include, however, 83 brewers whose membership has lapsed according to our By-Laws for the reason that they have not paid dues for more than two years. Some of these have been in arrears for five years, but we have continued to carry them under instructions from the Board of Trustees.

Neither does it include 31 brewers who have not paid dues since 1910, and will therefore be subject to suspension next April. Deducting these from the nominal membership list leaves us only 520 active members, of whom 51 are in arrears for the 1912 dues.

Your committee has sent an individual letter to every one of the 800 non-members, as per copy which has been mailed to the members of the Board. We enclosed stamped and addressed envelope for reply, and have received a total of 24 answers, and nine of those were applications for membership; and 15 stated the reasons why they could not join. We also sent a special letter, with copy of the non-member letter, to all of the old delinquents. Only two or three of these have taken the trouble to reply. Although numerically only about 35% of the brewers are now entitled to enrollment as active members their output represents nearly 60% of the beer production of the country.

The total dues collected for our fiscal year ending March 31, 1909, were $90,217.67, which represented 64% of the total production for the year so that we have lost 4% since the dues were raised in 1910.

An analysis of the dues for the current year shows that we have received, roughly speaking, from the States East of Ohio, 50%; from the middle Western States, 44%; from the Western States 3%; from the Southern States 3%.

Taking the record of the largest brewing States, we find that our rec... in proportion to the output of these States, show the following percentages:

State.	Per-centages.	State.	...
New York	63	Indiana	...
Pennsylvania	39	Minnesota	...
Illinois	43	California	...
Wisconsin	64	Maryland	...
Ohio	29	Washington	...
Missouri	88	Kentucky	...
New Jersey	93	Connecticut	...
Massachusetts	70	Texas	...
Michigan	52	Rhode Island	...

The replies from non-members stating the reasons why they cannot or d... join the Association do not indicate any dissatisfaction with the work of ... U. S. Brewers' Association. They either plead poverty or speak of the h... assessments that they are paying to their own State Association, or else c... plain of what they regard as unfair competition on the part of outside brew... or the failure of such brewers to respect the resolution passed by this As... ciation at our (1909) Atlantic City convention with regard to serving dis... table places. One brewer complains that our By-Laws do not limit the am... of the annual dues, but allow assessments to be levied at the discretion of ... Association.

Your Committee finds that many brewers doing a local business cannot ... made to realize the importance of political campaigns in which they have ... direct interest. The service rendered by the U. S. Brewers' Association n... somehow relate itself to their own conscious needs, if we are to win the... support.

The By-Laws provide that if any member shall fail to pay his annual d... for two years his name shall be stricken from the roll of the Association, a... he shall cease to be a member. We recommend that the Membership Commit... be authorized by the Board of Trustees to take such action according to the... discretion; and that the Committee be also authorized to exercise its dis... tion in regard to resignations.

It is the desire of the Committee to follow up the letters to the non-membe... and delinquents in systematic and persistent fashion by a thorough campa... of letter writing and by personal appeals. The Committee recommends t... they be given authority to draw on the Organization Bureau for such servi... as may be needed in this connection, under the direction of the Chairman ... the Membership Committee. It is to be expected that the carrying out of p... will involve a considerable amount of additional labor, and perhaps the emp... ment of clerical help and expenses for traveling, etc. The Committee must ... authorized to incur such expenses, at its discretion, in the promotion of its pl... for the maintenance of the Association.

WAYNE BREWING CO., Erie, Pa.

GENTLEMEN: I am instructed by the Treasurer to make an urgent appeal for the payment of outstanding dues and assessments at the earliest possible moment. There are no less than eight State-wide campaigns now in progress, and while the calls upon us are incessant, our funds are extremely low. The elections take place early in November, and we must meet these demands at once, if any good is to be accomplished.

According to our records you have not yet paid the first half of the 2¢ assessment, which was payable on August 1st. Will you kindly let us hear from you by return and inform us definitely when we may expect your remittance.

Very truly yours,

HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

There is also offered in evidence Exhibit 871, it being a report made by Mr. Andreae to an executive session of the United States Brewers' Association, at Springfield, Mass., October 15, 1915.

EXHIBIT No. 871.

(Auditor accounts, p. 12. From U. S. B. A. files.—Office copy. Please return this copy to the file.)

Minutes of an Executive Session of the United States Brewers' Association, held at the Hotel Kimball, Springfield, Mass., Friday, October 15, 1915, at 11 o'clock A. M.

The meeting was called to order by the President, Mr. Edward A. Schmidt.

The PRESIDENT. Gentlemen, this is an Executive Session and none but members of the Association will be permitted in the room. If there are any present who are not members of this Association they will kindly leave the room.

I declare the session open for business. New business is in order.

Mr. ANHEUSER. I would like to ask a question, just what "new business" means.

The PRESIDENT. Any business.

Mr. ANHEUSER. All right, Mr. Chairman, I would like to say that as a member of the Board of Trustees, I have read with very great interest Mr. Andreae's report upon the subject of what he has done for our cause in the past year, and I now request that Mr. Andreae take the floor and advise these gentlemen of the report he has made to the Board of Trustees.

The PRESIDENT. Does Mr. Andreae wish to take the floor?

Mr. ANHEUSER. Yes, sir, so that he shall read his report.

The PRESIDENT. Does Mr. Andreae wish to take the floor?

Mr. ANDREAE. Yes, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT. You have the privilege of the floor, Mr. Andreae.

Mr. ANDREAE. At the desire of the gentleman who has just spoken I will read to you the report I made to the Board of Trustees, as I read the report I made to the Board of Trustees last year. The report is dated October 9th.

To the Board of Trustees of the United States Brewers' Assn., New York City.

GENTLEMEN: I beg to report the activities of my organization during the past year as follows:

PRESS WORK.

The personal liberty articles appearing in the American Leader are being republished, in thirty languages, in whole or in part by about 800 newspapers with a total circulation of 6,000,000 copies. There are thus being reached through this channel 18,000,000 readers bi-weekly. The organization of this press and the elements surrounding it by the American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers has now reached the stage at which practical results can be obtained throughout the country by the application of proper organization methods in any locality where this press is represented. This has been proved beyond question in Ohio where in the last campaign through the instrumentality of the Foreign Language Press the registration of voters of foreign origin or foreign extraction exceeded in one county alone by over twenty thousand anything ever known in the political history of the county.

In March of this year I was elected a Vice-President of the American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers and appointed the accredited spokesman for the organized foreign language newspapers of the country. In this capacity I delivered, at the invitation of the International Press Congress held in San Francisco, the address before that body on behalf of the Foreign Language Newspapers of America, and have since addressed various commercial bodies in the same capacity. Arrangements are now under way to have me deliver under the same auspices similar addresses before Chambers of Commerce or other commercial associations in the chief centres of the country, and I am informed by the American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers that dates for my appearance before such bodies are being arranged in about fifteen of our larger cities.

At my suggestion the Foreign Language Newspapers Association has decided to use its influence and efforts to bring about an organization of the general business interests of the country for the purpose of combatting by practical means the freak laws and coercive legislation, which are becoming an increasing menace to the property rights of the citizen and the business development of the country, and I have been placed in the position to interview and discuss plans for such an organization with some of the leading commercial men of the country.

The Association had recently in contemplation the summoning of a convention of the 1250 German and foreign language newspaper editors in Washington for the purpose of laying out a concerted policy to be pursued by this great press in its crusade against the destructive tendencies of those who are today controlling the legislation of the country, and to present resolutions embodying the views of this press to the President of the United States, and to the Governors of the individual States of the Union. The holding of this convention was made conditional upon my agreeing to deliver the address at the convention and take charge of the necessary work incident to the carrying out of the policy decided upon by all the newspapers concerned.

To my great regret, owing to the circumstances in which I have now been placed, with practically no funds under my control, and the funds actually promised me withheld, I saw myself unable to undertake this work, and this important move has in consequence, for the present at least, been abandoned.

For the same reasons, I shall be compelled to notify the American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers that, unless present conditions are altered, when the arrangements now in effect between that Association and myself terminate, namely on January 1st and May 1st, 1916, I shall not be able to renew them, as they involve personal guarantees which I am no longer able to fulfill. I shall of course continue to maintain active relations with the Association in any direction in which I may be rendered able to do so, but the educational campaign in the press itself and the vast groundwork of the organization I have thereby been instrumental in creating during the past two years, will, I greatly regret to say, be destroyed at the very moment, when, with adequate means, it is capable of producing the most effective and far-reaching results.

The President of the American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers has informed me that he has been repeatedly approached during the past eighteen months and urged to carry on this organization and general campaign work in cooperation with men other than myself in your Association, but that he has refused.

The same condition exists in reference to the organization bureau established by the German-American Alliance in conjunction with my own organization and in accordance with certain plans and policies suggested by me two years ago. The first Vice-President of the National Alliance and the Chairman of its Organization Bureau tells me that he has been approached through certain channels and informed that I shall not have the means after January 1st of continuing the arrangements under which his bureau and my organization are working, but that, if he will continue to carry on the organization established through me along the lines hitherto pursued, the necessary financial means will be supplied through other parties in your Association, provided he will work under their direction instead of under mine. This, he has notified me, he will refuse to do, so that, unless other elements in the Alliance are willing to take over the work, so ably conducted by him, this important organization work will likewise be destroyed.

The German-American Alliance Organization bureau has done active work in holding meetings, forming new branches and societies and instilling new life into old branches in Illinois and Ohio, and, through the German Press and the German Clubs and societies in Texas, created a strong agitation in that State against the franchise amendment recently defeated there, which would have disfranchised a very large number of foreign born voters. The Foreign Language Press Association performed the same work among the foreign language newspapers published in Texas.

Since the field force at the command of the bureau of the German-American Alliance consists of only three men, when it ought to be five or six times that number, it is not possible to cover more than a limited amount of ground in one year. The whole force has for the past months been engaged in organizing in Ohio, where the most important campaign affecting the interests is now in progress.

Practically my entire available field staff (ten men) are today at work in Ohio, in charge of the campaign work in the various counties, or groups of counties, in which organization is in progress, and many of them have been at work there since the beginning of the year.

I should mention that the representatives of labor working with me have been so employed since the beginning of the year, Mr. Adolph Kummer in particular having, at the urgent request of Mr. Proebstle, been working at my instructions for the past ten months under that gentleman's direction in Ohio. This may prove of interest to your Board, in view of the fact that the statement was made at a recent meeting of your Executive Committee that Mr. Proebstle had expressed himself in a disparaging manner about Mr. Kummer.

I regret that in the case of my labor bureau also I am informed that intimation has been conveyed by a representative of the U. S. Brewers' Association to the Brewery Workers Union that it is intended to withhold from me the means to carry on my work in conjunction with labor, with the consequence that the elements cooperating with me have been thrown into a state of uncertainty and unrest and that the confidence between those elements and myself which is essential to effective joint work has been largely undermined.

Surveys have been made of Kentucky, at the request of the Kentucky interests, of Maine, at the request of Mr. Gardiner, and of Ohio, at the request of the Ohio interests.

GENERAL LITERARY AND PUBLICITY WORK.

Apart from my own speeches and writings, which through certain influential channels have been placed in the hands of the leading business men and other prominent men of the country, with the result that a considerable correspondence has ensued with many of them, the salient features of the past year have been the progress made with the nesw-bureau established last August, and the Hearthstone Magazine, which this August reached a circulation in paid individual subscriptions among the smaller communities of the country of 301,000.

The news-bureau now supples its weekly news-letter to over 5,300 of the 12,000 weekly papers of the country, all published in the smaller towns, and the list is steadily increasing. The total circulation of these papers is conservatively estimated at 1,000 copies each, so that the actual circulating medium of publicity here utilized represents 5,300,000 subscribers, and, since each copy of a newspaper is conceded on an average to be read by between three and four individuals, the total readers actually reached every week amount to between 15 and 16 million.

The actual pieces of literature reaching readers by means of this bureau and the foreign language press alone may be computed, according to another method of reckoning sometimes used in this connection, to be 431 million annually, namely:

Foreign Language Newspapers 6,000,000 reproductions of personal liberty articles 26 times a year	156,000,000
5,300,000 reproductions of our news-letters in 5,300 weekly papers, having a total circulation of 5,300,000, 52 times a year	275,600,000
Total	431,600,000

It is to be noted, also, that these pieces of literature not only go to the individual readers direct, but are paid for by them, and it may therefore be presumed that they are actually read.

The circulation of the Hearthstone was increasing so rapidly in advance of the advertising rates that it was thought wise, for financial reasons, to stop further increase until September, when the advertising rate increased from 40¢ a line to 70¢ a line, and the actual linage contracted for at the increased rate in that and the following months promises to more than double, thus enabling me to largely increase the circulation, while reducing the average cost.

At this juncture, however, your financial committee passed a resolution directing the discontinuance of this publication as soon as conveniently possible. As I was unable to convince the committee that it was destroying one of the most valuable assets I had built up, and one which within a year or two would double and treble in value, not only at no additional cost, but at a steadily decreasing one, I appealed to the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association to save this asset, with the result that I have the assurance that, provided this Association can secure the means, which it will know before the middle of October, it will guarantee me sufficient funds to carry on and extend the publication.

The play "The Passing of Hans Dippel", presenting the story of a German saloon-keeper of the highest respectability being gradually ruined by the dry movement and his business destroyed without compensation by the operation of the option law, was produced by an excellent company in November and December last in eight cities in Ohio and Missouri, but owing to the complete collapse of the theatrical business at that period, which was practically universal, was withdrawn at the end of the year.

The contribution of weekly articles to the labor press through the Brauer-Zeitung has continued throughout the year.

A complete collection of my articles and addresses on personal liberty and the prohibition question has been published in book form, with my permission, by a publishing firm, and I understand that the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association offered to pay a pro rata share of the cost of providing all the libraries of the country with a copy of this book, if the United States Brewers' Association would join in the undertaking. But the proposition was refused by the United States Brewers' Association, whereupon the N. W. L. D. A. undertook the entire cost, and the book is now available in every library in the country.

A compilation of the population of the United States of foreign origin or extraction by States and Cities, with their actual voting strength, and the location of the foreign language newspapers, has been prepared and is ready to be placed in the hands of campaign managers, wherever elections may be called.

STAMP PLAN.

Every effort has been made to extend and perfect the discount stamp plan inaugurated by the National Association of Commerce and Labor, and some progress has been made in certain directions. But the official disapproval of the Board of Trustees of the method of putting the plan in operation as originally devised has deterred the interests in many localities from cooperating in the plan, whilst all our endeavors to carry it out in those localities in conformity with the wishes of the President and Board of Trustees have met with insurmountable obstacles.

FINANCIAL.

My organization has received from the treasury of the United States Brewers' Association since September 1st, 1914, that is to say in fourteen months, including October 1st, 1915, $16,666.66 towards the funds for its support. I was summoned before your Executive Committee early in the year, and, after an exhaustive discussion of the estimates of expenditure for the ensuing twelve months and the fund I had accumulated, together with the probable income to be expected from the sale of stamps, I was informed that a sum of $100,000 had been voted by the Board towards my fund during that period. I have conducted the organization and laid out its work in accordance with that assurance, but as only $16,666 has been paid of that sum in the seven months including October 1, 1915, my reserve fund has now fallen below the amount necessary to enable me to discharge the personal liabilities I have undertaken. In fact, the brewers' fund which I had accumulated was exhausted in April, so that the $16,666.66 actually remitted from your Treasury has not sufficed since then to pay my own personal reimbursement for more than six of those seven months.

I have been informed that your Executive Committee, when asked for remittance under the appropriation made by your Board, declined to make further remittances until an audit of my expenditures had been made, and a firm of public accountants was accordingly employed by the Finance Committee for that purpose. This firm, through six or seven of its employees, has since investigated down to the minutest and most delicate details all the dealings and operations of my organization from the date of its inception, and its voluminous report and figures, compiled from our books and vouchers, are, I believe, now in the hands of the President.

Respectfully submitted.

PERCY ANDREAE.

In support of the allegation that deductions of large sums were made from the income returns of the several brewing corporations, covering contributions made for political purposes in the nature of assessments to the brewers' association, the following copy of a communication addressed to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, dated January 5, 1916, and signed by the officers of the Pennsylvania State Brewers' Association admitting the erroneous and improper deductions, and agreeing to the reassessment of income tax on the several amounts, is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 870."

EXHIBIT No. 870.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., January 5th, 1916.

Hon. W. H. OSBORN,
Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Washington, D. C.

DEAR SIR: In response to interrogation by Revenue Agent, D. L. Frawley, in respect to contributions made heretofore to The Pennsylvania State Brewers Association by its members for the use of the Association, in the matter of deductions claimed by such contributing members in their reports under the Corporation Excise and Income Tax laws of the United States, the said Association by its undersigned officers submits the following through Mr. Frawley: The Pennsylvania State Brewers Association is an unincorporated association having its chief office in the City of Philadelphia; it is a business league or association and makes no profit; on account of a lack of records or books, it is impossible to give a detailed or systematic statement of the contributions heretofore made by its members or such a statement of the expenditure of said contributions.

The association has been advised that under the rulings of the Department that such contributions are not proper deductions of such contributions in making their reports, and that while the Association is unable to give the information asked in respect to contributions of its members for the reason above set forth, it will immediately advise all its members to make amended returns in respect to such contributions to the Association as have been deducted in previous returns and upon which an excise or income tax has not already been paid, and it will advise its members to pay without delay such taxes as may be properly assessed in respect to the same without protest or claim for abatement or refund, or to execute such waivers as may be deemed necessary or desirable by the Department. The Association believes that its members will act in accordance with such suggestion, and that the collection of the said taxes will be made possible without further delay or unnecessary expense.

A list of the contributing members of the Association for each year and other contributors, if any, is herewith submitted.

The Association does not desire to hinder or delay the Department in the collection of such taxes as may be payable, but to give such assistance as lies within its power.

Respectfully,

THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE BREWERS ASSOCIATION.

REPORT OF THE PUBLICATION COMMITTEE.

From September 1, 1912 to January 10, 1913 we have printed 187,500 books and pamphlets, and have distributed 102,130 copies, besides mailing 16,575 circular letters. Our total stock of pamphlets, post-cards, books, etc., is now 707,763 copies.

During this period we have expended about $6000, which includes the cost of printing 7500 copies of the Year Book, and of our Monthly Bulletin, and the special illustrated pamphlet which was distributed at the various exhibitions in connection with our exhibits. It also includes about $600 paid to various newspapers and magazines, international labor journals, etc., for advertisements, and for special articles. It is impossible to conduct a publicity campaign without occasionally sweetening important publications when a direct appeal is made to us in recognition of accumulated favors.

Our Year Book has been sent to 3000 newspapers, and to the principal libraries and the principal educational, agricultural, religious, and labor magazines, besides, of course, to the trade. We also have a list of special names of publicists, authors, and professors who influence public sentiment to whom we sent the Year Book.

In the absence of any specific appropriation or clearly defined educational policy, it is impossible for the Publication Committee to consider any plans for the extension of its operations, and we are keeping expenses down to the minimum, and resisting all possible inducements to enlarge the scope of our operations.

The members of the United States Brewers' Association appear to be satisfied, judging from the absence of complaints, but there is no doubt that we could do much more along the line of educating public sentiment than we are doing, if it is desired, provided we are furnished with the means for it.

REPORT OF PUBLICATION COMMITTEE, JUNE 5TH, 1913.

The stock sheet in your hands speaks for itself. Our recent effort to secure the co-operation of individual brewers in distributing matter has had very meagre results. Only about ten brewers have written for a supply of our latest pamphlets.

We have arranged for the publication of articles of interest in several magazines, and have sent Miss Martin to Oklahoma and Kansas to work up literary material with excellent results. She is taking photographs for this purpose, and also for our use in educational exhibits. She will also visit North Dakota and the Carolinas, and possibly other prohibition States. We have supplied educational material for exhibits in connection with various fairs, expositions, etc., and had charge of an educational booth at the recent Exposition in Wilkes-Barre, which attracted much attention, and proved exceedingly popular. A notable feature of this work is that our literature is carried home, instead of being thrown about the floor as in other cases. At a cost of about $300. in apparatus local brewers can make a striking exhibit with our material, showing the composition of beer and its sanitary manufacturing process, its value as a real temperance beverage, and also a statement of our case against Prohibition.

There are many ways in which effective publicity and educational work can be carried on, but in the absence of a definite policy, and a specific appropriation, your Publication Committee cannot consider additional plans or entertain new projects of any consequence.

Report of the publication committee to the Board of Trustees, Oct. 2, 1913.

During the past twelve months the Publication Committee has spent $9,000., which includes the cost of our Year Book, and of our Monthly Bulletins, and special pamphlets, besides about $2,000. for reading matter and advertisements in various publications.

We have printed 234,000 pamphlets and distributed 214,000. Our stock of pamphlets; postcards, etc. at the present time, is 570,000. The reason that we have printed so little, and have let our stock run down so low is simply because of the limited demand for it from our members and from the State and local brewers' associations. The extent to which such material can be effectively used depends largely upon their initiative and enterprise.

Our Year Book is now regarded among professional men of all classes as the standard book of reference in relation not only to the beer industry, but the whole alcohol problem. The forthcoming Year Book will be of great importance, and your Committee believes that it will be wise policy to place it in the hands of the men who mold sentiment in each State. This would require an edition of at least 30,000 bound copies, which would cost from twelve to thirteen thousand dollars, besides postage. Last year we only printed 7,500 copies.

During the past year we have maintained exhibits at the National Food Exposition, the National Land & Irrigation Exposition, the Hospital Exposition, all of which were held in New York, and the industrial expositions in Elizabeth and Wilkes-Barre, Pa., at a total cost of about $5000., which covered all expenses including the cost of special material. The exhibits at our Convention will indicate the possibilities of educational work of this kind, not only in local fairs and expositions, for the campaign purposes where speakers cannot be used to advantage.

We believe that good press work is needed everywhere to educate the public. Your Committee has called attention to the importance of this in the past, and is ready at any time to extend its operations in this respect to any extent that may be practicable, whenever adequate provision is made for it.

REPORT OF THE PUBLICATION COMMITTEE.

The past year has been one of very great activity. The appeal which the Chairman of the Committee made to the members of this Association at the last Convention, for their co-operation in distributing our literature systematically and effectively, has met with a very general response, and the demands have increased to such an extent that we have distributed, during the past ten months, about six million pieces of literature, as compared with less than a million pieces in 1913. We now have standing orders from various members, totaling thirty-five thousand copies of our pamphlets monthly, which they are enclosing with every piece of mail that leaves their offices, or they are sending it out to carefully selected lists.

Discarding the traditions of the past, the lengthy pamphlets formerly issued by this Association, have been gradually eliminated, and concise, pithy, leaflets have been substituted. It has been the constant effort to keep the literature up to the minute in every detail, the arguments brief, but pointed, written in a light breezy style calculated to catch and hold the attention of the reader. Accuracy and reliability are the key-note of all of our publications. Through a complete press clipping service, we are constantly in touch with every line of matter appearing in the public prints, that in any way relate to the brewing industry or to the question of prohibition.

The Publication Committee has responded upon many occasion, for specific work in connection with various localities. We have furnished data and statistics for the speakers in State and local campaigns; have outlined exhibits for State Fairs and the like, sending in literature and material.

In January of this year, we began sending a Press Letter to the leading daily and weekly newspapers of the country, our list comprising some three thousand newspapers. While results can not be directly traced, that the work has had its effect in educating the editors is often indicated by the rather terse comment received. In many instances, editorials have been based on items taken from the Press Letter, and, in the case of great metropolitan dailies, have now and then led to feature stories covering events of exceeding importance to the industry. We have also sent the Press Letter to our members regularly each month, and in this connection, would like to make a suggestion. If the members will make an attempt to have at least one item from the Press Letter inserted in their local newspapers, either directly or through their advertising agents, much could be accomplished. Such work would be particularly easy for the advertising brewers, and we urge our members to seriously consider this suggestion.

Our Legal Bulletin has been gratefully received, and the attorneys of various State Associations have written expressing their appreciation of its usefulness.

One of our constant and baffling problems is how to bring our literature to the attention of the public. No fair-minded person can read the splendid material that we have, without being impressed with it. A few of the State Associations are distributing literature for general educational purposes, systematically and thoroughly, but in many States such work is only done in the heat of a campaign, when everything that is put forth is considered partisan in its character, and has only a transient influence. We have a great deal of special literature which is applicable to particular classes, professions and occupations. It is utterly impossible for a national organization to reach and educate the mass of the people of the United States on any subject. Such work must be done from hundreds of different places. We appeal to our members to take up this work in their respective localities, both individually and with the State and local organizations to which they belong. There is room for a great extension of our work if we can get the co-operation of a larger number of brewers and of their agents and bottlers, who deal so largely with the family trade.

INVESTIGATIONS.

A number of important investigations have been undertaken during the past year. The study of the displacement cost of national prohibition, you are familiar with, as the preliminary report is before you. The completed report will be published in our Year Book and given currency throughout the country. The results should be tremendously impressive and astounding. The work has been done under the direction of the ablest statisticians in the country in their respective fields, and will, we believe, be absolutely unanswerable.

Other investigations include a first-hand study of the enormous increase in the use of drugs in the prohibition states of the South, with particular reference to the relation of drug addiction to insanity. Also a study of the action taken by certain large corporations, enforcing total abstinence upon their men. We planned an inquiry as to the relation of alcohol to industry in various European countries, but this has been stopped by the war. We are, however, conducting an investigation now in respect to the relation to industrial accidents. During the summer, a member of the faculty of Columbia University tramped through the Apalachian Mountains to study the moon-shine question. His report confirms the statements made by Mr. Kephart in his recent book "Our Southern Highlanders," which has been used effectively in recent campaigns, and which will be reviewed in our Year Book in connection with our own investigation. Other studies have been made with reference to the conditions in Maine, Tennessee, Kansas and other States, the results of which have been published in various periodicals of national circulation, over the signatures of the authors, and have been re-printed in pamphlet form.

CALUMET, MICHIGAN.

Several important investigations have been made by a member of our own staff, the value of which may be illustrated by the following instances:

Last Christmas, the newspapers were filled with stories to the effect that the frightful disaster in the copper country of Northern Michigan, where seventy-four women and children were killed at a Xmas tree celebration, was caused by a striking miner, who, under the influence of liquor, started the unwarranted cry of "Fire". We secured an affidavit of the Coroner who presided at the inquest, as well as of the Foreman of the Coroner's Jury, showing that, of the eighty-four witnesses examined, all declared that there was no drunkenness in evidence, that no liquor had been sold in the hall where the tragedy occurred, or in the entire territory on the fatal Christmas eve. Another incident developed as a result of that investigation. The striking miners left their work on July 23rd, 1913, and on July 24th, the brewers of the district, with representatives of the shipping brewers, met at Lake Linden, Michigan, and resolved to sell no beer or to deliver none in the strike zone, while the strike lasted. The resolution had been faithfully observed. The publication of these facts stopped the false reports that were in circulation and made a most favorable impression.

KANSAS.

In March, an investigator was sent to Kansas, to look into the much heralded prosperity of that State. Kansas City, Topeka, Wichita, Leavenworth, Arkansas City and various other cities and towns in the State were visited and the official records carefully examined and copied. Various State officials, including the Governor of Kansas, were interviewed, and a fair and impartial statement of actual conditions was the result. The "What is the matter with Kansas" pamphlet was issued by the Publication Committee, as a result of this investigation, the "deadly parallel" put upon the statements made for prohibition purposes, and those made for home consumption, the latter a matter of State record. Various newspapers and magazine articles were based on the facts obtained during this investigation, notably the "Injuring the Temperance Cause by Gross Exaggerations".

CATHOLIC PROHIBITION CONFERENCE.

Our representative attended a meeting which was called to organize a Catholic Prohibition movement, at Niagara Falls, and subsequently attended the convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Society. The leaders of the latter organization were kept thoroughly informed as to the calibre of the handful of men and women who backed the prohibition movement, and of the fact that it was the Anti-Saloon League affair. The whole matter was thoroughly exposed in representative Catholic papers, with the result that the prohibitionists were refused recognition by the Catholic Total Abstinence Society. We believe, that, by this action, we have stopped a movement that might prove dangerous, but it will have to be followed up with additional work later.

CHAUTAUQUA WORK.

Outside of the large centers of population there is perhaps no organization more important in shaping the sentiment of thoughtful people than the Chautauquas, of which there are now some five thousand throughout the country. It would probably be impossible for us to arrange a hearing with them directly, unless occasionally in the form of a debate, the value of which is distinctly dubious. We have, however, been experimenting for the past four months in a number of the principal Chautauquas in the middle western States, through the medium of an organization that advocates the peaceful solution of all vexed problems of the day, by the application of sympathy, respect and co-operation. Its platform is that the reconstruction of society depends upon individual rectitude, rather than upon civic or commercial revolution, and that the regeneration of the individual is more important than legislation. The argument against sumptuary legislation fits in very well with this program, and has been brought in, incidentally, without creating the antagonism that it would, if given special prominence.

This organization has been engaged in booking speakers for the next year, both in Chautauqua meetings and in the churches, colleges, lyceums, etc. You will, of course, understand that the matter is of a confidential nature, and that the success of the movement would be destroyed by the exploitation of it.

LIBRARY.

Our library is now recognized by all sincere students of the liquor question as being the best equipped clearing house of information on all related subjects. We are constantly supplying material for articles and debates, and have extended the facilities of the library to such men as Professor James Ford, who conducts a course on alcohol at Harvard University; Professor Samuel McCune Lindsey, who conducts a course on social legislation at Columbia, and to many other students, physicians, and writers, with whom we are thus brought into personal contact.

Mention should be made in this connection, of the "Rum Symposium" in EVERYBODY'S magazine, in which we got very much the best of it, and of the forthcoming series of articles on the "Saloon," which will appear in the AMERICAN magazine. The author of the "Saloon" series has discussed the matter with us at great length, and has been helped by us in his field work.

Many of the State Brewers' Associations now employ an experienced newspaper man, and the Organization Bureau has some very able campaign publicity men on its staff. You have heard, in the report of the Trustees, of the movement to improve the morale of the retail trade. We are co-operating with the national, state and local retail liquor dealers' associations in this work, and are supplying them with suitable literature and posters. The International Union of United Brewery Workmen of America has now undertaken publicity work on a comprehensive scale, and has asked for our material assistance and co-operation.

One of the most notable addresses of the year "What shall we do about it," was delivered by Dr. Henry Smith Williams at Battle Creek, for which we supplied a good deal of the material.

A number of articles have appeared in the leading medical journals, as well as in economic and social welfare magazines, for which we have supplied material, or have provided for the necessary investigations upon which the articles were based. It is of exceeding interest to note that medical authorities of the highest repute have lately entered into the discussion concerning alcohol and its relation to every known subject, with the result that some of the most cherished hopes and dreams of the prohibitionists have been shattered.

We had Dr. Williams' book on the "Question of Alcohol," sent by the publishers to a member of the American Medical Association in some fifteen thousand small cities and towns throughout the country, as well as to the libraries. Our own Year Book was sent to a picked list of thirty thousand people, who are the leaders of thought and moulders of public opinion in the United States. This list was made up from the membership of some fifty national organizations of economists, educators, writers, and men of the highest standing in the professional and commercial world, besides going, as a book of reference, to the libraries and newspapers.

CONVENTION EXHIBIT.

We would call the attention of the members of the United States Brewers' Association to the exhibit arranged for this convention, by the Publication Committee. Last year, the exhibit was the means of securing much valuable publicity, and enabled the Association to get many potent facts and figures into the newspapers. This year, we hope to be equally successful from a publicity standpoint, and we also wish to emphasize the importance of this exhibit, when used in connection with State Fairs or with other events of local importance. Our aim has been to arrange a dignified presentation of facts and figures, and so marshal our forces as to make them invincible for publicity purposes.

We are also ready to help our members in arranging and preparing such exhibits, and we believe the stereomotorgraph machines could be used in various ways, with very effective results. We have the material and can aid our members in enlightening the public on the various phases of the problem that confronts us, and urgently request them to put their shoulders to the wheel, for greater progress and broader results for the ensuing year. The influence of the work of the Publication Committee of this Association is subject to only two limitations—the means at our disposal, and the extent of the intelligent co-operation of our members.

JANUARY 6TH, 1915.

To the Members of The Publication Committee.

GENTLEMEN: The enclosed report covers the shipments of our literature for the year 1914. It shows that during the past year we have actually distributed more books and pamphlets than we distributed during the entire five years previously.

Among the important undertakings was the financing of special investigations for the Medical Record, and other publications, by Dr. E. H. Williams, such as the drug habit menace in the South and the conditions of the insane in Kansas and other States, which resulted in the publication of a series of most important articles in the leading medical journals, and also in the Survey, the National Monthly, the New York Tribune, and in a number of important newspapers in California, Washington and Oregon, and several other States. These articles were assembled in book form and the book sent to all the libraries and newspapers.

We also financed a first-hand study of the temperance movement in Germany, by George S. Vierick, which resulted in the publication of several articles in the International. The National Monthly has published a series of articles by J. G. Rice of Chattanooga, Tenn., Cyrus W. Davis, of Maine, Dr. E. H. Williams, I. T. Martin, and others, which have been very widely circulated. The National Monthly is one of the principal organs of the Administration, and goes to every Democratic Congressman and to every Democratic State Legislature, besides having a bona fide list of nearly 100,000 copies. Large extra editions were published for several State Committees in the November elections, in each of which we had a special article.

The National Municipal Review published in July a most important article by John Koren, entitled: "Some Aspects of the Liquor Question," which has been widely distributed. Mr. A. J. Nock, of the American Magazine, has been helped to study saloon conditions in various States, and his articles will appear shortly. We also financed a first-hand study of moon-shining in the Apalachian mountains, but the result of the investigation was not published because the matter was adequately covered in Kephart's recent book: "Our Southern Highlanders."

Under our direction Mr. E. B. Phelps made a study of the relation of alcohol to mortality and morbidity, in rejoinder to the essay on this subject which was published by the American Museum of Safety. Mr. Gustavus Myers was retained to make an investigation of the relation of alcohol to industrial accidents and industrial efficiency, and his report will be published shortly in the Journal of the American Statistical Society. The Secretary's reply to William Allen White, in the Saturday Evening Post, was based in large part on data supplied by Mr. John Koren. Mr. Sherwood's article on "King Alcohol Forced to Give Ground before a World-wide Attack" in the magazine section of the Tribune was the result of a number of personal conferences. In this connection it should be noted that all of these investigations and articles are planned with the greatest care after numerous interviews and the most thorough preparation.

Through the good offices of Mr. James R. Nicholson of Boston, and Mr. Conrad Mann of Kansas City, Missouri, we have been able to get several good articles in the papers published by the "Elks" and the "Eagles." Mr. Monahan has published several articles in his magazine, The Phoenix, and a series of articles were run in the New England Traveler and Tourist.

We have equipped educational exhibits for a number of local expositions, and are now running our moving picture film in about fifteen circuits, mostly in the middle-west. Our office serves as a clearing house for the matter that is printed by the various state and local organizations and campaign committees. We have a "live-wire" list of the men who are doing this sort of work in each state, which constitutes our mailing list for the exchange of all such data.

I enclose a list of the new leaflets that we have issued during the year. Besides these leaflets we have printed a large quantity of posters such as the Temperate Tavern League, to be hung in saloons, and other posters for the particular benefit of laboring men and voters generally in various campaigns.

We secured the publication of a series of short articles in the New England Traveler and Tourist and other special class organs. Our Year Book was sent to all the libraries and newspapers and to a selected list of over 20,000 individuals who are the leaders of thought and the makers of public opinion in the United States. This list was compiled from the membership list of some fifty national organizations, comprising about 120,000 names, and a card index system devised to avoid duplication.

Under the direction of Mr. Herbert S. Stone we have carried on a campaign of advertising in the country papers, and the experience we had in some fifteen States indicates that about two-thirds of the country papers are willing to run such advertising.

We have issued our Monthly Bulletin, our Press Letter and our Legal Bulletin, regularly. The Monthly Bulletin goes to our members only for their information. The Press Letter has not justified itself, and will be discontinued as a periodical, but sent out on special occasions. The Legal Bulletin is a compilation of all the information relating to the liquor cases that were adjudicated in the courts. It is not only very valuable for the attorneys of the state and local brewing associations, but serves to indicate the trend of judicial decisions and interpretations on all matters affecting our industry.

It would be impossible to give more than a summary of all the educational activities in this report. We receive over 13,000 newspaper clippings a month, besides several hundred periodicals and special publications. Practically everything that is printed on any phase of the alcohol question is gone over analytically and abstracted for our information department. We are called upon to furnish material and arguments for college and high school debates, and for the speakers who take part in the campaigns throughout the country, and for all sorts and conditions of people who are studying the question from every angle. Newspaper men, magazine writers, college professors and students come to us for data. The publicity men of the various State and local associations and the advertising agents of the principle breweries also look to us for material. The brewing interests in Canada and New Zealand rely upon us for most of the material upon which their campaigns are conducted.

Besides all of this obvious work, your secretary maintains friendly relations with many important bodies which concern themselves with one phase or another of the liquor question; such for example, as the National Municipal League International Committee for the Study of Alcohol, the American Medical Association, the American Statistical Association, the American Museum of Safety, the Efficiency Society, the National Conference of Charities and Corrections, and a score of political, economic and social welfare organizations.

Report of literature Jan. 1st, 1914, to Dec. 31st, 1914.

5,662,650 books and pamphlets were printed during the year.

2,729,163 Books and pamphlets were sent to brewers.
2,983,212 Books and pamphlets were sent to State and Local Associations.
118,445 Books and pamphlets were sent to Private Individuals.
7,500 Books and pamphlets were sent to Newspapers.
6,000 Books and pamphlets were sent to Libraries.

5,848,320
184,500 Circular letters were sent out (including the Monthly Bulletin, Press Letter and Legal Bulletin).
204 Sample sets of literature have been distributed, (including our 5 Year Books, Text Book and over 200 different pamphlets).
165 Different pamphlets, etc., were sent out to 55 live wires.
In addition we have distributed 19,975 books, not included in our regular stock.

Special studies have been made for us by the leading experts on the rela... of alcohol to industrial accidents, of the mortality from alcohol, and kindr... subjects which have been utilized in various ways.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENTS.

Our correspondents in New Zealand, Norway, Sweden and in the war z... have supplied much material both to us and to the Associated Press. T... material has been further made over for us by certain publicity agencies, ...

sent out as a part of their special service to a large number of newspapers, and returns indicate that these stories have been published in over 300 of the leading daily papers, besides a good many of the smaller dailies and country weeklies. This kind of work can only be done when the articles have news value.

INFORMATION SERVICE.

We are supplying the Committee on Alcohol of the Socialist Party with much important data, which will be used in connection with their report next year. Reference libraries have been prepared, indexed and furnished to the Socialist Committee, the New York Board of Health, and to a number of other organizations, which will make effective and objective use of it. We are supplying data for hundreds of debates to students in universities, colleges and high schools, and are also furnishing much data to men who are speaking for our interests in the various State and local campaigns.

CARTOONS.

The cartoon campaign is well underway, and has been very well received. In the places where these cartoons have been properly displayed, much favorable comment is heard. This work, however, can only be made successful by the continued cooperation of our members.

ADVERTISING.

An experiment has been made of direct advertising in the country papers in a number of States for the purpose of informing the people in the rural districts regarding the merits of beer, and the futility of prohibition. These advertisements have appeared in the following States: Arkansas, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Maryland, New Hampshire, Nevada, Oregon, Pennsylvania and Texas.

We have also conducted or assisted financially in the advertising campaigns which have been carried on for political purposes in Georgia, Louisiana, and Maryland, and during the Michigan campaign we furnished the services of three journalists.

The moving picture "Story of Beer" has been shown in Kentucky, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio, Oregon, Washington, Wisconsin and in parts of New York and other States.

BOOKS.

An abstract of the Wasson book on "Religion and Drink" was sent by the publishers to every minister in the United States. Dr. Williams' book on the "Question of Alcohol" was sent by the publishers to members of the American Medical Association in 20,000 villages and towns. Our Year Book was sent to the libraries, to all institutions of learning, to the newspapers and to some 20,000 writers, statesmen, economists and other men of high standing who make public sentiment. We had Shadwell's book on "Drink, Temperance and Legislation" republished and sent to all the public libraries. Special articles such, for example, as those relating to financial conditions in Tennessee, or to industrial conditions, or alcohol mortality have been sent to special classes such as bankers, real-estate men, lawyers, industrial corporations, life insurance officials, ministers, doctors, etc.

DISTRIBUTION OF LITERATURE.

During the past twelve months we have sent out over nine million pieces of literature. In the distribution of this material we must rely upon the effective co-operation of State and local organizations as well as that of individual brewers. This co-operation has been given most willingly and ably in those States which have strong organizations. There are, however, several most important centers where practically nothing in the nature of an educational campaign is underway. We wish to emphasize the fact that the first requisite of every State organization is to have a well organized publicity department which should employ an experienced newspaper man. The issues which confront us must be put before the people on their merits and it is only by winning the public sentiment upon the proper presentation of the case, that we can stem the tide of opposition.

Recommendations by the publication committee, adopted January 21, 1916.

1. That the sum of $15,000 be requested for the purpose of purchasing and circulating the publication entitled "The Presidency of the United States of America," with statistical and other data, which would apprize the public of the merits of our cause. REPORT OF THE ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT.

Our problem.—The chief thing that the Advertising Department of the United States Brewers' Association has accomplished during recent months, is to learn what cannot be done. The problem is by no means a simple one. In the first place, there are several States where it is even against the law for newspapers to accept alcoholic advertising, and in the second place, especially in the country districts, the sentiment is overwhelmingly against alcohol.

One important advertising agency, before whom the proposition was laid, spent some days trying to work out the problem, and finally gave it up. Their statement was that advertising acceptable to the newspapers would do the brewers no good, and that advertising of any value to the brewers would be turned down by practically every country paper.

The country editor.—The editor of the small town weekly must depend for his support on the community in which he lives. The center of social activity is the Church, and the Church stands for "Temperance," as they call it, which means total abstinence. We have, therefore, to induce the editor to run advertising which is frankly in opposition to the beliefs of his readers, in order to educate those very readers to our side of the question.

Experimenting.—With this situation confronting us, we have spent several months experimenting; experimenting with copy and with methods of approaching the country editor. We have sent checks in advance, and the average country editor, struggling to make a living, hates to return checks. We have prepared very mild, very inoffensive copy to start with, and in spite of all this, 64 papers out of 140 in Texas, declined the advertising.

Our copy called dangerous.—The attitude of the country editor is plainly shown in the letters we have received, declining our business. These letters show also that the advertising might be effective, if printed, for more than one editor referred to it as contrary to the public interest. Indeed one man wrote that in his 25 years experience, it is the most dangerous advertising that had ever been offered him.

Expert advice.—It has, therefore, been no easy task to break into the communities we wish to reach. Believing that only the most skillful handling of our business would enable us to make any substantial progress, we have consulted no less than eleven of the larger advertising agencies in various parts of the country, and have suggestions and advice regarding copy, from all of them. As soon as one paper declined our contract, we have offered the business to some other paper covering approximately the same territory.

Over 1,200 papers.—The result is that we have succeeded in placing advertising, which is now appearing every other week, in over twelve hundred country papers in Pennsylvania, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Illinois, Maryland, Iowa, Nevada, Texas, Arkansas, Colorado, Utah, Idaho, and Oregon.

The woman voter.—We have taken pains to vary our advertising copy to appeal to a widely differing class of readers. The farmer, the travelling man, the business man, the laborer, and even the woman voter. The increasing activities of the suffragist make it important that special attention be paid to her.

Starting on a small scale.—A start has been made in a campaign of educational advertising—but only a start. The appropriation of $40,000, for use in country papers, made it possible to feel out the editors and get knowledge and experience on which to base a larger campaign for another year. The value of advertising is always cumulative, and we cannot hope, on the present small scale, to make any great impression. Our advertising is not to be compared with the excellent advertising of the associated brewers in Baltimore, or with the impressive series of advertisements which Colonel Ruppert is now running. It is significant, however, that all of these ads. are made up largely from material furnished by the Publication Committee of the United States Brewers' Association, their skillful presentation and ingenious arrangement being the novelty. From which it would appear that there is no lack of matter to advertise—only money.

Handicapped by political consideration—Break away from the distillers.—The Advertising Department has been handicapped by local conditions in many States. Te political situation brought about an alliance with the distilling interests, and to advertise the fact that beer contains only 4% alcohol, was taken by inference as a direct attack upon whiskey. It is perfectly useless not to face conditions as they are. Beer and whiskey are both alcoholic beverages;—one of them harmless. The best thing an advertisement can say about beer is its small percentage of alcohol. If the brewers and their advertising representatives are prevented, by political alliances, from telling the best in their favor, it stands to reason that their whole campaign is weakened. It is time to get over squeamishness about the situation, and to face it with the most modern life-saving methods. Only persistent and energetic advertising, ample appropriation, universal co-operation, and definite distinction made between spirits and harmless beer, can accomplish the desired end; the effectual destruction of the opposition to the industry you represent.

Aid of Brewery Advertising Managers.—In order to make as forceful and intelligent a fight as possible against the opposition, we recommend the organization of an association of brewery advertising managers and publicity men. They are peculiarly qualified to undertake to change sentiment. Through their advertising, they are in closer touch with the public than the brewers themselves, and through their newspaper connections, they are better able to secure publicity than anyone else. If the brewers will allow their advertising men to combine in a sort of Advisory Board, to work with the Advertising Department of the United States Brewers' Association; if they will put squarely up to those men the problem of educating the public, there will be a chance to accomplish a great deal. Each brewer should keep in mind the need of educating the public, and endeavor to work into his advertising, instructive matter. Through an interchange of ideas between advertising managers, the most serviceable copy, and the most sympathetic attitude on the part of the press can be assured.

One object of our advertising is to lay a foundation for general publicity. We should have a card list of every sympathetic paper in the country. Changes should be made daily as new papers accepted our contracts. We should have a preferred list and a secondary list, and to these we should sent, with such frequency as they would stand, appropriate reading matter. This should be sent in plate form and might be supplemented by sending electroes of cartoons on the prohibition question. Only the leading dailies can afford their own cartoonists, and it is not unlikely that many papers would be glad to use cartoons in keeping with the progress of the prohibition discussion, provided they got them free of charge.

The Advertising Department has brought about a closer working arrangement between the campaign managers in various States, and so done away with needless duplication of work and expense. A number of posters of an educational nature have been prepared by the Department, and a collection of poster stamps of a general advertising nature, is now in preparation.

Moving Pictures.—In connection with the advertising work, this Department has had charge of the preparation of the moving picture film, entitled: "Liquid Bread, from Field to Family," which will be shown in connection with this Convention. Prints from this film are being supplied to fifteen moving picture exchanges in various parts of the country, and through them to numberless moving picture theatres. We are assured a large circulation for the film, and we have hopes that it will interest and instruct the public, especially along the sanitary lines of the brewing industry. We have also arranged to have this film shown under the auspices of the United States Department of Labor at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, where it will naturally be seen by large numbers of people.

The Future—Influencing the Publisher.—As to the future, it must be remembered that the propaganda of the prohibitionists is an intensely active movement, marked by great bitterness and fanaticism. Such public opinion as is influenced in favor of prohibition, becomes strongly tinged with this feeling. On the other hand, such public opinion as favors the tolerance which your campaign seeks to promote, is a mere passive force. Prohibition is shouted from the housetops; advocates of legitimate license are always more or less on the defensive. The result is that when your advertisements appear they at once become the targets for bitter and direct attacks on the part of an influential, though prejudiced section of the public. Up to the present time, there has been little or no direct revenue to the country editor, as a result of advocating the cause of prohibition. It is rather a fear of loss of revenue from restricted circulation that furnishes the commercial motive for keeping the publisher in line, or, at least, neutral. Nor can it be expected that the space now being offered the small town publisher represents sufficient inducement for him to take the other side. Those publishers who now accept this advertising, are not always the best. They give value for the money expended, and the advertising undoubtedly has a good effect, but it does not, by a long way, measure up to the emergency.

Results of Adequate Appropriation.—By making an adequate appropriation, two vital results will be achieved. One—The advertisements themselves would be big enough and strong enough to make actual and definite progress. Two—A much larger appeal would be made to the commercial instinct of the publisher—a larger contribution made to his income. In other words, the financial inducement would undoubtedly lead a far larger number of papers to accept your advertising, and this tendency would increase as time went on. Even that publisher, who perhaps never would be brought into line, would not have his prohibition sentiments strengthened by realizing the revenue that his competitors were getting.

One Hundred Thousand Dollars.—The fact that the Hobson National Prohibition Bill is likely to come before Congress in December, and that the Anti-Saloon League has raised $1,300,000 to carry on the fight, makes this an opportune time to increase your educational advertising. We, therefore, suggest that your appropriate One Hundred Thousand Dollars to be used in country papers during the coming year. Such an appropriation would enable us to place a 1 inch double column advertisement in 2,658 small town weekly newspapers, every other week for twelve months. The papers chosen in this estimate are published in towns of less than 10,000 inhabitants, and it should be noted that in the majority of cases, the circulation is not confined to the town proper, but spreads out throughout the county in which the paper is published. This covers every State in the Union, except New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Missouri and Indiana, which States are carrying on their own campaigns.

Reaches 10,000,000 people.—We have estimated that something like ten million people in rural districts would see each of these advertisements, and as these are people who, up to the start of our recent campaign, have heard nothing of the brewer's side of the story, your cause could hardly fail to receive great benefit.

NEW YORK, March 11th, 1909.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX,
109–11 East 15th Street, New York.

MY DEAR MR. FOX: This letter will introduce to you Count Louis Skarzynski who is in America as a representative of the Russian Government, studying the Prohibition movement in our country. I met Count Skarzynski through Prof. Seligman of Columbia University.

As stated to you by Mr. Julius Liebmann over the telephone this morning, he is about to make a trip through the Southern States and is desirous of securing letters of introduction to some of our friends in the South who can give him the needed information.

With kindest regards, I remain

Faithfully yours,

CHARLES J. LIEBMANN.

SOCIETY OF INDUSTRIAL AND COMMERCIAL ECONOMY,
Hotel Continental, Paris, 15th April, 1910.

THE INFLUENCE OF PROHIBITORY LAWS UPON THE MANUFACTURE AND CONSUMPTION OF ALCOHOLIC LIQUORS IN THE UNITED STATES.

(By COUNT SKARZYNSKI.)

1. At the request of the International Union against the abuse of alcoholic liquors, I was sent by the Russian Government to America to study the effects secured in the different States by the laws enacted against alcoholism.

2. In preparing for this voyage, and in studying all that has been published concerning the methods employed in America to carry on the struggle against the abuse of intoxicants, my attention was attracted by the very remarkable articles published on this subject by Mr Yves Guyot, who was also good enough to give me some extremely useful information with regard to my tour of investigation.

The results of all the researches that I made in America in all the Southern and Western States, and then, in returning from California, in the Central States and the Indian territories, corresponded almost entirely with the views expressed by Mr Y. Guyot; and I am glad to have the opportunity of enlarging upon the subject before a Society of which he is a member and which he esteems so highly.

3. The struggle in which the Liquor Industry in America has been engaged, the reasons which provoked that struggle, and the results, as much for society in general, as for the trade itself individually, are subjects which I believe will interest you; and therefore I have taken the liberty of rising to address you.

4. The Bitterness of the Struggle.—Never, perhaps, in the history of humanity, has there been a struggle so pronounced and so acute against a branch of industry, as the struggle which we are now seeing in America. Arthur Brisbane, one of the most conspicuous writers of New York, and editor of several newspapers and reviews, said in the Outlook: "For the moment the Drink question in America is almost as serious as the negro question was fifty years ago. The animosity of one part of the population against the other surpasses all limits."

The Clergy, especially the Baptist and Methodist ministry, preach a Holy War. Mrs Carrie Nation has destroyed, hatchet in hand, hundreds of saloons, without being arrested; Mr William Johnson, a representative of the central Government, to whom Congress has voted an appropriation of $50,000 to finance the struggle against alcoholism, caused to be destroyed, from July 1st to November 16th, 1907, 35,657 bottles of spirits; 130,009 bottles of beer, 1,829 bottles of wine, 1,062 bottles of mineral waters, and 1,574 casks of cider.

An action was brought against him claiming $180,000 damages, but he won the case, and is continuing his work of destruction by causing to be burnt

$6,000 worth of Pellote, a cactus-fruit which the Indians take to give themselves agreeable hallucinations when they are not able to obtain liquor.

Nine States, and many counties, containing altogether more than 38,000,000 inhabitants, not only prohibit all commerce in alcoholic liquors, but also close by sumptuary laws every establishment connected with the industry, since, as the leaders of the movement assert: "In a well regulated State, no one has the right to manufacture poison."

5. The Origin of the Struggle.—It is interesting to record the causes which have led to this campaign against alcoholic liquors, and the reasons which have made it so acute.

Popular movements are always excited by various motives, and we will endeavor to pass in review briefly the most essential of the causes that have led to this excessive excitation of the masses in America.

One of the gravest causes of this movement is the feeling of reaction against the trend of political life and morals in the United States. The intrigues of Tammany Hall, in New York, are too well known for me to enlarge on the subject. Thanks to this organization, the elections of that great Metropolis depend on the dregs of the population, thieves, cadets, etc., who have organized associations of "Repeaters," or people who vote in the names of absent electors—ill or dead—taking money for their services, and demanding also the protection of the politicians elected by this universal suffrage.

Unhappily, Tammany Hall is not the only institution of its kind in the New World, and corruption in political life, in election, and in municipal administration, is the same in almost all the towns of America. The moral level of political life has been lowered to such a point that a serious candidate for the Presidency of the Republic, Mr Bryan, to aid his election was obliged to ask for the support of a Senator, Mr Sullivan, who had been denounced publicly and openly in the Senate as the head of an organization of thieves and professional beggars, and who, in spite of that, was constantly re-elected.

"The dishonesty in the industrial and commercial affairs of America is familiar to all the world," says Professor Münsterberg.

The Secretary of the Treasury, Mr Leslie Shaw, calculated that the Sugar Trust by means of false weights defrauded the Treasury of $100,000,000, on the sugar that they imported into America without paying customs duties. Twenty-one criminal actions were instituted against the Oil Trust, and other actions against other Trusts,—but all without the slightest result.

On March 25th, 1892, the Courts dissolved the Standard Oil Company: in 1888 the Sugar Trust was dissolved: in spite of all, the Trusts have only developed more and more, and their abuses, their depredations upon the public treasury and the pockets of consumers, have assumed with impunity unheard-of dimensions.

Criminal offences and murders are also committed with impunity. Professor Münsterberg states that there are twenty times as many crimes in America as in Europe; Mr H. C. Weir quotes statistics, showing that in France 61 per cent of murders meet with judicial retribution; in Italy, 67 per cent; and in the United States 2 per cent. More than three thousand men were lynched by incensed mobs in the last twenty years; and this certainly was due largely to race-animosity, since the majority of the victims were negroes: but the lack of confidence in the judicial courts of the country was also a very important factor in the outrages.

All this has necessarily given rise to a feeling of need, an ardent desire for social amelioration, of which all good American patriots dream.

But to struggle with corrupt politicians is not a simple affair: still more difficult is the struggle with the multi-millionaires who are the absolute masters of the country and who dictate the laws. However, it is necessary that something should be done; the need for action with a view to amelioration makes itself felt more and more. The movement is strengthened by the feeling of disgust aroused by the dominating position of saloon keepers in the country and the influence which they exercise over elections, with the assistance and protection that they sometimes give to criminals and old convicts. "It is not so much the saloon as the saloon keeper, that the anti-alcoholic struggle is aimed at," says Mr Will Irwin in Collier's Weekly.

6. The Clergy and the Women.—The American clergy, especially the very numerous but usually narrow-minded Methodist and Baptist ministers in the United States, have recognized the rôle that they would be able to play in this struggle against drink. Their churches are abandoned, their creed meets with indifference from the masses. Something was necessary to stir up their parishioners. It is always easier to combine against someone than for something. Therefore it was proclaimed: "The liquor-dealer—there is the enemy." A cry of hatred always finds an echo. The anti-alcoholic struggle gave the clergy an opportunity to interest Woman, who plays a supreme rôle in American society, and who is the first to suffer the consequences of intemperance on the part of her husband, the father of the family. The Baptist and Methodist ministers profited by the occasion; they put themselves at the head of the movement; they assisted at its inception and devised "The Temperance Union of Christian Women," an association admirably organized and working with all the ardor and enegy of which only American women are capable; the "Anti-Saloon League," which is the Union of almost all the Temperance Societies in America, was further organized, chiefly by representatives of the Methodist and Baptist ministry. This League is directed for the more part by pastors who find in the numerous departments of the League very remunerative positions. The annual revenue of this institution is $520,000, and the League, putting almost entirely aside the appeal to moral influence, has made itself a political lever for the election of the legislative bodies, of governors, mayors, judges, district-attorneys, police commissioners, and all those who wish to benefit by the influence of the League at elections. The League gives the necessary votes to those who wish to be elected, but the elected officials are under an obligation to support the League, to assist it in passing the legislation which it desires, and to devote themselves to augmenting its influence.

7. Laws Regulating the Manufacture and Sale of Alcoholic Liquors.—To comprehend fully the methods employed in the struggle against intoxicants in the United States, it is necessary to refer briefly to the fundamental laws of North America, regulating the manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquors.

The Federal Government receives the revenue from the duty on alcoholic beverages—fixed at $1.10 per gallon (or, approximately, one france forty centimes per litre) for 50% spirits; at $1.00 for a 31-gallon barrel of beer (approximately four and a half centimes per litre); and 3 cents per gallon of wine (approximately four centimes per litre). The Federal Government therefore issues licenses for the sale of alcoholic liquors—licenses coming under the designation "special taxes." Without paying these taxes, no one may sell, not merely intoxicating beverages, but also all preparations, medicines, etc. containing alcohol. These licenses do not convey the right to infringe the laws enacted by the legislative bodies of each of the States, nor the regulations of the different towns, since the permits do not give the right of sale where the sale of intoxicating liquors is forbidden by the local authorities. These taxes are not high (averaging $50), but whoever deals illicitly in the commodities designated by the law regulating these taxes, without paying the taxes, is severely punished: that is why even those who are obliged to trade calendestinely, in consequence of the prohibitory laws of the State in which they reside, habitually safeguard themselves by this special license, preferring to avoid any difficulty with the Federal authorities: the same dealers fear much less the local authorities, who are dependent upon the local electors and seek only to remain on good terms with them, in spite of the severity of the law.

Each State having its own legislative bodies, these latter have the right to fix the tariff-scale for licenses, to regulate the liquor trade at their pleasure, to forbid the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, or to give to the counties and districts the right of prohibiting the traffic within their own boundaries.

The prohibition of the industry throughout a whole State is called "State Prohibition," and the right delegated to the districts and counties to regulate their own affairs in connection with the liquor question, is known as "Local Option."

Thus there are now in America nine States which enforce total prohibition; twenty-nine States which have adopted "Local Option," and in which the districts and counties avail themselves freely of the right of prohibition. One State, South Carolina, has introduced a State monopoly in intoxicating liquors, and there are only six States which have refused to enact any special legislation in this connection, in spite of all the efforts of the Anti-Saloon League, the League which has its agencies everywhere in order to influence the ligislators of the different States.

The great majority of the States exact a high price for their licenses, and this brings in a considerable revenue to the State coffers. Prohibition in the State of Alabama—especially in the town of Montgomery—and in the State of North Carolina, had its effect in the reduction of the appropriations available for public education. In the latter State the best professors and teachers withdrew in 12. Criminality.—The development of illicit selling has also had its effect upon the development of criminality in the States where open sale is prohibited.

Thus, in comparing the official statistics of the number of prisoners in 1890 and in 1904, there was a decrease in almost all the States, with the exception of Kansas and North Dakota, where prohibition has been obligatory for forty years.

In 1904, there were in every 100,000 inhabitants of South Carolina (State Monopoly), 56.6 condemned to prison; in Arkansas, 53.4; in Texas, 66.7; in Illinois, 78.5; in Missouri, 86.9; in the District of Columbia, 39.9; and in the three States which then enforced total prohibition, both of manufacture and sale,—North Dakota, 122.5; Kansas, 138.9; and Maine, 248,8.

13. Personal Observations.—But what seemed to me much more demoralizing, is the systematic disregard in many districts of the law concerning the liquor traffic, a disregard which certainly passes on to other laws, when the attitude has once been adopted by the populace and by those who ought to safeguard the observance of the law.

At Atlanta, the capital of Georgia, the chief of police assured me that prohibition is observed in the strictest manner, and yet, in leaving his house, I came across three large saloons in the same street—Dekatur Street—in which were the offices of the chief of police: the saloons were wide open and business was going on as if there were no impediment to prevent it. At Savannah, in the same State of Georgia, I saw a policeman gravely patrolling before two saloons while the voices of the numerous customers resounded in the street.

In certain towns of Kansas, where the law prohibits even fuel-alcohol, I have seen numerous customers filling the establishments, and policemen profiting by the hospitality of the proprietor.

A special commission sent from Youngstown, Ohio, to study the question of prohibition in the large town of Birmingham, Alabama, was able to procure on the day of arrival spirits in twenty-two places, and during its sojourn it discovered 500 clandestine establishments, transformed into soi-disant clubs. On entering these clubs, there were graciously handed to me membership cards that I had not asked for, and receipts for annual dues that, naturally, I had never paid.

14. Contempt for the Law.—This flagrant contempt for the law can only have the most deplorable consequences upon the populace. This is also the opinion of a large number of thoughtful people who take an earnest interest in the social life of the populace.

15. Opinions Expressed with Regard to Prohibitory Laws.—Mr. W. H. Taft, President of the United States, in his book Four Aspects of Civic Duty, writes as follows: "There is nothing more ridiculous and more opposed to sound politics than to enact laws the observance of which cannot be enforced in the social conditions of the country. . . . . Such an example is sometimes afforded by the sumptuary laws forbidding the sale of intoxicants. . . The constant violation or neglect of a law leads to demoralization and desregard of all laws."

A distinguished physician at Washington, Mr. George Hober, wrote to me to this effect: "Statistics prove to us that prohibition of alcoholic liquors not merely does not prevent the consumption, but, on the contrary, only invites clandestine consumption."

"After fifty-seven years of prohibition in the State of Maine," says Mr. Holman Day, in an article in Appleton's Magazine, "the great problem of the sobriety of the people remains in the same condition as in the time of Noah, when that patriarch after a debauch degraded himself to the level of a beast."

16. Effect of Prohibitory Laws upon the Trade.—Now, some one may tell me that in the end, since the consumption is as great, and even greater, under the law of prohibition, the question of the repeal of the law cannot interest the trade.

I believe that this point of view is erroneous. In the first place, the prohibitory law ruins many manufacturers whose distilleries and breweries are closed without the slightest compensation; and commerce generally cannot regard with indifference this precedent, which will be a blazed path and a pattern for all who wish to reform human society by destroying all property and everything which has been created through the efforts and labor of many generations.

On the other hand, we can no longer remain impassive when we see the violent attacks upon the liquor industry in the United States. With the introduction of prohibitory laws responsible merchants, who respect themselves, certainly cannot desire to continue a business which may lead at any moment to their incarceration. All the responsible, upright element is being withdrawn from the industry, and even if the business maintains or even increases its profits, in view of the fact that taxes no longer have to be paid to the local authorities and to the State for licenses, and that a small bribe to the local police amply suffices, it will undoubtedly be the dregs of the populace, those who have nothing more to fear from the penitentiaries and prisons, who will carry on the traffic.

As the liquor dealer has always an influence over the populace, upon the customers who assemble in his establishment, the moral level of the populace will be debased under the influence of those who carry on the business in such conditions, and the odium of the crime of degrading the masses will react on the whole of the industry and discredit it.

I will now draw your kind attention to the lessons to be derived from the experiences that have taken place in America in the field of social amelioration.

Americans delight in law-making: this mania has a tendency to invade Europe, where also there is an inclination to destroy all social organization in order to achieve a phantasmagoric ideal. Well, America has seen herself carried away in this fashion when she wished to combat the evils of alcoholism, and it is thus that the best intentions have produced the most lamentable results, since enthusiasm, and not reason, has dominated the lawmakers.

"Single-mindedly, not zealously, Gentleman," said an illustrious statesman in the French Chambers. American legislators, and sometimes our own also, forget the counsel of Montesquieu, who maintained that mankind should be governed, not be extremes, but by the principles of moderation.

There is also offered in evidence a contract between the United States Brewers' Association and the Continental Brewing Co. by John Gardiner, president, providing for the payment of 3 cents a barrel for five years, which is offered as a sample of the form of contract which was entered into by the brewers generally as the result of the meeting in Chicago on February 20, 1913.

There is also offered in evidence Exhibit No. 847, it being a letter from the Seminary Endowment Association (Inc.), to the president of the United States Brewers' Association, relative to the financial support of that institution, in order that the desired number of teachers of German might be secured.

SEMINARY ENDOWMENT ASSOCIATION (INC.),
357 W. 117 St. New York City, April 27, 1914.

ED. A. SCHMIDT, Esq.,
President of the U. S. Brewers' Association,
127 Edward St., Philadelphia, Pa.

DEAR SIR: In accordance with a conversation some of our directors recently had with Col. J. Huppert, jr., and following his suggestion we should like to ask the board of directors of your association to permit a committee of the Seminary Endowment Association, Inc., to present the cause, explained at length below, to your members at their next meeting, May 8, provided, of course, that you, dear Sir, deem the May meeting opportune for the hearing of our cause.

Because of the actual acute situation of the prohibition movement a prompt realization of the plan to be proposed should prove to be of mutual importance and benefit.

A goodly number of your members such as Col. Gustave Pabst and Jos. E. Uihlein of Milwaukee; Ed. C. Faust, St. Louis; Carl A. Strangmann and George Brendel of Buffalo; Rud. J. Schaefer; Gottfried Piel of New York and many others from all over the U. S. have already identified themselves with movement and we trust they will also indorse this step.

If ever anyone in this country attempted to fight prohibition, as well as other intolerant attack upon personal liberty on the ground of honest conviction and disinterestedness it was purposely and consistently done by the German teachers in America.

You may say: How is it then, that, in spite of such good work, the prohibition movement could become so strong? We must answer: because we were not strong enough. There was never enough German taught in the public elementary schools, there were never enough teachers of German to hold or increase the number of our retainers, the friends of broad and liberal minded education. Why not? Because the only school we have in this country for the training of teachers of German in elementary schools, our German Teachers Seminary in Milwaukee, Wis., which has to supply the whole country with teachers of German, was left without the means to carry on its existence work on a larger scale.

The situation has now become desparate. At the national convention of the German-American Alliance which was held in St. Louis in fall 1913, representatives from the western states, especially, pleaded most urgently for greater output of teachers of German by said national training school.

German instruction could be easily increased to several times its present extent. All educated citizens demand it in the primary schools. School boards have no objections to voting the necessary appropriations, however, THERE ARE NO TEACHERS OF GERMAN.

If the German Teachers Seminary in Milwaukee is given support the desired number of teachers can be furnished.

The late Adolphus Busch of St. Louis, who was a man of great foresight said about this school in a letter to Secretary G. J. Lenz, that all factors should get together to develop this German Teachers' Seminary into a strong bullwark of personal liberty.

In the interest of personal liberty and of the brewing industry the trustees of these teachers of German should be handed over to the state, under no circumstances.

But the brewing industry which, by all means, may be considered the most German of all industries in this country could and should champion the cause of German instruction in America.

The number of students taking German in colleges and universities is trifling as compared to the number of children going to the public elementary schools only; the influence of the teaching of German in the lower schools would reach, therefore, to an infinitely larger contingent of people.

Now, therefore, apart from the fact that the captains of industry represented in the U. S. Brewers Association are excellent business men and know all about "advertising charity and advertising education" we trust they will realize what a tremendous impression on the sentiment of the nation it would make if your association, as a body, would agree on a substantial financial support of our German Teachers Seminary. On this occasion the people must be told too, just why the Brewers' Association help the school i. e. because it has courage enough to denounce the present abolition fake a national disgrace and calamity.

If our committee will be given permission to speak before your May meeting it should like to ask your association to vote a collective donation for the purpose of erecting a school building. It seems to us that we could not very well go before such an important and wealthy gathering with a smaller demand. If all would consent to be taxed pro rata it would be a small matter to realize such a plan. As was repeatedly said during the last few years: The German Americans have at present no task more urgent than to enable the rise of the German-American Teachers' Seminary.

Trusting this frank statement may induce you to procure us the request of hearing and thanking you in advance for any assistance you may care to give us, we beg to remain, dear Sir,

yours very truly

TERRE HAUTE, IND., November 15, 1915.

Mr. G. W. LEMBECK,
Treas., United States Brewers' Ass'n, New York City.

DEAR SIR: Your favor of the 12th received and fully noted. Our Secretary, Mr. George Maier, was present at the meeting in Springfield, Mass., where, in the Executive Meeting of the Association it was made known that the Association members of a nearby State had not been paying their special assessment of two cents per barrel to the Association, but had diverted same to their own uses in their State.

The Terre Haute Brewing Company has for many years past borne the brunt of the fights in Indiana. This we expect to continue to do, and we therefore believe that we are not justified in paying any further dues or assessments until the special assessments we paid in the last two years for 1913 and 1914 of two cents per barrel have been applied against our annual dues, that is, we feel that our dues have been paid for the years 1915, 1916, 1917, and 1918, and we take this view of the matter because of the action of Association members in other States.

Yours very truly,

TERRE HAUTE BREWING CO.,
By C. FAIRBANKS, President.

Nov. 19, 19[illegible]

Mr. C. FAIRBANKS,
President, Terre Haute Brewing Co., Terre Haute, Ind.

DEAR SIR: I have your letter of the 15th before me. I presume that you are referring to the Ohio brewers, who, as you know, have just been through a state-wide prohibition campaign, which taxed their resources to the utmost. They paid their dues and assessments last year, and thirty-two of them have paid their dues for 1915, but in view of their recent campaign we are not pressing them for the 1915 assessment.

You will, of course, undersand that whenever brewers of any State have a state-wide prohibition fight on their hands, we feel that they are entitled to special consideration. The Ohio brewers did not ask us for any assistance, and have always pulled their own weight, and there is no brewing State in the country which has had a sterner or longer fight than the Ohio brewers have had.

If the brewers of Indiana should have to face a state-wide prohibition issue at any time in the future, I am sure that they could count upon the same co-operation.

Perhaps I may say that none of our other members in Indiana have taken any exception to the consideration that has been shown to the Ohio brewers. We take it for granted that your Indiana competitors have also contributed their quota to the defense of their interests within the State of Indiana, as well as to the national fund.

In the judgment of the Board of Trustees, the industry will face in 1916 the most critical time in its existence. We have planned an educational campaign on a larger and more effective scale than ever before, but the extent of this work must be determined by the funds at our disposal and our resources are far less than those of our opponents, such as the Anti-Saloon League. We are, however, appealing successfully to the thoughtful men of the country. We believe that our campaign is now largely a matter of ammunition. If you agree that the fight is worth while, we solicit your hearty co-operation. As a business man you will readily understand that we cannot possibly make up an intelligent working budget if important individual corporations, such as yourselves, undertake to decide for themselves how their dues and assessments shall be apportioned. The proposal you make as to being relieved from further payments until 1919 is untenable, and we trust that with the correction of the misapprehension under which you have written us, you will reconsider the matter.

The officers and trustees of this Association are giving their hearts and minds and all the energy they have to the prosecution of their labors on behalf of the brewing industry. Their task is one of enormous difficulty, and they must have the enthusiastic financial and moral support of all the concerns of prominence in the industry. May we not continue to count you among this number?

Very truly yours,

_____,
Treasurer.

HUGH L. FOX,
Sec'y, 50 Union Square, New York.

DEAR SIR: Your letter under date of the 8th inst. to hand and contents carefully noted. We certainly realize that the present time is a most critical one for the brewers of the United States.

The reason that we presented our resignation is that we have been forced to pay such extraordinary large assessments here in Ohio, just having gone through a state wide fight, also a state wide fight in 1914 and it looks very much like another in 1916. You realize what it means when the brewers of the state have practically got to finance these campaigns.

Our assessments to the state and local associations have been so large that without any prospect of reduction in the near future that we feel it is utterly impossible for us to contribute to the United States Brewers Association and present time. We feel that Ohio must be kept in the wet column by all means and we can save no expense in trying to do this. For that reason we have been very patient with assessments.

For the past two years it has been costing us over twenty cents per barrel on our output and you will agree with me that this amount is prohibitive. We feel that members who are in states that have not been forced to contribute for state wide fights out to, for the present time at least try to take care of the national situation.

We can assure you that if it had not been for the cost to us in the last two years, we would not think of resigning from the U. S. B. A. Just as soon as we see some let up in Ohio in the wet and dry line, we will be only too glad to again come in as a member. We are GENTLEMEN: I beg to acknowledge your letter of the 4th inst, tendering your resignation as members of this Association. Action cannot be taken upon it until the next meeting of our Board of Trustees, which will probably be held early in February. I trust however, that you will reconsider your resignation. There has never been a time in the history of the brewing industry when it was so necessary for all brewers to stand together as it is now. We are facing, from the national viewpoint, a most critical time. Attempts will be made during the present session of Congress to increase the tax on beer; to pass a bill for a national prohibition amendment to the Constitution, and also, to take all alcoholic beverages out of interstate commerce entirely, besides the fight that will be made to put the District of Columbia "dry." Moreover, our opponents have already announced that they will endeavor to force the prohibition issue upon the national conventions of both the Republican and Democratic parties, and in the next Congressional election they will make a determined effort to defeat all Congressmen who will not bow to their wishes.

Now that the issue has become a national one, the opportunity presents itself to have it discussed on its merits from all standpoints, as is attested by the articles in the November and December numbers of the Atlantic Monthly and the North American Review, to which your attention is especially directed. Such articles, however, do not reach the mass of the people, and the great problem which confronts us is to carry on an educational campaign of such magnitude that the facts will be put convincingly before all of the people, no matter how remote many of them may be from the large centers of population.

If there is any special reason for your resignation which you feel that you can mention, I wish you would tell me frankly what it is, so that we may give it all possible consideration.

Our President asks me to write to you again, and to say to you that though you succeed in winning your fight in Ohio, this would be of no valu... we should have national prohibition, or if the transportation companies sh... be forced by Congressional action to refuse to accept any shipments of a holic beverages. Of course, this means that the State and the national f... must be carried on jointly, and both are perhaps equally important. There ... practically no States west of Pennsylvania in which conditions are not jus... acute as they are in Ohio, and if our members throughout the middle w... should all take your position, you can readily see that it would be impos... for us to continue our fight.

Perhaps I may mention in this connection that the brewers east of Ohio, w... have always contributed from one-half to two-thirds of the entire revenue... the U. S. B. GENTLEMEN: If you can consistently make a contribution of Fifteen Hundred Dollars to the Territorial Committee at this time, I am confident that it will be wise policy for you to do so.

I am writing you at the suggestion of Mr. Henry Koehler, of St. Louis, who is president of the St. Louis, Rocky Mountain & Pacific Ry. Co. of New Mexico. We expect to get in as a state this short session of Congress and it is extremely important, in order that a liberal Constitution be adopted that the Republican Party should win in New Mexico this fall. If statehood is put off and the Republicans should fail in this territorial election, which I do not believe they will, but in case such a thing should happen, the new State would be Democratic and prohibition.

If you can make the contribution stated above, I assure you that the same will be very much appreciated. As heretofore stated, it is absolutely essential that the preliminaries for the adoption of a constitution be made at this time. If the Republican organization is victorious, which I am confident it will be, they will control absolutely the framing of the constitution, which will be on very liberal, broad lines. If the Democrats control, the reverse will be the case.

Thanking you in advance for your kind consideration and hoping that you may see your way clear to act promptly in the premises, I am,

Mr. HUGH F. FOX,
United States Brewers' Ass'n, New York City.

DEAR SIR: As you are aware, an initiative bill providing for local option and high license for Oklahoma will be voted on at the coming November election, which bill it is expected, will become a law.

There is no doubt whatever but that if Oklahoma could be placed in the "wet" column, it would be a great slap at prohibition and be a benefit to the business all over the United States.

We received a letter from the United Civic Association, of Oklahoma City, Okla., in which they write as follows:

As you are aware, we now have an initiated bill providing for local option and high license for Oklahoma, to be voted on at the coming November election. We believe this is the year, above all others, for the matter to be tried out, and confidently expect our bill to become a law, providing we can raise the funds to finance the proposition to a conclusion. As the brewers and distillers will be the direct beneficaries of a local option law in this state, as in all others, is it expecting too much to depend upon you to take the matter up and assist in financing this movement for the betterment of the state and for the financial profit of all engaged in the manufacture and sale of your products?

We are aware that reports have been sent out by parties in this locality who have a selfish interest in trying to prevent a vote upon the question this year, and who will always be opposed to any measure being adopted which would interfere with their own personal profits but we want to assure you that reports are out, "That this year is an opportune time." are warranted, as has been proven by the success of our representatives in organizing the state, particularly on the east, or Indian Territory, side.

We would be pleased to have you send a representative here to investigate the men who are at the head of, and managing the campaign. Up to the present we have met all expenses with the office, in formulating the bill and in organization work, but the work is of such magnitude, that under the most economical management it will be impossible to meet financial obligations which necessarily have to be incurred in carrying it on, without outside assistance. We are sending duplicate of this letter to other brewers and distillers. Please let us hear from you at your earliest convenience. Thanking you in advance, and awaiting your pleasure, we are.

In view of this fact. we are inclined to believe that the matter of rendering the parties in Oklahoma all possible assistance, should probably be taken up through your Association, and we would be pleased to receive your suggestion in this respect.

Thanking you for a reply, I am

Sincerely,

R. J. SCHAEFER.

FEBRUARY 1, 1912.

Mr. RUDOLPH J. SCHAEFER,
114 East 51st Street, New York City.

MY DEAR MR. SCHAEFER: I have your favor of the 1st, and am returning the letter from James E. Shepard. I do not know anything about him, but enclose report given to us by the National Religious Training School and Chautauqua for the Colored Race by the Confidential Bureau of the Charity Organization Society, which throws somewhat of a doubt upon Mr. Shepard.

I notice that among the Advisory Board is Thos. B. Shannon of Newark, who is an active Anti-Saloon league man; Dr. Len. G. Broughton, of Atlanta, who is a rabid prohibitionist, and several pastors of Presbyterian and Baptist churches in different parts of the country.

I have a connection in North Carolina through whom I could get a line on the matter if you care to follow it up. As you know North Carolina is a "dry" State, but there is a possibility that prohibition may be an issue in the November elections. In case Dr. Shepard should call on you therefore, it might be well to ask him how each of the North Carolinians on his Board stands in regard to our interests.

In 1909 Peter C. Pritchard was Judge of the U. S. Circuit Court, at which time he decided the action against the South Carolina Dispensary in favor of the Brewers, but the Supreme Court reversed the judgment on the ground that it was an action against the state, prohibited by the Constitution from the Federal Court.

Yours sincerely,

———— ————, Secretary.

DEAR SIR: Will you grant me the honor of presenting the compliments of Judge J. C. Pritchard, Judge U. S. Circuit Court, 4th dist. who will be in New York next Thursday and would welcome from you an invitation to call and explain briefly a most worthy benevolent cause.

ANSWER.

JANUARY 29, 1912.

Mr. JAMES E. SHEPARD,
c/o Hotel Victoria, Bway & 27th St., City.

DEAR SIR: Your letter of January 27th presenting the compliments of Judge Pritchard to Mr. Rudolph J. Schaefer has been received by me and opened. It will be brought to the attention of Mr. Schaefer when he returns to New York. At present he is away from the City.

Respectfully,

————, ————,
Private Secretary.

FEBRUARY 3, 1912.

Mr. R. J. SCHAEFER,
114 East 51st St., New York City.

MY DEAR MR. SCHAEFER: Referring again to Brother Sheppard and Judge Pritchard, I learn through a most reliable source, that Judge Pritchard is the bitterest enemy we have in North Carolina, and that he is a most rabid prohibitionist. Sheppard is a colored man, and is said to be an unscrupulous scoundrel.

In view of the present situation in North Carolina, you could do a very great service if you could induce Judge Pritchard to write a letter over his own signature, soliciting a contribution from you, as a brewer.

Yours sincerely,

_____,
Secretary.

MUNCIE, IND., April 26th, 1909.

Mr. J. A. McDERMOTT,
Chicago, Ill.

DEAR SIR: Tomorrow's election will close a bitter and fanatically fought battle by the Anti Saloon League of Delaware County, Ind. against the Saloon.

As to my part in the effort to stem the tide, I beg to report as follows:

I arrived in Indiana on April 13th and reported to Mr. Albert Lieber at Indianapolis. By his direction I proceeded to Muncie, Delaware County, there to organize the german voters

At Muncie is a german society of 78 members. The name indicates its purpose, mutual insurance—Gegenseitiger Deutscher Unterstutzungsverein HARMONIA.—

There is german-american State Alliance in Indiana, it is a branch of the national Alliance. This State Alliance is in fine shape, its president, Mr. Joseph Keller of Indianapolis is a gentleman of very high character and reputation. Yet the alliance is not represented in Delaware County. The fact is that the Germans of Muncie have lost their identity as Germans and have been assimilated by the Americans.

German ideas and ideals have been forgotten, and the younger generation has been americanized. A good indication for the correctness of this statement may be found in the fact, that years ago there was a german-lutheran church at Muncie, but the congregation has since disbanded and its members have joined english churches, further that the german Catholics do not have their own church, yet there are many of them living in the city.

It is to be regretted that the Indiana State Alliance has not been in position to carry its missionary and organization work to Delaware County at an earlier date than about one week before this county election.

Nobody at Muncie or Indianapolis could tell me anything about the Germans of Delaware County, nobody could tell me where they might be living or about their numbers. By diligent search and much running about I succeeded however in securing a list of 484 names of householders of German birth or extraction. This list does not include the names of young men of voting age, the sons of the earlier settlers.

Almost 95 per cent of these reside within the limits of the city of Muncie, and only about 5 per cent live in the rural district, or in smaller towns.

The officers of the german society and the catholic priest, Rev. Wm. I. Schmidt extended to me their kind assistance in getting this poll list. On Sunday, April 18th I addressed the society and a committee was appointed to make arrangements for a German mass-meeting for Friday evening, April 23d. In the meantime I prepared a circular letter to be sent out to all Germans, and I secured the consent of some prominent business men to stand for this letter. The mass-meeting on Friday evening was not very satisfactory to me with regard to attendance, but I had a resolution prepared, a protest against Local-Option and the actions of the Anti-Saloon League, which was readily adopted and ordered to be published in the local papers. A copy of the resolution attached is marked as Exhibit A., and a copy of the circular letter attached is marked—Exhibit B.—

The Muncie Press in an editorial commented next evening on this meeting, and I heard from many business men favorable remarks about the stand the Germans took.

This makes me all the more believe that the german element at Mun... only dormant, and might be organized into a useful body. But this ca... be done inside of one week, and should be the mission of the State Allian...

I had another, better attended meeting with the Germans, Sunday af... noon, April 25th. All my other time has been and will be devoted to ... from place to place for a purpose.

The Germans of Muncie and Delaware County, with few exceptions ... going to vote, and will vote WET. One pronounced exception is the ... most business man of german extraction, Mr. Henry Keller, he is a Metho... dry and fanatical. I had to leave him alone.

The catholic priest of whom I already spoke, has been, and is our ... friend. While he has kept politics out of the church, I know neverth... that he has been busy amongst his parishoners for the cause of the WETS ... rather against the DRY'S.

I desire to say that while I worked in conjunction with Mrrs Schad, H... trich and Thompson, these gentlemen have aided me in every possible wa...

In conclusion I beg to say that I would consider it highly important if ... sort of an arrangement could be made by which your office could be in ... touch with the German State Alliances in the States to which our work t... us. I have repeatedly found that for some unknown reasons the alliances ... not so active as they might be, and their leaders are either absolutely in... dark as to what should be done, or they have not the backing to carry ... such plans.

Very respectfully,

JULIUS MOERSCH

Mr. JOSEPH PROEBSTLE,
2347 Vine St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

MY DEAR MR. PROEBSTLE: No doubt you have noticed that Ex-Governor F... of Massachusetts has come out for prohibition, both State and National. I ask... our correspondent in Massachusetts for his record regarding labor and other matters, and he writes me as follows:

"You asked me in a recent letter as to the reputation of ex-Gov. Foss. H... hasn't any. He is the most thoroughly discredited man who ever entered pu...

life in Massachusetts. Due to peculiar circumstances, he was three times elected Governor of this State, ran as an independent for a fourth term and polled a vote that was an absolute joke, about ten per cent of what was polled by each of the other two leading candidates.

"Foss is recognized as an unfair employer. He is at the head of the Sturtevant Blower Works in Boston. Several years ago he had a bad strike on his hands and defeated the men. One of the issues was the employment of women in work which woman should not engage in. He has always issued triumphant in his labor fights. By a large element of the public, namely the union lable element, ex-Gov. Foss is cordially hated. The remainder of the public do not accord him that honor, they merely hold him in contempt.

"Foss is a political opportunist. His espousal of national prohibition is a mere trick to catch votes. He would just as readily espouse Voodooism if he thought it would be to his political advantage. Of course what I am writing here is not for publication. If you want me to I will be glad to prepare something for you that is fit to print."

I expect to have something later that we can print, but in the meantime this may give you a cue.

Very truly yours,

——— ———, Secretary.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX,
Secretary U. S. Brewers' Association,
50 Union Square, New York City, N. Y.

MY DEAR MR. FOX: I enclose herewith the story on Eugene N. Foss, ex-Governor of Massachusetts, which you asked me to obtain for you sometime ago. I have a lot more material of a similar nature. The enclosed is a condensed story; but if it is too long, of course you can cut it down.

A big anti-prohibition labor meeting is to be held in Faneuil Hall probably sometime in August, and I intend to have some speaker deliver it on that occasion; but you are, of course, permitted to make any use of it in the meantime you see fit. Sorry to have delayed so long in the matter, but it was a considerable job to dig out and verify the facts.

Very truly yours,

HOWARD NOBLE,
Secretary.

EXHIBIT No. 1012–4.

(From U. S. B. A. files.)

Neither as an employer of labor nor as governor of Massachusetts is the record of Eugene N. Foss, one to conjure with in the Old Bay State. After a checkered political career, during which he "flopped" from one party to another with a rapidity worthy of a lightning-change artist, Mr. Foss has re-entered the arena as a "Prohibition Republican." His conversion to nation-wide prohibition has been universally hailed by the Massachusetts press as a palpable trick to catch votes; because Foss, above all else, is a political opportunist. In his home State he is regarded as a joke, and not a very good joke at that.

Mr. Foss is treasurer and chief owner of the B. F. Sturtevant Blower Works at Readville, a suburb of Boston. He also controls the stock of the Becker Milling Machine Co. Labor troubles developed at both of these plants in the spring of 1913, while Mr. Foss was governor of Massachusetts. The workers asked for the establishment of a minimum wage, increased pay and recognition of a shop committee. Governor Foss peremptorily refused even to consider these requests. The Mayor of Boston and other public men in vain tried to arrange a compromise. Foss turned down all overtures, and on May 29 the 1,500 employees of the Sturtevant Works and the 400 of the Becker Company went on strike.

Both plants re-opened for business on June 2, but only a few of the former employees applied for work. Great pressure was brought to bear on Gov. Foss to induce him to arbitrate his differences with the men; but he steadfastly refused, notwithstanding he had always been an avowed and vociferous champion of the principle of arbitration.

The State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration then took a hand, the men agreeing to submit the matter to arbitration but refusing to return to work until a definite settlement had been reached. On June 29, at a mass meeting on Boston Common, Gov. Foss was condemned "for his refusal to accept conciliation or arbitration." The strikers offered to abide by the decision of any three Boston business men whom Mr. Foss himself should select, but the Governor remained adamant.

Assistant Secretary Louis F. Post of the United States Department of Labor next attempted to act as mediator, but he failed signally. In a report made by Mr. Post, as read to the strikers at a mass meeting, Gov. Foss was quoted as saying that the men must return under the old conditions or not at all, and that he would listen to individual grievances only.

Shortly afterward, the Boston newspapers printed stories containing charges that eviction notices had been served upon some of Foss' tenants who were among the strikers. An aged woman, Mrs. C. R. Watts, 10 Waterloo Street, whose sole support was a son who had a wife and six children, was said to have been served with such a notice. William Doyle of 21 Damon Street, a striker, whose wife was in a hospital, was another ordered to move out. Such a stir was created over these charges that a halt was called on the eviction plans forthwith.

The Mayor of the city repeatedly tried to arrange some basis of settlement, but all overtures were rejected by Gov. Foss, and the men finally returned to work on Sept. 4, 1913, having held out four months. Gov. Foss issued a statement claiming that the Sturtevant strikers had been granted no concessions whatever—in other words, that he had broken the strike. The public marveled how the Governor found it possible to reconcile such an attitude with his pre-election stump speeches, in which he had posed as the friend of labor and a believer in arbitration of labor troubles.

Mr. Foss' hostility to labor was a matter of record, however, long before the big strike. As far back as 1909 the Republic State Committee of Massachusetts, as a result of repeated denials by Foss, made public photographic copies of a letter signed by Foss, urging Governor Draper to veto the eight-hour bill.

On June 28, 1910, Mr. Foss, who had recently been elected to Congress, refused to consider the request of his firemen at the power plant of the Sturtevant Works for decent working conditions, according to a statement made by P. J. Sheehan, business manager of Stationary Firemen's Union 242. The men were working twelve hours a day, seven days in the week.

On July 27, 1910, President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor wrote a letter to Whitfield Tuck of the general executive board of the National Democratic League of Clubs, in which Foss was criticized for his attitude on labor measures while he was serving in Congress. He was arraigned by Gompers for voting against the so-called Hughes amendment to the sundry civil bill, which provided that no part of an appropriation of $250,000, to enable the Attorney-General to conduct prosecutions under the Sherman Anti-Trust law, should be spent in the prosecution of labor organizations.

Boston Machinists Lodge, 264, on August 18, 1910, adopted a resolution condemning Foss "for his persistent, antagonistic attitude toward organized labor and Boston Lodge of Machinists in particular." The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen of Massachusetts scored Foss in a letter made public September 6, 1912, as a man who "would stoop to barter principle in the mart of political advancement." It can be said without the slightest exaggeration that this estimate of Mr. Foss is the universal one throughout his home State, in labor circles and out of them.

There are no two opinions in the ranks of organized labor as to Mr. Foss' unfairness and hostility toward that cause, and in proof of this contention, labor leaders in Massachusetts cite more than forty measures in which this hostility was displayed during his three terms as Governor. Space considerations forbid publication of the full list, but among the more important were the following instances:

He vetoed the Somerville Firemen's Pension Bill, Chapter 453, Acts of 1912. It was later passed over his veto.

In one inaugural message, he proposed a Labor Board and Industrial Commission of five members. Yet when Chapter 726 of the Acts of 1912, which provides for that, was presented to him for his signature, he refused to sign it, and only did so at the last moment when he was assured that if he vetoed it, it would be passed over his veto.

He vetoed the Full Train Crew Bill, which provided for an extra brakeman on freight trains of thirty cars or more. He did this after promising to sign it. For this action, he was condemned by the Railway Train Men's Union, representing 62,000 voters in the Commonwealth.

He vetoed the Engineers Bill, which, in order to prevent boiler explosions and insure safety of the public and the workers of the Commonwealth, called for a separation of the Boiler Inspection Department from the State Police. But his veto was not a fair and open veto; he resorted to the tricky device of the pocket veto.

It was in the last year of his three years' administration that he showed the greatest hostility towards all measures aimed to better the lot of the working man.

He allowed a bill relative to the employment of children and women in workshops connected with mercantile establishments to become a law without his signature in 1912.

He vetoed the bill providing for an increase of wages for firemen and their helpers at the State House.

Twice he vetoed the "Peaceful Persuasion" Bill after it had been passed twice by both branches of the Legislature at the instance of organized labor.

On March 19, 1913, he sent to the Legislature his veto of the bill fixing the pay of laborers employed by the Metropolitan Park and the Metropolitan Water & Sewerage Boards at $2.50 a day. In 1911, he vetoed a bill fixing the wages of the same employees at $2.25 a day, and it was passed over his veto by the Legislature.

He vetoed the so-called "9 in 11 hours" bill which would better working hours of street railway employees. The Boston Carmen's Union fought long and hard for this measure and were exceedingly bitter over his action. They issued a statement denouncing him, saying that he looked everywhere for avenues to escape the responsibility of vetoing it. It was also shown that previously no progress had been made in bettering the hours of labor of street car employees for twenty years. The Senate and House both passed the bill over his veto.

He vetoed the barbers' registration bill on June 19, 1913, another sanitary measure urged by leading health workers.

He vetoed the bill to increase the pay of members of the district police force.

On March 27, 1913, the Boston Herald, editorially commenting on his actions, said that he will probably learn that it pays in the long run to play the game squarely.

Representative Charles D. Smith of Gloucester, a Democrat, on May 7, 1913, in a speech in the Legislature against the Republican tariff resolution which Foss, though elected Governor by the Democrats, was suspected of favoring, said that he had abrogated the Democrat principles and called him a "bushwacker."

He vetoed the bill which would grant the Suffolk Law School the right to confer degrees after he had intimated to Dean G. L. Archer that he would sign it. Dean Archer then issued a public statement saying:—"I was guileless enough to believe that no human being could be guilty of such hypocrisy."

REPORT ON COL., UTAH, AND IDAHO, FROM THE DENVER CONVENTION, BY J. A. M'DERMOTT.

CHICAGO, July 15th, 1908.

While at Denver, at the Albany Hotel, I met Mr. A. M. Eppstein, Secretary and Treasurer of the Brewers and Wholesale Liquor dealers association of Colorado. He informed me that they are keeping close watch of the situation in Colorado, and after consultation with Mr. Zang and Mr. Coores, they informed me that the Brewers at Trinidad and Pueblo are not taking the interest that they should in the state election. The future of their business depends a great deal on the election of a liberal man for governor. They are working on that now.

Mr. Eppstein, having sold out his wine and beer business, is going to retire, and they are looking for a good man, which they want us to help them to select. It is my intention to go to Colorado inside of the next thirty days, and have this matter settled, as, on this matter in Colorado, depends a great deal what is done in Utah and Idaho. In Utah, I received a letter from Becker, asking me to go there some time this week. That was impossible so I have arranged to go there when I am in Colorado, the first part of August. Information also received from the Brewers who were in Denver from Utah and Idaho, led me to believe that a stiff fight is in progress in both of these states, and I think the situation requires some attention. The attitude of the Mormon Church is worrying our people a great deal in that state.

REPORT ON CONDITIONS IN THE STATE OF UTAH, BY W. F. SCHAD.

OGDEN, UTAH, May 25th, 1908.

Arrived in Ogden, Utah 4.50 p. m. May 15th., 1908. The next morning I got into communication with Mr. Fred J. Kiesel Utah representative of The Pabst Brewing Company, and discussed the State situation with him informally.

Mr. Gustave Becker, President of The Becker Brewing and Malting Company, was in the state of Washintgon on a business trip, and as he was not expected home until Saturday May 23rd 1908, and also at the request of Mr. Kiesel I immediately left for Salt Lake City, Utah.

I found conditions in Salt Lake City in very bad shape. At least 20 per cent of the saloons of that city should be cut out, for the reason that they are mostly low dives, catering for their trade to women of ill repute and the lowest class of men.

All saloons and I mean every saloon in Salt Lake City, have (trade slot machines) and several of them have money slot machines in operation. A number of them have music such as pianos, etc., and same are used at all hours.

I discussed all the evils above mentioned with the different Salt Lake Brewers, and Brewery agents and they were all of the opinion that these conditions must be regulated or rather eliminated.

I then suggested an organiaztion of Salt Lake Brewers and brewery agents, which suggestion was accepted by all concerned with the possible exception of Mr. Jacob Moritz, vice president and general manager of the Salt Lake Brewery Co., who although in favor of the assn., stated that he positively would have nothing to do with any organiaztion with which Mr. Reilly, agent of the W. J. Lemp Brewing Co., had an interest. The Salt Lake Brewing Company, being the largest Brewery in the State, I of course failed to organize as contemplated.

I investigated the matter further and found that the difference between Mr. Moritz and Mr. Reilly, was of a business nature, it seems that Mr. Reilly, who formerly handled Mr. Moritz product secured the Lemp Agency and since that time has handled Lemp exclusively, he is also supplying the Lemp product to five or six other saloons.

Called on Mr. Reilly and found that he was willing to forget as he puts it, the harm done him by Mr. Moritz, and would be willing to agree to any reasonable rules that would eventually lead to the elimination of the so called dives. He admitted to me that he had a place that should be closed, but stated that he would not attempt to close same, unless the balance of the brewers and brewery agents also agreed to close places of a like nature now supplied by them.

Saw Mr. Moritz again and explained to him how Mr. Reilly felt regarding the matter, but all the persuasion that I could possibly use had no effect upon Mr. Moritz, as he again stated that he would belong to no organization that Mr. Reilly was a member of.

They are all anxious to form the organization referred to and I am satisfied that with the assistance of Messrs. Kiesel and Becker of Ogden, the Salt Lake interests will be gotten together shortly.

While in Salt Lake City, I called upon the following gentlemen: A. Fisher, Prop. of The Fisher Brewing Co.; Jacob Moritz, Vice Pres't and Gen'l Mgr. Salt Lake B. Co.; W. P. Kiser, Vice Pres't and Mgr., Wagner Brewing Co.; Reiger & Lindley, Rep. The Pabst Brewing Co.; Olsen and Lytle, Rep. The Anhauser Busch Brewing Assn.; Adams Snyder, Rep. The Krug Brewing Co.; Mulvey Bros. Rep. The American Brewing Co.; Chas. H. Reilly, Rep. The W. J. Lemp Brewing Co.; Mr. P. Buller, Pres't of The Buller Brewing Co.

I failed to meet the Agent of The Zang Brewing Co. of Denver.

The John Deer Plow Company of Moliene, Ill., hold a majority of the stock in the H. Wagner Brewing Co., of Salt Lake.

The present Mayor and Board of Alderman of Salt Lake City, who were elected on The American ticket are with us, but the Governor who is a Mormon, will be guided in his actions from instructions received from the highest authority in the Mormon Church, Pres't Jos. F. Smith.

The ministers of Salt Lake City, outside of the Catholic and Jewish Denominations have an Assn., called The Ministerial Union of Salt Lake City, and have joined the Federation of Labor. They are naturally for prohibition, and are using every effort to get The Mormon Church to join them in this fight.

Salt Lake City has five Daily papers, of which the following are favorable, Tribune, Herald, and Evening Telegram. The following are strenuously advocating local option or prohibition, Intermountain Republican, and Deseret News, both Mormon Publications.

As my own private opinion, based on what I have been told by different brewers and brewery agents, Mr. Moritz is the stumbling block to any improvement in the liquor and beer conditions in Salt Lake City.

I expect to run back to Salt Lake City for a day, and if possible take with me Messrs. Becker and Kiesel, and with their assistance make an other effort to get Mr. Moritz in line in order to organize the Assn., above referred to.

Returned to Ogden May 24th 1908, and this morning had an interview jointly with Messrs. Becker and Kiesel, explained to them the conditions as I found them in Salt Lake City, and told them my opinion was that an Organization of Brewers and Brewers agents should be formed there at once, and that they must put out of business the dives now being conducted. They both agreed with me and Mr. Becker said that he believed all the present agitation in Utah is due to the loosely conducted saloons in Salt Lake City, as that City is the capital of the state, and all these evils are brought right up to the country legislature.

To sum the entire matter up in a nut-shell on what action is taken in the premises by Pres't Jos. F. Smith, the High Priest of The Mormon Church in the United States, will rest the result in Utah.

Both houses of the legislature are strongly Morman and it is the intention of Mr. Kiesel to use every effort to get a majority of the state senate, which numbers eighteen members, in favor of our interests, and at this time is working to that end. He is also and has been for some time, friendly with the head officers of The Mormon church, ncluding Senator Smoot, and at this time believes he can ward off any concerted action on this question by the Mormon people, but says it will take considerable money in order to do so.

Conditions here are vastly different from other locations, as the Mormon people are the big factor in state elections, and should the leaders of that faith come out for prohibition, nothing will save our interests in Utah, Arizona, New Mexico, Idaho, Wyoming, and Nevada. Messrs. Becker and Kiesel and in fact all the Salt Lake City Brewers are of the same opinion, for the reason that all the states and territories above mentioned are thickly populated with Mormons.

Some time ago the matter of endorsing prohibition was brought before a meeting of the Young Mens Improvement Society, a Mormon institution, by Major Young grandson of the late Brigham Young, the state vice Pres't of that organization, which numbers twenty six thousand voters, but was opposed and defeated when an argument of personal liberty was put up by Brigham H. Roberts, the Pres't of the organization.

Messrs Kiesel and Becker, state that they will need a fund of at least $50000.00 to properly carry on and win the fight. They also inform me that The Utah brewers will assess themselves 20¢ per barrel in order to carry on the fight and now call upon the shipping brewers to contribute 10¢ per barrel on the quantity of their product disposed of in this state. This I recommend for your consideration.

Roughly estimated, the brewers of Utah brew about 150000 barrels per annum, most of which is sold in Utah. I have no figures on the amount of beer disposed of in Utah by the shipping brewers.

I will tomorrow assist Mr. E. T. Hulaniski, in organizing an Literary Bureau to be conducted here by the brewers and brewery agents. They intend to circulate all printed matter suitable to Utah furnished them, and with this end in view I would request you to send Mr. Hulaniski a sample of all matter so far issued by our Assn., and have Mr. Fox place his name on his regular mailing list.

Mr. Hulaniski is a state senator from this district, and I am satisfied will be of much benefit to our interests not only now, but during the sessions of the Legislature. Mr. Kiesel should be congratulated on upon being able or rather in position to engage so prominent a man for this class of work. Mr. Hulaniski is at present an Attorney at Law with offices in The First National Bank Bldg., Ogden, Utah.

I believe it will be harmful to our interests to attempt at this time to organize any Business Mens Assn., in Utah, as it might cause the opposition, and possibly the Mormons to become more active than they are at present, and instead of gaining a point we may loose several. The above is also the opinion of all gentlemen interviewed.

The climatic condition namely high altitude, and dry atmosphere, of this state favors a large consumption of beer, and to the miner and farmer it becomes almost indispensable, notwithstanding the revelations and doctrines forbidding the use of stimulants to the deciples of the Mormon Church. Most of the leaders of this faith use stimulants quietly.

The saloons in Ogden are conducted in first class manner and I believe this is due to the zealous work of Messrs Kiesel and Becker, who are working hand in hand with the Mayor, Chief of Police and other city officials, and stand ready at all times to assist the local officers in compelling the saloon men to live up to the state laws and city ordinances. I attach here to and make same part of this report printed copy of a recent liquor ordinance adopted by the City Council of Ogden, in order to show you what restrictions have been placed on the local saloon keeper. This ordinance was framed and recommended for adoption by Messrs Kiesel and Becker.

I believe if it is possible to have Mr. Samuel Gompers, Pres't of The Federation of Labor, openly state his views on the prohibition question, which I understand will be against prohibition, it will be of far reaching effect and will certainly assist us in our Utah fight. At this time the state federation of Labor has taken no action. The Miners Union naturally will be guided in what ever Mr. Gompers views might be on the subject.

I understand Mr. Gompers is of the Jewish faith, and as all the Rabbis are with us in this fight, believe pressure could be brought to bear upon Mr. Gompers to come out in our favor.

WYOMING AND IDAHO.

The conditions in the above mentioned states are some what similar to the conditions in Utah. The agitation is on in Idaho but not as strong in Wyoming.

The Utah brewers believe that if we are successful here the agitation will stop in the two above mentioned states. The Mormons in those states look to their people in Utah as an example, and invariably follow what ever action is taken in Utah on any matter of state importance. The Mormons in these two states on the liquor question, will hold the balance of power, and can defeat prohibition if they so desire.

Respectfully submitted.

W. F. SCHOD.

Mr. Gus Becker, Pres't of Becker Brewing Co., and A. Fisher Prop. of The Fisher Brewing Co., will be in attendance at The National convention of the U. S. B. Assn., and I believe intend to lay the Utah situation before the convention or the executive committee in detail.

Mr. Hanna, the man you are to secure can come on Tuesday and stay until your return—Wed. & Thsdy.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX,
Secretary United States Brewers' Ass'n.,
50 Union Square, New York City, N. Y.

MY DEAR MR. FOX: Some weeks ago, you wrote me requesting particulars regarding the alleged arrest of Sam Small, the evangelist, in 1889 in this city, for appropriating money collected in behalf of Utah University.

I was unable because of pressure of work to look into this matter personally; but I have had it done by a newspaper man who has had years of experience in court work. He appears to have gone into the matter thoroughly, having consumed some days in the quest. He reports as follows:—

"Examination of the records of the superior criminal court of Suffolk County for the years 1888, 1889 and 1890 failed to disclose where Sam Small or any individual whose name resembles his was brought into court on any charge.

"Examination of the records of the sheriff of Suffolk County resulted similarly. Deputy Sheriff Kelly, however, says he recalls that Sam Small, the evangelist, was arrested back in the 90's by the Boston police for speaking on Boston Common without a permit in defiance of a police order. Kelly has been in the Pemberton Square courthouse for more than thirty years and fails to remember where Small was ever taken into custody on any other charge.

"Examination of the records of the Boston police department by Inspector Silas Waite, who was detailed by Capt. Armstrong of the bureau of criminal investigation to aid me, showed that a Sam Small was arrested in 1889 on a pickpocket charge. We dug up the photograph of Sam Small, pickpocket, in the records and are satisfied that he was not the evangelist"

If your informant, Dr. John Wesley Hill, is correct in his facts, I am inclined to think that for some reason no record of it was made.

Very truly yours,

HOWARD NOBLE, Secretary.

REPORT ON DENVER CONVENTION,

By J. A. McDERMOTT.

CHICAGO, ILL., July 15th, 08.

On my arrival at Denver, July 6th, it became apparent, after a conference with Bryan and Johnson managers, that the Bryan forces were absolutely going to control the Democratic National Convention. Consequently the platform for the party for the ensuing campaign would be formed by the Bryan people. I was accompanied to the convention by Mr. E. R. Diederich, who was an alternate of the Illinois Delegation and a personal friend of R. C. Sullivan, who was easily one of the big men of the convention, and by Ex. Gov. Geo. W. Peck of Wisconsin and Geo. J. Thompson, our Labor Bureau man. We were quartered at the Albany Hotel.

Upon inquiry, I found out that the man who was selected for chairman of the platform committee was Gov. C. N. Haskell of Oklahoma. I immediately called on Gov. Haskell; was properly introduced and received a very respectful hearing. Gov. Haskell informed me confidentially, that while he was a prohibitionist, he was opposed on principal to anything being inserted in the Democratic National platform, touching the liquor question in any way. I was also introduced to Mr. Chas. P. Bryan of Lincoln, Neb., brother of Wm. Jennings Bryan, and had a talk with him, in which he likewise informed me as to his personal opinion being opposed to having anything touching the liquor question inserted in the Democratic National Platform. This did not deter us from watching all resolutions that were presented to the platform committee. On being informed as we were by friends on the committee that ex Gox. Harris of Kansas had introduced a very dangerous resolutions, reading as follows:

Resolved, That the Democratic party recognizes the right of home rule in the different States, and the Democratic party in recognition of Home Rule, asks the federal government that in the issuance of Internal Revenue Licenses for the respectives states, that, in so far as possible, the policies of the different states, to be showed in the issuance of said licenses be recognized.

We immediately got busy on this proposition. I had Mr. Diederich see Mr. Roger C. Sullivan and Mr. Saml. Alschuler of Illinois, who was on the subcommittee. Mr. Diederich reported that Mr. Alschuler recognized the fact that this impractical effort would mean a national prohibition plank, and would mean that the United States Government laws enforce prohibition. Mr. Alschuler was very active in having same killed in subcommittee. I saw Mr. Taggart, chairman of the Democratic National committee and Mr. John E. Lamb of Terre Haute, Ind., who also recognized the seriousness of this, and who became very active. I then saw Mr. Ollie James of Kentucky, to whom I had a telegram of introduction from C. M. Lewis of the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers Assn., ex-Gov. Beckham of Kentucky and ex-Senator Pettigrew of South Dakota, and all of these men were active in killing the resolution in the subcommittee. Ex-Gov. Beckham saw Mr. C. H. Weisse of Cheboygan, who understood the situation and saw that same was effectively smothered. Mr. Weisse, I saw personally afterwards and he understood the situation thoroughly. Senator James Smith of New Jersey was also active in the matter, as well as Martin Obrien of Minnesota.

Mr. Bryan' brother took a hand in the matter, and had it submitted personally before W. J. Bryan, at Lincoln, Nebr. Mr. Bryan would not have the matter mentioned in any way in the Democratic platform, so it was immediately cut out. Chas. Bryan told me afterwards that he was very glad that we had representatives there, and said that his brother was opposed to prohibition, but did not think it advisable to make the statement publicly.

In my opinion, it was a very wise thing for us to have been on the ground, for these reasons: It gave us a chance to extend our acquaintance with the Democratic politicians, and also gave us the opportunity to let them know that we were looking after our interests.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: I enclose copies of letters from Mr. Geo. Hanlon Editor and Proprietor of the Gallatin Democrat of Shawneetown, Ill., and from Mr. C. H. Hon. RICHARD BARTHOLDT, M. C.,
Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR MR. BARTHOLDT: The fight now being waged in Missouri and Illinois, and in fact the whole country, against the liquor interest is alarming. While I stand firmly for the betterment of my people, yet I have ever felt that the crusade against invested capital was wholly uncalled for. I have no way of knowing the sentiment of my people, but I feel that a majority of them could be won over to our side. Of the one hundred and fifteen counties in Missouri, all but a handful have been carried away by the "craze," and the enemy is now making active preparations to lay seige to that handful. It's strange that in such a crisis, no concerted plan of action has been attempted among our people by the men whose money is tied up in these institutions. I am not authorized to speak for the Negro National Educational Congress, but as General Attorney for that great organization, I feel that it could be made into a powerful weapon, with which to combat this movement. A few thousand dollars would enable us to carry the war into every section where our votes would count most.

Hoping to hear from you at an early date, I am,

Yours truly,

C. H. CALLOWAY. (signed).

JULY 21ST, 1908.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX, New York City, N. Y.

MY DEAR MR. FOX: I had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Carradine and had a nice visit with him, and went over the Georgia situation quite thoroughly. He is alive to the situation, and, in my opinion, has handled it very well, and I regret the mix up on the part of the Shipping Brewers.

In regard to the situation at Florida, I have written Mr. Liebman and that is a closed incident. The situation in N. C. however, is not closed, on account of the actions of Mr. Baer of Wilmington, who, for some personal reason has refused to make a settlement with Mayor Boydon and Emil Clark, who were the two men that put in their time and worked hard on the N. C. situation, without any remuneration or the hope of any. It was an act of principal on Mr. Boydons part in taking the chairmanship, and Mr. Baer should have turned the contribution over as soon as received. I have forwarded Col. Pabst the correspondence relating to same received from Mr. Boydon and Clark, as Mr. Baer will be in Milwaukee tomorrow. Enclosed find letter from Senator Buckman of Jacksonville which explains itself. If you wish to have a copy made do so and then return to me. I also enclose Mr. Crane's letter and also a clipping from the New York Globe. There is no question but what there is some truth in this report.

As you are on a vacation, I will postpone my trip until the first week in August, at which time, it would be well for Mr. Crane, yourself and I to talk over the situation. When I was in Nashville, I handed out the word a couple of days before election day, and I think our people were the ones who defeated John Wesley Ganes, who has stood for all the prohibition measures. I do not want to make any moves without first consulting Mr. Crane. I am going to keep in touch with the Democratic National end of the proposition here in Chicago, and especially the Democratic National Chairman and Executive Committee, so in case the Congress does go democratic, our friends will have something to say.

Yours very truly,

JOHN A. MCDERMOTT,
Mgr. organization bureau.

J. L. P.

[H. H. Buckman, attorney and counselor at law and solicitor in chancery, chambers 215 to 219 Dyal-Upchurch Building, Jacksonville, Fla.]

JULY 17, 1908.

Mr. J. A. MCDERMOTT,
709 Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill.

MY DEAR MR. MCDERMOTT: Your telegram of yesterday afternoon received saying that the matter had been arranged and that checks to the amount of $6,000.00 would be mailed, and I expect the arrival of the checks tomorrow or the next day. I assure you I appreciate your prompt action in the matter, which relieves the situation immensely and relieves me of a personal strain, aside from the enormous annoyance of getting letters from all over the State intimating that there is no reason for not having the funds on hand to pay these obligations, and this was getting a little galling. While I might have been able to stand that personally you can realize it was breeding discontent in quarters where we could not afford it. Had I made these obligations directly myself, it might have changed the situation somewhat, but a great deal of the conducting of such matters at the last moment has to be left to the agents you have selected in the different counties, and while they exceeded their authority in creating obligations without my direct authority for it, as these obligations were made to others there was nothing to do but to settle them. It is a chain in which there are many links and one broken effects all the others both ways in a more or less degree. Until these obligations were paid, I was hampered in my further work. Pardon, therefore, if I have seemed persistent.

I know you appreciate the situation otherwise I should not have had your prompt acquiescence and help. I do feel that these people should have readily seen that the work accomplished was worth so much to them, that they should not have hesitated a moment, or that I should have been embarrassed at all in relation to funds.

I want to say to you personally that but for your ready grasp of the situation in the beginning, your confidence in me and the influence that you brought to bear upon Mr. Pabst and a few others, who were intelligent enough to take a proper view of the situation, and the further fact that I happened to be in such a position with the business people here as to have their confidence, that the result could not have been accomplished. To you, therefore, must be due and should be given the credit of making this result possible.

This business is a perpetual warfare. You have to climb the ladder one round at a time. You can only build a building by one stone or brick at a time. Therefore, while we have won this fight, it is simply one round of the ladder, one brick or one stone in the wall, and we have to proceed to climb another round or lay on another stone. That means the organization of the House and Senate. When you really come to look at the situation it is astonishing how many men there are that will follow if somebody will lead, but that somebody must have their confidence and must now and then produce some measure of success. On the other hand the leader cannot always work for glory, and the rank and file too often fail to appreciate the work and strain and the fact that it requires oil to keep the machinery in motion, namely, funds to keep things working.

I have about decided on a president for the Senate, and have written to-day to have him come and see me to see how he lines up. These things have all got to be determined beforehand. While the Speaker of the House is not so essential and may be difficult, that also must be attended to. In addition to that I have organized each county or am doing so as fast as I can. Everybody seems to look to me to do this, when personally I would prefer to step down and out.

For the past year, namely since the fight commenced in this County last June a year ago, I have given up my time to the matter, and practically I cannot afford it. However, I realize that I am into it. I have some pride in the matter and I am going to do the best I can with the situation, but of course there must be a limit to which I can go. I am writing you thus frankly and freely because you appreciate what all this means. I also appreciate this at the present time that if I do not keep my personal fingers on the strings (do not construe this as any egotism on my part. Anybody else in my place could do the same. I simply happen to be the instrument at this time) that things would go to pieces for want of a head. It is I personally at present that people have confidence in. It is to me that they look to; it is I from whom only they want suggestions and under whom they will act quickly, if at all. It is the situation at present that I represent which can hold things together, at least for the present. I am gratified however with the appreciation that the business people of the State have shown for what has been accomplished, even though it has been made apparent in no other way than in words of commendation.

The liquor people as a class here seem to think, as they usually do elsewhere (there are some few exceptions) that somebody is always ready to be found to fight their battles, and have taken it for granted. Personally I want to thank you above all and the people I met with you, who placed their confidence in me, feeling that they at least, since we have been able to make our judgment good, have not been disappointed. Let me assure you that in any way I can serve you, you can always command me.

Trusting to hear from you now and then, and hoping to see you personally before a great while, I beg to remain with regards,

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) H. H. BUCKMANN.

MY DEAR MR. LIEBMAN: As Mr. Schad is on his way to Providence, I had him stop off for a day to see you, and am asking him to deliver to you some mail in reference to the North Carolina situation. It is a pure case of hold out on the part of Isadore Bear. The men who bore the burden in the battle down there were Mr. Boyden and Mr. Clark. They are absolutely square, and I regret this mixup exceedingly.

Mr. Bear called on me this morning and after promising Mr. Oscar Schmidt that he would refund $2000.00 denies that he said so. He said he wants to see whether or not he will get his money from Clark before he does so.

I expect to be in New York the latter part of the first week in August, as there are a number of matters I want to go over with you and Mr. Fox, in regard to the N. C. situation. If it is not settled amicably by that time, I will have to run down and straighten it out.

Mr. Schad goes to Providence R. I. at the request of Mr. Spencer H. Over, Secy of the Narragansett Brewing Co., Providence, R. I. who wants a Business Men's association organized for the state.

I am enclosing report from Mr. Thompson on the Texas situation. I look for a close fight down there and it will be a great thing for us if we should win out, as in any other event, we shall be up against a State Wide Prohibition fight.

I have been to Minnesota for a couple of days this week to help frame up the Democratic Platform and arrange for a democratic candidate for Governor, which matter will be satisfactory to our interests.

Next week I go to Sioux Falls, and to Omaha, where there will be a meeting of the State Brewers Assn for the purpose of taking up the Nebraska situation in detail. In my opinion, things are looking a little better than they were some time ago, with the exception, of course, of Indiana and Ohio, where they will have to fight it out in the Fall election.

In Utah, Idaho and Colorado, there promises to be a hard fight for us. I will go there the second week in August to spend a couple of weeks.

Mr. Diederich is in Michigan organizing business mens associations in Grand Rapids, Lansing and Bay City. Mr. Grau is now in Portland and from Oregon goes to California.

Yours very truly,

J A McDERMOTT
Mgr. Organization Bureau.

DEAR SIR: Your letter of July 24th, which was given to me by Mr. Schad, was received. We have done nothing else referring to the North Carolina situation.

I note that you will be in New York the first week of this month, therefore, a lengthy letter now is superfluous.

I have read with much interest the reports which you have sent from Texas.

Very truly yours,

OCTOBER 30, 1915.

GENTLEMEN: I enclose for your information a valuable report on naturalization work in Pennsylvania, which speaks for itself. The very effective and practical manner in which the work has been conducted will suggest possibilities for similar work in other States.

While we have been privileged to see this report we are not in any way responsible for it.

Very truly yours,

NATIONAL GERMAN AMERICAN ALLIANCE.

(Incorporated by Act of Congress.)

STATE BRANCH OF PENNSYLVANIA.

To Chartered Clubs:

For the protection of your Club and its hall, and for the protection of the individual rights of citizens it is your duty to compile a list of non-citizens among the members of your club at once. We are willing to assist them to get their citizens papers with advice and literature direct or through you if you will state on the other side of this sheet their names, address, age, nationality, date of landing, place of landing, eventually date of first paper, and mail the list to German American Alliance, 419 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa. It is proposed to have this list made up by the collector or secretary.

[Please, mail this List to German American Alliance, 419 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.]

List of Candidates for Naturalization.

The undersigned hereby submit the names and addresses of the following candidates for naturalization:

Name of Society or Club ------ ------
City and County ------ ------
Name and Address of the President ------ ------
Names and Address of the Secretary ------ ------

Name and Surname (Please, write plain).	Address.	Age.	Nationality or Native.	Date of Landing.	Place of Landing.	Eventually date of 1st Paper.

NATURALIZATION WORK IN PENNSYLVANIA.

WHAT HAS BEEN DONE.

Since its founding in 1899 the German American Alliance of Pennsylvania, the mother organization of the National German American Alliance, has endeavored to assist non-citizens to get their citizen's papers. Experience gained in the never ceasing struggle against measures proposed by fanatics and their tools in the Legislature, the study of citizenship statistics, and the coming in contact with organizations of various nationalities through campaign literature prepared by us in their languages, developed our work in recent years into Naturalization Schools. Our instruction booklet, "How to Become a Citizen," prepared by the State president, Mr. J. B. Mayer, and printed in ten languages, has been declared by judges as the best of its kind. These booklets are copyrighted and plates have been made. This enables us to furnish them to other State branches and others interested in the work with the necessary changes in the heading and in the name of the capital of the State at the cost price of 1½ cents per copy by the thousand, while other instruction books are advertised for $1 and $3. We are now ready to offer the experience of 16 years to co-workers in other States. Another booklet, "How to Form and Conduct Naturalization Schools," will be prepared by the writer shortly.

The German classes in Philadelphia in the last two winters were well attended. We have secured the service of a Hungarian, who speaks six languages, and will form classes of other nationalities. At Palmerton, Carbon County, a class of over 200 Slovaks, Hungarians and Poles was formed, with the result of taking out of 100 first papers in one week and 15 second papers in a month. In Carbon County due credit must be given to Messrs. Weiss & Rauscher, of Lehighton, for their part in the work. At Hazleton, Luzerne County, Mr. Harry W. Jacobs distributed 600 Polish, Italian and Lithuanian booklets with good results. Blanks of a List of Candidates for Naturalization, a copy of which is attached to this report, have been broadcast throughout the State. Information and help in filling out applications is given free of charge.

Our booklet is compiled on the lines of a method suggested by Judge Staake, of Common Please Court No. 5. We also had the Constitution of the United States printed and furnish copies at cost.

MORE ATTENTION NECESSARY.

The importance of naturalization work demands more attention in States with a large percentage of a foreign-born population. There is an immense field to be covered. Of the 6,646,817 foreign-born males 21 years of age and over in the United States at the time of the 1910 census, 3,084,117, or 45.6 per cent., were naturalized citizens, and 570,772 had obtained their first papers. Of those males born in Italy 35 per cent. were naturalized, those born in Germany 91 per cent., and those born in Ireland 86 per cent.

During the fiscal year ended on June 30, a total of 14,512 persons of foreign birth were naturalized in the States of New Jersey, Delaware and the Middle and Eastern Judicial Districts of Pennsylvania. During the preceding year 9,525 persons were admitted to citizenship in this district. At present, of the 615,000 foreign-born residents of Pennsylvania, 367,000 are not naturalized. Similar conditions exist in other States with a large foreign-born population.

While the census of 1910 states that 91 per cent. of those born in Germany are naturalized, it should not be overlooked that since 1910 tens of thousands of German-Hungarians and other German speaking immigrants of various nationalities have come to these shores who are not classed as Germans.

EXCESSIVE FEES CHARGED BY ATTORNEYS.

Besides the Consuls of foreign nations, who, in an unofficial way, in many instances aided by priests, are not encouraging the naturalizing of their countrymen, the greatest handicap of naturalization work is the excessive fees charged by attorneys in the country districts. While the attorney fee in Philadelphia is $5, in the counties $10, $15 and even $25 are taken from a poor fellow who earns $9 a week. Up to the time when naturalization work will be so elevated that the instructors of the naturalization schools can bring the candidates before a judge these attorneys should be made to understand that they can make more money by fetching a bunch of 50 candidates before a judge, charging $1 each and serving a good cause besides.

NOW IS THE TIME TO START.

The European war has helped the naturalization work considerably. In Pennsylvania a law enacted by the last Legislature, which prohibits foreigners who have not become naturalized from keeping a dog, has also proved a great help. Practical work begun now will bring thousands of new citizens in line for the next Presidential election.

THE CATERING TO NEW CITIZENS.

On June 10, 1915, at the house of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, at New York, a National Americanization Day Committee was organized with Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury, of Philadelphia, and prominent men as officers. New Citizens' Receptions in 50 cities were held. The writer attended one of these receptions. He saw many reformers, men and women, who are after the votes of the new citizens, but of the latter just a few brought there by the Y. M. C. A. There is no doubt that the efforts now being made by the Boards of Education of various cities to aid naturalization work in the night schools have been brought about by the above-mentioned committee.

Mr. J. B. Mayer, as secretary of the Germany Society of Pennsylvania, and the writer, as chairman of the school committee, have devoted their attention to night schools in recent years, holding lectures and inviting candidates to our naturalization schools.

Among those catering to new citizens the politicians and the Y. M. C. A.'s must be recorded. While their work shall not be underestimated, their purpose is selfish, because they fail to teach the candidates the fundamental principles of the Constitution of the United States. What is needed is a united effort to save the new citizens from those who, under the pretense to help them, try to make them vote against their conviction.

WHAT SHOULD BE DONE.

It can be assumed that theoretically all who are interested in naturalization work have done their best. The time has arrived where this is not sufficient. The most eloquent speaker, the ablest writer, cannot accomplish the work needed. Hard, practical work is to be done by organizers and instructors. Honest, reliable men who do things, not only talk or write about them. This work should be encouraged by all manufacturers, or associations of manufacturers, who employ non-citizens. At Palmerton, Carbon County, Pennsylvania, a manufacturing concern is employing a teacher, who gives instruction in physical training and teaches the foreign-born the language of the United States. It was there where we instructed 200 foreigners how to get the first paper for $1 and the second paper for $4. It was a pleasure to see the delight on the faces of these men, who thought it cost $25 to become a citizen.

The writer advocates the forming of Naturalization Schools as the only means to get the best results, and also the forming of New Citizens' Clubs for organizing these schools. Such clubs are under way in Carbon County with a view to form a County and State Organization later on. For this purpose the writer has prepared the following draft of aims and objects and By-laws:

FEDERATION OF NEW CITIZENS CLUBS OF PENNSYLVANIA.

The purposes of this association are as follows:

1. The study of American institutions.
2. The protection of immigrants against imposition and deception.
3. Assistance in the naturalization of immigrants by establishing Naturalization Schools, and by giving them advice and legal aid free of charge.

BY-LAWS.

1. A New Citizens' Club consists of American citizens as active members and those who have declared their intention to become citizens as passive members.
2. The officers must be American citizens.
3. The dues of active members shall be $1 per year.

The dues for passive members include a saving fund out of which the fees for the first and second papers are paid, and an instruction booklet and a copy of the Constitution of the United States are furnished.

The dues for passive members are, in addition to $1 per year, such proportionate amounts as to provide the fees for citizens' papers.

Passive members who must wait five years for their second papers shall constitute Class A, those four years Class B, three years Class C, two years Class D, and one year Class E.

In case of removal or death of a passive member the saving fund amount is to be refunded to him or his relatives with the deduction of $1 for membership, in case such dues have not been paid.

4. Every New Citizens' Club shall hold monthly meetings.
5. In the Naturalization School instruction is to be given at least one hour each week, with the exception of the summer months, June, July and August.
6. Representatives of the New Citizens' Clubs of each County shall meet once a year to elect County officers.
7. It shall be the duty of these County officers to organize New Citizens' Clubs in neighboring Counties with the view of organizing a State Federation of New Citizens' Clubs, for which application for a Charter shall be made.

The writer has made naturalization work a special study and begs to solicit the help of all who are honestly and earnestly interested in this most important work.

Mr. FRED GRANT,
c/o Messrs. Fitch, Mott & Grant,
32 Nassau Street, New York.

MY DEAR MR. GRANT: Referring to our conversation of to-day, I am enclosing our circular letters of March 3rd and April 12th to the brewers, together with the report of the Conference held in Chicago on February 20th. In the latter, of course, we eliminated all resolutions referring to finances.

Our new National Committee consists of a brewer from each state, elected by the members of their state association, together with our own Board of Trustees and officers. This National Committee elected an Executive Committee of Fifteen, who were authorized to enter into an agreement with Mr. Andreae. (The Committee met on May 1st in Chicago and, after an all-day session, appointed a subcommittee to consider the various propositions that had been submitted and formulate a plan. This subcommittee recommended that Mr. Andreae be authorized to go ahead with his particular undertaking, and that he be paid $40,000 for a period of five years for his services, which sum shall be guaranteed by the U. S. Brewers' Association and by individual brewers. The remittances of the U. S. B. A. for the support of Mr. Andeae's undertaking are to be made in the form of a requisition by the President of the U. S. B. A. on the Treasurer of the U. S. B. A. and paid to the Treasurer of the Committee on Education when appointed. The Committee on Education is a new committee, which should act in a advisory capactiy to Mr. Andreae and to which he will report, but it is nôt to direct him. It is understood that he is to have the sole conduct of his affairs and that he is to give his entire time to this proposition.)

He proposes to organize, entirely separately from the U. S. Brewers' Association and, in fact, does not want it known that he is in charge of any undertaking for which the brewers are responsible. In other words, he does not want to be an employee of our Association, and the understanding is that his compensation is to remunerate him for the position he will have to give up as president of a large brewery in Chicago and director of the affairs of the Ohio Brewers' Association.

Yours sincerely,

_____,

Colonel J. RUPPERT, Jr., New York.

DEAR COLONEL RUPPERT: I had so many appointments to keep in New York that I found it impossible to see you again personally befroe I left.

The enclosed draft memorandum of agreement will, I think, cover the matter we discussed at our meeting on Thursday, and, as you will note, it adds no liability to be undertaken by the guaranteeing brewing firms, excepting that of paying 3 cents per barrel for five years to the United States Brewers' Association, out of which the Association agrees to see that my compensation is paid. This was Julius Liebmann's suggestion, and it practically carries out the same arrangement that obtained in Ohio.

I now leave the completion of the matter, if it is satisfactory in its present form, to you.

With best regards,

Yours very truly,

(Signed) PERCY ANDEAE.

MEMORANDUM.

Copy

It being the desire of the United States Brewers' Association and the undersigned brewing companies to encourage and support a national organization to oppose prohibition, the undersigned brewing companies of the United States of America hereby employ Mr. Percy Andreae to direct such national organization, on the following terms and conditions:

1. We guarantee to said Percy Andreae in full compensation for his services the sum of $40,000 per year, beginning May 1, 1913, for a period of five years, payable in monthly instalments of $3,333.33, the first payments to be made June 1, 1913.

2. The said Percy Andreae is to devote all his time and service to the work above-mentioned, and should he deem it wise, in his judgment, to remain or become an officer of a brewing company, he shall have such privilege.

3. The said Percy Andreae shall not have the right to make any contracts in the name of the U. S. Brewers' Association on the undersigned brewing companies, or to bind the said U. S. Brewers' Association or the undersigned brewing companies in any manner whatsoever.

4. Out of the amounts contributed by the undersigned brewing companies to the U. S. Brewers' Association, as dues and assessments, the said U. S. Brewers' Association is to pay said Percy Andreae for his services the sums of money above-mentioned and guaranteed by the undersigned brewing companies, and the said U. S. Brewers' Association, by signing this agreement, makes itself a party thereto for such purpose, and agrees to carry out the provisions of this agreement on its part to be performed.

In Witness Whereof the undersigned have hereunto set their hands this 1st day of May, 1913.

Recommendations by the publication committee, adopted January 21, 1916.

1. That the sum of $15,000 be requested for the purpose of purchasing and circulating the publication entitled "The Presidency of the United States of America," with statistical and other data, which would apprize the public of the merits of our cause. (Note: A considerable part of this sum can be returned through the sale of the publication. There is a possibility of an actual profit on the transaction.)

2. That $1,000 in addition to the amount already appropriated ($3,000) be placed at the disposal of the Secretary for the purpose of sending copies of the work by Dr. Williams "Alcohol, Hygiene and Legislation" to localities where there may be fights on the liquor question.

3. That an appropriation of $3,500 be requested for the purpose of financing a department of the Peoples Institute under Mr. Nock, which would establish model drinking establishments, engage in research work, etc.

4. That an appropriation of $2,500 be requested for the purpose of employing correspondents in prohibition States, and possibly other places where their services might be deemed valuable.

Note: The proposed changes with regard to the publication of the Bulletin to be explained.

BOSTON, MASS., May 19, 1913.

Mr. PERCY ANDRE, Chicago, Ill.

MY DEAR MR. ANDRE: While at Cincinnati I spoke to you about George H. Steele who is now Secretary of the New Hampshire State Liquor Dealers Organization.

Mr. Steele has been in the Anti Prohibition work for some six or seven years. He was originally a newspaper man and his connections were all with what we may term the other side. He got into this work by becoming convinced that the city of Fitchburg, Mass., would be better off under a well administered license system. He took up the work of making Fitchburg "wet" after we people in Boston had given the territory up for good. The story of how he did it need not be told here only the result. Fitchburg has been continuously license ever since and is now one of the safest license cities in the state.

In the interval between Mr. Steeles leaving Fitchburg and taking up the New Hampshire work he has done more or less work in local option fights for us in Massachusetts although not always with the same success that he had in Fitchburg but I think that is largely our fault. The campaign in Fitchburg is a year round campaign. On account of lack of funds or because we have not come to the Fitchburg method yet the campaigns waged in the "dry" cities of the state to make them "wet" are flash campaigns, made at the eleventh hour. I am convinced that by this method we waste our time and money but I cannot seem to get the trade to make provisions for protective work during the whole year. However, I am wandering from the question of Mr. Steele.

Mr. Steele has had a very active career in New Hampshire. He organized the trade in that state and has been practically running the organization ever since. While practical politics has been played on one hand Mr. Steele has been sponsor for an open and frank publicity campaign. So great was the prejudice against the liquor trade that 75% of the papers of the state would not publish his matter even in advertising form. Today there is not a paper in the state that will not gladly take everything he wishes to give out. I will be glad to send you clippings showing you the style of publicity that he has been making.

The thing I have in mind is that here is a man who is worthy of work in a larger field. A man who has made a hobby of this subject and therefore ought to be sure of a competence.

The political activities of our joint organizations will be directed by a committee, may be advisers only to Mr. Gardner, from the different sections of the country who have intimate knowledge of the politics of their districts. Why would it not be a good plan to have a Board of Editors to be made up from chosen men of different parts of the county who you could consult with and call on when things come up in your department that need discussion. Mr. Steele is more than a mere publicity man he is a practical man in these things. His reasoning is sound and his logic is always good, and logic is confusion to the Anti-Saloon League.

I have taken this matter up with you unknown to Mr. Steele for I would not wish to raise his hopes that a larger field was open to him for if the opening failed to materialize he might become discontented with his present work.

I have called your attention to the good points about Mr. Steele. There are some things in his makeup, imperiousness, impatience, lack of diplomacy, etc., which creates friction when he comes in contact with members of the trade which would have to be explained to you if you were going to take Mr. Steele into your work. These are not serious things however and my purpose in mentioning them now is because you may make inquiries of some people in the trade about Mr. Steele and you may hear what in slang terms is called a "knock."

Hoping that you will become interested in Mr. Steele and expressing a willingness to furnish any further information that you may desire, I am,

Very truly yours,

GEO. C. DEMPSEY.

Mr. E. A. SCHMIDT,
Robert Smith Ale Brewing Co.,
28th & Girard Ave., Philadelphia, Pa.

MY DEAR MR. SCHMIDT: Our men are now in Maine conducting the investigation agreed upon. I figure it will take from six to eight weeks to complete.

We recently had a fire in our headquarters, which forced us to vacate them temporarily. We were fully insured, and fortunately all our records were saved.

A meeting of the joint finance committee of the National Association of Commerce and Labor is to meet here on Friday the 22nd inst., and I hope all matters at issue will be satisfactorily adjusted.

I am sending you enclosed a tabulated statement gathered from the statistics of the Census Bureau of the U. S. Government showing the actual voting strength of what is known as the foreign language element of our citizenship. So few of our friends realize these figures that I believe it important that they should be more generally known.

The total eligible voting strength of the country is roughly 23,500,000 and the largest vote ever actually cast was roughly 16,000,000. The eligible voting strength of the foreign born population (naturalized citizens) is 3,034,117, and the voting strength of white males of foreign and mixed parentage is 4,498,966, making a total of 7,533,083, which is 31.2% of the total eligible voting strength of the country, and over 40% of the largest total vote ever actually recorded.

I feel that these figures will interest you. They are particularly significant when taken in conjunction with the further fact that the foreign element respond far more readily to the influence of leaders of the same nationality than any other element of the voting citizenship.

Yours very truly,

UNITED STATES BREWERS' ASSOCIATION,
50 UNION SQUARE,
New York, Jan. 25, 1915.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
1152 Transportation Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: Your communication of January 20th is just received. and I note what you say regarding a fire which destroyed your headquarters. I had been advised of this through other sources, but deferred taking the matter up with you until I should hear directly and officially from you. I am glad to note that you were covered by insurance and that your records were saved.

I would appreciate if you will write me a full report on the occurrence, as I probably will be required to answer questions regarding it at our Trustees' Meeting.

I also note that you are at work in Maine, and trust that your investigations there will disclose conditions that will be helpful in making a fight in that State.

The tabulated statement showing the voting strength of the Foreign Language Element of our Citizenship is interesting. I was greatly impressed by the large percentage this element represents to the total voting strength, and the thought suggests itself that if it were possible to influence 31% of the total eligible voters of the Country, it would be a very simple matter to elect liberal minded representatives in all States. I doubt, however, if this voting strength could be mustered for any given proposition, as we have found, in the States where they have been appealed to, the response has not been of a kind to produce results. I would like to talk to you further about this matter when we meet in New York.

Very truly yours,

EDW. A. SCHMIDT, President.

I sent Mr. Gardiner a copy a week or two ago, and probably you may have seen it. But I thought you might like to keep a copy yourself.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE BREWERS' ASSOCIATION,

WAYNE BREWING CO., Erie, Pa.
(Mr. W. W. Gingrich, Manager.)

DEAR SIR: Mr. Chas. F. Ettla, the Secretary of our Association, sent me both your letters of 19th and 23rd ultimo.

As stated by you since joining the Association in March 1910, you have made five payments, of $344 each, respectively March 21st, May 12th and July 18th, 1910, and January 5th and August 19th, 1911.

Relative to the subject of dues, I beg to state that the Association has no fixed dues, but provides for the funds required in its work by assessments levied from time to time as the need arises. In the course of last year the expenses of maintaining its Educational Bureau and providing literature in our Campaign against threatened Local Option legislation, was quite heavy. This necessitated the calling of two additional assessments (No. 17 on December 9th, 1910, and No. 18 on April 22d, 1911). Of these the latter is still unpaid by your Company.

As it is only by organization and co-operation results can be achieved, I feel that it is to every Brewer's interest to affiliate with the Association and assist it in its work.

The active interest displayed by our members merits full recognition, as it is only through this that we were successful in securing the objects in view.

I may add, that as far as I can see, the expenses of maintenance of the Association should not necessitate the calling any further Assessments this year.

Very truly yours,

EDW. A. SCHMIDT.

DEAR SIR: I enclose for your information set of resolutions adopted by the Federation of Labor in the State of Maryland in regard to local option. These resolutions were drawn by one of our friends; and if you could get similar resolutions adopted by the labor people in your State, and give them wide publicity, it would be most helpful.

Enclosure.

Whereas the Anti-Saloon League, an organization holding itself out as an auxiliary agency of the Prohibitionists, but which we believe in reality to be a cleverly concealed political movement organized by high-salaried professional agitators with funds largely supplied by various millionaires and special interests anxious to accomplish certain political ends, is now engaged in this State in an effort to acquire political power, and by a campaign of threats and misrepresentations is endeavoring to force the Legislature of Maryland to pass a local-option bill for this city; and

Whereas local option enables a majority of any ward or county to enforce prohibition, and as we are unqualifiedly opposed to prohibition and to the proposition that a majority can determine for a minority that they shall eat and drink, and as we deny the right of any community to thus interfere with any individual in his personal liberty or in his right to pursue his own good or his own happiness in his own way, or to brand him as a hypocrite or lawbreaker simply because he minds his own business and happens to patronize decent and respectable saloons; and as we believe such legislation to be class legislation and contrary to the fundamental principles of a free government; and

Whereas the laboring men of America stand for fair treatment and a square deal to all, and believe in temperance not only in drink, but in act and speech as well; and it is evident that this local option movement endeavors, by arousing the passions and prejudices of the people, to deceive thousands of those who have never been inside of a saloon into thinking that every saloon is a den of iniquity and a curse; and as this hysterical and carefully-fostered anti-saloon feeling is unfair and unjust both to the saloon and to those who patronize it; and as the drunkard who brings grief and shame on society is the victim of his own weakness and is not necessarily the product of the saloon any more than of the rich and aristocratic club or the family pantry or the drug store; and as we believe that the decent saloon has a necessary and useful place in every large city and is to a great degree the poor man's club, and as such is as much entitled to fair treatment as the club or the church or any other institution that obeys the law and caters to the public demand; and

Whereas we believe that local option, if adopted for this city, would do it incalculable harm; would plunge us into bitter class struggles; would make the saloon a political issue and a source of constant turmoil; would increase the tax burden; would throw thousands of our fellow-workmen out of employment; would confiscate millions of dollars' worth of property which is en... to the equal protection of the law; would drive trade away from our city ... depreciate the value of real estate; would bring in here the same era hypocrisy and smuggling and backbiting and spying and bitterness that followed prohibition wherever tried; and in return for it all would accomp... no good, would bring in here, as it has wherever tried, a lot of wretched d... speakeasies, bootleggers and lawbreakers; and inasmuch as this organiz... believes that the interests of temperance can best be subserved by pres... sobriety and good habits and by giving the saloon credit for the good it ... and helping it to be respectable and lawabiding, instead of trying to outla... and make it constantly fight for its life;

Now, therefore, the Baltimore Federation of Labor, in meeting assem... representing 109 unions and 40,000 workingmen and voters, does hereby re... that the members of the Legislature of Maryland be requested to oppose local option bill now pending before it, or any similar bill, and that the Le... lative Committee of this body be instructed to appear before the proper c... mittees of the Legislature to urge upon them the views set forth in this re... tion, and that a copy of the same be sent to each member of the Gen... Assembly and to the press of this State.

EXHIBIT No. 1029.

(From U. S. B. A. files. Office copy; please return this copy to the file. Answered Apr. 26 1915. H. F. F.)

UNITED STATES BREWING CO. OF CHICAGO, FIRST NATIONAL BANK BLDG.,
Chicago, April 23, 1915.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX,
Sec'y, United States Brewers' Association,
50 Union Square, New York, N. Y.

MY DEAR MR. FOX: I hand you herewith prepared booklet showing by states where it is and is not permissible for corporations to make contributions for any political campaign. Apparently the State of Illinois is the only one that is immune on this question.

The original of this was handed to me by Mr. Oscar Schmidt of the Schlitz Brewing Company. No doubt the contents of this will be valuable information for you.

Yours very truly,

Encl.

ARIZONA.

It shall be unlawful for any corporation, organized or doing business in the state to make any contribution of money or anything of value for the purpose of influencing any election or official action.

ARKANSAS.

It shall be unlawful for any person to give, offer or promise anything of value to any other person, for his aid or influence in behalf of or against any candidate in any primary election in this State.

It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to contribute any money or other thing of value for the purpose of influencing the result of any election in the State of Arkansas.

CALIFORNIA.

It shall be unlawful for any national bank, or any corporation organized by authority of any law of Congress, to make a money contribution in connection with any election to any political office. It shall also be unlawful for any corporation whatever to make a money contribution in connection with any election at which presidential and vice presidential electors or a representative in Congress is to be voted for, or any election by any state legislature of a United States senator. Every corporation which shall make any contribution in violation of the foregoing provisions shall be fined not more than $5,000.00; and every officer or director of any corporation in violation of the foregoing provisions shall be fined not more than $1,000.000 or imprisoned not more than one year or both.

COLORADO.

No person, copartnership, organization or corporation shall directly or indirectly contribute or expend, pay or become liable for any of the expenses of any candidate. Anyone violating the law guilty of a felony and on conviction shall be fined not less than $500.00 or imprisoned in the penitentiary for not less than one year or both.

Every candidate shall, 30 days after election, file itemized statement showing all moneys contributed or expended by him or for him, giving names and amounts. Political committees also required to file sworn detailed statements.

FLORIDA.

That no person, firm or corporation, in the furtherance of or in opposition to the candidacy of any person for nomination in a primary election shall pay, give, loan, expend or contribute any money or other thing of value for any purpose whatever; provided, personal services and personal traveling expenses may be contributed; and provided, that campaign contributions may be made to a candidate direct, or to his campaign manager, by other than a corporation, to be expended only as authorized by this Act. Any person who violates the provisions of this Section shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding $1,000.00 or by imprisonment for not exceeding one year or may be punished by both such fine and imprisonment.

GEORGIA.

Law requires all candidates to file a report showing money expended for election campaign purposes and source from which derived. The statement must be published in a newspaper. No express prohibition of contributions by corporations.

RHODE ISLAND.

Reply to your letter, we beg to say that we have no Corrupt Practice Act of the nature described by you.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Penalty for Serving Candidate for Money Consideration.—Any person who shall perform, or agree to perform, any services in the interests of any candidate for any office provided for in Article 8, Chapter XLIX, of the Civil Code, Volume I, of the Code of Laws (whether in connection with the primary election nomination or in connection with the municipal election, or in connection with the obtaining and filing of the petition required herein), in consideration of any money or other valuable thing or of future support in obtaining office, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or imprisonment not exceeding one year, and any candidate, or other person, who shall solicit or contract for, or otherwise seek or obtain such services in the interest of or against the candidacy for Mayor or Councilman, or for or against any question that may be submitted to an election, or shall pay any money for said services or promise any valuable thing for such services, or to influence any elector in his vote, shall be punished in the same manner, and any person making false answers to any of the provisions of Article 8, Chapter XLIX, of the Civil Code, Volume I, of the Code Laws, relative to his qualifications to vote at any election herein provided for, any person wilfully voting or offering to vote at such election when not qualified as herein provided, and any person knowingly procuring, aiding or abetting any violation of any of the provisions herein, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, shall be fined not exceeding $500.00 or imprisoned not exceeding one year, and all the other provisions of law now applying to bribery or corruption or other improper practices in connection with elections shall likewise apply to the elections herein referred to.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Any person or corporation who shall lend or give any money or other valuable thing to any other person to induce him to cast his vote either for or against any candidate for public office; or any person who shall lend or give any money or other valuable thing to any other person to induce him to refrain from voting or to remain away from the polls; or any person who shall lend or furnish any money or security therefor to any other person or persons to be used for any of said purposes; or any person who shall knowingly refund or make good to any person or persons any money expended for any of said purposes; or any person who shall directly or indirectly give or procure to be given or promise to give any money, gift or reward, or any office, place or employment upon any engagement, contract, agreement, or understanding, that the person to whom or for whose benefit such gift or promise shall be made, shall, by himself or any other person procure, or endeavor to procure or work for, the election of any person to any public office at any election, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $100.00 or more than $1,000.00, or by imprisonment in the penitentiary for not more than two years, or both.

TENNESSEE.

Our Code, sections 6841 to 4868, defines and makes punishable certain acts by candidates for office such as bribery, etc. Under the same sections, 6841 to 6868, in the Supplement of the Code of Tennessee, the Acts of 1897, Chapter 18, and 1899, chapter 14, are set out prohibiting corporations from influencing elections by contributing toward campaign funds, by intimidations and other ways.

The Act of 1907, chapter 402, is entitled "An Act to prevent the corruption of citizens in political conventions" which Act provides against bribery by payments, loans, or promises of political preferment, to solicit either to vote or refrain from voting. Acts of 1907, chapter 443, is directed especially against the use of the funds of any insurance company for political purposes.

TEXAS.

Any corppration or officer thereof who, directly or indirectly, furnishes, loans or gives any money or thing of value to aid those who manage the political campaign of any candidate or candidates, or to any campaign manager, or at any particular candidate or person, to promote the success of such candidate for public office shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and if a corporation, if the act was done with the approval or connivance of its president, financial agent or treasurer, forfeits its charter. It shall be the duty of the attorney general to institute proceedings for such forfeiture whenever it is made known to him by the affidavit of a reputable man that in his opinion such an offense has been committed. The officers, agents and employes of such corporation, as also the candidate, and all persons connected with his political headquarters, shall be competent witnesses, and may be compelled to attend court and testify, and those shall not be subject to prosecution who reveal facts showing a violation of this section.

UTAH.

This State does not have the usual Corrupt Practices Act. We have a chapter in our election law entitled "Election Offenses" in which the rights of the voter are carefully guarded, and providing against bribes of all kinds, and preventing candidates from betting on elections, and preventing corporations from influencing their employes, etc. But we have no law prohibiting corporations from contributing for campaign expenses. Candidates in this state are not required to publish their campaign expenses.

In 1896, that being the first session of the Legislature of the State after statehood, a new election law was passed in which candidates for office were required to file an itemized statement of receipts and expenses in behalf of their campaign and the chairmen and secretaries of the respective parties were also required to file statements. In 1897 our election laws were revised and these provisions were omitted.

VERMONT.

Payment of money to secure nomination.—No person shall, directly or indirectly, give, pay, expend or contribute, or promise to give, pay, expend or contribute, money or other valuable thing, in order to promote his own nomination, or the nomination of another person, as a candidate for a public office, by caucus, convention or nomination papers, except for personal expenses as provided in the following section.

Same; exception.—A person may incur and pay in order to promote his own nomination, or the nomination of another person, as a candidate for a public office, his own personal expenses for traveling, for writing, printing and preparing for transmission any letter, circular, or other publication not issued at regular intervals, whereby he may state his position or views, or the position or views of another person, upon public or other questions, for stationery and postage, for telephone, telegraph and other regular messenger service, and for other petty personal expenses; but all such expenses shall be limited to those which are directly incurred and paid by him.

Publishers to receive no compensation for supporting candidacy.—No publisher of a newspaper or other publication issued at regular intervals in this state, shall, directly or indirectly, receive or accept money or other valuable thing in payment or compensation for the support or advocacy in such newspaper or publication of the nomination of any person as a candidate for a public office in this state.

Penalty.—A person who violates a provision of the three preceding sections shall be fined not less than $100.00.

VIRGINIA.

That no person shall expend, pay, promise, loan, or become pecuniarily liable in any way for any money or other valuable thing in behalf of any candidate for office at any election, primary or nominating convention held in this commonwealth. Any person or candidate violating any of the provisions of this or the preceding section of this Act shall be subject to a fine of not less than $100.00 nor more than $1,000.00 or confined in jail not less than one or more than twelve months.

WASHINGTON.

The Washington Statute does not expressly prohibit corporations making campaign contributions, but "all persons" are prohibited from so doing, which under the legal construction includes corporations.

WYOMING.

No corporation shall pay or contribute in order to aid, promote or prevent the nomination or election of any person, or in order to aid, or promote the interests, success or defeat of any political party or organization. NEW YORK, March 16, 191

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE.
1132 Transportation Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

MY DEAR Mr. ANDREAE: I have been so pressed with work lately that I have been a little amiss in my correspondence. I have your letters of the 9th and 11th inst., before me. That of the 9th includes the draft of your letter to the brewers regarding discount stamps of the National Association of Commerce and Labor. I am enclosing circular letter which we have sent out in this connection.

Your letter of the 11th covers the Michigan matter, and it seems evident that there has been some misunderstanding, and possibly the explanation is that the work of the Detroit brewers and the Country Brewers' Association is not dovetailed as closely as might be desired. However, this is only a surmise.

We have sent another man to Michigan from New York, to handle the country newspapers. He is a political reporter, who has had a good deal of experience, and was highly recommended to Mr. Rickel by Mr. Brewer of the New York State Brewers' Association, who originally started the publicity work in Michigan under our direction about six years ago. He will probably stay there for a couple of months.

Very truly yours,

H. F. FOX,
Secretary.

EXHIBIT No. 1031.

MINUTES OF A JOINT MEETING OF THE INTERSTATE CONFERENCE COMMITTEE AND THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE UNITED STATES BREWERS' ASSOCIATION, HELD AT THE HOTEL KIMBALL, SPRINGFIELD, MASS., OCTOBER 13, 1913, AT 10:30 O'CLOCK A. M.

The meeting was presided over by the President of the United States Brewers' Association. Mr. Edward A. Schmidt, acting as Chairman.

The CHAIRMAN: Gentlemen, you will please come to order. This meeting will be the first joint meeting of the Interstate Conference Committee and the Board of Trustees. Such a meeting is provided for in the resolution of the convention creating this annual joint conference. The purpose of it is that the gentlemen representing the Interstate Conference Committee could bring information here that would be of service or assistance to the Board of Trustees in their administration of the affairs of the United States Brewers' Association. The committee has been selected from the various sections of the country so that the representation would be thorough and complete and that every part of the country would be covered.

I understand we have with us in this meeting gentlemen who have recently been on the firing line in the various campaigns in the several states and I am certain that they will have information to impart here that will be useful in the administration of the affairs of the association. I trust the representatives will not hesitate to come forward and tell their experiences and advise the board if they have anything that would be beneficial to their states and to the entire country.

I would like to state, in connection with the nominations to be made in the course of the next two days, that your nominating committee will sit today and also tomorrow, and if any of the gentlemen from the various states are prepared to propose names to the nominating committee, we would request that they get in touch with the Chairman of the nominating committee. The idea of that is that when the naminating committee was appointed at the last convention, it was to sit during the entire year to receive names and, with the entire list of names before them, from all sections of the country, they will be able to make such selections as I am sure will be useful and serviceable in our work.

I declare this meeting open for the discussion of business.

Mr. Fox. Might I suggest that this meeting hear from the men from a distance, men who have been on the firing line, who have had recent experiences that would be of value to us. As a starter, I would suggest Mr. McDowell, of California.

Mr. McDOWELL. Mr. President and gentlemen: You all know that we had a state wide campaign last year and we are going to have another one next year. In a somewhat different form there will be amendments presented. Last year they were very drastic, prohibiting the manufacture, sale or gift of alcoholic liquors. The amendment was defeated by a majority of 169,245.

The amendments proposed by the Anti-Saloon League forces for submission at the election in November 1916 are two. The first, if adopted, would prohibit the retail sale of liquor in California, effective January 1, 1918. The second prohibits the manufacture, sale, gift or transportation of liquors, effective January 1, 1920.

The conditions in the state at this time and next year will be somewhat different, so far as the Anti-Saloon League forces are concerned, because they are absolutely united. Last year the amendment was incorporated by the Prohibition party in its platform, but the leaders of the Prohibition party did not have the entire support of the Anti-Saloon League, but in the coming campaign they are all united, all of the dry forces, they have wiped out all their differences and the campaign will be led by Ex-Lieutenant Governor Wallace and Bishop Hughes, of Pasadena. The Rev. Dr. Aked is the gentleman who recently drove a nail into the coffin of Billy Sunday; but notwithstanding the fact that Dr. Aked does not agree with Billy Sunday, Billy Sunday has already been contracted for, along with W. J. Bryan, to assist in the campaign in that state.

The dry forces at this time are going over the state holding meetings preparatory to the circulation of petitions for the submission of these amendments. Just prior to my leaving San Francisco it was announced that they would, on the 31st of this month, circulate their petitions in all of the churches affiliated with those forces, and that they hoped to get 150,000 signatures. They also hoped to get the 100,000 additional signatures which will be required, within a week.

I will say, gentlemen, that the Anti-Saloon League forces of that state are so organized that they could get 300,000 signatures in three weeks' time. A year ago—two years ago, in 1913, they secured the necessary signatures in a little less than two weeks.

The fight will be made in California next year from the standpoint that the people are going to have the choice, as the Rev. Dr. Aked put it in his sermon recently delivered in San Francisco, between total prohibition and the elimination of the saloon. The 1918 Amendment is broader than a no-saloon amendment; it includes the sale of liquors in the saloons, clubs, cafes; in fact the retail sale of liquor throughout the state. They have paid very little attention to bringing local fights this year. We have had 39 fights in cities, towns and supervisorial districts. Eighteen of those were brought about by petitions circulated by dry forces and the balance were brought about by petitions circulated by our people. We have succeeded in winning all of the elections except one, except in two supervisorial districts, where there was not a possibility of winning. In the majority of these contests we have increased the wet majority. The campaign has been conducted with a view to uniting the vote and making California dry. We will have approximately a million and a half voters registered. Under the law of our state it is necessary for the voters to register every even numbered year, and the campaign for registration will be carried forward somewhat as it was in 1914.

We have at this time a very good organization in that state. The brewers, wholesale liquor dealers and allied trades are united. Unfortunately in the campaign last year the grape growers and wine association conducted a separate campaign.

Matters have developed during this year that look at the present as if we would lose the support of a large number of the grape growers because of the fact that the California Wine Association has recently repudiated a very large number of contracts that they had with the grape growers and have refused to purchase their grapes at the price stipulated, basing their repudiation upon the ground that the Federal tax has been increased. A clause in the contracts provides that that may be done. The Anti-Saloon League forces have taken advantage of that fact and have stated that while the campaign in 1914 was conducted for the benefit of the wine people and grape growers and the grape grower was tolerated at that time, it will not be necessary to protect them, the grape growers at this time, by reason of the fact that he is unable to sell his grapes, and he is therefore rather leaning to the dry side. It is an unfortunate condition. I will predict at this time that if a vote was taken in San Joaquin County and other grape growing counties, they would vote dry. It is going to require an immense amount of educational work to convince those people that it is not an issue between the grape grower and the wine Association but one exclusively and purely whether there shall be prohibition in California.

Many of you, of course, know the size of the state; many of you have been there, and it is a state that it is difficult to campaign in. We have 58 counties, and you can take the States of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Delaware and New Jersey, New York and Ohio and put them down in the state of California, not edgewise, and you will still have 500 square miles left. In other words, you could put those ten states into the State of California, where you have, from the Oregon line to Mexico, a million and a half voters that must be reached.

In the 1914 campaign we divided the state into four districts. The main office was in San Francisco, with one in Los Angeles, with eight counties; one in Fresno, with eight counties; one in the northern division, with an office in Sacramento, with twenty-one counties.

The conditions in the southern part of the state are entirely different than they are in the north. There has been a great deal of talk, there was immediately after election, perhaps brought about by the fact that there was a very considerable dry vote in the south, that there will be a state division. We have taken no hand in the matter, because we think it is a dangerous proposition. Those in the north would undoubtedly like to see southern California separated and put into Mexico or South America or some other place, so far as the vote is concerned on this question. When Los Angeles voted in 1910 they returned a majority of something like 40,000 against prohibition; and to show you how the sentiment has changed from 1910 to 1914, they returned only about 7,000 majority on the state-wide issue and they came up to what is known as the Mountains with only 1,410 wet majority out of eight counties.

In other words, we can count on San Diego county to return a wet majority, but it is problematical where Los Angeles County will go in 1916. I will say in regard to Los Angeles, I have used my best endeavors, since 1913, to get them out of politics. I will say that for a number of years since I have been in California and after making a survey of that state, I have been of the opinion that politics is a poor thing to put into a prohibition campaign.

Last year, when the question of state-wide prohibition was to be voted upon, a governor to be elected, and state officers to be elected, Governor Johnson in the saddle for the Progressives; Captain who prosecuted the McNamaras and the candidate of the Democratic and Prohibition Parties were in the field, they were all, with the exception of the Prohibition Party, bidding for the support of the interest which I have the honor to represent. I will say frankly to you gentlemen as I said to those gentlemen at that time that we were after votes from the four parties, and that if they were not in favor of state-wide prohibition in California, they should assist us in defeating that and we should not assist them to be elected to office. We kept out of politics. When the Legislature convened thirty-two bills were introduced which would have been very detrimental to our interests in California—county option bills, dry zone bills—but so completely did we keep out of politics that the Lieutenant Governor, Ashelman, who comes from the dry section of the state and was really elected to the Senate by the Anti-Saloon League Forces, waited until a vote was taken and that gentleman had to decide between 20 and 20 the dry zone bill, which would have dried up Los Angeles, San Jose and several other large cities in the south and affected many other of the larger cities, because it provided for a mile wide zone around state normal schools—that measure came up and the count was made so promptly, when the Senate vote was cast, that no senator had an opportunity to change his vote and change that result. Lieutenant-Governor Ashelman cast the deciding vote and of course it was said that he had sold out; but I will say to you frankly that if there is any man who could not be purchased, he is the man. He was absolutely fair, and he stood on the proposition that the people of these several communities had voted last November and all, with the exception of two, returned majorities against state-wide prohibition and he said, "I am not in favor, as a member of this Legislature, of inflicting upon them something that they do not want themselves."

We are operating under the Wiley local-option bill. The question was propounded to me last night as to whether there was a possibility of the initiative and referendum being repealed in California. As I said to him I say to you now, there is not a possibility of the initiative and referendum being taken out of the constitution of that state. The people like it. The people think they are doing business and they are doing business. It is possible for them, by filing a petition with a certain number of signatures, to initiate elections in any city or town, in two months. We have electons every week. One took place on the 11th and one will take place today. In one of these places the election was carried by the wet forces. The drys immediately came back with a petition under the Wiley law. The petition by the wet forces would have provided for a limited number of saloons, well regulated. The dry petition, if adopted, dries up that city. These elections come one on the 11th and one on the 13th. I will say we have been very successful and I think we have created a considerable sentiment in favor of keeping the state in the wet column. It has been said by a good many people in California and a good many people outside of California, that something must be done to eliminate conditions that are as deplorable as they have been said to be in the city of San Francisco. I will say that we are in position in the city of San Francisco to handle that situation. It has been heralded over this country that we have 2,500 retail establishments in that city. We have exactly 1,623, which is perhaps too many. Nevertheless, the city of San Francisco cast 83,355 votes against state-wide prohibition; in other words, defeating it by seven to one. The city of Los Angeles, with approximately the same population, has 200 saloons, with a zone district and is as well regulated as any city in the United States, and they came very near going dry. San Francisco County and the counties immediately adjoining it, returned 11,000 majority or two-thirds of the total majority against this state-wide prohibition.

What the south will do, what the San Joaquin Valley will do, is problematical. As I said before, we have a good organization. We want your assistance. We believe we are able to handle the situation, but it is going to be as terrific a campaign as was ever put up in the United States. The leaders of the dry forces have made the statement that if they could win California next year they would consider it a victory equal to any ten states that has been voted dry in the past few years. That is the view they take of it. You can realize the importance of winning that fight in California next year is very great, because of the effect it would have upon other states and the effect it would have upon national issues. The fact that Colorado, Washington and Oregon, western states, went dry last year, had a very bad effect on California. I know of nothing that would be of more advantage to the states of Arizona, Colorado and Utah and Washington than to keep California wet. If California goes dry, we might just as well move off the coast, because that is going to be carried as far east as possible, and I have grave fears it might be carried into my friend Becker's state of Utah. I know they have a fight there and I know something of the conditions in that state. We must win California and we must have your assistance. I thank you, gentlemen. (Applause.)

The CHAIRMAN. Gentlemen, I will have to ask to be excused again, as I did at the last meeting, as I have to attend a meeting of the Executive Committee. With your permission I would like to suggest that Mr. Koehler, of St. Louis, take the chair, in my place. I thank you very much for your kind attention.

(At this point the President, Mr. Schmidt, left the meeting, Mr. Koehler taking the chair and presiding until the close of the meeting.)

Mr. KOEHLER. Gentlemen, this is rather unexpected. I am sure we all regret the absence of the President from the chair; but out of deference to his wishes, I will be glad to, in my humble way, endeavor to take his place.

Mr. FOX. May I ask Mr. McDowell a question—what is going to be the attitude of the women of California toward the saloon and is it a part of your program to make saloon conditions such that they will meet the criticisms of the women voters?

Mr. MCDOWELL. I recently had an interview with one of the leaders of the women's organization in Southern California, who is a member and leading spirit in seven clubs. I consider this woman an authority in that section of the state, which is considerably dry. She said, "If you make your campaign next year from a dollars and cents standpoint, you will not get the support of the women of Southern California." She said, "What we are trying to do is to keep the little boy off the streets and to keep him away from the saloons, and we have 200 of them in the City of Los Angeles, and we do not want him to get into the habit of going into those places." I said, "My dear woman, don't you know that there is a law at the present time that makes it impossible or rather makes it unlawful for any boy to go into these places?" She said, "I know that." I said, "If you will turn your forces loose toward the enforcement of that law, I will promise you I will not make a campaign from a dollars and cents standpoint next year." And they are very busy on that proposition right now. It seems a great many of them did not know there was such a law. I sent to you and several other members of the United States Brewers' Association a compilation of the laws of California. That was gotten out for the purpose of getting it into the hands of the different organizations in that state, so that we could convey to them the idea that we had lots of laws but that they were not being enforced and asking for the cooperation of all the organizations in the enforcement of the law.

I will add—I do not want to talk all the time—when the dry convention was held in Fresno, they selected as their head the president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, who is an ardent prohibitionist. They also have the support of Mrs. General Bidwell, of Chico, who is a very wealthy woman who subscribed last year $5,000, as a starter, and who has subscribed this year $10,000, as a starter toward the campaign fund. I will say that of the $250,000 subscribed, I have absolutely positive information that $157,000 was subscribed in Los Angeles, and that has been done in six weeks time, to show you that there are some money getters in Southern California.

So far as the women's organizations are concerned in northern California, we are in fairly good shape, the State Federation having refused to take up this question.

We do know that a large number of women vote dry. In the recent mayoralty contest in San Francisco the registration was increased very largely in that city and came from the women. They have promised me, through the heads of the organization, that they are ready to do battle next year; but they are divided, they are fighting amongst themselves.

The CHAIRMAN. Does any other member wish to ask any question?

Mr. ORR. I would like to ask what, if any, has been the attitude of the various boards of trade of the larger cities of California in regard to the prohibition question?

Mr. MCDOWELL. In the state-wide fight last year the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce went on record as opposed to prohibition, and it has been their policy to make recommendations on the various constitutional amendments submitted. They voted in that state last year on 52, and they singled out those which they endorsed and those they recommended to be voted No. Prohibition was one which they recommended be voted No. I will say, in short, that 137 Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade, manufacturers' organizations and taxpayers' organizations went on record in that state against prohibition. I will say that it required the vote of the entire membership of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, because the Executive Committee, which was submitting this question, rather leaned to prohibition; but when they voted, the vote was 1,187 against prohibition and 126 in favor of prohibition.

A VOICE. That was in San Francisco?

Mr. MCDOWELL. That was in San Francisco, and the Executive Committee carried out the wishes of the membership as expressed in that vote.

The CHAIRMAN. Any other questions?

A MEMBER. Might I ask Mr. McDowell if, in his judgment, the strict regulation of the saloon in California and the enforcement of the law and the elimination of the so-called bad saloons has had any effect in stemming the tide?

Mr. MCDOWELL. Not a particle, gentlemen. Los Angeles shows that. They have approximately half a million population with two hundred saloons, and I will say to you that they are regulated. They are open, people can pass along the street and see what is going on; they are in a restricted district, and if the saloons were out of commission in San Francisco and in Los Angeles, I predict that the state-wide prohibition fight would go on with just as much vigor as ever. The people in San Francisco want saloons; the people in San Francisco want the number of saloons that they have at the present time. Conditions are changing; conditions are getting better, they are growing better all the time. They are not granting any additional licenses, and they are doing anything they can to clear up the situation.

The CHAIRMAN. Any further questions? If not, I suggest we hear next from a member of the staff of the United States Brewers' Association who has been on the ground in a very interesting fight that has just been made in Minneapolis. I am sure you will be interested to hear from Mr. McDermott on that subject.

Mr. FOX. I notice it is a little hard for some of the gentlemen to hear the speaker when he has his back turned towards them. Wouldn't it be a good idea for the speakers to come up here and face the members?

Mr. MCDERMOTT. As you know the county option law was passed in the State of Minnesota last spring. I am not going into the history of that as Mr. Zollman, the secretary of the State Brewers' Association, or Mr. Fitger, is more familiar with that than I am.

Under that law fifty-three counties had had prohibition fights up to the time of the fight in Hennepin County, and forty-four of those had gone dry and nine had gone wet.

I was called in by the brewers of the State of Minnesota and the City of Minneapolis in an advisory capacity, in the month of June, at which time there was a petition in circulation for a county option election in Hennepin County. Being my old home state and home city, I knew something about the conditions and, from the experience I had gathered in the work, was able to render them some assistance in an advisory capacity.

In going through and going over the situation we found out that the Anti-Saloon League and the Prohibitionists had selected Minneapolis and Hennepin County for a county option election, believing firmly that with the sentiment for prohibition that had started in the state, they would be able to carry Hennepin County. This was the largest city and county election that had ever been called under the county option law.

The trouble was in getting the business men of the city organized and getting things started. We discussed the matter and I laid before them the suggestion that the City Attorney of the largest dry city in the United States, which is the City of Memphis, Hon. C. M. Bryan, be asked to make a trip up there. Mr. Bryan went up there and was the guest. I will not say of the brewers of the state, but as well of the wholesalers and retailers, all of whom were back of the Minneapolis fight, and Mr. Bryan went before 250 of the leading business men of the City of Minneapolis. After his statement of the conditions in the largest prohibition city in the United States, a business man's organization was formed and the campaign was conducted under the auspices of a state senator and a campaign manager who was assisted by trained men who had worked in Ohio, Michigan and other states and who had done very effective work.

A campaign was laid out in which precinct organization was gone into and there were provided county and precinct captains, ward managers, and so on down the line. There was a manager for every township in the country.

There was a large number of speakers brought in to take part in the campaign among whom were such men as Royal E. Cabell, of Richmond, formerly Internal Revenue Collector under President Taft; a man who has a national reputation and who made an excellent impression. Ten days later we had Hon. Jacob E. Meeker, of St. Louis, and Hon. Edgar F. Hanson, for nine years Mayor of Belfast, Maine, four years State Senator, and editor of a paper. Both of these gentlemen were very effective, Mr. Hanson particularly, because of his experience in Maine. A large mass meeting was addressed by Hon. Charles A. Towne, a prominent attorney of New York and formerly United States Senator from Montana. In addition, there was organized a speakers' bureau, with twenty-five high grade speakers gathered from other parts of the country, and there was one of the greatest speaking campaigns ever inaugurated in this work in the years I have been engaged in it. Men like Sheridan Ford and Mr. Cox and a number of local speakers, and so on down the line.

In addition, the labor interests formed a separate committee of their own, and while there was some slight division in the labor ranks on the question of socialism, they all worked together and carried on an independent campaign, contributing their own money and doing their own work; and it was very, very effective.

The business men of the city, 200 of them, lined up back of the Business Men's Educational League and in addition a number of the business interests of the city quietly and very effectively supported the movement.

The campaign was a very bitter one, the Prohibitionists leaving no stone unturned. Early in the campaign a meeting of the dry interests of the state was held in Minneapolis and at that meeting it was stated that a dry M apolis meant a dry Minnesota. In other words, they staked the result in neapolis as the result in Minnesota; they made a state-wide fight out Our people willingly accepted the gauge of battle and the campaign was f out along those lines.

Of course the argument was used about Minneapolis being close to St. and that had some effect. Before the campaign was through there were stone orators out every noon and evening—they had sixty prohibition or on the streets after prayer meeting the Sunday evening preceding the el The Saturday evening preceding they had a parade of 12,000 men and w mostly Scandinavian Lutherans and Baptists. I want to say to you tha campaign was closely watched by the men in charge, by the Minneapoli Minnesota wholesalers and brewers. I had several men of my bureau t. When we went to the polls, if any one could have told me anything that be done in this kind of a campaign that was not done, as I said to th mittee, "We want to know what it is." Our organization was perfec had two polls of the city and county made and on Friday night before th paign ended we had a poll made and the estimate came out within one th of what the original estimate had been. Our campaign manager had S we would win by from ten thousand to 11,100, and we compromised an out at 9,626.

It was a great victory in this way that it showed clearly that the St Minnesota, on the state-wide prohibition question can be saved as a wet It gave us some encouragement in regard to North Dakota. It cleared th mosphere so far as Montana is concerned. It was also shown that in cities, with the proper work done and the proper financial backing, that e large city can be saved.

There was a great deal of dissatisfaction with saloon conditions. A g deal of the dry vote was because of objection to the character of the sa The total vote cast in Hennepin County was within a few hundred of 7 12,000 more than ever before cast in the history of the county, and whe polls were closed and victory won there was a great feeling of relief am the business men of Minneapolis, the working men and all interests. Glick, one of the committee, said to me that there seemed to have be shadow lifted from the city. I never saw the tension so great, so severe it was in Minneapolis for two weeks before that election. It was the subject of conversation, and I think one of the reasons we won was becaus the fact that we accepted the gauge of battle when the Anti-Saloon League the Prohibitionists made it a prohibition election and not a license election made them realize that if Minneapolis went dry the State of Minnesota w go dry.

Now, if there are any other questions with reference to this campaign would like to know about, I would be glad to answer them. I was there on off for practically a month.

(At this point Mr. Fitger requested the speaker to relate the circumst as to Father Cleary. Mr. McDermott's response could not be heard distin by the reporter and therefore the latter has not attempted to transcribe fragmentary notes he was able to make.)

Mr. ORR. How effective were the speakers?

Mr. MCDERMOTT. Very. I wanted to dwell a little on that speakers' pr sition.

Gentlemen, there is a subject I want to bring up before this Interstate C ference Committee; and that is this: For a number of years we have be discussing in this work the organization of a practical speakers' bureau. T reason of that is this; our bureau is called on at different times to lend services in local option fights and state fights and we are called on at times furnish speakers. Now, to get an able speaker on this question, one wh posted, and to get him on short notice, we are at times forced to pay him larg fees than we otherwise would, if we had a permanently organized speake bureau. The result in Minneapolis, as has been the result in every state wh the fight has been close, has shown me and the committee in charge in tha state, that we should have a national speakers' bureau, and that national spea ers' bureau should be recruited from speakers from different states, posted this question, and who will keep up on the matter.

I have made some recommendations which I will submit to this meeting open up the question for discussion.

A speakers' bureau should be organized, under the direction of the Orga zation Bureau of the United States Brewers' Association, for use in campai and speeches before civic and commercial bodies, labor bodies or in other places where speakers can be used or placed, when opportunity arises.

By that I mean this; there are different times when we are called upon to furnish a speaker in different parts of the country before some commercial body, some civic body, or some labor body.

The speakers should be listed in three classes:

Class A: Men of national reputation and standing.

By that I mean that we should have scattered in the different parts of the United States eight or ten high grade men of national reputation, such as Ex-Governor O'Neill of Alabama, Mr. Cabell of Virginia and Senator Towne of New York. They are men who would speak on this question if they were given an annual retainer.

Class B: Men of standing in state circles.

Class C: Our regular speakers who will be available for local and state-wide campaigns.

To secure the services of these speakers it will be necessary to pay an annual retainer running from five hundred to one thousand dollars. The reason for this is that they would then feel that they were a part of the organization work. Publicity matter and matters affecting organization in the different states could be done by them cheaply and effectively, and they would keep posted on the progress of the movement, and also keep us posted from all parts of the United States.

The intention would be to pick out for this bureau from seventy-five to one hundred speakers. The great majority of those could be retained on a $500 basis, so we could estimate that one hundred high grade speakers could be called on at any time, at a cost to the bureau of not more than $60,000 per year. which would be offset by the fact that in making speeches the price per day, as agreed upon for salary, or for the speech, would be charged against the annual fee paid as a retainer, until such time as they had reached that limit, when they would be paid so much per speech, as each individual agreement would call for.

A capable man should be selected as an instructor of speakers.

When I say that I mean to do as we did in the Minneapolis campaign. When we started there I suggested that Mr. Homer Durand of Ohio, who is a very capable speaker, be called up there for a week and to meet the speakers, which was done They had debates in the evening, heckling questions were asked, and the result was that we had a very effective crowd of men out on the stump in Minneapolis. So I say:

A capable man should be selected as an instructor of speakers, not as a manager of the bureau, as this we wish directed and managed from our central office in New York. These speakers should be carefully selected for the work they have done and could do in the future, from all parts of the United States. We could then use the speakers nearest a campaign, when necessary, which would entail less traveling expenses and, if properly instructed, they could be just as effective.

In the campaign which has just closed in Minneapolis, very effective work was done by a regularly organized speakers' bureau, headed by big mass meetings that were addressed by Hon. C. M. Bryan, of Memphis; Hon. Royal E. Cabell, of Richmond; Hon. Jacob E. Meeker of St. Louis; Hon. Edgar F. Hanson, of Belfast, Maine; and Hon. Charles A. Towne of New York.

In view of the fact that next year we will be confronted with a number of state-wide elections, and in view of the fact also that a number of men in these states and other places where elections will be held would feel like becoming interested in the work, if they could feel that they were a permanent part of it, we feel that such a bureau is imperative, and that the time has come for the formation of a national speakers' bureau along these lines, or something better, if it can be worked out, and this bureau should be financed by our Association.

I make these suggestions to open the matter up for discussion.

The CHAIRMAN. Does any member wish to ask Mr. McDermott any further questions? If not, I think it is in order to give consideration to the proposition which he has laid before you. What is is your pleasure?

Mr. ZOLLMAN. I don't know that I want to say anything in addition in regard to Minnesota.

Following the passage of the county option bill in that state, there were 56 elections called up to and including that of Hennepin County. Of course the Anti-Saloon League selected the best territory for itself. Out of the 56 elections, 44 counties had gone dry and 12 had gone wet, leaving 30 counties in which no elections have as yet been held.

You gentlemen will have to pardon me, I have a bad cold and speak somewhat under difficulties. I do want to say something bearing upon the question which Mr. McDermott has raised. As I say, out of 86 counties elections have been held in 56, with 44 going dry and 12 going wet. The total vote cast in these elections was 245,000, of which the drys have a margin of 10,000. That of course is of no particular significance because we figure that the 30 remaining counties in the state are wet and we probably will not lose any of them unless it is by a fluke. Ramsey County, in which is located St. Paul, gave the Governor a majority of approximately 12,000 at the last election, when the issue of wet and dry was probably as nearly drawn in that county as it could be drawn without being a direct issue. So that the votes so far had and indicating victories and defeats in the wet and dry movements, show that Minnesota at least is safe on the prohibition question, if it is submitted to the vote of the people.

The question that we are liable to be confronted with is statutory prohibition, and that is a dangerous proposition. We believe, however, that an effort will be made to either pass statutory prohibition or submit it in a constitutional form. If submitted in a constitutional form we believe, as I said before, that we can take care of it.

Now, in regard to the causes that led up to this present proposition or up to the present conditions, I simply have this to say and this suggestion to make. Several years ago we were of the opinion that perhaps things were going better in that state, and they have not been growing better—I believe as a matter of fact they have grown worse; that is, the prohibition sentiment in that state I believe is stronger today than it was four or five years ago. Newspapers which were inclined to be neutral or at least seemed neutral four or five years ago, have gone over into the prohibition column; notably the Minneapolis Journal and perhaps some of the others. Our own papers in the city of St. Paul, from which we received some consideration a few years ago, are disinclined to give us any consideration, although they have not come out in the open in favor of either statutory or state-wide prohibition. That gives you a bird's eye view of the situation in Minnesota.

The prohibition question there has been augmented or increased by the attitude of a great many people against the saloons. "The American Saloon must go," is not only the slogan of the Anti-Saloon League but of a great many people who patronize saloons.

The situation in Minneapolis is peculiar, by reason of the conditions Mr. McDermott has stated. A great many people in Minneapolis who visited saloons and who are not dry in principle, voted dry, as I am reliably informed and believe. I know a week before the election I met a man in St. Paul who is a resident of Minneapolis and whom I know very well. I met others prior to that. I talked with them and they said they were going to vote dry. I asked them their reasons, and they said, "Well, the saloon is too strong a proposition, it caters too much to the boys and to the girls, and we believe we can get along without it. We can get all we want any way in our own homes." That is a dangerous sentiment, very dangerous, and it is something that must be met. The saloon condition in this country must be met in some way and some shape, and I submit that is one of the propositions to be considered. I have no suggestion to make at this time, but something must be done along that line or the American saloon is doomed, without question, and there are a great many people who are willing to vote for prohibition and to have prohibition come in order that conditions may be changed. In other words, they are willing to take regulatory measures and corrective measures, but they want to wipe it out first and then let the regulation and correction come afterwards.

Now, in regard to what Mr. McDermott has said as to the organization of a speaker's bureau, I want to say I heartily commend it and I want to impress it upon you and upon the Trustees of the United States Brewers' Association. It seems to me to be a practical question and a question that ought to be handled as Mr. McDermott has suggested. A speaker's bureau ought to be organized and maintained under the auspices of the United States Brewers' Association.

When we went into this county option campaign in Minnesota we were without speakers, except one or two that we had in the state. The result was we had to reach out into the different States and pick these men; not only to pick the speakers but to pick an organization to put into the different counties, and you can readily see what that meant when we had 56 county elections. We did not have in the City of St. Paul, in our office, force enough to organize the respective counties, to thoroughly canvass them and to put speakers and educational matter into them; so we built it up in that way by going into the different states and selecting these men.

In some instances perhaps men were used who might not have been the best men in the different sections of the state, but we could not help that, and there was a remarkable showing made, as it was. The mistakes that we made were few in number; but if such an organization is conducted under the auspices of the United States Brewers' Association it will be more effective along all lines, and it should be under the auspices of the United States Brewers' Association; and I want to add to the suggestion that Mr. McDermott has made, this further one: No organization can be maintained and effectively conducted under present conditions in the United States with Mr. McDermott and two or three men at his disposal; that is absolutely out of the question. The organization bureau of the United States Brewers' Association should consist of from ten to fifteen men, so that when the different fights come up in different sections of the country, competent men can be put in there at least to supervise and superintend these different county and state fights where the elections are being held. The state-wide work and the county work has been new and is new to a great many people; so that while the organization should be under local auspices and under local management, let some one who is familiar with the general outline of the work of precinct organization and organization of counties, be put into those fights and he will be of a great deal of assistance to the local organizations.

I suggest that there not only be a speakers' bureau organized and maintained under the auspices of the United States Brewers' Association but that the organization bureau ought to be increased to at least ten or fifteen men, in order to be made effective. It is folly to think that two or three men can take care of the conditions in this country, from the north to the south, from the Atlantic to the Pacific; it is absolutely impossible and it seems to me to be a short sighted policy to expect it, and I believe that the money which has been used for other purposes can very well and better be utilized for the purpose of maintaining an effective organization bureau and an effective speakers' bureau. [Applause.]

Mr. BECKER. In order to bring this matter properly before this body, I move that Mr. McDermott's recommendation be referred to the Board of Trustees.

Mr. FOX. Mr. Chairman, wouldn't it be a good thing for this body to instruct the Chairman to appoint a committee on resolutions, to which any matters of this kind can be referred? The Committee on Resolutions can then formulate these suggestions into a recommendation.

Mr. BECKER. I will put my motion in that order.

Mr. FITGER. I second the motion.

The CHAIRMAN. Of how many members?

Mr. BECKER. Five members.

(The motion was put to a vote and unanimously carried.)

Mr. FOX. I have two communications here, Mr. Chairman. One is from Mr. Hansel, the President of the Independent Brewing Company of Pittsburgh in which he says that he regrets very much that it will not be possible for him to attend this meeting.

Here is a wire which has just come to Mr. Gardiner which informs him that "Pensacola wet, city 900, county about 500." That means that the city of Pensacola, Florida, has gone wet by 900 and the county by 500, in a very important fight. [Applause.]

The CHAIRMAN. Does any other member wish to ask any questions of Mr. McDermott on this subject?

Mr. DOYLE. I would like to ask Mr. McDermott in regard to the speaking in Minneapolis, as to what the particular line of argument was, whether mostly on economics or personal liberty?

Mr. MCDERMOTT. I want to say, Mr. Doyle, that it covered all phases. The labor men covered the economic side of the question, as to labor being thrown out of employment. Different speakers handled the different questions, the question of law enforcement, prohibition not being a success, the question of personal liberty, the question of the saloon being the poor man's club, and some speakers were more effective on one subject than on another. Some speakers covered particular phases of the different questions.

I will give you a little incident which occurred at the Six O'Clock Club in City of Minneapolis, composed of 150 of the leading citizens. They asked joint committee in charge for a wet speaker and asked the dry committee a dry speaker. I discussed the matter with the committee, and we selected account of the class of men of which the membership of the club was comp all high grade professional men, Mr. Sheridan Ford, of Detroit, to represent wets. Mr. Ford is a very high grade speaker, clean cut and well edu and informed upon the subject. When he got there he was confronted by Governor John Linde. Mr. Linde in his remarks stated that the campaign Minneapolis was a campaign of saloon keepers and was practically finance the saloon keepers of St. Paul. Mr. Ford, knowing entirely different and ing that the campaign was being managed and conducted by the Bus Men's Educational League, challenged Mr. Linde on that subject. He as the Ex-Governor to apologize for his remarks and cleaned him up on the ment so much so that Mr. Linde came to him afterwards and said, "I w like to discuss this matter with you, I am not a prohibitionist but I am opp to the saloon and saloon conditions.

That showed right there. The result was there were 20 men at that di high grade men, who were convinced that we were right in our analysis of situation; and the result was very gratifying. It merely shows you what be done when these situations arise if we are prepared to meet them and get the speakers. When a man is strong on one subject he should be sele to speak on that subject. You want to know your man and to know that he qualified to speak on that subject.

Mr. DOYLE. From the remarks made by Mr. McDowell as to the propos in Los Angeles and San Francisco, were there any attempts made by the li interest in Minneapolis to clean up on the conditions prior to this elect There was a good deal of suggestion on that line in Chicago.

Mr. MCDERMOTT. I would rather have Mr. Fitger or Mr. Zollman, who k more about the conditions so far as the licensed traffic in Minneapolis is cerned, answer that question.

Mr. FITGER. Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, in a general way we, in our t tory, believe that whenever a city is run on a wide open policy, and the t comes on for an election on the liquor question, that we generally lose out. fact that has been proven in Duluth and Superior, two cities opposite one other, several times, that whenever the city is run loose the opposition will w it on the issue that they have before them, that whenever the city is run t that we have a better chance to win.

Now, the fight in Minneapolis sets that at naught, for the City of Minnea was run rather loose. In fact, they were not at all as strict as they were in St Paul and in Duluth in enforcing the law.

While I am on my feet I would like to speak of another aspect in regard the necessity of having speakers go throughout the country to argue in our fav that necessity exists not only at a time when there is an election on but through the year. We have in Minnesota such men as Ex-Governor Linde, was President Wilson's Ambassador to Mexico on this peculiar situation. S men are out among the people all the time, and when they get a chance t talk for prohibition. We haven't one man in the State of Minnesota, not prominent man who makes it his business to go out and talk in our favor. I believe if we have such men as Mr. Ford and people of that character who come to Duluth and be introduced and go among the people, not perhaps by or by any other man connected with the brewing industry but if he could introduced to half a dozen or a dozen men in the town, he could argue aga prohibition at a time when these people are not in a frenzy.

Mr. ZOLLMAN. I want to correct Mr. Fitger to this extent in regard to conditions in Minneapolis. The result in Minneapolis was in conflict with proposition which he made that non-enforcement of the law made for a w election. That is true. Conditions in Minneapolis were not good. I do wish to say that the law was being violated so much in the sale of liquor minors or drunkenness; but the closing hours were flagrantly violated. And the clubs, and the conditions outside of the clubs, the saloons were open un half past twelve or one o'clock at night in a number of instances, particularly those places that were supposed to be of the highest grade of respectability I made several trips through them myself. These places were open until half past twelve or one o'clock, in violation of the state law. While St. Paul and Ramsey County are for liquor, these are conditions which were not permitted in that city nor would they have been permitted in Duluth for a moment.

Yet in the face of that Minneapolis went wet; but I do not want any one here to assume that that condition is going to repeat itself. I think that Minneapolis went wet in spite of law violations, because it was made a prohibition question and not a county option question. The Anti-Saloon League started out with the proposition of county option, and that was met by our forces with the statement, "This is not county option; the county option bill has passed and has become a law, and it is a question of prohibition, and it has come down to the question where it is not only prohibition so far as the saloons are concerned, but so far as manufacture is concerned, and it has come to a point where it means individual prohibition for you." And, as I say, notwithstanding these conditions, Minneapolis went wet.

The matter was discussed a number of times in our Executive meetings prior to the time of election in Minneapolis. Very little could be done at that time, because we were too close to it and any attempt to make a correction would have been too patent and too open. We insisted, nevertheless, that something should be done, but very little was done in that respect. The local authorities of Minneapolis, good men, were a little too liberal and permitted too wide a latitude, and from that came a great many complaints. For instance, we went into two of the places where cabarets were being conducted, open until very late. I heard afterwards complaints about these very places. I talked with men who sat there and who drank but who said they were going to vote dry. They said there was too much of that thing and too many girls were permitted in there. You can readily see how that thing makes and for what it makes; it makes dry voters of a great many people who ought to be wet, and it was simply because Minneapolis realized that situation in connection with St. Paul, realizing what it meant to the City of Minneapolis if it did go dry that, in my judgment, saved the day, because there was a strong feeling against the saloons as they were conducted in the city of Minneapolis.

I believe, as a general proposition, and agree with Mr. Fitger, that a restricted policy—I do not mean by a restricted policy one that is narrow; but I say a restricted policy within the limitations of the law, makes for a better result when you are confronted with an election. (Applause).

The CHAIRMAN. Before we proceed with the discussion I would like to announce the names of the gentlemen whom I desire to appoint as a Committee on Resolutions. They are as follows: G. L. Becker, Chairman, of Ogden; T. C. Haffenreffer, of Boston; A. J. Doyle, of Chicago; William Hirsh, of New York; Oscar Schmidt, of Milwaukee.

Mr. FOX. Perhaps Mr. Wiedemann can tell us something of the conditions in Kentucky.

Mr. WIEDEMANN. While I am a member of the Executive Committee in that state, which consists of representatives from the brewing and distilling industries, I think that Mr. Reichert, the Secretary of the Kentucky Brewers' Association, could outline it better than I can and give you more of the details of the way in which the work has been conducted, and I would therefore ask you to call on Mr. Reichert, our Secretary.

Mr. REICHERT. In 1914, after the General Assembly of Kentucky had passed what was called the complete county unit bill, there was nothing else then to do other than to try to give us statewide prohibition.

There was formed in June, 1914, in Louisville, what is known as the Joint Committee, composed of three members of the Kentucky Brewers' Association and three members of the Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association. Mr. Wiedemann, Mr. Fehr and are the members of that association or organization representing the Kentucky Brewers' Association. That committee was formed in June, 1914, and I suppose you might measure the value of its work by what has resulted.

We had a primary on August 7, 1915; that is, a state primary, and all the organizations participated. There are only two dominant parties in Kentucky, that is Republican and Democratic, and they each had candidates. On the Democratic ticket there were four candidates; Mr. Stanley against statewide, and Mr. McDermott, and Mr. Bosworth against it and we had Mr. McChesney for it. Mr. Bosworth withdrew I think about a week before the election. Mr. Stanley was nominated over the others.

I won't detain you but a moment with these figures. There was a total vote cast in that state of 284,000, both Democratic and Republican, and Mr. Stanley received 107,500, against state-wide. Mr. McDermott got 25,000 and Mr. Bosworth 3,000. The total voste cast against state-wide prohibition by the Democratic Party in Kentucky was 137,000. Mr. Stanley carried every Congressional District in the State of Kentucky—there are eleven, and he carried them all. That makes, out of our eleven congressmen, if they follow the mandates of the Democratic Party, it seems to me, when they vote in what you call the House of Representatives this fall, they would very likely vote against a constitutional amendment.

We nominated sixty legislators out of one hundred; twenty-four and it may be twenty-eight senators out of thirty-eight; all pledged against state-wide prohibition. In Kentucky it looks as though they do not want state-wide prohibition. It practically has prohibition now with the exception of the bigger cities. I might say that out of 120 counties we have ten partly wet, some are all wet, but of that number there was a chance of some of those going dry. They have a scheme there of instead of giving you state-wide prohibition, they vote you dry by county unit.

I think certainly that Mr. Stanley will win by not less than 50,000 majority His majority against McChesney was 37,000. McCreary, the present Governor, was elected by 31,000. Conditions now aren't quite as good as then, but Mr. Stanley is a man who catches the country people. I think, and I believe you all agree, that Stanley ranks in Kentucky at the present moment the same as did Bryan twelve or fifteen years ago with the national democratic party. It seems to me that irrespective of creed or color they will go for Stanley and the question is what will the General Assembly do after he is elected, when they meet in January.

We are afraid of statutory prohibition. They can enact that, although the people may oppose it, and then they will do like they did in the State of Alabama. There are so many counties in the State of Kentucky which are dry: there are 110 counties dry out of 120. We have 100 representatives and 38 senators, yet there are 60 of the 100 opposed to state-wide prohibition and 24 to 28 senators who say that they are, but whether they will deliver or not, that is problematical. I think they will.

In regard to the matter of funds, I happen to be in a position where they are constantly asking for funds every day, and to do what they did had to have them, because it required organization and the money to pay for it, and a good deal of it. I suppose that if you wanted Stanley to win by an overwhelming majority, if you wanted to point particularly to the State as repudiating state-wide prohibition, that you could make his election a certainty and roll up a majority to which you could point with pride.

Mr. FITGER. Won't he veto the bill?

Mr. REICHERT. There is no veto to a constitutional amendment.

Mr. FITGER. But if the Legislature gives you statutory prohibition?

Mr. REICHERT. Yes; he would veto it. There is only one thing you want, and it, the way I see it there, is to make it as decisive as possible, because some of the press of the country has said that Stanley might not veto statutory prohibition. They want the manufacture of the stuff but they do not want it consumed in that vicinity. They have an idea that Kentucky whiskeys are famous and they think there is no use of killing the goose that laid the golden egg. They can get it when they want it in the bottle and they do not want the saloon. In the larger cities there is not that objection.

We find this, that organization does the work every time. Speakers' bureaux are good, they are very effective. I believe with the Joint Committee that that is what did the work in Kentucky. [Applause.]

The CHAIRMAN. Gentlemen, I do not like to discourage the asking of questions, but as time is passing and several committee meetings will be held this afternoon, and a great many of the representatives in this conference have not been heard from, I will suggest that we confine ourselves as much as possible to hearing the reports of the various gentlemen representing the different sections of the country.

I will ask Mr. Nagel of Buffalo to tell us something of the recent clean-up in that territory. I am sure you will be interested in hearing it.

Mr. NAGEL. Mr. Chairman and gentlemen; I do not know that I can add very much to what I have already heard. The gentlemen who have spoken before me have sized up the situation. As you possibly have all heard and a great many know, we have had in Buffalo a very good local organization for twenty years. We started in twelve years ago on this clean-up proposition. At that time it was initiated by the newly elected mayor of the city, who had formerly been a wholesale drygoods dealer, and when he was elected we all felt we were in for strict regulation. To our surprise he sent to the organization and had a conference with them and said he was going to be liberal as to the enforcement of retail laws, as to the technicalities, but he did insist upon the saloons being cleaned up; that the disorderly places that he knew of and that we knew of, had to be closed. We then suggested that his police department get up a list of such places as he thought were undesirable. Such a list was prepared. After the conference 92 places were selected to be closed up, and upon a certain date, which was the first of March, all the places were closed up, the brewers all refusing to deliver beer, the licenses were removed and the city authorities put policemen in front of the doors to prevent any further traffic. During the administration of Mayor Adams, which was eight years, that condition prevailed, and we had very little trouble with civic organizations, in fact so much so that I think our section is almost free from all local option territory.

Following his administration a liberal man was elected to be the mayor of the City of Buffalo, and immediately these people who had not got into our places began to realize that the strict surveillance of these places was going to be removed, and last year we woke up, after five of liberal administration, with about as many bad places as we had eight years before. Then we also noticed that these civic organizations sprang up, the newspapers commenced pounding the traffic and there were various other ear-marks which we saw were to our disadvantage. We attempted to prevail upon the authorities to stop this condition, but were met with the suggestion that these poor people had to live, and they weren't going to stop them.

After considering the subject for some time, the Buffalo Brewers' Exchange decided, in June of this year, to clean up these places themselves, regardless of the local administration; and I was appointed as a committee of one, with full power to retain detectives to make investigations and to obtain legal services to go into court and to make arrangements with bonding companies, in order to clean up the traffic in Buffalo, without depending upon the local authorities. We made this investigation and we found some sixty places; and from the reports that I received, although I thought I was well posted in regard to the traffic in Buffalo, I was simply amazed at the deplorable immorality and almost unmentionable conditions that were found in those sixty places. We succeeded in closing up those places; they were closed up on the 1st of October and they are closed up still. There is one little incident that happened in connection with it, to illustrate the temperament of the people in regard to these disorderly places, of which I might tell you.

While we were making these investigations and before the public knew we were doing it, one fellow took a young girl into one of these joints and, as the evidence showed, bought three or four cocktails for her; she became hysterical and went into a comatose condition. An ambulance was sent for and the police stopped the ambulance to see what the trouble was, and the next day the press came out with scare headlines that a school girl attending high school had been found in one of these joints, that she had been drugged, was there for an immoral purpose, and the leading papers took up the issue and immediately we had an anti-vice crusade. The papers have been filled with it, and while that necessarily always hurts traffic when matters of that kind are brought to such prominence, we were fortunate in having started our campaign, and we convinced the press that we had started long before this incident happened, and even a number of civic organizations have complimented us and have stated to the press that the brewers are to be given as much credit for the closing up of these dives as those in authority, if not more. In fact, the press is after the local authorities and not after the brewers, for having allowed them to exist when they could have closed them up. Their entire arguments are against the local authorities.

I am thoroughly convinced from my twenty years experience in this kind of work, particularly in the State of New York, that unless the brewing industry of the United States makes efforts to clean up the conditions in the saloons, the saloon is going, as an institution.

Now, when I say clean up, and I have heard this talked in conventions for twenty years, exhorting everybody to clean up, and everybody has received applause when he has made a speech along that line, but is very much like the other kind of exhorter, he exhorts them and they become believers in the Lord, but he gets a very small percentage of them. They are all for cleaning up when they are in conventions, they are all for cleaning up when they hear somebody else talk, but when they get home and the collector brings in his reports and there are a few barrels of beer less sold than the week before, then it does not make so much difference whether the place is clean or not, and if he happens to have a lease on his hands that may cost him a hundred or two hundred dollars a month; he don't care whether that place is run orderly or not, as long as he doesn't have to lose that rent.

Now, that has been the condition in my neighborhood, among my own colleagues, and it is the condition generally over the United States—there are some exceptions of course, but in a great many cases we find that to be the rule, and it is for that reason, after we had tried for five or six years by this same kind of talk at almost every one of our meetings, trying to prevail upon our members to clean up voluntarily, each one taking his own initiative, was the best way to do, having in mind by that method it might reduce the possibility of loss; but it was useless, even in the City of Buffalo. We did not succeed as long as we left it to the individual man and it was only when every brewer in the City of Buffalo signified his willingness to stand up to the rack and pay the expense and have it done legally and with force, then only did we succeed. And as a part of this recommendation of this conference committee I suggest, if you are ever going to accomplish anything in that direction, that some such method be worked out in every city, and that the organization ought to try to prevail upon the organizations in all localities to do this work themselves and not depend on outsiders to do it for them; that every brewer should be induced to go ahead and clean up regardless of expense, regardless of consequences, because if you do not the people on the outside will do it for you.

I find no prohibition sentiment; it is an anti-saloon sentiment, and when you consider the saloons and look at your own places yourselves, you will admit that they are justified in their criticism of fully one-half of the saloons in this country, and I make no exception as to territory. There are some states where the regulation has been very limited, and some where it has been severer than in others. Particularly in the east, where I am very familiar, we find many bad places. To illustrate, I was told when we started in on this campaign that if we insisted upon having these places closed up and an officer placed on guard, that they would be severe on various other violations; that they would be very particular about closing up at certain hours, no Sunday traffic, and screens. This is all in accordance with the law and ought to be done any way, but it is not done. Now, we found when we got into it, that while the local authorities threatened these things they never carried them out. They are just as liberal as far as technical violations of the law are concerned, now as they were before. It was only intended to try to stop us from going ahead and doing these things, and from my experience in the capacity of the committee in this matter, not only at this time but at previous times, I have noticed this remarkable fact that the keepers of these dives happen to be the friends of politicians. The politicians seem to rely upon them for certain classes of work. The politician will get rid of him if you give him a way to do it, but he does not want to take the initiative. I have had men of the highest standing, both in the legal profession and in the medical profession and business men, come to me and try to get me to pass over one or two or three of these fellows. I have a list of them in my possession, in my office, showing the character of men that these dive keepers can appeal to, and these men will come to the front for them. So, it is not to be wondered at that the man who is looking for political recognition, when men of that kind come up to him and ask for favors, that he gives way, but as a business proposition as business men, we are looking for the favor of the public at large, and you will get the favor of the public at large by standing up and having these things accomplished.

I also found in my investigations that while we were adopting resolutions against these places for years and had, in many instances, notified the authorities that we wanted certain things done, some of our own members would go to these very same authorities, after the meeting was over, and suggest that the resolutions should not be carried into effect. Now, it is that kind of practice that when a man is arrested for a violation of the law that you gentlemen go up, or some of your assistants, or your attorneys or outside men, go up to some judge or district attorney and protect him from prosecution. It is that kind of practice which is dangerous. It is that kind of stuff that gives this traffic the reputation it has got.

Mr. FITGER. How much force did you have; how many detectives?

Mr. NAGEL. I had six men.

Mr. FITGER. What did you pay them?

Mr. NAGEL. That depends; all the way from $10 a day to $5 a day, depending upon their qualifications to do the work. We accumulated evidence with which we could go into court and convict, but instead of doing that—our licenses expire on the 30th of September—we notified everyone that he was on the list and that if he attempted to get his liquor tax certificate or attempted to open his place on October first we would prosecute him. We had him indicted before the Grand Jury; the district attorney cooperated with us and we arranged to have attorneys in court to explain our efforts in this direction and insist upon a penal sentence. They were notified to that effect and we had that in the newspapers.

Now, gentlemen, that is the whole thing. It can be solved if you are honest with yourselves. If you have got a disorderly place next to you the contamination is bound to come in your place; and I find that a certain percentage of the brewers do not care where the money comes from, and that has been the curse of this whole thing; this talking at conventions as it has been done for twenty years and as I have heard it in our local organizations for five years has no effect unless you bring about something radical, regardless of whom it hurts, without fear or favor. (Applause.)

Mr. SCHLISTING. Don't you find it is the local authorities who are at fault?

Mr. NAGEL. Absolutely

Mr. SCHLISTING. Don't you think this organization should go to work and make the regulations of saloons a state, if not a national matter; don't you think this Association should appoint a board or have a board to look after the selection of boards in the different states, making it a national proposition instead of depending upon the local organizations?

Mr. NAGEL. It is a big proposition, if it can be done.

Mr. SCHLICHTING. It can be done if we get at it right.

The CHAIRMAN. We are fortunate in having with us to-day the general counsel of the New York State Brewers' Association. I am sure you will be glad to hear from him in connection with Mr. Nagel's statement. Mr. Hirsh, may I call upon you?

Mr. HIRSCH. Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the Board of Trustees and the Interstate Conference Committee:

In his remarks, brother Nagel, although I like to call him Nagel—I don't know just how he pronounces his name—has given you a correct account of the conditions; still, let us reason together.

I think there is much in what he has said about the neglect on the part of the people engaged in the liquor traffic, both wholesale and retail, throughout the United States, for the troubles we have drifted into and toward which we are traveling with still greater rapidity. There seems to be a feeling among men in the traffic that "when the devil was sick a devil a monk would be, but when the devil was well the devil a monk was he." With that thought in mind, I am going to say just a few words about preparedness, not for national defense but for the protection of what there remains of the brewing industry and the liquor traffic in the United States.

You will recall either from reading or perhaps from participation in the campaign that General Hancock, when he was running for President, said that the tariff was a local issue. When he announced that as a part of the campaign for Presidency he was immediately held up to ridicule and at the end of his campaign there were many of his own followers who attributed his defeat to the fact that he had taken hold of the wrong side of what was then and what has since been a very prominent issue in Presidential elections; but time has brought about a vindication of his judgment on the subject because while legislation on the tariff is carried on by a national body, if we observe the operations in Congress when a tariff bill is being considered, we will notice that each section of the country is looking after the interests of that portion of the country rather than the interests of the country at large, and that every time a tariff bill is in process of formation there is considerable log rolling with the object of getting as much advantage, as much concession and as much privilege for the section of the country that a particular senator or congressman represents, as is possible. Now, we can apply the same reasoning to the liquor question. It is not properly a national question. The United States Government has no police jurisdiction. It does not attempt to administer the criminal law or the police power of the states. Under our government, it belongs to the individual states, and if properly applied in the individual states we perhaps could prevent the issue arising which would make it the subject of national consideration.

In the opinion of those with whom I associate in the State of New York and who are the advisers of the industry in that state, we only have a national prohibition issue because conditions have been permitted to arise in the various states which make an issue against the saloon and not against the use of liquor as such.

If I may have just a few minutes for what I consider to be a situation in the State of New York, or if I may bring the consideration of the question down to its operation in the City of New York, we find in it three very important aspects: One is the moral aspect, the other is the legal aspect, and the third is the economic aspect. Combination of the three constitutes the backbone of the Anti-Saloon League movement which aims first at the obliteration of the traffic in every locality in towns, cities and counties, and even state-wide prohibition, until it realizes its ultimate aim, which is nation-wide prohibition.

We have always had with us folks who believe that the use of liquor in any quantity is a wrong and should be prevented. Among that class of people there is division on the question of whether or not that should be done by legislation or moral suasion; but whatever may be their position on those two aspects; on the moral question we could afford to consider that negligible, if there were not involved in that moral aspect the still graver consideration and more numerous following which we find behind the legal aspect. The legal aspect of the liquor question is the one which bolsters up the moral aspect and gives it the attention of the public. The men on the hustings or in the pulpit talking against the use of liquor would receive very scant attention if they did not have concrete illustrations to present and were not able to draw a picture which shows the full consequences of over-indulgence. Those illustrations come from the legal aspect, the violations of the law, sale of liquor to people intoxicated; distribution to minors; the sale of liquor of a kind which can not give the real conviviality which is promoted by the use of the lighter beverages; the continuance of the dives and brothels, containing your licenses and many of them tolerated by your public officials.

I can illustrate that by giving you the conditions in a county in New York. For many years the county was run wide open; the local officials were paying very little attention to the excise conditions. The state officials came in there in a perfunctory fashion and occasionally instituted a revocation proceeding and took away a license, but never attempted a conviction in the criminal courts. It seemed that the population was asleep or blind, but suddenly a very prominent political leader in the county got into trouble by murdering a man. That immediately focussed attention not only of the county but of the entire state upon that locality, and a committee of citizens was appointed to investigate the conditions in that county. One of the most important things that they hit upon was the flagrant violation of the liquor tax law. They set about procuring evidence. This evidence showed that in many instances the road houses and the hotels and the saloons were centers where men gathered and sent out and procured girls; that those girls were then used in a way that was considered or called a "good time." They also found that gambling was practiced in a great many of these places. They found that children were allowed to frequent these places, to obtain liquor which they consumed on the premises or which they carried off the premises.

Prosecutions were instituted and convictions were had, yet these places continued to run because the conviction of one man simply meant another would be substituted in his place. When we went to this committee and offered our cooperation they accepted it, but the results were such as to discount our representations because it was found that while they could obtain a revocation of a certificate a new certificate would be issued to the place for some other man and the conditions that prevailed before continued with only slight improvement.

Now, what does that mean? That in that county we are facing now local option fights in the various towns, and the publicity organization's representations as to the efficacy of the regulation and the law are all lost sight of. The population of those towns has only one thing in mind, and that is the obliteration of the objectionable places, and the Anti-Saloon League forces are drawing upon nothing else except the condition of those places for their campaign material. There is no fight on prohibition; the entire contention of the Anti-Saloon League is "Do we want these places to survive, or shall we vote out the objectionable saloon and you cannot get out the objectionable saloon unless you vote out all saloons."

Now, that is the experience that we have throughout the entire state. Wherever there is a strong feeling against the saloon, wherever there is the nucleus of a prohibition movement we can trace it to the abuses in the traffic itself. Two or three objectionable places in any community sets at naught any argument that you present for personal liberty, or the amount of revenue involved, or the efficacy of the regulation law. The people of that town are determined to get rid of what they call a blight upon the community and they say "We will wipe out all of these places in order to get rid of the few objectionable ones, and then perhaps we will get a fresh start; and only a small percentage of the vote in any local option election where that question is presented is intended to establish prohibition; it is intended as a rebuke for the abuses of the traffic.

Now, the only deduction that I wish to make before this body is this: that publicity, that the use of the correct material is a very efficient medium for combatting the prohibition movement. Organization is also a very effective factor in meeting our opponents. The establishment of a competent speakers' bureau is also a very handy weapon to have at hand, because of the conflict which is being carried on by the Anti-Saloon League will not permit us to commence preparation when they are upon our territory, but we should be prepared in advance, and the moment their forces move upon any state we should be able to meet them immediately with men and leaders who understand our side of the question and who are also posted on the methods and the strategy of the Anti-Saloon League; and it has been our experience in the State of New York that they cannot be improvised. It takes trained men to handle that kind of work. [Applause.]

Whether this is to be done by the National Association or by the state associations is a question which perhaps will bring about some discussion and possibly some differences of opinion; but there should be a competent speakers' bureau established, whether it is in the states or by the Federal body itself.

Now, to bring this, so far as we are concerned in the State of New York to a focus which interests us in the United States Brewers' Association's work, I would say this, that in the State of New York, as it must be the case in all the states of the Union, we realize the importance of making every proper and reasonable effort to check the growth of the Anti-Saloon League and the prohibition movement in the United States. As in a military campaign if the contending countries are in a position where a good section of the enemy has been vanquished they may release their forces from that part of the campaign and throw them with redoubled strength upon the remaining force who are to be overcome. So it is in our fight; when the Anti-Saloon League prevails in some western state or central state they withdraw a part of their force and turn them on the eastern states. So we look with a great deal of anxiety upon the effect of the growth of prohibition and of the Anti-Saloon League movement in various parts of the country.

While the National Association must always be on the alert to assist the various state associations in combating this movement, it is also the duty of each state to keep alive to the issue that are being crowded in the local option and prohibition campaigns and to keep the National Association posted on the details, because a careful study of local option and prohibition fights throughout the country has brought me to this very significant realization that the campaigns are carried on in a different way and by different means and by different persons with different methods in the various parts of the country, yes, even in the various parts of an individual state.

Now, if we keep our central body posted on what is going on in the various sections of each state we will be better able to meet these contentions when they turn up in other states.

But the pivot upon which depends an efficient opposition to prohibition and local option is a reforming of the traffic itself and that cannot be carried on by the United States Brewers' Association but must essentially be looked after by the state organizations and the sooner we come to a realization of that truth and of the importance of a thorough housecleaning in the various states themselves the sooner will we be on the right road to effectively and ultimately successfully overcome the socalled prohibition movement in the United States.

Mr. Chairman, and gentlemen, I thank you for your time. [Applause.]

Mr. McDERMOTT. In the organization of the speakers' bureau we have considered the proposition of the differences of opinion which have come up in the discussion as between the state organization and the national organization. The speakers' bureau will be handled in this way. There will be prepared a list of the speakers and their salaries. In that list will be speakers from a certain state—there will be a certain state like New York which will want speakers of a certain kind. When they call upon us for such speakers we will say "These speakers will cost you so much," and when the state is rich like New York is they could pay the speakers' bureau for the use of the speakers and that would help sustain it in the states which cannot take care of themselves and, at the same time, give them the benefit of the speakers' bureau.

The CHAIRMAN. I should like to next call upon Mr. Davis of Washington to tell us what the conditions are there. He comes from a state which has been unfortunate.

Mr. DAVIS. At the last meeting of this committee in New York I made a very complete report and as this is the same committee as was there at that time, I do not think it is necessary to take up your time by going over that. The condition up there is one which naturally follows a statewide fight, the matter has been taken up in court and probably there will be a decision rendered within the next ninety days or at least before the first of the year. Until that decision is rendered matters are practically at a standstill as to what procedure will be had after the first of the year.

On the first of January, the state becomes dry, so far as the manufacture is concerned, and so far as the saloon is concerned. The bill, however, provides that persons can get practically all the liquor they want by getting it from outside of the state. The bill particularly was a bill which discriminated against the breweries in the state, put them out of business, but permitted beer manufactured outside of the state to be brought into the state.

I have listened with a great deal of interest to the remarks that have been made here, and it seems to me that all have been interesting and very instructive. It seems to me at this time from the conditions confronting the brewing interests that there should be a speakers' bureau organized and organized on the lines that have been suggested, that the working force should also be increased to such an extent that they can get in touch with the entire country. As it is now, it is very hard for them, practically impossible for them to cover the different states and to know what is going on and be in touch with them. It seems to me that this advisory committee should make a strong representation to the Board of Trustees urging them to take on these two propositions.

While, I think it is true that a little victory once in a while gives a great deal of encourgement, yet if we stop to thoroughly analyse conditions in the last two years we have had but very few victories. So far as the State of California is concerned if that state had gone dry in the last fight it would have entirely destroyed any idea that we could have carried the State of Washington or carried any other western state. I take it that the fight that is coming on in California will be of as much interest in the States of Washington and Oregon as in California. The fact that the State of California is wet is a strong incentive to the people of Washington to vote wet the next election.

So far as the State of Washington is concerned, the population that is there comes from the Middle West, that is already dry, or nearly dry, and while we have considerable population yet so far as the coast is concerned a great deal of it is not permanent. The City of Seattle has a population of 350,000. They have women voting in that state and at our last election it was carried wet by 15,000; yet the majority in other localities was sufficient to overcome it.

The conditions that have followed the adoption of prohibition in the State of Washington have been exactly as were prophecied by the wet forces. Real estate has dropped practically fifty per cent. Business in all lines has dropped off. While the State of Washington increased 120 per cent in population in the last ten years, it is safe to say it will not increase more than 15 per cent in the next ten years. I think the object lesson in the State of Washington will be such that at the next election the people will recognize the true conditions brought about by prohibition in the state and will probably adopt some measure which will do away with prohibition. [Applause.]

Mr. BECKER. In as much as the committee you have appointed doubtless has to report again to this body, I would suggest making a motion that we adjourn until two o'clock.

The CHAIRMAN. Gentlemen, you have heard the motion. What is your pleasure?

(The motion was seconded).

Mr. FOX. Before you adjourn I have about five lines here from the Secretary of the Connecticut brewers.

(Here take in the communication referred to by Mr. Fox).

Mr. OSCAR SCHMIDT. I would like to say on this motion that this body has been created for the purpose of consultation and agreement and we want to hear from every representative from every state, and I wish to suggest that if it is necessary to prolong this meeting we can meet again at two o'clock, and if there are some members who, unfortunately, have had to be at other meetings that should not be allowed to interfere with our work; it would not do to adjourn this meeting now. We must meet again and have a full discussion from every state, and the committee will make a report, make its findings and come again before this body for approval. Therefore, it is necessary that we should meet again at two o'clock all those who are not otherwise engaged.

The CHAIRMAN. I understand Mr. Becker's motion to be that we adjourn until two o'clock.

(The motion, having been seconded, was carried.)

AFTER RECESS.

The meeting was called to order by the Chairman, Mr. Koehler.

The CHAIRMAN. In the absence of Mr. Fox, the Secretary, I have asked Mr. Zollman to take the secretaryship, which he has very kindly agreed to do. If there is no objection I will consider Mr. Zellman's appointment confirmed by the body.

I think it is in order now to continue our discussion, the discussion that we began this morning, and I think we would all probably like to hear from Mr. Schlisting of South Dakota, if he is present. If he is not present, I will call on Mr. Rickel of Michigan.

Mr. RICKEL. Mr. Chairman and Mr. Secretary and gentlemen: In the State of Michigan the activities have been devoted largely to an organization of the brewing interest. Three and a half years ago a division occurred between the brewers in Detroit City and those in the rest of the state and they separated from what was then designated as the Michigan State Brewers' Association. That disorganization created a very bad condition in Michigan in more ways than one and it was rapidly going from bad to worse until it seemed almost hopeless to ever get them back again. However, efforts were put forth and after personal efforts on my part over a period of six months we have finally succeeded in getting the so-called country brewers and the Detroit brewers together again in a new Michigan Brewers' Association. We are now perfecting that organization from a legal standpoint and are building up a good framework and hope to be engaged in active work in a very short time.

It appears as though Michigan will have to vote on state-wide prohibition a year from next month. The Anti-Saloon League is busily engaged in circulating petitions, and we have no doubt but what they will get the required number of signatures. The Anti-Saloon League will hold a state meeting early in November and will take up this question at that time.

There has been some talk that the Anti-Saloon League faction is opposed to a state-wide fight, preferring to continue the fight on a county local option plan, but it is generally thought that the prohibition element outside of the Anti-Saloon League, such as the W. C. T. U. and those allied with them—that the sentiment in the ranks is so strong that the Anti-Saloon League leaders will, contrary to their own desires have to go ahead on a state-wide prohibition plan.

It has not yet been determined what counter proposition the liberal element will make. One of the suggestions has been the proposition of a home rule amendment as a counter method, reducing the unit from the county to the city, village or township.

Another thing we have had in mind is the raising of the license fee from $500 to $750 and having the extra $250 go into a good roads fund, which even in Michigan would make something like a million dollars a year. As yet, however, none of these suggestions has been seriously considered.

We will also next April, at the spring elections, face in spite of the contemplated state-wide prohibition fight elections in from 18 to 20 counties, and among the counties which we think they will select are some in the upper peninsula of Michigan, which has always been considered a stronghold of the state. They have broken into the upper peninsula and have made one of the larger counties there dry.

To offset and counteract this movement, we have merely with a view to gathering up the loose ends lying around and in fact not having stiffened up the organization at all as yet, first of all the Michigan Federation of Labor, which only a few weeks ago in a state convention went on record as opposed to state-wide prohibition. This action of the Federation has annoyed Anti-Saloon League considerably, and the leaders of the Labor Feder... were severely criticized by the Anti-Saloon League leaders for taking ... stand. We saw to it that the labor leaders came back at the Anti-S... League for their criticism and we have heard nothing further from the A... Saloon League on that issue.

Our German-American Alliance, the allied trades and other kindred li... organizations are all in a dormant state.

We have also in a careless haphazard way not at all consistently or or... edly been sending out some publicity in the state under the name of the M... gan Central Press Service.

We have been gathering from the different parts of the state reports ... violations of the local option laws, cases of drunkenness and things of ... sort and every week we print up a large sheet of those reports and se... out to every newspaper, congressman and state legislator in the state. ... will shortly add to that the Republican and Democratic Committeemen.

In addition to that we have taken a monthly paper, "The Inside Americ... which is edited by Mr. Sheridan Ford, whose name was mentioned hereb... Fitger and Mr. Zollman and Mr. McDermott, and we are sending his pub... tion once a month also with our arguments to the country newspapers of Michigan of which we have about 600, and we believe that with that and ... other printed matter which we have been sending out. we can already be... to see some beneficial effects. Theretofore absolutely nothing had been g... The Anti-Saloon League had been sending out their appeal matter, their re... lar publicity matter, in all shapes, forms and sizes, but there had been nothi... from our side to counteract it. We have now on our list about 25 to 30 new... papers which are accepting arguments and publicity from our side absolu... free of charge and cost. Just as a stab in the dark, we picked up about ... liberal editors to whom we have sent our material and they are printing ... and using it to sort of bolster up their own convictions.

One of the things that we feel in Detroit and also throughout Michigan ... much as any other one thing, is the fact that the large employers of l... particularly in Detroit, which has now become such a large automobile cente... are being influenced by the Anti-Saloon League leaders with the plea of ef... ciency, but we hope through the Michigan Federation and also through s... statistical work which we have secured through Mr. Meyers that we have ... from the United States Brewers' Association, to get enough arguments ... that we will be able, in a publicity way, to make some impression upon the employers of labor as to the fallacy of their contentions on the efficiency of the drinker in industry.; but it appears to us that a very much surer w... to achieve that end, if it can be achieved, is to secure the services of some ... class man or men who can go directly to these large industrial men and ... with them personally in their offices and endeavor to point out some of the fallacies in the arguments that the Anti-Saloon League has been making ... them. In fact, up to this time, the theory of the publicity in Michigan has been worked out entirely on the basis that we want to point out the fallacies of the local option and prohibition movements throughout.

We are taking the word "dry," for example, and showing that it does not mean dry, that no license simply shows up a lot of conditions that are far worse than the conditions under a license, and we have made quite a bit of the argument that the expenditures of Michigan are increasing; that the tax levy is increasing and that the income of the state is decreasing and, at the same time, are trying to make an argument out of that to show up some of the false assumptions and fallacies of the other side. Now, on that point, I was in Minneapolis as Mr. Zollman knows, during a few days of the campaign, and Mr. Ford, whom Mr. Zollman's committee had steered up against Governor Linde, told me that in his opinion, from his experience, that the liberals should compile a "Liberal Dictionary" and take the expressions used by the Anti-Saloon League and lay them bare; take a word like "dry" or "anti saloon" or anything like that and simply analyze it and lay it bare and show the true nature of it. As we discussed that Mr. Eddy, who was also in the campaign, came along with the suggestion that we should take the established arguments of the Anti-Saloon League, which are about 100, about the large incomes of saloons and breweries and the little expenditures of the saloons the boy argument and the different established arguments that they have—take about 100 of those and send them out to gentlemen interested in this thing and have each one write an answer to that Anti-Saloon League argu ent, and out of those 100 answers which we will receive pick out the best those and in that way standardize and unify our counter arguments. We ave found that our own speakers frequently contradict one another in offsetting the arguments of the Anti-Saloon League. I think that that would a very good thing probably for this committee to consider when they take up is other matter of the speakers' bureau and see if that cannot be worked in. believe Mr. Ford intends taking that up through his paper and seeing if that heme cannot be worked out.

Now, then, the situation in Michigan reveals this, that we are far more in eed of experienced capable organizers than we are of speakers. In Michigan e have more developed our own crop of speakers and although this proposiion of Mr. McDermott will be welcomed with open arms in our state as it ill assist us, we believe, with our work, our greatest difficulty will not be olved by Mr. McDermott's recommendation, and I am requested and inructed by our Association to ask that in Mr. McDermott's recommendation here be incorporated the suggestion that the United States Brewers' Association not only establish a speakers' bureau but also establish a corps of fifteen rganizers, men whom we could take into Michigan, for example, from Mr. McDermott's office in New York, and place them into county or two small counies to each man, men like Mr. McDowell, for example, or Mr. Eddy or Mr. Dietrech. Any of those men who helped us out so nobly in Michigan a few ears ago who would come into Detroit to the Central office and get an idea of he situation and take their grips and go into the localities where the fight was on and plant themselves in a hotel and stay there until after election lay. Men thoroughly capable and competent to take on an election from the eginning to the end, organizing the precincts, wards or election districts, and to seeing that the results were brought about. That is what we are looking for. I asked Mr. Eddy during the Minneapolis campaign whom he could recommend as such a man, and he said "Well, really, I haven't got one man whom I could send out of this office down into Michigan at the moment." That it seems to me is the great lack that we are facing at this time. I know we are facing it in Michigan.

For example, last spring we voted in fifteen counties and out of the fifteen counties there were only two that were really and truly wet. Now, that is pretty bad. And in those two counties Mr. Thompson or Mr. McDermott's staff had charge of one and Mr. Eddy, who was in the Minneapolis fight, had charge of the other, and those were the only two counties that went wet. In the other counties the campaigns were in charge of brewers, saloon keepers and broken-down politicians, men who had been in office and who were out of the game and trying to get back again, and in every one of those instances for some reason or other, through a brewer not having been careful, or because there were too many factions, or because the saloon keepers had aroused the antagonism of the voters, or through the campaigns being in charge of ex-politicians, we found that the results were disastrous. But if we could have sent a man like Mr. Thompson, who cared nothing about the local factions, or like Mr. Eddy, we would have met with success in Michigan, and we are now trying to prepare to take on at least five experienced organizers to work ahead in the campaigns that we are going to face in the 18 or 20 counties next April, irrespective of our state-wide fight, and it would seem to me, Mr. Chairman, that if the committee could see fit to incorporate this additional notion in their recommendation to the Board, that between this day and the day of our really needing the men on the 1st day of January, that Mr. McDermott could develop a capable crop of organizers, and we could use them immediately after the first of the year in Michigan.

As I say, the Michigan Brewers' Association, has directed me to call that to your attention and to respectfully request that the idea be incorporated along with Mr. McDermott's recommendation. [Applause.]

The CHAIRMAN. Gentlemen, do you wish at this time to give consideration to the suggestion just made. I think it is important enough to invite full discussion. The question is whether you wish to go on now with the other reports or to adopt this suggestion at this time?

Mr. DOYLE. I move that that matter be referred to the Committee on Resolutions.

Mr. ZOLLMAN. I would like to have a test vote upon that proposition. I did not express myself quite as fully as I might have expressed myself this morning, and I want to amend that motion by adding this:

That it be the sense of this organization—

I do not want to place any burden upon the committee, the committee can report in accordance with the motion—I move to amend that motion to this effect:

That it be the sense of this organization that the committee incorporate in its report of its recommendations to the Board of Trustees that the organization bureau will be enlarged to the extent of from ten to fifteen men, as in the discretion of the Board of Trustees is deemed to be proper, for the purposes of organization work in the respective counties and states wherever the organization bureau deems it necessary to use them.

Mr. DOYLE. I will accept the amendment.

Mr. ZOLLMAN. When our fight in Hennepin County was on we realized that if Hennepin County went dry it meant the end of the State of Minnesota. We called in Mr. McDermott and we had practically every man of Mr. McDermott's staff in that one fight, and those men did effective work—there is not any question about that. I will take my hat off to them, and the rest of us will too. It meant the saving of that state.

Now, then, if there had been fights on in other sections of the country they would have been unprotected. As it was, we called in people who could have been used in South Dakota and Wyoming and some other place. It is for that reason that it is necessary in my judgment to make a motion to amend that motion so that that may be incorporated in the report of the committee.

Mr. GUND. Before the motion is put, I haven't heard anything mentioned as to Mr. Andreae's force. I do not know anything whatever as to what the relations may be between the United States Brewers' Association and Mr. Andreae. I haven't heard his name mentioned—I don't know whether he was asked to go to Hennepin County. All I do know is we are having a prohibition agitation and fight on and election the second day of November, and I was told only two or three days ago he had eight or nine men in Ohio. Now, if he has them in Ohio why could not he lend support somewhere else. I am simply asking this for information, because I haven't heard his name mentioned. I don't know what his relations are, but I do know what there were at New Orleans at that time. Being here from Ohio, which is the only state that has a prohibition fight on, I would like to know, to make inquiry about that?

Mr. ZOLLMAN. As far as I am concerned, Mr. Gund and gentlemen, I proposed my amendment without reference to any one and without consideration or respect to anyone else. I feel the United States Brewers' Association should have an organization bureau consisting of from ten to fifteen men. In what manner that shall be handled is a matter for the Board of Trustees and is a matter to be discussed later on, upon the floor of the convention if it comes to that point. I am simply an employee of the Minnesota State Brewers' Association designated by that Association and elected as a member of the Interstate Conference Committee, the purpose of which committee is to discuss ways and means and considerations for the purpose of conducting the various campaigns. My experience has taught me, and I think it has taught everybody else here who has been engaged in these fights, that the organization bureau of the United States Brewers' Association is not comprehensive enough and it is for the purpose of making it more comprehensive that I talked this morning and am talking now. I have no voice in saying how it shall be made comprehensive. I have my own ideas upon that subject, but I do not want to tread upon anybody's toes at this time or any other time, and I think this motion is a tentative one which should be considered and embodied in that committee's report, and when it is so considered and so embodied by that committee and submitted to the Board of Trustees of the United States Brewers' Association, it is for them to pass upon the final modus operandi in which it shall be carried into effect. That is all that this motion contemplates or intends, as I understand it.

We discussed the matter this morning Mr. Gund, in respect to the speakers' bureau, so that you may know, when we went into the county option fight in the State of Minnesota we were at sea, we had to select speakers and get them from the different sections of the country. That of itself was a task. We were forced into 56 fights before we knew where we were. If we had had a competent speakers' bureau or a speakers' bureau organized under any auspices, be it that of the United States Brewers' Association or an association of the states, we would have saved time and perhaps mistakes; but we did not, and for the reason that the situation is as tense as it is in the various states, growing as it has grown, by leaps and bounds against us, I feel for one, and I think some of the rest of us do, that there should be under the charge of the nited States Brewers' Association a competent speakers' bureau which can be ed in various sections of this country. We had the same experience in gard to competent organizers, and I want to say for the same reason I feel ere should be under the charge of the United States Brewers' Association a mpetent organization bureau, with enough men to cover the various sections this country where fights are on, and for that purpose and that purpose one this motion has been made, and for that purpose I made a motion to nend that motion so as to cover the situation as it appears to me in my dgment after going through 56 fights in the State of Minnesota.

Mr. DOYLE. I would ask the Secretary to read the motion and the amendent. I take it as Mr. Zollman says that this meeting is not attempting to ctate to the Executive Committee in just which branch of any organization ey want to put this thing, only that they want more organizers and more eakers?

Mr. GUND. I simply want to state that I am heartily in favor of having this ferred to the Executive Board and that we ought to have ten to fifteen men our call and should have had many years ago. We have all had pretty avy assessments right along, and I had taken it for granted that such a board tisted under the management of Mr. Andreae. I am heartily in favor of it, I stated, but I wanted some information on that subject because I had eard no reference to Mr. Andreae made here and to my surprise I was told aly two or three days ago that he had eight or nine men at work in Ohio. hat looks pretty good.

Mr. ZOLLMAN. I will read the motion, as I understand it. At this time it as moved that this organization, that is the Interstate Conference Committee, ecommend to its committee on resolutions which was appointed this morning, iat in addition to the organization of a speakers' bureau under the charge of ie United States Brewers' Association a sufficient number of persons, say rom ten to fifteen, be added to the organization bureau, for practical organiation purposes. This is merely what this meeting, as I understand it, recnmmends to its Resolutions Committee to report.

The CHAIRMAN. Gentlemen, you have heard the motion of Mr. Doyle and the mendment as proposed by Mr. Zollman. Is there a second to it?

(The motion as amended was seconded.)

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any remarks? If not, I will ask you to vote ipon it.

(The motion, as amended, was unanimously carried).

The CHAIRMAN. I will next call on Mr. Good of Colorado, if he is present.

Mr. GOOD. The Colorado situation is approximately that of Washington. On January first the state-wide prohibition amendment becomes effective and as far as the brewers are concerned we intend to close up.

At the present time there are two actions in the courts under our home rule amendment. One is being furthered by the saloon keepers, contrary to our advice, because we thought it would prejudice any future chance of our being put back in the wet column. This action was taken up prematurely. That action was heard in the District Court and an adverse decision was rendered. It will be taken to the Supreme Court, but we feel there is no utility in it whatsoever.

The other action was brought on by the commissioners of Denver issuing licenses extending beyond January 1, 1916. The state and city have gotten together to determine this suit prior to January 1st. It will be a good thing and we will know exactly where we stand when it is decided. We believe that the decision when carried to the Supreme Court will be adverse, and we do not believe it would be advisable to recall the decision on account of the attitude of the people as regards recalls. In other words, our one idea in regard to Colorado is to keep all this agitation down and not jeopardize it to a certain extent. The strike situation has been settled, Billy Sunday has gone and all the effect has worn off. There has been quite a change of sentiment from the Colorado standpoint, especially in Denver. You must remember that Denver has one-fourth of the population of the state and we believe today were there another election held that we would have at least twenty-two to twenty-five thousand majority against prohibition.

Of course after it is closed up and they see the effect of it and test it, the workability or unworkability of this question, it will be a question for us to determine whether we shall try it again in November, 1916. If the sentment is with us we will certainly go after it again. We do not believe in laying down our arms. We believe we have a very opportune time. The tourist traffic will be minimized and taxes will be increased—property is depreciating in value—and we believe it will be very ripe for us in November.

All they have asked me to do is to present this situation to you, gentlemen, and if in the event, after determining whether the sentiment is getting stronger and stronger, we would ask your assistance if we intend to make this fight.

I believe that we have a very fair chance of turning Colorado back to the wet column. Of course that has never been done out West, but we will try it if the conditions are favorable.

Mr. DOYLE. In the event you succeed in the fall of 1916 in making the state again wet, can the other side come along with petitions the next year.

Mr. GOOD. In two years. It has to be at a general election.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there any one else who wishes to ask any questions of Mr. Good? If not, I will next call upon Mr. Speel of New Hampshire, who, I understand, is conducting a campaign in Vermont.

Mr. SPEEL. Mr. Chairman and gentlemen: There is very little to say in connection with the New Hampshire situation. We have a local option law there which came from the Legislature, and we faced our prohibition fight last January and reaffirmed the present local option law by three times the majority by which it was passed in 1903. We have bi-annual elections in New Hampshire, and that means two years of quiet. I dare say a year from this January 1917, we will have again to face a movement to repeal the present license law, but there is no situation in New Hampshire at the present time that calls for any activity on the part of the United States Brewers' Association.

My understanding in regard to Vermont is that no publicity is being given the fact that the United States Brewers' Association is at all interested in the saving of the state. It is going to be a very difficult job to hold the present local option law in Vermont. The state has been neglected for a term of years. There are no breweries there and the license towns are reduced now to sixteen license towns and cities, and the total majority in the sixteen license towns is under 300. So, from a mere statement of figures it would indicate that Vermont was almost hopeless, but we have gone in there.

There has already been organized a very strong local option league, headed by one of the Supreme Court Judges and having as vice-presidents many of the influential men of the state. Through the United States Brewers' Association the labor element has been organized and will be in a position to work.

New Hampshire has a very novel hotel law. No matter if a city or town in New Hampshire votes dry, the State License Commission has power to grant a hotel license in any no license city or town, to be exercised only for the guests from without the town or city. That provision was made to conserve the wonderful summer travel and patronage of New Hampshire hotels. Because of the freedom of New Hampshire hotels Vermont is suffering. We are now organizing the hotel men of Vermont in an effort to start a movement to retain the present law and to amend the present law so as to grant a similar privilege to the hotels of Vermont that New Hampshire now enjoys.

I do not know just what Mr. McDermott or Mr. Fox had in mind, but I do know that they thought the wisest policy was to make no great outcry relative to the interest of the brewers in the State of Vermont.

I have not any recommendations to make at this time. It would seem almost a hopeless task to save the state, but it is a long step from abolishing the present local option law to state-wide prohibition. We are being encouraged from day to day and rather hope that on the 8th day of next March we may have a majority vote and retain the present law. [Applause.]

The CHAIRMAN. Does any member wish to ask Mr. Speel any questions? If not, I will ask Mr. Wessenger of Oregon to report on the situation in that state.

Mr. WESSENGER. We out there in Oregon are practically in precisely the same condition as the State of Washington, and the State of Colorado, from which you have just heard. The constitutional amendment which was adopted by the vote of the people provides for the prohibition of the manufacture and sale of spiritous wines, malt and other fermented liquors, but it permits the purchase of two dozen quarts of beer and two quarts of whisky every four weeks for every family. It does not say for every person but for every family. In other words, the law is not a strictly dry law. It is as you can see simply a law to eliminate the saloons and the breweries.

We are making out there very great efforts to build good roads. We have wonderful scenery and all that, and I have figured it out by myself that the situation will be something like this; that those who live there would have what they want in restricted quantities, but no strangers visiting there would have anything. I am satisfied that such a condition will not work at all. The people themselves will recognize the injustice of this position and we hope that a revulsion will come next year and that we may have the chance to vote in November, 1916, on the proposition of manufacturing again and distributing to the people in such quantities as the law may provide for.

Definite plans naturally can not be formulated at this time. We think that the best time will be to wait until next April, when the taxes have to be paid and so forth, and there is already a great anxiety and great anticipation from the taxpayers as to what will happen then. Even newspapers that were lukewarm or indifferent, rather they were absolutely indifferent, have now published cartoons calling the attention of the people to the ever increasing taxes. In the only paper we expect some support from, they had a very fitting cartoon not long ago in which amongst the different items which the paper itself will increase the taxes, was the lack of three hundred and sixty to three hundred and seventy thousand dollars of license money that had been paid by the saloons. There was a special sack where that was enumerated.

Now, as far as our own position is concerned, we do not think it wise to take anything into the courts as yet. Our situation is different from the Washington situation. They voted on the law, and in our case we vote on a constitutional amendment declaring it a dry state. It was the Legislature that even passed an enabling act providing for penalties and going into details about the matter, but this law is considered by very eminent and prominent lawyers as strictly unconstitutional. I think so myself. In fact if law is based on common sense, I think anybody who has common sense will say the same thing. But, as I stated before, we thought it unwise that we ourselves should attack the law. Furthermore, we have reason to believe that there will be other interests than ours which will attack this law.

We find that amongst the so-called Committee of 100 which managed the campaign, that they are split in four or five different groups now. I mean their opinions differ as to the law that was passed by the Legislature. Some are pleased with it and some find fault with this provision and some with that and some say that the whole thing is wrong, especially as it kills an important industry of the state, especially of the City of Portland.

Now, what we will do, or what we are doing already is something on this line; we try to show to the people in articles published not being traceable back to us, that a human being is not a machine, not a money making machine. Speaking of efficiency as did the gentlemen from Michigan, I believe that the workman of America is being degraded, is being made a slave of by the application of a few turns more of the screw, if he is made to work harder and to yield his employer a few nickels a day more, that borders on slavery. We have found that when in England they wanted to adopt prohibition under the plea that there was drunkenness and so forth which had to be stopped in order to increase the efficiency of the workmen there, why, the labor leaders arose like one man. You all know that, I am not telling you anything new. I am simply referring to that. I believe we could and should work on those lines. I am not harping on the personal liberty stand or anything like that, but a human being is a human being and should be treated as such. I believe in those talks, as the gentlemen from Michigan very aptly proposes it, it could be shown that if people are taught to be moderate in the use of that which is supposed to intoxicate if taken in too large quantities, if the workman is permitted a moderate use of that, it will contribute to his contentment, to his happiness as you might call it, and he will certainly make a more efficient workman than if he was discontented by the tyranny of his employer.

Now, it may be that next spring when the time is ripe or when we think that the liberal sentiment has grown still larger, then I believe we will make another campaign on a much smaller scale however and more on educational lines than we made last year.

In the meanwhile, as far as the brewery I represent is concerned, we will have to make near beer. We do that not thinking we could make money on it, I doubt if we can, but I think we can run about even; I believe that, and we do it so as to keep the doors open and so as to be an active factor in the industrial life of our city and state and since we had that published I find that the idea meets with the approval of a great many well meaning people that I did not have the pleasure of knowing before.

I think I can condense my remarks considerably by reading to you a short newspaper article which I brought along for the purpose and then I will close.

I want to illustrate what I mean by the kind of publicity. I will just read it.

"The European struggle, now smashing methods of warfare and throwing all kinds of old theories on the scrap pile is going to have tremendous influence on the temperance question throughout the world. This is the opinion expressed by some of Europe's leading specialists and psychologists. One of the results they see at the end of the war is an international commission to report on the result of the moderate indulgence in beer and other stimulants by the men at the front. as against laboratory experiments on which a great part of the argument against mild stimulants is based now.

"'The merits and demerits of alcohol are now on their trial on a scale never before possible,' declared Dr. T. Claye Shaw of London, past president of the Society for the Study of Inebriety, in a clinical lecture just delivered. 'When this war is over there will be room for a commission on the whole medical question. It is probable that many of the dicta of the anti-alcoholic enthusiasts derived from laboratory experiments with delicate time instruments will be modified or upset, whilst other reason for abstention will be strengthened and upheld. It is a colossal experiment that we are witnessing and it is bound to have a great influence upon our future handling of the great question.'

"'War brings about an 'abnormal condition of health,' said Dr. Shaw. 'It is very easy for armchair enthusiasts to rave about the danger of the rum rations, but the nervous condition of those engaged in actual warfare is one of rapid exhaustion, and the testimony of those actually on the spot is not to be gainsaid, if, as I am told, it is in favor of the ration for the men in the very exceptional circumstances in which they are placed.'"

Now, as this tells us about the war, I think some other arguments can be produced for industrial conditions, manufacturing conditions, railroad conditions and all others, and I believe that if our Publicity Department runs along the right lines and succeeds in having more of that printed in the various papers of the United States, the effect will be much more beneficial than to send wet literature to wet people. I get a lot of that literature and I am wet through and through. It does not need any argument to convert me. Our difficulty there is to put it over in the papers and I do not wish to criticise anybody or anything, but if you appeal to the common sense of the people and show them that recreation is an absolute necessity to health then at least the manufacturer of mild stimulants will get a chance again. (Applause.)

The CHAIRMAN. The next gentleman I will call upon is Mr. Becker of Utah. Is he present?

Mr. MCDOWELL. Mr. Becker of Ogden, Utah, has been called to the meeting of the Trustees, and he has requested me to present a brief report on conditions in that state, which I will read.

"There have been no material changes in the State of Utah since my last report to this body. If anything we have the situation a little better in hand. It will interest you, perhaps, to learn what actually happened during the last year. Last winter the State Legislature passed the Wooton Prohibition Bill. This bill was drawn by the Anti-Saloon League and was a drastic and vicious measure in that it aimed at the destruction of the brewing business and the transferring of the liquor business from saloons to drug stores.

"Governor William Spry with rare courage and manhood and against popular clamor vetoed the bill. Since then the vilification and slander heaped upon his head by the Prohibitionist and Anti-Saloon Leaguers would put a Commanche Indian to shame. There is a question now if he will consent to accept a nomination for a third term as Governor, notwithstanding the fact that it is admitted on all sides that he has been the greatest and best governor the State has ever had. Our attitude somewhat depends upon his decision and the actions of the two political parties next Fall, at which time, another legislature and a United States Senator are to be elected as well as state officers. We are going slowly and are planning an educational campaign. Senator Sutherland is a candidate for reelection of the U. S. Senate. As you doubtless all know Senator Sutherland is one of the few United States Senators who had the courage to vote his conviction and who voted against the Webb-Kenyon Bill. State conversation with Kenyon."

That was a matter that came up between Senator Sutherland and Senator Kenyon in regard to his vote on the prohibition bill and Senator Kenyon said that they had the opposition of all the drunkards in Congress except one, and he thought that he was rapidly going that way. That referred to Senator Sutherland of Utah.

"I also endorse Mr. McDowell's statements and the recommendations of Mr. McDermott. California means the West, and if California goes wrong then good by to the West."

Mr. Becker has also requested me to read a resolution adopted by the Board of Trustees of the United States Brewers' Association at its meeting held in New York April 9, 1915.

"In these days of popular hysteria when fair consideration for the liberty and rights of the individual is overshadowed by narrow-minded prejudice, it is of frequent occurrence that the legislators and executive officers of our States throttle their own conviction of true public policy and justice in subservience to misguided public clamor. It is but rarely that we are permitted to witness examples of that courage and appreciation of the duties of office in the face of distorted public opinion, which alone can serve to create and preserve our nation's greatness.

We therefore rejoice that we have the opportunity today of recording our recognition of the just, sound and fearless action of Governor William Spry of the State of Utah in preventing, by his legislative veto, the legislature of his state from destroying a legitimate and salutary industry and from withholding from the citizens of his state the exercise of those privileges and rights secured to them by law, by well-established custom and by every consideration of justice and the public welfare.

We tender to Governor William Spry our felicitations upon this demonstration of fearless independence, unfaltering courage and unselfish readiness to sacrifice personal interest, if necessary, in the course of highly intelligent appreciation of public duty.

We bespeak for Governor Spry a loving and brilliant career of useful public service and convey to him the assurance of our complete appreciation of his high ability, his unflinching courage and unblemished probity."

I might add, gentlemen, that a few years ago I had the pleasure of conducting a campaign in the State of Utah against the prohibition forces. Mr. Fisher, who represents the largest brewery I think in the state, from Salt Lake, could better tell you about what we were confronted with at that time. As you all know there is a Mormon vote in that state which has gone into some of the adjoining states. It was problematical as to where that vote would go, but I recall that during that campaign after a conference with the head of the Mormon Church when I was endeavoring to ascertain what the attitude of the church as a church would be, he stated that there would be no activities whatever by the church as an organization. Things went along smoothly until later in the campaign and just a short time prior to the election the same president, in a sermon delivered, I think, at Grant City, stated that a man who darkened the door of a saloon was a criminal in the eyes of God, and that was sufficient to put the church, or at least to give the members a cue of what they ought to do and they came very near doing it, or at least they did in very many communities. I want to say that we succeeded in that campaign, from the standpoint of the large cities and I further want to add to the resolution adopted this year by the United States Brewers' Association commending Governor Spry for his action, that Governor Spry is the first governor I ever came in contact with in any campaign, and he made this statement to me. He said, "McDowell, if you believe before the day of election comes around that there is danger of Utah going into the prohibition column call on me and I will take the stump against prohibition, even if I am a member of the Mormon Church and Governor of Utah. (Applause.)

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any questions, gentlemen? If not, I should like to ask Mr. Schmidt of Milwaukee if he can please tell us about conditions in Nebraska?

Mr. OSCAR SCHMIDT. Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the Committee: At the outset I want to say I have enjoyed the advice and the experiences discussed here today. I have been in this game fighting prohibition for about thirty years, and I want you to know I learn something all the time, and I hope that these meetings will be continued and held at least semi-annually and that the same men who have charge of their fights in their states will attend these meetings and discuss with the rest of the committee what their experiences in the past year have again brought forth. I think that our recommendations based upon the work in the different states can be of inestimable value to the Board of Trustees, and it was with that intention that this Committee was originally organized.

For the State of Wisconsin I will have only a few words to say, that fortunate in having a good organization. By that I do not mean that brewers belong to it. We have the same troubles that you have every About one-third of the brewers are not members, are not paying, but those do paying are actively on the job, everybody. We are very fortunate to very efficient counsel and secretary, Mr. Austin, who has been our and counsel for a number of years. He is an old state senator and knows ropes and we have found that that more than anything else has been of I meet the president of the Wisconsin Brewers' Association every day with am in the city for half an hour and other trustees meet with him two or times a week, so that we always have some work to discuss. We do not for any campaign.

We defeated in the last campaign three of the most vicious men in the They came from two counties which were dry and we finally succeeded defeating them for reelection.

We had the usual bills like every other state—county option, women's frage in about six different forms and we had everything else, which were defeated; and I say that can be done only by organization and by active of the brewers being on the job all the time and not leaving it to somebody

That is all I have to say for Wisconsin.

I am also a delegate from Nebraska and I will say a word on that because the serious condition in that state. Mr. Bryan some years ago made it business to drive the brewers out of the state. He preached from the corners, from all the churches all the time that he would get at the boodle as he called it, meaning the brewers, and had the Grand Jury summon banks' cashiers to find out where any money was deposited by the brewers Since that time of course the state brewers' association has disbanded.

For eight years I have been treasurer of the so-called Executive Committee consisting of three brewers from Omaha and two smaller brewers from state. These five brewers have been doing all this work and owing to danger that is connected with the business there it has been thought advisable that none of the other agencies through their employees should even attend any of the meetings of this Executive Board, because a great many of them are only there for a little while, and we felt that the danger is so great we could afford to take them into our councils.

The women's suffrage in the state we defeated two years ago at a tremendous expense and we won in the state by about 9,000 votes. If they had carried the election of course the state would have been dry. We had hoped that there would not be an election but that state has the initiative and referendum the same as most states have now, and a meeting of the drys was held in Lincoln last week under the auspices of Mr. Bryan's brother, who is mayor of Lincoln and the attendance at that meeting was from outside of the state, about 50 of the prominent men of the dry parts of other states, and it was composed about 900 men and about 300 women. It was unanimously decided to immediately call an election for next year and a committee has been appointed. I was very much surprised to learn that even there had been a state organization head appointed to that committee. They appointed eight men and some women to be chairmen of the various committees. Mr. Bryan, W. J. Bryan, has stated that he has an understanding with Billy Sunday, who has now been for some weeks in Omaha, who has promised him that he will come next September and devote a month's time and visit all the cities in that state to help make the state dry.

Of course this has been one of the hardest states to fight in because Bryan has made it his hobby for years. I am very doubtful in my mind whether we can win.

We have in Nebraska only one city, and that is Omaha, but I will say these three brewers and the two small brewers, that the fighting capacity those five men beats that of any brewers or any organization I have knowledge of in the United States. In the last eight years of which I been the treasurer of the committee they have never paid less than six cents per barrel and from that to $1.10. Now, I want to ask you among selves what has ever been done in your state brewers' associations to any such contribution as that?

On my return from a western trip of investigation last week I stopped Omaha and met with this committee. At that time it was two days before the meeting in Lincoln of this dry convention, and it was determined that brewers would contribute at the outset, if it was decided to have the $1.00 a barrel, and next year, if it is necessary, another dollar.

Now, I want to say here it is well and good to say I am interested in every state to vote wet whether I do business there or not, but I do not think it is fair to have the brewers in certain states that are making money and have a good organization to expect from the United States Brewers' Association that men or aid that ought to be extended to states where the resources are small.

I want to state to you gentlemen that in Wisconsin we have never asked or received one dollar and we do not expect it and that ought to be borne in mind by states which have large interests not only in the brewing business, but especially when they are making very much more money per barrel than the brewers in the east or in the central states, having besides large liquor connections and other sources of income which you cannot get in South Dakota and in Montana and in Wyoming and in Nebraska. Therefore, I have favored a bigger aid to those states that have a very few small breweries instead of giving this aid to the states that have large breweries.

I think the state organizations which have large breweries as members, in these large states that do, like Illinois, New York and Wisconsin, and other states, should fight their own battles and leave the resources to which we all contribute, three cents a barrel, to those states where our interests are small.

I am frank to state my position to you gentlemen on these matters, because it is a vital question at this time with the brewers, because you all know there is a great deal of dissatisfaction among individual brewers, with this organization, and it is not a time to find fault. Let him be responsible who may, but it is not in my opinion a good thing to find any fault with the organization bureau or with Mr. Andreae's bureau or with anybody else's bureau. I think the time is so precious at this time that we should forget everything except to fight in every state where there is a fight to be made.

I believe that our resources should be conserved to the seven states that have state prohibition fights next year and if the following year we have no state elections that need our money which we contribute to the United States Brewers' Association you must remember, gentlemen, that the United States Brewers' Association needs the one cent dues which most brewers are only paying. It is only the extra assessment of two cents that gives any money to do any extra fighting with, and for that reason I urge that the members should pay the extra two cents, for if we do not, we have no money for such fights.

I have listened with a great deal of interest to all the speakers, especially so this morning, and when you expect the United States Brewers Association to furnish organizers for counties, what is the use of asking for ten men? You need 500 and where will the United States Brewers' Association finance any such proposition as that? I am heartily in favor and will vote on it that we have at least fifteen men, who they will organize in states. You can not expect those men to go into county and city fights. When we have ten or fifteen county elections in Michigan and Wisconsin and Illinois and in every state every year you can not expect enough organizers to go around for any such thing as that. I am heartily in favor of getting as many as we can, as the finances will permit and fifteen trained men, of course, can do much more effective work than one hundred called in at the last minute.

One man to a state; that is all I think can be expected from the United States Brewers' Association when there is a fight in a state, because all states have some kind of an election every two years.

As far as the speakers' bureau is concerned, the arguments we heard this morning were absolutely correct. Every day you have a campaign and everybody wants speakers. We get this and that man and this and that man makes a speech, but he is not effective because he has not got the facts to answer the questions put to him in these meetings, and if you want an effective speakers' bureau it is necessary to have men and to pay them by the year and have them meet and every other means by which they will take up this question and thoroughly discuss is amongst themselves, and become posted. It is, of course, to be expected that if Wisconsin or Illinois, or New York wants such speakers from the bureau that they will pay the expenses of those speakers; but of course in the small states which have not got large interests, they would get them at the expense of the United States Brewers' Association. Of course there are not sufficient funds coming into this organization to carry out all these things which we ought to have. It is simply impossible for the Trustees to finance them. I will, of course, vote for all these things on the Resolution Committee. I thank you. (Applause.)

Mr. McDERMOTT. I want to hearily concur with the remarks of Mr. Schmidt. He is a man who has had experience in this work before the United States

Brewers' Association ever started to do anything along the lines we have been trying to do in the last eight years, and I want to say to you gentlemen assembled here this afternoon that the gauge of battle is thrown down to us today that the territory west of the Mississippi, from Louisiana to Minnesota, every state in that western territory is in danger. By that I mean those states which are now wet are threatened with prohibition—they may omit Missouri this year but they will be after it next year or the year after.

The suggestions and the recommendations that have been made here today have been made by men who have been watching this situation on the firing line for the last seven or eight years and who have gained their knowledge in the fights that will occur.

The report from California and the report from Utah, the situation in Montana, Washington, Colorado, in all those states, that there is a chance to win back, and reports from New York and reports from Vermont where state-wide elections confront us next spring, clearly indicate that we have got to get into a position where we will do trench fighting, and when I say trench fighting, I mean that we must be supplied with the ammunition and the men to do progressive and aggressive fighting as the occasion requires.

The organization of the speakers' bureau is imperative, in my opinion, as I recommended here this morning. As to the additional men required for the organization bureau of the United States Brewers' Association, I have constantly recommended that for years. We have always been confronted with the question of finances, whether we had the time and the money to retain the men from year to year.

I want to say to Mr. Schmidt that it is true we should not be called upon to furnish men for county prohibition elections in different parts of the United States, but the occasion requires it at times when, as in the State of Michigan, there were ten or fifteen or twenty or thirty county elections at that time. We should have a trained force of men sufficiently mobile so that at such a time three or four or five men could be put in there.

The conditions confronting us in the United States to my mind mean that in the next two years we will either grow stronger or weaker, and our battle line is the Mississippi River. As I understand the feeling west of the Mississippi River, so will we stand or fall south of the Mason and Dixon line and so we will stand or fall in the balance of the United States.

The organization of this Interstate Conference Committee is along the lines that were originally plannel four or five years ago which was taken up then but gradually allowed to drop. I have always claimed and I still claim that a conference of this kind two or three times a year in different parts of the United States and with the men who are doing the active work, not necessarily brewers or brewery proprietors, but trusted representatives or trusted employees of the companies they represent should assemble together and thresh these questions out and gain from the experience and knowledge, as we all do through the work of the year, the most effective and best things to do in the future. [Applause.]

I should like to call upon Mr. Doyle of the Illinois State Brewers' Association.

Mr. DOYLE. I made a written report on the 23rd of June. Since that time we have had no election. I am not advised of any expected election to be called in Chicago next spring. If that election is called I think that our committee locally there will take adequate means to take care of it. I do not think it will be necessary for the United States Brewers' Association or anybody else to help out Illinois.

I was impressed with the suggestions and representations made by various gentlemen regarding the increasing of the staff of the organizers of the United States Brewers' Association.

Now, in Illinois, when we started this business eight years ago, we would employ a man for a campaign and then let him out for the balance of the year, but our state board came to the conclusion last year when we first had the suffrage parties to deal with that the proper thing to do was, as Mr. Schmidt said, to keep working all the time. We have three reliable expert men employed by the state association who do not do a thing except to attend to this wet and dry business, and I can assure you gentlemen we have found something to do every day in the year because there is always something stirring.

Mr. RICKEL. Is that three or five?

Mr. DOYLE. I am not speaking of myself or Mr. Boseman, who runs the East St. Louis office. I say that we have three other employees who just simply travel and make notes and report everything in the different districts as they go along.

We have never had county option put over us although we have a majority of our counties dry. They are dry simply because all the townships, villages and counties have voted dry.

Now, as the result of experience we have had with two different subjects, I want to suggest to the gentlemen who are here a very serious matter, that if you are living in liberal states which have not the initiative and referendum and have not female suffrage, I want to implore you to defeat those two things at all hazards. [Applause.]

The CHAIRMAN. As time is passing and it will be necessary to give our committee on resolutions time to consider its report and to submit it, I suggest that we dispense further with the reports from the representatives unless there has been a change in the situation of any of the states from which we have not heard. If there has been a change, the meeting will be glad to hear from the representatives of those states, I am sure.

Mr. OSCAR SCHMIDT. There are several states I have not heard from yet which have representatives here.

The CHAIRMAN. I just suggested that if there has been any change since the last meeting, or if there are any gentlemen here who were not present at the last meeting, that the meeting would be glad to hear from those gentlemen. In that connection I can briefly tell you what the situation is in the State of Missouri since I represent that state as a member of the Conference Committee.

The Prohibitionists, as you know, were defeated twice in recent years, once in 1910 on the issue of state-wide prohibition and again in 1912 on the local option fight. Since then they have changed their tactics, and I understand now they are going to confine their efforts to the election of dry delegates to the Legislature which convenes a year from next January, and their effort will be to endeavor to put through statutory prohibition at that time but with an emergency clause to vote again upon this measure if it is passed, by referendum. Necessarily we will have to direct our fight there and concentrate on the election of members of the Legislature.

The brewers in our section also impressed upon me their wish to call the attention of the Conference to the possible impending increase of the present tax on beer at Washington. They feel that if such a thing is proposed by the authorities there or by Congress that it ought to be very strenuously opposed by the individual members as well as by this Association. We feel you cannot gain the respect of people by simply laying down and letting them put anything over you that they choose to. We in Missouri feel that we are paying more than our just proportion of the national taxes and that there are a great many other ways and a great many other interests that ought to contribute their share.

I do not know whether this amendment ought to be made the subject of a resolution or recommendation to the Board of Trustees, but I do believe it ought to be borne in mind then by a little agitation among the members, or possibly upon the floor of the convention if you see fit; it ought to be taken care of.

Mr. OSCAR SCHMIDT. I think it is necessary that you gentlemen should all bear this in mind, please do not forget that when the extra fifty cents was last put on, it was put on by the recommendation of the Brewers' Association, and that is what I got when I went to Washington and asked Senators and Congressmen to vote against it. Therefore, I think it is well that all brewers bear this in mind, perhaps in the discussion in our general meeting or at the Executive Session of the Brewers' Association.

Mr. Chairman, there is a delegation here from Montana where they will have a state-wide election next year. Mr. Charley Kessler is here, and I would ask to have him explain the situation in Montana.

Mr. KESSLER. Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the Interstate Conference Committee: I feel there has been sufficient of a change in the situation in Montana in the last two years to warrant going over it at least briefly. I feel that those speakers who have preceded me this morning and this afternoon have unquestionably worked out the general situation in such a way that it leaves very little to be said. I want to pay a special tribute to Mr. Nagel, or Mr. Nagle of Buffalo. I consider that his speech was so full of meat it practically robs any one else of the privilege of saying very much, and I do feel that practical application of the recommendations and of the advice that was given us by Mr. Nagel, if I pronounce his name correctly, would probably enable us to come down here to Springfield or to any other place that may be selected in the future, and instead of having a rather long face and a sol and certainly very serious discussion of the issues before us, we prob would be enabled to have a little clam bake, shake hands with each other go home and attend to our business with considerable more pleasure th some of us will be able to do at this time.

However, I believe I was called upon particularly to state what my impr sions are relative to Montana. I want to say that the last Legislature, one that met in January, 1915, was not elected either as a wet or dry legis ture; it was elected like all those legislatures are in odd years. There was political significance attached and no close election at that time. The Ant Saloon League people have embraced the opportunity to get very busy. W have the initiative and referendum out there so you will understand wh guided us to a great extent in our actions and such work as we undert during the session of the legislature itself.

We have about twenty breweries in Montana. Our people had a number meetings prior to the convening of the Legislature. We had our last meet about a week beforehand, at which a legislative committee was named w some three or four were delegated to remain there the entire sixty days. Y will, therefore, understand that we realized the seriousness of the situa that confronted us. Moreover, we have never done any real professio lobbying at any time in the last ten or twelve years, but we have never fa to have one or two persons there in as quiet an attitude as they could reas ably maintain watching the legislation.

In the last six or eight years I believe it may be said to the credit of th brewers that they were instrumental in having certain legislation pass frequently over the opposition of certain members of certain other trades, b I am happy to say not of the brewing trade however, and we believe th certain remedial laws have been passed. Amongst them, I might say, the que tion of selling to minors, the revocation of licenses for offences and so forth was made very nearly automatic. In fact, some brewers with whom I ha discussed these laws tell me they are dangerously so. In other words, th laws are so simple that there is no escape from them. It might be that in jury and other trials that have occurred there that the very simplicity of those laws has defeated the purpose for which they were passed, namely, to cure the evils, that is, such evils as we could. Before juries, which you a know are very human institutions and as a rule are thoroughly in sympathy with the communities from which they have been selected, it is possible that those juries felt that the laws being so severe were at times unfair. The re sult was that many and many times when in the lower courts we had hoped that convictions would be secured and that revocations would follow for the more flagrant offences at least, we were disappointed. The result was a few years after these first laws had been passed we followed the example of the brewers of Ohio—I believe you have your Dean character law there and laws of that type—we felt best to have our laws made upon the lines of first and second offences; the first offence of course being the present law, that is the existing law at that time, and the second offence being revocation or rather suspension I might say for a period of about 30, 60, or 90 days; more or less in the nature of a discretionary proposition. After the third offence it was arranged that the revocation should be permanent, license taken away and so forth. This is more or less in accord with the Dean law of Ohio and other laws that have been passed in some of the older communities.

These have been tried out now since 1909. In 1915 after some five or six years trial of these laws and very few revocations, very few convictions and so forth, we were somewhat at our wits end as to what to do next. We went into the session with serious misgivings I can assure you. The Anti-Saloon League's local superintendent, Mr. Pope, and others had made many statements and threats as to what they were going to do. We realized that we were facing either constitutional prohibition amendments or statutory legislation in the Legislature itself. After some couple of weeks of campaigning on the part of the Anti-Saloon League, they introduced their bills in both the lower branches of the Assembly, both of those bills being constitutional amendments framed along the lines of the Arizona law. However, we found that there were serious objections to that in as much as that contained provisions which were too much on the Washington idea, which after all is only a personal restriction law. It is not prohibition as you have already discovered in hearing from the representative from Washington, Mr. Davis. We felt that with the weapons the Prohibitionists or rather the local option and other reform elements had in their hands, it would be highly advisable for us to have a statutory prohibition law enacted or rather submitted. We bent all our energies toward that end for a period, I imagine of about six weeks. The bill was signed the last day I might tell you, which shows you the fight was fairly hot to get the Legislature to consider a bill of that type. I can assure you it is real prohibition if it passes.

I have a letter in my pocket—I am not going to inflict it upon you—but merely tell you that if the people of Montana vote in favor of prohibition, and it is our intention to let them know they are voting on the real "Simon Pure" article, they must want it because we have been told by some of our best attorneys that this law will certainly hold. Of course our campaign is a year ahead and it is our intention to show up this bill in relation to the home, the hotel and domestic life of the people. Under this bill it appears that they will not be able to have even a bottle of Jamaica ginger in their homes, if it goes into effect. The church is allowed to have the use of wine, which is apparently guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States. We did not consider it advisable either to exclude the churches from the use of it. Some of our friends told us we had made a mistake, but that remains to be seen. However, I believe the bill that they are voting on will be sufficient to show just how they feel about it.

Amongst the other bills passed there—and I do not want you to be shocked when I tell you—the brewers out there defeated the partial Sunday closing bill. Some people with whom I have discussed that question say that it is unheard-of thing, and apparently it is, so far as state legislative work is concerned.

In this connection I might tell you—I do not wish to make any invidious comparisons at this time—but it is a fact that some of the wholesale liquor people differed greatly with us upon the advisability of doing that.

Mr. HUPFEL. What was that?

Mr. KESSLER. As to the advisability of opposing the partial Sunday closing bill. The brewers felt that we would strengthen our position by having an all-day Sunday bill, and we worked on those lines.

We were obliged, on the last day, to appeal to the Governor to get that bill out of committee. We went there almost on hands and knees to get out the Sunday closing bill so as to have it voted on.

The former early closing law was largely of an optional nature, but through the efforts largely of the brewing people out there, at this last session, we made that compulsory all over the state. At the request and solicitation, and with a fair understanding of the matter between the larger employing corporations and ourselves, we took up the matter well in advance and found the hours that would seem to suit them the best.

We found, for instance, that in certain lines of activity—I might say in mining work—they felt that one of the worst hours for them to have the saloons open would be the early morning hours.

The question would naturally arise: Why not change those hours, in case you are going to have early closing, to suit the hours of the employing companies to the hours of the saloons?

On the face of it, it is quite simple, but when you approach companies employing 25,000 men, you have to make concessions to what they want.

We found the hours that would suit them best appeared to be one o'clock, which was already the established law in the state, and the law as to opening hours, which varied from six to seven o'clock, had to be changed, which was against our own wishes and against possibly the wishes of a majority of the people; but I might say in addition that at the same time they realized that some hours would have to be established to please these people, and I do not believe that it was a sop thrown out to them either, but that it met a necessary condition; so we made the closing hours from midnight to eight o'clock, all over the state, in all incorporated cities. In all the unincorporated sections, the law is from ten o'clock.

That and our Sunday law will strengthen the law, together with the law as to the sale of liquor to minors and to drunkards—these, in my opinion, will help us enormously, once we take the position in this section, because where, as Mr. McDowell said, they do not want saloons, you can not clean them up satisfactorily. I am somewhat of the opinion that he is right; if they do not want the saloons, you can not run them well enough; at least we thought so.

I have made one or two notes—I do not wish to tire you, but I have wandered from my subject here.

The question of clubs came up. Up to within two years we have not had great deal of trouble with the so-called liquor clubs. These clubs, as in other sections of the country, as nearly as I have been able to learn, have been established to beat the existing license laws. The more powerful clubs the state, in nearly every instance, defeated any effort to put any sort of re lation on the existing clubs, basing it upon the theory that the gentlemen larger clubs could do no wrong. That went along to a certain point, until found the temper of the legislature was not quite so friendly.

The result was, laws were passed limiting the number of clubs in any city eight, and there was also a regulation or limitation of one club to every thousand people. You will admit that that does not give them much leeway clubs.

These clubs are entirely under the supervision of the city council. The previous laws passed prevented the formation of any clubs in communities three hundred population or less. So, in many instances, I believe the laws Montana are very strict, if not almost too inflexible in some respects.

We believe if there is anything in cleaning up places, surely we have not to lose; but possibly Mr. McDowell's theory, as expressed this morning, will the one that will carry these people against us.

As to the population in the eastern part of the state, I believe it is pertinent to mention that at this time. I do not think our growth has been quite as heavy as was that of the State of Washington, I believe it was stated at 120 per cent in ten years. However, we have gone from 375,000 at our previous census to something over 600,000 at this census. That is a fairly good growth.

I might state to you the danger in that growth of population exists entirely in the fact that it is not a native population. I would trust the native population to vote wet, just as I believe has been the case in California and Nevada but we have recruited this population from such states as North Dakota, Minnesota, Nebraska, Kansas, etc.—this is no reflection upon the citizens of these states, but they are the people who have come into our state, and largely within the last five or six years.

Up to two years ago many of these people had no vote—now they have a vote. We are in a dangerous position, if we try to bring out a big vote we will bring out the vote against us as well as that for us; so we are confining ourselves to making new citizens in such localities as we think we are reasonably safe. That includes the population around the mills and the smelters. We are not doing anything to increase the voting population in the eastern part of the state.

At the present time local option fights have been started in the eastern part of the state. We were told last winter, in case a prohibition bill were to be submitted, that the Anti-Saloon League, namely the Columbus, Ohio organization—I believe Mr. Baker is the superintendent of that organization—had sent out word that they would not push the local fight in Montana if they had an opportunity to vote on state-wide prohibition. Naturally they wanted that in the form of a constitutional amendment.

Suffice it to say, we were fortunate in getting that switched over to a statutory provision, on the theory that if the people did not like it in a couple of years it would be easier for them to go back to the former condition than to defeat a constitutional amendment.

We were told, however, that they would not start this fight. Our impression out there is, as nearly as we can tell, that the local fights which are being started out there at the present time; that that is being done entirely by the state local option crowd. If that is so, it is possible their leaders down here are not yet in sympathy with it; but you will easily understand, with one or two or three victories there, they will certainly be for it.

So they are leaving their local management to superintendent Pope and his numerous help from fifteen or sixteen boards of different kinds; but if they want it, there is no question that the organization at Columbus, Ohio will assist them to the fullest extent. That of course remains to be seen.

They have arranged an elaborate program of speakers; speakers of national reputation, such as Wiley, and I believe our old friend Superintendent Morse of Michigan, will be there. He has not disturbed us as yet, but Governor Hanley, I should say, and many others, have already made one appearance and more are making their appearance at the present time. They have announced that they are going to center every possible effort they can command on Montana. From the standpoint of the Anti-Saloon League, I don't believe that two cents' worth. Montana would be a very desirable state to win.

he present time in Montana the only dry territory is Indian reservations, military reservations, etc., and they are all dry, as they are in all other parts f the United States. However, they certainly intend making a fight there next ear, and make it very interesting—they feel they are going to get away with t in 1916.

The remarks of Mr. McDowell this morning with reference to suffrage nterested me particularly. If I understood Mr. McDowell correctly, and if he as no objection I would like to ask him if I did understand him correctly, vhat he stated was that the suffragists in the northern end of his state were ot necessarily committed to prohibition. Is that correct?

Mr. McDOWELL. That is correct.

Mr. KESSLER. Now, we have a similar situation on Montana—I prefer not to ention the names; they would not be of any interest—however, I can do so if t is desired by any one—we have had numerous informal conversations, I won't ay conferences; they were not conferences, they were conversations, with some f these people, and we find that their attitude may be expressed in a dozen vords; it is not very much to say, but it is another thing to put it into execu- ion, and I certainly, myself feel that we are going to commit ourselves to that r we will lose the official heads' good wishes, which I think we have at the resent time.

Several of these leaders—not all of them—have told us that if we will see to he enforcement of these laws and if we will show a genuine interest in them nd a disposition to back them up, that they will not take any part in the rohibition proposition; in other words, they will let the people handle it as hey see fit.

That of course spells neutrality, doesn't it? But on the other hand they ave stated that they consider the interest of the women and children demand hat they go beyond that, that they must enforce these things. Possibly, then, hey themselves will come out in opposition to prohibition. That is not neu- rality; that is friendship.

Now the question is, will we be able, with the help of the eastern people who re interested in that territory, to put such a program into execution? We eel we will. We are going to try it, and our first opportunity will occur in hree months from now. You may say "Why not already?" I will tell you. Some of these laws do not go into effect until the first of the year; notably such aws as that which will prevent licenses being granted in certain sections; and he legislature was fairly liberal, as you will see, when they refused to allow hese laws to go into immediate effect, but postponed them until the first of the ear. The result is that we can not do a great deal until that time, and I be- lieve when that time comes it is up to the brewing people out there to put their shoulders back of the wheel, back of these laws, and to enforce them; nd I certainly can vouch for the most of them out there doing it. Some have ot been consulted as yet; but when that time comes I believe you will find hat we are going to do it; and in that respect we know we have the support of hose eastern shipping brewers I have spoken about. They realize that they are s much interested as we are.

Now there is another point I would like to bring up, and then I will close. Of ourse all of us know about these things, that gambling is permitted in many places, sales to minors are made under certain conditions; drunkards are given eer that they should not have, and so forth. For years past we have passed esolutions condemning this and expressing our displeasure at it. Out there he time unquestionably has come when some activity must be shown along these lines.

A short time ago the brewing people from Great Falls came down to Helena. We had a conference there and the Great Falls people told us that we would have to assist them in having the laws enforced in Great Falls, that the local officers would not enforce them, that the sheriff was inactive, and the county attorney said no complaint was being made. The Great Falls people told us we would absolutely have to take some action.

We had a meeting on that point and determined that one of the gentlemen from Great Falls should call upon headquarters—higher up. He went there and was told—now, I do not mean city headquarters, I mean state headquar- ters—he was told there that they would take up the matter; that the Attorney General was out of the state at that time, but as soon as he came back, he and the other gentlemen would take up the matter.

That was about two months ago. Meanwhile we found nothing had been done. One of these gentlemen came down on the 6th of October, the day before

I left Montana. He came down and said "This gambling business has not been attended to, and I have come down to see what you people intend to do. Is this state association a dead one or a live one, or what kind of an association is it?" I told him that we hoped to be considered amongst the living, and asked him what was his idea. He said "There is one thing, as far as we can see, that must be done. We can not get the local officers to take any action. I suggest the appointment of a committee to call upon the Governor and the Attorney General, if you people will agree to it." I said "Certainly we will agree to it, and we will be glad to accompany you." The result was that a committee of two was appointed, one from Great Falls and one from Helena, and they called upon the Governor and had a conference which lasted about two hours, or a little over, with the Governor and the Attorney General. We have been promised from headquarters, that is, from the Attorney General's office, that every sheriff and every attorney in the State will have notice, and I imagine that by the time we get home we will have plenty to do if this goes through, and I have every reason to believe that it will. You will then find that the Montana brewers have all committed themselves unquestionably to a pretty hard road to plow. We will have to make good, because we promised to make good, at that meeting. We are doing it for the reason that we think it is going to help us in our fight a year from now. If we lose, it will be due to the fact that we started too late; but we have certainly started, and that is something.

Now I hope that we will not have to do what was suggested to us. I might add, by the way, that there are certain practical questions. The Attorney General, who is a very estimable gentleman, a fine lawyer, said "I will need evidence. Are you gentlemen prepared to furnish evidence?" We agreed we would do what Mr. Nagel said as to Buffalo, we would have to employ detectives to scure evidence that would hold. Without that, I really believe the eastern end of the state is going against us, but we have every opportunity to stave it off by methods along these lines.

I will close by saying that my experience with former meetings has convinced me that when many of us do penance, instead of putting on a hair shirt and peas in our shoes, we are careful to have the hair shirt lined and we boil the peas in advance. Thank you.

Mr. SCHLICHTING. I did not come prepared with a set speech, but I am going to give you a few facts from a state that is blessed with everything you can think of.

In the first place, we are blessed with local option. Before a city or town can be voted wet, we have to have twenty-five freeholders sign a petition asking the city or town board to grant an election. Then we have to vote it wet to have it wet. That has to be done every spring.

Now, I want to say that in some cases, in the smaller towns, there are not twenty-five freeholders, although ninety-five per cent of those people would vote wet; not having the twenty-five freeholders, they can not have a saloon.

I want to state further that I am proud to say that we have two-thirds of all the brewers in our state present here to-day; in other words, we have two out of the three brewers, and we manufacture the magnificent total of about 35,000 to 36,000 barrels among the three of us.

Mr. HUPFEL. What state is that—excuse me.

Mr. SCHLICHTING. South Dakota. Therefore, gentlemen, we are not financially in a position to make very much of a fight. Our hearts are in the right place, and our energies are there, because I put in sixty days personally living amongst the legislators of our state, trying to stop certain legislation.

Among the things that we accomplished was partial suffrage. Had that passed, the women of our state would have had the right to vote on school questions and upon the license question. You all know what that means. That was stopped, but unfortunately we have the initiative and referendum. If we had not had that, our legislators would not have endorsed and put us to the expense of a state-wide campaign, but the temperance people could and did circulate a petition and had it ready to be presented, and upon the strength of that we will be thrown into a state-wide campaign for next year.

Now, gentlemen, in the talks heretofore there has been one thing overlooked which to my knowledge is one of the most serious of them all; and that is this, that nearly all the states west of the Mississippi and a great many of the states east of the Mississippi and south of the Mason-Dixon line, are already dry.

If you have noticed, South Dakota is blessed with receiving the attentions of your Anti-Saloon League man from the State of Michigan, who is on our trail all the time; he lives with us; he has an organization and he has four people that I know of on his pay roll, and that makes, with himself, five. They are active all the time in our state. Besides that, they import from the eastern part of the United States and from other localities men whose object is to work for prohibition. They have, in our neighbor state, at the present time, Billy Sunday. We know what he has done in other states and what he is doing in Nebraska today.

Now, gentlemen, here is what I want to picture to you, and that is this, that although we are financially all big losers at the present time, unless we can get assistance, and assistance enough to help us struggling little brewers in the western states, we are going to lose state after state, and finally it will grab you, because the temperance people, their great work is to get as much territory as possible so as to cramp the rest of us. Last year they got four states that we know of; they even got Iowa, and it is going dry the first of January.

Now, we have got Montana, South Dakota and several other states that I do not remember at the present time that are going to vote this coming fall, and unless you assist us in trying to stem the tide, we are going to lose. We have some possibility of winning if we get plenty of assistance, but we must have orators, we must have experienced men to help us.

So far, we have been able to cope with these things; we have defeated county option by the vote of the people at four different times. We have defeated women's suffrage at three different times, and I want to say that this association, the United States Brewers' Association, through the efforts of one gentleman, Mr. Edward Dietrich, has been able to cope with it, and he has always been fortunate in winning. Now, I want to say that he is no hypnotist, he can not hypnotize these people, and I want to say there is one reason and one reason alone that he has won, and that has been because he understood the business, and he had the vim and the courage to work with it. No inexperienced man can accomplish what an experienced man can assomplish.

I well know that, gentlemen, from the fact that I went to the legislature last winter for the first time, and I want to say that I was as green as grass ever grew, and if I had been wise, if I had cut my eye teeth, I think I could have headed off some of these things. I did head off some of them, even though I was not wise. Now, I am in accord with having this organization large enough so that he can get some assistance. I am told that Mr. Dietrich is going to be taken away from us and put elsewhere. That is one stumbling block, and I am afraid that if you do so, and if we have a man in South Dakota who does not understand the situation well enough to cope with it, that it is going to be disastrous to us. A state is not a small thing. We haven't the population you have in these eastern states, but we cover some four hundred and odd miles east and west, and three hundred and odd miles north and south, and no man can come into our state within a few months before a campaign and get that situation down so he knows where he is at.

Now, to show you how serious our case is, I want to state that our Governor in the office, in the face of all the things we have gained by popular vote, went into the State of Minnesota and other states and made dry speeches at the time of their elections. Those are the facts. Now, you can imagine what those things mean to us.

All we want is somebody who can help us, and we need financial support, because, gentlemen, no three breweries that are selling 36,000 barrels in a state, can afford to fight alone; it is out of the question, we can not do it. Therefore, gentlemen, it is up to you to protect your own interests by helping us fight, because, if you do not, the results are going to be disastrous to us and later on disastrous to you, because every time they clip our wings a little more they less we can fly, and that is what they will do,—that is what they are doing; they are just clipping our wings one feather at a time and pretty soon they will be clipping the bones and getting down to the body, and the poor bird has got to quit flying and die. That is our situation.

I want to thank you for the goodness you have bestowed upon me in listening to a few words from South Dakota. I think Mr. Walgreen, who is with me, can lay a few facts before you.

Mr. WALGREEN. The way our situation lines up is about this: Montana, Wyoming, South Dakota and Nebraska are on the firing line with the Anti-Saloon League. It is up to the United States Brewers' Association to see that they are held where they are, at least; and of course we want to get the states back, as far as we can. As Mr. Schlichting has told you, we are only three small breweries in South Dakota. We need your assistance.

I believe if the United States Brewers' Association would establish offices out west of the Missouri River somewhere, to handle the situation in those four states, and throw their forces out there to take care of that situation during 1916, they will be doing a work that is well worth while.

I have listened with a great deal of interest to the talks along the line of having a bureau of speakers. I think that is a very good thing. Get the very best that money can procure. I am also in favor of increasing the organization force. In our state we have studied over the proposition of getting some one to handle the situation there during the coming campaign. We have been unable to find any man in the state who is capable and who has the time to take hold of it. We have got to rely on the United States Brewers' Association to send a man out there. The kind of man that wants to be put into the state, of course you all know. I mean a man who can deliver a punch and who has something back of it to follow it up with.

The CHAIRMAN. I will next ask Mr. Over to tell us of the situation in Rhode Island.

Mr. OVER. I represent Rhode Island, and not being present at the last meeting, I would like to make a report for that state.

Rhode Island, as you know, is the smallest state in the Union. The last time the question of prohibition came up in that state was in 1889. Rhode Island went for prohibition in 1886, and they went back into the wet column again in 1889.

The question of prohibition in itself has never been taken up in the legislature, nor do I believe it has ever been discussed by the citizens at all. The main question down there is a question of license or no license.

There is a population of about 565,000, of which I think the wet area covers a population of from 530,000 to 540,000. The balance is dry. You can see by that, that Rhode Island is in very good shape regarding the license question.

Prior to 1907 the statute stated that the license question should be voted on by the citizens of any town or city in the state only when a petition had been signed by ten per cent of the voters in any particular city or town. The Anti-Saloon League people in that way have made several attempt to have a vote on the question in the different towns, including the city of Providence, which city, as you probably may know, has about one-half of the population of the state. The matter came up before the Supreme Court, and through the ambiguity of the wording of the Act, the Judges threw out these writs and stated that the whole question would have to be submitted to the people in every town and city in the state. That came up about three weeks before election. The result was that the wet forces won wonderfully. Towns that had not been licensed for fifty years were brought back to the license column. At the present time we have thirty-seven cities and towns where they have licenses, and seven no-license towns. That was the first year; that is, 1907, and since then, Mr. Chairman—I would like to have you take note of this—that we were assisted materially by the organization bureau of the United States Brewers' Association, headed by Mr. McDermott, Mr. Moffett and Mr. Thompson. They did good work for us in that year, and they have since done good work for us.

We vote on that question now every two years only—it comes up again next year.

We have gotten the various labor organizations in that state to pass resolutions favoring the license question. That was done through the efforts of Mr. Moffet and Mr. Thompson.

There is a law in force in Rhode Island that if any licensed dealer, wholesaler or brewer should sell to any one who does not possess a license, knowing that such person intended reselling those goods, the licensee's license is subject to revocation for at least a period of five years, and with that in mind, speaking for the brewers, I do not believe there is one brewer in the state who sells to any one unless he possesses a license, or unless the sale is made to a private family. That take into consideration the question of clubs, and no person can sell a club unless that club has a liquor license—I mean legally sell it.

In Providence the fee for clubs is $25 a year; simply a nominal sum. The retail license is $800.

The question of clubs has, to a certain degree, provoked the retailers, they claiming that the club can dispense its liquors to nominal members for a nominal sum, by paying $25.

In 1907, when this matter was sprung upon us, we formed an association outside of the Brewers' Association, consisting of the brewers and wholesalers of the state. At that time we called the organization the Rhode Island Liquor League; but since that time, for obvious reasons, we have changed the name to the Rhode Island Associates, believing that name is much better, in the eyes of the public, than the name of the Liquor League. We meet quite frequently. That association of the Associates conducts the state campaign.

It is necessary to register before the end of June of each year if you wish to vote that year, and in the spring of each year the Rhode Island Associates communicates with every liquor dealer in the state, asking him to call upon all his friends, and so forth, to register. Large cards are distributed to the saloons and restaurants and also to the barber shops and other places, with these words on them: "If you wish to vote this year it is necessary to register before June 30th." The name of any association is omitted. The political parties in many instances distribute these cards for us.

We keep out of politics on both sides. The question of women's suffrage has not come up at all in the state. We feel it is detrimental to our interests.

In the fall of the year our elections take place, on the general election day, the second Tuesday in November. About a month before that, literature is prepared, consisting of five pieces, about the length of that sheet of paper I hold in my hand. They are printed in English, German, French, Italian and some in Yiddish. If we know that a voter is a Frenchman, we put in one of these leaflets in French. Every one gets the leaflet in English, every voter in the whole state. They receive these two days before the election. Certain arrangements are made with the post office authorities so that we get preference over other letters mailed. They are all mailed by first class matter, and therefore that insures prompt delivery. We insert each day, in every newspaper in the state that is willing to accept the ad from us, and that takes in all the newspapers of the state, about three or four—we simply state the facts briefly: "How do you wish liquors to be sold, under a well-regulated license system or otherwise?" Then, at our own expense, over the signature of certain labor organizations, we appeal to the workingmen, and that has been very effective. We have had labor men go throughout the state and address their own labor organizations. Men of their own kind seem to appeal to them more than outsiders. The question of obtaining speakers to come in and make any of our matter known publicly, outside of the press and these leaflets, has not been in favor in Rhode Island. We have believed it is better for us to work under cover than otherwise, particularly as there has not been any issue there. If the matter should present itself in a form that we should have to make an issue, then the question of speakers will be considered.

Speaking for our association, we are fully in accord with the question of having a speaker's bureau. We are more in favor of increasing your organization bureau. I think it is a farce to think that an organization such as we have in the United States Brewers' Association should limit itself to four or five men and expect those four or five men to tour the country and sometimes expect them to be in two or three different states at one time. I think it is physically impossible to expect those men to do anything of the sort, and I will say, Mr. Chairman, that we are thoroughly in accord with this recommendation.

I thank you, gentlemen. [Applause.]

The CHAIRMAN. Gentlemen, it has been urged that we continue receiving reports from the delegates who are here, until we have heard from all sections of the country, but the reporter has just reminded me of the fact that there is a limit to his physical endurance, and he would like very much if the meeting would give him a chance to rest up a bit, and I therefore suggest that we take a recess of fifteen or twenty minutes.

Furthermore, the suggestion has been made that the time could be occupied by the Committee on Resolutions in making up its report. Before asking them to do so, however, I want to ask the gentlemen present whether they wish to bring anything further before this meeting for consideration by the Committee on Resolutions.

Mr. MCDOWELL. Before the conference takes a recess, I would like to suggest that, in view of the fact that we have had a good many suggestions made today from the various states, all of which I am very glad to have heard, that these conferences should be held more frequently; say semi-annually, and that the Committee on Resolutions be empowered to embody in their recommendations the matter of calling this conference together again, say next May, in some city, Chicago or some other western city, so that the representatives from the various states can again assemble. I think much good might be brought out of that.

Mr. KESSLER. In seconding that motion, I would like to ask Mr. McDowell if he would consider a slight change in the time for the meeting?

Mr. MCDOWELL. So that it will suit all of the members, as nearly as possible, it is immaterial to me.

Mr. DOYLE. If I may make a suggestion, I think that most of the spring elections occur in April, and I think that Mr. McDowell's suggestion about May would be just about right, because then those elections would all be over. If you want a full attendance, you have got to have the meeting at a time when there is nothing doing in the states.

Mr. MCDOWELL. I will say that, so far as California is concerned, we have elections every time the sun rises and sets (laughter). We have them now. We had approximately 120 last year. We have had 39 this year, and they are still on, and they will be coming on until November, 1916. There is no stopping them. Whatever time may be suggested as suitable and convenient for the other delegates, I think we can find some way to get a representative here from California at that conference. I know we will be busy with local elections and with the state-wide election also—we are busy all the time out there on this question.

Mr. OSCAR SCHMIDT. I would suggest the first week in May.

(The motion as amended was seconded and unanimously carried.)

The CHAIRMAN. Now, gentlemen, I would suggest that we take a recess of fifteen or twenty minutes.

(During the recess it was decided that an adjournment would be taken and the conference called together later, if it was so desired.)

EXHIBIT No. 1032.

(From U. S. B. A. files by Fox.)

Minutes of an Executive Session of the United States Brewers' Association, held at the Hotel Kimball, Springfield, Mass., Friday, October 15, 1915, at 11 o'clock A. M.

The meeting was called to order by the President, Mr. Edward A. Schmidt.

The PRESIDENT. Gentlemen, this is an Executive Session and none but members of the Association will be permitted in the room. If there are any present who are not members of this Association they will kindly leave the room.

I declare the session open for business. New business in is order.

Mr. ANHEUSER. I would like to ak a question, just what "new business" means.

The PRESIDENT. Any business.

Mr. ANHEUSER. All right, Mr. Chairman, I would like to say that as a member of the Board of Trustees, I have read with very great interest Mr. Andreae's report upon the subject of what he has done for our cause in the past year, and I now request that Mr. Andreae take the floor and advise these gentlemen of the report he has made to the Board of Trustees.

The PRESIDENT. Does Mr. Andreae wish to take the floor?

Mr. ANHEUSER. Yes, sir, so that he shall read his report.

The PRESIDENT. Does Mr. Andreae wish to take the floor?

Mr. ANDREAE. Yes, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT. You have the privilege of the floor, Mr. Andreae.

Mr. ANDREAE. At the desire of the gentleman who has just spoken I will read to you the report I made to the Board of Trustees, as I read the report I made to the Board of Trustees last year. The report is dated October 9th.

To the Board of Trustees of the United States Brewers' Assn., New York City.

Gentlemen: I beg to report the activities of my organization during the past year as follows:

PRESS WORK.

The personal liberty articles appearing in the American Leader are being republished, in thirty languages, in whole or in part by about 800 newspapers with a total circulation of 6,000,000 copies. There are thus being reached through this channel 18,000,000 readers bi-weekly. The organization of this press and the elements surrounding it by the American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers has now reached the stage at which practical results can be obtained throughout the country by the application of proper organization methods in any locality where this press is represented. This has been proved beyond question in Ohio where in the last campaign through the instrumentality of the Foreign Language Press the registration of voters of foreign origin or foreign extraction exceeded in one county alone by over twenty thousand anything ever known in the political history of the county.

In March of this year I was elected a Vice-President of the American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers and appointed the accredited spokesman for the organized foreign language newspapers of the country. In this capacity I delivered, at the invitation of the International Press Congress held in San Francisco, the address before that body on behalf of the Foreign Language Newspapers of America, and have since addressed various commercial bodies in the same capacity. Arrangements are now under way to have me deliver under the same auspices similar addresses before Chambers of Commerce or other commercial associations in the chief centres of the country, and I am informed by the American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers that dates for my appearance before such bodies are being arranged in about fifteen of our larger cities.

At my suggestion the Foreign Language Newspapers Association has decided to use its influence and efforts to bring about an organization of the general business interests of the country for the purpose of combating by practical means the freak laws and coercive legislation, which are becoming an increasing menace to the property rights of the citizen and the business development of the country, and I have been placed in the position to interview and discuss plans for such an organizaion with some of the leading commercial men of the country.

The Association had recently in contemplation the summoning of a convention of the 1250 German and foreign language newspaper editors in Washington for the purpose of laying out a concerted policy to be pursued by this great press in its crusade against the destructive tendencies of those who are today controlling the legislation of the country, and to present resolutions embodying the views of this press to the President of the United States, and to the Governors of the individual States of the Union. The holding of this convention was made conditional upon my agreeing to deliver the address at the convention and take charge of the necessary work incident to the carrying out of the policy decided upon by all the newspapers concerned.

To my great regret, owing to the circumstances in which I have now been placed, with practically no funds under my control, and the funds actually promised me withheld, I saw myself unable to undertake this work, and this important move has in consequence, for the present at least, been abandoned.

For the same reasons, I shall be compelled to notify the American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers that, unless present conditions are altered, when the arrangements now in effect between that Association and myself terminate, namely on January 1st and May 1st, 1916, I shall not be able to renew them, as they involve personal guarantees which I am no longer ble to fulfill. I shall of course continue to maintain active relations with the Association in any direction in which I may be rendered able to do so, but the educational campaign in the press itself and the vest groundwork of the organization I have thereby been instrumental in creating during the past two years, will, I greatly regret to say, be destroyed at the very moment, when, with adequate means, it is capable of producing the most effective and far-reaching results.

The President of the American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers has informed me that he has been repeatedly approached during the past eighteen months and urged to carry on this organization and general campaign work in cooperation with men other than myself in your Association, but that he has refused.

The same condition exists in reference to the organization bureau established by the German-American Alliance in conjunction with my own organization and in accordance with certain plans and policies suggested by me two years ago. The first Vice-President of the National Alliance and the Chairman of its Organization Bureau tells me that he has been approached through certain channels and informed that I shall not have the means after January 1st of continuing the arrangements under which his bureau and my organization are working, but that, if he will continue to carry on the organization established through me along the lines hitherto pursued, the necessary financial means will be supplied through other parties in your Association, provided he will work under their direction instead of under mine. This, he has notified me, he will refuse to do, so that, unless other elements in the Alliance are willing to take over the work, so ably conducted by him, this important organization work will likewise be destroyed.

The German-American Alliance Organization bureau has done active work in holding meetings, forming new branches and societies and instilling new life into old branches in Illinois and Ohio, and, through the German Press and the German Clubs and societies in Texas, created a strong agitation in that State against the franchise amendment recently defeated there, which would have disfranchised a very large number of foreign born voters. The Foreign Language Press Association performed the same work among the foreign language newspapers published in Texas.

Since the field force at the command of the bureau of the German-American Alliance consists of only three men, when it ought to be five or six times that number, it is not possible to cover more than a limited amount of ground in one year. The whole force has for the past months been engaged in organization in Ohio, where the most important campaign affecting the interests is now in progress.

Practically my entire available field staff (ten men) are today at work in Ohio, in charge of the campaign work in the various counties, or groups of counties, in which organization is in progress, and many of them have been at work there since the beginning of the year.

I should mention that the representatives of labor working with me have been so employed since the beginning of the year, Mr. Adolph Kummer in particular having, at the urgent request of Mr. Proebstle, been working at my instructions for the past ten months under that gentleman's direction in Ohio. This may prove of interest to your Board, in view of the fact that the statement was made at a recent meeting of your Executive Committee that Mr. Proebstle had expressed himself in a disparaging manner about Mr. Kummer.

I regret that in the case of my labor bureau also I am informed that intimation has been conveyed by a representative of the U. S. Brewers' Association to the Brewery Workers Union that it is intended to withhold from me the means to carry on my work in conjunction with labor, with the consequence that the elements cooperating with me have been thrown into a state of uncertainty and unrest and that the confidence between those elements and myself which is essential to effective joint work has been largely undermined.

Surveys have been made of Kentucky, at the request of the Kentucky interests, of Maine, at the request of Mr. Gardiner, and of Ohio, at the request of the Ohio interests.

GENERAL LITERARY AND PUBLICITY WORK.

Apart from my own speeches and writings, which through certain influential channels have been placed in the hands of the leading business men and other prominent men of the country, with the result that a considerable correspondence has ensued with many of them, the salient features of the past year have been the progress made with the news-bureau established last August, and that of the Hearthstone Magazine, which this August reached a circulation in paid individual subscriptions among the smaller communities of the country, of 30,000.

The news-bureau now supplies its weekly news-letter to over 5,300 of the 12,000 weekly papers of the country, all published in the smaller towns, and the list is steadily increasing. The total circulation of these papers is conservatively estimated at 1,000 copies each, so that the actual circulating medium of publicity here utilized represents 5,300,000 subscribers, and, since each copy of a newspaper is conceded on an average to be read by between three and four individuals, the total readers actually reached every week amount to between 15 and 16 million.

The actual pieces of literature reaching readers by means of this bureau and the foreign language press alone may be computed, according to another metof reckoning sometimes used in this connection, to be 431 million annually, namely:

Foreign Language Newspapers 6,000,000 reproductions of personal liberty articles 26 times a year	156,000,000
5,300,000 reproductions of our news-letters in 5,300 weekly papers, having a total circulation of 5,300,000, 52 times a year	275,600,000
Total	431,600,000

It is to be noted, also, that these pieces of literature not only go to the individual readers direct, but are paid for by them, and it may therefore be presumed that they are actually read.

The circulation of the Hearthstone was increasing so rapidly in advance of the advertising rates that it was thought wise, for financial reasons, to stop further increase until September, when the advertising rate increased from 40¢ a line to 70¢ a line, and the actual linage contracted for at the increased rate in that and the following months promises to more than double, thus enabling me to largely increase the circulation, while reducing the average cost.

At this juncture, however, your financial committee passed a resolution directing the discontinuance of this publication as soon as conveniently possible. As I was unable to convince the committee that it was destroying one of the most valuable assets I had built up, and one which within a year or two would double and treble in value, not only at no additional cost, but at a steadily decreasing one, I appealed to the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association to save this asset, with the result that I have the assurance that, provided this Association can secure the means, which it will know before the middle of October, it will guarantee me sufficient funds to carry on and extend the publication.

The play "The Passing of Hans Dippel", presenting the story of a German saloon-keeper of the highest respectability being gradually ruined by the dry movement and his business destroyed without compensation by the operation of the option law, was produced by an excellent company in November and December last in eight cities in Ohio and Missouri, but owing to the complete collapse of the theatrical business at that period, which was practically universal, was withdrawn at the end of the year.

The contribution of weekly articles to the labor press through the Brauer-Zeitung has continued throughout the year.

A complete collection of my articles and addresses on personal liberty and the prohibition question has been published in book form, with my permission, by a publishing firm, and I understand that the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association offered to pay a pro rata share of the cost of providing all the libraries of the country with a copy of this book, if the United States Brewers' Association would join in the undertaking. But the proposition was refused by the United States Brewers' Association, whereupon the N. W. L. D. A. undertook the entire cost, and the book is now available in every library in the country.

A compilation of the population of the United States of foreign origin or extraction by States and Cities, with their actual voting strength, and the location of the foreign language newspapers, has been prepared and is ready to be placed in the hands of campaign managers, wherever elections may be called.

STAMP PLAN.

Every effort has been made to extend and perfect the discount stamp plan inaugurated by the National Association of Commerce and Labor, and some progress has been made in certain directions. But the official disapproval of the Board of Trustees of the method of putting the plan in operation as originally devised has deterred the interests in many localities from cooperating in the plan, whilst all our endeavors to carry it out in those localities in conformity with the wishes of the President and Board of Trustees have met with insurmountable obstacles.

FINANCIAL.

My organization has received from the treasury of the United States Brewers' Association since September 1st, 1914, that is to say fourteen months, including October 1st, 1915, $16,666.66 towards the funds for its support. I was summoned before your Executive Committee early in the year, and, after an exhaustive discussion of the estimates of expenditure for the ensuing twelve months and the fund I had accumulated, together with the probable income to be expected from the sale of stamps, I was informed that a sum of $100.000 had been voted by the Board towards my fund during that period. I have conducted the organization and laid out its work in accordance with that assurance, but as only $16,666 has been paid of that sum in the seven months including October 1, 1915, my reserve fund has now fallen below the amount necessary to enable me to discharge the personal liabilities I have undertaken. In fact, the brewers' fund which I had accumulated was exhausted in April, so that the $16,666.66 actually remitted from your Treasury has not sufficed since then to pay my own personal reimbursement for more than six of those seven months.

I have been informed that your Executive Committee, when asked for remittance under the appropriation made by your Board, declined to make further remittances until an audit of my expenditures had been made, and a firm of public accountants was accordingly employed by the Finance Committee for that purpose. This firm, through six or seven of its employees, has since report and figures, compiled from our books and vouchers, are, I believe, now in the hands of the President.
investigated down to the minutest and most delicate details all the dealings and operations of my organization from the date of its inception, and its voluminous

Respectfully submitted.

PERCY ANDREAE.

Now, gentlemen, I wish to add a few words to this report, and I will ask your indulgence for ten minutes while I add these words.

I believe every man in this Association, whether actively engaged in the work I am doing or others are doing, or whether passively so engaged, has only one object in view, and that is the best possible results that can be obtained. We have one common cause, and there should be no difference of opinion whatsoever as to what that cause is, or as to the desirability of making that cause permanent in the country and beyond the attacks of those who are opposing us.

Differences of opinion with regard to methods or means are natural, but I want you to just allow me to take you back two years and a half ago when a meeting was held in Chicago, owing to the fact that at that time it seemed that nation-wide prohibition was threatening us as a certainty and when a committee, a national committee consistng of delegates from every state of the union where the brewing industry was represented, was appointed to meet in conjunction with the Board of Trustees for the purpose of devising a plan of procedure or plan of organization and determining who should take charge of that plan when devised.

That meeting was held in New York and at that meeting there was a unanimous desire, at any rate, a desire without a dissenting voice, that I should take over that work. I did not want to take over that work and so stated. I had agreeable positions that brought me in an income that was sufficient for me. I had gone through a great deal of work of a similar kind, and I told the gentlemen who approached me that I would rather that they took some one else. When they insisted I made my stipulation because I knew, gentlemen, that work of the character I would undertake—and I suppose it is no secret that the outline of the organization was one that I had presented to the body—that no such work could be successfully undertaken unless the man who undertook it was first allowed a free hand and, secondly, had the loyal support of all those he was to represent. I made, therefore, those stipulations that I should have a free hand and I made the stipulation that I should be left unhampered and uninterfered with by other bodies and that I should be as unconnected with this industry, as far as the public was concerned, as it was possible for me to be. I said that I would have to form my own organization outside of this organization and proceeded to work along the lines of that organization.

Those terms were unconditionally accepted and the assurance was given me that all the means necessary to carry on this work and the sum I stated and the sum that was also accepted as the necessary sum required to carry on the work successfully was $100,000 a month, to cover the entire United States.

I stated that the kind of work, the character of work I would have to do would be such that no visible results could possibly be seen by any one in the organization for at least two years.

Now, gentlemen, I want you simply to bear in mind that this was the condition under which I entered into the task which I undertook. Now, that has been very, very largely forgotten by many. I admit that there are differences of opinion as I said with regard to means and methods, but gentlemen you ought to give a man—and I do not believe there is any man who will refuse to do so—a fair show. You have got to treat a man fairly and justly, and that is all I ask at the hands of this body. I know that there are some who disapprove of the plan I have. I believe that there are some who think that nothing has been accomplished. If what I have read to you to-day—and I can give chapter and verse for every word, and it only is an outline of what has been done—does not satisfy you that in these two years or two years and a half I have been working visible results have been shown, then I do not think anything else would prove it to you unless it be this:

I have said in this report that this business throughout the country, where this element that I have gradually and slowly and plodingly organized in every locality in the past and in the surrounding elements, that is the leaders of thought, college and professional men, and generally the leaders of those to whom I am appealing that that organization has now reached the point that it must be utilized wherever those elements exist and there is a very strong misapprehension in the minds of many of you gentlemen I know as to the value or strength of this particular element.

Do you realize, and this is something that surprised even the International Press Congress and the Foreign Language Newspaper Association itself—do you realize that of the total vote of this country eight million votes belong to this element; that eight million votes is one-half of the largest actual vote that is cast in any election held in this country; that it is more than one-third of the total eligible voting strength of the citizenship of the country. Do you realize that this particular element is more susceptible to the guidance of leaders than any other element in the country; do you realize that this element to the largest possible extent is the element that stands for the cause you stand for, that stands for the cause of personal liberty and the rights and customs and such things of another description that brought them over to this country?

Now, gentlemen, this element is practically equally distributed over thirty-three states of the union. This element is in the country districts, largely represented as one compared to two in the cities. That compilation of the population of the United States of men of foreign extraction or birth is a compilation of the utmost possible value to you wherever you may have campaigns, and it is only necessary to let me know where that element can be of assistance to you and with the proper means at my command I can set that organization in motion in any district.

Now, I want to suggest this to you because I know that the statement has gone forth, just talked about as gossip, and it is untrue about it. I would ask you, not one of you but two of you or three of you to go to Ohio independently, go to Cleveland, Ohio, or any other place where this element has been organized and has been made effective at the polls, and investigate for yourselves and I will give you all the assistance you may need, but I would prefer that you conduct your own line of investigation so that there can be no possible suspicion that the stage has been set up to deceive you. I would like you as a committee, if you will appoint one or form one among yourselves, to go to the State of Iowa where this organization work has been done where, as you know, the Iowa brewers could not be saved because just in Iowa you will find the effectiveness of that organization and how, if only it had not been left to the eleventh hour, it would have been instrumental in saving that state, and that state can be still saved from state-wide prohibition, in my opinion, if the proper methods are pursued, and I am not only expressing my own views when I make this statement I am expressing the views of the Iowa brewers themselves who worked and worked wonderfully with this organization, but unfortunately the campaign ended in their downfall. I would like to ask you to go to Texas and see what the organization did in Texas in its small way.

But, gentlemen, unless I am welcome in a state or in a campaign and my organization is something that is regarded as worth trying, why I cannot do anything with it. Now, that is the general part of it.

On the subject of finance don't, for goodness sake, let this thing go under at this time. I am speaking now of those various things I have mentioned here. Don't let it go under at a time when all the money which has been put into it will prove fruitful and produce results such as you have never seen produced at any past time; don't do it not only for that reason but for another one.

I stood before you gentlemen two years ago at Atlantic City when I la succinctly all the various things I proposed in my organization, and I copy of that address to every member of this association. At that me pointed out to you that our great trouble was that we had in the past neglected our friends and tried to conciliate our enemies.

Gentlemen, if you let this work go under, if you let this foreign la press feel that it does not help you, if you treat that element as though not worth considering, the danger is that that element will resent it and against you. In my experience, and I have come together with men classes, men who probably would never speak to you as they speak to the simple reason I appear entirely outside of you—I find the great danger this interest is confronted with today is not the danger from its enemies the danger—it is from the loss of those friends who have stood by it u present moment through thick and thin and who today say your cause is less, because you make it hopeless, and "The only way in which we can s in bettering conditions in this country is to sweep clean for prohibition then start anew on an entirely clean slate."

Gentlemen, I could talk to you for hours on this subject, on the ma things that have entered into the work I have done. I have placed my h and my best ability at your disposal as I promised I would and I want t tinue to do so; but, gentlemen, you have got to support me not only wi necessary means but with loyal assistance and cooperation. That is what I you, give me help. [Applause.]

Mr. ANHEUSER. Mr. Chairman, I have a resolution here that I will o this body in my behalf, and I will ask Mr. Evers (?) of the Anheuser-B Association to read it for me.

Mr. EVERS. The resolution offered by the Anheuser-Busch is as follows

Whereas, in the spring of 1913 it was mutually agreed between a Com of Brewers of the United States acting in conjunction with the Board of tees of the U. S. Brewers Association, and Percy Andreae, that he, P Andreae, should place his services and his time for five years at the disp the industry for the purpose of inaugurating a liberal movement agains hibition along lines to be determined by him; and

Whereas, the main stipulation made by Percy Andreae in undertaki work which was agreed to by the aforesaid representatives of the industry that he must have an entirely free hand and not be subjected to the inte ence or dictation of boards or committees; and

Whereas, an extra assessment of two cents per barrel was levied on and by members of the United States Brewers' Association for the expres agreed purpose of financing and supporting such movement conducted by P Andreae, now therefore,

Be it resolved, That it is the sense of this convention that the agre aforesaid so entered into with Percy Andreae be in all its particulars fully kept and observed; that the Board of Trustees be and they are h instructed to pay to Percy Andreae for the purpose aforesaid as orig agreed not less than one half of all moneys in excess of $150,000 rece the Treasury of the Association on account of dues and assessments November 1st, 1915, and that Percy Andreae from time to time and in pa lar at the annual convention of the Association, account either to the tion or to the Board of Trustees for the disbursement of these moneys.

Be it further resolved, That in as much as only $16,666.66 has been p the sum of $100,000 appropriated for one year from April 1st, 1915, by the B of Trustees for the purposes of the Andreae organization the balance due the months of June to October, 1915, inclusive, be now paid to Percy Andr

Mr. ANHEUSER. Mr. President, I now move you that this resolut passed.

The PRESIDENT. Gentlemen, is that motion seconded?

Mr. BEIS. I second the motion.

Mr. PABST. Mr. President——

The PRESIDENT. Mr. Pabst.

Mr. PABST. Gentlemen, I have listened to the wonderful oratory of Andreae, and while I am not in position to refute some of the state which he has made reflecting upon some members of this Association for fering with him in a manner that would be unfit for any gentleman to be of, those who have been accused can probably take care of themselves.

The statement of Mr. Andreae's wonderful circulation, running up in millions of the publications which he has made go away beyond my con and I believe that if Mr. Collier or Lesle's or other representative publi knew of the wonderful publicity that Mr. Andreae has been able to effect with his publications that he has made, I believe that we could not hold Mr. Andreae in this Association. I believe there would be other fields for him that would be away beyond what we could afford to pay.

So far as the financial end is concerned, I have been a member of the Executive Committee and the Executive Committee has had no other motive than to find out and inform themselves of the work that Mr. Andreae was doing. That Committee was appointed by a resolution, if I remember correctly, of the National Association of Commerce and Labor and the United States Brewers' Association; that committee consisted of six, three from the Brewers and three from the Association of Commerce and Labor.

There have been no attempts to hamper in any way, shape or manner Mr. Andreae's doings, but was within our province and the object of our appointment was to determine what Mr. Andreae was doing so that there would be some coordination between his work and that of the other committees and organizations of your Association. I cannot but be impressed with the fact underlying and imminent in Mr. Andreae's report as well as in his speech that the men who have charge of your Association here are not honest, that they are playing favorites, that they are withholding money from one and possibly giving it into other hands.

Mr. Andreae has had at his command sufficient funds to carry on the work which he had in hand, and I believe he has today a sum that will carry him for some time. The committee which was appointed, the so-called Finance Committee has instructed or has informed Mr. Andreae that the moneys which have been appropriated by this Association would be forthcoming and would be paid. I am about to assume the responsibility and have the honor of representing this Association in the chair. I want to say to you gentlemen that it may not be your loss, but I know it will be and by God it would be my gain if I refrained from accepting the honor of being your President under conditions such as have existed in this organization for some time past. [Applause.]

I want to say to you gentlemen that if you have no confidence in your Board of Trustees and your officers then by God throw them out and get somebody else. If you men want me I want your loyal support and, by God, you cannot get me otherwise. You can hire some one and pay them to do as you damn please, but by God I will not put in my time with a lot of bickering and petty jealousies. Unless you get an organization and stock by it and stick to what you do and support the man you have chosen, you had better disband and let this whole industry go plumb to the devil. [Applause.]

The PRESIDENT. The chair recognizes Mr. Gardiner.

Mr. GARDINER. Mr. President, in view of the resolution that is before this body I do not know whether I am in order in rising to speak upon a subject not directly connected with it, but if I am not in order, Mr. President, I will ask the indulgence of the floor for a few moments until I may be able to make reply to certain statements in Mr. Andreae's statement which I think that, although I have never been informed, apply to me or to those under me.

When Mr. Andreae took command of the bureau which he has so signally served, and since it will be borne in mind that present at all those conferences and meetings to which he has referred I expressed the opinion that it would be impossible for this Association to raise sufficient funds to carry on both organizations to the extent to which the Association was entitled to have them carried on, and I furthermore suggested that both organizations, Mr. Andreae's bureau and the bureau which up to a time shortly preceding that to which I refer had been under my control but from which I was without at the time mentioned—I suggested that Mr. Andreae was the man under whose direction both forces should be carried on. That recommendation was not agreed to and I was again placed in charge of the bureau over which I now preside.

I want to say to you gentlemen and to Mr. Andreae particularly, with all the power at my command, that I have never, by word or action, said or done a thing that reflected upon Mr. Andreae in the administration of his office.

I wish to speak particularly to the statement that some men in this Association have approached the director or president of the Foreign Language Newspaper Association with the idea of having him go along with his work under some other auspices than those of Mr. Andreae. I wish to say that never have I been guilty of such a treacherous act and to my knowledge there has never been any other man in this Association connected with me or without who has tried to do such a thing.

I had a meeting with Mr. Hamerling in Philadelphia at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel sometime, I suppose, about two years ago, which meeting was requested by him and when I came to him he said he wished to consult with me about using his newspapers, foreign language newspapers, in Pennsylvania, in a campaign which was on at that time in that state. In that interview he referred to Mr. Andreae and so did I, and both of us in the most complimentary terms. I told him that I would refer the proposition to our Board of Trustees and if they saw fit to engage the services of the foreign language newspapers through Mr. Hamerling that I would so report it to him. The Board decided otherwise and nothing was done. We won the campaign and I have never seen Mr. Hamerling since.

In regard to the German-American Alliance I have known Dr. Hexmer for years; we are both Philadelphians. There has never been by me, and so far as I know by any one who presumed to act for me, any effort made upon Dr. Hexmer or any other member or official of the German-American Alliance looking to the change of arrangements now existing between Mr. Andreae's bureau and the German-American Alliance over to my bureau or to any other forces in this Association. I would ask the gentlemen to accept these statements as being most positively and absolutely true.

I have no intention nor has any one under me, so far as I know, of antagonizing Mr. Andreae or his bureau to the slightest extent. Mr. Andreae has repeatedly told gatherings, gatherings of brewers in various cities of the union in my presence and at other times I believe, and I have as repeatedly endorsed his statements that as between him and me there is the most absolute and cordial harmony prevailing, that each man recognizes the necessity of the work of both being conducted under absolutely harmonious relations. So far as I am concerned that pledge, that statement has never been violated. I wish to say I do not believe it has ever been violated by Mr. Andreae.

I speak today with as much feeling as it is possible for a man to inject into his words. For the first time in my life I feel that I am repelling an assault which goes right down to the very essence of my being. I have never been accused of treachery and I have never been guilty of it, and I ask you, gentlemen, and you, Mr. President, to accept that with that degree of sincerity and truth with which it is uttered. (Applause.)

Mr. BEIS. Mr. President and gentlemen of this convention, I am glad that so many of the representatives of the brewing industry of the country are here upon this occasion to hear what is being said by those who represent the agencies that have been at work for you.

I do not understand, Mr. President and gentlemen, that Mr. Andreae's address was an assault upon the gentleman who has just had the floor. There is nothing, in my judgment, in that address which points to Mr. Gardiner. There is nothing in that report that refers in any way upon the gentleman who preceded him and who, I am sorry to say, took the name of God in vain and used invective in discussing a matter that so nearly concerns you and your future.

Whatever is done here shall not be, gentlemen, I hope, the victory of any faction or of any set of men in this organization. As has already been suggested you are all working and the men who are employed by you are supposed to be working all of them to a common end, and that is to subserve your interest incidentally only to establishing the one point and that is the word "liberty." That is the thing that you are all fighting for and your business is only an incident to it and so are the names of the gentlemen who are employed by you, whether it be Mr. Andreae or Mr. Gardiner; they are only incidents. The question is are the operations that are being conducted by them for your good. That is the thing for you to inquire about. Men cut no figure and should cut no figure in this proposition except in so far as the question arises whether or not you are treating them honestly, fairly and justly.

So that the discussion here upon the question as to whether or not this resolution shall be adopted, gentlemen, involves in my judgment two propositions. One is this: Whether or not you entered into a contract, as the resolution recites, in 1913 with Mr. Andreae, and the adoption of that resolution involves the question of whether or not you are going to stand by the contract that you then made with him, or whether you are going to repudiate it.

The next question involved is whether or not the agencies that Mr. Andreae has set on foot and set in motion by your employment and with your money have been done in good faith for the great cause, as I say, in which we are all unanimously interested without division, or should be at least.

Now from the report—I have not the details and I suppose there are many members who have not the details, who do not know how much money has been raised, who do not know how much of that money Mr. Andreae has had, who do not know how much of that money Mr. Gardiner has had, who do not know how much money has been appropriated to other sources who have been in the work of publicity for this organization. I think we ought to be enlightened upon that. As a member of this organization without being upon any committee, without having any knowledge—we do not get any detailed information in any of the reports here, I suspect I am with hundreds of others of the organization out in the dark. I do not know anything about the financial conditon; I don't know how much money has been raised; I don't know where it has gone to. Now, it is time to find out. Let us know something about where our money has gone. I do not ask for the details, but let us see where the money has gone to.

I have got a right to speak, I represent an organization here that contributes its little mite, it may not be as much as some, but to the organization I represent it is a good deal in the stress of times.

In Ohio where we have had a fight now for the last five or six years—and while I am talking to you about Ohio I want to bring to you the news that I believe with the splendid organization we have in Ohio on the second day of November we will again put ourselves on record as being against prohibition.

In 1912 an election was held under a resolution which was introduced by our friends in the Legislature and there were selected delegates to the Constitutional Convention. The Andreae organization, so-called, was put into the field there. We selected a majority of the delegates to that Convention. That Convention wrote licenses into the Constitution of the State, something that no other state has.

Last year after a terrific fight we came out victorious as you all know, and this year we expect to come out victorious again.

We have had actual experience with the ideas and plans Mr. Andreae has advocated in Ohio, and we have got practical results. I speak knowingly because I am from Ohio and I have had something to do intimately with the work that has been carried on there.

Now, I say do not let us come here and swear and call each other names; that is not the spirit in which things are accomplished by any organization. There should be unanimity.

Now, I do not doubt that every agency that has been set on foot by this organization, their activity has been done in the very best of faith.

Now, then, you made your contract with Mr. Andreae. You agreed to supply him with the necessary funds to carry on his work. Now, the question is before you in this resolution, after he has severed the connections that he had which were making him, as he said, all the income that was sufficient for his living,—as he has cut all those off and gone into your employ, the question is whether or not now you are going to treat him fairly, honestly and justly and observe your contract with him.

This resolution does not call for all the money that you agreed to give him as they read it; it calls for only one-half of the excess over and above $150,000 which, as I understand, it was admitted at the time was the amount necessary for the actual overhead expenses of the Association itself, so one-half of all over $150.000 would give him less than two cents per barrel which he would be entitled to, according to the letter of the contract you made with him, according to the spirit of the contract.

Now, it seems to me you cannot afford to abandon the work Mr. Andreae has undertaken. He has spent your money in the establishment of these different things you have enumerated here. Now, they are about to bear fruit, you are about to abandon them. There would be just as much sense in a farmer who sows his wheat in the fall and which crop grew up and ripened under the weather conditions in July and the farmer said "The wheat is there ready to cut but I guess I won't cut it." That is exacly what the work of Mr. Andreae has done. He has got his organization into shape where it is going to bear fruit. The question is, after you have spent your good money, whether you are now going to abandon the crop you have sowed through your agents and let it lie in the fields to rot and let the enemy come along and absolutely put you out of business.

Gentlemen, let us get together in this Convention. I plead for harmony. I have no fault to find with either agency. Mr. Gardiner has done good work. Mr. Feigenspan's committee has done good work and the officers and members of other committees have done good work. Now, let us in that spirit pas resolution, gentlemen, and go on and continue with our work and meet enemy instead of fighting amongst ourselves. I thank you.

Mr. ANDREAE. I merely want to say two words to correct a misapprehe in the mind of my friend, John Gardiner. I did not refer to Mr. Gard either by name or by inference. I had not Mr. Gardiner in mind. What Gardiner says is true. His problem and my trouble as he once expressed self comes from that which exists in the imagination of those who surround I think Mr. Gardiner will recollect making that statement. That statem true. I was not referring to Mr. Gardiner. I said that certain men been approached and asked whether they would conduct the organizatio work that they were doing under the auspices of men different from m Whether that was under the auspices of Mr. Gardiner or Mr. Fox, I know, but Mr. President you will remember I have been before your mittees and you have stated to me that you think and your committee th that the German-American Alliance bureau that I had should be condu under different auspices; that the Labor Bureau I had should be condu under different auspices so that you see from the very things I learned in y own committee I knew enough to give, at any rate, the color of truth to the s ments made to me by the men with whom I was working.

There is nothing in the nature of treachery that I was suggesting. I merely a question which we can discuss amongst ourselves as to whether t work should be done under these auspices or under those. That is the question. It has, as a matter of fact, been the question for two years in various committees that I have had to attend as to whether I should co this work or whether it should be left to the Association.

I wish distinctly and emphatically to say that I accuse no one, no perso no body of persons, of treachery or anything of the kind.

Gentlemen, it is merely a question of a difference of opinion and an h difference of opinion is something that every man is entitled to, and there nothing else I want discussed here and, please for goodness sake, don't use words as "treachery" and so on. They are not in my mind and they sh not be in yours.

Mr. LIEBMANN. Mr. President and gentlemen, I would like to begin answe the statement of the gentleman that represents one of the 33 brewers of who signed a five years agreement to pay an assessment of two cents a bar The first statement that the gentleman makes as to living up to our contract fully endorsed. I think this Association presided over by its officers has n in the last 50 years of its existence or even longer repudiated or violated in slightest respect any contract that it has entered into. [Applause.]

The contract with Mr. Andreae provides for his salary. There is nothi the contract about the brewers raising two cents and turning over the amo that is being raised by the two cents to any one man to spend it as he sees but even if that were the contract it comes with bad grace from any se brewers—and I refer to the Ohio brewers right now to say that we ought to that thing and then withhold the funds for supplying that very thing. [A plause.]

The funds of the Association prior to some six or seven years ago, regular dues, were just about sufficient to carry on the routine work of Association. I was one of the many that were stampeded off their feet Chicago by the eloquence of Mr. Andreae. There is no one who could mak plausible a statement of his case as Mr. Andreae, but as Mr. Pabst has and as Mr. Andreae himself has just said, there is a difference of opinion I think in this country the majority rules and the majority against Mr. And on some of the things he has done is overwhelming.

I want to say one thing, because the question has always been raised, as animus. Mr. Andreae touched upon the labor question. I want to refer to gentlemen the fact that the labor question of the United States brewers been successfully handled ever since the inception of this brewers' associa I do not think with all the troubles that some of you may have had that can point to any industry in the United States, short of such powerful tr as the steel trust and similar organizations—you certainly cannot point to industry which depends upon the workmen to take away your produce w has had so little trouble as our organization in labor matters. In the way that Mr. Andreae complains about the labor matters, which he was in certain directions to keep his fingers off, because we have an efficient committee, I now hark back to a great many years ago, to the year 1901, w

Mr. Andreae tried to inaugurate the National Protective Brewers' Association for the express purpose of taking up the labor matters because in his opinion the United States Brewers' Association was not handling them in an efficient manner. At that time the Association was almost disrupted. At that time the Ohio brewers seceded and we were all glad when they came back into the fold. Surely, in view of the record of the labor problem nobody can say that the labor situation handled by the Board of Trustees was botched up in any way.

I have not the eloquence of Mr. Andreae to convince you as to the wisdom of some of the things that he does. He has referred to a report of a firm of accountants. Let us have the information before some of you gentlemen now and then we will know what we are talking about. I don't know—no, I am going to switch back to another subject, to the same subject rather. When this shipping bureau came up which started to disrupt the organization, Mr. Andreae took issue with the then Secretary of the United States Brewers' Association and accused him frankly and openly, right before the Board of Trustees, of practices which he would not stand for, and at that time——

The PRESIDENT. Mr. Liebmann, we are discussing this resolution. I think it would be wise to confine yourself to it.

Mr. LIEBMANN. I just want to say there is no animus and I will be through. At that time he demanded a vote of censure against the Secretary and not one of the sixteen Trustees sided with him. In other words, it was a difference of opinion of sixteen to one. It is the same thing, so far as the Trustees are concerned now as to certain things to be done.

The resolution calls for the support of Mr. Andreae by financial help. I would like to know whether the Ohio brewers have paid their assessment this year or last year.

With reference to the foreign press, we are told that it is of vast benefit. I read the "Leader" every week and there are some very able articles in it written by Mr. Andreae, or presumably by Mr. Andreae, but I think that if these articles are translated into the newspapers that subscribe to the foreign press they are way above the head of the average reader. Even if that is not so, do you gentlemen know that $80,000 up to now has been spent for this proposition? Have any of you read the "Hearthstone?" Do you think it is worth at the rate of $85,000 in eight months? Have any of you seen the play "Hans Dippel?" I haven't. I don't know whether it is worth $15,000 to produce a play in eight or ten cities in Ohio and two or three cities outside of Ohio? Do you know that since the time of the Andreae Bureau of the moneys that have been spent $55,000 alone represents the amount for traveling expenses?

If at that time when this question came up between Mr. Andreae and the United States Brewers' Association there had been any animus on the part of any of the trustees who still were trustees four or five years ago, do you think they would have taken up this work and asked Mr. Andreae to take charge of it? I am glad to say as far as I am concerned that at the time Mr. Andreae made the eloquent speech in Chicago I was the one to move for an assessment of two cents per barrel.

Mr. Pabst has stated that at all times Mr. Andreae has had the funds. That he has had the funds sufficient to carry on his work. The Board of Trustees has never interferred with him until after they found out what some things cost and they do not think the Hearthstone Magazine and the Foreign Press is worth the price we have paid for them.

Mr. ANDREAE. I would like to answer some statements Mr. Liebmann has made because they will cause misapprehension in the minds of the gentlemen here. That is in regard to expenses. I want to tell you, gentlemen, when before a body of this kind sums are mentioned and are stated to be sums that have been expended for this purpose it is absolutely necessary for you to know for what reason they have been expended and what the purpose was. You gentlemen do not know what we know, you don't know what had to be done. Now, gentlemen, when a statement of that kind is made you have got to give me time to refute that statement which is likely to cause that misapprehension in your mind.

Mr. Liebmann has stated for the American Leader alone $83,000 was expended. If you had expended $250,000. gentlemen, it would have been cheap. Mr. Liebmann says that he reads articles in the Leader and he conveys the impression to you as if that work in the foreign language press consisted merely of a few highbrow articles that were published in that magazine. Now, gentlemen, that is merely an incident, a small incident, a beginning in producing this organization. The expenses that are incurred in this particular branch of my work are expenses of a very varied character. In the first place, these articles form merely a foundation and are translated and are used editorially and otherwise by 800 newspapers, and the editorial policy is laid out by men who travel, directors of the American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers. It is not easy to keep 800 newspapers, who get not a cent for what they are doing, in line to keep up this work. The Foreign Language Newspaper Association deals directly with the press. The press, especially the foreign language press, is practically in the hands of the leader of the foreign language element where that element exists—priests, rabbis, political and social leaders of these people are the men who control the press and those are the men who are seen, those are the men who lead wherever campaigns are on.

Now, let me give you one single illustration. Now, in Cleveland, at this date, just as it was done a year ago through the instrumentality of that press and the people who surround it—and the people who surround it, gentlemen, do not work for nothing—we have schools—you can go to Cleveland today and I can take you around in Cleveland from locality to locality where there are schools and, in a great many instances, the priests of the foreign elements are there before the blackboard showing the voters, and in a great many cases the leaders are the spiritual advisers. For instance, I will give you one instance when three or four weeks ago Mr. Hamerling was in Cleveland. The President of this Association, a man whom they worship throughout the country because he has done so much for them, he had the clergy of this city belonging to this element come together and he laid out the policy to be pursued in their churches, in their congregations, in their schools and the necessary instruction is being given day and night. That can be done anywhere. It has been done in Youngstown, in Toledo and wherever this press is.

Merely to state a figure of $83,000 and let it go at that as meaning merely the publication of a few articles in a magazine, that is wrong. Don't go away with that impression.

Now, the statement is made that travelling expenses have amounted to so and so much. Gentlemen, I have today thirteen men in Ohio. Those men travel all the time and they are there to travel all the time. What is the good of having a set of men and keeping them at home where they can do nothing? They have been in Texas, they have been in Iowa, they have been in Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio and everywhere around. The more travelling expenses the better the work is produced, and I tell you gentlemen the work has been produced. Now, don't take figures without knowing what those figures indicate and what they mean because that is not right.

Mr. GUND. I rise as I wish to correct Mr. Liebmann's statement wherein he referred to the Ohio brewers seceding in 1901. That was not the case, so far as our company is concerned, and I do not think that was the case with some other companies. I just wanted to correct that.

Mr. LANDSBERG. I was one of a committee appointed by the President of the so-called Finance Committee in connection with the National Association of Commerce and Labor, consisting of Keeley, Pabst and myself. I was nominated by the committee as the chairman of that committee. This was subsequent to the convention held in New Orleans last November. In fact, it commenced at the convention when a like committee was appointed by the National Association of Commerce and Labor by its President to meet and formulate plans for unity of action, due to the reason of the unrest and gossip by the brewers that the so-called Andreae Bureau was expending money at that time injudiciously and extravagantly.

A committee was appointed three by the brewers and three by the so-called allies. We met from time to time, and as we were discussing matters we saw a duplication of work; money expended by the New York office for some things that were being done by the Chicago office with no cooperation or coordination between each of the two organizations, although as it has been stated here, the most beautiful harmony existed.

The committee as it progressed asked for an audit, which was acquiesced in by Mr. Andreae, for the purpose of ascertaining where the money was spent and how it was spent. That audit was made by Messrs. Wade, Barrows, Guthrie & Company, chartered accountants and a copy of that audit is in the hands of Mr. Andreae and also the Secretary of this Association.

We came to the conclusion after deliberating and considering the Hearthstone that it was not bringing the desired results for the amount of money which was being expended. For that part of the year ended December 31, 1914, the Hearthstone Magazine cost $23,500. For the first six months of this year ended June 30th, according to the auditors' report, it cost $22,500. The articles appearing in the Hearthstone Magazine in the opinion of the committee were not bringing the desired result where it was claimed that they were distributed in the rural districts of the United States. The Hearthstone proposition as a proposition was put up to journalists by various members of this committee to men who are in that line of business; and the concensus of opinion was that for the purpose of aiding our cause—and that is the only reason the Hearthstone was issued—it was taken over from the whiskey people, where it was known by another name, I believe, and rechristened and called "The Hearthstone"—that the articles appearing therein were not of such value in bringing the results to justify the money expended.

At a meeting held on September 18th last the committee unanimously decided to abandon the Hearthstone Magazine and so instructed the President, Mr. Andreae, to wind up its affairs at the earliest possible date.

For those of you who have not read the Hearthstone, to satisfy yourselves as to whether it is bringing the results—whether you are going to have the same opinion that the committee has, I would advise you to get copies of it—copies can be had here in this room, the Secretary has them.

There is no personal matter or desire on my part or on the part of any of the brewers constituting that committee to harass Mr. Andreae or to criticise his work. We have tried to give him the fullest cooperation that was in our power. We have had, as has been expressed here, differences of opinion, which every man has a right to have. We are on that committee representing you brewers, we are giving our undivided time to that matter, for the purpose of getting some unity of action and of defeating the enemy. There is nothing on the part of the committee that at any time has been expressed to me, where any enmity has been shown to Mr. Andreae; but if we are going to be on your committee and you haven't got faith in this committee, then instructions should be given out here to the President to appoint a committee that you will have faith in. We have no other reason and no other purpose except for the good of the cause; for the purpose of bringing unity of action; to stop duplication work, to stop duplication of the expenditure of your money, and that is the opinion of your committee, and I want to reiterate that it was unanimous. Mr. Andreae's opinion is different. Each one has a right to his opinion; but as far as I am personally concerned, I have always tried to assist Mr. Andreae in every way, shape and manner. That, I think, from past experience, can be borne out. There has never been a time when, in any way, shape or manner, either directly or indirectly, that any member of the committee that I have heard, including myself, has ever passed any distasteful remarks about Mr. Andreae, except our opinions on certain matters. Thank you.

Mr. BEIS. I do not want the imputation to be made that the brewers of Ohio are disloyal to the cause of liberty and to the best interests of the brewers of the country.

If the Ohio brewers have failed to turn over to the National Association the two cents per barrel it is due to the fact that they have been informed—and that information is verified by the books of the Treasurer of this Association—that the two cents per barrel which they understood was to be used for and which they voted for the purpose of publicity, was to be turned over to Mr. Andreae; but the books of this Association show that those funds have been diverted and Mr. Andreae has not received them, and that is the reason why the Ohio brewers say whenever you give that money where we voted it we will give that money to the Association. That is the only reason.

The Ohio brewers you must remember, gentlemen of this Convention,—I don't know whether you appreciate what it is to go through a campaign, you gentlemen from the East don't know what a campaign is, you have never had a prohibition campaign in New York. We spent last year, and the books will show it cost the brewers and liquor dealers of Ohio half a million dollars to make the fight last year. It will cost another half a million dollars this year. Now, gentlemen, where did the money come from? How much was contributed by the United States Brewers' Association? We made the fight practically alone and single-handed, except for the assistance we got from the Andreae Bureau.

Don't say we are disloyal. We want your assistance and cooperation and at the same time we want everybody to be treated fairly, and that is all we are asking by this resolution, is that you live up to your contract. You know the arrangement was made, every one of you who was present when it was made, that Mr. Andreae was not to be hampered by committees or by different boards in his work. There is a reason for that. No man can go on and conduct a campaign if he is going to have Tom, Dick and Harry and everybody else butting in and giving this direction and that direction in his work, particularly in a campaign which involves literary effort. I don't know whether you know that or not, but that is the fact. I hope nobody will go away saying that Ohio is disloyal. Let me say to you gentlemen that if Ohio ever does go dry it will be a sad day for every other state in the union.

Mr. SCHLISTING. Mr. President, I am glad that I am not interested in this fight further than being a small brewer and from the West. I hold the highest regard for both gentlemen. It was only yesterday, in this very room, and upon that very platform, a gentleman told us that we were above the average as to square dealing and honesty, and I thank God that I still have confidence enough in humanity to think that 95 per cent of us, yes, and 95 per cent of all the people are still honest, and only five per cent dishonest.

Now, gentlemen, having these conditions confronting us and knowing that we are all trying to be honest, let us have a little bit of honesty and trustfulness and confidence in our Board of Trustees. This matter that is before us at this time looks to me like a man who is in our employ who is somewhat dissatisfied with the action of, we might say, our Board of Directors at home. He finds out that we have a meeting of the Board of Directors and he thinks something has been done to which he wants to object and he goes before the stockholders. Now, gentlemen, we all know about corporations and we know it is pretty hard to get details and facts to every stockholder that might be in a concern. Some of them are small and some of them are large, but invariably I stand by the President and the Board of Directors and it is very much the same way here today.

I think the resolution is uncalled for and that it should be sent back to the Board of Trustees with an expression of our confidence in them. [Applause.]

I want to say, and I think every man in this room will bear me out in this, that the members of our Board of Trustees are our chosen men, men of affairs, men who are the heads of large corporations which are being conducted successfully, and if we haven't got confidence in those sixteen men, as compared with one man's statement, then it is time that we retire and go home and say that we have lost confidence in humanity; and when we do that, gentlemen, we want to say to ourselves that we are doomed, because any man who hasn't got confidence in humanity hasn't got confidence in himself. Confidence in yourselves, in your boards and in your partners is the thing that helps us to be successful. There isn't one of us who could be successful alone. We have all got to unite and help one another. In unity there is strength, but if we are going to be divided we are going to fall.

Now, gentlemen, I think that the only thing that we can do at all is to place implicit confidence in our trustees, in our officials whom we have elected, or whom we are going to elect, and let them conduct the working out of the small details. Figure on this, gentlemen, that these gentlemen we are going to elect today are not hired help. Think that they are only working for us for our own good. They are giving up their time, they are giving up their money, they are giving up their energy for us who are not able or may be aren't large enough or may be haven't got the time to give to the cause. We all try to do our little best but the work and the criticism all falls upon the Board of Trustees. We may be out doing things but we are not criticised. It is easy to criticise, but it is hard to act and to do things, and the man who hasn't got confidence enough in the world except only to be a criticiser isn't a good active member in any organization. [Applause.]

Mr. President, I therefore take the liberty at this time to make a motion that this resolution be referred to the Board of Trustees, to be acted upon by them as they see fit. [Applause.]

Mr. ANHEUSER. Mr. President, I recommend that this resolution that I gave to you a few moments ago be put to a vote before this body now.

The PRESIDENT. I agree with you.

Mr. ANHEUSER. We have had all this talk; now let us see what we are to do.

The PRESIDENT. Now, gentlemen, I would like Mr. Pabst, the First Vice-President, to take the chair, if he will, please.

(Mr. Pabst took the chair and the President took the floor, being greeted with prolonged applause.)

Mr. SHMIDT. Mr. Chairman, and gentlemen of the Convention: I did not think that it would be necessary for me to take the floor at any of the gatherings of this Association, especially in the closing hours of my administration; but I have felt, since you have heard the report of Mr. Andreae, that if I did not do so I would be remiss in my duty toward the Board that has served with me and the heads of the various committees and the committees themselves.

I want to assure you—and I believe that I cannot be charged with anything to the contrary—that during the time that I have occupied this chair, I have presided over these meetings as well as those of the Board with absolute fairness, with absolute justice and with an absolutely open mind upon every question that has been presented. Every proposition affecting any of the departments of this organization that has come before the Board and that has been referred to the proper committees, I want to say has been treated with absolute fairness, with absolute justice to all.

When the committees, in their wisdom, after weighing all the facts in the case, have recommended to the Board that certain action be taken, it was done after the subject had been thoroughly exhausted and it has been done in the belief by the committee and those in authority that it was for the best interests of the brewing industry of these United States.

The appropriations that have been made to the various committees, as I said before, have been based entirely upon necessity as it has been presented and weighed and considered. Therefore, every action of your Board, as well as of the committees, has been absolutely regular, legal and in accord with the prescribed by-laws and rules of this body, and it cannot be questioned and should not be questioned. If we have not been liberal enough, that is no reason why things are not fair and just. We have cut our cloth in accordance with our income.

I feel now, as I said before, in the closing hours of my administrations, that you should not vote upon this resolution in the majority, that it should not prevail, because I believe if it does, you are going over the heads of your own trusted representatives. Have they done anything or does the record contain anything that shows that they have failed in their trust, that they have fallen down in it, that they have sacrificed your interests or violated your confidence? I do not believe there is anything that can be construed in that manner. Therefore, I ask, gentlemen, in casting your vote today that it be in opposition to this resolution and that you go home feeling, whoever you elect today—and I believe it will be my honored friend, Mr. Pabst—that he will discharge those duties just as I have discharged them and that the new Board of Trustees will do exactly the same thing, and that the best interest of the brewers in these United States will be conserved by this body.

I thank you very much. [Applause.]

(At this point the President resumed the chair.)

The PRESIDENT. Gentlemen, are you ready to vote on this resolution?

VOICES. Question.

The PRESIDENT. As many as are in favor of the adoption of the resolution will signify it by saying "Aye," those opposed "No"—the noes have it and the resolution is lost.

Mr. ANHEUSER. I am indeed very sorry to see you have turned down the resolution. You have repudiated a pledge you gave to Mr. Andreae and his work. We were a party to that contract. Now, gentlemen, I am very sorry to say, and I do not say it in any spirit of defiance, that the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association will not violate this contract, and I now tender our resignation from the Association.

A VOICE. I move that it be accepted.

Mr. WOODARD. I move that it be accepted.

(The motion was seconded and upon being put to a vote was carried.)

(Mr. Anheuser, accompanied by two others, thereupon left the room.)

Mr. CERVENKA. I don't think that the resolution ought to be accepted. I rose to a point of information, and the point I was going to ask was whether the Board of Trustees had any report, as a Board, on this matter. We have heard only from individual members of the Board of Trustees. I fully agree with my friend in what he said about the stockholders at home, but I believe that the directors ought to make their proper report to the stockholders, and then there will be less dissatisfaction. I am surprised that the resignation is accepted. I think that it should have gone—really I don't think it is a proper action, gentlemen—it might be—I don't know but I must say as a brewer I am surprised.

The PRESIDENT. The chair rules that this body is competent to discharge any business presented to it. If somebody makes a motion to rescind the action of the body or to refer it——

Mr. CERVENKA. I make that motion.

Mr. WOODARD. After all, we are all friends, we are all associates, each one needs the other, and we have so many enemies outside of this room to fight against and we are all members here and there is no reason why we should not amicably dispose of our differences. There is no man who appreciates Mr. Andreae's work more than I do, but it is up to us as a body of men to select those whom we wish to govern us and I, for one, take off my hat to you gentlemen who give your time and your ability and your thought—to what? Helping me and my associates make money, just as much as you help yourselves. I believe that you make sacrifices for us that we have no conception of. I know that we can never hope to return what you are giving us. You do it unselfishly all you men. Why, there is no glory in being the President of this Association or any other association except in the knowledge that you have done your work well and you get your approval from the rest of us men for having done it.

Now, I believe in being a very frank person and I think I am a frank person and I will be glad to be the one to go out there and ask those gentlemen to come back, and let us all get together and fight the fight together.

The PRESIDENT. Gentlemen, is the motion seconded?

Mr. NAGEL. I second the motion, and I want to say a few words.

I am a member of the Board of Trustees and have listened with a great deal of attention to both sides of this proposition. I want to admit first of all that as a member of the Board of Trustees I am a heart supporter of Mr. Andreae's work, as far as policy is concerned. I do not know Mr. Andreae personally and there is no personal feeling connected with my views. I have also the greatest confidence in the work of the President and of the various committees. There are, as you know, sometimes differences of opinion, and I think this is largely due to that difference of opinion that men have who have worked along certain angles, forming concrete ideas, and they sometimes conflict. I am thoroughly in accord with the suggestion that the Board of Trustees is competent to deal with this subject; but I do say that the Board of Trustees in the past has not dealt with this subject in the line that it should. This Andreae matter has never been discussed in the Board of Trustees as a body. It has been discussed in the Executive Committee and only brought to the Board of Trustees in the shape of a report, and when I attempted to discuss it, I was stopped from discussing it personally. There are certain things on both sides of it that I think we can remedy. For instance, I do not approve of the idea of stopping the payments at this time; it is like a manufacturer manufacturing an article and stopping the process while the article is being made. It is like discharging a bookkeeper in the middle of your business and letting your books go to hell. If we had confidence in Mr. Andreae to conduct the work for two years and a half, why is it we have not confidence in him to continue it? I am perfectly loyal to the gentlemen who are trying to find a way to settle this thing. I do not believe that the question of discontinuing the Hearthstone should have been done by this committee of six. I think it should have been for the Board of Trustees to decide. I myself may have had some views on that. I don't know whether they would have amounted to anything, but I have never been given an opportunity to discuss them if I had them. Now, if you are going to conduct this business in an orderly manner, along lines of decency, along lines of results, and you are going to hold me, as it seems to be the impression of the members here that the Board of Trustees should be—if you are going to hold me responsible to you then I say some of these matters must be discussed in the future in the open meetings of the Board of Trustees and not be combined in the minds of a few assume the authority of the Board of Trustees in doing anything in final results. This matter of Andreae, as important as it is, has never been discussed in detail and never an opportunity given to argue out the details such as they have been argued out here today. I have heard more about it in this room today, after sitting one year on the Board of Trustees, than I ever knew before, and certainly that is not a very good recommendation for me as a member of the Board of Trustees, if you are going to hold me responsible for any action——

Mr. PABST. May I interrupt you just one moment? I was present at a board meeting in the City of New York when the Andreae matter was discussed for hours. We started in the forenoon and adjourned for lunch and ended in the afternoon. Whether you were at that meeting I don't remember.

The PRESIDENT. I think that discussion is irrelevant, it does not refer to the resolution.

Mr. NAGEL. You have been very liberal in allowing the gentlemen to speak. I am only defending myself as a member of the Board of Trustees, as you have allowed Mr. Gardiner to defend himself, as to the action I took in this matter. Now, the only question I ever heard discussed was on the question of the report that the Executive Committee should make. At the time when the question was brought up for discussion immediately Mr. Landsberg got up and offered a resolution that it be referred to a committee of six, and when I attempted to discuss it Mr. Schram told me that I was not in order and said that I could not discuss the merits but could only talk on the resolution.

Now, I am not complaining——

Mr. PABST. I beg your pardon for interrupting you again.

The PRESIDENT. Will you permit the interruption?

Mr. NAGEL. Yes. I am not criticising anybody. I am stating the facts. I entered into this office with a full appreciation of my duties and I want to perform them in the best way I know how, and I want to bring the facts before this body, if anybody is going to be held responsible. I believe there are certain details about the Andreae Bureau that might very well be changed. I think perhaps there is a little duplication on his part and a lot of things might be avoided. I believe there is nothing in the hearts of any of these gentlemen that they want to crucify Mr. Andreae, and there has been a conflict and the conflict was left to five or six gentlemen without coming out in the open to the Board of Trustees for the Board of Trustees, as a whole, to take this matter up and settle it. That is what I think ought to be done. That is the reason I seconded this motion and I think it should prevail. I do not believe that we should allow a big corporation like the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association to leave this Association. I think if this matter can be left in the hands of the Board of Trustees that it can be settled and I hope that we will be able to come here next year and tell you that everything is working harmoniously.

The PRESIDENT. Gentlemen, this motion has been seconded. What is your pleasure in regard to it?

VOICES. Question.

(The motion was put to a vote and unanimously carried.)

Mr. CERVENKA. I move that the resignation of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association be referred to the Membership Committee.

Mr. SCHLISTING. Wouldn't it be better to appoint a sub-committee?

The PRESIDENT. Why not refer it to the Board of Trustees which will meet this afternoon?

Mr. CERVENKA. All right, that is agreeable to me—I then move that it be referred to the Board of Trustees.

(The motion was duly seconded and unanimously carried.)

The PRESIDENT. Is there any other business, gentlemen? If not, a motion to adjourn will be in order.

Mr. FITGER. I move that we adjourn.

(The motion was duly second and carried.)

Thereupon, at 1.00 P. M., the Executive Session was adjourned sine die.

EXHIBIT No. 1033.

(By Cooper Lyon. New Orleans, Nov. 17, 1915.)

Opening address by Mr. Percy Andrrar, president:

I think it might be well, in order to bring up such matters as may occur in the minds of those present, to read the by-laws and constitution of this organization, so that every member here present may be fully alive to what the Association is, just what its purposes are and so on. The Secretary will read the constitution and by-laws that were passed at the National Convention.

The by-laws and constitution were read by the Secretary.

Well, now, gentlemen, you have heard the reading of the constitution and by laws of this Association as determined upon by the constituent members of the Association. Now, the work that has been in progress during the past year is embodied in a report which will be submitted to those interested at this Convention in New Orleans. I don't think it would be proper for me to read here the report which is going to the larger convention that is to be held here tomorrow, but I do want to dwell upon one or two particulars because they are particulars which are of considerable interest to this Association and its future existence. I want to recall to your minds the history of this Association right from its origin. You will remember that, at the last Convention of the United States Brewers Association, a notice was issued, calling together the members of the allied trade at a meeting to be held during the United States Brewers Convention in Atlantic City, which meeting I was asked to open and address with a view to conveying to the members of the allied trade the desire on the part of the industries represented in the United States Brewers Association, that the associate membership that had theretofore existed in the United States Brewers Association should be abolished, and that in substitution of that associate membership, which had not proved of any particular value in regard to work and other matters of importance, the allied trade should form an organization of their own, and should proceed to work on other matters of importance, and the allied trade should form an organization of their own, and should proceed to do all that lay in their power to aid in the general campaign against prohibition. It will be within your memory that I did open the meeting, and that I did make the address that I was asked to make, with the result that this organization was formed. When the organization started into existence, it became, of course, important for the organization to provide that which is necessary to any organization, and that is the sinews of war in order to carry on their part of the campaign against what they had been asked to war on.

At the first meeting of the Executive Committee, the question of finance came up, and the ways and means of procuring same was discussed, and a plan was discussed and it was unanimously adopted. The plan was that an assessment on a percentage basis be made, which basis was founded on the amount of business done by the members of this Association. It having been passed practically unanimously, steps were immediately taken to carry out the plan on a large scale, and I was instructed by the Executive Committee to see the brewers in Chicago and explain to them the plan and request their co-operation in carrying it out. In other words, it was considered only feasible with the co-operation of the brewers and they were, therefore, asked whether they would aid in the collecting of the assessment agreed upon—it being understood, of course, that no member was to be assessed against his own will—in other words, it was to be a voluntary contribution, and to aid in the collecting by taking stamps from the National Association of Commerce & Labor and invoices of members who had agreed to that assessment—the assessment to be at the rate of 1% on the amount of the invoices with the exception of certain trades where a general understanding with the trade had to be previously arrived at in order to fix the assessment.

The brewers of Chicago heartily concurred and the plan was started in Chicago. Thereupon this Association employed two men to call on the trade, and these men went outside of Chicago to other cities, presented this plan to the trade and invited the co-operation of the brewers in carrying out this plan. I wish to say that, from my experience, the success of this plan, in spite of certain opposition to it—not on the part of members of the Association, but on the part of others outside of the Association, has been really very gratifying. We have to date, after the plan has been in operation for about four or five months, collected quite a considerable sum of money, which is intact—not one cent of it has been expended, with the exception of the cost of collecting it, which consists of salaries of men engaged in the collection, and the amount we have today is about $70,000.00. And there is no doubt that, if we receive the co-operation on the part of others, a very considerable sum can be made available annually, and it will have to be made available if we are to cope successfully against the prohibition movement.

Now, gentlemen, I presume that most of you know that this plan or scheme has met with certain opposition in certain quarters in the brewing industry. What is the cause of that opposition, I do not know. I consulted the President of the United States Brewers Association in regard to the plan, asking him what he thought of it, whether he approved of it and whether he thought it was feasible. His answer was he thought it was ideal, and he believed that it could be made a plan to extend all over the United States. And I want it distinctly understood that before the plan was put into operation the President of the United States Brewers Association was acquainted with the details, and not only saw no objection to it, but heartily expressed his approval of it.

Now, gentlemen, that is the history of the financial end of the National Association of Commerce and Labor. When I undertook at the desire, and I think I may say, a unanimous desire of the brewing interests and also the distilling interests of this country, to lead the fight against prohibition, I made certain stipulations, and those stipulations were unanimously agreed to. I stipulated, naturally, in the first place, that I must receive not only the moral but financial support of all of those who desire that this work be taken up—Second, I must be left a free hand and not be hampered by committees and boards who might wish to direct me in directions that, according to my way of seeing matters, no work could be successfully done. Now, I was assured, when I undertook the work, that the funds which I stated would be necessary to carry the work on successfully would be forthcoming. Well, gentlemen, they were not forthcoming, and one of the reasons why this organization was started and this plan of financing was inaugurated, was to make up the deficiency in the funds which had been promised me.

Now, that is the history of this organization.

I explained to the gentlemen in the brewing industry, that, if any leadership was to be successful, that leadership would have to be entirely separated from the main industry involved in the campaign—that is the brewing and distilling industry—that is, I put it to the gentlemen, representing the brewing industry assembled in New York for the purpose of discussing ways and means of carrying out this plan, and that the farther away I could be removed from the United States Brewers Association or any other association, representing the so-called "liquor" interest, the better the success my work would be. You gentlemen know as well as I do that whenever a campaign is waged in any state or in any locality, if there is any possibility of the statement getting out that the campaign is a brewers campaign, that in itself is sufficient to defeat the purposes for which the campaign is waged. You take for instance, in the state of Ohio before the recent election, the whole state was placarded with one statement, which was "Vote down the brewers amendment." Whenever any movement is allowed to be called a brewers movement, that in itself is sufficient to kill it. That is the reason why, and I have no other, I made it an absolute condition that I must be allowed to carry on this work under a flag that was not directly or indirectly connected with a brewers organization.

Since I have been connected with this organization, at first merely as a member, and for the last six months as its president, I have been enabled to go out and make business addresses under the title of President of the National Association of Commerce and Labor, and I have been requested right and left to make addresses publicly, which addresses I would never have been asked to make otherwise and which addresses would never have been listened to by as large a crowd had I been obliged to state that I was representing a brewers association. Gentlemen, that is in itself a factor of the greatest importance in this particular movement, and, gentlemen, I believe it was understood that it would be necessary for me to sail under the flag of this organization in order to carry on the work successfully.

Now, I have made this statement to you today, because there is some matter to come up today, which I believe will be definitely settled during this convention, and that matter, if not stopped, will disrupt this organization, which has been formed under such really promising auspices. The interests represented by this organization are quite as important and are quite as large as those represented by the sister association. You represent the allied trade, and I want to tell you, gentlemen, that when you figure the labor, when you figure the investment, and when you figure all of the other factors that we are presenting to the public against prohibition, you are far larger in regard to labor, and possibly in regard to investments than the brewing or distilling association. Now, that is a fact that may possibly be surprising to some of you. You have the privilege of running your own business and of running your own campaign provided you run same in harmony and co-operation with those who are running the same campaign in defense of their interest.

Now, I admit that I do not know what is the reason of the general objection to this organization on the part of some of our friends in the brewing business, but I presume that those objections will assume some definite and tangible form during this convention, but I do believe this that, in view of the fact that the statement has been made, and it has been made to me that the financial arrangement of this organization will only be approved by those at present in charge of the United States Brewers Association provided that the money collected by this organization is handed over in its entirety to the United States Brewers Association. At least, that is my understanding, and it remains with you gentlemen whether that is your intention—whether it should be done or whether it should not be done—because money that you collect without the co-operation of the United States Brewers Association, should remain in your control and before taking it from you the least that you can ask is that you be given the courtesy of a request to contribute same. That is the position that I take, and, gentlemen, I consider myself as representing you because I occupy the position as President of the Association. I represent the brewers also, and should anyone come to me with a suggestion that, in my opinion, would be against the dignity of the brewing industry or against the dignity of any association representing that industry, I would object to it.

Gentlemen, that in brief outline is the situation that confronts this organization, and I think these matters should be thoroughly discussed at this meeting, and find out what your position is. I believe thoroughly in complete harmony of all associations and all interests that are working to the one end, and that is the defeat of the fanatical interests that are trying to destroy our organization and interests. Every organization has its own bottom to stand upon and, if anything is desired of this organization by others, why let it be conceded if it is the wish of this organization to concede it.

Now, gentlemen, I have nothing more to state to you. I think that the general work that has been done during the past year practically speaks for itself.

I think that these matters should be thoroughly discussed—every man express his views as to just how he feels, so that something may be done in order to come to a definite understanding as to what this organization represents and what this organization demands in its own interest.

Gentlemen, the rest is up to you.

(In connection with the testimony which shows the relations between the United States Brewers' Association and the National German-American Alliance and their active participation in financing the National German-American Alliance the following excerpts and articles translated from the Mitteilungen, the official bulletin of the National German-American Alliance, are submitted in evidence:)

EXHIBIT No. 1034.

[Mitteilungen des deutschamerikanischen nationalbundes der vereinigten staaten von Amerika—Bulletin of the National German-American Alliance. Philadelphia, Pa.]

Issues examined: April, 1917 to January, 1918, with the exception of the December issue.

This monthly Bulletin of the German American Alliance contains also articles in English.

General argument:

1. Opposed the declaration of war.
2. Now that war has been declared, they are loyal to the government.
3. Love for German art, literature, music, etc. does not conflict with political loyalty.
4. After the war, German-Americans can serve their adopted country by again promoting friendly relations between Germany and the U. S.
5. Expression of opinion, guaranteed by the Constitution, does not constitute disloyalty.

Statement, May, p. 1, suggesting Germany's ultimate victory found in an article, reporting Kuno Francke's lecture at the U. of P.

Article by Edmund von Mach, "Here we stand." in the June issue, p. 1 is absolutely un-American in point of view.

The American Press controlled by British.

Britain America's hereditary enemy.

Munition makers profiteering.

Regret that division in the ranks of the German-American Alliance has made it impossible to exert the proper influence upon American politics; closer organization for future activity urged.

During these critical times the Americans of German extraction must exercise self-control, even though they are subjected to unjust accusations.

Inasmuch as we are fighting the German government and not the German people it is wrong to make an issue of German in the schools, or to oppose any furthering of the best there is to be found in the non-political Germany. The U. S. has the political loyalty of the German-Americans; it is asking too much to demand that they throw away their love for the 'Cultural' side of Germany. Deny any political affiliation with Germany.

Duty of the Alliance to assist in the defense of the editors of the Philadelphia Tageblatt, who have been accused of treason unjustly.

The Liberty Loan is recommended, but neither so frequently nor so vigorously as might be expected.

Position of the German-Am.—Relations to Germany—Loyalty, etc. May, p. 1, article, "Germany's Future," report of a lecture delivered by Kuno Francke before the German Club of the University of Pennsylvania.

Speaks of the wonderful unity among the German people at this time, even the social-democrats are assisting the government. * * * Translation: "First of all he (Kuno Francke) expressed the conviction, that the war would not end with the political and economic annihilation of Germany. 'But even,' he continued, 'if the German arms—which fortunately is unlikely—should finally be overcome by a superiority in men and money, the German spirit will remain and will busy itself undaunted with the creation of national conditions, worthy of a people, which has in such a wonderful way stood this test of national fitness and virtue, unique in history."

Even during the war, the Germans are busy planning a new and better Germany. Translation: "The German Emperor himself is filled with the burning, ennobled, and spiritualized Germany." Translation: "In regard to the army, Prof. Francke hopes, in case that disarmament cannot be put through, that it will even more than before become a national institution—a people in arms—with the elimination of those defects which existed before the war * * * ".

Then discusses probable changes in government etc.

June, p. 1. col. 1 ff., article by Edmund von Mach, "Here we stand. Translation: "What German is there, who, during hard times, did not have the desire to stand shoulder against shoulder with like-minded people, for united one challenges fate and knows that even though the individual falls, the just cause will be victorious.

We are German. No one is permitted to attack us on that score. Every drop of blood in our veins carries the message, the heart whispers it, and thought answers with a thundering 'Thank God.'

As citizens, of course, we are Americans. And we are also proud of that; for we are certain that the time will come again, when here too one will recall again freedom, and justice, and love of mankind. Yes even to-day in this mad period, the 'Murder-purveyors' would not have succeeded in driving us into war, if their almost unbelievable campaign of lies had not pointed out indeed the wrong way to many Americans whose hearts beat in true love for humanity.

Citizenship brings with it duties, which no man of honor will dodge. Nationality, however, also has its obligations, and whoever neglects these, suffers injury in his soul. A sin against nationality is like a sin against the Holy Ghost. And what doth life profit us, if we injure our souls?

The state is like a gaint forest. Its value consists in the mass of the individual strong and healthy trees. Trees which are rotten at the heart, are useless, are a menace. Whoever has German blood in his veins, and desires to excuse the sin against his nationality with the cowardly words: 'I am an American citizen,' is like such a rotten, decayed tree. Let us therefore, leave it to those others, who do not know the pride there is in being German at heart, to sin against their nationality, and let us become clearly conscious that we can only then be readily valuable citizens, if we remain true to ourselves.

A large newspaper in Germany has recently in sharp words condemned us, and the disgrace in this matter is that the newspaper was correct. (Refers to the 'Kreuzzeitung'; disgusted because the German-Americans sent pledges of loyalty to President Wilson and states that those concerned have no right to consider themselves German.) To be sure only in so far as the disgraceful, cowardly demonstrations in many newspapers here printed in German were concerned. One almost died from shame, when one saw these acrobatics here. To-day the President was a bad man, because he wished to have war with Germany, and to-morrow he was a fine fellow, because he had attained his end, and from fear of lese majesté, one sent him pledges of loyalty.

And this happened here in the country where one swore and owed allegiance to the Constitution alone and to no one else. And the people who wrote that, and often went so far, that they said, they and the Germans here would gladly go to war, were German. Who can then criticise the German newspaper, that it, in German anger, expressed the wish, we should henceforth never call ourselves German?

I do not criticize the newspaper. I would, however, like to correct it and tell it: 'You have only looked into a few newspapers and have found them decayed and rotten. If you could have looked into millions of German hearts here, your own heart in your body would have laughed, for there everything is truly splendidly German!' And what is the meaning of 'splendidly German'? Honestly and genuinely!

In the first place, 'honestly'. An honest man keeps his oath. We have sworn allegiance to the Constitution here, and that means that we cannot, nor are are we permitted to help the enemies of our country. 'You dear ones over yonder in the old home', says many a German heart here, 'I have hoped, and prayed, and labored that peace might be maintained. We did not succeed. Now we are at war, and now I am not permitted to help you any more. You understand that, don't you? for you too are indeed German and know that a German does his duty, and even though his heart might break."

'Genuinely' in the second place, for there stood the decision not to allow oneself to be led astray neither by word nor deed into taking a single step on one's own initiative which might make us traitors to our Godgiven Deutschtum. Our representatives in Congress declared the war in the early morning hour of holy Good Friday. We, however, never wish to, and never shall play the part of Peter, who disowned our Lord Jesus, his dear, faithful friend.

If the Deutschtum in America is to live on as a moral power, it must then be active now as a moral power. If it now hides itself cowardly behind the American citizenship papers and disowns the best which God has given it, then it has gambled away every claim.

Publicly many of us played the part of Peter on Good Friday. He, however, went away and wept bitterly, and later did great things for the Lord and for truth. It is not yet too late. Pastorius, that great man, before he died, blessed the German descendants in this country. A double blessing therefore rests upon us, and we should declare ourselves courageously and proudly before all the world.

'Here we stand. God help us. Amen.

Cambridge, Mass., May 13, 1917.'

April, p. 4, col. 1, editorial, states that even though we are in a condition resembling a state of war, war has not yet been declared. Warns Germans against secret agents who employ any means whatsoever to procure evidence against spies. Translation: "Everything must be aboided which is not in accordance with the highest duty of a citizen of this country. No German-American will forget the duty which he owes the country of his choice, and to which country he has given his best, and he will unite his utterances and his deeds only with the best interest of this country. To be sure it hurts to see oneself falsely judged and surrounded by spies, but we will always, faithful to our traditions, do right and impose upon ourselves above all, self-control, calmness, and caution."

Apr., p. 8, col. 2, poem, "The German Emigrant."

May, p. 2, col. 2, Translation of the above poem.

Reminiscent of the charms of Germany, and closes, the father speaking to his son:

"So swear each day anew and raise your hand,
To pledge for your own country's cause that stand
Which I uphold as to my birth—and fatherland."
But mark my son, what father further states,
"Some other name and faith may be your lot in time.
Yet ne'er forget your father's home and clime,
For proudly you may praise its high estates.
And when life's destiny goes smooth or roughly past,
When skies above seem light or darkly cast,
Remain in spite of all in German ways,
The best we know on earth, the best always."

May, p. 5, col. 3, editorial quoted from the Fort Wayne "Freie Presse." States that one of the weakest points of German diplomacy is the treatment of the German-Americans. The article states emphatically that the Germans by coming to America and swearing allegiance separated themselves from any political relations with Germany; Germany, however, might have done something to strengthen the "Kultur"-bonds which connect the German-Americans with Germany. Cannot comprehend the state of mind of the gentleman who wrote an article in the "Kreuzzeitung", censuring the German-Americans on account of their attitude in the present war. Translation: "Our oath ties us to the United States, and the moment war is declared, we have only one obligation—our duty towards the United States. Only a fool would expect anything else."

May, p. 4, col. 1, article editorial page, "Peace and Patience." Translation: "The hour of destiny, which has threatened to strike for some time for the Americans of German tongue, has now broken upon them and has struck them with its full weight. What we German-Americans as honest, peace-loving, citizens of this country and as true American patriots attempted to avoid, a conflict between the old and the new Fatherland, has now unfortunately after all become a reality.

Doubly serious and severely trying is therefore the period in which we have to live at present. Even though the soul-suffering which we have been obliged to endure for some time and now even more, has an intolerable and even crushing effect upon us and occasionally threatens to bring us to the brink of despair, and even though it seems to grow so gloomy and dark about us, the German-American has nevertheless in this difficult hour of trial and tribulation constantly a true, honest friend, who stands by him bravely in his darkest hour of suffering, holds his head high, and instills in him new courage for the future. And this friend is one of the noblest virtues, which mother Germania has placed, so to speak, as a dowry, in the lap of the betrothed Columbia. This virtue of virtues has always marked the American of German descent conspicuously, and has made him distinguished above all other races who have sought and found a second home in this country; namely the unaffected, simple, never failing loyalty towards his fatherland by adoption, the country of his own free choice.

The annals of the history of our country teach us that, and with golden letters it will also have to be written in the future history of this country: The American of German descent remained, in the most difficult time of trial that can be imagined, faithful to the oath to his adopted country, in unflinching and truly Germanic manner. Even though with bleeding heart, he has nevertheless himself fulfilled his duty towards his adopted fatherland uprightly and honestly, in the war against his own mother-country."

Article continues, that due to this loyalty it is possible for the German-Americans to take up the cudgels for the country of their origin without sacrificing an iota of their loyalty to the United States. Refers to President Wilson's statement that we are not fighting against the German people, and continues, Translation: "Now, to be sure, how President Wilson pictures this to himself, to make war upon a people from pure humanity, to expose them to further terrible afflictions and at the same time be favorably disposed towards that same people and cover them with the cloak of christian love and humanity, is a problem which I at this moment cannot nor wish to solve, but on the contrary will leave it confidently to the acumen of the historian, when he with the pencil of truth fearlessly writes the history of this war and of this country. For, as Joseph Matt says quite correctly in his 'Wanderer,' since the entry of our country into the war every opposition to the policy of our government, or rather of President Wilson, ceases for us. We are to submit to our fate and indeed without grumbling or complaining. Thank God, we learned to do this in our earliest youth; the iron obedience and the severe discipline, which we, one might say, have imbibed with our mother's milk, is, at any rate, of great service to us in this period so serious for the German heart and soul, and in this difficult hour of trial.

But at this very moment the Americans of German origin and descent unite more closely than ever before and see to it, that in their adopted fatherland, the German spirit of true, unadulterated, active love for one's country points out the way to the Hurrah-patriotism, how the honest civic duties are to be performed, and how in the hour of danger, one can, is to, and must serve his fatherland by deed and not by gush and empty words."

Article then refers to loyalty of previous times, especially of Mühlenberg, and continues,

"And to preserve this German spirit in the future and also after the war for our adopted fatherland, and to mingle it with the American spirit of enterprise, is and remains the task of the organized 'Deutschamerikanertum'. The spirit of honesty, of love for one's country, in a word, the spirit and character of the German people, whose preservation and not whose destruction is the aim, as President Wilson said so wonderfully in his message, must and will prevail in our adopted country.

Therefore a mighty task still stands before us, which can be accomplished by means of unified action and solidarity as American citizens, who not only preach practical Americanism but also put it into practice. There are two catch-words which at this time should serve as a password for the American of German tongue, and these are: 'Orderliness and Patience'!"

The article closes by quoting from the "Wanderer", stating that the future will recognize the German-Americans, provided that they remain unified. "The Deutschtum is bowed down, but not broken".

May, p. 7, col. 4. Report of the New Jersey Branch, Translation: "The G. A. State Alliance of N. J. * * * regrets most deeply that the peace of our country was not maintained and declares to recommend to its members to fulfill their duty towards their adopted country as faithful and loyal citizens."

May, p. 3, col. 2, article stating what constitutes treason; also that one cannot surrender citizenship at will; inasmuch as one is likely to be misunderstood it is best "to keep one's mouth shut". Closes, Translation: "We definitely believe that nothing whatsoever will happen to those Germans who remain quiet and obey the law. On the other hand one must not forget that the spy-system is very elaborate, wherefore the best advice which we can give our readers is "Silence"."

May, p. 6, col. 3, warning issued by the Attorney General to Germans.

May, p. 6, col. 4, President Wilson's statement regarding the behavior of Germans in America during the war.

May, p. 8, col. 2, proclamation issued to the various branches of the Alliance and its members. Urgently request every German-American and also those who are enjoying the hospitality of this country to observe the special obligations brought upon them by the state of war. Even though the right of meeting is not denied to the branches of the Alliance, they are, however, requested to refrain from anything which might offend, for example pictures of the German rulers are not to be displayed, and the German flag is not to be shown. Urges the Alliance to assist those who may lose their positions due to prejudice, and continues, Translation: "We shall not be guilty of detracting from our dignity as American citizens, but will keep sacred our oath of allegiance: however, we cannot and will not degrade ourselves to knaves in our way of thinking and join in the howling against Germany and her allies. With heavy hearts we shall do our duty as American citizens, and leave no stone unturned to bring about a speedy peace and the re-establishment of friendly relations between the United States and Germany.

German language, German customs, German belief, and German song and literature can and will be cultivated also in the future in spite of the existing circumstances. These are necessary and of far-reaching significance when the war is over and when reason has gained victory over war clamor, in order to begin again the friendly relations between both countries and to establish them permanently.

Meanwhile let there be in force the words: "Orderliness is a citizen's first duty." * * *

May, p. 6, col. 4, squib, Translation: "The Americans of German descent are facing severe trials, which they will, however, overcome and which neither will nor are permitted to change anything in their character."

May, p. 3, col. 1, article stating that Germans can become American citizens, even during the war, under certain conditions.

June, p. 2, col. 2, poem asserting loyalty to the stars and stripes.

June, p. 3, col. 1, article "The Future of the Alliance" gives Hexamer's views. Asserts loyalty, emphasizes future activity of Alliance.

June, p. 3, col. 3, criticises Attorney General Gregory's statement, that the foreign-born citizens deserved praise for their behavior. States that doing one's duty as a citizen does not demand praise, but merely just recognition. Offended by the insinuation that any doubt existed regarding the position of the foreign-born German-American citizens. This same theme is further developed in the issue of June, p. 4, col. 2.

June, p. 1, col. 4, editorial from the "Cincinnati Volksblatt", "We German-Americans", dealing with the criticism made by the 'Kreuzzeitung' of the statement of loyalty issued by German-American. Translation: "A German-American is not a German, but an American. The furthering of the German language and German views is carried on solely for 'cultural' purposes and not for the promoting of German political interests." * * * States further, that it is not contrary to loyalty, if the German-Americans try to preserve and introduce into American life those things German which will be of ultimate benefit to this country. * * * Translation: "If the accusation is made, that the Germans do not reveal an ardent enthusiasm for the present war, one may reply that noisy demonstrations are not characteristic of the Germans. They do not display their emotions. One may admit, however, that they are not in sympathy with all the reasons for the war, which are advanced. It is a matter of indifference to them, whether Germany is a monarchy or something else. It satisfies them that the U. S. are not a monarchy and they will never allow, that they depart from this form of government. The Germans are also of the opinion that the difficulty could have been settled in a different manner than by war, nor is it clear to them, why we should support England, who has always been our enemy. They would take this same position, if the affair had concerned another country. But this will not change their fidelity in the least, and the fact that so many Germans have enlisted for service voluntarily, provés how serious they are in their purpose of being found loyal and honest. In like manner they will willingly do everything that is necessary in order to help our country to victory, for no one can injure his fatherland without inflicting the greatest damage upon himself.

If the Kreuzzeitung gave itself up to the belief that the Germans would prove to be enemies of the U. S., it gives us the greatest satisfaction that it finds that it erred in this respect."

July, p. 8, col. 1, statement made by the President of the Pa. Branch, asserting political loyalty to the U. S.

Sep., p. 4, col. 3, editorial page, "The rights of citizens". States the law regarding the right of free speech, the holding of meetings, the distributing of pamphlets etc. Concludes by saying that one would naturally exercise the necessary self-restraint imposed by these critical times, but that does not mean that it is necessary to give up one's civic rights. One need not be a coward if ones wishes to be a loyal citizen.

Sep., p. 2, col. 2, poem entitled "Enough". Long years ago I took an oath of allegiance to my new country, and I have kept it faithfully and still keep it even to-day with sore heart "when flesh of my flesh is being torn into bits by a pack (of hounds) drunk with envy and hatred." "No heart has ever brought a greater sacrifice, than to refuse help, when the blood of its people cried to heaven, and nothing can further increase my sufferings." "And let this be enough! The duty of one's oath is sacred; therefore it should not demand that which is so unholy! I shall not help in lacerating the people from whom I descend." "Where this is treason, speak inhumanity shamelessly the verdict in the name of law! Let come what may! I am ready! Here I stand, and cannot do otherwise! Amen!"

Oct., p. 3, col. 3, editorial quoted from "Deutsches Journal". If it is true that there is an organized German spy system in this country, it is the greatest enemy of the German-Americans, who hope that the Government will speedily put an end to any spying.

Nov., p. 5, col. 1. Statement of loyalty in English, also repeated in the issue of Jan., p. 5, col. 1: "Where We Stand. We are citizens of a republic, and know no other allegiance. America is our country, and any disaster to America would be our disaster. Whatever our language, we have the same flag. Whatever blood runs in our veins, there is but one loyalty in our hearts. The victory of American ideals in this war means for the German people the realization of the hopes and dreams of the revolution of 1848. America, now and forever!"

Nov. p. 8, col. 1, quotes from "Der Zeitgeist" on the resignation of Dr. Hexamer, as president of the German-American Alliance: Translation: "It is not merely the bad state of Dr. Hexamer's health alone, . . . which has moved him to resign, also the hostility which his strictly American position immediately after the severing of diplomatic relations with Germany aroused in various Branches (of the Alliance) contributed to making any further activity in the interest of American 'Deutschtum' distasteful to him."

OBJECT OF THE GERMAN-AMERICAN ALLIANCE.

Nov., p. 4, col. 2, article quoted from the "Iowa Reform" discussing the resignation of Dr. Hexamer as president. Translation: ". . . probably at that time there was in his mind the organization of the millions of German-Americans in the country into a mighty union, not indeed to pursue here German politics nor un-American aims, but only to gain for the German-Americans here the position due them, and to pave the way to greater progress for German language and German essence and store of knowledge which have been more than neglected here for a long time."

Nov., p. 5, col. 1, editorial page, statement in English: Aims and purposes of the National German American Alliance, incorporated by Act of Congress etc.

January, p. 1, col. 2, New Year's greeting from the President of the Alliance, S. G. von Bosse: Translation: "* * * The year 1918 will prove to be an assay crucible for the German-American National Alliance. And with this there will arrive a turning point of great moment in the history of 'Deutschamerikanertum.' We have learned in the past year as never before—all have learned. Our schooling has, however, not yet been completed, and what the teachers of the future still have in store for us is concealed behind a sphinx-like mask.

If we have only realized the one point, that for us as American citizens of German descent, the possibility of realizing our idealistic aims is contained only in organization, and indeed in strict organization, then the year of humiliation and broken spirit has nevertheless been a beneficial one. And we know of thousands that they have not only come to realize this important point but have made it their own. War, like no other disciplinarian, teaches that the individual as such, for the welfare of the whole, must not only restrict himself but often sacrifice himself. It has forced upon us to a certain degree self-discipline and self-control. * * *

The desire for vigorous organization has opened the eyes of many regarding the purpose and aims of the National Alliance. * * * At this time we are, to be sure, not permitted to forget the state of war. The National Alliance has gone through all attacks, uncurtailed and dignified, and will prove itself to be a truly American institution in the process of the formation of the American race on the basis of the noblest qualities of the German people. We have never fostered an official union on the basis of national-political diplomacy, but represent from the very outset a cultural and politico-economic mission, emanating from and carried on by us and intended for our American people. What a German editor wrote a short time ago applies: "In the proper compromise between Americanism in nativistic form and German-American ideals, there lies the main task of the men of the National-Alliance, who feel themselves called to be leaders of those of the same race in the United States, or at least to be intelligent advisers. Unswerving Americanism in political matters and maintenance of the ideals of the race of poets and thinkers should be the two guide-posts for the entire 'Deutschtum' of the U. S."

The new year 1918 may bring to the world the longed for peace. But on the other hand it may be obliged to reveal at its close the same weapon-bristling hostility. For us, as far as 'Deutschamerikanertum' is concerned, there is only one task: to see to it during the new year, as far as we are able, that the one organization, which to-day and later can take the position for us all which we, aside from our political, religious, or personal views, consider the correct one, will remain alive and be developed to the best of our ability * * *."

Jan., p. 5, col. 1, New Year's greeting in English from S. G. von Bosse, stating the aims of the G. A. Alliance.

Jan., p. 2, col. 4, editorial on the election of the new president of the Alliance, quoted from the 'Philadelphia Sonntags-Gazette.' Translation: "* * * The new president, if he understands his task and that of the Alliance correctly, will no doubt find it necessary to steer a somewhat different course, which will put greater emphasis than has been the case heretofore upon the Americanism of the members, and which will again and again bring proofs, that in political matters, they are truly and only American citizens, without any inclination whatsoever towards the German government and to the German empire as a political conception. He will be obliged to lift up to the realization of this all members of the Alliance, who, in spite of the storm and stress of the great historic events, have as yet not freed themselves from the hyphen, and everything which it involves. The better Americans the members of the G. A. A. are, the better will they be able to stimulate the interests in German language and literature, to gain also in this country admirers and friends for German art and science, and to put the German people aright in the judgment of the American nation, which even before the entry of the U. S. into the world war, was influenced by means of an unscrupulous and spiteful propaganda against everything German."

Jan., p. 4, col. 1, editorial page, quoting from Max E. Socha, of the Cal. State Organization: "It is necessary to continue the organization of the G. A. A. in order to re-establish friendly relations between the old and the new fatherland after the war." Translation: "Our activity has been temporarily checked and made powerless by the existing conditions; but the time will come, when all of us who value our old native country and who cling with faithful love to our new home, in new and better times will be able to unfold our activities again for the welfare of those countries which we love and which are dear to us, and then we can and must add to the American national character in the process of formation, such manners and customs as well as such ideals which are characteristic of the Germanic race, and which are considered by other nations to be good qualities, and which have received the admiration and recognition of the world. * * * The Alliance is a national necessity and must continue to exist for the weal and welfare of the new nation."

POLITICAL POWER OF THE ALLIANCE.

April, pp. 1, 2, 3, article, "Unified Deutschamerikanertum: Dream or Reality?" by S. G. von Bosse, later elected president of the Alliance. States that at present, in spite of the great efforts and many sacrifices of the past, unity among German-Americans does not exist. Bosse states that his ideal is the same as that which has been held by others previously, namely, Translation: "I should like to see Deutschtum firmly established in a strong body, entitled to representation, based upon one platform, which takes into consideration all interested parties and which devotes itself exclusively to the maintenance and spreading of German Kultur. It would have to be necessary that all creeds, all different political views, all classes whether rich or poor, educated or uneduwas nondoubt the founding of the G. A. N. A. * * * The best Germancated, could unite in this body. * * * The most effective step in this direction was no doubt the founding of the G. A. N. A. * * * The best German-American element, with few exceptions, is not engaged in the National Alliance, neither actively nor passively," due to the lack of propaganda among them. Bosse states further that the most effective attempt to develop that which the N. A. is striving for, was made in the founding of the 'National Conference Committee of the German-Americans' on May 29, 1916. He continues. Translation: "That the enthusiasm of the conference was not a straw fire, was shown by the nomination in the republican camp and by the election itself. It had been recognized that an unified Deutschamerikanertum was only possible, if unified, it uses the only means which promises success in our country, the 'vote' of the citizen. The presidential election served as an assay crucible. That it did not turn out as expected, is not the fault of the conference. Even though the Deutschamerikanertum of various states combined with the enemies and traitors of true Americanism, it was after all due to the indefatigable activity of the conference leaders, that a decisive victory of Wilson was averted. If all German-Americans had voted with the vast majority of their fellow countrymen, especially in parts of Ohio and California, then no doubt could have existed as to a strong (gesalzen) defeat of Wilson. A bit of reality was nevertheless felt in Deutschamerikanertum."

"But now, what next? * * * Is it not true, to-day after the presidential election as before, that the 'Kultur'-work of German-Americanism can be carried on successfully only at the ballot box? Or can the introduction of German instruction in the schools, the warding off of prohibition, etc. be accomplished in a different manner? What the conference committee is striving for is contained in the National Alliance. It offers in its constitution, in its declaration of aims and purposes, an ideal point of impact, however, it lacks the practical arrangements in order to translate its aims into reality."

Bosse bemoans the fact that the young German-American is brought up without any interest in Deutschamerikanertum. He states that his active interest was aroused by a trip to Germany, and continues: Translation: "But we cannot all go to Germany. But one thing we can do: create here an image of the great Bismarckian Spirit of Germany with its efficiency, its willingness to sacrifice, with its intelligence and with its capability."

July, p. 7, col. 1, "Call to those of German race!" issued by the Chicago Branch. Translation: "The world-storm is shaking mightily the German oak and is making her vibrate to the very roots, but nevertheless she stands firm in the storm and raging elements, here as well as over there." Complains of the lack of appreciation of German American achievements in the U. S. and continues. Translation: "And yet! Are we not ourselves to blame for this disdain?—Certainly, mistakes have been made in the past. If unified, we had shown our strength, had early enough been interested in national politics—don't misunderstand! in national not party politics—then things would certainly be in a different condition to-day. But why weep over lost opportunities? If we will only learn from that which we have neglected to do better in the future! * * * The Deutschtum of Chicago numbers in round figures 600,000 heads. Of these about 125,000 are entitled to vote. Shall their just interests and wishes indeed always be unrepresented?

In unity alone there is strength. A strong bond must unite all of us. And this bond is the German-American National Alliance. * * *

Every German in this great country is a 'Kultur-pioneer,' and has therefore to fulfill a noble task, which he may not shirk, if only on account of his love for the land of his choice. One can only love, if one gives his best. This is the real, last aim of the National Alliance."

Translation: "Not in an association upon which they look indulgently, which they tolerate patronizingly and, filled with political forbearance, allow even occasionally to have something to say, but into a firmly rooted power, which they at least consider of absolutely equal rank and treat as such, whose advice and voice prevail and whose anger they fear and avoid."

AGAINST THE WAR.

April, p. 3, col. 3, report of the action taken by the Reading Branch, dated Mar. 12, 1917: Translation: "The Reading Branch of the D. A. Z. B. issues the following declaration of principles: 'As a result of the critical position evoked by the breaking of diplomatic relations between the U. S. and Germany, the Reading Branch of the D. A. Z. B., in spite of its loyalty towards its adopted fatherland, unconditional and beyond all question, sees itself forced to take a very energetic stand against the slandering and indeed treasonable agitation of unscrupulous agents of the powers waging war against Germany, which has as its purpose the forcing of our country into the war under any circumstances.

Mindful of the fact that this intended war has no other purpose than to impose upon America the burden of the results of the European war of nations, which a bankrupt Europe cannot shoulder, we warn earnestly and protest vigorously against the entry into the gigantic conflict.

The intimate friendship extending over more than 130 years which unites our country with Germany, the indefatigable Kultur-work in the U. S. of the Germans who have immigrated, and their attainments in the development of this country, combined with their frank, peace-loving and cultural, but also self-sacrificing character ought to incite us to attempt to put all means into operation in order to avert war with the ancestral country of these people.

We believe in the freedom of the seas, and in the forcing of this right by our country, we would not only refrain from criticism, but we would gladly and self-sacrificingly support with our property and our blood every step in this direction and every procedure which aims at this, if this were to take place on an impartial and broad basis for the benefit of all nations without distinction, and not merely to the advantage of a single nation.

We believe that the majority of the inhabitants of our country, if informed of all the actual facts, would agree with us on all points and would raise a protest against war with Germany.

We believe in the Constitution of the United States, by which every citizen is assured of the right to give free expression to his opinion, and from this point of view, we take advantage of it, to issue the above declaration, and do this in spite of convulsive attempts of a press influenced by foreign countries, to brand such proclamations as unpatriotic and seditious.

Signed by the committee.

April, p. 5, col. 1 ff, article in English by the Rev. Gustavus Hiller of Indianapolis, entitled, "Shall we plunge into the maelstrom?" Argument against our entry into the war. Cites practically every argument which has been advanced by the Pro-German element.

Oct., p. 3, col. 1, editorial from the Philadelphia Tageblatt. States that when the U. S. were still neutral, the sons and daughters of German soil in America vowed solemnly to do all in their power to help the old home, but to-day, their hands are bound, and they are no longer able to help their brothers and sisters, because they, "by the will of a congress have become the enemy of our country". States that our country is now still calm but when the first wounded arrive from abroad, it is the general hope that the people will rise to avenge the slain and wounded. Are the Germans who worked with all their power to avert a war between the U. S. and Germany, or perhaps those "who unscrupulously conjured up this disaster" to fall prey to the wrath of the nation? It is necessary for the Americans of German tongue to keep up their organization during this period of enforced inactivity, cherish especially German song, through whose power later all distrust will be dispelled.

U. S. WAR AIMS.

Sep., p. 5, col. 1. ff, article in English, "Down with the Kaiser". Discusses at length the organization of the German government with the purpose of showing that "the war-cry: 'Down with the Kaiser!' may sound good to ears of the ardent believer in democracy, but it is nonsensical and misleading." The concluding paragraph: "In Conclusion we observe the fallacy of the cry, 'Down with the Kaiser'. The Kaiser's powers, his prerogatives, his authority, are much less than those of the President of the U. S. * * * With the Kaiser falls and fails the unity of the Empire, and nothing remains but a lot of 25 powerless, emasculated States. But that is exactly what Great Britain wants for its own economic reasons. And that is the intrinsic meaning of the improvised war cry: 'Down with the Kaiser'. We Americans who firmly believe that the will of the people is the will of God, should let all people work out their salvation. If Germany has wronged us or interfered with our international rights, it should be held strictly to account. But it is impossible to benefit the German people by punishing and abolishing the German Government."

June, p. 3, col. 2, Statement of Dr. Hexamer, that the G. A. A. had for years recommended universal military service, not in the sense of "German militarism" but according to the "Swiss" system, in order to develop the necessary discipline among the people, true manhood, and genuine love for our country.

GREAT BRITAIN.

April, p. 3, col. 1, poem, "Roger Casement". States that Casement's unpardonable sin was that he loved Ireland more than Albion, for the same sin the best blood of Ireland has flowed in streams. Condemns England for the method by which she attempts to gain the love of her people. Some day the "father" will perish through the hatred of his "children." "Shame upon the hangman, but fame for his victim! The future generations will tear asunder England's mask, but honor him, of whose heroism the last Irish harp will still sing."

April, p. 6, col. 4, article in English from the "Open Court", written by J. W. Pennypacker, entiled, "England's Illegal 'Blocade' strated first". Upon the seas at least "this fight of Germany's is our fight and the fight of all neutral nations".

Aug., p. 7, col. 3, report from the Pa. Group. Petition addressed to members of Congress for the purpose of establishing postal communication with Germany. The introduction contains the following: " * the postal communication with the old home was made very difficult—by the British mail robbers"

Sep., p. 4, col. 1, editorial, entitled "Learn to suffer without complaining", quotes from the "Colorado Herold": "* * * What can be done against all this huge heap of harrassing, which, for the greatest part, is carried on at the instigation of British agents." * * * During the civil war there was considerable hatred among the opposing camps, but not on the same huge scale as at present, on account of the "skillful British tricks".

October, p. 6, col. 1, report from the Kansas Branch: Translation, "In his annual report, President Frohwerk showed that we owe the present condition of our country to English influence in this country. We are, as our ambassador Page in London once said: 'Lead and governed by English influence!'"

FOOD CONSERVATION.

Aug., p. 8, col. 2. Translation of Mr. Hoover's request for publicity of food conservation. States that the German Alliance is not properly organized for such a purpose, but refers the request to the German-American newspapers, who will be only too glad to assist in reaching the German-Americans.

THE PRESS.

April, p. 4, col. 1, editorial, "A word of warning". Dr. Hexamer's experience shows that every utterance of German-Americans is picked up by the pro-ally press and twisted, therefore it is necessary to be on one's guard against the British spies.

April, p. 5, col. 1, repeats the same warning in English, but speaks of "alien agents" instead of "British spies".

April, p. 5, col. 2, editorial quoted from the "Beaver Falls Tribune" in English, attacks Great Britain's motives, and also states, as American newspapers are printing 'news' that comes directly from the hands of the British censor, it is absolutely unreliable. Great many newspapers subsidized in behalf of the war. "Even the government dare not trust information that comes through its accredited agents. President Wilson is forced to confirm every incident before he can form a just conclusion".

April, p. 6, col. 2, article in English, "Lying as a fine art", states that facts regarding the activities of a German raider are distorted by press. States also that the Allies sunk a passenger boat without warning, causing a loss of 26 lives. "We will see a fresh eruption of slander during the coming months. John Bull, beaten and bankrupt, wants to borrow more American money—and wants to drag Uncle Sam into the war to save his bacon. His only chance of doing it is through our reptile press, and Tories like Senator Lodge and Congressman Gardner.

Congress ought to investigate how much British money is spent in this country to subsidize hired liars of the Allied Press Propaganda."

May, p. 6, col. 1, states that State Senator Fellinger of Ohio has been misrepresented by the pro-British press.

June, p. 5, col. 2, article in English, "Stirring up the people", states that the subsidized press of our country has seized upon every accident in munition plants to raise an outcry about German plotters.

Aug., p. 4, col. 2, editorial urging the support of the German newspapers. Translation: "* * * the German newspaper is to-day for thousands of us the only comfort, it alone occasionally brings a bit of sunshine into the home of the German-American."

Aug., p. 5, col. 1, article in English, "Must". Newspapers under orders from some central point.

Oct., p. 4, col. 2, on editorial page, Urges unity among German-Americans. States that the interest in the German newspapers became active only after it became evident that the English daily newspapers with few exceptions, were systematically inciting and poisoning the people against their fellow citizens by means of inflammatory and lying articles.

LIBERTY LOAN.

Nov., p. 5, col. 3, statement, editorial page, in English and German regarding the second Liberty Loan. "* * * The U. S. is our country, and in lending the government money, we are lending it to ourselves. Some of the purposes to which the money is to be applied, such as the creation of a great merchant marine, which will enable us to dominate world trade after the coming peace, not even a pacifist could object to." * * * Discusses the financial advantages and concludes, "It is not merely a duty, it is an opportunity. Patriotism and sound business judgment both point to the same line of action."

Nov., p. 7, col. 2, statement that the Pennsylvania Branch had, at the request of Mr. McAdoo, recommended the purchase of Liberty Bonds.

Jan., p. 5, col. 4, letter from Mr. McAdoo, thanking the Association for its share in the Liberty Loan Campaign.

Jan., p. 6, col. 1, statement that the Cincinnati Branch had been congratulated by the Treasury Department, because they had disposed of $25,000 of Liberty Bonds.

DEFENSE OF THE EDITORS OF THE PHILADELPHIA "TAGEBLATT."

Oct., p. 7, col. 3, report of the Philadelphia Branch: Translation: "The Philadelphia Branch * * * has decided to take a stand in the "Tageblatt" affair and to support the accused not only in a moral way but also in a financial." Continues that appeals are to be sent to all other branches in the state and country to raise the sums necessary for the defense of the two editors accused of high-treason and conspiracy. The vice-president of the catholic associations assured them of their support. Translation: "One of the speakers explained why Werner and Darkow, as well as the "Tageblatt" had gotten into such a position. That Mr. Werner had sought in his editorials solely to further the peace movement. Both editors had never thought of committing high treason. That in the history of the American "Deutschtum" covering more than 230 years there had never been as yet a Benedict Arnold, and that there would never be such a one."

October, p. 8, col. 2, official appeal for help addressed to the various Branches.

GERMAN IN THE SCHOOLS.

The numerous articles dealing with this issue are all very much alike. The points cited in favor of German in the schools are about the following: cultural; practical value in the study of sciences, etc.; to combat the enemy successfully, it is necessary to be thoroughly familiar with German and all that is associated therewith; France, England, and Germany are stressing foreign languages, are we less clearsighted than they?; we shall again be on peaceful terms with Germany later—are we not cutting off our nose to spite our face by depriving the future generation of a valuable language?; according to President Wilson's statement, we are at war with the German government and not with the German people; German has an educational value. Some typical articles:

October, p. 1, col. 1. ff.

July, p. 4, col. 4, also p. 5, col. 1.

EMPLOYMENT BUREAU.

August, p. 8, col. 4, statement in English regarding the organization of an employment bureau for Germans, contains the following:

"Lists of firms that discriminate against German employees should be kept, and revised regularly. These lists should be read at stated intervals in the societies and churches, so that people of German blood may know those who hate and persecute them in order to patronize the others who are fair."

GERMAN-AMERICA AT THE PARTING OF THE WAYS.

By HENRIETTA BECKER VON KLENZE.

(Address delivered before the General German Language Society in New York, April 26, 1917.)

(Concluded.)

Much more difficult is the situation concerning German plastic art. Those teachers who are intent on acquainting their pupils with the architecture of France and England have plaster casts of cathedrals and secular structures in abundance at their command in our museums. On the other hand but few German-Americans have so far been found making possible a comprehension of German architecture by this means. The German Museum at Cambridge is almost the sole shining exception. But what is the situation in Chicago, in New York, in Milwaukee? Nothing, or next to nothing is to be found there. So that the widespread opinion obtains among Americans that Germany has unfortunately nothing to offer the beginner in architecture, in sculpture, or painting who would seek experience and development of taste in Europe. And before and after there prevails the idea among Anglo-Saxon Americanism that although Germany is "efficient," art and culture are to be found in England and France only! What is the situation among our German-American young people?—Do they know that not only the German cities Rothenburg and Nuremburg are fathomless sources of picturesque and poetic beauty, but that especially in recent times a revival of German art has taken place,—a revival aspiring not only upward to the loftiest heights, but also penetrating downward to the lowest classes, and aiming at the ennobling of daily life, by creating really beautiful forms for all objects entering into our daily needs. Do we ourselves know all this and are we intent on realizing it, and to let our young people participate in it? Something is already coming into being but more should be done. Stereopticon slides of modern as well as old German cities are now under preparation. An increasing number of people are exerting themselves to disseminate a knowledge of these facts by means of popular lectures. And those who take an interest in the young people must see to it that an appreciation of these values will dawn on them.

Just here it is where the German spirit should be introduced to complete the American conception of democracy. The German is not only anxious to see the common man placed on a level with those more favored before the law, and that he may hold the ballot in his hand;—these privileges of democracy he has indeed in mind, but they are to him not all of democracy. More valuable than these seem to him the democracy which makes the common man a partner in the ownership of those treasures that alone make life worth living. That his right to promotion in society and the adorning of daily life is not curtailed, that his spirit may soar aloft on the pinions of music and art beyond the misery of existence. This expresses itself in Germany in the form of endeavors such as the Free Popular Stage. In this people and artists have united in order to let the poorest laborer enjoy the productions of the great dramatists of all ages. By co-operation with the city authorities the crowning of the work has been accomplished. And just in these war-times especially no less a structure than the Popular Stage House in Berlin, costing millions and bearing as proud device the beautiful words: ART FOR THE PEOPLE.

If these efforts on the part of modern Germany to attain to a worthier life were made clear to our young German-Americanism, it could not only successfully refute the unfounded accusations (based on ignorance) against Germany that have grieved us all so bitterly, but it could in a way entirely different from that pursued hitherto aid in the new structure of the America of the future.

In order to do justice to this task the American of German descent needs yet something further. The German-American youth of school age should avail in much larger measure than heretofore of the teaching of German in our public schools—in our colleges as well as in our High Schools. That this instruction is often inadequate is a complaint that hits Germanism. If German parents send their children to the German classes they could prevail on the school authorities to adapt the instruction to their needs. And let no one imagine that the German-speaking child needs no further instruction in German. Experience teaches that German-speaking pupils are only too often the most ignorant in the realm of German history, not so much as to mention literature. The High School instruction would be the best possible completion of the German schools of which I spoke above, and which must be more or less of dilettantic nature, must inspire rather than really instruct and thoroughly educate. At present one hears from many sources the complaint that the German instruction in schools, colleges and universities suffers owing to the prevailing indifference and the general hatefulness toward Germanism. Many private schools have abolished it entirely; in High Schools the classes have shrunken, and in many large institutions the authorities have positively advised students against sharing the German instruction seeing there would soon be no more openings for German teachers to be found! Here German-Americanism could furnish relief. Send your children to the German classes! If the rest stay away the instruction can be so much the better arranged for them. Have them trained as German teachers, in order that German instruction may be given to the next generation better and with deeper comprehension of Germanism than has ever been the case! Thus our young will become qualified to take a practical part and give effectual help in constructing new America.

This now brings us at the close, to the question which young German-America itself perhaps puts to us: To what end all this? Why are we to know all this? What help can this give us, what help can it render our fatherland—America? Let us not be misled by the bitterness of the moment to reply: "Of what concern is America to me? I am a German; German Kultur only interests me!" No, this would only completely estrange the young people from us. Youth looks forward not backward. This is the country of their future. And for their sakes we must eschew all bitterness no matter how justifiable. For their sake we must apply the words of the famous Greek to ourselves and even enlarge on them: "We are here not to join others in hating but to join in loving," and in building up. In order to aid in the reconstruction, in order to construe our work and carry it forward better than heretofore therefore our German-American youth must be schooled, in order that it may contribute that which it is particularly qualified to contribute with the greatest success and benefit.

That the state, America of the future, will not bear a one-sided Anglo-Saxon impress must be evident to all. From all lands the millions of peope who wished to build up on new foundations streamed in here. Although it outwardly bears the form it received at the outset, the inner (web and woof) make-up of it, is more complicated than that of any single race. Each will contribute his mite and it is plainly evident that some little time will elapse before the structure "thickens" to its final shape. Whatever the rest may then have contributed as their particular part, one part shall originate from Germanism: This trait, of striving for the beautiful, the good and the true, not from considerations of utility, but from an appreciation of these in themselves. This ideal, impressed on American life, could then lead to a great, to an original art, to that which we have thus far lacked so completely.

I would close with the words of the recently deceased Harvard Professor Münsterberg, who was himself a champion of, possibly a martyr to the German ideal in America,—the words he speaks to German-Americans saying: The new world needs your distinguishing talents and your particular strength. No one can, like you, put in living commanding form the deepest longing of the times, no other has so much to offer for the morrow and the day after, you, who have brought your German legacy across the ocean, your hour has struck at last—oh that it may not pass unimproved!"

ENOUGH!

By VICTOR G. WICKE, Bellaire, Ohio.

Long ago I swore an oath!
I kept it faithfully and will do so,
Even now, when yearning and bitter sorrow
Are breaking my heart without mercy.

I am loyal to you my own fatherland!—
We contracted the most sensible of marriages;
As a reward for my hard labor
I found in your arms prosperity.

I had indeed a charming youthful love,
But that I left in my far native home
When aspiration drove me to a foreign land,
From the still harnor to the storm's confusion.

And if I often too have seen in dreams
What once was the delight of my youthful heart,
Duty has controlled my wishes
And I have faithfully kept my oath.

But now my new fatherland?—Ah, now!
My soul today beholds you with wonder,
For flesh of my flesh is slashed to tatters,
By a mob drunken with envy and hatred.

A greater sacrifice was never made
By any heart than to refuse help
When its nation's blood called to heaven,
And nothing can further increase my anguish.

And let this be enough! The oath is sacred,
Therefore it should not demand
What is so unholy—I shall not help
To cut to pieces the nation from which I sprung.

If that be treason, it is inhumanity
Which so pronounces it, without shame, in
The name of the law!—
Let come what will!—I am prepared!
Here stand I and can do no other!—Amen!

DUTIES OF ALLIANCE SECRETARIES.

It is certainly a very deplorable yet undeniable fact that in many city and county organizations of the alliance the secretary does not sufficiently realize the great and high responsibility placed on him by his office, that he accepts it partly under constraint and unwillingly as the case is so often among Germans, and therefore after attending to the absolutely necessary business in a perfunctary manner considers his duties fully discharged.

This circumstance prompts my present article, and I wish to designate it as a bugle call to the secretaries of all the societies of the National Alliance. This is one of the most dangerous defects that gnaw at the vitals of our Alliance and is one of the causes why it is not even approximately in development and strength what one may and must naturally expect of such an Alliance of German-American citizens of the United States.

Every secretary should make it his sacred duty to devote himself with all eagerness and seriousness, wholeheartedly and cheerfully to the active participation in the beautiful task of building Germantown here in this country into one great and united whole. Not into an alliance to be looked down to with the smile of toleration, or one that is suffered with patronizing mien and which is allowed in an ebullition of political forbearance to even participate in discussions, but an alliance of firmly-rooted power, which is considered and treated as a full equal whose advice and voice are domineering and whose anger is feared and shunned. Many of our secretaries will lay the question before me, in how far his insignificant help could contribute to the realization of such an exalted aim, and these of little faith and of much fear of whom there are unfortunately a large number, I would remind of the old latin sentence: Multum in parvo. There is much in the little things. It means much for the success of our undertaking and the prosperity of our alliance if the entire influence of the officers, of each officer especially that of the secretary, which may be comparatively insignificant in the aggregate of the National Alliance is fully and completely exerted in the local organization. If by virtue of such influence in its smaller sphere the but too frequently partial unity is completely restored and preserved, if it succeeds in creating interest for our great cause, for the unselfish, undivided devotion to the realization of the ideal task, that task which should be first in the heart of every German-American, namely the creation of a great, united, German-Americanism that is conscious of its power in this our beloved new homeland, then has such a secretary in his limited sphere done more for the welfare of the whole Alliance than he could have accomplished had he wasted his strength and labor on a distant and to him in part at least unfamiliar field.

The creation of such an ideal alliance, however, can be accomplished by one means only, that is by centralizing all individual efforts for the accomplishment of our purpose and by their unconditional subordination to the decisions amanating from this point of centralization, namely our national executive. Only if all, even the smallest threads are concentrated on one point and there arranged and combined into one complete network, which adjusts itself to the conditions and circumstances then prevailing, can we hope to advance. United we are strong, divided, on the other hand, powerless.

It is therefore the chief duty of each secretary to see that in his alliance the instructions of the state executive are obeyed to the letter, just as the directorate of the state alliance receives its instructions from the national executive and puts them in practice.

It must again and again be impressed on each alliance that it is not an isolated society and as such existing solely for its own weal, but a link in a strong chain the firm holding together of which depends in the first place on whether the individual members are still entitled to membership or not, and the strengthening and preservation of which must ever take precedence of the welfare of one's own alliance. This is not to be interpreted as saying that the city and county alliance is not to devote every possible effort to its own completion and development. The stronger the links, the stronger also the whole chain, provided all the links insert themselves harmoniously and at the proper place.

It requires an able and willing man to do this work as it should be done and a field of immense possibilities awaits the secretary who really wants to work. One of the first requirements however in order to do efficient work on this field is the unconditional necessity that each secretary have an intimate and personal knowledge of the real essence and being of the national alliance, of its aims and purposes, and that he be absolutely familiar with the privileges it confers and the obligations it imposes, that he know what occupies the attention of the Alliance at present, what it has accomplished in the past and what hopes and plans it associates with a brighter future. Knowledge of these things is strictly speaking a self-evident assumption, yet much sinning occurs in this regard and it cannot be too emphatically urged that each secretary enlarge his knowledge to the highest possible point of perfection. This knowledge he should impress on the members whenever he has an opportunity to do so, he should at every meeting of the alliance present with relative explanations and comments the affairs of the State or National Alliance and insist on the thorough and prompt disposal of the same, he should furthermore, last but not least, see to it that the Bulletin has the largest possible circulation not only among the members of the alliance but also among the Germans of his territory generally—this monthly issued newspaper being the mouthpiece of the organized German-Americanism and the only pure source out of which every German-American can draw correct information in regard to the work and aims, the successes and the unfortunately often unavoidable failures of the alliance. Adherents of our alliance will receive new inspiration for the good work by reading the Bulletin, for those however who still stand aloof from us it will often bring the frequently much and earnestly desired information as to what our Central Alliance really is and the high ideal aims it seeks to realize.

Among many, many Germans, especially among the better classes, the opinion still prevails that the National Alliance is a creation of the brewery-owners and subservient to them with skin and hair, body and soul. Such a conception should be opposed by the utmost exertions and that (to repeat) through the agency of the secretaries. It is true our National Alliance has ever energetically fought the introduction of prohibition, but from the sole reason that the prohibition measures so far proposed and in part carried and tested have shown that they aggravate the evil of the drinking habit, banishing it into secret and filthy backrooms and haunts, in which it exerts an infinitely more baneful influence on the nation than when, as in the case at the present time, under government control where it can be closely watched over. A further factor, that induced the Alliance to take a repelling attitude against prohibition or against every other law which endangers the personal liberty of the citizen, is the unshakable faith in the constitution, which ever guarantees to us this liberty, fully and unimpaired and the faithful vindication of true democracy and freedom for our great, beloved adoptive fatherland.

This only, united with the efforts to implant in the hearts and souls of our fellow citizens of American descent everything that in our old fatherland was good, beautiful and noble, this alone and nothing else is the high aim for which our alliance is earnestly striving.

Truly a charming task for every secretary this, the dissemination of such information among his racial brethren and to work by example and encouragement with his fellow-members in order that they too may consecrate themselves to this beautiful work with full devotion and enthusiasm. Work like this is only properly assumed and carried on by the secretaries would bring us thousands of well-to-do individual members. And, as already stated, the Bulletin constitutes one of the greatest helps in the performance of this task. Each secretary should also note carefully whether all the members of his alliance receive invitations to all the meetings and functions, and to ascertain who regularly responds to these invitations. In all notices in writing to the members the opportunity should be availed of to keep alive and stimulate interest in the Alliance by adding appropriate reminders and suggestions.

If I add that a good secretary should keep his books, lists of membership as well as correspondence always in perfect order I believe I shall have mentioned all his duties.

To discharge all these duties wholly and consciously means work, even much work. If, however, this work is crowned with success, which it will be if performed cheerfully and eagerly, then this success will be the best reward for such sincere efforts. But especially at this present time of unutterable sorrow and grief for Germanism is it a comfort and cause of satisfaction to remember that one has contributed his small part for the promotion of the harmony and closer union, so necessary among the German-Americans themselves. Never again will the seed fall on such fruitful ground and bear such abundant fruit as at present. Therefore it cannot be sufficiently emphasized that an efficient secretary can work wonders along the lines. He is the fundamental condition on which the outward development of every alliance hinges. His work in combination with that of other efficient officers and coadjutors builds the foundation on which a strong national alliance builds and develops itself to the pride and honor of German-Americanism and for the benefit and welfare of our beloved adoptive fatherland and all its citizens.

"PERSISTENCY"—THE WATCHWORD.

Alliance of German Choir Directors Issues a Timely Call—Urges Incessant Use of the German Song and Regular Attendance on Rehearsals.

The Alliance of German Choir Directors of America which has its headquarters in New York has issued the following call, the contents of which speak for itself: In view of the present serious situation the Alliance of German choir directors of America takes the liberty to address the following cordial yet earnest appeal to all singers. Just at this juncture every Alliance should exert itself to hold out manfully and to continue its rehearsals. Wherever the director begins the vacation to which he is entitled the members can come together and cultivate fellowship and good-feeling by singing their songs. Every singer should consider it his duty in honor not to neglect a rehearsal but rather to continue his exertions with joy and love for the weal of his alliance. Our government places no hindrances in our way. Every singer, whether he be citizen or alien can attend to the affairs of his alliance unhindered, insofar as he obeys the laws. There is therefore no reason for omitting rehearsals or festivities. Wherever, owing to heavy financial burdens, the giving of larger concerts has become too arduous simpler functions might suffice to preserve everything that is beautiful and noble and finds expression in the practice of song. Singers! the priceless treasure of the German people is at stake: "The German Song." This has been and still is the constant companion of every one from the cradle to the grave. It enhances our joy, it soothes our pain, unites our wishing, feeling and thinking. In it we have a legacy that required centuries of development. It was entrusted to the [illegible] of the new world where it has grown to a mighty tree. We must apply [illegible] particle of strength to preserve the life-energy of this green oak and to guarantee its continued existence. Therefore bravely to work! Let us all, leader, choir and press harmoniously and energetically work together. Then will our song continue to be a strong rock!

With singer-greetings.

THE ALLIANCE OF GERMAN-AMERICAN
CHOIR DIRECTORS OF AMERICA,
Dr. NIC. I. ETSENHEIMER, President.
CARL FIQUE, Vice President.
RICHARD VOSSLEY, Secretary.

They are having lively times in the Hamilton Alliance of the Ohio State Alliance. Various reports from the National Alliance were read from the "Bulletin." These dwelt on the instruction at school and the better use of the German literature in the libraries that should be exercised. It was further urged that more meetings for discussion should in some way be planned, that the alliance was really organized for the purpose of cultivating the good, the beautiful and noble and for the statement and discussion of the most important questions of the day.

LEARN TO SUFFER WITHOUT COMPLAINT.

The American citizen of German descent is obliged to swallow a great deal these days. If he goes into the moving picture theater it is likely to happen that he sees moving pictures in which the Germans are presented as beasts in human form, whereas he knows positively that they are not such. In the newspapers it is difficult to disinguish fiction from truth. Public speakers love to indulge in slander. The Anglo-Saxon neighbors manifest a hostile appearance, a proof that the persecution which has been undertaken against everything which is German is bearing fruit. It has altogether the appearance as though hand in hand with warring against the enemy there must also go the slandering of the enemy. Well, we have been accustomed to this ever since the campaign years, only the same means are being used in a more vulgar manner than in campaigns. But certainly one can make war against a country or a people without slandering it. The President himself has stated that we are not making war against the German people and he has warned against persecution. This warning is being continually ignored. There are sad times before us at present and there is nothing left for us to do except what some one once said upon his dying bed, namely, learn to suffer without complaint. Conrad Nies writes concerning the same matter in the Colorado Herold:

"What can be done against this terrible mass of persecution which for the most part has been set agoing by British agents, whose activity must eventually have its effect even with the more reasonable portion of the American Citizenship in a harmful manner?

At present unfortunately nothing.

That is very sad but true.

To all the complaints, which are only too well justified, we can only repeat what the well-known American gentleman said of war, namely that war is hell.

From this hell, whose sufferings we are feeling every day in the greatest measure, there is at present no salvation. These sufferings are always present where war with its bloody murderous hand lets loose the spirits of darkness and spreads hatred, lies, slander, contempt and similar creatures of the night among the hysterical humanity. Even the history of the Civil War can tell us of similar things though the hatred between the opposing parties did not quite reach the astounding proportions which it is now reaching through the skilful British manipulation. But even at that time very often right and wrong stood opposed to each other in striking contrast and in the most bitter hostility and the circumstance that enmity and slander even stepped in between members of the same family, and the entire war was so to speak a battle between the same blood, a contest of brother against brother, a tearing and dismemberment of the same race, must have given hostilities at that time an equally unnatural, yes, a more unnatural coloring than we German-Americans experience in the present war.

This may be a comfort though a weak and ignoble one.

At present we cannot take a hand in conditions which the war has disordered, nor call a halt to the wheel of slander which daily rolls over us. According to the law of great compensations, to which the individual as well as races are subject, when finally peace is restored, then also this confusion of the emotions will again be regulated. Then all those who purposely used slander and contempt as a weapon with which they sought to beat down our good right and our good reputation in the mire will receive the well earned measure of their punishment.

At the present it rests with us to preserve quiet and dignity toward this unheard of monster of poisoned tongue and hateful slander and to keep ourselves undisturbed on the side of truth. Only in this way can we as those who are continually hated, suspected and slandered preserve a sure poise and an upright course.

The words of the patient and silent man which we have used as a heading for this article shall serve us as our guide.

"DOWN WITH THE KAISER!"

(Printed in English.)

ERNST A. WEIER.

The Government of the United States has declared war on Germany, and it qualified the declaration with the statement that this war is directed particularly against the German Government, and not against the German people. In fact, it is indicated that the German people will in the end be benefited by the war, as it is waged and will be continued until "German Autocracy" and the "Prussian Militarism" is wiped out.

It seems doubtful that the German people will appreciate these benefits of the war. The people might prefer to work out its own salvation. But Uncle Sam is not going to ask the German people about the matter, but is going to liberate it nolens volens.

The bellicose part of the American press has with characteristic sagacity translated the American war arms into an audacious war cry: "Down with the Kaiser!"

The writer is constitutionally an opponent of monarchial institutions. I have used many reams of white paper in writing against monarchism in general and against the German Emperor in particular. But doing so, I never had the German Emperor personally in mind, but rather the institution which he personified as King of Prussia.

Judging, however, from the tenor of the press, the grievance of the United States is an entirely personal one against "the Kaiser." He is to be held responsible for the violation of the rights of the United States, he and his dynasty must go. With him, of course, the "autocratic" monarchy falls and the people of Germany are to be blessed with the democratization of the empire. As one newspaper put it editorially: "The German people could simplify the proceedings by inaugurating a revolution, but as the people seem to be not quite ready to act, the task is incumbent upon the United States."

Altogether this appears to be a discrimination against the peoples of the Allied Nations. For they, too, have their monarchies and their monarchs, of whom they would like to be rid of and will get rid of at some time or the other.

There is, for instance, His Majesty, King George of Great Britain. Of course, as a ruler he don't amount to much, and Great Britain must keep him because she doesn't exactly know what to do with him. As a mere ornament he is really too expensive. And there is the King of Italy, the King of Roumania, old Peter of Servia and the King of Montenegro. And what's the matter with His Majesty the Mikado? And our special protege, the people of Belgium, is suffering with a monarchy which, with its three-class elective system is not a whit better than the Prussian Monarchy. If one listens to the American press, it makes a noise as if all the world, with the exception of Germany and Austria, is a delightful democracy, notwithstanding all these relics of feudalism.

The ding-dongy noise has befuddled the minds of many Americans regarding the political government of Germany. A nation at war with another nation makes a serious mistake if it underrates or misunderstands its adversary. The war cry: "Down with the Kaiser!" may sound good to the ears of the ardent believer in democracy, but it is nonsensical and misleading.

These thoughts induce me to try to give our readers a short sketch of the political government of Germany. I am prone to admit that I have studied the same for the purpose of finding its vulnerable points. If I were a German citizen I would be a staunch advocate and supporter of a German Social Democracy.

THE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE EMPIRE.

Germany is not an Autocracy. It is not governed by an absolute ruler or sovereign of uncontrolled authority, which is the criterion of an "Autocracy" in its objectionable meaning. (Of course, one may speak of a state as an "Autocracy," if such a state in its independence of other states enjoys the possession of the right of self-government with the ability to vindicate it if it be called in question. That is the position of Germany, but it is also the proud position of our great Republic.)

Germany is even not a Monarchy. Germany is a Union (Bund) of 25 kingdoms, duchies, principalities and free cities. (The free cities are to all intents and purposes "Republice.")

This Union, as well as the office of the Kaiser, existed before the present empire was created. It was known as the "North German Confederation." In this Confederation the King of Prussia filled the presiding office. The Southern States of Germany were not members of the Confederation, but had defensive and offensive alliances with the same.

In the United States it took a bloody war to make a "Nation" out of what was considered by the South simply as a republic of republics.

Germany became a United Nation in a much simpler way. During the German-Franco War of 1870, the Southern states Bavaria, Wurtemberg, Baden and a part of Hesse became, by special treaties, members of the Confederation. It took only a Federal statute, passed by the Reichstag December 10, 1870, to change the name of the Confederation to "German Empire," and the title of "The Presiding Officer" to German Emperor." Thus the unity of the German Nation became an accomplished fact. Automatically the laws, rights and obligations of the Confederation were assumed by the German Empire. The King of Prussia ,accepted the title "German Emperor" at Versailles, January 18, 1871, but his constitutional position underwent no organic change.

THE CONSTITUTION OF THE EMPIRE.

The German Empire is a Federal State just like the United States—not a monarchy. Its Constitution is of the same type as that of the United States. The Constitution declares the purpose of this Federal State to be the protection of the territory and law of the Union and the promotion of the welfare of the German people.

The Constitution provides for the legislative powers of the Union or Empire. It creates the Presiding Office with the title of "German Emperor." It creates the two legislative branches: the Bundesrat (Federal Council and the Reichstag). It contains provisions relating to tariffs, commerce, post-office, telegraph, navy and navigation, army and war, finances, settlements of disputes, diplomatic service, etc. The Constitution is amendable by Federal statute which, as all other Federal statutes, requires the consent of the Bundesrat and the Reichstag. This makes the German Constitution much more flexible than the Constitution of the United States. Whether that is preferable, is a disputable question.

German citizenship is inherent in citizenship of one of the States, but can also be obtained by becoming a citizen in one of the protectorates or in the provinces. Alsace-Lorraine is not a State, but is governed as a province. Its citizens, however, are on the same basis as the citizens of the States. They are represented in the Reichstag.

Every German male citizen who has finished his 25th year, is entitle equal vote, and every such person can be elected. The ballot is secret. elections, of course, are held under the election laws of the respective S which differ very much.

THE BUNDESRAT (FEDERAL COUNCIL).

The German Constitution ordains: "The federal legislation is exercis the Bundesrat and the Reichstag. The concurrence of Majority votes o bodies shall be necessary and sufficient for a federal statute."

The members of the Bundesrat are classed as diplomatic representa from the different States of the Empire. They act under instructions f their respective States. The States are entitled to different numbers of in the Bundesrat, and can send that many delegates, but the delegates only as a unit.

The votes on the Bundesrat are as follows:

Population 1910.		Votes
40,165,219	Kingdom of Prussia	17
6,887,291	Kingdom of Bavaria	6
4,806,661	Kingdom of Saxony	4

Total area of Empire, 208,826 square miles.

In a limited sense the Bundesrat may be compared with the United St Senate. But, in addition to its legislative powers, it enjoys also certain ministrative and judicial powers. The Constitution gives the Bundesrat p cedence in position over the Emperor, that is, the Bundesrat is more import than the Emperor. In executive capacity it acts with the Emperor in the declaration of war, and in making peace, alliances or treaties.

THE REICHSTAG.

The Reichstag is the House of Representatives of the German people. It 397 Members, apportioned among the States according to population and cording to districts. (Gerrymandering is a well-known political expediency Germany, which accounts for the small number of seats occupied by the S Democrats as compared with their number of votes.) The members are repre sentatives of the whole people (not of the States) and are not bound by i dates or instructions. It is not necessary that a member reside in the distr in which he is elected. Thus it happens that the great party leaders are of candidates in several districts at the same time, so as to assure their electi If a candidate is elected in several districts at the same time, he chooses district which he want to represent. The other districts then proceed to another election. Under this system there are no noncompoops and no pork barrel politicians in the Reichstag. All parties are represented by their ablest leaders.

The legislative period of the Reichstag is five years. During this term it may be dissolved by the Bundesrat with the concurrence of the Emperor. Then a new election must be held within 60 days and the new Reichstag assembled within 90 days after the dissolution. Such dissolutions are very rare, because the Social-Democrats always come back in larger numbers, much to the discomforture of the conservatives and the clericals.

The Reichstag passes upon the credentials of its members, regulates its proceedings and discipline, elects its own officers. Proceedings are public. Statutes require three readings, resolutions only one. The Reichstag has the right of initiative in legislaton. Members are pad 3,000 marks (about $700) per year and are entitled to free transportation on the railroads during the session.

The Reichstag has the absolute right to grant and refuse money appropriations. The Government cannot act in anything requiring money for it. In this way the Reichstag has the greatest control possible over the Government.

THE GERMAN EMPEROR (THE "KAISER.")

The Constitution says that the presiding officer with the title of German Emperor, appertains to the crown of Prussia. This means that the King of Prussia is the hereditary president of the German Empire, just as our President is the elected President of the United States. The term, "German Emperor," is a mere title. He is not "the Emperor of Germany," which would signify a monarchial position. Among the kings and monarchs of Germany, the King of Prussia is just one among them. As Emperor he does not rule or reign, but "presides" over the destinies of Germany.

The Emperor has absolutely no legislative powers. He is not a member of the Bundesrat and he has no vote in the same. He cannot propose a law. He has no right of veto. He must promulgate every statute made by the legislative bodies.

The Emperor summons, opens, prorogues and closes the Bundesrat and the Reichstag.

He appoints the Imperial Chancellor (see below).

The Emperor is Supreme Commander of the army and navy, just like the President of the United States. The German term is "Kriegsherr." One of the sagacious cub reporters on a New York newspaper translated this literally with "War Lord," an expression somewhat offensive to the American mind. The translation is wrong, because even as commander of the army his authority is restricted. The peace footing of the army, for instance, is determined by the legislative bodies, in which he has no voice. The German army is a single one, made up of contingents from the different States. The Emperor appoints the highest commanding officer of each contingent, and all officers who command more than a contingent, but the other officers of a contingent are appointed by the sovereign of the State furnishing that contingent. Then there are certain conventions between the Empire and the States, which restrict his powers still further. For instance, the Bavarian army is a unit by itself, and comes under command of the Emperor only upon mobilization for war.

The navy of the Empire is a unit and the States have nothing to do with it. The Emperor controls this organization, but even here his will is not always law, because for funds he depends upon the Reichstag. You can't build warships unless you have money. The Reichstag holds the purse-strings. The Emperor cannot declare war except in conjunction with the Bundesrat.

In the appointment of Supreme Court judges, diplomatic and other high federal officers, the Emperor consults with committees of the Bundesrat. While these committees do not control his choice, the result is always an agreement.

THE IMPERIAL CHANCELLOR.

Is appointed by the Emperor and removable by the Emperor at his pleasure. He has been called the responsible proxy of the irresponsible Emperor. He is the head of the administration of the Empire. As has been stated, it is obligatory upon the Emperor to promulgate the laws of the nation. This is done by ordinance published in the Imperial Gazette. All ordinances must be countersigned by the Chancellor to be valid. Most Imperial departments, such as Foreign Affairs, Interior, Naval, Railroads, etc., are subordinate to the Chancellor. The heads of these departments are known as Secretaries of State, for instance, Mr. Zimmermann is at present Secretary of State Foreign Affairs, but subordinate to the chancellor. There are, however, some Imperial Boards, which act independently of the Chancellor, as the Imperial Insurance Board, having charge of the celebrated German accident, sickness and old-age insurance system.

The Chancellor is also Chairman of the Bundesrat, but in his capacity he is not the representative of the Empire—not the Emperor, but a delegate of Prussia.

He is not controlled by party government or by majority in the legislative bodies. His acts are only bound by strict obedience to the law, but he must account yearly to the legislative bodies for the disbursements of all funds of the Empire.

THE SUPREME COURT OF THE EMPIRE.

has its seat in Leipsic, and is the Court of last resort. Under regulations by Imperial statutes many courts have Imperial jurisdiction.

The courts of Germany have no right to pass upon the constitutionality of the subject matter of an Imperial statute because there are no constitutional restrictions upon such subject matter. Any statute, properly proposed, discussed and voted for by both legislative bodies and properly promulgated by the Emperor, is unassailable. Germany knows no judicial legislation. The will of the people, as expressed by the legislation, cannot be defeated by the judiciary. But the courts can pass upon administrative ordinances and decide whether they are in consonance with the statutes. This is another check upon the Emperor and the Chancellor.

THE INDIVIDUAL STATES.

The federal statutes are binding upon the States as well as upon the citizens. They supersede all State laws. But no State can be deprived of the special privileges guaranteed by the Constitution. It seems impossible for any State to withdraw voluntarily from the Empire.

All States are encouraged to make their own constitutions. But there are still a few without constitutions. The story of the failure of the two Mecklenburgs, for instance, in not having a constitution, is more melodramatic than dramatic. The Kingdom of Prussia has a rather undemocratic constitution. The King of Prussia (or the German Emperor) is not so much at fault. More than twenty years ago (not just now, under the stress of circumstances, as some American papers are trying to make believe) he has personally advocated a change in the obnoxious three-class elective system. While his powers as King of Prussia are great, they are not sufficient to force this. But that story cannot be a part of this sketch.

IN CONCLUSION.

we observe the fallacy of the cry, "Down with the Kaiser". The Kaiser's powers, his perogatives, his authority, are much less than those of the resident of the United States. The mass of the German People might prefer a Republic to an Empire, but such a Republic cannot be established by simply "Downing the Kaiser". With the Kaiser falls and fails the unity of the Empire, and nothing remains but a lot of 25 powerless, emasculated States. But that is exactly what Great Britain wants for its own economic reasons. And that is the intrinsic meaning of the improvised war cry: "Down with the Kaiser!" We American who firmly believe that the will of the people is the will of God, should let all people work out their own salvation. If Germany has wronged us or interfered with our international rights, it should be held strictly to account. But it is impossible to benefit the German people by punishing and abolishing the German Government.

RIGHTS OF CITIZENS.

The war does not annul the constitutional rights of the citizens. They have also during the war the right to come together and to give expression to their opinion on questions of the day. Freedom of speech is guaranteed by the constitution. It also protects the right of petition. Every citizen has the right to go to congress or to the president with grievances or wishes. The attorney Henry Weinberger, by request of the Union against militarism, has issued a legal dissertation for the public in which there are also contained valuable delineations for those who plan meetings and for public speakers.

The immediate question: "What are treasonable utterances?" Weinsberger answers by saying that per se there are no treasonable utterances. The expression of an opinion, even though it provokes anger and public displeasure and justifies the suspicion that the speaker is at heart a traitor does not under the constitution and laws of the United States suffice for a verdict of guilty. With citation of cases and decisions it is shown that an overt act must be perpetrated in order to commit the crime of treason. The law knows no treasonable utterances. The Alien and Seditions Act of 1798 disappeared after having been in force two years. In the original draft of the Espionage Bill pending in Congress the Postmaster General was to have authority to exclude from transmission articles of treasonable, anarchistic or inflammatory character, but the House struck out the word "inflammatory," and unless it is restored in conference there will be no sedition law in the United States. Speeches and publications in which the abrogation of this or that law is advocated and are to this intent addressed to Congress, may not even then be challenged when it concerns laws that have been enacted during the war and for the purpose of conducting warfare. The police has no authority to forcibly press into meetings held on private property without an order from court; neither is it authorized to disband assemblies no matter whether they are held on private or public property, nor has it authority to prohibit street meetings or prevent a man from speaking so long as he says nothing that constitutes cause for charges. In cities having an ordinance requiring permission in order to conduct street meetings, the attorney counsels compliance with such ordinance, adding however that the police has no right to refuse giving permission. The circulation of literature on the street or in assemblies cannot be legally prohibited by the police. In cities in which dropping paper on the street is forbidden by ordinance not the one who hands out circulars, but the one who throws it away makes himself liable to punishment. This opinion is supported by citation of court decisions from various parts of the country.

In closing the legal dissertation quotes many opinions and decisions opposed to the police in cases where they had exceeded their authority. For instance a decision of William J. Gaynor, Judge of the New York Supreme Court, is quoted in which it is shown that the police has no other task than that of making arrests for the violation of law. A citizen, it says, has the same authority to arrest a policeman who breaks the law as vice-versa. The policemen are engaged simply to do police duty for the citizen and their rights are not enlarged thereby. A decision by Judge Samuel Seabury of the New York court of appeals is quoted in which it is stated that policemen have no authority to institute search in houses or clubs unless in possession of an order from court, The suspicion that Violations of law are taking place there does not give them authority. It is understood, as a matter of course, that in the present critical times everyone imposes on himself that reserve which the situation commands, but he need not therefore forego his constitutionally guaranteed rights. Nor should he do so. It is not necessary to be a coward in order to be a loyal citizen.

German Holidays.

(From the Seattle, Washington, German Press.)

The Germanism of Chicago is not quite clear whether in this year the great German holidays should be celebrated or in consideration of the political situation should be omitted. Mr. G. F. Hummell, a well-known German of Chicago, writes:

"With great regret I read the news that the National German-American Alliance and the Low German Guilds are going to omit for this summer the customary national celebrations in consideration of present conditions. According to my view, this mistake can never be remedied.

"If this happens to the green wood what shall happen from the dead wood?

"We can hardly forgive the National German-American Alliance and the Low German Guilds for taking steps at this very time which may be very fateful for the future of the societies."

On the other hand, it has been pointed out that public celebrations of Germanism, although, of course they are held within the limits of loyalty, might give rise to unpleasant occurrences. It is further pointed out that German-Americans can cherish the feeling of solidarity just as well through celebrations in small circles.

Mr. Hummell apparently means by public celebrations the organization of celebrations on a large scale in which the entire Germanism of the city take part. That kind of celebration it would be at least unwise to permit. Such celebrations would be regarded by anyone, and rightly so, as demonstrations of Germanism, and for this the time does not seem to be especially propitious. In such celebrations, there are usually speeches and it is very difficult, if not impossible under present conditions to give a speech which would not give rise to misunderstandings on one side or the other.

On the other hand, it is inconceivable why the societies should not celebrate their usual picnics and if the Low German Guilds of Chicago give this up this summer they are manifesting a greater tenderness than is really necessary. In New York and Milwaukee, the societies are permitting their excursions as in former times, and one takes as little offense at these excursions as at a Sunday School picnic.

With the celebration of German holidays and with the demonstrations of the National German-American Alliance it is certainly different. What has been said above in regard to the public celebrations on a large scale applies to these celebrations more than to others. As a matter of principle, there cannot even now be any objection to these celebrations; but practically there are many objections. The National Alliance and all the organizations allied with it are by all means patriotic American Societies. They always were that and they are that still. But officially, people do not want to know anything today about Germanism and its ideals. Whether that is justified or not is immaterial; the fact remains that we are at war with Germany and that Germany is characterized as the citadel of autocracy which is inimical to freedom. Perhaps this opinion is mistaken, but it is now the official opinion, and we have no ground to protest against it at this time. Let us be true to ourselves and let us not push ourselves in anywhere where we are not gladly seen.

JUDGE NIPPERT CONCERNING THE GERMAN PRESS.

Judge Alfred K. Nippert, of Cincinnati, has addressed a letter to Roscoe C. Mitchell, of Washington, the Secretary of the American League for National Unity. The letter concerns referendum which the league is conducting concerning the question whether foreign language newspapers which are published in the United States should be compelled by law to print their news items as well as their leading articles also in English translation. Mr. Nippert's answer is this:

My dear Mr. Mitchell: I am in receipt of your letter of June 21 in which you ask me to take part in a referendum which you are conducting among the members of the league concerning the question whether congress should pass a law requiring foreign language newspapers to publish along with the text all leading articles, expressions of opinion and news, which in any way have to do with the government of the United States, a complete translation in English.

I have given this matter considerable attention ever since our country went into war again the Central Powers. I have studied a number of German newspapers but up until the present time I have not found either in their news items or in their leading articles any expression which could be regarded as opposed to the spirit of our institutions or as containing even a breath of disloyalty against our nation. Naturally my investigations are limited, but if you know of such expressions in any number of our press, it would please me greatly if you would send me copies of these newspapers or would inform me of them, in order that I might inform myself fully on the matter.

As I have found in the German press absolutely nothing which could not withstand any test of loyalty toward our flag and nation, I am absolutely opposed to the American League for National Unity starting such a movement or taking part in such a movement as is described in your letter.

Major General Wood said in a letter to me not long ago:

This country has room only for true Americans, for an Americanism which is not measured by the length of time a person has been in this country but according to the spirit which is manifested.

I am in favor of any law which would empower congress to deny to a paper the right of the mails, whether such paper be published in English, German, Italian, Russian or any other language, if it reflects opinions which are contrary to our institutions or disseminates disloyalty towards our land and flag.

To require alongside of the foreign language a complete English translation is a burden which in the present situation cannot be met. The government has ample means to inform itself of the contents of all foreign newspapers, but to place this burden upon the newspapers would amount to their confiscation.

The latter half of your letter to me says: The loyalty of ninety-seven per cent of the foreign born American citizens is beyond question and is not doubted, but the League for National Unity in its desire to do justice to these loyal citizens cannot lose sight of the fact that there is a small and evil minority which should be put under restraint.

To deprive ninety-seven per cent of their rights because possibly three per cent are bad appears to me as though we were to deprive our citizens of the right of speech and of assembly merely because a small percentage of our citizens used this right to further anarchy, and to further the propaganda of the I. W. W.'s, and in that manner injure the public peace and the dignity of the community. I am therefore against the law proposed in your letter of June 21 and also against the use of the influence and name of the League in the interest of such a propaganda.

If the American League for National Unity wishes to carry out its watchword of one country, one people, one flag to its final consequences, then it appears to me that the method involved in your letter would pursue the wrong road. Instead of uniting the different elements among our countrymen the League would estrange them.

My opinion would be to remain in closer touch with the foreign language newspapers and to encourage them in every manner to continue their policy of public enlightenment, as they have done in the propaganda for the Red Cross and Liberty Loan. In these matters they have shown themselves worthy of praise on the part of Secretary Lansing.

In regard to the passage from the Cologne newspapers, I must say that I number it with the millions of foolish and irresponsible newspaper matters with which the world has for the last three years been flooded.

If your referendum should produce the result that the majority of the members of the American League for National Unity are in favor of such a law as described in your letter of June 21, then I must say that I cannot accept the position as a director to represent the State of Ohio in the League, as you suggest in your letter of June 25.

I prize the honor, but under the circumstances I could not be a member of a directorate with whose aims I am in full accord, but of whose methods for accomplishing those aims I cannot approve.

I have taken the liberty of sending a copy of this letter to Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz, the President of the League, as I fear that the League will make a serious mistake if it allows itself to be used for this movement. I hope that better and more practical means will be found to accomplish the slogan of our organization.

In the hope that you will receive my letter in the same spirit in which it is written, since we are all at work upon a great and noble problem, I am,

Very respectfully,

ALFRED K. NIPPERT.

In Rock Island, Illinois, there is an unclean person, Max Stephany by name, who claims to have been born in Germany and to have lived in Berlin. In an article which he has contributed to the Chicago Tribune, he lets loose the lowest abuse that has yet appeared against all people who are unable to forget their German motherland, and their German mother language. He calls the German-American Press "damnable treason sheets." He calls his native land, Germany, the land of barbarians, and this rascal Stephny says he is ashamed to have to acknowledge to his children that he first saw the light of day in this land of barbarians. Rock Islanders who know this low sunken Stephany are of the opinion that he is not of German but of Slavic descent and possibly is not mentally responsible. It is to be noted further that the Chicago Tribune has printed over this contemptible article of Mr. Stephany "The Real American Spirit."

On Behalf of the Employment Bureau.

The Committee of the National Alliance on Ways and Means gives Directions—Co-Operation of Clergymen—They should be requested to Support the matter to the best of their ability.

The Committee on Ways and Means of the National Alliance composed of Messrs. George Seibel, Adolph Timm and Dr. E. Rosinger has sent a third circular to all branches and alliances. It concerns the question how employment bureaus can be created and contains directions for carrying out the matter. In German translation the directions are as follows:

The employment bureau committee should look up the German ministers, both Catholic and Protestant, in every city and county. The clergymen should be requested to give their co-operation in getting positions for those who need work, as well as to inform the Committee of any opportunities for employment of which they know. The Committee should look to it that in every society and in every congregation a similar committee is appointed, which would be known as the employment bureau committee and would co-operate with the general committee of the district.

One should get an office, if possible in the centrally located hall of one of the societies in the sacristy or in the pastor's study of one of the churches. Such an office should be given rent free on account of the good work.

The committee should assure itself of the services of all those who are ready to render them. It would be advisable to have the office of the committee open every evening and the volunteer assistants could take turns in doing the work so that no one would be overburdened.

One should get in touch with the labor bureau of the United States and with State and City employment bureaus which are engaged in placing laborers.

One should visit all the larger employers in the neighborhood, explain to them the objects of the committee and ask them to cooperate in obtaining employment for such as need it.

One should carry lists of all employers who need from time to time a number of laborers; further there should be kept a list of all those who seek employment together with their addresses and other details.

Printed or typewritten lists of positions and of men available should be sent at least every week to the State committee.

The committee should receive all daily papers in the district, should tabulate the want ads as well as the advertisements of those seeking positions.

The German pastors who take part in the movement should be requested in so far as it seems advisable to them, to obtain the assistance and advice of their English brothers of the same denomination, as this would prove a splendid countermeasure against the poisonous influence of the press.

Societies and churches should take collections in order to defray the initial cost of the undertaking, such as stationery, etc., and in order to make small advances to worthy applicants.

Those who through the activity of the committee receive employment should be requested to support it either by contributions or by assistance from time to time.

Lists of firms who discriminate against German employes should be made and revised from time to time. The lists should be read at stated intervals and in the congregations, so that people of German blood may learn to know those who hate and persecute them, and may give their business to those who are impartial.

One should inform himself whether there are local laws for the regulation and licensing of employment bureaus, and the work of the committee should be so directed as not to come in conflict with the same, or with the policies of Union Labor.

From the Societies.

ILLINOIS.

The executive committee of the State Alliance of Illinois held its quarterly meeting on July 20 in the Hotel Bismarck in Chicago. There were represented the cities of Chicago, Peoria, Ottawa, Elgin, Rock Island, Bloomington, Kankakee and Cicero. The reports of the officers were altogether favorable and proved that the Germanism of the State remains true to the Alliance. It was decided to continue with the publication and circulation of the Bulletins of Jacob Willig. After the war these are to be compiled in a book and published in the German and English language. The convention for this will later be held in Chicago on September 29 and 30 in the hall of the Lincoln Turnverein. Invitations for this Convention were sent to the officers of all State Alliances of the Middle West. The official report showed a balance of $1,022.78.

CHARLES CHRISTMAN, President.

AN APPEAL.

By the Officers of the National Alliance for Relief for War Sufferers to the Alliances of the National Alliances.

The high cost of living, the approaching winter and the uncertainty how much want the war may bring, has caused the officers of the National Alliance to ask the State Alliances to make preparations for the care of war sufferers in the United States. This is to be done along with the work of establishing employment bureaus recommended by the Committee on Ways and Means. In cities where German societies are in existence who have permanent arrangements for getting employment and for caring for needy persons, this work should be taken up in connection. There are without doubt in every city ladies and gentlemen who are ready to give their time and energy in order to investigate the wants of the needy and to care for their proper support if only the Americanism of German blood will open its hand and hear.

The measures on behalf of war sufferers are to be conducted independently in every city by making known the places where funds are collected.

Up until the declaration of war, the National Alliance had received $886,624.66 for the various relief funds. This entire sum, without deductions or costs, has been forwarded for the purposes designed by the givers.

The Alliances of the National Alliance are counselled to make collections for the needy Germans in this land at the same time that they conduct the employment bureau for those who are out of employment.

In the cities where there are no German societies, the alliances of the National Alliance should organize committees for the above objects.

In Cities where there are German organizations the work should be undertaken jointly by the German organization and the local alliance.

The collections of money for needy Germans in this land will be undertaken by local and state committees. In cities where there are no committees of German organizations, or committees of alliances, benevolent givers and organizations are requested to send their contributions to the chairman of the German Relief Committee of the National Alliance, Mr. John Tjarks, Hotel Raleigh, Baltimore, Maryland.

For the Executive Committee of the National German-American Alliance see C. J. Hexamer, President, Adoph Timm, Secretary.

Philadelphia, August, 1916.

In the monthly meeting of the City Alliance of San Francisco it was decided to celebrate German Day on the first Sunday in October as usual. There were those who suggested that German day this year be called Harvest Celebration, but this proposal was voted down. There were very favorable reports of German teaching in the public schools. The classes are attended as well as before and in some schools an increase is noticeable. As chairman of the school committee, Pastor Gehrke has been named in place of Dr. Max Magnes.

President Hermann in a forceful talk urged all present not to be confused through overdrawn and mendacious reports in this critical time, to keep their blood cool, and not to forget that German-Americans have never forgotten to fulfill their obligations.

Theodore Sutro, Joseph Knolt and William Grandpree are still active in the Herkimer Homestead Association, in order that the spirit of the hero of Oriskany may live. At a recent meeting of the Association, President Sutro gave a speech which was impregnated with the true American spirit.

GERMANY'S FUTURE.

What Professor Kuno Francke thinks of the Future Development of Ge

Under the auspices of the "German Society of the University of Pe vania," composed of students who are taking a course in German La and Literature, i. e., who are taking an interest in these subjects, Pr Kuno Francke of Harvard University, curator of the "Germanic Museum," there, gave a lecture in Houston Hall, Philadelphia, the assembly hall an room of the university students, on "Germany's Future." In his op remarks, the noted savant and authority especially on German history, a to the astonishing spirit of harmony and sacrifice among the German peop emphasized the fact that the Social Democrats had been as actively pa as the other parties, that their mining organizations interdicted all s during the continuation of the war and had given the government its effectual support in solving difficult labor problems.

Prof. Francke then addressed himself to the question: "What outlook this extraordinary exhibition of popular, general will open for Germa Future?" In the first place he stated his conviction that the war would result in the political and industrial destruction of Germany. "But, alth he continued, "German arms should eventually have to succomb to sup numbers and resources—which, fortunately, is improbable—the German sp will abide and address itself undismayed to the construction of national ditions worthy of a people that has in such a remarkable manner, beyon comparison stood the testing of popular efficiency and virtue." Prof. Fra believes that in Germany's future public life there will be distinctly notic the desire and the effort to permit a better Germany to come forth out of world conflagration of our days. Even now, amid all the war, all poss efforts are put forth looking in that direction. The German Emperor him is filled with the burning, ennobled and spiritualized Germany.

Of the German army, Prof. Francke hopes that (in case disarming sho prove impracticable) it will be more than hitherto a national institution—nation in arms—with the elimination of those defects that obtained before war, as e. g. the too greatly enlarged scope of the military judiciary, the s of cast among the officers and the exclusion of Jews and radicals from its ra According to Prof. Francke's opinion, a broader democratization will help b about a change, so that the whole army will no longer consider itself separa from the civil population, or even consider itself superior to the civil popula but identified with it as a branch of service on the same level with other o ganized bodies for the public weal and production.

A second change which, according to Prof. Francke's view, will be bro about by the war, and which will be of vital importance, will appear in changed relation between the government and popular representation.

It seems to me to be beyond dispute that the German system, by virtue which the Government maintains its place over the great mass of parties a by means of constantly shifting compromises works together with all part has on the whole proved eminently efficient. But the ultimate and thorou consistent form had not yet been drawn in Germany; it consists in this, nam that all the great parties including the social democrats must be represented the ministry. According to Prof. Franckes view this irrepressible demand a truly coalition ministry will be realized after the war. Then only would th crowning symbol of German oneness be won. It would mean a silent recog tion of the monarchy on the part of the social democrats and take out of th life of the German parliament the violent, unfruitful party passion which has so often embittered it.

Together with this would come a revision of election laws, and of election regulations for Parliament and assemblies of the individual states. By virtue of the new re-districting of the Parliament—election—circuits, the enormously growing urban population, which has hitherto had no adequate representation, would be more fully considered. With regard to the assemblies of individual states, especially of Prussia and of Saxony, for which the franchise is limited, election reforms would be carried into effect in order to secure for it also as in the case of Parliament general election rights notwithstanding that the assemblies had always stood much more for the public weal and for public improvement and were moved far less by selfish interests than some of our state legislatures.

The third question of internal politics, which has occupied the public mind the last decades in Germany, and possibly still more the foreign interpreter of German popular sentiment, has to deal with the place of officialdom in German life. Prof. Francke shows that Germany beaurocracy is, in spite of all hostile opposition, in its essentials, nothing else than government by experts, who are schooled and ruled for public service in the sphere they have chosen and are provided with far-reaching authority and responsibility in the same. A government by experts, he claims, is far preferable to a government by "bosses," of "high finances," or even of "mobs." German officialdom can show illustrious examples of blamelessness, alertness and conscientious work, civil virtues, freedom from prejudice, energy and progressiveness such as for instance the Germayors of German cities. German state officials, he says, do not measure up to the city officials. The German bureaucrat may at times have been repulsive and distant, he may have developed a cast spirit, but on the great whole he has been an efficient servant of the people. The speaker expressed the opinion that after the war German officialdom would be more amenable to liberal views. The government would seek and select its experts for its official class among men of all parties. Of their veto-right in the nomination of mayors they would rarely make use. They would give the fullest right of way to the political affiliations of the presidents-in-chief and make concessions to traditions and provincials in the selection of circuit directors and councillars. It will inspire the diplomatic service with new life by appointing to it more frequently than heretofore prominent business men and scholars of note. Officialdom will, without losing the authority its experts and specialists give to it, be brought nearer and popularized and thus a new foundation-wall will be laid in the building up of the new Germany.

Like all German parties and social classes so also have the churches, especially the Catholic and Protestant, stood shoulder to shoulder in the great war. The year 1917 will bring unusual opportunities for demonstrating mutual recognition and mutual understanding for it will bring the jubilee of the reformation. The speaker expressed the hope that it might consummate in a national demonstration of joy, that the chasm had at last been bridged and that millions of brothers, Catholics and Protestants, had shed their blood in a common cause. During the war millions upon millions of so-called non-believers he said had gained the conviction that in their innermost heart they are religious. They were opposed to lip-worship and in favor of religious independence. To avail of state and to bring them into personal connection with one or the other church would be to attempt that which might have the most serious consequences for the future development of Germany. Nothing would be a greater blessing than the separation of church and state. After the speaker had briefly stated that the German educational system, notwithstanding its great merits, thoroughness and efficiency, might also be subjected to reforms, he addressed himself to the national mission of art and literature. Schiller, he said had in his: "Letters on Esthetic Education" directed attention on their national mission. The war would greatly stimulate the idealistic tendency of German art and literature. The terrors and sufferings of the war would live on in chastened and glorified form in the forms of poetry and art. There would be, he said, numerous other problems for Germany to solve after the war. The greatest of these, he said, would be the further construction and perfecting of the social legislation in which Germany had also done pathfinder service. Tariffs must be regulated; it must not happen again that a bachelor with no dependent pays the same income taxes as the father of twelve children. Efforts must be directed toward at least the partial restoration of the gigantic loss of human lives caused by the war. This, however, calls for conditions that presuppose a numerous and healthy progeny. More attention must be given to improved housing, regulation of wage scales and hours of work, protection of the weak, state control of large industries, such as coal mining, work for the unemployed and the like. Prof. Francke also expressed the opinion that the status of woman in Germany would be entirely different after the war, she would be given the franchise though in a somewhat modified form. He closed as follows: In agricultural, social, military, government, parliamentary, religious, educational and art life a new Germany will come into being, not a Germany that will forever in melancholy summon the return of the lamented past, but a Germany that consistently draws to its ultimate conclusions the principles which directed its past and now sustain in its hour of greatest need and under the testing of its true worth.

"THE GERMAN EMIGRANT."

(Translated from the German "Der deutsche Auswanderer" as printed in the April Number of the "Mitteilungen", by Rev. S. G. von Bosse, Wilmington, Del.)

Out in the gray distance, where wilderness covers the hillside,
Note the man with his boy, far from home, from his fatherland home;
Gazing far with his eyes held spell-bound in dreamland, spying fields great and wide,
Thinking of days in the past, when he had set out to roam,
Seeking a fortune of gold, yet lacking it badly to start with,
Like a beggar at first; yet successful, when once he had mastered the soil.
But though he put off his raiment of earlier days,
His heart cherished sacredly the memory of his fatherland's ways,
And this love for his home he protected with love's own loving toil.

In spite of the wife and the child and prosperity blessing him sweetly,
His dreams do not cease, and of home he dreams on at his new hearth most discreetly,
And in silent devotion he ponders the homely sod of his birthland;
When the dying sunlight of even' lights up with its last rosy gleam.
The Eastern horizon, then pensive, his mood exults in its dream,
And there at the hillside he lingers in the sun's last glorious beam.

With unwonthed warmth he embraces the son, who shall champion his name,
His tongue here is unloosed and with tenderness prompting, from his heart leaps the flame,
He points to the distance and tells then to his boy in tones ere the same:
See, son, where the clouds go,
O'er the ocean and the hills and these valleys below,
Rocking like sailors in the bluish ether above, rocking to and fro';
There lies the land of my forbears,
Where of German fidelity and of the German race they sing,
There with their songs they lighten their dull worries and cares,
And with earnest endeavor or humorous notes fling
Out to the breezes their wonderful, soul-breathing airs,
Where the fruit of the vine delights in its golden-hued glow,
Where the fields in their bounty their borders o'erflow,
Where the cuckoo calls and the nightingale plays,
Where the rustling of forests supplies modern lays;
Where smoking towers in seemingly boundless display,
Tell of German industry active by night and by day,
Where molten streams of iron and of steel,
Combine to form component parts for woe or weal,
There lies the land I dream about, my fatherland,
Which daily I must speak about, my fatherland.

And as I now have praised its worth to Thee,
And as it means the world and all to me,
So swear anew each day and raise your hand,
To pledge for your own country's cause that stand
Which I uphold as to my birth—and fatherland."

But mark my son, what father further states,
" Some other name and faith may be your lot in time,
Yet ne'er forget your father's home and clime,
For proudly may you praise its high estates.
And when life's destiny goes smooth or roughly past,
Remain in spite of all in German ways,
The best we know on earth, the best always."

Unveiling of the Pastorius Monument Postponed.

The unveiling of the Pastorius monument—a monument to the glorification of German immigration and the founding of Germantown has in compliance with the wish of mayor Smith of Philadelphia been postponed till after the war.

A commission, of which Mr. J. B. Mayer, President of the German-American Central Union of Pennsylvania, was chairman, appointed by Dr. Hexamer in his capacity as President of the National Alliance, had been entrusted with the arrangements for the occasion and had planned an imposing unveiling ceremony, which was to have taken place on Whitmonday, May 28 in Vernon Park in Germantown. Speakers had been selected, the program had been decided and invitations to participate in the unveiling exercises had been sent to all the societies of the National German-American Alliance, and to all German-Americans of prominence.

The Secretary of War, Newton D. Baker, whose department has charge of all monuments to which the government of the United States has contributed funds, had promised to attend the ceremony. So also the Governor of the State, Dr. Martin G. Brumbaugh. The construction of the monument was originally entrusted to the New York sculptor Albert Jägers. $25,000.00 had been collected by the National Alliance and an equally large sum had been appropriated in 1911 by the United States Congress. The monument was to have been completed two years ago but unforeseen difficulties delayed completion of the magnificent work until now. With the groundwork required for the building of the foundation of the monument a beginning had been made some time since—even an impressive speechmaking function had taken place on the site when the first sod was broken. The reason why the Mayor of Philadelphia wants to have the unveiling ceremony postponed till after the war is clearly seen. He fears a hostile demonstration, which is so much more likely to occur inasmuch as Germantown is dominated by an anti-german sentiment such as may hardly be found in any part of Philadelphia—and this in the first German settlement in America which, however, has been the residence of well-to-do American families for more than a century.

There are also many quakers in Germantown whose ancestors came to America with William Penn or soon after him. They represent the "blue blood," so to speak, of Germantown. The wealthy later-comers who have settled in the vicinity of their unadorned houses they term scornfully: "Codfish Aristocracy." The committee of citizens among whose members are descendants of the original German settlers, was also of the opinion that in view of the prevailing war between the United States and Germany, it would be better to postpone the unveiling of the monument erected to the glorification of the memory of Franz Daniel Pastorius and of his faithful associates until after peace. Dr. Hexamer has communicated this resolution to the Governor and to the Secretary of War as well as to the sculptor Jägers.

The soul of a people is the needle in the scales on which the destiny of the nation is weighed in the most critical times.

Citizenship To Be Had.

During the War also Germans can become American Citizens.

The Court of Appeals of the New York Federal Court has ruled that persons belonging to nations with which the United States is at war can even during the war obtain citizenship in case they applied for it before the United States entered the war.

In other words: Germans and other persons belonging hitherto to central powers with which the United States is at war can in case they secured "first paper" previous to the war (April 6 of this year, i. e. 1917) even now in spite of existing war conditions obtain the "second paper" and become therewith lawful citizens of the United States if the validity of the "first paper" has been preserved.

The decision was given in a test case which the federal authorities had instituted in order to settle beyond all doubt the status of citizenship applicants of this class. Honas Meyer, a merchant, of No. 222 Riverside Drive, who was born in Germany and came to the United States with his parents as a lad of four years, had suddenly made the discovery two years ago this his father had never been naturalized and that he himself was consequently not an American citizen, although he had in good faith exercised the franchise and served on juries. He presented his application for citizenship and wished to procure the "second paper" after the declaration of war on the part of the United States. Federal Judge Julius M. Meyer granted him the paper but the government essayed to declare it invalid.

The court of appeals bases its decision confirming the citizenship granted to Meyer on the disposition made by Congress of an apposite case in the year 1813 during the war with England. In this it is stated that foreigners who previous to the war declared their purpose to become citizens should not be denied citizenship, although at the time of the action concerning their admission war conditions prevailed.

Books of instruction for citizenship candidates and the constitution of the United States which everyone who wants to become a citizen must have read are to be procured for twenty-one cents in stamps from the National German-American Alliance, 418 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

IMPORTANT FOR GERMANS!

Legal Definitions One must absolutely know—Treason and Complicity in the Same—No One may repudiate his Citizenship—No Prohibited Criticism.

For Germans and German-Americans it will be of importance to call to mind Legal and Constitutional Definitions provided for war conditions. On the whole and in general we may say that no word of warning can be given so emphatically as the one briefly expressed in the vulgar tongue: Maulhalten. Hold your Tongue! Thoughtless garrulousness may cause much inconvenience and it must be borne in mind that not infrequently words are falsely reported or twisted. Therefore, great care is required. It is best not to talk about the war at all with anyone who does not understand German, for there are expressions in the English language that bear varied interpretations and it may happen that the worst of them is taken as the one intended. Therefore: Mum! Maulhalten!

The citizen of the United States who after the declaration of war does anything that might aid Germany in any way is guilty of treason. Concerning this the Constitution of the United States, says: Article 3, Section 3. "Only making war against the United States, or co-operating with the enemy of the same, in such a way as to give the latter aid and help. No one shall be considered as having been found guilty of treason unless two witnesses attest one and the same treasonable act, or unless he in open court makes confession."

It may be observed that this section is very flexible for "affording aid and help" may mean anything, e. g. a newspaper article, starting a false report, agitating against recruiting, etc.

It is fortunate that two witnesses are required to convict, otherwise it would be simply unendurable here in times of war. Punishment for treason may be death, in cases of minor importance also penetentiary. Of great moment also is a paragraph in the criminal statute making it obligatory on the part of any one who has information relative to an act of treason to make announcement at once to the authorities. The paragraph is found in the first chapter (3 Section) of the penal code of the United States and reads: He who owes faith as citizen to the United States and has knowledge of a treasonable act committed against the same, but conceals it, and does not immediately report the same to the President or to a Judge of the United States, or to the Governor or to a Judge or Justice of the Peace of an individual State is guilty of complicity in the act of treason and shall be condemned to not more than seven years imprisonment and to a money fine of not more than one thousand dollars.

No one not a citizen can commit treason nor can he be guilty of misprision. Neither can be drafted into military service. Now in order that citizens may not pose as aliens,—perhaps in order to evade military service or from other motives, the legislators have devised the following paragraph which is found in the Fourth Chapter (Section 77) of the Federal Penal Code: "He who has obtained citizenship and thereafter in order to evade some obligation prescribed by law, denies either under oath or by affidavit that he possesses citizenship shall be punished with a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or imprisoned for a term not exceeding five years."

Important! American citizenship can be discarded only when a court declared the citizen-certificate null. Destroying it or simply declaring one does not longer wish to be a citizen does not affect the law at all, and one can thereby simply gain the suspicion of being an "unsafe cantonist". In war, no American citizen may acquire citizenship in any foreign country,—this is punishable.

A German who is not naturalized and who spies here during the war in the interest of Germany can be summoned before a court martial and shot. A citizen who does this is guilty of treason. (See above).

While naturalized Germans stand on a level with other citizens of the United States in all respects, alien Germans are subject to many restrictions. For example, all business partnerships between American citizens and German subjects may immediately on the outbreak of war be dissolved. German subjects can no longer begin civil process here for the objection that the plaintiff is an "alien enemy" nonsuits it at once. German subjects cannot during the war claim copyright or patent protection; neither do they receive further patents.

We firmly believe that not the least will happen to those Germans who keep quiet and obey the laws. On the other hand it must not be forgotten that the espionage system is very extensive and that therefore: Keep Silent! is the best advice we can give our readers.

The Executive of the Pennsylvania State Alliance has unanimously adopted the resolutions submitted by the Committee on Means and Ways: "Calm Blood these trying Times!" It was further unanimously resolved to open in connection with the German society a labor-bureau for the benefit of those who because of race connection lose their employment. The State Alliance in a petition takes a stand for teachers' pensions.

In New Orleans, Dr. Raüsmeier, the chairman of the school committee of the Louisiana State Alliance, has submitted an interesting report on the teaching of German. Dr. Raüsmeier said that it could be seen from the regularly received reports from individual teachers, that out of 1,211 children who had originally reported for participation in German instruction, 598 had taken part last week and that more than 200 children who usually study German, from various reasons did not participate in the instruction. One could thus conclude that of the reported children from 800 to 850 are still in the 213 organized classes. Dr. Raüsmeier said it should be observed that no children had been absent from German instruction so far as could be ascertained in consequence of the strained relations between the United States and Germany. He expressed his conviction that if the German instructions were continued, which seemed to be a necessity, it could only result in a harmonious working together of the varied race-elements constituting the citizenry of the United States.

QUIET AND PATIENCE.

Let us in these Trying Times more than ever stand Shoulder to Shoulder!

Slogan of the Moment for the Americanism of German Descent.

The fateful hour that has for some time threatened to strike for the Americanism of German descent has now broken with its full weight upon it. That which we German-Americans as honest peace-loving citizens of this country and as true patriots sought to prevent, namely a conflict between the old and the new fatherland—has after all, unfortunately come to pass. Doubly serious and painfully trying, therefore, is the period of time in which we have to live this moment. Unendurable and positively crushing as are the pangs of soul which we have had to bear for some time and which at present yet more than ever weigh down upon us driving us to the verge of distraction,—gloomy and dark as it seems to be growing around us, the German-American nevertheless ever enjoys in the hour of adversity and sorrow the presence of a true and honest friend, who in the darkest hour of agony valiantly and vigorously sustains him, lifting up his head and inspiring new courage for the future. And this friend is one of the most glorious virtues mother Germania has placed in the lap of the bride Columbia—a sort of morning present, as it were. This virtue of virtues has ever to a remarkable degree characterized the American of German descent and differentiated him and the other races that have sought and found a second home in this country,—namely the homely, plain, never-failing allegiance to the fatherland of his adoption, to the land of his own free choice.

The annals of our national history teach us—and this will have to be recorded in the future history of this country in letters of gold: The American of German tongue remained faithful to his oath concerning his adopted fatherland, firm and immovable, even amid the severest trials imaginable, true and faithful in true Germanic style and manner. In the struggle against the mother country, he discharged his obligations bravely and honestly, though with bleeding heart, toward his adopted fatherland.

And it is even through such honest and conscientious action that we can break a lance for the people from which we sprang here in the land of our bride, and vindicate even in this dark hour in unequivocal manner the nobility, uprightness and love for all that is honorable and everything that is beautiful and humane of our old fatherland without derogating one iota from our obligation to our adopted fatherland.

On the contrary, we agree entirely with our present chief executive Woodrow Wilson and support his opinion that the character of the German people must and shall not perish, for he said in his message to congress clearly and emphatically that America absolutely did not contemplate acting against the German people and did not betray any hankering for conquest or subjugation, that, on the contrary, America had thrown down the gauntlet to Germany simply to relieve its people from the heavy burdens and to preserve it.

In this storm and stress period we must accept the words of our present chief executive as legal tender. We cannot do otherwise—and therefore I cannot interpret the paragraph in his message relating to the German people other than that the President of our Country, Woodrow Wilson is deeply concerned for the preservation of the German nation and the German national character. This is easily explained,—why should a man like the President of the United States help oppress and subjugate a people like the German people,—a nation to which our young nation in its beginning became so greatly indebted.

How President Wilson reconciles all this—making war on a people from purely humanitarian considerations, subjecting it to further horrible afflictions while at the same time cherishing friendly feelings concerning it and spreading over it the mantle of Christian charity and humane-ness—this is an arithmatical problem which I cannot at the moment solve,—nor do I wish to solve it just this moment,—leaving it rather to the acumen of the historian whenever he may with the stylus of truth fearlessly write the history of this war and of this country. "For us,"—as Joseph Matt correctly expresses it in his book "The Wanderer"—"all opposition to the policy of our government or rather to that of the President ceased with the entering of our country into the war." We have to submit to our fate and that without grumbling or complaint. Thank God, we learned to do this in our earliest youth, the iron obedience and strict discipline which we, so to speak, drank in with our mother's milk comes us in every way in good stead amid the serious and, for the German heart and soul, so painfully trying conditions.

However, just at this time, Americans of German ancestry and descent should unite more closely than ever, and see well to it, that the German spirit of real, undefiled love of fatherland point the way for the hurrah—patriotism here in the fatherland of their adoption, showing how the honest obligations of citizenship are to be met and how one can, should and must in deed and reality, and not merely with emotional ebulitions and empty words serve his fatherland in the hour of danger. Let us, at this time, point with pride to the true patriotism of our ancestors in our fatherland, holding it up to ourselves as a shining example for the present generation, telling again how our ancestors stood for the independence of our adopted fatherland, how they like pastor Peter Mühlenberg when he cast off the surplice and stepping from the pulpit declared: "The time to talk is past, we must act," and then went to war.

To preserve this German spirit in future and that even after the war on behalf of our adopted fatherland and to mix it with the American progressive spirit is and continues to be the mission of organized German-Americanism. In our adopted fatherland also he must and will prevail, succeed. This spirit of honesty, of patriotism, in a word, the spirit and character of the German people, whose conservation, (not destruction) is contemplated even as President Wilson expressed it so remarkably in his message.

There is, therefore, still a mighty task awaiting us, a task which can be accomplished solely by united and harmonious action on our part as American citizens.—by us as citizens who not only preach, but translate into deeds, practical Americanism. There are two words that constitute the watchwords of the American of German tongue this moment, and these are: "Quiet and Patience."

And in this regard, Mr. Joseph Matt, one of the tried and most fearless leaders of Americans of German descent is entirely correct when he says the following in his: "The Wanderer": "And let us have patience! Whoever is in the right and has patience—his time will come too," once said a great German. His words have ever come true. Our time also, the time of German-Americanism will come again when we shall again be sought when we shall again be needed, when people shall be unable to comprehend that they ever tried to push us aside, to eliminate us, to morally strike us dead. Only let us not surrender ourselves, only let us not despair of the missions we are yet to accomplish, nor despair of ourselves in our future! We have lost much through the misfortune that has overwhelmed us. But with head erect we can meet all those who have placed us under suspicion, who have grieved, insulted, and abused us. Quietly, we bear the misfortune as an affliction, as a testing of our strength, quietly and calmly looking for and awaiting a brighter future. We do not intend to stand aside, glum and embittered, but as has been our wont so far and as usual to assert ourselves and to continue active on the spot we maintained hitherto, depending on the laws and upon the rights guaranteed to us by the constitution. And be we united! A solitary tree is easily felled, when the storm tears through its branches. Discord among ourselves we have to thank neither last nor least that things have taken the course they did—that we were unable to exert greater influence over the shaping of our country. Let us stand shoulder to shoulder in these grievous times. Let us cultivate the life of our societies better than in the past, let us help our German press more than we have been accustomed to do in the past. Germanism is bent but not broken. Upon us, on each and every one of us, it depends whether it shall revive and arise in its old strength. The storm outside will not destroy it, if it does not die of internal weakness and of innate wretchedness.

"A WARNING TO PRICE BOOSTERS.

(Printed in English.)

"(By Herbert Kaufman, Indianapolis Star.)

"The man on the street has the patience of an ass, but don't you believe that he is one. History knows that he will stand just so much exploitation—when the limit's reached, he strikes back and something always comes down.

"Revolt gives no warning—it's an outburst. France dethroned Louis overnight. Outraged peoples smoulder for years—then explode. Russia decrowned her Czar in a day.

"Nobody ever played the public for a fool and won.

"You'd better lower certain prices to a legitimate margin of profit before the community steps in and decides what your gains shall be.

"Remember, we put an Interstate Commerce Commission over the railroads and we're quite capable of organizing a similar body to restrain market manipulation and control selling prices.

"As a democracy, we are loathe to invoke Federal regulation for private undertakings. We came over here and made this country simply to be free agents. Kings and special classes had entirely too much to say in our affairs. We denied the theory of Divine Right, which permitted monarchs and privileged grafters to pick our pockets at sweet will, and you've to stop it!

"We have no desire to interfere with the honest business of fellow citizens, but since some of you gentlemen, who specialize in daily necessities, have grown so predacious, arrogant and contemptuous of general welfare as to think you can corner supplies and tax us as you please, we're very apt to take charge of your enterprises and impose terms which will keep the bulge out of your bank account.

"Children are going hungry and the nation is growing angry. Every man in every century that stole crusts from poverty lives to rue the day.

"We are fairly well posted on actual conditions, here and abroad. There are no such ridiculous shortages and scarcities as you insist.

"The increase in overhead costs and wages does not justify your contemptible extortions.

"We are sick and tired of the brazen effrontery which has seized war congested transportation and an inconsiderable under-production as excuses for overcharges on products and merchandise of all descriptions.

"Sporadic practice has changed to a persistent habit-oppression threatens to break into an epidemic. We've left you unpunished so long that all sorts of concerns are taking a leaf out of your book.

"Any pretext seems sufficient nowadays for a raid on the pay envelope.

"When a hotel dares ask thirty cents for one baked potato and sixty-five cents for a measly saucer of canned succotash—when one establishment demands a dollar and fifty cents per yard for dyeing a rug, which half a dozen equally responsible firms offer to dip at sixty cents, it's about time to act.

"America is not entirely in the hands of gougers. Reputable merchants do not abandon their codes and betray the confidences and credulity of their customers. Both conscience and common sense still prevail in responsible quarters, but there are none the less so many of you screw twisters and your example is every day inspiring so many more high handedness, that we'll be wrecked if you're not checked.

"Take your feet out of the trough!"

"THE FUTILITY OF PROHIBITION.

(From "The Medical Times.")

"Insufficient sleep is held accountable by many of our leading clinicians for much physical and mental deterioration and disease. It probably ranks a far below alcoholism as a pathogenic factor.

"Suppose now that a number of earnest souls were to start a movement against this dreadful evil, and suppose that in time this movement, under the leadership of such unselfish, not to say angelic, soul as Richmond P. Hobson and the late candidate for President on the Prohibition Ticket, were to become able to secure sufficient sleep legislation in about half the states of the country and then suppose that a national amendment to the Constitution were to be agitated, as a Federal amendment is being agitated by the prohibitionists now, how, reader, would you stand on the question?

"Remember that this sleep amendment would make it obligatory upon you to secure not less than a certain number of hours of sleep out of each twenty-four. There would be severe penalties for violation of the law.

"Do we not know from past experience that where prohibition is enforced the people will make their own spirits? Prohibition could never be enforced for it would be impossible for any government to police all homes. The mak-of spirits is a simple matter, requiring no more intelligence than bread baking. And this sort of home-made liquor is about the most injurious of any. In those departments of France where such liquor is made the mental and physical demoralization of the peasantry is said to be extreme.

"A rational system of governmental control of the industry, as is now the case in England, seems to be the best solution of the question of alcoholism. Unless we are frantically enamored of Kultur applied to the human spirit we do not want prohibition.

"It is easy to see the futility of such an idea as legislation seeking to enforce sufficiency of sleep. Prohibition is not a whit more sane.

"We know how the experts differ as regards the effects of alcohol following the ingestion of certain quantities. Imagine how they would stand on the question of how much sleep is necessary and how little is harmful.

"With a sleep propaganda on foot one can imagine how experiments on alcohol comparable to those at Cornell would be undertaken. It will be remembered that in the Cornell work guinea pigs were exposed to the fumes of alcohol continuously for many months, when, of course, they exhibited symptoms of great injury. In our human life continuous saturation in this wise never takes place, and saturation with any substance, ordinarily innocuous, would work injury; sugar, or salt, would conceivably inflict harm if so used. A sleep experiment on a par with these Cornell experiments would consist in keeping guinea pigs continuously awake for weeks, when, of course, evidences of marked injury would be noted.

"So we want to be standardized in respect to such matters impatient simpletons and ambitious reformers?"

ATTITUDE OF THE GERMAN-AMERICANS.

(Fort Wayne "Free Press.")

To the weakest point of German diplomacy belongs also the treatment of the German-Americans by the German government. We were always looked upon and treated as lost sheep and the German emperor is said to have permitted himself on one occasion the utterance that he knew no German-Americans. Well we could have revenged ourselves by saying, that we know no German emperor. We naturally, of course, do not say the German government should have tried to hold us; by going to a foreign country we severed the ties that united us with the old fatherland, and politically we became Americans, could not become anything else. Swearing allegiance to the Stars and Stripes we severed the ties that allied us with the political conception of Germany and attempts on the part of the German government to keep us in a relation of dependence would have been rejected by us. Had we desired to continue in a state of dependence on Germany then we should have either emigrated to a German colony or have remained in Germany. And yet something the German government could have done for us. It could at least have strengthened the ties of culture that united us with the old fatherland. It could have promoted the exchange of intelligence and have kept us posted with regard to German efforts concerning Kultur. But whenever we would learnanything concerning the old fatherland, we had to subscribe for newspapers published in Germany, employ correspondents of our own on the other side, etc., the German government certainly did nothing, to hinder our absorption by Anglo-Americanism. That we emigrated was laid up against us as a great crime and not a devil troubled himself about us. So matters stood and how far from correct those are who look upon us as agents of the Kaiser may be seen from the above. And comes a certain Ploetsch in the Krenzzeitung with the assertion that Germany is disappointed in the attitude assumed by the German-Americans. Is the gentleman crazy? What does he expect of us? Should we perhaps out of gratitude for the manner in which the German government dealt with us begin a revolution here? What might be the situation in that brain! After letting us quietly journey hence as spoiled and undesirable children of the old fatherland, never caring a rap for us, on the contrary with every suitable and unsuitable opportunity giving us to understand that in leaving the old fatherland we had severed all ties, after having done nothing whatever in the particular field in which the German government might have exerted itself without detriment to our allegiance relation to the United States, namely by preserving intact the ties of Kultur and by doing much more than was done to establish cultural ties with the Anglo-Americans, by sending over exchange professors—one now has the sad courage to expect of us that we'll violate our oath and render Germany attendance during the war. This the German government can not ask, nor it could not even if it had treated us differently and not as it has treated us. Our oath binds us to the United States and the moment war is declared we have but one obligation—our obligation to the United States. Only a sheephead can expect anything different. Those who have the sad courage to say publicly, that they did expect something different, as well as those who only think it but do not say it, may make note of this.

ANOTHER CASE OF SLANDER BY THE PRO-BRITISH PRESS.

Like Dr. C. J. Hexamer, the President of the German-American National Alliance recently, so State Senator Herman Fellinger of Ohio has had to make the experience of having his utterances distorted by the pro-British press and sent out in the world. Mr. Fellinger is also President of the Cleveland City Alliance. On April 17, one could read in all the papers in the land that in the bosom of the war council of Cleveland there was heated debate over the claim that Mr. Fellinger had declared that the German-Americans would not take part in the agitation for the use of the fields for intensive growing of vegetables, because England and her allies would obtain advantage therefrom.

In a writing on April 22, Mr. Fellinger described the incident as follows: "As the only member born in Germany of the war commission named by our Mayor, I arose at the end of the meeting last Saturday in order to thank the Mayor for the proclamation which he had issued a few days before in which he begged for considerate treatment of the foreign born population (Germans, Austrians, Hungarians, etc.). In the further course of my remarks, I pointed out that the citizens of this element were absolutely loyal and would hold to the United States.

"Many of them, I continued 'would not fall all over themselves to plant wheat for the allies in their backyards, and some, while wishing for the United States of America to carry her point in her controversy with Germany were still praying for a victory of Germany over the allies'; in other words, the patriotism of many German-Americans ceases at the Atlantic Coast. Above all things I do not speak of myself but speak of what I regarded not as the action but as the sentiment of others. In the hundreds of communications which I then received it was pointed out again and again in praiseworthy manner that on account of the high price the export of foodstuffs should be prohibited instead of being increased.

"My activity during three terms in the House and Senate of Ohio, my ten years' activity as President of our Alliance, my founding of the citizens' school, etc., is enough proof for my American patriotism.

"My only mistake in the eye of the Jingo Press, which of course has grossly slandered me through a complete perversion of the facts is this, that I am German born and before the war worked to preserve peace."

THE LAST GIFT.

Thanks for the National German-American Alliance.

Chairman John Tjarks of the Relief Fund of the National German-American Alliance on March 26 received the following letter of thanks from Mr. E. Hecker, the delegate of the German Red Cross in New York:

"Your friendly letter of the 24th of this month with the check for $10,674.98 I have received and have been overjoyed over this new and rich result of the relief collection of the National German-American Alliance for the mitigation of war suffering.

"The sum according to your wishes will without deductions be devoted to the following relief work:

For the prisoners of war:
Remainder of the sum received from Dr. W. W. Zacharias from the sale of the work of prisoners of war	$96.10
For the prisoners of war in Siberia	1,555.50
German wounded	2,100.98
German widows and orphans	2,100.98
Austro-Hungarian widows and orphans	2,100.97
Austro-Hungarian wounded	2,100.97
East Prussia aid (including $500.00 from Pittsburg Relief Fund)	619.48

"After the receipt of my written report over these new and rich gifts of the National German-American Alliance, the chairman of the Central Committee of the German Red Cross, his Excellency Von Phuel, will not fail to send you a direct letter of thanks. Since on account of the present poor postal communication some months must nevertheless elapse before such a writing can reach here and I therefore allow myself as representative of the German Red Cross to express to-day to you and to all the loyal and self-sacrificing givers of the National German-American Alliance, the warmest and most heartfelt thanks of our society, and also the thanks of the numberless sufferers from the war in the home land and in hostile captivity.

"In the present severe months of spring until the bringing in of the new harvest, it is of especial value if the war relief organizations receive ample means for carrying on their difficult problem for the care of those who have been affected by the war and in the care of the wounded, and the warmest recognition is due to the National German-American Alliance that even in this unsettled time it is continuing to carry on its great work of relief so successfully and so undisturbed."

Even a war cannot rob mankind of its mother love. * * * Our land must eventually recuperate through its own life.

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL WARNS.

To all Federal Attorneys and Marshals:

The following order has been sent by the Attorney General Gregory in Washington: "You are hereby instructed to give to the following declaration the utmost publicity.

"No German or enemy alien in this country, who has not become implicated in conspiracies against the United States, need fear any measures on the part of the department of Justice so long as he obeys the following warning.

"Obey the law!

"Hold your mouth!"

PRESIDENT WILSON'S PROCLAMATION.

What is demanded of German Subjects.

In the proclamation signed by President Wilson in which the existence of the state of war between the United States and Germany is declared the following regulations have been prescribed for German subjects for the period of the war:

No German in America may have weapons, munitions or explosive in his possession.

He may not have in his possession aeroplanes, radio, or other apparatus for signalling, keys to secret writing, papers, documents, or books in invisible or secret writing.

All Germans must keep themselves at a distance at least half a mile from all military establishments.

They must not make attacks or threats either in writing or in print against the government, congress or officials of the Federal government.

They must not either favor hostile enterprise against the United States nor give information to the enemies of the government or afford them help or support.

Without permission they must not leave any certain prescribed zones which the President has declared.

Suspicious foreigners can be brought to certain places and must not leave these places without permission.

No German may leave the country without special permission. Germans during the duration of the war can land in the United States only at stated places.

In the event that it is necessary all Germans must register.

The violation of any one of these regulations will result in the arrest by the Federal Marshal and confinement.

Aside from this the President assures to Germans in the United States complete freedom of motion insofar as they comply with the laws of the land and calls upon the citizens of the country to show as much friendship to Germans as is consistent with their loyalty to the United States. * * * The Americanism of German descent looks forward to severe trials which nevertheless it will overcome and which will not change its character and must not change its character.

A CAMPAIGNER FOR TEACHING IN GERMAN.

From a lady belonging to the highest society of Lincoln, Nebraska—the Omaha Tribune suggests that Mrs. William J. Bryan is the writer—the Lincoln Daily Star received the following communication, which might be of interest to our readers:

LINCOLN, March 26.

To the Editor of the Star:

In Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Holland and Germany the boys over nine years are instructed in the public schools in a foreign language, mostly in French or in English. Are these peoples less patriotic—the first named preserve now a common and worthy neutrality above all bribery or threat; the last named fights for its country with a heroism which we should have our youth admire. Have our soldiers of the Revolutionary and of the Civil War fought less bravely because they mastered two languages? In Louisiana and other southern states, French is taught in the schools, in southern California. Spanish, here in the middle West German, Swedish and Bohemian, but always as an auxiliary language to the principal language English. If we hope to get the commerce of the world it is absolutely necessary that our children master more than one language.

MRS. WILLIAM J. BRYAN.

The President in his message to Congress has called special mention to the fact that we are not carrying on war against the German people. The German people is the bearer of Germanic Kultur and the means for the spread of this Kultur is the German language. Consequently whoever fights against the German language is carrying on an intellectual warfare against Germanic Kultur and against the German people. That does not correspond with the views of the President and is not consistent certainly with the intellectual interests of our country. We need in our schools teaching in the German language as an educational means, we need it for its cultural and practical advantages, and the earlier the instruction is begun the better. Our schools have persisted brilliantly with German instruction, and whoever attempts to shake it down, does not act in accordance with the interests of our schools, nor in the interests of our youth, nor in the interests of our city, and not in the interests of the country. Our differences with Germany is all of a purely political nature and not war upon culture. Whoever attempts to make it such, places himself in opposition to the views of the President and also in opposition to our best cultural traditions. (Cincinnati Freie Presse.)

FROM THE ALLIANCES.

The Beaver County Alliance of the Central Alliance of Pennsylvania mourns the loss of its aged President Arnold Schonegg.

In Dr. Max Magnes, San Francisco has lost one of the pioneers of Americanism of German blood.

It is very pleasant, the more so at the present time, to note that the Legislature of Nebraska has voted down an attack of the enemies of German teaching in the public schools with 29 as against 21 votes. That the law providing for instruction in German which was passed at the instance of the State Alliance of New Jersey remained in effect.

In the auditorium of the German Club of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, there was held a novel entertainment, the program for which was put on by the German Club of the Wilkinsburg High School, although only a small number of the members of the Wilkinsburg German Club are of German descent, the program, consisted of German songs and poems as well as the presentation of the operetta in two acts "Hansel and Grethel" and "The Shirt Button." The entertainment was begun with the well-known folk song "In the Woods and upon the Meadows", which was wonderfully sung by the members of the Club. Thereupon followed a business session in which the reports of the Committees were heard. The second part of the program consisted in a presentation of the Teutoberg Battle by the men's chorus. A ladies' chorus presented in splendid manner the well-known folk song "The Broken Ring". A song presented by the orchestra under the leadership of Thelma Mothersbough created a furore.

CONVENTION OF THE STATE ALLIANCE OF NEW JERSEY.

The annual convention of the German-American Alliance of New Jersey which convened on April 15 in Washington Gall in Perth Amboy had a harmonious course. President Justus Kaletsch presented next President John Frey and Vice President E. Wacker of the Central Alliance of Middlesex County, whereupon the quartette sang the Star Spangled Banner. Thereupon the mayor was presented who delighted the delegates with a hearty welcome. Gustav Klingenstein, President of the Central Alliance of Hudson County, the honored Convention Leader of former years, was thereupon again unanimously chosen by acclamation as the presiding officer of the Convention. He called upon President Kaletsch to read the annual report from which it appeared that in all Central Alliances pleasing progress was being made in acquisition of members.

Hudson County won the prize for in the campaign for new members during the year; it brought in thirty-eight new societies with 1876 members, so that the Central Alliance in that place now consists of ninety-two societies with 5692 members, certainly a noble piece of work. More than seventy societies in Hudson County were visited in this year, both those that belong to the Central Alliance as those which had gotten away from it and finally also societies which hitherto would not consider joining the Alliance.

Special mention was made also of the fact that the Central Alliances of Newark, Elizabeth, Passaic, Camden and Trenton advanced the German cause in the past year by instituting medals for specially brilliant accomplishments of students in German.

The auditing committee reported that it had found the books of financial secretary Oberst and treasurer Bickel in faultless order, that with an income of $524.32 and expenditures of $334.41, there was on April 1 of this year a balance of $189.91 in the Treasury.

George Grimme, President of the Central Alliance of Newark and surroundings, as chairman of the Alliance Committee on Alliance Affairs, broke a lance for Dr. Hexamer, who as was well known was slandered by the English Press.

The following resolutions reported by the Committee for Alliance Affairs were adopted unanimously:

1. The present annual convention of the New Jersey State Alliance regrets the resolutions and protests passed in the Executive Committee, a result of false newspaper reports, and assures to Dr. Hexamer, the President of the National Alliance their fullest confidence as well as their greatest thanks for his self-sacrifice in his service of our Alliance.

2. We recommend to all our county and city alliances as well as to their members subscriptions to the Bulletin of the Alliance, as reports of the Alliance are authentic therein and can be relied upon, we recommend further that the different Alliances take care that the Bulletin is received in the Public Libraries, even at the cost of the respective Alliances.

3. We approve the action of the President of the Alliance in naming a Committee for Ways and Means and recommend to our county and state alliances to ask for the help of that Committee and to also help it in every way in getting new members.

Through the Committee on Resolutions, the following resolution was presented which was adopted unanimously. The resolution is:

The State Alliance of New Jersey on April 15, 1917, assembled in annual convention at Perth Amboy regrets most deeply that the peace of our land was not preserved, and recommends to its membership to fulfill their duty to their adopted fatherland as true, loyal citizens.

Further be it resolved that we recommend to all State and city alliances that they continue with the collection of moneys for the needy as heretofore only with the distinction that the money now collected shall be spent for the needy in our own land.

It was further recommended that labor bureaus be organized, in order to support and get work for Germans or others who had become American citizens and who had lost their positions from prejudice.

The next annual convention is to be held in Hackensack under the auspices of the German-American Central Alliance of Bergen County. President Justus Kaletsch was again re-elected, first Vice President is Joseph Warsdorfer of Hackensack; second Vice President Jacon Kiefer of Elizabeth, Secretary, Ernest German of Elizabeth, Financial Secretary Anton J. Oberst of Camden. Treasurer Frank Bickel of Trenton and delegate to the National Alliance George Grimme of Newark.

Chairman Klingenstein thereupon gave to the German press his warmest thanks for their loyal co-operation in the past year and requested that they might have the same support in the coming year. Finally he paid a tribute to the ladies of Perth Amboy for the brilliant reception and urged all Germans in these earnest and serious times to hold together faithfully. Songs concluded the harmonious end of the State Convention.

The Executive Committee of the State Alliance of Illinois held on April 26 in Chicago under the chairmanship of President Charles Christman, their regular meeting. There were represented outside of Chicago, the Cities of Pekin, Bloomington, Kankakee, Kewanee, Elgin, Streetor, Rockford, Dundee, Cicero and Decatur. The greatest part of the conference was devoted to the difficult conditions brought about by the war and the position of the Executive Committee found expression in the expediency in the resolution recommended by the Committee for Ways and Means, namely "Calm Blood in this serious Time." This was sent to all alliances and individual societies.

SUPPORT AMERICAN NEWSPAPER PRINTED IN GERMAN LANGUAGE.

In the newspaper published in the interest of the German type-setter, which is the official organ of the German American Typographical Union, we find the following article which is worthy of being thoroughly taken to heart.

SUPPORT OF THE GERMAN PRESS SMALL.

EVANSVILLE, March, 1917.

During our last meeting, it was pointed out that the Germans as a rule did not support the German press in the way they should. The societies have in recent times organized balls and other entertainments and endless reports were given about them, which of course was desired, but they never seemed to feel it worth while to give an advertisement to them. We consider it our duty to call the attention of the various societies to the fact that the German newspapers and societies must stand locked together. The following resolution was handed in and was adopted, unanimously:

Many members of societies think that they have done their duty when they are subscribers to the German newspaper, and many others "also Germans" borrow the German newspaper from a good neighbor or read it supeficially in a restaurant.

And the societies themselves expect from the German newspaper world reports about concerts, balls, as well as other entertainments, but to give an advertisement for them seldom occurs to them. It is possible that the members of societies have never considered the matter from the standpoint of a newspaper editor and have never taken into consideration their duty in the matter. But these should consider that the societies would have a miserable existence were it not for the German newspaper.

The Germans could be of great assistance to the German press if when they make purchases they would notify the business men that they saw his advertisement in the German newspaper. With newspapers, the advertising patronage is the principal matter. No newspaper in American can exist from its subscription money.

This communication should not be regarded as an appeal for pity but we consider it our duty to point out the evil which many have been guilty of unconsciously.

QUIET BLOOD IN THIS SERIOUS TIME.

Considering the difficult conditions brought about by the condition of the war and for the protection of our fellow citizens of German descent, the Executive Committee of the ——— Alliance of ———, ———, has sent the following communication to the societies and members belonging to the Alliance:

To the Societies and their Members!

The present critical situation and the existence of a state of war between the land of our birth and the land of our choice lays upon every American citizen and upon those citizens of the German Empire and of Austro-Hungarian Empire, who are enjoying the hospitality of this land certain duties, for the fulfillment of which we make urgent request.

The personal rights of the individual are not restricted in any way by the existence of war. Nor are the rights of societies and church organizations to hold meetings restricted. These, however, should, in the future, as in the past, be conducted with consideration for the prevailing conditions and every conflict should be avoided which might bring the society or its members into conflict with the authorities or with the law. It requires certainly no further mention that during the critical time no German flags should be used for the decoration of the society halls. The flag of the country and the banner of the society fulfill the purpose admirably. Also the pictures of the rulers and leaders of the army and fleets of the Central Powers should be removed, as certain persons would take offenses therefrom and unpleasantness might be introduced thereby.

For the rest, we citizens of German descent and German subjects must also in the future hold together closely and intimately for common protection and for mutual solace. Wherever it is possible any one of our race who finds himself out of a position should be put upon the right way in order that he may get employment again; for cases will arise where citizens of German descent or subjects of Germany will lose their positions, because they cannot repudiate their racial connection.

We will not derogate from our dignity as American citizens but will keep sacred the oath which we swore; nevertheless we cannot and we will not degrade ourselves to rascals in our opinions and join in the howl against Germany and her allies. With heavy hearts we will fulfill our duties as American citizens and leave nothing undone in order to bring about an early peace and restoration of friendly relations between the United States and Germany. The German language, German customs, German belief and German song and literature can be cultivated in the future in spite of the present conditions. These are necessary and of far reaching importance, when the war is over and reason has won its victory over the war howling, in order to restore the good relations between the two lands and to firmly settle them.

In the meantime let this be the watchword; "Calm is the Citizen's first duty." We must be reminded of this and hope that after the darkest part of the night a new and better time will break.

NATIONAL GERMAN-AMERICAN ALLIANCE.

First Circular of the Committee on Ways and Means.

To the Heads of the Alliances:

The above proclamation, which is excellent and strikes the right tone and comes from the executive of the Southern California Alliance, Max E. Socha, Chairman, Robert E. Kaestner, Secretary, is recommended to the Alliances for adoption and for communication to Societies and their members and for their compliance therewith.

THE COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS:
GEORGE SEIBEL, Chairman.
DR. E. ROSINGER, Secretary.

Only through a firm holding together and gregariousness can the American of German language evidence their true patriotism.

Cruelty to neutrality: Arm in Arm with you I summon my country into the lists.

The Anglo-American Press will some day taste of its own poison.

"The pen is mightier than the sword!"—this seems to be particularly the case in these days of excitement.

The hero for the preservation of peace is more to be prized than the hero upon the battle field.

A word in honor one cannot deny even now.

POLITICS.

Dr. C. J. Hexamer in August, 1915 gave a speech in San Diego California, before a meeting arranged by the local German-American Alliance. The Official Bulletin records that "one passage of the speech deserves special prominence". In this passage occurs this statement: "Teach your children German. Become citizens of this land and exercise your rights at the ballot box. Take office, and support your German candidates." (7 O. B. 9, p. 39)

ILLINOIS.

A Meeting of the State Executive Committee took place recently in Chicago—It Devoted Itself to Political Questions and passed out the Watch-Word "Everybody against Roosevelt and Wilson."

There was a thorough discussion of the political situation and the following motion was unanimously adopted:

"That the executive committee of the State Alliance of Illinois gives all subsidiary Alliances the watchword 'Everybody against Roosevelt and Wilson' in order to prevent the nomination of these men as candidates for the presidency; that all local alliances and societies are ordered to take all necessary steps in their localities to accomplish this result; that the alliances are to be notified by the executive committee of this their problem as quickly as possible and that copies of the report adopted by the Chicago Alliance, which was approved by the officials of the National Alliance as well as of the executive committee of the State Alliance be sent to all branch alliances."

OREGON.

Important Session of the State Alliance of German Speaking Societies—Interesting Incitement with reference to Relief Work and the Presidential Campaign was given.

The regular meeting of the State Alliance of German speaking societies of Oregon held on April 1 in the German House in Portland was marked not only by the large attendance but also by active participation in the debates. President F. H. Dammasch, (Note: This man was seventh Vice President of the National German-American Alliance) opened the meeting and Secretary Edgar Winter took the minutes. * * *

ADVICE IN REGARD TO THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.

Mr. Ernst Kroner, President of the American Neutrality League gave a speech in which he gave advice as to how the German speaking population could overthrow the present pro-British administration in the coming presidential election. Although he belonged himself to the democratic party, Mr. Kroner declared under no circumstances should a democratic president be elected, since among the democratic presidential candidates only Woodrow Wilson was being considered, and since Mr. Wilson was intent upon the annihilation of Germanism in the United States and in addition to that was an opponent hard to beat, there was left but one weapon, and that was, without reference to previous party affiliation to register as republicans and to vote for a republican presidential candidate. The German speaking population, and with that the speaker meant the Germans, Austrians and Swiss, must in this exceptional case take the view that it is necessary to stand together unanimously in order to prevent the election of Wilson or Roosevelt. In order to achieve this result, there is only one means at hand and that is to acknowledge themselves as republicans in the coming election. Afterwards everyone could be free to return to his previous party. That the speaker was not preaching to deaf ears was apparent from the enthusiastic applause which followed his assertions. President Dammasch supplemented Mr. Kroner's assertions with the statement that those persons who had already registered as democrats could still before April 18 change their party affiliation. He also warned them not to register themselves as independents, which a great many women were doing, since in that manner many votes were lost for the purpose in view. It was understood, of course, that every German and every German woman would make use of the ballot box and would register. Delegates Arnold Keller, Frenz Kraxberger and Gerhard Gotze also pointed out in a few words how necessary it was for everyone to whom the administration hostile to Germany was hateful, to ignore his personal interest and this time register as republican.

7 Official Bulletin 7, page 18 contains the following; from the report of the secretary of the Wisconsin State Alliance:

It is well known that Germanism in the State of Wisconsin does not by a long ways play the roll which is owing to it from its numerical importance and its great participation in upbuilding the State. Since in this respect a change can be brought about only through the Legislature the executive committee obtained information as to all legislative candidates with reference to their position in regard to the principles of the National Alliance. The lists so prepared were sent to the Alliances throughout the State with the result that the present law-giving body is more favorable to the efforts of the Alliance than ever before.

GERMAN-AMERICANS TO THE FRONT.

The Chicago Branch Alliance of the National Alliance has sent out the f... ing summons through its standing committee:

German-Americans have stood too long in the background,—in the ... ground so far as concerns public political life. Only in commercial life ... when it was necessary to defend the country with life and limb have ... Germans been in the foreground. Others, however, reaped the profit a... reaped ingratitude. Shall we remain so? Never! But how is the co... to be altered?

Unity gives power. Only the strong man can assert his right against o... while the weak one is trodden under foot. Let us therefore be stro... locking ourselves together unitedly in one great alliance, the National Ger... American Alliance.

This war-time has shown us German-Americans how miserably weak we ... How we are hated and persecuted by the Anglo-Saxons, how we have ... to suffer supinely all their attacks. That must be changed if we are ... to be considered worthy of the German blood which is in our veins.

Our Alliance numbers according to the lists two and a half million members, but with the greatness of our Germanism in this land, the lists should show at least ten million names.

Every German-American can subscribe to the objects of the National German-American Alliance, Truth and freedom, righteousness and justice for all without distinction is our object. Preservation of the German language and of German customs is our watch-word. In this every German-American should be our trusted comrade in arms. Battle hypocrisy and immorality in public as in private life! Clean shone the shield of Columbia, whom we wooed in the Freedom of the woods, just like the shield of Germania who bore us, was brilliant in purity—can there be any German-American who would not help us in this noble work?

Therefore come you of the German race! Fulfill your double duty as son of Germania in true devotion to Columbia. Let us be a united race of brothers! Let us stand faithfully together! Then our new home will derive the richest blessings from this work.

With German Greeting,

THE PROPAGANDA COMMITTEE.

MISSOURI.

The Executive Committee of the State Alliance recommends vigorous action to secure competent men as candidates—Above all Things Men should be nominated Who would make protest against the shameful delivery of Weapons to the Allies.

In the St. Louis Turnhalle there was held on April 7 a meeting of the Executive Committee of the State Alliance of Missouri of the National German-American Alliance. Delegates of the following branch alliances were present: Kansas City, Joplin, Sedalia, Springfield, Herman, Washington, Jackson and St. Joseph.

The President of the State Alliance, Dr. Charles H. Weinsberg acted as President and Secretary Fred Lorenz, from St. Joseph, acted as Secretary.

Dr. Weinsberg gave all a hearty welcome. He called attention to the fact that the Alliance in this year, in which not only a national but also a state election was to be held, was confronted by grave problems. It was therefore absolutely necessary that all members of the alliance exert their entire energies and forget all party controversies, if the desired object was to be reached. In the coming legislature the question of prohibition would come up and the alliance must make determined effort against this threatening danger.

Before the meeting entered upon the business to be disposed of Mr. Gottfried Kirn, the delegate from Kansas City, declared that it was necessary for every city in which there was a branch alliance to form a committee of three men who would report concerning the delegates to the national convention. The chairman then requested the delegates to give the names of those members whom they wanted on the legislative committee; they should, however, in this selection proceed with great care as the work of this committee was exceptionally important.

In the progress of the discussion concerning the approaching election Secretary Lorenz proposed that the recommendation of candidates be left to the officers of the National Alliance. It was then decided that the President of the State Alliance be empowered to communicate to the delegates to the National Conventions of both parties the position of the State Alliance of Missouri with reference to presidential candidates. The selection of all National and State candidates was left to the legislative committee. They were to inform themselves as to the names and character of candidates presented and to give a report thereof before the primaries, in order that the members could learn from that report what action to take.

NEUTRALITY.

AUG., 1915.

Neutrality resolution of the State Alliance of New York contained in 7 Official Bulletin 8 page 15:

In view of the fact that President Wilson in his last note has expressed towards Germany the threat that in case of the death of any American brought about by any future attack upon unarmed ships, such act would be regarded as a purposely unfriendly act; and in view of the fact that he has thereby taken towards Germany a position which is equivalent to an ultimatum, the German government having declared and having insisted that its submarine blockade against England could not be abandoned from considerations of self-preservation;

And in consideration further of the fact that this position of our Government makes impossible every further compromise or even a settlement of our differences by arbitration and is against the humane and peace-loving principles of our government, and brings about such a situation that in the event that congress is assembled, congress can take only one course and that is the declaration of war against our old fatherland;

In consideration further that Germany made concessions to our government in the present controversy which guaranteed safety to American passengers as long as we refrained from shipping munitions on passenger ships, thereby pointing out a way for the peaceful settlement of present as well as future difficulties between two friendly countries which was in the spirit of our arbitration policy;

Be it resolved by the German-American Alliance of the State of New York in convention at Utica on July 25, that we damn this arbitrary proceeding of the president without the previous consent of congress as a dangerous usurpation of power and a danger to our peace; further that we approve with all energy the position taken by the friends of peace of this land as it was manifested in the tremendous meeting of citizens held in Madison Square Garden New York; further that we call upon the peace-loving people of our country and especially on the Americans of German descent, who would be affected most seriously by a conflict with the mother country, that they organize mass demonstrations and protests and take part enmasse in the peace congress which has been called for September 5 and 6 in Chicago; and that we thereby offer to the president the proof that except for an attack and invasion of our own land the American people is resolved not to allow itself to be entangled in war with any nation.

7 Official Bulletin 12, page 5 contains the following resolution adopted by 130 German and 61 Irish Societies at the American Neutrality and Peace Convention in San Francisco on November 18, 1915:

England has answered our notes with contempt and further attacks. Further notes and protests would be laughable and humiliating. Our people has provided an army and fleet in order that they might be used in the present situation to protect our commerce, our citizens and our rights as a neutral nation. The assertion of our rights will bring peace; if we submit to England we make ourselves an ally of England and prolong the war. The people demand action.

EXHIBIT No. 1036.

Copy of report of Percy Andreae, Prs't. Nat. Ass'n. C. & L.

OCTOBER 9, 1915

To the Board of Trustees of the United States Brewers' Assn., New York City.

GENTLEMEN: I beg to report the activities of my organization during the past year as follows:

PRESS WORK.

The personal liberty articles appearing in the American Leader are being republished, in thirty languages, in whole or in part by about 800 newspapers with a total circulation of 6,000,000 copies. There are thus being reached through this channel 18,000,000 readers bi-weekly. The organization of this press and the elements surrounding it by the American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers has now reached the stage at which practical results can be obtained throughout the country by the application of proper organization methods in any locality where this press is represented. This has been proved beyond question in Ohio where in the last campaign through the instru-mentality of the Foreign Language Press the registration of voters of foreign origin or foreign extraction exceeded in one county alone by over twenty thousand anything ever known in the political history of the county.

In March of this year I was elected a Vice-President of the American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers and appointed the accredited spokesman for the organized foreign language newspapers of the country. In this capacity I delivered, at the invitation of the International Press Congress held in San Francisco, the address before that body on behalf of the Foreign Language Newspapers of America, and have since addressed various commercial bodies in the same capacity. Arrangements are now under way to have me deliver under the same auspices similar addresses before Chambers of Commerce or other commercial associations in the chief centres of the country, and I am informed by the American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers that dates for my appearance before such bodies are being arranged in about fifteen of our larger cities.

At my suggestion the Foreign Language Newspapers Association has decided to use its influence and efforts to bring about an organization of the general business interest of the country for the purpose of combatting by practical means the freak laws and coercive legislation, which are becoming an increasing menace to the property rights of the citizen and the business development of the country, and I have been placed in the position to interview and discuss plans for such an organization with some of the leading commercial men of the country.

The Association had recently in contemplation the summoning of a convention of the 1250 German and foreign language newspaper editors in Washington for the purpose of laying out a concerted policy to be pursued by this great press in its crusade against the destructive tendencies of those who are to-day controlling the legislation of the country, and to present resolutions embodying the views of this press to the President of the United States, and to the Governor of the individual States of the Union. The holding of this convention was made conditional upon my agreeing to deliver the address at the convention and take charge of the necessary work incident to the carrying out of the policy decided upon by all the newspapers concerned.

To my great regret, owing to the circumstances in which I have now been placed, with practically no funds under my control, and the funds actually promised me withheld, I saw myself unable to undertake this work, and this important move has in consequence, for the present at least, been abandoned.

For the same reasons, I shall be compelled to notify the American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers that, unless present conditions are altered, when the arrangements now in effect between that Association and myself terminate, namely on January 1st and May 1st, 1916, I shall not be able to renew them, as they involve personal guarantees which I am no longer able to fulfill. I shall of course continue to maintain active relations with the Association in any direction in which I may be rendered able to do so, but the educational campaign in the press itself and the vast groundwork of the organization I have thereby been instrumental in creating during the past two years, will, I greatly regret to say, be destroyed at the very moment, when, with adequate means, it is capable of producing the most effective and far-reaching results.

The President of the American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers has informed me that he has been repeatedly approached during the past eighteen months and urged to carry on this organization and general campaign work in cooperation with men other than myself in your Association, but that he has refused.

The same condition exists in reference to the organization bureau established by the German-American Alliance in conjunction with my own organization and in accordance with certain plans and policies suggested by me two years ago. The first Vice-President of the National Alliance and the Chairman of its Organization Bureau tells me that he has been approached through certain channels and informed that I shall not have the means after January 1st of continuing the arrangements under which his bureau and my organization are working, but that if he will continue to carry on the organization established through me along the lines hitherto pursued, the necessary financial means will be supplied through other parties in your Association, provided he will work under their direction instead of under mine. This, he has notified me, he will refuse to do, so that, unless other elements in the Alliance are willing to take over the work, so ably conducted by him, this important organization work will likewise be destroyed.

The German-American Alliance Organization Bureau has done active work in holding meetings, forming new branches and societies and instilling new life into old branches in Illinois and Ohio, and, through the German Press and the German Clubs and societies in Texas, created a strong agitation in that State against the franchise amendment recently defeated there, which would have disfranchised a very large number of foreign born voters. The Foreign Language Press Association performed the same work among the foreign language newspapers published in Texas.

Since the field force at the command of the bureau of the German-American Alliance consists of only three men, when it ought to be five or six times that number, it is not possible to cover more than a limited amount of ground in one year. The whole force has for the past months been engaged in organization in Ohio, where the most important campaign affecting the interests is now in progress.

Practically my entire available field staff (ten men) are today at work in Ohio, in charge of the campaign work in the various counties, or groups of counties, in which organization is in progress, and many of them have been at work there since the beginning of the year.

I should mention that the representatives of labor working with me have been so employed since the beginning of the year. Mr. Adolph Kummer, in particular, having, at the urgent request of Mr. Proebstle, been working at my instruction for the past ten months under that gentleman's direction in Ohio. This will prove of interest to your Board, in view of the fact that the statement was made at a recent meeting of your Executive Committee that Mr. Proebstle had expressed himself in a disparaging manner about Mr. Kummer.

I regret that in the case of my labor bureau also I am informed that intimation has been conveyed by a representative of the U. S. Brewers' Association to the Brewery Workers Union that it is intended to withhold from me the means to carry on my work in conjunction with labor, with the consequence that the elements co-operating with me have been thrown into a state of uncertainty and unrest and that the confidence between those elements and myself which is essential to effective joint work has been largely undermined.

Surveys have been made of Kentucky, at the request of the Kentucky interests, of Maine, at the request of Mr. Gardiner, and of Ohio, at the request of the Ohio interests.

GENERAL LITERARY AND PUBLICITY WORK.

Apart from my own speeches and writings, which through certain influential channels have been placed in the hands of the leading business men and other prominent men of the country, with the result that a considerable correspondence has ensued with many of them, the salient features of the past year have been the progress made with the news-bureau established last August, and the Hearthstone Magazine, which this August reached a circulation in paid individual subscriptions among the smaller communities of the country, of 301,000.

The news-bureau now supplies its weekly news-letter to over 5,300 of the 12,000 weekly papers of the country, all published in the smaller towns, and the list is steadily increasing. The total circulation of these papers is conservatively estimated at 1,000 copies each, so that the actual circulating medium of publicity here utilized represents 5,300,000 subscribers, and, since each copy of a newspaper is conceded on an average to be read by between three and four individuals, the total readers actually reached every week amount to between 15 and 16 million.

The actual pieces of literature reaching readers by means of this bureau and the foreign language press alone may be computed, according to another method of reckoning sometimes used in this connection, to be 431 million annually, namely:

Foreign Language Newspapers 6,000,000 reproductions of personal liberty articles 26 times a year	156,000,000
5,300,000 reproductions of our news-letter in 5,300 weekly papers having a total circulation of 5,300,000, 52 times a year	275,600,000
Total	431,600,000

It is to be noted, also, that these pieces of literature not only go to the individual readers direct, but are paid for by them, and it may therefore be presumed that they are actually read.

The circulation of the Hearthstone was increasing so rapidly in advance of the advertising rates that it was thought wise, for financial reasons, to stop further increase until September, when the advertising rate increased from 40¢ a line to 70¢ a line, and the actual linage contracted for at the increased rate in that and the following months promises to more than double, thus enabling me to largely increase the circulation, while reducing the average cost.

At this juncture, however, your financial committee passed a resolution directing the discontinuance of this publication as soon as conveniently possible. As I was unable to convince the committee that it was destroying one of the most valuable assets I had built up, and one which within a year or two would double and treble in value, not only at no additional cost, but at a steadily decreasing one, I appealed to the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association to save this asset, with the result that I have the assurance that, provided this Association can secure the means, which it will know before the middle of October, it will guarantee me sufficient funds to carry on and extend the publication.

The play "The Passing of Hans Dippel", presenting the story of a German saloon-keeper of the highest respectability being gradually ruined by the dry movement and his business destroyed without compensation by the operation of the option law, was produced by an excellent company in November and December last in eight cities in Ohio and Missouri, but owing to the complete collapse of the theatrical business at that period, which was practically universal, was withdrawn at the end of the year.

The contribution of weekly articles to the labor press through Brauer-Zeitung has continued throughout the year.

A complete collection of my articles and addresses on personal liberty and the prohibition question has been published in book form, with my permission, by a publishing firm, and I understand that the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association offered to pay a pro rata share of the cost of providing all the libraries of the country with a copy of this book, if the United States Brewers' Association would join in the undertaking. But the proposition was refused by the United States Brewers' Association, whereupon the N. W. L. D. A. undertook the entire cost, and the book is now available in every library in the country.

A compilation of the population of the United State of foreign origin or extraction by states and cities, with their actual voting strength, and the location of the foreign language newspapers, has been prepared and is ready to be placed in the hands of campaign managers, wherever elections may be called.

STAMP PLAN.

Every effort has been made to extend and perfect the discount stamp plan inaugurated by the National Association of Commerce and Labor, and some progress has been made in certain directions. But the official disapproval of the Board of Trustees of the method of putting the plan in operation as originally devised has deterred the interests in many localities from co-operating in the plan, whilst all our endeavors to carry it out in those localities in conformity with the wishes of the President and Board of Trustees have met with insurmountable obstacles.

FINANCIAL.

My organization has received from the Treasury of the United States Brewers' Association since September 1st, 1914, that is to say in fourteen months, including October 1st, 1915, $16.666.66 towards the funds for its support. I was summoned before your Executive Committee early in the year, and, after an exhaustive discussion of the estimates of expenditure for the ensuing twelve months and the fund I had accumulated, together with the probable income to be expected from the sale of stamps, I was informed that a sum of $100.000 had been voted by the Board towards my fund during that period. I have conducted the organization and laid out its work in accordance with that assurance, but as only $16.666 has been paid of that sum in the seven months including October 1, 1915, my reserve fund has now fallen below the amount necessary to enable me to discharge the personal liabilities I have undertaken. In fact, the Brewers' fund which I had accumulated was exhausted in April, so that the $16.666.66 actually remitted from your Treasury has not sufficed since then to pay my own personal reimbursement for more than six of those seven months.

I have been informed that your Executive Committee, when asked for remittances under the appropriation made by your Board, declined to make further remittances until an audit of my expenditures had been made, and a firm of public accountants was accordingly employed by the finance committee for that purpose. This firm, through six or seven of its employees, has since investigated down to the minutest and most delicate details all the dealings and operations of my organization from the date of its inception, and its voluminous report and figures, compiled from our books and vouchers, are, I believe now in the hands of the President.

Respectfully submitted.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE PRESS.

This expense consists entirely of items connected with the translation of the Personal Liberty Articles into twenty nine languages, on which work we have a special staff of twelve men, mostly college teachers, of high literary attainments. Over two thousand priests and over one thousand Jewish Rabbis receive the American Leader from us, and their comments on the articles and in many cases their enthusiastic approval of this campaign of education constitute one of the best and most effective assets we have.

We have one of the officials of the American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers travelling under our direction, and visiting every editor with credentials from the Association. The work done through the Association, the meetings inaugurated under its auspices, and the large number of volunteer workers which it placed at our disposal, turned the recent election in Ohio.

The President of the Association has placed a great portion of his time at our disposal, visiting the clergy and the leaders of the foreign language citizenship in various centers and enlisting their co-operation among the rank and file in their congregations.

We have the services of a special press representative of the German Press, who has induced over three hundred German newspapers to republish the Personal Liberty articles, and who, under the direction of the Association, is paving the way for the establishment of a German Press Association working in conjunction with the Association of Foreign Language Newspapers.

Meetings are to be called all over the country, to be addressed by me on the subject of definite organization, and the leading men of each community where such meetings are to be held, will be invited to attend. Mr. Charles Nagel, and other prominent men, such as the Hon. Cabot Ward, ex-Governor of Porto Rico, and President of the New York Park Commission, have agreed to speak with me at these meetings, and to endorse the program to be presented. The meetings are to take the form of luncheons, and it is the intention to invite the leading men in our industry in each city to be present.

It is impossible to estimate this cost, which will comprise the travelling expenses of the speakers, including Mr. Hammerling, and the cost of the luncheons. I have estimated this expense at $15,000. It may be more, and it may be less.

Arrangements have been prepared to open the columns of the English Press to the aims and the policy of the organized foreign press by supplying short editorials to be reprinted by the English Dailies, and if this plan can be perfected the cost is estimated at between $10,000 and $15,000.

Here again the cost comprises translators and the supplying of the Leader to the English Dailies.

GERMAN-AMERICAN ALLIANCE.

This feature should be extended. It goes hand in hand with the survey and general education work, and if increased will be of exceedingly great value. This department can do by far its best work when no campaigns are in progress. It is operating or about to operate at present in Illinois, where there are two hundred thousand Germans to organize, in Texas, where the work of organization done among the Germans during the recent campaign there can be doubled and trebled within the next year (thus greatly increasing our strength for the next campaign), and in Iowa, where the same statement applies. It will be required in the coming campaign in Kentucky, and in any other States where elections are in prospect.

SURVEY AND ORGANIZATION DEPARTMENTS.

The staff consists of 15 men.

The chief of the Department receives $7,500 a year. His work consists of the general direction of the department and the carrying out of the organization work, through the unions, the German-American Alliance and other channels.

He was in charge of the recent Campaign in Ohio in the southern part of that State, and also of the Iowa Campaign and of the work done by this Bureau in Texas, Kentucky and Illinois.

There are two Union men in the department, one receiving $5,000 a year, and the other $3,000 a year. The first was Labor Commissioner of the State of Ohio under Governor Harmon, to whom I recommended him, the second is one of the best men known to me among the leaders of the Brewery Workers Union. Their efficiency is beyond all question, for I have known and worked with them for six years.

The salaries of the remaining eleven men amount to an aggregate of $30,000.

They consist mostly of political workers, former senators or state representatives, all of whose ability has been tested by me in the past five or six years in campaigns and similar work in Ohio.

They were all active in the recent Ohio Campaign, some in charge of county work, and it was largely their efforts which enabled the huge initiative petition for the Home Rule Amendment of 304,000 names to be procured there in the short space of three weeks.

Their training in the special work of surveying and in the work of applying the knowledge obtained by the survey is invaluable, and if once this force is disbanded, it would take a year, if not more to bring together and train another set of men.

NEWSPAPER AND NEWS BUREAU WORK.

I explained this department in detail during my recent visit to Philadelphia. It is not of a nature to permit of an intelligent outlining in a written report.

OFFICE SALARIES & WAGES, STENOGRAPHERS, CLERKS & GENERAL OFFICE EXPENSE.

We have eight stenographers and bookkeepers.

Their work consists in tabulating, filing and recording our survey material by States, making copies for campign managers, keeping the files of the 850 newspapers that publish the Personal Liberty articles, type-writing, keeping our books and vouchers and performing the office work generally.

At times when special publicity matter is being prepared or issued, this staff is temporarily greatly increased. We have issued nearly a million pieces of specal literature during the year, and written many tons of thousands of letters and other communications to our list of correspondents. These lists contain between 60,000 and 100,000 names, and our total lists for mailing literature, comprising the clergy, the legal profession, congressmen, senators, legislators, newspapers and other professions contain many hundred thousand names. We keep these sets of envelopes ready addressed in the case of our regular mailing list, such as brewers, distillers, manufacturers and dealers and special lists.

PUBLICITY (GENERAL).

Consists of the preparation of such articles for the Foreign Language Press as I cannot write myself, for the German Press and for the Labor Press, and the printing and mailing of literature, such as speeches, articles and other matter. Nearly a million pieces of such literature were issued last year, the cost of which is included in this item.

TRAVELLING EXPENSES.

This is a mere estimate and must vary according to circumstances. All our men travel, and in frequent cases we have to pay the expenses of others who either come to us for consultation or whom we send in our interest to this or the other place.

CONGRESSIONAL WORK.

I would again refer to what I believe to be the urgent need of investigating and organizing the liberal elements in congressional districts, in the same way as this has been done in State legislative districts by means of the survey and organization methods we have applied there.

The recent experience in Congress seems to me to render this imperative.

The Anti-Saloon League is proceeding with the same organization tactics congressionally, that it has applied with so much success in State campaigns, and unless it is met, on national ground, with counter-organization on our part, it will in time secure an overwhelmingly dry representation in Congress as it has so often succeeded in securing in State Legislatures.

SEPT. 5, 1913.

Mr. PERCY ANDREAE,
Chicago, Ill.

DEAR MR. ANDREAE,—Since writing, Mr. Busch referred to me the enclosed letter from Mr. Richard Bartholdt with reference to Dr. Hexamer's request and I also enclose Mr. Busch's note to me on that subject.

I believe you will fully agree with everything Mr. Bartholdt says about the German-American Alliance, and it may be well to send copies of this letter to some of the gentlemen who you think would co-operate with Mr. Busch, as Mr. Bartholdt so ably sets forth the aims and purposes of the German American Alliance, of which some of the gentlemen may not have been informed. You can retain Bartholdt's letter, but I wish you would return Mr. Busch's note to me.

Mr. Bartholdt will, no doubt, be a conspicuous figure at the meeting of the German-American Alliance which will be held in our city the first week of next month, but the time is rather short and to accomplish anything no time can be lost. The announcement of this permanent fund being provided for would arouse great enthusiasm in the convention here and we could, more then ever depend upon the hearty co-operation of the Alliance.

I believe, if you will make an appeal to Mr. Ruppert, Mr. Ehret and some of the other large brewers, the fund can be raised, as the contribution will be comparatively small if fifteen gentlemen co-operate.

Yours very truly,

E. S. CLAUSS.

The following surveys are submitted to illustrate what is meant by a survey and what is comprehends. These are merely samples of hundreds of similar surveys in the files of the National Association of Commerce and Labor.

EXHIBIT No. 1038.

1. County, Deaf Smith, 4500 pop. County Seat, Hereford, 2000. Congressional District, 13; Senatorial District, 29; Legislative District, 123. Princi-all Cities in County, Hereford, Incorporated a few years ago, but revoked by special election 1912.

No. 2. In the state wide Prohibition election Precinct No. 1 comprising Hereford, the returns were thrown out by the commissioner as they were not properly made. The unofficial count of the Hereford vote was for 89 against 16.

2. Prohibition vote State wide Campaign of 1911: 241.

3. Anti-Prohibition vote State wide Campaign of 1911: 49.

4. Are there saloons in the County? No.

5. If so, how many?

6. How many beer saloons?

7. How many saloons where general liquors are sold?

8. Have they ever had a vote upon the liquor question in the county as a whole, and if so what was the result? Yes. June, 1902, For 105, against 86. 1898 the county voted Dry. In 1900 Wet, and 1902 went Dry again and has been Dry ever since. No records could be found of the first two elections. Hereford vote was for 41, against 44.

9. If they have not had a vote on the liquor question in the county as a whole, have they had such a vote in any incorporated city of such county? No.

10. Name such incorporated cities:

11. Give the results in each if such elections have been held:

12. How many Commissioner Districts in the County? 4

13. Has there ever been a vote on the liquor question in any of the Commissioner Districts? No

14. If so, enumerate each District, and give the result:

15. How many Justice of the Peace Districts in the County? 1

16. Has there ever been a vote on the liquor question in any Justice of the Peace District? No

17. If so, how many?

18. Give the Justice of the Peace District numbers where these elections have been held, and the result in each:

19. How many School Districts are there in the County? 8

20. Have they ever had a vote upon the liquor question in School Districts? No

21. If so, enumerate District, and give result in each:

22. If no elections have been held in the County what is the sentiment in the County on the liquor question: The county is safely a prohibition county. There has been no liquor agitation for the past twelve years, and is none now. Nearly all the prominent men and politicians are prohibitionist. The whole county seems to lack interest in anything political, and it was difficult to find any one interested enough to discuss the prohibition agitation going on in the balance of the state. I was able to find only two men in the town of Hereford, of any prominence, who are Antis.—Cap Englisle, and Charles Burkett.

23. How do you get your conclusion? By interviewing J. S. Jones, County Clerk, Dem.; D. F. Ashbrook, Republican County Chairman; D. L. McDonald, Republican; Wm. M. Knight, Lawyer & Merch. Dem.; John Sherman, Cashier Western National Bank.

Robertson told me he would be a candidate, but that he positively would not ake a campaign, nor spend a cent for the office, but if the Democrats ran im without opposition, he would be a candidate. He told me he was a Pro nd is in his own town of Waelder, but he was elected and selected to run by ne Antis of Gonzales City. The Antis wanted to run R. S. Dilworth who is ne of the biggest bankers Anti Pro. in the county, but he could not run on ccount of his business. T. W. Rainbolt, a strong Dem. Anti, went over and nduced Robertson to run, and guaranteed him election without opposition, and ll they wanted was fair treatment. Robertson accepted, and was elected. He oted with the Antis on all important measures, and became very much dis usted with the Pro tactics in Austin. He is a Pro at home, as Waelder is in he cattle district and the cow boys used to come in and shoot up the town, nd as there was no regulation and no police protection, he helped vote the own dray. He has since been classed a Pro. He is building a home in Gon ales at Mesent, and will move there in a few weeks. All his friends and usiness associates in Gonzales are Anti, and they tell me he can be depended upon to vote Anti all the way through.

SENATORIAL.

DIST. NO. 12, KEOKUK COUNTY.

Present Senator H. W. Spaulding, of Grinnell, Rep.

Saw J. A. Devitt, of Oskaloosa, formerly member of State Central Committee from the 6th Congressional District. He suggested that the man to run for Senator, on the Republican ticket, was F. C. LEGOE, an attorney, of What Cheer, this Co. Devitt says he is a popular man, would make a good campaign, is liberal, and has been employed by Mr. Schumacher as the attorney for the Rock Island Brg. Co. Mr. Devitt has had several talks with him and will do all he can to encourage him to run, and suggests that we get Mr. Schumacher to see him and assure him of assistance and help. Devitt is of the opinion that if Legoe receives the proper assurance of help he can be induced to run and be elected.

S. A. F. Oct 3 1913.

DELTA.

(Nov. 19, 1913.)

Went to Delta from Oskaloosa, to see Sam Wilson, but found him to be out of town. Talked with various persons. No local candidates for State Offices, and not much interest.

WHAT CHEER.

Went to What Cheer and saw Jas. Mitchell, a Banker. Mitchell is one of the men whom Devitt asked me to see in the interests of Legoe. Mitchell said he had not heard of Legoe as a candidate, and was not particularly impressed with the idea of him running for the office and considers him a weak sister.

Mitchell seemed to favor Spaulding (present Senator) of Poweshiek County for a second term, although it is Keokuk County's term to nominate. He seemed to be unaware of Spaulding's "dry" record. He says Mr. Needham, of S gourney, had been mentioned for the Senate.

George Poff, Editor, of this City, says in an interview, about a week prior to my visit, with Spaulding, that the latter said he expected to be a candidate for the Senate, if no particular opposition developes. Poff says Legoe can not be elected, and that he is not popular locally. He says he will support him if necessary. That means that if Jim Devitt says for Poff to support Legoe he will do it.

Talked with Reed, a druggist, of this city, who is a Bull Mooser politically but personally is liberal. He had heard of no candidate for any office, but said he would do what he could for us if the opportunity arises.

KEOTA.

Next went to Keota, this County, and saw John Hamilton, a druggist and stockman, who is a republican and is personally interested in the campaign of Trumbauer for re-election. He is a little afraid that Trumbauer's vote on the Road and Capitol Extension Laws is going to make more or less trouble, and particularly at the primaries. He will write me later.

A. W. Hammill, also of Keota, a republican and retired; he thinks Legoe can be elected if no Bull Moose ticket is put in the field. There is some talk of Hammill being a candidate for the Senate, but he says he is not a candidate for any office. No local candidates for the state in Keota.

SIGOURNEY.

Next went to Sigourney. Talked with W. L. Etter Editor of the Review, and democratic. He says he thinks Trumbauer will need help, on account of his vote on the Capitol Extension bill. Says there is no question that Legoe will be beaten if he receives the nomination.

H. W. Wagner republican and attorney at this town, says he is not a candidate for any office. There has been some talk of his being a candidate for the Senate. Thinks Legoe all right, but that the Bull Moose movement makes his election uncertain. Wagner is liberal and will do whatever he can for us at any time.

Hugo Goeldner, republican County Chairman, says there are no local candidates; and that he is personally acquainted with Legoe. Believes he would make a good run and would probably be elected, if there is no third ticket.

Saw Tully and Hamilton, Attorneys at Sigourney. Hamilton is Democratic Chairman; and he is quietly investigating the situation in the 6th. congressional Dist. to see whether he could in any possibility get the nomination for Democratic congressman over Kirkpatrick. If he thinks there is a chance he will be a candidate. If Hamilton is not a candidate for that office, then Tully expects to be a candidate for the State Senate. Hamilton, as County Chairman, says they expect to hold off nominating any candidates until after the republican candidates are named, and the Bull Moose ticket, if there should be any, is made up. They both think the Democratic Senator can be elected but that Trumbauer is in danger.

J. H. Wylie, State Chairman of the Bull Moose, says in all probability candidates will be named for a majority of the offices in the state, and particularly for the legislature; but he qualified his statement to the extent that a fusion candidate might be selected in some counties where there was a possibility of electing him.

Wylie knows Legoe and thinks well of him, and said he might possibly be endorsed by the Progressives as Legoe has strong progressive tendencies.

DISTRICT NO. 12—KEOKUK AND POWESHEIK COUNTIES.

While the sentiment in Keokuk County is about even upon the Wet and Dry question, the sentiment in Powesheik County is strongly Dry. Spaulding, the present Senator, is a Dry Republican. Reports indicate that he will not be a candidate to succeed himself. If he continues to maintain this position, the Republicans of Keokuk should be busy in claiming Keokuk's turn for the nomination.

The Republican leaders in Keokuk County should be urged to select a Liberal Republican as their candidate. The district is about 750 to 1000 Republican, and if a Liberal Republican is nominated his election is almost certain. To safeguard against any slipup a Liberal Democrat should be urged to seek the Democratic nomination.

In Keokuk County Trumbaur, the present Representative, is a Wet Democrat. He was elected by 614 votes and is serving his first term. He should be urged to seek reelection. Keokuk County being close no effort should be overlooked to have the Republicans nominate a Liberal man for Representative. In Powesheik, the present Representative, Sherman, is serving his second term. He is a Dry Republican. From both standpoints he reflects the sentiment of the county. For his first term he was elected by 1150 plurality; for his second term by only 183 plurality. In this county it would of course be the part of good judgment to stir up sentiment against a third term for Sherman and see if a Liberal Republican can be brought forward to defeat him for renomination. In view of the close shave he had in the last election such a plan of campaign against Sherman should be successful. The Democratic end should not be overlooked. A Liberal Democrat should if possible be urged to seek his party nomination for Representative in this county, as the closeness of the plurality given Sherman in the last election shows that there are political influences at work that might result in the election of a Democrat.

By reference to reports of these counties it will be seen that the elements for organization outside the political parties are small.

MARCH 17, 1915.

Mr. HERBERT S. STONE, New York.

MY DEAR MR. STONE: I have spent the day in running down those statistics of clergy by denominations, and at last I have got at the facts. The figures for the clergy of the United States used by the various Almanacs all emanate from the Federal Council of Churches, with headquarters at 4th Ave. and 22nd St. The Council gets them from Dr. Carroll, its statistical secretary. His office and residence are now in Washington, D. C. He is the final authority on these matters.

The estimate of 178,000 clergy in the U. S. given in the World Almanac is from Dr. Carroll, and the various year books giving the names and addresses are in the office in 22nd Street. They have the names and addresses with the exception of six or seven thousand of the more obscure bodies, and for these they had to estimate the number of clergy. These clerical lists, by denominations, are available to any person properly introduced, with the proviso that they are not to be used for "commercial" purposes. I think I could have gotten permission to copy them even without this proviso, as the secretary seemed very well disposed, but I judged it best not to use them. It might cause criticism afterwards, and it is just the kind of circumstance that narrow-minded people would love to get hold of and exploit. It is far better to get the lists independently, and then nobody can complain. I can get all these lists, though it will take some time. I have obtained from the Secretary an official list of all the denominations, though he did not have the addresses of their head-quarters, as Dr. Carroll has that in Washington. Now if you will send me a list of the denominations whose lists you already have, I will get to work at once to secure the others. Send me, please, not only the lists, but the number of clergy in each of your lists. The names often are almost identical, and a layman might easily conclude that he had all the Baptists, etc., whereas he would have only one of several divisions. The figures will enable me to check this up. I think it is better for me to send for these lists, as they involve correspondence with clerical secretaries.

I found this morning that the printer had ordered the paper, and that the order is ready for delivery, on the basis of my original order; so that we are responsible for it. However it will all be needed, as the lists come in.

Very truly,

E. A. WASSON.

Of course in the above I do not mean that you should send me the lists of the clergy, but only of the denominations, so that I may not be put to the trouble of sending for those you already have.

Mr. C. W. FEIGENSPAN, City.

MY DEAR MR. FEIGENSPAN: When I sent you the various documents by Mr. Laile on Monday afternoon, I did not include the sample chapter, for the reason it will probably be as convenient to refer to it in the book.

It has occurred to me to add a suggestion to my letter accompanying the documents. How far is it advisable to let the publisher of the propaganda advertising matter know that your Committee is pushing it? Mr. Fox considered it so important that the publisher of the book should not know anything that he had the 2500 review books sent out through me, sending me the lists, etc. I turned the bills over to him, and the matter was settled through me. I suggest that your Committee draw up complete specifications for the work, and submit them to several publishers of standing;—in fact, submit them to the printers who usually do the work for the Committee. Also let me have a copy of them and get figures from the publisher of the book. In this way you would have a check on the latter. If his figures are higher than the others, I might crowd him down on pain of losing the job. But I am pretty sure that he will not differ from the others very much. If the specifications are complete and plain, I think you will find that the printers will not differ much in their estimates.

The point is that if the estimator of the Burr Printing House,—or any other concern,—know that it is your Committee that is acting, the members of the firm will know, and then the book-keepers, and the stenographers, and before long the thirty or forty or fifty pressmen and other workers. Nothing is gained by admitting unnecessary people to your counsels. However, this is just my idea, submitted for what it is worth.

JAN. 4, 1915

Mr. C. W. FEIGENSPAN, Chairman
Newark, N. J.

MY DEAR MR. FEIGENSPAN: The purpose is to get the substance of my book, "Religion and Drink," in the hands and minds of the clergy of the country. This is to be effected in the way of a Prospectus from the Publisher, to be mailed to them. This Prospectus will consist of four documents, as follows:

1. A brief introductory letter from the Publisher.
2. A sample chapter, namely "Religion and Law"; which chapter many competent judges pronounce to be, not only the heart of the book, but also the most effective discussion of the subject to be fund anywhere, and peculiarly timely in the present stage of the prohibition propaganda.
3. An extended synopsis of the book.
4. A synopsis of the book reviews.

These four documents together will make between fifty and sixty pages of print, well got up, attractive to the eye, convenient to handle.

In reference to the get-up, it is suggested that the Synopsis of the Book and the Synopsis of the Reviews be stapled together, thus reducing the expense somewhat.

Mr. Andreae's dummy for the sample chapter is not satisfactory to me, in that, while the same stock as the book, the dimensions of the page are different. It seems to me that a sample chapter should be a true sample in every respect; and, so far as I can see, nothing is gained in this instance by departing from this rule. The cost would be the same both ways.

The nature of the enterprise necessitates that the work be done by the publishers of the book, inasmuch as it would be absurd for another publisher to take up and advertise a book not his, and out of which therefore he could not realise anything. Besides, there is no reason for seeking another publisher, since I am positive none will do any better by you. To satisfy yourselves on his head, I suggest that you submit the complete specifications for the work to one or two other reputable publishers, and get their figures. The estimates of the Burr Printing House, Jacob and Frankfort Sts., New York, the printers of my book, on this job are considerably lower than those given by Mr. Andreae in his letter, enclosed herewith. In my judgment also the stock, as they showed it to me, is superior. For Mr. Andreae's stock the figures ought to be lower. Moreover the figures of the Burr Printing House include a cover, of somewhat stiffer paper, for the combined synopses. I do not know whether this is covered in Mr. Andreae's estimate or not; nor do I know whether such a cover would be any advantage or not.

Mr. Andreae mentions two cents for the postage, or four cents if sealed. I impressed on the Burr House that the whole document, envelope included, must not weigh more than two ounces, and their arrangement of the matter brings it within this limit. Now two ounces can be posted for one cent, a very material saving.

If a wrapper were to be substituted for an envelope, there would be a saving also, but I do not know whether to recommend this or not, as I should have to see the two, to judge.

I naturally have a good deal of interest in the details of the get-up of this publication, and I wish very much that I could be shown what is proposed, before it is finally decided on. My only wish is to have a sightly and effective document.

Evidently, in this document of between fifty and sixty printed pages, I am virtually sending my book, or the substance of it. Moreover in making up a mailing list designed to elicit orders, a different principle would be followed; that is, a discrimination would be exercised so as to exclude those unlikely to buy. Mr. Andreae called my attention to the fact that I could not expect to sell the number of books proportioned to the magnitude of this advertising, as it was not undertaken with this as the first object. No doubt this advertising will result in a certain number of sales. But will it be enough to afford me a fair recompense for my contribution to the enterprise? Possibly it will. Possibly it will not. It seems to me, therefore, no more than fair that the Committee should guarantee me the sale of a given number of volumes. That is, if the sales do not reach that number, the Committee should take enough books to make up the difference. These books, if any, could be profitably placed in Public Libraries. The number of guaranteed sales I suggest as 1500.

I remain, very truly,

E. A. WASSON.

FEB. 23, 1915.

Mr. HERBERT S. STONE,
New York, N. Y.

MY DEAR MR. STONE: Enclosed please find estimate for the printing. I forget just what the figures were that you quoted to me, but my impression is that the ones I am sending are a bit higher. I think you said 2100 or 2200 dollars. If this is correct, the difference is small, and I think may be accounted for by slight expansions in the specifications. First, there is the order blank, which the printer told me was absolutely necessary in a prospectus of this sort, and which I had not thought of. He says an advertisement of this character is never sent out without an order blank. He proposes to use the lower part of the Publisher's Note for the order blank, being scored or perforated for easy separation from the body of the Note. Accordingly I told him to figure this order blank in his estimate, without making a separate item of it. Secondly, he strongly advises against binding the Publisher's Note (the one page letter) with the rest of the document. He claims it will not attract the attention that it should, and that a man may not be willing to start on a 64 page document, unless he first becomes interested in it by this separate Note. It costs a little more to make it separate, but he says it will secure attention to the enclosure as could be done in no other way. Again, he strongly advises against using the smaller types for the sample chapter and the Synopsis, though it is proper for the Reviews. I forget the designation of these types, and I see he does not name them in his letter, but they are the ones we suggested. I feel like deferring to him in this, as he has had a large experience in this line. I suppose this larger type means more paper for the job, but I can not think this is a big item. Besides, he brings the whole document within 64 pages and two ounces in weight, which is what we wished. Again, there were more words, he figures, in the manuscript than I thought,—some five or six hundred more, and I suppose this makes some difference. Of course I could reduce it to the 15,000 we calculated on, but I have already cut it down to the quick, and I don't like to sacrifice any more.

I had him figure on the envelope too, of which you gave me a sample. He strongly advises printing a few words on the envelope calling attention to the character of the enclosure. He says an absolutely plain envelope is a mistake. Even if we used merely the words, "RELIGION AND DRINK," in large bold type, it would serve to interest clergymen, particularly, in what was inside. If this printing were done on the envelopes, as a separate job, the cost would be an item. But he says the envelopes can be printed in the process of making, and then the additional cost is negligible. This point, of putting something on the envelope, appeals to me. I also wish it might seem well to you to have this work of enveloping and posting done from the Publisher's, as I should like to be in a position to say that the whole job was attended to by them. I think it would look better. I would not advocate this, if their price were materially higher than others, but it seems to me the figures for this item are moderate.

If you wish, I will get to work to crowd down their figures on the whole job, and if you think they are excessive I will do so. But I hope it will not be necessary, as this is not quite in my line. My dealings with them for the publication and distribution of my book convinced me that they were honest, reliable men. Kindly let me know what you think of it.

Very truly,

E. A. WASSON.

I see, on re-reading the publisher's letter, that he makes the order blank separate, instead of attaching it to the Publisher's Note. However, this is a mere detail.

MR. HERBERT S. STONE
New York.

MY DEAR SIR: The printer is ready to begin shipment of the booklet, and I think he might as well do so, without waiting till the whole job is completed. Please send me directions as to where shipment is to be made. The consignees ought to be instructed to receive this job, as they have no relations with either myself or the Burr Printing House.

I am receiving many clerical lists every day, and am ready to send them where you direct. These lists are in year books, and of course intelligence must be exercised not to copy other lists that may be in the same volume. I can send either the whole year-books or I could remove and forward the sheets containing the clerical lists. Please let me know which you prefer.

The Baptist list for the whole country is available, but I have not procured it, for the reason that it is always more or less obsolete, being made up from the Baptist Annuals, of which one is published in every State. I have sent for these State Annuals, and have most of them already.

The new Catholic list is out. I did not buy it, as I understood that you had ordered it.

I assume that the "Presbyterian" list which you have is that of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America. The Presbyterian Church in the United States is a different organization, and I am sending for this list. Also there are half a dozen other Presbyterian Churches; whose lists I am sending for.

Likewise I assume that the Methodist-Episcopal Church whose list you have is not the Methodist Church of the South. I have sent for this list.

The seperate documents to be enclosed are four: introductory letter, order blank, sample chapter, synopsis & reviews in one.

It is important that the order blank and the introductory letter be inserted in the sample chapter, and that they project sufficiently to attract attention.

Every minister in the city of Paterson, New Jersey, was provided with a copy of my book last fall; therefore I should direct the copyists to send no circulars to Paterson, N. J.

I remain, very truly,

E. A. WASSON.

It is very important that the envelope be no heavier than the sample you gave me, as the weight of the document is adjusted to this. A somewhat smaller envelope would answer, and would have the advantage that it would allow me to use a somewhate wider margin for the document. Kindly let me know on this point. If the copying of addresses has not begun, I could send you a sample of an envelope that would meet the conditions.

MY DEAR DR. WASSON: Confirming our telephone conversation, I beg to say that Boyd's City Dispatch inform me that the weight of the paper on the pamphlets advertising your book, varies to such an extent that the post office would be unlikely to accept them at the 1¢ rate.

Will you therefore instruct the Burr Printing House to send for the pamphlets that have already been delivered to Boyd's City Dispatch and to trim them ⅛ of an inch on three sides This will surely bring them within the required weight.

As the addressing people have about 75,000 envelopes ready, this work ought to be done as rapidly as possible.

MY DEAR MR. FOX: Enclosed please find communication this day received from Dr. Wasson. The material which he refers to I am sending you under separate cover.

I think the distribution of this synopsis will be very advisable, and it would seem to me, inasmuch as we are distributing practically the entire book, that the doctor's suggestion that we guarantee sales of $1500.00 is not out of reason, particularly so in the event of our having to take over these books they could be placed in some libraries not now furnished with copies.

I take it that Dr. Wasson figures these books to be purchased at the regular price, $1.25 per copy.

The President seems to think rather well of the idea of distributing this book.

Could your office estimate the entire cost of covering the various ministers throughout the country? My understanding is that there will be considerably more than we had originally figured, and that there are closer to one hundred and fifty or one hundred and seventy-five thousand than one hundred thousand.

Will you kindly let Mr. Piel look over Dr. Wasson's summary?

Yours very truly,

C. W. FEIGENSPAN.

GENTLEMEN: This is to inform you that we have secured the services of Mr Herbert S. Stone to take up our publicity work in the field, in accordance with the suggestion made at the last meeting of the Board. Mr. Stone is a son of Melville Stone, Manager of the Associated Press, and is himself a journalist and publisher of some years experience. He studied in Switzerland and Germany; is a graduate of Harvard (1894) where he edited the Harvard "Crimson," and before his graduation he established and edited "The Chap Book," which was a small literary magazine that had considerable vogue for several years. Mr. Stone formed the publishing house of Stone & Kimball of Chicago, which was quite well known, and after selling out to Mr. Kimball he conducted a publishing business under his own name until, in 1904, he was appointed by William H. Taft, then Secretary of War, to be Chief of the publicity department of the Philippine Exposition at the St. Louis World's Fair and was later made a member of the Commission and executive officer. He contributed various articles to newspapers and magazines from time to time, and also edited and published "The House Beautiful," a monthly magazine devoted to architecture and decoration—until some months ago he sold it to the publishers of the "Atlantic Monthly."

It will, of course, take some time for Mr. Stone to organize his work and visit the various centers. He cannot do sound work if it is to be done hurriedly, and his success will depend largely upon the co-operation that he receives from our State Associations and their willingness to spend money themselves in publicity work within their own States, after the lines have been carefully prepared. If you have any suggestions to make, we shall be glad to hear from you.

Very truly yours.

HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

Dr. E. A. WASSON,
77 Milford Avenue, Newark, N. J.

MY DEAR DR. WASSON: I have taken up with Mr. Fox the question of going ahead with your booklet, and we have decided that you can give the printing order for 162,000 at once. This will enable us to have all the printed matter ready by the time we get the final lists, and in the meantime, there is no reason why our addressing people should not begin work on the envelopes and addressing.

Yours very truly,

UNITED STATES BREWERS' ASS'N.

77 Milford, Avenue, Newark, N. J.

MY DEAR DR. WASSON: I have taken up with Mr. Fox and Mr. Feigenspan the question of sending copies of your book "Religion and Drink" to various libraries. They do not feel like taking more than the 1500 copies we have greed to take but we have picked out 1500 important libraries a list of which e are mailing you today.

Will you instruct the Burr Printing House to forward copies to them? It understood the we are to pay you 75¢ a copy for these books.

Yours very truly,

Dr. HERBERT S. STONE,
New York.

DEAR SIR: I am in receipt of your note with reference to shipping books to 500 selected libraries. I am also in receipt of the library lists. The books an be shipped at once, and the whole shipment can be completed in about hree days. But first a serious misunderstanding must be cleared up. I never neant to give the impression that I would sell these 1500 for 75 cents apiece. ly proposition was that after the 1500 books concerning which I had an agreement with Mr. Feigenspan had been provided for I would sell any complementary order for libraries for 75 cents apiece. That first 1500 concerning hich the agreement was entered into some three months ago is not in question at all. I am to get $1.25 apiece for them. This is entirely independent of ny subsequent or additional orders. I should certainly be out of my senses if, aving a contract for 1500 books at $1.25, I should offer those very books at 5 cents. That was not my thought. As to that contract, it stands. My roposition was with reference to any other contract that might be entered into.

When this agreement was entered into I said to Mr. Feigenspan that the profit accruing to me from it was, in my judgment, no more than a fair return for conveying the substance and heart of my book to more than 150,000 of the people that it was most important to reach; and in this Mr. Feigenspan agreed with me.

I am ready at any time to ship out these 1500 books to the libraries on the terms agreed on with the chairman of the publicity committee, and any additional order on the terms that I named to you. The misunderstanding was due to my not making myself clear, as our conversation was hurried.

Yours truly,

E. A. WASSON.

ESTIMATE.

UNITED STATES BREWERS' ASSOCIATION,
Mr. GEORGE A. FRANZNICK,
50 Union Square, New York City.

MY DEAR GEORGE: We confirm 'phone conversation of this A. M. in connection with list of Clergymen of all denominations throughout this Country. As advised, we are in a position to prepare specially a new and revised list, which will represent in the neighborhood of 80,000 names, in the form of a hand-written copy, with the necessary street and post office address given, for the sum of $250.00. Should we, in the preparation of list, exceed the quantity estimated upon, our charge for all in excess would be pro-rata.

As mentioned over the telephone, if it is not your intention to circularize these names continually, at short intervals, we hardly consider it advisable to secure a list, and would therefore recommend that you have us perform the service of addressing envelopes to such names when you intend to circularize same, which will give you the benefit of all available names at such time, and our charge for addressing in neat commercial hand-writing, provided order is placed for the entire quantity, would be at the rate of $2.50 per M.

There is a larger number of Clergymen in this Country, but we have figured on supplying the names of only those which we are able to verify for post office addresses, although we have in our possession a larger quantity, which are constantly shifting about and have no permanent addresses. Furthermore, some clergymen are connected with two or more churches, which we have estimated on eliminating and which naturally reduces the number. By securing only those which we are able to verify means considerable saving in the form of postage and printed matter.

If order is placed for list, we require prepayment, in accordance with "Rules and Regulations" enclosed, which is no reflection on your financial responsibility, but in accordance with terms governing our List Department. If order is placed for the addressing or any other service other than list, we will give same our prompt and careful attention upon receipt of written order, rendering you invoice upon completion, in the usual manner.

Trusting that we may have the pleasure of hearing further from you by return mail, we remain,

Yours very truly,

BOYD'S CITY DISPATCH (List Department).

JUNE 9, 1915.

Mr. HUGH F. FOX,
Sec. U. S. B. A., New York.

DEAR SIR: A word or two in elucidation of some features of the accompanying bill may not be out of place.

The Library lists sent me by Mr. Stone were supposed to contain 1,500 names. I mailed to them the stock of books that I had here in Newark, as far as they went,—namely, 666 books. I sent the rest of the lists to the publisher in New York, whom I had instructed to print another edition of my book, and to mail the balance of the lists. This, it appears from his bill, amounted to 889 copies. Consequently there is an excess of 55 books over the 1,500. I had no means of knowing this in advance without counting the lists; which did not occur to me, as I supposed that had been done in Mr. Stone's office. For these surplus books I am charging at the reduced rate of 75 cents.

Mr. Stone furnished very few of the clergy lists, and asked me to look after this end of the work. This entailed correspondence with every State in the Union. Finding that the Boyd's City Dispatch had a list of their own of the colored clergy, I thought it useless to hunt these up, and instructed them to use about a third to a half of these, with due reference to locality. Their charge for addressing these envelopes (about 4,000) was to be $2.75 per thousand. This is not included in my bill. It will be sent to you.

The item of $64.80 for "retrimming," in the printer's bill, is the consequence of a mistake in Mr. Stone's office. He and I originally selected an envelope adjusted to the dummy of the pamphlets so that the combined weight was under two ounces. This envelope Mr. Stone gave me, and I turned it over to the printer, so as to avoid any misunderstanding later. I suppose the printer still has that envelope. However, when the order of envelopes was turned over to the Boyd's City Dispatch, it was found that an envelope several sizes larger had been substituted. This brought the weight up to two ounces, and necessitated sending back and retrimming the pamphlets, so as to bring the weight under two ounces.

The foregoing, I think, is all that requires explanation in the bill.

Very truly,

E. A. WASSON.

MY DEAR MR. ANDREAE: I am enclosing, for your information, copy of report on the German-American Literary Defense Committee of New York.

Very truly yours,

Secretary.

INFORMATION RE GERMAN-AMERICAN LITERARY DEFENSE COMMITTEE.

3/16/15.

In reply to your inquiry about German-American Literary Defense Committee, 150 Nassau St. (formerly 183 Williams St.) we beg to report that this Committee was organized in August 1914 for the purpose of creating reading matter and distributing its literature among citizens of the United States, presenting the German cause, etc., in the present war, including true information as to the developments of the war as well as the real causes which led to it.

The officers are as follows: Henry Weismann, Chairman (lawyer, 391 Fulton St., Bklyn.) Dr. Faust D. De Walsh, Vice Chairman (Professor in City College); Albert A. Sander, Executive Secretary (Reporter on Staats and Eagle); John G. Roth, Treas. (Retired business man of Brooklyn). Executive Board: Herman Alexander (Mgr. of German Herold); Gustave Schweppendick (Editor of German Journal); Henry Abeles (Dist. Mgr. of Germania Life Insurance Co.); Henry Pfeiffer, Max Mayr and Bruno C. Schmidt are under secretaries.

This Committee is working in conjunction with German-American Alliance, a membership corporation which was organized under the laws of the State of New York in 1909, the sole purpose of which is to promote friendly commercial relations between Germany and the United States. No officer of this Alliance receives a salary in this connection.

This Committee claims that its expenses, including rent, amounts to about $50 a week, and it is endeavoring to get 5,000 members to contribute a dollar or more each month in order to continue the distribution of the printed matter. At present it is claimed there are 70 members who contribute a dollar or more each month. None of the officers are receiving salaries.

Those interested in this committee have incorporated The Printers and Publishers Association, Inc. This is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of N. Y. in March 1915 with an authorized capitalization of $2,000,00.. par value of shares $5 each. Following are the officers: Dr. H. Schweitzer Pres., Max Steohr, Treas., and Henry Weismann, Sec'y. This corporation intends to (but has not yet) start a newspaper which will be essentially pro-German. They intend to sell the stock by popular subscription. We are told that Henry Weismann intends to give up the practice of law and devote all of his time to this paper if it becomes a success.

We believe that those who are responsible for this Committee are honest in their beliefs and that they would be good for their obligations within reason.

JANUARY THIRD, 1914.

Mr. F. W. ZOLLMAN,
719 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.

DEAR MR. ZOLLMAN: I urgently request you to arrange to attend a meeting of the leaders of our organization in the various STATES to be held at these offices at 10:30 A. M. on January 15th, for the purpose of laying out the work to be undertaken in the Congressional Districts of the country.

The matters to be discussed and considered are:

1: The general complexion of the present Congress in relation to the question of prohibition.

2: As it is expedient to take the vote on the Webb-Kenyon Bill as a basis upon which to found conclusions as to the attitude of representatives and Senators on the question of national prohibition, a careful analysis of the votes cast for and against that measure has been prepared; and the following questions will be discussed:

(a) How many of those voting "Aye" and "Nay" on that bill have been re-elected, and how are these expected to stand on the question of nation-wide prohibition?

(b) What is the attitude, if known, in your particular State of the new members of the House or Senate regarding the nation-wide prohibition question?

3: What are the known conditions relative to liberal or anti-liberal sentiment, and the possibilities of awakening and organizing the former in those Congressional districts which are at present represented by pronounced "Dry" congressmen.

4: The selection of men from our own industries in each state to act as the local representatives of my organization and to keep in daily touch with its investigation and organization work in each state.

I need scarcely emphasize the extreme importance of your being present at this meeting and bringing with you such data as you may already possess bearing upon the questions that are to be discussed. It is not the intention to call upon you to attend more than this one meeting, and if you should be able to decide at once whom you will select as the person in your state to act there in conjunction with us, I suggest that you have him accompany you, so that we may confer with him in greater detail when the meeting has completed its labors.

I may mention, for your private information, and with especial reference to the plan of organization, which I outlined on October 3rd, last, that the German American Alliance has now perfected arrangements for really effective organization all over the country, under national auspices, in conjunction with our general plan of organization; that the labor unions directly interested in our cause are preparing to conduct their campaign among all labor unions in conformity with the policy outlined at our headquarters; that the foreign language press, through its national association, with a membership of over 000 newspapers, having a circulation of over seven million, is starting a carefully prepared educational campaign which has been so outlined as to assist and promote our organization work, and that, last, not least, the National Association of Commerce and Labor, consisting of the thousands of firms depending upon our industry, has perfected methods for raising additional funds needed for the successful prosecution of all this work, which methods merely require the co-operation of the brewing and distilling industries to become automatically effective.

The enlisting of the co-operation, in this general scheme, of the retailers of the country, is the only task yet to be accomplished in order to render the general organization complete, but I shall have the privilege of addressing the National Retail Liquor Dealers Association on this subject at its forthcoming convention in Washington, on which occasion I have no doubt, from my knowledge of the leaders of that organization, that I shall secure the most enthusiastic and intelligent co-operation of that large and influential body and its constituent organizations in the various States.

I take this opportunity to inform you that all organizations affiliated with us throughout the country have been, and are being, called upon by this office to enter emphatic protests in Washington against the Works, Sheppard, and Hobson resolutions, and to do this both by petition and by individual letters and telegrams.

In this connection, it will interest you to learn that I am in receipt of information to the effect that the National German American Alliance has placed itself in communication on this subject with every German newspaper, every state branch and sub-branch of the Alliance, and every German society and club in the country, and that from those sources alone the National Alliance estimates that at least four million protests will shortly reach the Congress in Washington. The same activity is in preparation in labor union and other circles.

Please inform me by return mail whether I can rely upon your presence here on January 15th, and whom, if anybody you decide to bring with you to the meeting.

Very truly yours,

PERCY ANDREAE.

The following translations of a few of the reports of organizers of the German-American Alliance as financed by the United States Brewers Association through the National Association of Commerce and Labor, are submitted to illustrate the activities of the German-American Alliance in its efforts to organize and bring together the German element of the country for political purposes:

HAMMOND, INDIANA, March 3, 1916.

MY DEAR MR. KELLER: I have just returned from Hobart and will inform you of the events before I go to bed. We had a wonderful meeting in the opera house of the place. The town band provided music and there were about 300 persons present, half being women and young people. The teacher of the German church school presided and a quartette of the church choir sang some pretty German songs. Paster Schuelke and his entire family were present. He joined the alliance with his own signature and promised to do all in his power to promote the society. He was delighted with my address and said that I had expressed the very yearnings of his heart. It was certainly very pleasing to hear this from a Missouri uncle. The pastor's wife was filled with enthusiasm, and expressed herself as ready in case a women's alliance were founded to devote her energies to it. The enclosed resolutions were adopted and I shall telegraph them in the morning to Washington. The other resolutions signed by the officers of the city alliance in Hammond and the four richest and most influential citizens of the city were telegraphed yesterday afternoon to Senator Kern and Congressman Wood.

I hope that you will be pleased with the work accomplished. But now I must close so that you will receive this letter early in the morning.

Yours, ROBERT L. SOERGEL.

(Translated in Military Intelligence Division (6) by G. H. Allen.)

HAMMOND, INDIANA, March 6, 1916.

DEAR MR. KELLER: It is too bad that you could not have been with us Sunday. Both meetings were a great success, especially the one in Cook. The German flag waved proudly over the school-house. Rector Jurascheck is a fine man. I have great hopes of this alliance. Thus we have successfully brought eight new alliances into life. Tomorrow the work will proceed, as Mr. Barth has already informed you. Undoubtedly we shall establish two more alliances this week Mr. Barth has gone back to Chicago today. I began the preparation of the minutes (Protokolle) of the new alliances. Hearty thanks for the present to my son.

Best greetings,

R. L. SOERGEL.

P. S. Have you forgotten to send me the forms (Protokolle—forms for the proceedings)?

(Translated in Military Intelligence Division (6) by G. H. Allen.)

HAMMOND, INDIANA, March 5, 1916—12.10 at night.

MY DEAR MR. KELLER: Just in from the country and 15 minutes before train time and I shall tell you quickly that we have to-day founded two more alliances, one in Hanover Center (Cook) with 185 members and one in St. John with 105. Isn't this a very satisfactory result. To-morrow more. My hands are stiff from riding 32 miles in the automobile.

Best greetings.

ROBERT L. SOERGEL.

GOODLAND, INDIANA, April 14, 1916.

DEAR Mr. KELLER: I would not call the present missionary journey a butcher's circuit, but the holding of meetings this Sunday or in fact any time before Easter is not to be thought of; however, I am thoroughly convinced that we can here within a circuit of 50 miles certainly establish four or five vigorous, if not very large, alliances. Inasmuch as we propose to make another lecture tour through this part of the State in May, it has occurred to me that the establishment of the new alliances can be combined with the visit to those already existing. I was most agreeably received by Pastor Lindhorst in Reynolds and by Pastor Paul in Goodland and I called in both places on the Catholic priests. Rev. F. P. Koch and Rev. Anton Henneberger. The latter is a Rhinelander and almost as German as Friend Moench. But unfortunately both have very much mixed congregations. The organization meetings will take place on May 7th one in the afternoon, the other in the evening. The place of assembly, which will probably be the High School Auditorium, will be decided within the next few days. Enclosed you will find the list of names, which may receive some additions later. Now as I have the travelling funds, I shall browse around the neighborhood. Tomorrow I shall go to Kentland, Indiana, where there is said to be a very strong German Catholic congregation, then to Denham and North Judson, where the pastor of the Missouri Synod has already shown a lively interest in our affairs. If we get four new alliances we shall not have spent the money for nothing. It is better also to give the people more time for preparing for a meeting. I hope that you are well and will not be too much disappointed that I do not at once bring 200 new members home in my pocket. Please book the names.

Very faithfully,

ROBERT L. SOERGEL.

(Translated in Military Intelligence Division (6) by G. H. Allen.)

NORTH JUDSON, April 14th, 1916.

DEAR Mr. KELLER: I am sitting here in Pastor Heine's study. He has entertained me in the most gracious manner. I shall hold a meeting here on May 14. Pastor Heine promises that it will be a great success. The owner of the theater has placed it at our disposition free. On the day set, May 7th, in Goodland, where also the theater has been offered free. In Goodland two congregations, St. Antony's and Kendland will take part in the meeting. To-night I am going on to Denham. You will hear all further news by word of mouth on Monday. I believe that I have much joyful news for you. I was in Logansport yesterday evening. Many greetings from Mr. Steinmetz.

Sincerely,

ROBERT L. SOERGEL.

(Translated in Military Intelligence Division (6) by G. H. Allen.)

INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA, February 27, 1916.

MY DEAR Mr. KELLER: Hurrah! Two new Hoosier alliances will be founded to-day, one in Hanover township and the other in Schererville, the latter purely Catholic and the former purely Lutheran. The meeting in Hanover township was grand. I was only sorry that I did not have a kodak with me to take a picture of the pretty school house surrounded by vehicles and automobiles. The people are naturally still somewhat shy but the foundation is laid and upon it we can surely build further. The alliance which we founded last has, as Mr. Miller says, already 30 more members. To-morrow I am going to Crown Point. I would recommend that you send a few lines of a stimulating nature to the presidents of the new branch alliances. Would you prepare the letters for Cook P. O. Cedar Lake and St. John's. The meeting in Cook takes place Sunday, March 5th, at 2 P. M. in the school hall and in St. John's at 7.30 P. M. in the Catholic guild hall. Mr. Barth says that he has sent you the names.

Hearty greetings,

R. L. SOERGEL.

(Translated in Military Intelligence Division (6) by G. H. Allen.)

Dear Friends and racial Brothers: Whoever to-day with open eyes watches the intrigues of the elements hostile to liberty and sees what efforts are being made in the state and nation to reduce free citizens to a race of slaves, how they are everywhere endeavoring to suppress the last vestiges of self-determination, how large manufacturers in league with puritanical sectarian churches are trying to deprive the people of its rights and reduce it to a state of servitude, and how a deceived majority becomes a tyranny, must surely wonder and ask whether such things can and ought to go any further, whether the ruin of thousands and the destruction of the value of property can be endured.

The overwhelming majority of the Germans are on the side which has declared war against the enemies of liberty and is endeavoring to set bounds to the pest of hypocrisy. But individual efforts are hopeless against this gloomy situation, a large, fearless organization is needed, such as has been established in the (Deutsch-Amerikanischer Bund) German American Alliance. It was this organization which has given Germanism the necessary backbone, which has silenced the scoffers, and put an end to the signs of contempt so often seen in certain circles.

German-American National Alliance, of the United States of America.

(Incorporated by Act of Congress. Organization and Publication Committee. Joseph Keller, Chairman, 613 Merchants' Bank Bldg.)

What this great organization has accomplished in different fields during the twelve years of its existence is too well known to require mention here; it is enough to say that people have finally learned that they must take this Alliance into account and that a certain society has learned to fear it. Yet there are some Germans still who hold back and won't recognize the fact that the organization includes the whole Germanismus, both inside and outside the church, if it is going to make its influence felt and contribute to Americanism the finest and best that Germanism possesses. This requires Germanism as a whole, men and women with hearts full of ideals and not petty quibblers.

It requires first of all the support of German clubs in their entirety, associations which have maintained intact their esprit de corps, their racial pride, and their idealism. I come in this sense in the name of the organzation committee of our alliance and ask you to offer us your support in the struggle for the maintenance of German customs and in cherishing the attainments of our people.

Join your state society and lend your aid in throwing off a yoke in your state which for a generation has lain heavily upon your necks. Come to us, as it is worth while; the reward is great and the goal is noble.

With true German greetings,

For the Organization Committee,

JOSEPH KELLER, Chairman.

(Translated in Military Intelligence Division (6) by G. H. Allen.)

GREETINGS TO GERMAN-SPEAKING AMERICANS.

In this tremendous period, when, both on the battle-fields of Europe and in our own country, especially in our federal capital, the historian is overwhelmed with material, we must as an engrafted element of the citizenry of this republic and descendants of that great German race necessarily ask ourselves— "Are we going forwards, backwards, or standing still"? Standing still is commonly recognized to be in reality retrogression.

But if we apply to the events in this country since the war began the magnifying glass of candid honesty and impartiality, we must unfortunately be compelled to admit that German-Americanism has in general, to say the least, stood still and in spite of the efforts and warnings of the German American National Alliance has failed to take the proper course to make itself recognized as the formidable bulwark against lying, deceit, hatred, slander, and insult.

The leaders and lecturers of the German American National Alliance have since the establishment of this organization never failed to emphasize the fact that the greatness, the strength, and the influence of Germanism in this country lies in appreciation of itself, in the recognition of an inviolable union of ideals, which knows no limits, but only progress and upward aspiration, a union whose activity lies in the United States, protecting German style and manner and strengthening them.

It is a bitter experience for the descendents of a people like the German, which in its history for more than a thousand years has contributed so much to humanity and in its present unselfish, titanic struggle for its existence, for truth, justice, and righteousness has astounded the whole world and given unimpeachable evidence that it is inspired by an inviolable spirit of unity, to be scorned, insulted, and persecuted in the land of its free choice, in the land of the much lauded liberty, because it clings to the true, honorable, and tried traditions of fidelity and loyalty.

That the Hyphenated American, as the German American is now scornfully called, must run the gauntlet of the pro-British English press and the Anglicized Americans is largely to be ascribed to the fact that the concentration of the strength of the entire Germanism or rather of the descendents of the great German race in this land, for which such efforts were made, especially during the years just preceding the outbreak of the great war, had not yet been realized, inasmuch as, in certain circles, especially in German church circles, there was to a certain extent a hesitation at forming a union of forces with the National Alliance.

The time has certainly come for these obstructions to be removed if an avenue is to be opened for truth and true Americanism and the heritage of the distinct culture acquired by such efforts and struggles is to be preserved and the language, customs, and liberty of our fathers and forefathers are still to exist, and if the spiritual qualities of our people are to be contributed to the developing Americanism.

Let us in this critical epoch for us German Americans remember the words of Professor T. Lindsey Playner of the Central University in Kentucky, who said in his time: "Here in the New World, which possesses so much good and so much for the blessing of humanity, we believe that we are in no wise untrue to our fatherland, if we in contemplation of all that you have conferred on us our spiritual mother, cry: Hail Germania.

As guiding principle and source of teaching, courage, and hope, we may quote the words of the German pastor, Otto Wappler of Monona, Iowa, who speaks in the name of his synod: "As German pastors we should no longer look as silent spectators on the conflict of political truth and social righteousness, but enter the arena in full sight of friend and foe and with the talents which we possess serve in conflict the bold champions of the German cause, as well as we are able. Too long already have we, German pastors, at any rate most of us, Lutheran pastors, lain inactively in well protected trenches as little more than passive spectators of the conflict. But, praise God, we are finally shaken from our indolence and have determined to take our stand in the open and take an active part in the struggle for truth and righteousness before the forum of the public. Heretofore our efforts at reform were confined to the tranquillity of the church and the limited circle of the congregation. But from now on we propose to help in shedding the rays of German truthfulness, German honor, and German loyalty among the masses as far as we are able."

The Propaganda-Committee of the German American National Alliance urges therefore at the beginning of the new year that all German Americans, forgetting all separate interests, build, operate, and exercise their creative ability on the rock of true, inviolable union, on which all German life rests, on which all the higher ideals of the German can securely rest. This is the rock on which unfortunately the German American National Alliance was established too late, although the latter can look back upon many fine achievements in the German American struggle for the promotion of its peculiar culture and may be regarded in this storm-swept period as a veritable Gibraltar standing out against all vulgar, malicious insult and ridicule of the German name and against the unjust persecution of the German race and its off-spring in this land provoked by British gold.

Let us unmoved fight on with the sword of truth and courage creating an invincible might.

Let us find a basis on which the German-speaking Americans in their associations can join with their brothers in the churches and with true German honesty and frankness make the reciprocal confession:

"In the past we have not entirely understood one another and have strayed in this critical period into paths of distress and ignominy; but from now on we shall fight together the fight for light and truth against darkness and falsehood, true to the traditions of our fathers and forefathers above and true to the example of our brave brothers over yonder."

Then the time will not be far off, when, instead of hating and scoffing at the hyphenated American, people will learn to honor, respect, and love his true American loyalty as pattern for the true American.

Then, indeed, will it be possible to speak of a united German-Americanism on a firm foundation.

Therefore, the Propaganda-Committee of the German American National Alliance calls in this critical period to all German societies, to whatever class they may belong, and to all individual Germans, who still hesitated on the road: "Cease to be strangers and wayfarers in the ranks of German-Americanism, but join its great association, the German American National Alliance."

In the hope that this call will not have been uttered in vain, and that this year will bring us the long-expected peace both yonder and here, we remain,

With true German greetings,

THE PROPAGANDA-COMMITTEE OF THE
GERMAN AMERICAN ALLIANCE,
JOSEPH KELLER, Chairman.

HAMMOND, February 18, 1916.

MY DEAR MR. KELLER: I have just returned from Hobart, where we have arranged for a general meeting for March 2nd. Mr. Barth went to-day to two Catholic places to arrange for meetings. On Sunday I shall speak in Rensaller, on Sunday, the 27th, in Hanover township, where the German pastor will act as chairman, on February 28th in Crown Point, and on March 2nd in Hobart, where the teacher of the German church school will be chairman. Mr. Miller was with me in Hobart, but there was no evidence of any preparation. Farewell until Monday.

With best wishes,

ROBERT L. SOERGEL.

HAMMOND, INDIANA, February 18, 1916.

MY DEAR MR. KELLER: I felt Saturday sitting in the train like a soldier who has been several weeks on furlough and is hastening back to his trench. Mr. Miller and another gentleman met me at the station in Hammond and steered me to the above hotel. In the evening there was a meeting in a side-room of a tavern with about fourteen men and one lady present. The main occupation was drinking and card-playing. You may well imagine what I thought of that. Even the pastor played cards. Of course there was nothing left for me to do. I am not quite sure about Mr. Miller. Unless I am quite mistaken, he is quite egotistical and he seems to go rather strongly into politics. This afternoon I went to Tollerton. Notwithstanding a terrible snow-storm set in, the meeting was well attended, there having been present about 400 men and women. The successor of Pastor Kayer, Rector Link was present. He is a fine man, of middle age, a vigorous missionary. At my suggestion he delivered a short address in the evening as well, which was received with great applause. You may thank your Creator that you didn't go, as you would have gone to your death. Before I began to speak, I had to insist that the bar be closed. I spoke somewhat more than an hour and the address seemed to please the pastor very much, as he praised it heartily in his address in the evening. Likewise our good friend Barth, who had come to Hammond at noon delivered a very good address. Barth, Miller, and I meet tomorrow to plan another campaign. I believe that we shall be able with two weeks' work to found three or four new alliances. But I am displeased with the fact that Mr. Miller is constantly calling attention to the fact that he is not a rich man and can not neglect his business. A collection was taken in Gary for the Red Cross, which brought in the sum of $24.67. This evening Monday a meeting of the city alliance will take place in Hammond in which I am to speak and on Wednesday evening a womens' society will be founded, when I shall also speak. Our friend Barth will work in connection with the Catholic societies here in the mean-time. As far as I have learned thus far from Mr. Miller, there seems to be an excellent field for work here for two or three weeks, and it seems to me that Mr. Miller is afraid that he will lose some of his brilliancy. Well, we shall see how the matter developes. Please send me 500 more of our circulars. We have surely accomplished one thing in Gary, namely, the establishment of the society on a sound footing again. I also think that I have by my address contributed to covering over the Kayser case and bringing the new pastor nearer to the Transylvanian Saxons. As far as I can learn, Pastor Kayser seems to have brought about his own tragic death.

It has become really cold here and I envy you your fur coat. I hope that you feel better. The men all send greetings.

Very faithfully,

ROBERT L. SOERGEL.

HAMMOND, INDIANA, February 29, 1916.

MY DEAR MR. KELLER: We took Crown Point by storm. The new society which was established there promises with time to become a vigorous branch of the German oak of its state. Unfortunately, a lodge held a family festival on the same evening, at which about 400 persons were present. Otherwise the hall in which we held our assembly would have been too small. Judge Kopellke occupied the chair. He sends hearty greetings to you. Although he was nominated as president of the new society and, as he declared, supported the movement heartily, he refused to accept the presidency, to avoid, as he very aptly remarked, giving any appearance of political affiliation to the affair. I should not be at all surprised if this new alliance with a little attention would soon have three hundred members. Tomorrow I shall have printed the applications for admission for the new societies. We must at first be active in helping the people.

Tomorrow we are going to Hobart. I had a long conversation with teacher Wolkenhauer to-day by telephone. He has made excellent preparations for the meeting. His orchestra will play and a double quartette from the church will sing. He expects between 300 and 500 persons in the audience, among them a number of Irish. So I shall have to speak a half hour in English. Unfortunately, dear Mr. Keller, I do not feel at all well. My stomach is not in proper order and to-day I had the whole day what the Americans call "blues." I do not know why, but one has this at times. After the meeting in Hobart I shall write again an article on the situation for the Illinois Staatszeitung, the Abendpost, and the Fort Wayne and Indianapolis papers, if you are not unfavorable to this. I shall make the article similar to last Sunday's. I do not know what is the matter with me to-day; I could wail the whole day. How are you? I hope that you feel better. Have you heard from South Bend? Will you go to Chicago this week? Please send me at once a dozen copies of the constitution. Best greetings, faithfully,

R. L. SOERGEL.

CRYSTAL LAKE, ILLINOIS, April 21, 1915.

MY DEAR MR. KELLER: We have gotten through it successfully fortunately, but I must tell you one thing, dear Mr. Keller, and do not be irritated because I say it, Mr. Barth must be more active in making arrangements for the mass meetings in the small towns. We might have had a much better meeting if the news had been better disseminated. It is not enough to tell the people that they should hold a meeting and that we will send them a speaker. We would have had a remarkably successful meeting here, especially as regards the concurrence of the country people, if, as teacher Abraham informed me, more thorough preparations had been made. No post card was sent out, no circulars were printed, even the concurrence of the pastors was not solicited. Fortunately, I was able to induce Pastor Kuelnest to be present at the meeting and he addressed a few words to the assembly after my address. I shall complete the statistics here in the morning and then proceed to Chicago, whence I shall take the evening train for the return.

Please send Mr. Stier in Arlington Heights about 200 copies of "Ein ernstes Wort" (a serious Word) and a copy of the local constitution of Indianapolis. I hoped to have a few lines from you here.

Good-bye,

ROBERT L. SOERGEL.

(Translated in Military Intelligence Division (6) by G. H. Allen—Answered the 29th of June.)

AUSTIN TEXAS, June 28, 1914.

MY DEAR MR. KELLER: It delighted me to receive a sign of life from you, as I was very much worried about you. It is a great joy to be able to send you the best news that I have thus far been able to send from Texas. We are going to establish here a society which will lift the alliance throughout the state to an entirely new and higher level. I was about to leave Austin in bitter disappointment because the one directing spirit, Mr. W. H. Trenckmann, the manager of the Wochenblatt, said clearly that the establishment of a local society at the present would do more harm than good to our cause. But when I looked up Pastor H. Johannes Romberg, the Praeses of the Iowa Synod, and had a long conversation with him, I made up my mind to found a local branch here however long it might take, as I have found a material here which is interested in our affair and will bring our alliance in Texas to the degree of prestige which you and I wish for it. Pastor Romberg introduced me to the different University professors and the most prominent and influential Germans, who seemed to be impressed by my address on the nature of our mission. One of the oldest and best educated gentlemen said in a very flattering way: "Yes, Mr. Soergel, it needed a man like you here to make things clear." But I have noticed one thing here, the beer goat must not be ridden too hard, but the idealistic aims of our alliance must be chiefly emphasized.

Now, I beg you to send all available literature to Professor Dr. E. P. Shoch, 2214 Nueces St., regarding idealistic and cultural aims of the alliance and also a copy of the constitution. Dr. Shoch, professor of chemistry at the local university, promised Pastor Romberg and myself to take the presidency of the branch to be formed, but in the meantime he wants to obtain more information about the matter. To-day we chose one of the most able and respected business men of the city as treasurer, while a member of the German Club Germania at the university will be secretary. The mantle of the vice-presidency will rest on the shoulders of a prominent member of the lodge of the Sons of Hermann. Pastor Romberg and Judge Kleberg have expressed their willingness to act as members of the Executive Committee. Teh meeting for organization will be held next Thursday evening in the club room of the Saengergemeinde, the aristocratic German club of the city. I have sent out more than a hundred invitations, some to prominent Germans in the neighboring country. Tomorrow I am going to Segin and am coming back on Thursday. I visited the pastor of the Missouri Synod twice, but could not find him in.

My efforts with the Vereinigung der Wirthe (Saloonkeepers' League) in San Antonio seem not to have been without effect, according to the enclosed article in the San Antonio Express.

Dear Mr. Keller, have you not received my letter from La Grange and the article which I sent you from Victoria? How long do you want me to remain in Texas? To be frank, I am beginning to feel a sort of homesickness. Have you followed my leading articles in Haxthausen's paper? What do you think of them? The smaller ones are copied by several of the smaller German papers throughout the state. On next Sunday I shall speak in Dallas. For the following Sunday arrangements have been made for a great mass meeting in Taylor. I met Captain Schramm of Taylor here and he insisted that I speak there on that date.

This is the first Sunday for weeks that I have had free; if it only would not be so terribly hot. I am sitting here in my room in my night shirt, and yet I am so bathed in prespiration that I have to wipe it off continually so as to go on wrting. I shall go to Dallas on Saturday evening and stop in Adolphus Hotel.

Dear Mr. Keller, I cannot tell you how delighted I am with the support which we have found among the local professors. Two of them have already given little social gatherings in my honor evenings at their homes. I hope that I shall be successful Thursday evening. I shall only treat the Prohibition question from the moral and ethical point of view.

Enclosed there is a report on the expenses of the past week. The hotel here, with a miserable cuisine, is the only one in the city and costs $4.00 per day.

Best greetings to yourself and esteemed wife, and hopes that this letter will find you on the road to recovery.

Yours,

ROBERT L. SOERGEL.

HOUSTON, TEXAS, May 25, 1914.

MR. JOSEPH KELLER,
Indianapolis, Indiana.

DEAR SIR: I beg to offer you sincerest thanks for your very friendly letter. As great president of the mighty German order of the Sons of Hermann in Texas it will be a great pleasure for me to do my best to promote the German American National Alliance and make it prosper here in Texas. At the same time I take the occasion to express my great respect for Mr. Soergel, who is at present in our city in the interests of the alliance. I have discovered unusual ability in Mr. Soergel, which, together with his very pleasant manner and extensive knowledge, is an invaluable force for promoting the alliance. You are at liberty to use my name as Great President for any propaganda purposes among the Sons of Hermann. Wishing you best success in your zealous and active efforts in creating a powerful, united germanism in this country, I send you German greeting and sign,

Very Respectfully,

AUGUST HAXTHAUSEN.

(Translated in Military Intelligence Division (6) by G. H. Allen.)

AUSTIN, TEXAS, July 3, 1914.

DEAR MR. KELLER: It is over. But we are still alive and in fact livelier than ever. The meeting last evening was in every respect a remarkable success. The elite of the Germanism of Houston was represented. Nearly all the German professors of the university were present. After I had given a short address on the theme "What we want," several of the gentlemen of the university spoke, also Pastor Romberg. After a long debate the meeting organized itself as the Travis County Alliance and chose officers who will be an honor to the national organization. Professor Dr. E. P. Schoch of the State University was nominated and unanimously chosen president. He assumed the office with the remark that he would consider it an act of cowardice to refuse. Pastor J. Romberg was elected first vice-president, as second vice-president, Mr. Wm. Treuckmann, and as third, Mr. R. Rumpel, as secretary, Mr. Carl Luetke, the most able and respected German lawyer of the city, as treasurer, Professor Walter Wuppermann. Messrs. Richter, Kleberg, and Professor Muentzinger were chosen a committee to frame a constitution. You can well believe, dear Mr. Keller, that I am proud of this alliance, inasmuch as in my opinion this new alliance is of greater importance for our purposes in the state of Texas than all the other alliances together. This evening I am going to Dallas where I shall speak on Sunday afternoon. Please excuse the many mistakes as I am writing on a strange machine. I hope that you are better and that I shall soon hear from you. I should be very glad if you would write a few lines to Professor Shoch and Pastor Romberg, as well as to Mr. Luetcke.

I shall speak Sunday, July 12th, in Taylor, and after that I hope that we shall soon meet again.

Sincere greetings from yours, ROBERT L. SOERGEL.

You can reach me Tuesday and Wednesday at Gunter Hotel, San Antonio.

ESTEEMED FRIEND: I am glad that you are really better, but I am sorry that you cannot be present in person with us at Manning. Mr. Soergel is of course most heartily welcome—the sooner that we can begin, the better for us and our cause. We need our organization more than ever at present and I hope that the news from the theater of war will cause our German-Americans to be drawn more closely together and so to the Staatsverband and the Bund (the State Alliance and the National).

Mr. JOSEPH KELLER,

ESTEEMED FRIEND:—Was last week in Waverly, and Denver, Waterloo and Cedar Rapids.—In Waverly we have now a new society and it may be predicted that this will be one of our best societies, for in this place is a Teachers' Seminary of the Iowa Evangelical Synod and not only the professors but all the German clergy of every confession; except the Methodist, have joined it. Fine men and they have have considerable influence in this whole region. In Denver too the Society has been reorganized since the early part of the year and is working hard. All Iowa is much excited, as everywhere, over the pro-British position of the English press and the Government. Things are going well in Waterloo too, although unfortunately I have not met Mr. Miller, who is on a vacation of a few weeks. Cedar Rapids is still our trouble, too many Bohemians and saloon keepers.—Next week I am going to Sioux City, Brunswick, and Le Mars.—How are you? Have to work hard to catch up with my neglected correspondence. With a German greeting,

Yours,

ESTEEMED FRIEND: Your communication received, I want to tell you that I shall be very glad to travel with you, that as I learned from the program in Omaha, the Sangerfest is to be held July 21–27.—Dr. Hexamer is announced as the principal speaker. Many of our Iowa singers are going to it.—Are you intending to come to Omaha, which you can reach on the 11.59 train Friday night, stay a few days and attend at the beginning of the Sangerfest or to go straight on to Denver?—In the Iowa Reform I read that the congregation in Rock Island wants me as speaker on July 19. These want to join the Illinois State Alliance. If necessary I can postpone this meeting for a few weeks, so that it may be possible for me to be in Omaha at the proper time.—A full schedule at least to the time of leaving for Omaha makes it necessary for me to make my trip after that.—When will you be able to give me any more detailed information?—I hope that our treasurer has enough money in the treasury for the traveling expenses, [illegible] if our state could not be represented, and I want to talk [illegible] over our affairs.

INDPLS, Aug. 28, 1914

To the Honorable Officers and Delegates of the State Alliance of German Societies, in Meeting in Mammond, Ind.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: In the face of our sympathy for our German Fatherland which is at present struggling for its rightful existence as well as in justification of my feelings, I take the liberty as member of the Alliance of presenting you with the following proposal for your kind consideration.

As the Commercial Clubs in England lately decided to drive German wares and products from the English market, may the National Alliance be requested by the State Alliance of Ind. to send an appeal to all members and all comrades in sentiment with the request not to use any wares provided with an English trade-mark.

Requesting your favorable consideration of this proposal and with genuine German greeting and best wishes for a successful meeting,

A MEMBER FROM INDPLS.

I am sorry to see from your letter that you are not feeling well. I hope it is merely something which will soon pass.

I shall try to meet the gentlemen Soergel and Miller tomorrow in Gary, Ind and get further information, then I shall write to you.

Enclosed you will find a list of the places I visited during the course of the week. Which ones shall I return to, when convenient, in order to do something more to secure members or to found a society.

Hoping that you be well upon receipt of this letter, I greet you heartily,

CHICAGO, ILL., Feb. 19, 1916.

DR. MR. KELLER: Since sending my last letter, on the 14th inst I have been busy with Mr. Soergel and Mr. Millen in Hammond. That is not so much in Hamond as from Hamond to the neighborhood. Enclosed I am sending lists of the places I visited and where I tried to organize meetings. I hope that I was successful in some of them. It is difficult to raise enthusiasm quickly for our cause among the inhabitants of small places or right in the country, as most of them read only the English papers and there real German feeling is lacking. I need probably not say much about the work in general as Mr. Soergel generally does this most thoroughly. During the coming week I shall tramp around the neighborhood of Hammond and then meet Mr. Soergel on his return in order to be with him at the meeting.

As you told me I should work with Mr. Soergel and Mr. Miller there, I therefore follow their instructions, but if you should have anything special to confide to me in this work, I beg you to write it to me, I should be glad to receive a answer to this letter from you! Please send me a letter care of Mr. Miller Hammond!

Hoping that you are now feeling well and are well,
I remain with hearty greetings,
Your

P. J. BARTH

P. S.—Shall I continue sending the names as on this list?

(Translated in Military Intelligence Division (M. I. 6) by C. J. Gilbert, date December 1918.)

CHICAGO, ILL., Feb. 26, 1916

DEAR MR. KELLER: Enclosed you will a list of the places I have visited during the course of the week. As you see I have tried to secure the names of all persons who are still German.

I too, hope that we can still get some societies! In some places it is scarcely possible, as there is no understanding and no interest there. The people often wonder whether we will also pay for the hall etc. We were asked this even yesterday in Chesterton! There is hardly a chance for a meeting there.

In Cook (or Hanover Center) I have arranged a meeting for Sunday the 5th of March, also in St. John for the same evening!

With reference to the remarks in Hamond on this question in the convention you must remember that Mr. Soergel is to-day still a newspaper man who twists everything or makes a mountain out of a mole-hill! There was no such feeling and no one had such a thought!

I will be at both meetings tomorrow and so will meet Mr. Soergel and hope to hear that you are still well.

Hearty greetings
Your,

P. J. BARTH.

P. S.—Please send Pastor J. A. Bescherer, Porter, Ind. a constitution of the Nat. Alliance and other litterature which you may consider suitable! Letter to me, care of Mr. Miller, Hamond!

ELKHART, IND., March 13, 1916

DEAR MR. KELLER: As Mr. Soergel probably reported I went to Elkhart after we separated! I visited the various communities and societies & moved the Ev. Luth. Invalid Aid Society of the St. Johannes Community to join the Alliance in its meeting on Sunday afternoon. You will find the officials of the society in the enclosed list! On the back of the list you will the names of all the Germans I could find out. Pastor Stamm of the Trinity Community Mo. Soc. (Dreieinigkeits Gemeince) will consider the matter and then send you the names of his parish. He gave me only the names of the parish board! It is at present impossible to arrange a mass meeting in Elkhart, possibly later! I will now go to Goshen and look around. Then I do not yet know where I shall go. Perhaps south-ward. Probably I shall go to Indianapolis in a few days for an interview as it is not far out of the way home! I can then perhaps visit a few places on the way home.

I hope you are quite well.
Hearty greetings,
Your,

P. J. BARTH

LA PORTE, INDIANA. March 27, 191

DEAR MR. KELLER: To day I called on Mr. Schaal in Michigan City and gave him your regards. He told me that the city alliance was in good condition and was just then working on preparations for a bazar in which the entire German element of Michigan City was taking part for the benefit of the sufferers in Europe. He will see to getting the German Consul from Chicago to make a speech on one evening and perhaps on another, Mr. Keller? This is to take place about at the end of May. In the meantime Mr. Schaal will probably have been to Indianapolis and have spoken with you.

Tomorrow I shall try to see Mr. Zerweck here, later I go to South Bend where I expect to get information on Mishawaka, then farther on!

Hearty greetings from

Your,

P. J. BARTH.

Address: Gen. Del. South Bend, Ind.

(Translated in Military Intelligence Division (M. I. 6) by C. J. Gilbert, date December 2, 1918.)

SOUTH BEND, IND., March 29, 1916.

DEAR MR. KELLER: Yesterday I met Mr. Zerweck in La Porte, Ind., and discussed the situation of the society there with him. As you already told me the entire German element seems to revolve around this gentleman. He appears to be an enthusiastic worker but admitted that a little more propaganda would do no harm, but was really necessary. He will therefore see that a mass-meeting is arranged in La Porte. The date is to be so fixed that it harmonizes with the meeting in Michigan City, I therefore asked Mr. Zerweck to make arrangements and to consult with you about the date.

I met Mr. Muczer here. This evening there will be the board meeting of the city society, and I shall be present at the same, and then report to you.

In the afternoon I shall go to Mishawaka, and tomorrow to Elkhart and farther east.

Heartiest greetings from

Your,

P. J. BARTH.

(Translated in Military Intelligence Division (M. I. 6) by C. J. Gilbert, date December 2, 1918.)

ELKHART, IND., March 30, 1916.

DEAR MR. KELLER: Yesterday evening the delegates of the South Bend city alliance held a meeting which I attended. It was resolved that on an evening in the third week of May in which a bazar for the benefit of the Austro-German Aid Fund will take place in South Bend, to collect the German element as much as possible to hear a speech on the aims and purposes of the N. B. (National Alliance). This evening is to be specified by you in order that it may not conflict with other meetings in Michigan City or La Porte. I shall also try to arrange a mass meeting here at the same time so that if you send Mr. Soergel up here he can make these speeches one after the other.

In Mishawaka I did some sounding but could find no hold for a society. There is an Ev. Luth. community there with the Rev. Otto Turk as Pastor, which also has a school. Then the Catholic community with school, but the people of both communities are so English that only the smallest part of the children still learns German and almost every one in the church in the Catholic community is unfortunately English.

An endeavor will be made to have the German element of Mishawaka present in South Bend on the evening of the speech, which gives a good opportunity to encourage the people to work for the German cause.

I did not fill out the list of the places visited as you told me on my last visit that you had a complete list of the Germans in this county. Naturally I shall endeavor to get a complete list of the new places to be visited and send it in.

I hope I have done the right thing with regard to the meetings concerned in leaving the settlement of the dates to you, or any way the speech evenings.

I have as yet received no news from you since I was in Indianapolis and can therefore not judge well about your thoughts regarding my work until now.

From here I will go to Ligonier and from there to Kendallville, Noble Co. Ind. where I should like to find a letter from you on Saturday! Gen. Del.

Hoping that you are well and with hearty greetings from

Your,

P. J. BARTH.

BURLINGTON, IOWA, Feb. 8, 1914.

Mr. JOS. KELLER,
Indianapolis, Ind.

DEAR SIR: I arrived here safely last Thursday evening at nearly twelve o'clock. On Saturday, yesterday morning, I had an interview with Mr. Durant in which I exposed your point of view in the matter about which I saw you, which was satisfactory to him. I repeated that you could not come to the State convention but would be very glad to speak to the entire board of the Iowa State Alliance at the first favorable opportunity and to meet them. The gentlemen will refer to you directly in the affair mentioned so that you will become better acquainted through the correspondence and probably be able to come to a more definite opinion about him. The well-being of the State Alliance appears to lie very close to his heart. He appears to be a very energetic worker which is very good for German interests. He gave me a very good letter of introduction to the various boards which will I hope be of good use to me.

As I have not yet been in any other place but Burlington in Iowa, I can make no further report except on what I have to say about here.

All societies existing here belong to the State Alliance with the exception of the Austrian, which however, as Mr. Durant tells me is very socialistic so that it would be rather more of a hindrance than an advantage for the association. When I asked for the names of the officials of the local societies I was told they were in the list which the secretary had sent you. I did not dare press him too much for fear of arousing suspicion, so had to be content with that statement. I have spoken with German Catholics, and told them of my work and desires so that I am convinced that through a bit of small work the German Cath. element will stand well in the affair referred to. I will sometime give you the officers of the various Cath. societies in a complete list. Tomorrow morning I am going to Fort Madison where it probably will take me several days to see my way clearly. The State Alliance was as yet unable to obtain any hold there! Keokuk also has nothing as yet so I shall stretch out my feelers there and report.

Now I would like to ask you to please let me know whenever you would like to have a supplementary report or a detailed explanation whenever anything is not clear to you and I am sure that you and I too will be satisfied. There is nothing more to report now except my expenses below. Therefore, I stop.

Greeting you with the highest esteem,

Your,

P. J. BARTH.

DES MOINES, IA., Feb. 15, 1914.

MR. JOS. KELLER, Indianapolis, Ind.

DEAR SIR: During the last week I visited the following places:

Fort Madison, West Point, Keokuk, and Ottumwa, Ia.

There is German Luth. community in Fort Madison, and three Cath. communities almost entirely composed of German members. There are no societies ther than the church German societies, there was once a singing society; all ttempts to resurrect anything of the sort fell through; there is no longer any ope for anything specifically German. The same applies to West Point. In eokuk there are no longer any German societies. The only one there was has hrunk to a card club of four to six men and cannot be revived. The Anti-Saloon League is working in Keokuk, but Lee Co. is in general liberal and nly a Liberal candidate can hope for election there. Opposing side powerless.

In Ottumwa the German element is small. There also there are not German societies and nothing more can be collected. The few individual old gentlemen re not sufficient and young America is no longer German. There are no saloons there but about 150 Blind Pigs which are connected with many other nuisances. The work of the hypocrites consists in bothering these and keeping ut public houses. The representatives of this county concerned are supposed to be Liberal and have prospects of being re-elected. The Cath. priests I visited here in these places are Liberal and listened to me willingly when I told of my work and agreed with me with reserve, which I can tell you of better orally upon the next opportunity. I have not yet seen anyone here, I arrived late. I do not know what places I shall visit between here and Ft. Dodge but will try to be in Fort Dodge by next Thursday evening on account of the convention on Friday and Saturday.

My expenses for the past week are:

Transportation	$4.52
Hotel and board	14.50
Extras	1.20
Total	20.22

Please write to me at Fort Dodge, Ia., Gen. Del. and give me any instructions necessary, also about the convention.

Hoping that you are well and that everything is going well with heartiest greetings,

Your

P. J. BARTH.

FORT DODGE, Feb. 22, 1914.

MR. JOS. KELLER, Indianapolis, Ind.

DEAR SIR: I have received your letter of Feb. 16. My report of last week is as follows:

In Des Moines, Ia. matters do not stand very well in favor of German affairs. The Turnverein has about two hundred members of which 75 are German and the rest Irishmen and Americans. It did not pay any poll-tax this year and did not send any delegates to the convention. It was not considered worth while. The Singing Society joined the State Alliance; it has about 80 members. Upon asking whether it would be possible to collect the German element in a meeting, I was assured that the Turnhalle was available, but the meeting would have to be announce before hand with free lunch and beer otherwise very few would come. I could not see the minister there. The German Cath. priest was very pleasant to me and is in favor of our cause.

In Newton where I went next, there are but a few Germans, the place is dry. I spoke to some of the Germans who told me that about half the county is German, but lives in the country; it is also liberal but indifferent. There is nothing to be done for our cause in the village.

Grinnell the next place I went to, is a Baptist College town. Has virtually no German inhabitants. Most of the people in the town and the neighborhood are Norwegians.

Marshalltown a city of about 13,000 inhabitants, had a so-called Liberal League, which belongs to the State Alliance, a Luth. German church, whose pastor is supposed to be a good worker but not generally beloved, a German Cath. population of 30 families. No public-houses. They told me nothing about Blind Pigs but they have enough clubs for drinking.

There are a few good workers for our cause there, but there is no general cooperation! The district assessor could not even go to the convention. More life could be aroused in Des Moines and Marshalltown through mass meetings!

Nevada, the next place I visited, also had no German element, I spoke to some Germans there. No prospects for our affair there.

There is a better German element here in Fort Dodge!

A G. Lutheran community, which also has two branch communities in neighboring country. In this community German is taught in three c... there are also schools in the country in which the pastors teach. There Singing Society in this community which is supposed to do well, but there tension between the community and the new singing society so that the singing society took part in the concert which was given here in honor of convention. The Cath. German element is small here and disappears in Irish, but they are all supposed to be liberal. In the gala issue of the G... newspaper you can find more details on the German element here.

The convention is over and I consider it a successful one! I delivered greetings and wishes and was therefore presented to the meeting and received; I had to say a few words to the assembly and believe I made impression for many of the delegates wished to know whether and when going to them, whether it would not be possible to arrange a meeting meantime so that the people might be encouraged by me etc. I promised ing, but said that if it were possible I would let them know.

I was very well received by Dr. Durant and well treated as well as Mueller, vice-pres. and all the gentlemen in general. According to a deci the meeting the protocol will be ready in about four weeks and will be you in order to give you a good idea of the business accomplished. Acc to my conviction it means a lot of small work to be done.

There are twenty two or three German newspapers in the state. I expe give you their names, addresses etc. in my next report. One of them is and I am enclosing the death certificate! There is no good society in the which concerns itself with German history. Upon asking Dr. Durant wh you could sometime have a meeting with him and his executives in the st he said the sooner the better. They will meet in Cedar Rapids in about weeks. That would perhaps be the best opportunity for your going there. secretary promised me to send you the list of the various societies of the alliance in a short time.

Next Saturday I shall go home. Would be possible to meet you there or I go to Indianapolis. Everything that should be discussed can not be dis... in letters.

Please send your next letter to me to Chicago.

CLINTON, IA., March 6, 1[illegible]

DEAR MR. KELLER: I found strange conditions in this city! A large Ger... element but not in the State or National Alliance with the exception of Turnverein. There are two German Luth. communities here, the pastors which are liberal! Pastor Lutz, Cor. 4th St. and 3rd Ave. has only been h... since last fall! You probably did not have his name. He at least said he received no circular. The other, Mr. Grimm, lives in Lyons (which now be... to the city of Clinton) 118 Prospect, L.

Two German Cath. communities: one pastor here in Clinton, Father Br... mann, is ill, therefore I could not see him, Father Fritz in Lyons told me he was for any good and just cause! German is taught in both Cath. sch...

and the children exercise in German songs and performances on the stage! There are young people's societies and church choirs in the Luth. communities, which give public performances at least once a year!

The general German element (members of churches of both confessions included) is organized into the following societies which do not belong to the State Alliance or the National Alliance.

German Societies. Clinton (Deutscher Verein)
(Herm. Otto 752, 2nd Ave. (Pres)
(Hans Behr, 209, 3rd St. (Sec.)
Gild of Brothers and Sisters (Bruder und Schwester Gilde) Clinton.
(Karl Mohr 276 Harrison (Pres).
(Paul Nielsen 540 De Witt, (Sec)
Clinton Male Chorus. (Clinton Maennerchor) Clinton.
Emil Evers 129 N. 6th St (Pres).
Otto Paetow 214 4th S (Sec).
Workingmen's Aid Society (Arbeiter Unterstützungs Verein) Lyons.
Karl David 615 N. 7th L. (Pres).
Rich. Ridder 708 N 7th St L. (Sec).
German Society (Deutscher Verein) Lyons
Hy. Toenningsen 421 N. 7th L. (Pres).
A. H. Heil 400 Main L. (Sec).
Schiller Committee Clinton
Theo. Carstensen 925 N. 2nd (Pres).
Aug. Burglaff 306 N. 2nd (Sec.)
Harmony Lodge, D. O. H. (Harmonie Loge) Clinton.
Claus Duehr 1245 Camanche (Pres.)
Geo. Schmidt 100 Second St. (Sec.)

The Schiller Committee mentioned forms the center spot of all the societies and therefore has the greatest influence (but does not exercise pressure on the societies) The Sec. Mr. Aug. Burzlaff is the Publisher of the Clinton Anzeiger, and was the principal opponent to association with the National Alliance. He declares that he is against the name of the alliance, against a state in a state and bases his opposition on this. He is a strong Republican. Others say that this is the reason! Well, however it may be, he is very influential though not as radical as formerly!

If you should pass through here on your way to Cedar Rapids it would be well to call on some of the leading spirits here! A great mass-meeting could be arranged here but not in this short time. It will certainly have great success!

Please send Pastor Lutz a letter on the German movement! (XXXOK)

This closes my letter on Clinton.

I go from here to Davenport then to Muscatine, Ia. where I expect a letter from you Gen. Del.

Hoping that you are well, I greet you heartily,

Your,

P. J. BARTH.

(Translated in Military Intelligence Division (M. I. 6) by C. J. Gilbert, date Dec. 4, 1918.)

DAVENPORT, IA., March 12, 1914.

DEAR MR. KELLER: I received your kind letter yesterday; hearty thanks!

The following is my report for this time:

According to the leading spirits here, Dr. Radenhausen and Mr. Brand, the district chairman, Davenport is well organized! All Germans belong to the City Alliance with the exception of the Cath. St. Joseph's Society, The Brewery Workingmen's Union and a German Aid Society! The first society is in sympathy with the German movement and will co-operate but will probably not join the State Alliance as a society! I spoke with the president.

I spoke with the secretary of the Brewery Workmen's Union to-day. Next Sunday he will try to persuade the Society to join the State Alliance, and on Sunday afternoon the Invalid Aid Society of which he is a member. I hope with success. The officers of these societies are:

Brewery Workmen's Union: Andrea Jensen (Pres.), John Goblin (Sec.), 739 Howell.

Workmen's Aid Society: Arthur Kehr (Pres.), Fritz Knabe (Sec.), 524 24th St. Rock Island, Ill.

I tried to see three of the local Luth. ministers but could not speak to any of them. The German Cath. priest is Liberal and with the movement.

In Muscatine there are three societies not belonging to the church: Turnverein: By Hinz, Muscatine Herold (Speaker). Christ Klopp, 1313 Cedar St. (Sec.)

Craftsmen's Aid Society: (Handwerkerunterstutzungsverein). Wm. Wendland 1000 Fulliam Ave. (Pres.) (not in favor of the alliance); Herm. Grensing 115 Foster St. (Sec.)

Muscatine Maennerchor: John Nester, 311 Mulberry (Pres.); Hy. Heinz Muscatine Herold, (Sec.).

Cath. St. Joseph's Aid Society: Louis Schwab, 201 Bell St., (Pres.); Geo. Frey, 408 Green St. (Sec.).

Cath. St. Mary's Protective League (Kath. St. Marien Schutzgesellschaft): Alex Kollmann 1137 Lucas St. (Pres); Jos. Schwab 706 Spruce St. (Sec.).

The Turnverein belongs to the State Alliance! The Catholic priest O. K.

There are two Lutheran churches. One pastor John Haefner, 513 Sycamore St. built a fine school, he is all flame for the German cause and movement. The other, Wm. Marten, 907 Iowa St., I could not speak to; he was in the country! He belongs to another synod. has no school and belongs to the local Ministerial Ass. which is not good for our cause! Muscatine has no saloons, but is supposed to have about 50 Blind Pigs!

Mr. Hy. Heinz appears to be the maker there, but appears to be very easy going!

Wilton, Ia. has two Luth. churches, no societies. The pastors are Jul. Doden, Iowa, Synod. Has no schools, favorable to the movement! The Mr. P. W. Happel, Mo. Synod has no school! He is a little bit fearful, wishes to know more about the National Alliance. I told him to turn confidently to you for information. It will be difficult to unite the people there on account of the difference in churches!

Durant, Ia. has a Turnverein, belongs to the State Alliance. The speaker is at the same time District assessor of the State Alliance. There is also an invalid aid society: which does not belong to the Alliance: Jacob Carsten (Pres.), Hy. Diedrich (Sec.).

Sunbury, Ia. has a Veteran Society should belong to the State Alliance but has gone to sleep! Officers are: Fred. Petersen (Pres.), Wm. Dibben, (Sec.), both now live in Durant Ia.

Walcott, Ia. almost entirely German, has no German church or school, a public house, an Invalid Aid Society and three German lodges. The officers of the Aid Society are: Johannes Wegner, (Pres.), I. D. Beckmann (Sec.). Long ago an attempt was made to organize a branch of the State Alliance, members were enrolled but no officers elected, that is how matters are today. The people have now become rattle-headed, especially Johannes Wegner (pres) of the Aid Society which has done most of the work, I called the attention of the people here to this and hope still to do some good.

So much for my report today.

When I went to Dr. Radenhausen today he told me that the meeting of the executors would take place in Burlington on March 22 and not in Cedar Rapids, so that I must arrange my next trip from here in such a manner as to reach that neighborhood by that time! Most of the places I have to visit during the next few days are little country towns. I cannot reach the larger towns in the west of the state before the meeting

Enclosed you will find a list of the German papers now published in Iowa.

My expenses from my last report until today are: Transportation, $8.87: hotel and meals, $18.20; extras, $3.50; total, $30.57.

By next Thursday I shall probably be in Cedar Rapids so please write to me there, Gen. Del.

With hearty greetings, I remain your,

P. J. BARTH.

(Translated in Military Intelligence Division (M. I. 6) by C. J. Gilbert, date December 4, 1918.)

CEDAR RAPIDS, IA., March 17, 1914.

DEAR MR. KELLER: I have just received your kind letter of yesterday. I shall go to Burlington on Saturday and shall be glad to see you, and I hope also Lead Moersch with you!

Since making my last report I have visited the following places:

Eldridge: has a Turnverein which is in fairly good shape, Fritz, Kroeger, Pres. Herm. Jessen, Sec. There was also a Burger Alliance there with Theo. Kroeger as Pres. The Sec. is traveling in unknown parts with the books and lists therefore this society fell asleep. I shook up the president so that new life will come into it again. The money which was collected for the State Alliance is in the bank but I hope it has not yet been sent in. There is a public-house there, no church.

Wheatland. had a Schützen Club, Hans Loeding, pres., Hy. Klahn, Sec. Has a public-house also a German Reform church, Pastor Gattermann, a zealous prohibitionist. An attempt was never made to found a Liberal Society there.

Lowden. has a Veteran Society. Geo. Steffen, Pres., Peter Muhs, Sec., also a Bowling Club, Geo. Steffen, Pres., Alb. Schaefer, Sec. Two Luth. churches: Rev. J. H. Brammer, Preacher. He had a school with one teacher and about 60 children. He is a Liberal, will devote his influence outside of the church to the Liberal cause. The other preacher, the Rev. Fritz Werning, has a German school for a short time during the year, which he keeps himself. Is supposed to be a Liberal! A Burger Alliance was once founded with Rich. Muhs, Pres., F. W. Rix, Sec., but it fell asleep again.

Clarence. is a nest of prohibition. A Luth. church with school of 25 children; Rev. E. Hensen, preacher. No public-house for about twenty five years, is supposed to be the reason that no public-house can succeed in the whole district.

Grand Mount! has a public-house, Hy. Stier. prop. Has a Luth. church, Rev. Lothringer, preacher. Supposed to be very liberal. No society there.

De Witt. Hardly ten families in the village, mostly Irish. Liberal.

Delmar. No German connections. Few Germans there.

Cedar Rapids. Has a German Saenger-Bund. Joe Stark Pres., Paul H. Barth, Sec.; a Bürger Bund with Hy. U Zuber as pres. Hy. Gundling, publisher of the Iowa Post, Sec., The society stands well; the work is energetic. A Luth. Church, Rev. Julius Deckmann, preacher. He told me that he would not subscribe to everything in connection with the State Alliance or better, with this movement! A conference of the Mo. Synod (probably of Iowa) would soon take place in Williamsburg and the preacher believed that you would be informed of it. Another German preacher here is Prohibitionist.

Walker where I was today, as well as Cedar Point, has only a few German families, no coherence! Marion also.

To close, my expense account to date: transportation, $5.30; hotel and board, $13.60; extras, $1.90; total, $20.80.

I hope we will meet again in four days in Burlington.

Heartiest greetings from your

P. J. BARTH.

(Translated in Military Intelligence Division (M. I. 6) by C. J. Gilbert, date December 4, 1918.)

MANILLA, IA., Sept. 26, 1914.

DEAR MR. KELLER: I received your kind letter of the day before yesterday this noon, in Earling. I am glad to see from it that you are still on deck. My inclosed report will show you that I have not allowed the grass to grow under my feet, but still did everything in the places mentioned which I thought could be done now! Much harm was done to the German societies in Iowa by the former management through faulty organization and later carelessness. Time will show how much can be done to remedy this. At present our chief duty is to get the people to vote well, which I am doing to the best of my ability!

Will you or shall I call the attention of Mr. Durand to such places in which meetings could and should be attended by speakers as I stated in my last and in this report?

Will you still come to Iowa as planned and when?

Every day this cursed election day draws nearer when the fruits of our labors will I hope show up well! If we had such a German element, with such enthusiasm and tendency to enthusiasm here in Iowa as in Texas I would have no fear, but this North German stoicism and niggardliness as it is here is enough to make one burst one's collar. It seems as though back of each bob one could see gleam the question: How much money does the fellow want from us? Nickel splitters and beer guzzlers, especially when it costs little or nothing!

Forgive me if I explode too freely!
I shall go north from here! Please send your next letter to Wall Lake, Sac Co. Ia. Gen Del.
With hearty greetings I remain, your,

P. J. BARTH.

REPORT ON THE PAST WEEK.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18, 1914.

On Sunday evening, Oct. 11, I met Messrs. Hamilton, Connolly, and Steele in the Teutonia Club in Sioux City, it was not a political meeting, only a friendly visit to two Germans which the gentlemen made. From there I went to Le Mars. In that place there is a large German congregation, Mgr. F. X. Feuerstein priest. He promised me his assistance for the election. A Lutheran German congregation, Rev. J. J. Vollmar (this gentleman is also alderman) belongs to the Ohio Sy., will help in our idea. a small Ev. German Church, Ev. Synod of N. A. Rev. M. J. Dormann, this gentleman will know nothing of the National Association, refuses any help at all, belongs to the Ministerial Assn. of the city. I spoke with John Starze of the LeMars Herald and Anderson, County Democracy. then to Remsen. spoke there with Father Schulte and his chaplain (assistant) Both are good and will work in their large congregation. There are also there two German Protestant congregations which are mutually antagonistic, did not visit them. There is a Herm. Son's Lodge there with Herm. Nordmann Pres. John Grotti Sec. and a Luxemburg Bruderbund (Fraternal Association) with Mak-Treinen Pres. and Eug. Kiefer Sec. The latter also editor of the Remsen, Bell-Enterprise, Democratic. Have sent the names of Kath. Forstner, Herm. Sons and Lux. Bruderbund to Dr. Durand for the sending of circulars. In Oyens, the next place which I visited, I spoke with the German Catholic Priest, Father Rolfes, who has had bitter experiences with the Saloon and is glad that his place is dry and wanted to keep it so. no help from him but the people are all Democratic, no other connection with Germanism. Then I came to Alton. Father Bourne was unfortunately away. Then I went to Granville. Here there is a Luxemburg Bruderbund of Catholic Foresters. Father Gerlemann will urge his people to vote. From there to Paullina. In that place there is a small Lutheran congregation Rev. Semann Mo. Sy, no other special society; the people belong to the O'Brien County Society. there are good people there, Ed. Hilker, Wm. Strampe, Hy. Appeldorn, Wm. Krall. From there I went to Sutherland. In that place there is no organization but the County Society. Fedd er Feddersen and Wm. Peters good people. Then I went to Calumet. In that place is a small Evangelical congregation, Rev. H. Rixmann will assist. I also saw Gus Linneweh Sec. of the O'Brien County Society, the Pres. of which is John Ehrens. The people will work hard to get out all the votes. On my way east I spoke with Senator John C. Segel in Charles City where it looks as if he would be reelected, and I went to Waterloo to Mr. Miller, who said to me that he would be very glad to see you soon in Waterloo, where he hopes to get a large attendance for you.
This morning I went home from there at 12.40.
Yours,

(Signed) P. J. BARTH.

BURLINGTON, IA., Oct. 26, 1914.

DEAR MR. KELLER: The following is the report on the work of the last week till to-day:
In Bellvue, Ia. I visited Father Bies, Priest of the Catholic congregation, he promised me to urge his people to vote! A Catholic Society there with officers. Pres. Fred Mueller, Sec. A. C. Sieverding. Formerly there were also a Turnverein and also a Gesangverein (a singing society), but these had gone entirely to sleep. An Ev. congregation also there, could not see the pastor. No day school in this congregation!
La Motte. In this place is a Catholic congregation, Rev. John Friedmann was not at home! Also an Ev. Mission Church of St. Donatus. No German society.

Zwingle! Here are mostly Pennsylvania Germans. Could do nothing there!

Bernard. has a Catholic congregation half German, no German society, 95% of the people Democrats.

Cascade! has a large German Catholic congregation, Rev. J. B. Albers Pastor! He will urge them to vote! 4/5 of the city Catholic, only Catholic societies there.

The editor of the paper "Catholic Watchman" (Kath. Wächter) Mr. Kircher, took at once when I visited him a short article on the Necessity of Liberal Voting and promised me this week a longer article; also he will send a list to Dr. Durand so as to have him send circulars.

In Monticello I visited Father Hauck, the German priest there will urge voting A Lutheran congregation, Ia. Sy. with Rev. Ide, preacher. This congregation has built a school there to teach German. This preacher will send the names of his people to Dr. Durand for circulars and also urge them to vote! ("He spoke about our liberal Activity! it works against the Roman Church")

Anamosa. No union and no Germanism.

Keystone! has a socalled Turnverein but no exercising! Pres. John Albers, Sec. J. F. Feuerbach. Both good people! Also a shooting society this is unfortunately English! Pres. Kock, Sec. Gus. Seeck. Here I met Mr. Katz of Dubuque, who was glad to work the County under the direction of Mr. Thuenen. I spoke then only with a few other people and travelled on.

The next place was Haverhill! Here there is only a German Catholic congregation with a school. Father J. Dupont will urge his people to vote.

Melbourne the next place which I visited has many Germans. Most are said to be Knights of Luther, so I could do nothing there. Then on to Gilbertsville! Here I visited Father J. Nemers, who promised me to exhort his people energetically. Also he will take care, if circulars are sent, that every one sees them, have Dr. Durand informed of this! No other society but a Catholic one! Then went to Waterloo, Cedar Rapids, Burlington! In West Burlington, I visited the priest Father Scherfe, who unfortunately leaves this week! The new priest is not here yet.

Conclusion.

Yours, (Signed) P. J. BARTH.

The following letters, submitted to the committee by Mr. Looney, attorney general of the State of Texas, at the request of the committee, and bearing upon the political activities of various brewers and brewing associations in Texas and elsewhere, are herewith submtted for the record and are printed in full as follows:

EXHIBIT No. 1039.

NEW ORLEANS, March 31, 1904.

Mr. OTTO KOEHLER,
President San Antonio Brewing Co., San Antonio, Texas.

SIR: Please take notice of copy of telegram below:

I beg you to give this your immediate attention, the matter being in your interest as well as in the common interest of the brewing industry of this country. The United States Brewers Association is sparing no effort or expense to defeat those measures now before Congress and it behooves us to assist them to the extent of our ability.

Your very truly,

A. G. RICKS,
Member of Board of Trustees United States Brewers' Association.

(Copy.)

A. G. RICKS: Request all Southern Brewers to wire to Representative John Sharpe Williams of Mississippi, stating that the Hepburn & Dolliver Bills would injure both Brewing industry and cause of Temperance and should not be passed.

GALLUS THOMANN.

EXHIBIT No. 1040.

[Anheuser Busch Brewing Association.]

ST. LOUIS, MO., April 25th, 1904.

MY DEAR CETTI: I know from personal observation that the Honorable James L. Slayden of Texas has proven himself a good friend of our business at all time, and has sought to protect its interest on the floor of Congress whenever the opportunity presented itself. I had occasion to write the Hon. Richard Bartholdt, member from my district, about Mr. Slayden today, and promised to lend our hearty support at his next election.

I hope you can see your way clear to do this, as we need strong friends in Congress, in order to prevent further attacks on our business, and in order to have loyal defenders when occasion demands, and this is almost every day. We lost the Post Canteen, and through a recent measure the Soldiers Home, simply because the fanatics attacked us and we had nobody present to defend us.

It is unfortunate that we do not urge every Member of Congress and every Senator to take up the fight in our behalf when obnoxious bills are presented; you know they will not do it unless specially requested and unless their assistance is asked. They all seem afraid of the women, and this must be changed. Our statesmen must be fearless in opposing fanatical and narrow-minded petitions of the clergy and temperance cranks, and we ought to exact a promise from every Representative and Senator whom we support that they will in turn watch our interests and not allow them to be trodden on and crushed out of existence.

I shall be glad to hear from you whether you will support my friend Slayden to the best of your ability, regardless of the cost, and whether you concur in the sentiments I have expressed herein.

Very truly yours,

ADOLPHUS BUSCH.

Mr. ZANE CETTI, Ft. Worth, Texas.

EXHIBIT No. 1041.

[Adolphus Busch, St. Louis, Mo.]

PARIS, Oct. 19th, 1905.

MY DEAR CETTI:

(President Texas Brewing Co., Ft. Worth, Tex.)

Mr. Clauss wrote me that you have refused to pay your assessment towards the Educational Bureau, which has, so to speak, been created by me and some of my friends for the benefit of the brewing business of the U. S.

Most of our people have no idea of the true merits of beer—they know nothing of its wholesomeness and its superior nutritious properties—and rather believe all the false things said about this article. No voice has ever been raised to correct this wrong impression people have got about beer. It is my aim to win the American people over to our side, to make them all lovers of beer and teach them to have respect for the brewing industry and the brewer. This work has got to be done systematically, and the best writers of our country will have to lend their assistance. It may cost us a million of dollars, or even more, but what of it if thereby we elevate our position? I stand ready to sacrifice my annual profits for years to come if I can gain my point and make people look upon beer in the right light.

We must pay over to the U. S. Brewers Ass'n whatever it may require to represent us properly before Congress, where we have most important bills to defend. We must defeat that Hepburn-Dolliver Bill, which is most dangerous and antagonistic to our industry and which makes Prohibition possible. Then we want to defeat any bill which may be brought up to increase the revenue tax on beer, with which we are now threatened; we want to reestablish the army canteen at all army posts and on our Men of War; and in all Reciprocity treaties, we want our government to see that American beer enters foreign countries with a moderate and reasonable duty, and not one which is prohibitive as in the case in most of the republics in South America and in Australia and as will be the case in all countries where breweries will be established unless we take an active interest in the matter and prevent this.

We want further to see that no Prohibition is enforced in the District of Columbia or embodied in the Constitution of Oklahoma when the latter is admitted to statehood.

All this will cost lots of money; we do not want to spend one cent bribing the good people, but we will have to be liberal with the Press of many states and with friends to gain the ear of senators or members of Congress and enlist their good will. Up to now everything has been neglected; no brewery in the United States has done its duty towards its business, and for this reason we have met with defeat in nearly every instance. The lawmakers of our country feel this, and therefore I say reforms are imperative; we must act; we must all put our shoulder to the wheel; we must do our duty towards ourselves and our business, and I demand of you that you enter the rank and file and help us to win our cause. If small and stupid fellows who happen to be in the same line of business with us stay out, it cuts no figure; but every sensible brewer must join the movement, and assist us in our efforts to put the brewing business in the United States in the first rank.

It is of importance that you remit at once to Mr. Clauss and thus prevent our colleagues from expressing surprise that one of the breweries in which Adolphus Busch is interested has refused to pay its assessment. Everything that is done by the Bureau will benefit Texas in some way, if not directly then indirectly.

With kind regards, I am

Very truly yours,

ADOLPHUS BUSCH.

GENTLEMEN: I find that you have not yet remitted for the last assessment but Mr. Lieber referred to me your letter in which you state that you would like to be excused because you were under such heavy expense. Permit me to say that the other Texas Breweries who are also under the same expense have promptly paid their assessment, and you must also consider that the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Ass'n has been very liberal in co-operation on all matters affecting the brewing industry in your State.

Our Educational Bureau is doing splendid work, it has been agitating the restoration of the Canteen, enlisting the support of the G. A. R. and the Spanish veterans, and has finally succeeded in arousing the sentiment of the women which has brought such a pressure on Congress that the Bill is likely to pass.

In other respects the Bureau is doing good work, but while we are managing it on every economical lines, we are dependent upon the support of our subscribers, and I confidentially expect that you will send me your check by return mail as our Board of Directors will have its regular meeting at Newark on Feb. 7th, and I want to be in position to report that the assessments have been paid.

Yours truly,

DEAR SIRS: . . . . . Our Bureau representing the leading shipping breweries, has not only done good work in the Educational line, but our Bureau has been the means of inducing the U. S. B. A. to adopt a policy under which the brewers in the various states will be more thoroughly organized and the position strengthened both with respect to politics and business. It is, therefore, very desirable that the breweries composing our National Educational Bureau continue this work and as we can only accomplish results by united efforts, the resignation of any of our members can only have a bad effect.

Our Bureau had its annual meeting at Atlantic City last June where the past and future work was fully discussed, and our principal work now is to further the agitation for the restoration of the Army Canteen which, if restored, will give the brewer the best argument against prohibition. . . . . .

Yours very truly,

AMERICAN BREWING ASS'N.,
Houston, Texas.

GENTLEMEN: Ever since the establishment of our Bureau, the members of your Executive Committee aided by your Board of Directors, have kept close, almost daily touch with the work that has been done. Frequent reports have been made by the Bureau to Mr. Albert Lieber, Vice-Chairman, and to the Executive Committee, and at least two meetings of the Directors have been held each year, at which reports, oral and written, were received. These reports have been satisfactory, and were approved at our last meeting in Atlantic City, early in June.

Because of the necessity of working with the greatest caution, so as to avoid fatal mistakes, and by reason of the fact that to the industry generally our plans were not known, the Bureau proceeded without the blowing of horns and announcing to the World its intentions. Slowly it has made itself felt in an educational way, and the prospect is good that each month it will grow stronger in that direction.

While much of the work of the Bureau has been done independent of the brewers, along legitimate and fair lines with newspapers, periodicals and other publications, it has, of necessity, been important to enlist the co-operation of the brewers in placing before the public the truth as to beer. By slow degrees our friends in various parts of the country, especially in the West, have come to recognize the work as of great help, and they are giving a more cordial co-operation to the plans than at any time in the past, as shown by letters received from a number of brewers.

Prohibition influence has become so wide-spread that newspapers, even in the large cities of the country, now cater to the element advocating sumptuary laws, and voluntarily do not print news articles of interest to our side of the question, except upon the personal request of local brewers who do business with them. In instances where newspapers will fairly recognize the news and facts as to both sides, and will accept such facts, our Bureau deals with them directly, but where this is difficult, the Bureau seeks to obtain the assistance of brewers in having articles printed, showing the truth of beer as a beverage and as a genuine temperance drink.

We can assure the members who have backed us up and desire to continue to do so, that we received, at frequent periods, numerous evidences of the successful efforts to have newspapers print material fair to our side of the question. Hundreds of newspapers and clippings were submitted to us, showing that the work of our Bureau has been of decided benefit to the trade. Incidentally, we are pleased to call your attention to the broader and fairer spirit displayed by the public, relative to the restoration of the Army Canteens.

With certain other phases of the work of the Bureau, you are probably fairly well acquainted. This is the work of slowly acquainting the brewers of the country with the necessity of getting into closer touch with their newspapers and newspaper friends, and of advertising along lines that will educate the public while helping the brewers direct. This work has been more successful among such brewers as do not employ advertising writers, but also among the large brewers, the advertising suggestions of our establishment and the well-known cuts sent out by it have been accepted and used in various forms. The has not been confined to the West either. Progressive brewers, who realize that the public is influenced by proper and truthful advertising, and by clean, suggestive cuts, are now following the lines laid down by our Bureau.

It is in the fact that the Bureau has succeeded to a commendable extent, educating and uniting the brewers in a course of educational advertising, that such good has been done and still greater good is promised. New ideas are given to the industry as fast as possible, and our work has not been confined to certain brewers. Every brewer in the country, whether a member of the U. S. B. A. or otherwise, receives communications from the Bureau, which is now beginning to serve many of them directly, by writing communications, answering unfair and untruthful articles that have appeared. This is a line of work which it is proposed to develop, and is now being developed.

As already stated, our Bureau gets in direct touch with newspapers, but we deem it of great importance that the brewers should maintain a cordial relationship with their local newspaper man, and thereby place themselves in a position where fair play will be accorded them freely.

The work has not been costly, compared to experience in that line, in the past, and we feel justified in continuing it and giving it our cordial support.

Very truly yours,

ALBERT LIEBER,
Vice-Chairman.

DEAR SIR: . , . . . It has always seemed to me that our National Ass'n (United States Brewers Association) acted somewhat in a "penny wise" and "pound foolish" manner, and that they let the other side get things too much their way before making even any protest, while on the other hand I have been informed from a very reliable source that the Whiskey people maintained at Washington one of the strongest of lobbies, standing always ready and willing to protect their interest. Further, as stated in my letter to Mr. Adoue I am firmly of the opinion that the Whiskey Trust is putting up a large amount of funds that are being used by the Anti-Saloon League; That is, the Whiskey Trust and the Patent Medicine Trust, which we all know from articles that have of late appeared in Colliers, is about one and the same. It is true the Pure Food Law may in a measure reduce the Whiskey output through the Medicine route, but in my opinion the reduction will be very small, and will be more than off set by the advantage the Whiskey people will gain if they can get a law through prohibiting the issuing of Internal Revenue License, except to parties holding a State, County, and City License. . . .

DEAR SIR: * * * I had letter from Mr. Gardner the other day in which he confirmed a telegram to effect that we might expect something very soon. Mr. Koehler will land in New York from Europe today and I might ask him if he cares for another conference with those gentlemen with a view of getting some definite knowledge about these figures.

Received a letter from Mr. Koehler this morning in which he states that he saw Mr. McDermott, Vice-Pres., and the latter informed him that all financial obligations to the Texas people would be paid before the expiration of this year.

Recurring to correspondence which we have had with reference to our financial affairs, beg to state that the firm of Adoue and Lobit carry the sum of $10,000 the amount which we expect to receive from Messrs. Gardner & McDermott, and I suggest now that we borrow additional $15,000 either from your firm or the Frost National Bank of this city, and in this way get rid of all the obligations, thus affording relief for all concerned, for I am sure from the statements which I have received as well as the information imparted by Mr. Koehler that the money will be forthcoming before the first of the year.

I have not changed my mind and still hold the option had before that home breweries should not be taxed more than outside breweries.

UNITED STATES BREWERS ASSOCIATION.
Chicago, January 2, 1908.

GALVESTON BREWING CO.,
Galveston, Tex.

GENTLEMEN: The United States Brewers Association, recognizing the work of the Anti-Saloon League in the creation of a false and manufactured sentiment against our interests, has actively begun to take up the work of the thorough organization of the brewing interests, the allied trades and others directly and indirectly interested in our business, and it has reached the stage where fair minded business men should declare themselves as unalterably opposed to Prohibition, whether same be sought to be applied to townships, counties and states, or to the nation.

The brewing interests, with millions of capital invested giving well paid employment to thousands, patronizing almost every line of business firms, have up to the present practically stood alone in fighting for not only their rights and property, but also for the peoples rights, home rule and personal liberty.

Believing that the time has come when our people should take an active interest in this, and being offered the support of the allied industries to the brewing trade, Manufacturers and Dealers Clubs are being organized in all of the large brewing states and important brewing centers. This work has been actively taken up by people associated with the allied trades themselves. In order to facilitate this work, but at the same time get a complete list of all of the supply houses who furnish brewers supplies or who are dependent on the brewing industry for an important share of their business, we enclose you a blank which we would ask you to kindly fill out at your earliest convenience, and return to this office.

In the work this Bureau is undertaking, we shall be pleased to hear from any of the brewers of the United States, with suggestions or advices and also any information that they may be in possession of bearing on the situation.

Yours very truly,

JOHN A. MCDERMOTT,
Manager, Organization Bureau, U. S. Brewers Association.

DEAR SIR: Your letter relative to various bills that are being introduced in Congress to hand. There has been considerable agitation along these lines for some time back, and there has been a special committee of the Judiciary committee of the lower house appointed to hear arguments on the various bills submitted. They all tend in the same direction, namely: State control of drug and liquor traffic within the boundary of the various states.

Last Friday, Yerkes, former Commissioner of Internal Revenue and now acting for the whiskey trust as attorney appeared before the committee and made his argument. The attorney for the United States Brewers Association is trying to make arrangements to be heard as late in February as possible.

and the Wholesale Druggist Ass'n. have also made an application for hearing. All three Associations are working in harmony, and the general feeling in Washington is, as near as we can learn, that they do not want any such bills going to a vote, as the representatives do not want to be forced to vote on such a question. Speaker Cannon has been very friendly and outspoken on this point, and has successfully kept all such bills in the committee, just how long he can resist the outside pressure is a question, so far, however, the pressure seems to come entirely from the democratic side, largely representatives from southern states. I was talking with some of the men who attended the hearing Friday, and they seem to be very hopeful that the sub-committee will report unfavorably on the bills of the constitutional question. I feel, however, from what I can learn, that the sentiment of the republican party does not want to foster any such measures, and will avoid it as a party measure.

Yours very truly,

DEAR SIR: Your letter of the 25th inst. received. The several bills to which you refer in your letter are being strongly opposed by the United States Brewers Association. I hope we will be able to defeat the same. It may be gratifying to you to know that both of your distinguished Senators are in favor of these bills in behalf of the prohibition propaganda. I hope that when the election rolls around you may have sufficient influence to at least a hold a conference with these two distinguished men from your state. It may ease the situation with you to know that all the democratic Senators and Members of the House from the South have joined the prohibition party. Probably, when the negro bugaboo has died away in the South, sensible men will agree that the time has arrived to break away from socialism, anarchism and so-called temperanceism—and along with these other "isms," democracyism.

This letter is not written by a republican; it is written by one who has been a democrat from his infancy, but who has reached the age when the teachings of his childhood no longer direct either his conscience or his common sense.

NEW YORK, April 24, 1908.

To the members of the U. S. Brewers' Association.

GENTLEMEN: I enclose copy of an address delivered by the Chaplain of Governor's Island against Local Option at the legislature hearing in Albany, on March 25th. You will notice the application of the canteen argument to our interests.

The sky begins to clear. During the past month the Anti-Saloon League has been defeated in Maryland, New Jersey, New York State, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin. We expect to win in Louisiana, Florida, and possibly in North Carolina. Tennessee looks doubtful; and there will be a hard fight next fall in Utah and Idaho. The Illinois fight proves the necessity of reaching the people in the outlying districts. The brewers won in the cities and lost in the small towns.

One of the most significant things that has happened in some time was the admission of the Rev. P. A. Baker, national superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, in the course of an address made in Plainfield, N. J., on April 6th, that the tone of the press is changing. Mr. Baker declared that newspapers all over the country that have been friendly are turning against the Anti-Saloon League, and he accounts for it by declaring that the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association and the Pabst Brewing Company are trying the experiment of spending a million dollars on the newspapers. There is absolutely no foundation for the report, but it is interesting to note that Mr. Baker should feel it necessary to recognize publicly the change in the attitude of the press, and to try to account for it.

Do not forget the Brewers' Convention. It is going to be a live affair; and we shall need your views and suggestions in regard to the forward movement which is just started.

Very truly yours,

HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

GENTLEMEN: Congress has adjourned without enacting class legislation.

It is due to the splendid assistance of the business men that we have been able to defeat all attempts of the labor lobby to bulldoze Congressmen and Senators into passing the eight-hour law, the anti-injunction law and the Hepburn amendment.

The last two were defeated by us in spite of most powerful combinations and regardless of the strongest possible administrative pressure.

Our remarkable demonstration of strength in Washington proves that while the manufacturers, the business men, want no special privileges for themselves, they will not permit such for others, especially not to combinations, whether they be labor, political, or industrial.

Our past success must make us even more conservative in the future. It is not enough to show our strength in defeating bad legislation. We must do constructive work. To encourage good legislation and good politics, to defend our friends among public men, and to oppose demagogues is our duty as manufacturers, as citizens, as men.

I believe it is the duty of every manufacturer and of every business man to join hands with us. It is not enough to deplore and find fault with bad politics and bad legislation. Put your shoulder to the wheel. Help us to bring these matters on as sound a business basis as you would have your own establishment.

Do not delay. You would not delay your insurance. Sign to-day your application for active or associate membership and mail it to me in enclosed envelope.

SAN ANTONIO BREWING ASSN.,

GENTLEMEN: The story of our activity at the National Republican Convention in Chicago marks a new epoch in the political history of the United States. The business men have once more shown the spirit of '76. Attached circular tells you all about this.

Our country stands at the present time in great need of constructive statesmanship. Party lines are ignored by the thinking men. Their thoughts are devoted to the definite solution of the great questions confronting the nation. Principles and not parties are the issue of the 1908 campaign.

I wish you could have viewed with me the power of our Association as demonstrated in Chicago. It would prove to you, as it has to me, the fact that no fallacy, demagogery or anti-American heresy can stand up before us, providing we are right and properly organized. But remember we have hardly started in the serious task ahead of us.

The lawless elements among labor organizations and among the Socialists realize that they can never accomplish their base purpose by means of the strike and boycott as long as our Judiciary is left unhampered, and as long as strong protective associations prevent the singling out of individual employers. Therefore, they are trying to surround you with hampering national and state legislation to gain, through the politician, what cannot be secured through the Court, and they endeavor to whip into line the business man—the employer who has no organization to take his part.

There is no better argument for strengthening our organization, and the daily increasing number of new members proves appreciation of this fact.

I am sure that you have overlooked my former letter on this subject. I am sure you cannot but agree with me that it is your privilege as well as your duty to join us in our patriotic work. But aside from patriotism there is no better business insurance, at less than one dollar a week, than the co-operation of this great association in all matters pertaining to business welfare.

Let me hear from you promptly in enclosed envelope.

Very truly yours,

J. W. VAN CLEAVE, President.

GENTLEMEN: You will no doubt recall that at the 45th Convention, which was held in 1905, a resolution was passed giving the Board of Trustees discretionary power to levy an assessment of not more than two cents per barrel. Up to the present time only one cent of this assessment has been levied. I find, in going over the books of this association, that you are among the list of those members who failed to respond to the first call. Possibly you may have felt that the circumstances did not warrant the action which was taken three years ago? You must, however, realize that under present conditions, it is absolutely necessary that we should be fully equipped for the fight that is before us. The Board recommended to the members of this association at the Milwaukee Convention, on June 10, 1908, that the remaining cent per barrel of the original assessment be now called for. The matter was brought before the entire membership present at the Convention, and a resolution was passed, unanimously, instructing me to notify all of the active members of this levy. According to the terms of this resolution, the assessment is payable immediately on the basis of your sales for the year ended April 1, 1908.

I am directed to say that the payment of the first call will be waived in your case, but we trust that you will respond promptly to the present call. The association is in urgent need of funds to carry on its work, and it is not too much to say that the usefullness of the association to its mmebers and to the trade at large is only limited by the measure of support which it receives.

DEAR SIR: Supplementing communication you will receive from our President, Mr. B. Adoue, I wish to offer a suggestion that presents itself to me about requesting the National Wholesale Liquor Association to lend us a helping hand at this crucial moment.

In Mr. Adoue's letter of yesterday accompanying appeal from the Texas Brewers we asked you for sum of $10,000:00 to be available immediately. We would like to have this amount doubled by obtaining an equal amount from the Wholesale Liquor Dealers of the United States, and the method of making the call, is suggested by a letter shown by kindness of Mr. J. Kahn, addressed to him by his firm, Mess. Friedberg & Kahn, Cincinnati, Ohio, dated June 20th a paragraph of which reads as follows:

"The Wholesale Liquor Dealers Association will do nothing unless they are called upon by the Texas Wholesale Dealers. If they are called upon, we are satisfied they will contribute.

"The National Association of Brewers have appointed a committee of three to confer with the similar committee, which they have requested the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers to appoint. This is being done. If the National Wholesale Brewers do that we do not see what the Texas Brewers are standing back for."

Now our suggestion is that, you take up this matter immediately with the three members of the National Brewers Association Committee, who in turn may take the matter up with the Wholesale Dealers Committee and ask for this fund to be furnished at once through Mr. Max Eppstein, President of the Texas Wholesale Liquor Dealers Association.

A copy of this letter is mailed to Mr. Max Eppstein for his information, with request to act thereon immediately. If this channel is not quite regular please do not stand on any hair splitting, but get down to business and get the money.

Act quick and answer quick.

NEW YORK, July 6, 1908.

LONE STAR BREWING CO.,
San Antonio, Tex.

GENTLEMEN: I have your recent letter in regard to the matter of assessment, and have received similar letters from the San Antonio Brewing Association, American Brewing Association, Texas Brewing Company and the Galveston Brewing Company. I am directed to say that we fully appreciate the excellent work which has been done by the Texas brewers in fighting their own battles in the past, and have no doubt that the action which you have taken has been of material interest to the cause in other States. It has been reported to us that the Texas brewers have assessed themselves from 10 to 20 cents per barrel for their own fight. Compared to this, the 1 cent per barrel, which comprises the assessment of this Association, is very small, and yet I think it has resulted in considerable benefit to you.

The defeat of the seventy-nine (79) bills in Congress during the past session is, in a great measure, due to our efforts; and the recent victories in Georgia, Tennessee and Florida should be credited in part, at least, to the work of this Association. This work must be continued on a larger scale than ever, and we ourselves are facing this crisis with an absolutely empty treasury.

The larger part of our dues for the current year have already been expended; and demands for organization, education, literature, etc., etc., are incessant.

Our By-Laws provide that the Trustees shall not appropriate any money for local or State interests, without being authorized to do so by a 2/3 vote of the members present and voting at a Convention.

It is a matter of regret that none of your members were present at the Milwaukee Convention, when you might have presented your request, and at the same time would have informed yourselves as to the value of the work which this Association is doing and the need of its further development.

The By-Laws provide that whenever any local association has rendered direct and valuable services in the interest of the Association, the Association, at its regular Convention, may upon application indemnify such local Association for expenses incurred to a certain extent.

I find in going over our books that the seven Texas brewers have a very good record. None of them are in arrears for dues or assessments for 1905, 1906, or or 1907, but there are four who have not yet paid their dues for 1908.

Under these circumstances, and in view of your own heroic efforts on your own behalf, you have certainly earned the right to special consideration, and the President directs me to say that the matter will be considered at the next meeting of our Board of Trustees, which, however, will not be held until October. In the meantime, I venture to submit that the proper and prudent course for you to pursue is to pay the present assessment now without a question, instead of attempting to make conditions before payment.

Yours very respecfully,

HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

GENTLEMEN: The report of the Forty-Eighth Convention will be ready in a few days, and it contains so much good material, of permanent educational value that every brewer should keep it on file for ready reference. We trust that our members will study it carefully, so as to become thoroughly familiar with its contents.

We shall also send out next week three new pamphlets. The first, Entitled "Brewers Declare for Reform," is a summary of the editorial comments of representative newspaper on the Convention, and on the declaration of principles which was adopted there. This is a sixteen-page pamphlet.

Arthur Brisbane's notable Convention address on Prohibition is also republished in pamphlet form, for convenience in distribution. It is a most effective document.

"Prohibition a Failure" is a reprint of an article by R. Carradine in "The Savannah Press."

"Mills on Prohibition" is a revised and abbreviated reprint of a remarkable address delivered by Ex-Senator Mills of Texas, during the Prohibition Campaign in that State in 1887.

We shall be glad to furnish those pamphlets in quantities for the use of our members, on demand.

You are no doubt aware that the Prohibitionists have been defeated in Tennessee, Louisiana and Florida. The defeat of Governor Hoke Smith of Georgia is also accepted by the people of that State as a complete reversal of Prohibition sentiment. The efforts of our opponents are now concentrated on Texas, where an election will take place on the 25th inst.

A number of our members have not yet responded to the assessment notice which was sent out on June 16th, and there are some brewers who have not yet paid their dues for 1908. If you are among those who have not remitted, will you please do so without delay?

Mr. B. ADOUE,
President Texas Brewers Association, Galveston, Texas.

DEAR SIR: We beg to acknowledge receipt of your favor of the 13th inst., and in reply thereto would say that we answered your letter of June 23rd on July 10th. In this letter we informed you that the contribution you ask of the different maulsters would be sent forward to you by the Treasurer of our Association. The writer called up the Secretary of our Association on receipt of your letter and was informed that the Association's check had gone forward to you promptly at that time and that he had your receipt. You may rest assured that we appreciate the fighting you have on hand down there and that we are ready to do the best we can for you at all times. In Illinois we have as bad a fight as you have down in Texas and the Illinois brewers and Allied Industries are just now busy raising a fund of $100,000.00 for the campaign.

Always pleased to hear from you, we are.

Yours very truly

UNITED MALTERS ASS'N.,
Chicago, Ill.

GENTLEMEN: Your favor of the 14th enclosing remittance of $2,250.00 being the contribution of your association to the funds of the Texas Brewers Assn., has been duly received, and the Malsters Assn., has our most hearty thanks for the prompt and practical manner in which they have come to our aid in our time of trouble.

The association may rest assured that every cent of the contribution will be well laid out. In accordance with your request we are enclosing exchange for $40.00, being the amount remitted by the National Malting Co.

Again thanking you for your assistance, which will prove of incalculable value in the fight now on hand, we remain,

Yours truly,

GENTLEMEN: We beg to acknowledge receipt of your esteemed favor of the 8th in reference to a circular letter sent out by the Texas Brewers Association, requesting us to aid them in their fight against the prohibition movement.

In reply would say that we are enclosing you herewith our check for $100.00 which we request that you hand to this Association to be used to the best advantage.

We would also ask that you please do not mention our name in connection with the matter for the reason that we make it a rule never to contribute to local organizations.

We wish to say that we have been taking steps on our own lines in reference to this matter in Washington, in order to overcome adverse legislation, which we hope will be beneficial to all.

Thanking you for your favor, we remain,

SAN ANTONIO BEG. ASSN.,

DEAR SIR: You have observed that the Prohibition forces are fighting harder and with more success than ever before.

Chafin and his managers confidently count on getting 1,000,000 votes for the Prohibition Candidate this fall.

The Rev. W. A. Bartlett, D. D. of Chicago, says that a vast combination has been formed in which brewers etc. are trying to enlist all allied interests and that if they expend 25% of their annual profits they could put a million dollars a day at work to defeat prohibition. Evidently Dr. Bartlett fears that a real campaign of education will be begun by those who favor Personal Liberty.

Such a campaign MUST be carried on if the advance of prohibition laws is to be checked. Voters must be educated our way or they may be persuaded to vote the other way.

This educational work has been taken up by "The Farmers and Manufacturers Alliance." It is not intended to be the organ of any trade or any class, but its purpose is to give enlightment to the vast body of voters as to the evil effect which would result from the success of Prohibition.

It will do a hundred per cent more good than any special literature can do. It reaches the masses and appeals to them. It does not offend, it reasons and it will make votes for the cause.

Its preliminary expenses are large. It needs your aid. It is fighting your fight. It is your paper. Good business judgment and a desire for self-preservation should prompt you to give it your heartiest support to the full extent of your ability.

We ask you to be practical—to help the paper that is helping you. If you have not received a copy of "The Farmers and Manufacturers Alliance" send for it and information as to its scope and the work it is doing.

DEAR SIR: We have a State Wide Prohibition fight on our hands and it is fast and furious. It has only one merit, and that is short duration.

The fight is before the State Democratic Primary, to be held July 25th. The result of the Texas Democratic Primary is equivalent to an election, therefore the result at the Primary is for a purpose final.

We need money and are appealing to all Merchants, Manufacturers, Persons, and Corporations from whom each of the Brewers in Texas bought goods in the year 1907 to give us 1% of the amount of the bill bought and paid for.

ON THIS BASIS WE ASSESS YOU THE SUM OF $5.00.

Kindly send us your check at once, making it payable to the writer individually. This donation from you will be bread cast upon the waters.

SAN ANTONIO BREWING ASSN.,
San Antonio, Tex.

MY DEAR SIRS: I wrote you on March 7, at great length, but so far have had no reply to my letter. My position being strictly honorary, I have no financial interest in this campaign. My only motive is the desire to have the interests of the manufacturers properly taken care of. Your industry is at present in special need of co-operation.

The National Association of Manufacturers is representing in legislative work 116 organizations, national, state and local. Do you know of an organization that is one-half, one-fourth or one-tenth as strong as ours?

I urge you to read carefully copy of a letter attached hereto, written to one of our members. In your own interest do not lay it aside without reading every word, do it today and then write me definitely whether you can afford not to join us.

Very truly yours,

(Sgd) J. W. VAN CLEAVE,
President.

P. S.—If you desire I will be glad to send you a long list of our members engaged in your lines. They can tell of our work. Please consider this correspondence absolutely confidential.

Mr. A. L. PFAU,

Re prohibition movement.

MY DEAR SIR: I wish to acknowledge your most interesting letter of January 25. I could not answer it until now for several reasons, namely: the proposition you have placed before us is so important, and the facts of such serious character, that I desired to give immediate personal attention to this matter before writing you. I went to Washington immediately after the New York meeting, and can write you more understandingly now after reaching home.

Your communications were placed before our Board on January 31. After a lengthy discussion the Directors unanimously decided that all the cooperation and assistance, which can be given you under our laws and regulations, are at your disposal. A very interesting discussion took place at the New York meeting. When I say to you, in strict confidence, that one of the best arguments in your favor was made by a member of the Board who prefaced his remarks with the statement that he had been a total abstainer all his life, then you will appreciate that our members are big enough and broad enough to look at this question not from the narrow view of the prohibitionist, but from the broad standpoint of opposition to destruction of property by legislation.

Personally, I feel very strong on this question. As President of the National Association of Manufacturers I have had to give much time and attention to legislative matters. We have several representatives in Washington at all times, and I have seen so much of legislative interference and official meddling with the business of manufacturers and corporations in general, that I have no patience whatsoever with any further attempts in that direction. Of course, we must all admit that many excesses have been committed, and the demagogue and politician has not been slow to use these to his advantage. The unscrupulous newspapers of the country have reaped a harvest by using their columns for preaching excesses, and have become, in many cases, the misleaders instead of the leaders, of the people. We have had too much sensationalism, too much demagogism, and it is time that we were getting down to moderation and common sense. Unless we learn soon to remain in the middle of the road without going to extremes on either side, all American business men, and not only those interested in beverages, will suffer and many will face ruin.

But coming back to your proposition. I am, personally, a Kentuckian. I want no one to interfere with my right to take a drink whenever I want it, whether it is once in a day or once in a year, and I appreciate that I have no right to interfere with my friends who do not care for this privilege. It would indeed, be a serious reflection upon the principles of liberty, which should stand so high to Americans, to have such laws enacted as are at this time advocated by the extremists. To the man who argues that alcoholic beverages are not a necessity we might answer that if all things that are not a necessity should be done away with where would we land? We no doubt would return at an early date to primitive life in the wilds of African forests.

Now, while I have told you how I personally feel, there is no getting away from the fact that our organization has, no doubt, among its members, men who are extreme on the question of prohibition, the same as it has men who drink to an extreme. It is not one of the questions in which this organization, as an organization, is interested, but I am sure many of its members are. It would, no doubt, be unwise to come out with resolutions and public statements. Such action might do more harm than good to your interest and it would, at the same time, hurt our organization. The best plan, as I see it, is first, to assist you in every way possible in Washington; second, to give you the opportunity to approach our members individually.

In connection with the first proposition I have made it a point in a week's stay in Washington to look carefully over the ground, and I want to say to you, in strict confidence, that there is no more danger of the Tillman bill passing Congress, than there is of the slavery days returning. I have had the opportunity of discussing this subject with dozens of our legislators, in a strictly confidential way, and I know that there is not the ghost of a chance for this bill passing. I, furthermore, feel confident when I say that not even the bill restricting the liquor traffic in the District of Columbia has a ghost of a chance of passing.

In the first place, there are, as you may know, certain watchdogs in both chambers of Congress, who cannot be fooled, and who cannot be gotten around, either, and in the second place, I have been told by public men, who have had their ears to the ground for many years and usually know what is coming that this prohibition sentiment is not now on the increase, but that the pendulum is standing still, and will slowly swing the other way. I say this, appreciating full well that this question involves an issue of deep and significant importance, and that the movement is without precedent as to extent and intensity. I say it, carefully measuring its economic strength, being, as it is, partially social and certainly, to a very large extent, a legal and political question. I speak from personal observation, and from impressions secured from contact with the best posted men in Washington. I have given instructions to our Washington representatives to watch the situation carefully, and to keep me posted. I shall continue to give careful personal attention to this matter, and I will be glad to co-operate with you in your endeavors to the limit of my ability.

I will be glad to have you call my attention to matters as you see them, and to call my attention to things that we might do in proper co-operation with you. I have given orders today to send you under separate cover a copy of the American Trade Index, this being a classified list of our membership. It should serve you well in case you desire to write to the members direct. As I see it now your associates should use every endeavor to bring to final determination by the United States Supreme Court the Constitutionality of the various state statutes passed with respect to the restriction of or prohibition of the sale of liquor. As I understand it in Georgia a test case is already being made in the courts. The United States Judiciary, and particularly the United States Supreme Court, can be relied upon to stand as a strong bulwark between the Constitution and popular fashion or passion. I consider confiscation of private property through acts and laws the most demagogic and most dangerous that any country can adopt.

I wish to congratulate you upon the efficiency of your various organizations. I have had letters from many sources endorsing your request, and I shall take pleasure in having a copy of this letter sent to each one of the concerns that has written or telegraphed me or the organization.

It is, of course, that while I have no reason in the world to hide my personal views, I have not written this letter as President of the organization for publication purposes, and its use for such is not authorized.

Wishing you success and hoping to hear from you often, I am,

Very truly yours,

(Signed) J. W. VAN CLEAVE, President.

GENTLEMEN: This is to call your attention to an article on Prohibition in Georgia in the March number of Putnam's Magazine, copy of which will be sent to you direct. It proves the complete failure of Prohibition in the city of Georgia, and I am arranging to have reprints of the article for distribution. In view of the fact that the magazine will probably lose some of its subscribers through the publication of this article, it is important that we should recognize the independent attitude of the publishers by getting them as many new subscribers as possible. I believe that it is the intention of the magazine to follow the subject up in subsequent issues. I beg, therefore, to suggest that you send your subscription to Messrs. G. P. To the members of the United States Brewers' Association.

GENTLEMEN: The circular herewith has been given to the press and is receiving wide publicity. Our members should, however, be cautioned against over-optimism. The facts are to be interpreted as indicating what can be accomplished by thorough organization, effective educational methods and the recognition of the public demand for properly conducted saloons. But the fight is by no means over; in fact it will be hotter than ever during the next two years, and we cannot maintain our position or regain the "dry" territory, unless we "get together." There is a big campaign ahead of us, and our preparations must be made accordingly. The great strength of our opponents is largely due to the indifference of the brewers during the past decade!

Your membership and co-operation in the U. S. Brewers' Association is not only a matter of loyalty to a common cause; it is a matter of Business Insurance for your own particular benefit.

Very truly yours,

HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

DALLAS BREWERY,
Dallas, Texas

GENTLEMEN: I presume that you have received a copy of our circular letter of November 17th, giving the results of the recent elections. In one way or another our assistance was sought in all of the States to which reference was made, besides a number of others that are not included in the list. Over a million pieces of printed matter were sent out from this office; and through our various departments, speakers and organizers were furnished, and in some cases press agents also. As you can imagine, this involved a very large expenditure of money and a great deal of work.

There are several other State-wide campaigns which will engross us during the coming year, besides the usual license elections and the local contests, so that the demand upon our activity and resources is unceasing. Our opponents are seeking to regain their prestige by starting new fights in places where our industry is least prepared to resist. For sample, they are trying to make Vermont "dry" to offset their defeat in Maine, and are doing the same thing in the State of Washington to offset their defeat in Oregon. I cite these merely to illustrate their tactics.

The experience of the last year clearly shows that our opponents have so unified their forces, that they can concentrate their strength at any point in this country; in other words, the Prohibitionists, under whatever name they call themselves, are now a mobile army, closely federated and practically nationalized. I am sure you will see how futile it is for us to try to meet such an effective organization by merely local efforts. Every brewer in the country is therefore vitally interested in the continuance of the forward movement which the United States Brewers' Association is leading. The extent of the Association's usefulness depends upon and is limited by the measure of support it receives from its members. There is an urgent need for funds, and I wrote to ask you whether you will not send us dues for the current year, or at least inform us when you are likely to be able to do so conveniently?

Awaiting your reply, I am,

Yours faithfully,

R. F. Fox, Secretary.

OFFICE OF CHAIRMAN CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE.
National Hotel, Washington, D. C., May 3, 1912.

DEAR SIR: Senate Bill 5461, the reading of which I will not tire you with is a very drastic measure and means prohibition for the District of Columbia should it be enacted into law.

It has already passed the United States Senate and is now in the hands of the House Committee on the District of Columbia. We are writing you to ask you to bring all the influence possible to bear on any or all of the following members of Congress who compose the Committee on the Dist. of Columbia.

Hon. Ben Johnson of Bardstown, Kentucky
" Wyatt Aiken of Abbeville, South Carolina
" John H. Rothermel of Reading, Pennsylvania
" James A. Hamil of Jersey City, New Jersey
" John A. M. Adair of Portland, Indiana
" Carl C. Anderson of Fostoria, Ohio

" William A. Oldfield of Batesville, Arkansas
" G. F. O'Shaunessy of Providence, Rhode Island
" Henry George, Jr., of New York City, New York
" Edmund J. Stack of Chicago, Illinois
" C. O. Lobeck of Omaha, Nebraska
" William C. Redfield of Brooklyn, New York
" George Konig of Baltimore, Maryland
" William Cary of Milwaukee, Wisconsin
" Julius Kahn of San Francisco, California
" Cyrus A. Sulloway of Manchester, New Hampshire
" Leonidas C. Dyer of St. Louis, Missouri
" Henry S. De Forest of Schenectady, New York
" Solomon F. Prouty of Des Moines, Iowa
" Victor L. Berger of Milwaukee, Wisconsin

Please act at once. The Anti-Saloon League is working night and day to have this Committee make a favorable report.

We must beat them. Should they gain this victory it will encourage them to practically upset the Entire Liquor interests of the country during the coming year. No doubt you are aware that the City of Washington is the one place where the Congress of the United States can vote on the Liquor question. It is the desire of the Anti-Saloon League to place our law-makers on record and hence a strenuous fight is raging as it never did before.

You are appealed to in behalf of the perpetuation of the legalized Liquor trade to not lose a moment but to get right to work. Have your friend use their influence with any of the above named Committee, by correspondence, telegrams or otherwise—no matter how—you will be serving and assisting in defeating this attempt to make the Nation's Capital a prohibition city.

Thanking you in advance and watching hourly for the effect of your work I am, with much respect and high personal regard

Yours truly,

HUGH A. HARVEY,
Chairman Congressional Committee.

UNITED STATES BREWERS' ASSOCIATION,
109–111 EAST 15TH STREET,
New York City, March 3, 1913.

Confidential.

To the Brewers of the United States:

GENTLEMEN: The enclosed report gives the substance of the addresses which were delivered at the Chicago conference on February 20th, 1913, together with a list of the brewers who were in attendance. It was, without question, the largest, most representative and most enthusiastic assemblage of brewers that has ever been held in the history of the industry in this country. While the meeting was called by the United States Brewers' Association, the meeting was truly national in its character. One-fifth of those present were not members of the United States Brewers' Association, but before the meeting adjourned nearly all of them indicated their desire to join the Association.

After going carefully over the proxies presented by individuals for other brewers who could not be present, and the accredited delegates from state and local associations, and taking into account the letters received from brewers who were prevented by sickness, etc., from attending, but who desired to be recorded as concurring in the action taken, we estimate that fully 85 per cent of the entire brewing industry of the United States was represented at this meeting.

After the addresses of the principal speakers, the meeting practically resolved itself into a committee on ways and means. It was the general opinion that we must organize our work in a permanent basis with the assurance of continuous support, and two resolutions were finally adopted unanimously. The first urges all brewers to become members of the United States Brewers' Association. The second resolution took the form of a pledge to give three cents a barrel each year for a period of five years. This means that, in addition to the dues to the United States Brewers' Association of one cent per barrel, the brewers voluntarily pledged themselves to an additional assessment of two cents per barrel, and it was understood that this should be collected by the United States Brewers' Association, in three instalments, as needed, beginning with the 1st of April.

While this action was unanimous, about one-fifth of the brewers who were present declared that they would have to consult their Boards of Directors before commiting them definitely. With these exceptions, all the members present agreed to abide by these resolutions, and all the brewers promised to recommend the matter to their Directors.

The administration of this fund was referred to the Board of Trustees of the United States Brewers' Association, and under their direction we are asking the brewers of each state to select a National Committeeman who will meet within thirty days, if possible, with the Board of Trustees and work out the details of organization, etc. In the meantime, you are requested to confirm promptly the action taken at the general meeting.

Awaiting your reply, I am,
Yours faithfully,

(Sgd) HUGH F. FOX,
Secretary.

New York City, April 14, 1913.

To the Brewers of the United States:

This is to inform you that in accordance with the action taken at the National Conference of Brewers, which was held in Chicago on February 20th, 1913, a National Committee of Brewers has been organized, which consists of delegates or their alternates, appointed by the various State Brewer's Associations, and by the groups of brewers in those states where there is no State Association, together with the Officers and Trustees of the U. S. Brewers' Association.

At a general meeting of the Committee held in New York on April 10th and 11th, 1913, an Executive Committee of Fifteen was elected, consisting of the following:

Committee of fifteen: Jacob Ruppert, Jr., Chairman, New York; Percy Andreae, Illinois; J. R. Nicholson, Mass.; N. W. Kendall, Conn.; John Gardiner, Penn.; L. J. Hauck, Ohio; L. B. Schram, New York; E. S. Clauss, Missouri; F. Fehr, Kentucky; A. Fitger, Minn.; J. Lippman, Utah; Joseph Uihlein, Wis.; Paul Wessinger, Oregon; R. L. Autroy, Texas; Conrad Mann, Missouri; Hugh F. Fox, Secretary, New York.

Committees were also appointed on Organization and Education as follows:

Committee on education: James R. Nicholson, Boston, Mass.; Gilbert R. Potts, Newark, N. J.; Adam Oertseifen, Chicago, Ill.; S. S. Fleming, Ft. Wayne, Ind.; G. J. Jung, Cincinnati, Ohio; Jacob Rupert, Jr. (Ex-Officio), New York, N. Y.

Committee on organization: John Gardiner, Philadelphia, Pa.; Carl J. Hostet, Columbus, Ohio; Gustave Pabst, Milwaukee, Wis.; E. S. Clauss, St. Louis, Mo.; Frank Fehr, Louisville, Ky.; Jacob Ruppert, Jr. (Ex-Officio), New York, N. Y.

The Executive Committee is to meet in Chicago on the first day of May, and in the meantime the various State Brewers Association are to meet for the purpose of considering a plan of action.

This is to urge you to attend the meeting of your State Association when it is called and to assure you that the matter is of the greatest and most pressing importance, as we are facing a condition that materially affects the welfare of every brewer in the United States. We cannot go into the matter by correspondence but assure you that it will be to your interest to respond to the call.

Very truly yours,

HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

[CONFIDENTIAL.—For your personal attention and prompt action.]

NEW YORK, April 12, 1913.

REPORT OF THE JOINT MEETING OF STATE DELEGATES AND THE TRUSTEES OF THE UNITED STATES BREWERS' ASSOCIATION, HELD IN NEW YORK, APRIL 10–11, 1913.

This meeting was held in accordance with the action taken at the National Conference of Brewers which met in Chicago on February 19th and 20th, 1913. Appended is a list of Delegates and Alternates appointed by the Brewers in each state, and all persons who attended this meeting, together with the committees chosen.

Mr. Ruppert was elected Chairman of the meeting and Mr. Fox, Secretary.

It was decided that a National Committee should be organized, consisting of the delegates or their alternates and of the officers and trustees of the U. S. Brewers' Ass'n. and that the National Committee for the year beginning April 1st, 1913, should consist of those now appointed, together with the Officers and Trustees of the United States Brewers' Association.

It was resolved that an Executive Committee of Fifteen should be elected, with the President of the U. S. Brewers' Association as a member and Chairman thereof, with full power to transact all business in the interim of the meetings of the National Committee. Annexed hereto are the names of those comprising the Executive Committee of Fifteen.

The President of the United States Brewers' Association was instructed to appoint a Committee of Five at Large on Organization, and similar committees on Education, of which he should be an ex-officia member, and the following committees were so appointed:

Committee on Education: James R. Nicholson, Boston, Mass.; Gilbert E. Potts, Newark, N. J.; Adam Ortsefein, Chicago, Ill.; S. E. Fleming, Fort Wayne, Ind.; S. J. Jung, Cincinnati, Ohio; Jacob Ruppert, jr. (ex-officio), New York, N. Y.

Commitee on Organization: John Gardiner, Philadelphia, Pa.; Carl J. Hoster, Columbus, Ohio; Gustave Pabst, Milwaukee, Wis.; E. S. Claus, St. Louis, Mo.; Frank Fehr, Louisville, Ky.; Jacob Ruppert, jr. (ex-officio), New York, N. Y.

At the request of the meeting, Mr. Percy Andreae presented an outline of a plan for the organization of all the existing liberal associations and leagues of the country into a national body, for the purpose of concerted action and mutual support. The plan does not contemplate any change in the present identity of any such association or league, but merely a coalition of all the forces represented in them and the employment of those forces in the attainment of the objects which are common to all, under one leadership. This national organization will be, as this description clearly implies, entirely separate and apart from the brewing industry, and the details of its promotion and maintenance were exhaustively discussed at the meeting.

The committee of Fifteen is to meet in Chicago on May 1st, to take favorable action in regard to the plan above outlined, with such changes or modifications as shall be satisfactory to Mr. Andreae, with the understanding that he will assume charge thereof and devote his entire time to its direction. This is to be entirely separate from and in addition to the work now being carried on by the U. S. Brewers' Association, which will be continued as before and extended as required. It will be necessary to raise an even larger sum of money than was contemplated at the Chicago Conference, and the success of the undertaking depends upon the prompt action of the brewers in pledging their support. It is therefore urged that the State Brewers' Associations be called together at once, so that a full report may be made at the meeting at which is to be held in Chicago on the first of May.

Each of the delegates and trustees to whom this is addressed, is requested to give it immediate attention, using this report as the basis of the statement, they may make to the various groups of brewers, when they are assembled.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) HUGH F. FOX,
Secretary.

To the Brewers of the United States:

GENTLEMEN: Some four years ago we wrote you suggesting that you subscribe for Harper's Weekly. A number of brewers did so and have renewed their subscriptions from year to year.

In view of the general attitude of Harper's Weekly on sumptuary laws and the rights of the individual and its consistent editorial policy in relation thereto, we feel that this publication is fairly entitled to your consderation and support, and that you should be reckoned among its readers, for your own information.

The editorials in Harper's are widely quoted, and I shall appreciate your co-operation in this matter. I take the liberty of suggesting that you write direct to Messrs. Harper & Bros., enclosing $4.00 for your subscription, and that you endeavor to secure additional subscriptions from your friends and colleagues for this most interesting and valuable publication.

Will you advise me of your action so that I may be able to measure the success of this appeal?

Yours faithfully,

(Sgd.) HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

P. S.—I enclose five subscription blanks. Will you please hand one or two of them to your friends?

To the Brewers of the United States:

The Board of Trustees held a special meeting in New York City, June 5th, which was attended by the Executive Committee of the National Committee and also the Committees on Organization and Education. After full consideration, it was unanimously decided that the brewers of the United States must be asked to enter into a definite agreement to enable us to finance our undertaking during the next five years. I am instructed by resolution to send this agreement to you for your consideration. You will notice that it is conditional upon a total subscription of 3¢ per barrel upon 25,000,000 barrels annually, which is the minimum amount that must be secured to carry out our plans.

Brewers who have already agreed to this undertaking are requested to sign the enclosed agreement for the sake of uniformity.

Very truly yours,

HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

To the United States Brewers' Association, New York:

Memorandum of agreement made and entered into this ——— day of ———. 1913, by and between the undersigned for and on behalf of himself, or itself, his or its personal representatives, successors and assigns, hereinafter called the "Brewer" and the United States Brewers' Association, a memberhip corporation, duly organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, hereinafter called the "Association,".

Whereas, The Association is about to undertake certain work of vital importance to the brewing industry, which will require the outlay of a large sum of money during the next five years.

Now, this agreement witnesseth, that the Brewer, in consideration of the promises, and of the sum of one dollar ($1.00) to the said Brewer duly paid by the Association, receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, it is hereby covenanted and agreed to and with the Association to pay to said Association the sum of three (3) cents per barrel upon the amount of sales to his or its customers yearly, measured in barrels each year, for a period of five (5) years from the first day of April, 1913. payable in such installments each year and at such times in each year as the Association, shall, from time to time. designate. Such contributions of three (3) cents per barrel for each year during a period of five (5) years shall constitute the Brewer a member of said Association during the life of this Agreement without additional cost, provided, always, nevertheless, that this Agreement shall be and become null and void and of no effect unless on or before the fourth day of October, 1913. the Association, shall have received similar agreements duly executed and delivered by other brewers in the United States to the Association, pledging yearly for a period of five (5) years three (3) cents per barrel each year upon an aggregate of 25 000,000 barrels. All of such agreement shall be similar in form to this Agreement.

Witness the hand and seal of the said Brewer.

In the Presence of:

For the purpose of uniformity and convenience, the sales for the preceding twelve months will be taken as the basis of this calculation. Thus, the payment for 1913 should be upon the amount of beer sold during the twelve months from April 1st, 1912, to March 31st, 1913.

IN REGARD TO BOCK BEER.

To the Members of the United States Brewers' Association.

DEAR SIRS: A discussion took place at a recent meeting of the brewers of the New England States in regard to the practise of sending out Bock Beer in season or out of season, according to individual caprice, at conflicting dates. A resolution was passed unanimously:

"That it is the consensus of opinion of the representative brewers of Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Connecticut that we should cooperate in the attempt to ship Bock Beer to the trade not earlier than the first Monday in March in any year, and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the United States Brewers' Association for the purpose of that Association taking the matter up with the other brewers of the country as a national question."

In the opinion of the Advisory Committee the matter is one of great importance and we are bringing it to your attention with the request that you give it careful consideration and take it up with your colleagues in your local and State Associations, with a view to establishing uniformity of practise, as a matter of mutual interest and common concern.

Very truly yours,

HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

To the Members of the United States Brewers' Association:

The following article is reprinted from the American Issue for January, 1914, to inform our members of the latest development in the program of the Anti-Saloon League.

The Anti-Saloon League is publishing "temperance tracts" which are being sold to large employers of labor, for encolsure in the pay envelopes of the workmen.

MUST CHOOSE BETWEEN DRINK AND JOB.

Business World Insists on Sobriety Because It Promotes Efficiency, Decreases Accidents and Gives Stability and Character to Employees—Efforts of Manufacturers to Keep Saloons Away from Their Factories and Their Workmen.

More and more employees are realizing they must choose between the drink and the job. While they may exercise their personal liberty by indulging in intoxicants the employer may also exercise his personal liberty by putting other men at work whose efficiency has not been diminished by liquor.

Individuals, firms and corporations who until recently have been neutral and indifferent on the liquor question are now taking radical action to protect their employees from the baneful effects of the saloon and are giving their men to understand that if they persist in patronizing such places others will be given their positions. There is no sentiment on the part of employers, but they treat it as a cold matter of business.

As a rule the public does not realize the efforts many manufacturers are putting forth to protect their workmen from saloons. In recent "wet" and "dry" elections here in Ohio, managers and superintendents of plants have invariably lined up on the "dry" side because they did not want saloons near their plants. The State licensing board and local license commissioners are appealed to by employers not to grant licenses to saloons near factories. Owners and managers of shops and plants of various kinds are constantly asking the Anti-Saloon League for direction or asistance in keeping liquor joints away from their men.

A recent instance showing how manufacturers feel is that in Perry township, Allen county. This township lies south of the city of Lima, and under the law is entitled to three saloons. In the township are located the plant of the Ohio Steel Foundry Company and the Gramm Motor Factory. Managers of these plants have appealed to the Allen County license commissioners not to permit saloons in that vicinity because such places would prove detrimental to the interest of their men. There have been a number of applicants for licenses, but all of them have been turned down.

So insistent on this point are the owners and managers of these concerns that a number of licensing boards are granting licenses to applicants at some distance from such plants over applicants for near-by locations. Manufacturers generally are including saloons in their "safety-first" propaganda. This movement has been recognized by the Progressive party of Illinois, as in its State platform is a plank reading:

"We believe that safety first should be promoted by asking the liquor license commission to refuse to license a saloon within 500 feet of a large business concern."

Such a movement was started some months ago by the American Foundrymen's Association, at its annual convention in Chicago. This organization, which touches the big industries of the country, declared not only for the slogan, "Safety First," but coupled with it the other slogan, "Back with the Saloon," meaning that they favored keeping the saloons away from manufacturing plants. That convention named a committee of one man from each State to plan and execute a general and systematic campaign for legislation to keep saloons from the vicinity of factories. In an article in the Survey, Thomas D West, chairman of the Association's committee on prevention of accidents, argues that "Drink befogs the brains of men entrusted with the handling of machinery and dangerous tools, and makes them less cautious, and near-by saloons are responsible for maiming and killing men in factories."

Public officials are running manufacturers a close second in demanding sobriety on the part of their subordinates. Newspapers carried the news recently of the action of the director of the United States Census Bureau, who issued an order against employees in his department using liquor, even in moderation. A few days ago the five judges of the municipal court of Atlanta signed and promulgated this order:

"On and after this date any misconduct or conduct unbecoming an officer of this court, either on or off duty, will be considered a ground of dismissal, and so treated, and especially we emphasize this rule in regard to all intoxicating drinks. This does not mean intoxication only, but the indulgence to any extent will be considered a violation of this rule."

The Atlanta Constitution contained a long editorial commending the judges for their action, declaring it a significant sign of the times when a court of such important jurisdiction places such a ban on alcohol and says that the action of the court is reflected throughout the business world of America. The Constitution then goes on to say:

"There is nothing emotional, nothing melodramatic, nothing yellow about the onward march of temperance from this source. It is just the cold, logical economic business argument that gives a man the alternative between his potations and his position. The railroads ushered in the era, for manifest reasons. The crusade has spread from vocation to vocation until it includes about every major means of making a livelihood.

"And it is the economic factor that has wrought this remarkable change, and that has hardly begun its work.

"When the moral and business world unite for the overthrow of a traffic which is without merit, viewed from any and all standpoints, the days of that traffic are numbered."

DEAR SIRS: Enclosed are separate lists of the brewers who are members and of those who are not members of the United States Brewers' Association. I also enclose copy of the letter that we have sent to all of the non-members by way of a last appeal to them to join the Association.

I am instructed to ask if you will kindly look over the list of non-members in your State and address personal letters to them emphasizing our appeal and urging them, with all the force at your command, to apply for membership at once.

We believe if every non-member receives a number of such appeals from his brother brewers, he will be so impressed by the earnestness of our plea, as to give the matter his consideration. If he will not join, let us at least find out the reason why!

AMERICAN LIFE CONVENTION.

The fourth mid-year meeting of the medical section of the American Life Convention will be held March 4, 5, and 6, at the French Lick Springs Hotel, French Lick, Ind., and Dr. T. D. Crothers, editor of the Journal of American Society for the Study of Alcohol and other Narcotics, is down for an address.

THE FEDERAL FOOD AND DRUGS ACT.

A conference was held in Washington recently between State Food Commissioners and Officials of the Department of Agriculture to consider the Food and Drugs Act. The chief point of attack was the section which permits the use of a guarantee label by manufacturers, which was declared to be misleading to the public. The meeting was called at the invitation of the Secretary of Agriculture to secure cooperation between State and Federal authorities. Dr. Alsberg stated that the law is inadequate and unnecessarily complicated, and urged the standardization of foods and drugs. At the close of the discussion a committee of five was appointed to urge Congress to provide a law to make standards. A committee was also appointed to work with the American Bar Association in securing uniformity of Federal and State Laws for the enforcement of pure food legislation. It is not expected, however, that the matter will be reached during the present session of Congress.

The National Civic Federation has appointed a Food and Drug Commission under the Chairmanship of Mr. Vincent Astor. Dr. Alsberg and other men of national prestige have agreed to serve as members of the Commission.

A National Food Trades Conference was held in New York on February 27th "to encourage a greater uniformity of efficient food control, laws and regulations, and to aid generally in attaining purer and better foods, honestly and properly labeled and advertised." It is hoped that the Conference will be organized on a permanent basis. The United States Brewers' Association was represented by Mr. G. W. Lembeck and the Secretary.

THE NATIONAL RETAIL LIQUOR DEALERS' ASSOCIATION.

At the recent Convention of this Association, Mr. H. F. Fox, was present on behalf of the United States Brewers' Association, and made a vigorous appeal for absolute obedience to all the laws and ordinances affecting the liquor traffic.

President Farley and other members of the Association from various States urged the same course of action, and an organized effort is to be made to secure the cooperation of all licensed retailers.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE OF U. S.

At the Annual Convention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, which was held in Washington recently, the United States Brewers' Association was represented by Mr. C. W. Feigenspan, and the Secretary. Mr. Charles Bradley, of Newark, N. J., and Messrs. August Lindemann and Oscar Schmidt of Milwaukee were present, representing their local Chambers of Commerce. A number of brewers have joined the Chamber as individual members.

NATIONAL TRADE SECRETARIES.

While the Chamber of Commerce of the United States was in session a meeting was held of the Secretaries and Executive Officers of National and Inter-State trade organizations of manufacturers and wholesalers, and it was decided to form a permanent organization for the purpose of promoting the interests of the organizations represented, and to co-operate with the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. An executive committee of five members was elected as follows:

Mr. Cudworth Beye, Secretary, National Association of Tanners, Chicago, Ill.

Mr. Wm. R. Corwine, Secretary, National Association of Clothiers, New York, N. Y.

Mr. Frank F. Fish, Sec'y-Treas., National Hardwood Lumber Association, Chicago, Ill.

Mr. Hugh F. Fox, Secretary, United States Brewers' Association, New York, N. Y.

Mr. E. W. McCullough, Secy. and Gen. Mgr., National Implement & Vehicle Association, Chicago, Ill.

The Executive Committee subsequently elected Mr. F. F. Fish, of Chicago, as its Chairman, and Mr. H. F. Fox, of New York, as Secretary-Treasurer.

MARCH 11, 1914.

To the Members of the United States Brewers' Association.

GENTLEMEN: This is to inform you that at a joint conference of the Officers of the United States Brewers' Association, and the Chairmen of our Standing Committees, and the representatives of our Allied Interests, it was decided that our members be requested to get as many signatures to the petitions against National Prohibition, as possible, and forward them to Washington, without delay.

It is desirable that these petitions should be secured by Congressional Districts, and sent to the individual Congressman from the constituency he represents, and a copy sent to the United States Senator.

It is also important that a record be kept of the number of signers to each petition by Congressional Districts, so that we may know how many have gone forward; and also the total number of names that all of the petitions finally represent.

Yours respectfully,

HUGH F. FOX,
Secretary.

MARCH 25TH, 1914.

H. BRUHN,
Sec., Lone Star Brewing Co., San Antonio, Texas.

DEAR MR. BRUHN: The Secretary of the U. S. Brewers Association has referred to me for reply several enquiries received by him in response to the circular issued by the Association under date of March 11, in which all brewers were requested to obtain as many signatures to the petitions against National Prohibition as possible, and forward them to Washington without delay.

Most of these enquiries contain requests for a form of petition, and I therefore enclose herein the form issued by me, after conference with a large number of representatives of the joint industries, in January last. This form of petition was sent to 107 organizations throughout the country, including labor unions, and other friendly societies, with a letter accompanying it suggesting that these organizations in each state confer with each other and lay out the work systematically in their respective territories in accordance with my first appeal to the same organizations on the subject of petitions issued on December 15, 1913.

I beg to suggest, therefore, that every individual brewer who has now received the circular from the U. S. Brewers Association urging his cooperation in this work, communicate at once with his state or local Association, and place his services at its disposal, so that the work may be accomplished methodically and without unnecessary duplication of effort.

In States where no such association exists, it must, of course, rest with the individual brewer himself to put forth every effort, through such channels as may be at his command, to obtain as many signatures to these protests as possible and forward these signatures to the respective Congressmen from the districts in which they are obtained, and to the two Senators from the State at large.

It will be of interest to you to know that since December 15, when I issued the first appeal to send letters, resolutions, and petitions to Congress, nearly one thousand such petitions have been presented and recorded in the Congressional record against less than 200 such petitions from those who favor prohibition, and this in addition to hundreds of thousands of letters and telegrams which have reached the individual Congressmen from liberal constituents in their respective districts, and are now in many cases being collected and tabulated, for presentation to the Congress.

Kindly held in this work to the utmost of your power, and thereby help your own interest.

Yours very truly,

PERCY ANDREAE.

DEAR SIR: We are mailing you today, under separate cover, a number of discount stamps of the National Association of Commerce and Labor in accordance with your requisition under date of ———.

So that there may be no misunderstanding of the circumstances under which these stamps are supplied, I beg to call to your attention the following resolution passed by the Executive Board of the National Association of Commerce and Labor on December 8, 1913, to wit:

"That the Assessment of the members of said Association be fixed at one per cent. of the total amount of goods sold by them to the brewing trade and that the brewers buying said goods be requested to collect such assessment in the following manner.

"The brewers, (1) to deduct one per cent. from each bill presented to them by members of the Association voluntarily agreeing to such deduction: (2) to affix to such bills discount stamps for an amount corresponding with the amount of the discount deducted such stamps to be supplied to the brewers by the National Association of Commerce and Labor."

You will please bear in mind, therefore that the discount represented by these stamps can only be deducted from the bills of members of the National Association of Commerce and Labor, who have agreed to such deduction, and that it is their voluntary contribution towards the Anti-prohibition fund of that Association, not an assessment which the brewer is imposing, or has a right to impose upon those from whom he purchased goods.

U. S. BREWERS' ASSN.,
New York City, April 8, 1914.

To the Members of the United States Brewers Association.

DEAR SIRS: Toward the end of February, the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company notified all of its employes throughout the country that they must withdraw from fraternal organizations and clubs which maintained sidebars or cease work in the company's plants. They were also prohibited from indorsing liquor license applications.

These orders are so obvious an interference with personal liberty and such so improper a condition in fraternal clubhouses, that the matter was promptly brought to the attention of the Elks, Eagles, Owls and others. They are now taking action—in a large way—that should produce results.

The latest issue of The Eastern Elk prints an editorial questioning the right of the employer to dictate to the employe as to what he shall or shall not believe; as to how he shall vote, and, as a future possibility, as to what church he may belong to. "Easy it is," the editorial says, "if the man submitted to this dictation, for the tin plate company to extend its 'Thou shall nots' until these employees lost all their rights and liberties for the privilege of slaving away their lives, making sheet steel, or tinning for the stockholder of the company. Have not these men the right to enjoy their clubs as do their employers?"

The Eagles of Kansas City have passed a resolution which declares the action of the Tin Plate Company is an interference with individual liberty, and is an aspersion on the integrity, loyalty and citizenship of the men concerned, even though they may be total abstainers or of temperate habits. They urge all their members, and members of other fraternal bodies, to join in vigorous protest against this unjust order. Copies of this resolution are being sent to twenty-two hundred branches of the Eagles, and they expect unanimous action.

It may be of interest to you to take this matter up in your locality. We shall be glad to assist you in any way possible.

GENTLEMEN: In view of the fact that there are over fifty thousand firms supplying the brewery trade, it is manifestly impossible to state with any degree of accuracy which of these firms belong, through subsidiary organizations, to the National Association of Commerce and Labor and have agreed to the assessment of that Association. It lies, therefore, largely with the brewer, who has been asked by the Association to assist in collecting this assessment to ascertain this from those who supply him.

We may state, for your guidance, that many brewing firms have already deducted the one per cent from all invoices and accompanied their remittances with the enclosed letter of explanation. Since the result in this case has been that only in one or two isolated instances was there any objection raised to the deduction, the inference is permissible that the discount plan has been generally accepted.

RE GUARANTY AND SERIAL NUMBER.

The effective date of Food Inspection Decision No. 153, which abolishes the printing on the labels of the guaranty and serial number, has been postponed until May 1st, 1916, in order that manufacturers may have time to use stocks of labels they have already prepared; though it is optional with the manufacturer to comply with it immediately if he so desires.

RE NET WEIGHT AND VOLUME LAW.

The Secretary of the Committee on Regulations writes under date of June 2nd: "No decision has yet been reached regarding the marking of the quantity of the contents upon wooden packages of beer, although this matter is under consideration in conjunction with representatives of the Treasury Department."

The State of Massachusetts has just passed an Act to establish Tolerance in packages containing malt beverages, which provides that in barrels or fractional part of barrels a variation or tolerance of 6% shall be permitted. However, the Massachusetts Law provides that a barrel shall contain 31 gallons.

STATING THE QUANTITY ON THE BOTTLES.

The Regulation as to stating the quantity of the contents on the bottle, provides that "it shall be marked in terms of the largest unit contained in it Lackage." We asked the committee on Regulations for a ruling as to whether a large bottle should be labeled "capacity twenty-four ounces," or "capacity one pint-eight ounces." The Committee informs us that the statement giving the capacity of the bottle as twenty-four ounces is not satisfactory, and that the quantity should be given in pints and fluid ounces.

REGISTRATION OF DESIGNS.

Upon proposals for a law to permit registration of designs in a more adequate way than the present law, which treats designs like patents, the Congressional House Committee on Patents has been holding rather extensive hearings. Copies of the testimony of these hearings, running to ten or more parts, can be obtained by addressing the Clerk of the Committee.

DECEITFUL DESIGNATION OF INTERSTATE SHIPMENTS.

In the United States District Court a New York wine dealer has been fined for mis-branding seven gallons of whiskey, shipped to "dry" territory in Vermont, by marking the boxes "groceries."

ADULTERATION.

The Department of Agriculture has prosecuted a number of shippers for the adulteration of cider.

The State Dairy and Food Commissioner of Utah has issued the following warning to all liquor dealers in that State: "The complaints frequently received by this department need no confirmation that liquor dealers engaged principally in the retail trade are guilty of gross carelessness in the bottling and labeling of liquors taken from the original containers. On display in many saloon windows and evidences of this fact, rums, brandies, cordials and whiskies are frequently mis-branded. No further warning will be given the trade, but prosecutions will immediately follow the issuance of this warning. All liquors taken from the original containers and bottled must be labeled precisely the same as the original containers."

HUGH F. FOX.

JULY 31ST, 1914.

To the Members of the United States Brewers' Association:

The Bureau of Chemistry issued on July 17th, 1914, opinions regarding questions arising out of the Food & Drugs act, from which the following are quoted:

"The quantity of the contents must be stated in terms of the largest unit; for instance, 26 fluid ounces should be given as, 1 pint, 10 fluid ounces."

"It is not permissible to use one label at the same time for large and small bottles of liquids. Each size of bottle must be labelled with a plain statement of the quantity of its contents."

"A statement blown in the bottle would be satisfactory if plain and conspicuous, but such a statement should apply to the quantity of the contents and not to the capacity of the bottle."

"A statement of the contents upon the crown cork is not conspicuous, and does not comply with the regulations."

"Bottled-in-bond goods and bulk packages bearing internal-revenue brands are not exempt from requirements as to declaration of contents."

"In order to prevent unnecessary destruction of labels and cartons which were printed before the issuance of Food Inspection Decision 154, the department has decided that, prior to June 1, 1915, it will not recommend proceedings solely upon the charge that the statement of the quantity of the contents on a package, if otherwise satisfactory, is not in the terms of the largest unit in the package, provided that upon investigation it is found that the labels or cartons bearing such statements were printed prior to May 11, 1914, and plainly indicate an honest attempt to comply with the provisions of the law."

"The Department has never yet recommended a case relative to malt sprouts for prosecution unless the foreign material in the product amounted to 10 per cent, or more; though it is possible that further investigation will show that this limit of allowable foreign matter can be reduced."

Under date of July 23rd, we are advised by the Committee on Regulations, that no specific regulations have been issued regarding the marking of brewers' packages, further than the requirements of Food Inspection Decision 154.

Several brewers have been prosecuted and fined recently, for adulterating and misbranding their beer, because the label indicated that it was brewed of malt and hops, whereas the government showed that a cereal product had been substituted in part for malt. Such proceedings not only invite prosecution, but reflect upon, and, therefore, injure the brewing industry.

Yours very truly,

HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

MARKING BARRELS.

To the Members of the United States Brewers' Association.

GENTLEMEN: The Secretary of the Committee on Regulation of the Net Weight Law Committee, representing the Secretaries of the Treasury, Argiculture and Commerce, informs us that barrels and kegs of beer should be labeled conspicuously with a statement of the quantity of the contents in gallons and fractions. His letter is as follows:

"Replying to your communication of August 10th, we note your statement that the distilling interests have advised their members, through their official publication, that in the absence of regulations, the revenue stamp is sufficient to designate the quantity of the contents. This opinion is not in accordance with the ruling of this department.

Replying to your further inquiry as to whether it is sufficient to let the internal revenue stamp indicate the contents of the barrel without affixing any other label, you are informed that in the opinion of this Department, barrels and kegs of beer should be labeled plainly and conspicuously with a statement of the quantity of the contents in gallons and fractions in conformance with regulation Food Inspection Decision 154."

At a meeting on the 12th inst., of the Lager Beer Brewers' Board of Trade of New York and vicinity, which was called for the purpose of adopting a uniform practice in marking cooperage, it was decided to label or brand the half barrels, "Contents not less than 14 gallons," and this plan will be followed generally by the brewers of New York and New Jersey.

One of the most telling arguments against nation-wide prohibition is the economic importance of the liquor industry, the destruction of which would cause an enormous loss to the whole country. In order to be able to state their argument clearly and in an unanswerable manner, a special inquiry is being undertaken by the United States Brewers' Association.

One of the difficult but exceedingly important points to be covered relates to the retail trade and its financial significance (the values represented by investment in fixtures and fittings, rentals of premises, cost of supplies other than liquors, amount of wages paid, etc.). Now the information needed is only obtainable through the co-operation of those directly interested in this retail trade. Recognizing its great importance, several brewers in New Jersey have collected the required facts in regard to retail places in that State which will serve in part as a basis for working out figures relating to the whole country. But the returns for New Jersey must be supplemented by similar ones for other places. We therefore earnestly seek your co-operation and are sending you, under separate cover, one hundred schedules, showing the information desired, hoping that you will seek to have them filled for at least one hundred retail places in your own city or State. We want at least two hundred sample schedules from cities of the first class, one hundred from cities of the second class and twenty-five to fifty from the representative cities of the third class.

Of course all information given will be regarded as wholly confidential. It is urged that the filling out of the schedules be undertaken at once and returned as soon as possible to the undersigned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
COMMITTEE ON THE LIBRARY,
Washington, D. C., December 17, 1914.

Col. OTTO WAHRMUND,
San Antonio, Texas.

DEAR OTTO: I have just sent you a rather long day telegram advising you that in my opinion the most satisfactory way in which to defeat the proposed Hobson constitutional amendment is to defeat the special rule for its consideration which has been proposed by Bob Henry's committee. Without that rule the measure could not be considered in this Congress. If we can beat the rule it will be recognized as a defeat for the prohibition movement and will be unusually significant in that it will be the first step in the National prohibition program by a majority vote. We will beat the proposed amendment even if it comes to a vote because it takes a two thirds vote to have it adopted.

Let us suppose that the rule will be adopted by more than a majority vote and then we defeat the constitutional amendment which will require a two-thirds vote. What will then happen will be that the prohibitionists, headed by Hobson, will go to the country and say that a majority of Congress favored their proposition that under the constitutional rule requiring a two-thirds vote the amendment itself was defeated. It will equip them with a very strong argument before the country, and in my judgment, it is the part of wisdom and prudence to prevent the development of any such situation.

I was amazed to learn today that many anti-prohibition Members representing great brewing centers like Chicago, Philadelphia, Newark, New York and Boston expected to vote for the rule and then vote against the amendment itself. That is why I took the liberty of wiring you as I did. Such a vote would be a grave mistake.

I think if you will confer with Galley Newton or any of your other friends you will find that they will agree with me that it would be unwise to let the enemy get possession of even our outer lines of defense.

My opinion is that if strong telegrams are immediately sent from distilling and brewing associations to the various centers named in my telegram and they in turn will communicate with their Members we can defeat the rule. All this for your earnest and early consideration.

Very sincerely yours,

JAMES L. SLAYDEN.

"The best tactics now possible to defeat the Hobson resolution and later efforts in the same line, is to defeat the rule under which it is proposed to consider it. This can be done if Missouri, Kentucky, Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and Massachusetts Anti members will vote against it. Am advised that some of the Brewing and Distilling interests want a vote on the resolution itself. I think that would be a tactical blunder, and advise that the special rule for consideration of the proposed constitutional amendment be fought and defeated."

Hon. JAMES L. SLAYDEN,
Washington, D. C.

FRIEND SLAYDEN: I am just in receipt of your favor of the 17th inst., and I really should have acknowledged receipt of your day telegram yesterday, but I was not feeling very well and got mixed up with my masseur.

I certainly appreciated advice and suggestions, and I fully agree with you that it is the proper way to proceed,—i. e. to defeat the special rule for consideration of the Hobson amendment, and with that object in view, I immediately wired Mr. August A. Busch, President of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association (Mr. Faust being no longer connected in an official capacity) suggesting that he take matter up with Washington correspondent and the United States Brewers Association in order to get our people into line agreeable your suggestions covering plan of action.

I received wire reply from Mr. Busch, who is in accord with our views, and I think that everything will turn out all right, at least I hope so. That you are right in your views, I think, will not admit of argument. If the rule was adopted, even though we defeated the amendment later, it would give the Pros. just that much prestige, and we must strike at the rest of the evil so to speak.

I certainly feel grateful to you, and remain with sincere regards,

Very truly yours,

_____.

FEBRUARY 20, 1915.

To the Members of the United States Brewers' Association.

GENTLEMEN: The recent convention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America was of such national importance that I am instructed, by a resolution of our Board of Trustees, to send you the February issue of the "Nation's Business," which contains the proceedings.

At the request of the Chamber, all its constituent organizations are requested to appoint committees to cooperate with the Federal Trade Commission. By resolution of our Trustees, the President has appointed our Counsellor, Mr. L. B. Schram, and our delegates; Messrs. C. W. Feigenspan, Gustave Pabst, Hugh F. Fox as the committee to represent the United States Brewers' Association.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

Confidential.

To the Members of the United States Brewers' Association.

GENTLEMEN: At a meeting of the Board of Trustees held on the 11th of February, a resolution was adopted endorsing the National Association of Commerce and Labor's plan of raising funds for the maintenance of its educational work, by means of special stamps to be used by mutual agreement between the brewers and those from whom they purchase goods. It must be clearly understood that the operation of this plan is conditional upon the voluntary consent of the merchant or manufacturer with whom the brewer does business, and that it must be a matter of mutual understanding. The particulars may be obtained by applying to

The National Association of Commerce & Labor, 1132 Transportation Building,
Chicago, Illinois.

Our Board of Trustees recommends that these stamps shall be affixed by the merchants and manufacturers to their bills, but that it should be the duty of the brewers to see that this is done.

The National Association of Commerce and Labor will now take this matter up with the various State and Local Brewers' Associations, as well as with individual brewers, in their own way. We trust that you will give it your prompt consideration, and request you co-operation.

Yours very truly,

HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

U. S. BREWERS' ASS'N.,
50 Union Square, New York City.

GENTLEMEN: In January last, the State of Texas, through her Attorney General, instituted suit against this company for forfeiture of charter, together with penalties aggregating $3,000,000.

This suit, of course, operates as a lien against the property of the company and the Attorney General, after being consulted by our attorneys, declines to permit any further contributions by us to the U. S. Brewers' Association. We for that reason we regret to advise that we will be obliged to discontinue [illegible]

MARCH 25TH, 191[illegible]

To the Members of the United States Brewers' Association,

GENTLEMEN: This is to advise you that the Interstate Commerce Commission has suspended Supplement No. 9 to Official Classification No. 2, until July 1st as far as the rates on beer are concerned. This covers the proposed increase in freight rates on beer and empties.

A hearing will be ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission to consider whether the proposed advances are reasonable, and it will depend upon the outcome of the hearing whether the advanced rates will be permanently suspended or not. The date of the hearing has not been set yet.

Yours very truly,

HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

Mr. R. L. AUTREY,
Houston Ice & Brewing Co., Houston, Texas.

DEAR SIR: It is proposed that the first meeting of the Interstate Conference Committee be held at our headquarters in New York on Friday, June 25th at 10 A. M.

It is assumed that by this time all the legislatures will have adjourned, and that we shall be in a position to gauge the whole situation fairly. It is important that there should be a full attendance at the meeting. Will you kindly let me know if you will be present?

We shall be glad to have your suggestions in due course as to the program that is to be followed.

Very truly yours,

HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

UNITED STATES BREWERS' ASSOCIATION,
50 UNION SQUARE, NEW YORK CITY,
April 16th, 1915.

To the Members of the United States Brewers' Association.

DEAR SIRS: It is a matter of great importance that we should know at the earliest possible moment what the total barrelage of our membership is for the twelve months which ended March 31st, 1915, and I am instructed to ask if you will fill in the enclosed slip accordingly and return it without delay.

The general industrial conditions have caused a considerable decrease in the beer sales, and some of our members have lost a good deal of trade through the extension of "dry" territory. We cannot, therefore, make up our budget intelligently for the coming year without knowing just what our membership barrelage consists of.

In order to insure a prompt reply, we are enclosing a stamped envelope.

Very truly yours,

HUGH F. FOX, Secretary.

GERMAN UNIVERSITY LEAGUE.

CONSTITUTION.

Adopted at the Annual Meeting, October 30, 1915.

I. NAME.

The name of the organization is the GERMAN UNIVERSITY LEAGUE.

II. PURPOSES.

The purposes of the organization shall be:
(1) To establish in the United States a well-organized center for former students at German Universities and other German Institutions of similar standards in Germany, Austria-Hungary and other countries.
(2) To co-operate with every effort to strengthen the regard for the German and for their aims and ideals and to secure for them fair play and proper appreciation.
(3) To correct misinformation about German conditions and problems by placing before educated Americans and before the press of this country reliable material bearing on German affairs.

BULLETIN No. 3.

UNITED STATES OF GERMANY.

[Extract from the chapter "American Interests in the Outcome of the War," contained in "The European War," by Prof. J. W. Burgess, formerly dean of the faculties of Political Science, Philosophy and Pure Science, in Columbia University, New York City.]

The present organization, economic and political, of the German Empire also bears in its constitution the more significant title of the United States of Germany. Its economic system is by far the most efficient, most genuinely democratic which exists at the present moment in the world, or has ever existed. There is no great state in the world today in which there is so general and even a distribution of the fruits of civilization, spiritual and material among all the people as in the United States of Germany. And there is no state, great or small, in which the general plane of civilization is so high. Education is universal and illiteracy is completely stamped out; there are no slums, no proletariat, and no pauperism; prosperity is universal; and the sense of duty is the governing principle of life, public and private, from the highest to the lowest.

AGRICULTURE.

German agriculture has been systematically developed, improved and protected until it has reached the highest point of productiveness known to the world. It is a land of small proprietors, where relatively few great estates exist and where the relatively few tenant farmers hold leases of communal land rather than of land in private ownership. Forests are preserved for furnishing wood and lumber and protecting the water courses, but pasture land is limited and the greatest possible area is kept under the plow. Fostered by law, pursued with intelligence and individual interest, and enriched by science, the German agriculture is so intensive that one acre of German land produces as much as three acres of Russian land, although originally poorer and more difficult to cultivate. Feed the people with home products has been the first principle of the German system. With two hundred and eight thousand square miles of territory, an area not as great as our single State of Texas, the United States of Germany can sustain seventy millions of people.

MANUFACTURES AND COMMERCE.

Upon this natural and healthy foundation for their economic system, consciously and tenaciously preserved, the Germans have built their manufactures and their commerce. They have built these carefully and scientifically, and with unwearying industry. They have not allowed factory life to make slums of their cities, nor to produce a proletariat. By requiring employers to contribute with the State and the employees to the establishment of insurance and pension funds, they have secured to labor its proper share in the wealth produced.

The open door is all Germany needs, with the excellence of her manufactures and the efficiency of her commerce and methods of trade, to assure her indefinite industrial expansion. Her economic system is thus not the system of a land-grabbing empire. In the twenty years of her wonderful industrial development, between the years 1890 and 1910, she acquired less than two thousand square miles of foreign territory, while Great Britain acquired nearly two million, Russia almost as much, France six to eight hundred thousand, Belgium a million, and the United States of America about one hundred and fifty thousand, and while Germany acquired the bits of this small area, in about every case, by purchase or lease, all the other countries seized most, if not all, of their gains by military conquest.

POLITICAL SYSTEM.

Let us now turn to the German political system. In the first place, it is a federal union of self-governing States. Such a system requires a written constitution to delimit with necessary exactness the relative governmental spheres of the Central Government and the States of the Union. The German political system is founded upon such a constitution, which was framed by representatives of the governments of the several States, adopted by a convention of popular delegates chosen by universal manhood suffrage, and ratified by the legislatures of the different States.

Besides distributing all governmental power between the Imperial Government and the States of the Union, it distributes the powers of the Imperial Government between the legislature and the executive, conferring upon the Imperial Legislature—a body, the members of one house, of which are chosen by universal manhood suffrage and direct election, while those of the other are appointed by the States of the Union—the power to make the laws, and upon the executive, the Emperor, the power to execute the laws or rather to supervise the execution of the laws. The German Government is thus constitutionally limited government, limited politically by the distribution of governmental powers between the Imperial Government and the States of the Union and by the distribution of the powers of the Imperial Government between the legislature and the executive, and limited judicially by the bills of individual rights in each of the State constitutions and by the fixing of certain of the fundamental duties and rights of the individual in the Imperial Constitution.

MILITARY SERVICE.

One among these duties, which must also be regarded as a fundamental right, is the constitutional requirement upon every able-bodied male German to bear arms, and the fixing of the time for which his services are or may be acquired, which also means beyond they may not be required. I call this a right as well as a duty. In the Constitution of the United States of America it is so treated and is declared as follows: "A well-regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed." It is the German way to put the duty first and treat the right as the attending incident. This is the keynote to the German character, political and economic as well as private. The rights guaranteed to the individual by this constitutional provision requiring universal military service are that there shall be no professional army separate from the general citizenship of the Empire with separate interests from those of citizenship.

COMMUNAL AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

Finally, the German communal and local governmental organization is the most perfect known to modern politics. Under it the most honest, efficient and prosperous communal life which the world has ever known has been produced and developed. No slums, no illiteracy and no proletariat are to be found in any German city or commune, while the control is more genuinely democratic and the distribution of the fruits of civilization is more even and general than what prevails in any other country.

CONCLUDING REMARKS.

Everything has been done, and done systematically, and done according to a seemingly long-matured and sinister plan to give the American people not simply an erroneous, but an absolutely false, conception of German institutions, purposes, and aspirations. But all this is vain and futile, shortsighted and injurious. As Lincoln said, "You can fool all the people some of the time and some of the people all the time, but you can not fool all of the people all of the time."

Europe is now writhing in the agony of a great labor pain of human development, and while, God grant, that we may escape active participation in the suffering, we can not avoid having our own interests most profoundly involved in the outcome. Let us make sure that we correctly conceive what those interests are and how they will be best subserved.

ANNUAL REPORT AND INTRODUCTORY REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT, PROF. CAMILLO VON KLENZE.

It gives me great pleasure to welcome here so large an assembly on this occasion. Your presence is the clearest evidence of the fact that the influence of the German University League is spreading, and that its aims are being understood and appreciated by an ever-increasing number of Americans of whatever descent. It must, however, be a source of satisfaction to us to remember that our league is now represented in virtually every State of the Union and that its members may be found at well-nigh every university of our country. Especially in Milwaukee, New York, and Philadelphia the league has instituted lectures and carried on other forms of local activity. It may not be amiss at this juncture to pass in review our efforts of the past year.

For the purpose of giving the widest possible circles of our fellow citizens an opportunity of better acquaintance with the ideals, the problems, and the achievements of modern Germany we have established lecture courses, making a beginning in New York; we have issued pamphlets relating to the war and expository of German conditions; and we have encouraged the publication of a goodly number of books. Moreover, in view of the fact that it is impossible to import from Germany at present we have recently started the publication in the German language of a few works of general interest, such as "Grimm's Fairy Tales," "A Collection of German Folksongs," etc.

Among the pamphlets and bulletins which we have published are the following:

PAMPHLETS.

Annual Report, 1914–15.
Anniversary Speeches.
Germany, Dr. Ernest Flagg Henderson.
International Understanding and International Cooperation, Prof. M. J. Bonn.
Present-day Issues, Hon. Charles Nagel.
Introductions, by Prof. William R. Shepherd, of Columbia University.
The Germans in the United States, Prof. Albert, Bernhardt Faust.
German War Finance, Prof. M. J. Bonn.

BULLETINS.

Deutsche Oden, Rudolf Alexander Schroder.
Austria-Hungary's Awakening, Richard Charmatz.
Thrift and Foresight (tables of German war loans).
The bulletins we shall reprint as an appendix to the annual report and to the anniversary speeches.
Some of the publications which we have recommended and encouraged are:
Justice in War Time, Bertrand Russell.
The Making of Modern Germany, Ferdinand Schevill.
Modern Germany, various German writers.
La Guerre qui vient (The Inevitable War), Francis Delaisi.
Germany of To-day, George Stuart Fullerton.
The German Spirit, Kuno Francke.
Official Diplomatic Documents Relating to the Outbreak of the European War, Edmund von Mach.

* * * * * * *

On April 20, the day after the critical note from Washington to Berlin had been sent, a number of our trustees, as many as could quickly be asked for their consent, dispatched the following telegram to Germany:

Rektor Dr. ULRICH VON WILIAMOWITZ-MOELLENDORF,
Friedrich Wilhelm University, Berlin:

We, citizens of the United States, trustees of the German University League of America, wish to express to your magnificence our strong desire to see peace preserved between the United States and Germany. Knowing both countries well we fear that Germany may interpret the message of our President as a provocation, something surely not intended. On the contrary, we are convinced that the majority of the American people wish to have the relations of amity maintained which have always existed between your country and our country. To help in avoiding the calamity of a misinterpretation we ask you to bring this to the attention of the German people.

Bilhuber, Dr. Boldt, Dr. Krause, Dr. Schweitzer, Dr. von Mach, Haas, Hein, McNeill, Pagenstecher, Prof. Busse, Prof. Cutting, Prof. Shepherd, Prof. von Klenze, Steinhagen.

According to advices received in this country, the Wolff Bureau, the largest press bureau of Germany, at once circulated the cable. It was subsequently widely reprinted in this country with the comment that it had been sent in pursuance of one of the policies of the League to interpret in Germany, through University circles, opinion and feeling in this country and vice versa.

SPEECH BY HON. GEO. FRED WILLIAMS ON AMERICAN INTERPRETATION OF GERMAN CIVILIZATION.

Ladies and Gentlemen, members of the German University League: I entertain a strong sense of obligation to the German Universities and to the people whose guest I was in the student days. My democratic idealism which may not have been especially suited to the atmosphere of American politics, was born and nurtured in the Universities of Heidelberg and Berlin. Only men who know the German University can understand me when I say that it was there in the atmosphere of absolute academic and spiritual freedom that my American patriotism was kindled into the consuming passion which has dominated my life.

I have not been unconscious of my duty as an interpreter of German thought. Early in the War I tried to testify against the misrepesentations which confronted Germany in the United States, but I soon found that I was encountering a propaganda more powerful than any I had known even in the intensity of the democratic struggle. I ceased my efforts simply because the press was practically closed to me. To interpret German thought and character under such conditions was impossible. A reaction is sure to come among a fair-minded people against unfair methods, and I confidently await the time when, even in their own interest, the people of the United States will insist on understanding the system, the principles, the philosophy, which underlie the wonderful power of Germany unfolded to the world during this war.

The need of American interpretation arises from the fact that the German conception of economic policy is philosophical, and the United States does not deal in terms of philosophy. German phraseology fails to reach the mark. We need to reduce philosophy to the rugged terms of every-day life, and apply it to the institutions that the American touches and handles. It will be quite useless to read from the pages of Schmoller, or introduce to the American people the "Verein für Socialpolitik." If, however, you can satisfy an American that some one has accomplished results he has failed to accomplish, he will eventually demand to know how it was done. To be quite frank, let me say that I think a true interpretation of German civilization will help the people of the United States more than it will help Germany.

I trust I may render some service tonight by an analysis of the conditions which seem to me to affect such interpretation.

Very crudely let me outline the approaches to the American mind:

First: It should be and can be made clear that this war is in its origin essentially economic. The circle of enemies about Germany must suggest, by the very incongruity of its elements, that racial and strategic considerations are not sufficient to account for the hostile alliances.

Truth as the dominant individualism of the last century has approached collapse under the pressure of economic conditions and is fighting for life. Germany seasonably averted the catastrophe by substituting for revolutionary socialization a definite policy of state intervention in the disastrous processes of the laissez faire principle. Epitomized, this policy consisted, first, in the assumption by the state of the social utilities; second, the extension of public educational processes into the entire social, industrial and commercial activities of the nation, and, third, the recognition by the state of its obligation to strengthen and protect the weaker classes. All these measures were direct and conscious attacks on the world system which had grown up under the unrestrained operation of the individualistic principle. It proved to be a body blow to a system already in partial collapse under the assaults of democracy and socialism. Under the new policy the German empire leaped forward into new life, and its accomplishments have become known to the world under the name of 'German Efficiency.' Under the pressure of Germany's marvelous internal organization, the policy of world conquest by the three mighty allies—Great Britain, France and Russia—was violently hastened with the absorption of Persia, Egypt, Morocco and South Africa. This process, however, could not stay the deadly competition of the new German system; the colonial policy, built up in generations of human and material sacrifice, was proving itself ineffective. There are two methods of meeting competition; one is to undersell the rival; but the laissez faire victims possessed no power of regeneration. The other method is to kill the rival; and the war resulted.

The diplomatic world well understood what the Kaiser meant when he spoke of German world conquest by peaceful methods, though the average American deemed it either a sentimentalist's dream or a cover for military domination.

Nothing has so emphasized the dread of this new method of peaceful conquest as the recent proposals of the allied forces to enter into an international union at the end of the war for mutual protection through exclusive co-operation and particularly through preferential tariffs. There is no other conclusion to be drawn from this proposition than that the allied powers have at last become conscious that they cannot destroy Germany by the process of force. It is announced that Germany must be made harmless for the future, and that allied success in arms is assured. Why is it necessary to form an international combination against Germany after she is conquered? This second line of defence seems to me plainly an admission that war cannot destroy the economic, commercial and industrial power of Germany, and that the contest must still be waged in these fields even after she has been crippled by the implements of war and the utmost hardships of surrender. In truth the allies are quite correct in this conclusion. War may make inroads upon population, may impose frightful debts and miseries, but in the end a nation which has, without other spur than its own ambition, built so powerful a civilization will, in defeat, only intensify the methods that have made her great, and continue to occupy the place which competition must award to her.

This line of argument the American can understand, and hence I deem it an act of patriotism to remind my countrymen that they are vitally concerned to study the system which has made Germany great and is bound to keep her great.

Our problem of interpretation becomes simpler if we can make clear to the American mind, first, the nature of the conflict between laissez faire and the doctrine of the serviceable state; and, second, the contrast in actual results. The principle of laissez faire is based on the conception that human activities should be allowed unrestrained operation, and that the state should not interfere except in the exercise of necessary executive functions. It insists that the conflict of individual competition will bring order and system into the affairs of men and must not be disturbed. So powerful has been the influence of this doctrine that it has become almost a religious conviction. The doctrine has so far been drilled into the constitutional states that the average man has quite lost the dividing line between individualism and democracy. It will require patient effort to correct this confusion. The privileged classes have yielded from time to time in matters of democratic forms, but the resistance to attack upon the individualistic system has been unrelenting. The propaganda of this school has an intensity and solidarity unparalleled in any other human sphere. In the United States all the powers of privilege in its various forms have been centered on protecting the vast prizes which this doctrine has brought them. Even the representative system has considerably yielded to pure democracy, but party lines are broken when proposals are made for state action to curb monopoly, to acquire the railroads or even to furnish absolutely essential means of ocean transportation. The average American believes the help of the state to be fundamentally undemocratic, though nothing should be clearer than that it is of the essence of democracy that a sovereign people may make such use of their state as they choose. It is hard to conceive paternalism from a state which is the offspring of the governed.

This confusion of individualism and democracy we have inherited or acquired from Great Britain, a state in which the reign of privilege has acquired the firmest hold and developed most hardships to humanity.

Transportation monopoly, banking control, industrial and commercial powers, and, above all, a land-controlling nobility have been potent in the policies of Great Britain, domestic and foreign. Until the late liberal ministry came into power, the social and economic status of Great Britain's people had received scant consideration. The privileged classes forgot their Bibles and worshipped at the shrines of Adam Smith, Malthus and Ricardo: the English-speaking peoples became impregnated with their economic doctrines. If one pointed at the frightful slums of Liverpool and London, the Englishman referred you to the gospel of Malthus, by which poverty was a law of nature and the submerged tenth was a necessary part of God's mercy. Illiteracy, poverty and soddenness among the industrial population, and the increasing wealth of the privileged classes, were confidently referred to Ricardo's tenet, that in the nature of things rents would rise and wages would be reduced to the margin of existence. The poor laws of Great Britain have shocked even their own philanthropists, but the question of pauperism has hardly passed beyond the stage of public charity. The doctrine of individualism, or non-interference by the state, the freedom of each man or corporation, or combinations of both, to push their energies into humanity's fate without let or hindrance has been driven to the very verge in England; France has not escaped its meshes, and our own haphazard political philosophy has accepted it, bag and baggage, until our innocent people consider that it is the sum and substance of democracy. It is this unhappy error which perverts the democracy of the United States.

'The less government the better' is regarded as axiomatic, though it is a principle which freedom aimed against tyranny, and which has no logical place in a government of the people, by the people and for the people. The vital distinction between the police function and the power of service hardly exists even in the minds of public men. Meantime monopoly and various forms of privilege have done disastrous work under the license of the individualistic theory, and become so powerful as not only to control the government itself, but to educate the people in the belief that their privileges are an integral part of the democratic system.

It may fairly be said that the developments in Great Britain, France and the United States in the last century partake more of a riot of individualism than the orderly advance of democracy.

Our next step is to make clear the Germany policy:

At the outset it must be emphasized that Germany, speaking through the mouth of Bismarck, gave direct challenge to this conception of the impotence of the state in controlling individual activities and framing positive programs for the public good. 'I have the feeling,' he said, 'that a state may also be responsible for its omissions.' He and his coworkers proceeded upon the theory that it was not only proper that the state should interfere with quasi-public functions, but that it was the duty of the state to administer these functions.

While France was fatally dallying with the private control of her transportation system, and Great Britain delivered over the railroads bodily to high finance, Bismarck declared that railroads were not designed to be the subject of financial competition, but were intended for the service of traffic. In taking over the railroads of Prussia and providing for the control of the imperial government over the German railroads, he was not acting as an opportunist, but held firmly to the idea that to the state belonged the duty of controlling the avenues of commerce. A government guided by such a principle could not be trapped by high finance into the sophistries which have crippled the private transportation systems of the world. The German government wasted no time in the vain project of railroad regulation. It declared prophetically that 'regulation would cut down the receipts of railroads until private capital would shun enterprises so rigorously controlled; when railroads thus began to break down, the government must waive its demands for regulation in the general interest.' Hence, it is concluded 'the system of private companis must disappar on account of these inconsistencies.' The present status of the railroads in Great Britain, France and the United States proves the wisdom of this reasoning. Capital has been piled upon capital until the requirements of industry and the necessities of railroad development have come into inevitable antagonism. Meantime the railroads of Germany have in a generation earned more than sufficient to pay off the entire capital cost, which would, if so applied, leave as transportation burdens merely the cost of operation. The extension of this idea in Germany to all quasi-public functions and the demonstration of its success are naturally regarded by high finance as a menace to its most cherished resources.

This line of effort is not, however, Germany's most notable offence against the individualistic theory. In the field of social protection and development her activities have been far more profound. Bismarck pried away the foundations of the Malthusian theory by denying that poverty was a necessary condition in a well-ordered state. He declared, on the contrary, that it is the duty of the state to protect the weak, and to abolish or minimize poverty and its attendant economic waste. In a few words he challenged the individualistic principle as an instrument of the powerful for the oppression of the weak. 'Those,' he said, 'who deny the operation of the state for the protection of the weak expose themselves to the suspicion that they wish to use the strength they possess, either in capital, rhetoric or otherwise, for the oppression of others, and for the securing of party supremacy, and they shudder when this process is disturbed by any influence of government.' No man has in so few words exposed the whole scheme of human exploitation involved in the laissez faire doctrine. In this small frame is the whole picture of monopolistic development which has proceeded so far in the United States that honest men are questioning whether plutocracy in possession of a government is an improvement on the imperial system.

In trenchant and prophetic language Bismarck announced the system of poor laws to be a mere stage of development in the process of destroying pauperism. In the place of charity, he declared the absolute right of him who serves the state with his industry to be protected against the menace of poverty. In conferring the right upon the German to protection against disability in old age, sickness, unemployment or injury, he said, 'such laws tend to promote a sense of human dignity, which I would have the poorest German retain, that he may not stand defenceless as a mere receiver of charity.' In the very beginning he confessed that he could hardly refrain from substituting the words 'every German' for the words 'every workingman' in the statutes for disability insurance.

Against the charge that his plans were socialistic he said: 'Let the name be practical Christianity, not paying the people with words and phrases, but providing them with something substantial.' 'I would rather,' he said, 'that a state which has a majority of Christians should be in some measure influenced by the tenets of the religion we profess.' Straightaway he exposed the developments of the individualistic theory, and met the socialistic attack by pointing out that 'the state which provides real help for the workingmen will give them confidence that the state is not an institution devised practically for the protection of the better situated classes of society, but one which serves their needs and interests.' Out of this principle of the duty of the state to the citizen has been evolved the great system of individual improvement which has raised Germany to a height of economic, industrial and commercial power that has astonished and alarmed the world.

The process of education has found no line of demarcation at the period of youth or the abolition of illiteracy. It has pushed into the fields of human effort, to train all the productive functions to a higher efficiency. Hence, undoubtedly, is her supremacy in the fields of competition.

The operation of this system of state service to the people passes beyond the mere limits of material efficiency; it has made illiteracy a thing of the past, has torn up the slums by their festering roots, brought science, industry, commerce and labor to the highest pitch of productivity, and gone far to substitute for pauperism a self-respecting independence; it has made physical, moral and mental degeneracy a discredit to the state, and inspired the people with a sense of gratitude and loyalty born not of professions but of deeds; it has built a state upon the theory that it cannot escape the weakness of its units; it has not only brought to the government the support of the weak whom it has helped, but the service of the strong and expert in promoting the powers of the nation. The military prowess of Germany, a natural result of a strengthened citizenship, has, I believe, not as deeply affected the thoughts and imaginations of men as its wonderful regulation of internal affairs.

The United States should have no share in the conflict of arms; but it cannot escape participation in the economic contest that will go on quite indifferent to the clash of arms. Here before us are tangible evidences of a system which has so bettered the efficiency of a people as to attract the mingled admiration, fears, envy and hostility of the world.

Facing as we do the political urgency of a socialized state, shall we refuse to study the efficacy of a serviceable state? We need not contemplate the adoption of foreign methods, but it is not wisdom or patriotism to avoid the adaptation of any system which appears to have strengthened another people. We may discard it, but we should at least understand it.

The answer will not suffice that such methods are inapplicable to a free state. I beg to assert that they are primarily fitted to a free state.

It is an accident if imperial forces see the wisdom of perfecting the individual welfare in order to strengthen the state; it should be the natural order that a people governing themselves should utilize to the full all the functions of their own organization, the state, to build up the welfare of themselves.

It may even be said that only by democratic methods can social services be properly administered. Those who are to be served are the best judges of the effectiveness of the service. In no way has this been emphasized more definitely than in the management of the German railways. A democratic system has been perforce evolved by an imperial government. In the different railroad districts the chambers of commerce, agricultural societies, trade unions and other organizations concerned with transportation form by their delegates the local councils, which in turn elect members of the national council. These popular organizations practically regulate the business of the state railroads; in short, the organizations of those who are served.

If an imperial power like Prussia has devised such a democratic system, shall it be said that a democracy is incompetent to furnish like service to itself?

We are a self-governing people; we are free to study world systems, and need ask the permission of no man to adopt or adapt the good we find, and dismiss the evils. That freedom of the people from the will of any man I would not abandon for all the blessings which the benevolence of an imperial will could bestow; but how poor a patriot I should be were I to reject truths from any source, that may add to the happiness of my fellow citizens and strength to the republic which I have faith to believe is to become the highest example of justice, mercy, liberty and the lasting peace of human brotherhood.

(The following excerpts from the Campaign Book of the American Embargo Conference:)

THE CAMPAIGN BOOK OF THE AMERICAN EMBARGO CONFERENCE.

THE PURPOSE.

The one purpose of the American Embargo Conference is to bring about the organization of all American citizens who, in the name of humanity, favor an embargo on all Munitions of War now being sought in the United States by the warring powers of Europe.

THE WORK.

The American Embargo Conference is now engaged in a practical effort to organize the men and women of the country, who are opposed to the shipment of munitions, into a body of voters strong enough to compel the lawmakers of the nation to heed its expression of sentiment and its demand that the United States maintain a strict neutrality.

THE REASON.

The plan of campaign adopted by the American Embargo Conference is necessary, firstly, because in this country, where practical politicians direct the elections, it is imperative to adopt practical politics in any effort to secure results.

Time and again it has been demonstrated definitely that the circulating and signing of petitions is a sheer waste of time. The same must be said of the plan of flooding the lawmakers with circulars, though they may be mailed in by the hundreds and from sections of the country.

The petitions and the circulars go into the waste-paper baskets.

The one way to convince the elected representatives of the people that they must listen to the demands of their constituents, and either grant their just demands, or be retired to private life, is to adopt the method of the practical politician, or organize the men and women, and with the voters solemnly pledged to give their support only to the candidate who declares himself willing to devote his best efforts to their cause, then make the demand that the United States place an embargo on all munitions sought by any of the warring powers.

THE PLAN.

There is just one way to do this. That way is to organize, and in this instance, to organize means far more than the holding of mass meetings, the applauding of speakers and the general expression of the opinion that the movement deserves support.

Signing your name to one of the post card pledges, in favor of an embargo on munitions is but the beginning. After you have done this much for the movement, you can begin to aid in making it possible for the Conference to accomplish what it has been organized for—the organizing of a political power that will be strong enough to compel the lawmakers to heed the just demands.

LINING UP THE VOTE.

In a nutshell, here is the method. The post cards sent to you call for the names, addresses, wards and precincts of the voters who are pledging themselves for an embargo on munitions. When these cards are returned to the headquarters of the Conference, experienced clerks will classify and index all names so that at all times the Conference will be able to hold a check on, and will be able to show the exact voting strength of the movement in every precinct of the nation.

The Conference will be able to supply you, at any time, with the exact conditions in your particular precinct; will be able to tell you just what proportion of the vote of your precinct is pledged to the movement, and will in this way show to you how much work will be necessary on the part of you and the other sincere workers, who have so generously given time and services to the movement.

Have your committeemen visit the influential men of the section—men of all nationalities—and make a sane argument for what we are working for. You will find that it is not hard to convince many men that your arguments are sound and you will have made new converts.

Line up the big men of your section who are in favor of the embargo; list them with your members and on your committee and when you have them with you call upon them, if it becomes necessary, to curb the rabid attacks that will be made upon the movement by men of marked pro-Allies tendencies and by some of the newspapers. A word from some of your business men will often convince frenzied editors that your movement is entitled to fair play.

Do everything to impress upon all interested that this movement with its plan of an organized voting force is the first movement to promise success and that there is to be no doubt of the success if all who join do all in their power to spread the work."

EXHIBIT 19.

APRIL 24, 1916

REVEREND SIR: We are making this extraordinary appeal to you, a minister of the Gospel because we feel that the reliable information we have from Washington, makes it necessary for us to ask the citizens of the entire country to join in a mighy expression of the real peace sentiment of the people of the United States.

We give you the most earnest assurance that the situation today is most critical, and that there is not enough time left for the expression of sentiment to be mailed to Washington. It must be telegraphed.

We have prepared form telegrams of a night letter and we are appealing to you to sign these messages and have them signed by members of your congregation and by other patriotic citizens who do not want to see this country involved in the terrible European war. Signed by the men who will have to bear the real burdens and who will be forced to realize all of the horrors of war.

We appreciate the fact that in the caring for the poor and unfortunate of your congregation, and in doing other work for God, you could not be expected to be asked to care for any expense involved in this telegraph expression, but we assure you that we will bear all the cost. All that we ask is that you get the messages signed. Have one man sign but one message. Then, if you will we would like to have you seen to the sending of the night letters and if you will send us the bill for all of the expense a check will be mailed to you at once.

We call your attention to the fact that the telegrams instruct you to hold them until a further words from us. Please ignore these instructions on the messages, and instead of this please see that they are filed with the telegraph companies as soon as signatures are secured. Since the forms were printed the situation has become even more serious and we cannot waste a minute by delaying. The messages should be sent at once. Will you please do this for the peace loving people of your country?

Again assuring you that all costs for the work will be paid for by us, and thanking you for what you will do, we beg to remain,

Most earnestly yours,

THE AMERICAN EMBARGO CONFERENCE.

APRIL 19, 1916

DEAR SIR: Readers of Eastern newspapers are taught to believe that Nation is clamoring for war, and many who depend upon these papers their information as to public sentiment are led to believe that this is true.

For this reason, we take the liberty of enclosing herewith an editorial from the Chicago Daily Tribune, of April 17th, which reflects the public sentiment of the great middle west, and seriously urge that you read it carefully and give heed to its points.

It reflects the opinions of the man in the street, who is the man who typifies the Nation. He is the man who foots the bills, pays the taxes, furnishes the ranks of armies, and decides political questions at the polls.

This man is opposed to shedding his blood and that of his sons in a war that he does not believe justified, and he is too honorable to wage war in any other way. He knows that England was told that financial assistance and her navy would be all that would be expected of her, and that England now has conscription, and has shed the blood of hundreds of thousands of her best sons.

For this reason his voice should be supreme in the land, and heard over the voices of those whose personal or financial interests may warp what they may believe is true patriotism.

The Tribune says that "the people of the country would vote against entering the European war, or taking any step which would bring us within reach of such a catastrophe because of any of the issues of law and fact raised in the submarine controversy," if "it were possible to refer the question to them."

Congress is supposed to represent the people. When the people go to the polls, they vote to have a representative in Washington. If the people would vote against a war over the present issues, what then, should be the vote of their representatives in Congress? Do they represent the people? If they do, there is only one way to vote.

Very sincerely yours,

THE AMERICAN EMBARGO CONFERENCE.

[The American Embargo Conference (Incorporated), Room 905, 139 North Clark Street (City Hall Square Building), Chicago. Col. Jasper Tucker Darling, President, Chairman of the Executive Committee; W. R. Macdonald, General Manager; J. H. Forrest, Secretary; C. Hjalmar Lundquist, Secretary; William D. Falk, Treasurer. Telephone Randolph 3189.]

REVEREND SIR: We are certain you have looked with abhorrence upon the continued slaughter of human beings on the battlefields of Europe and that as a friend of Humanity you have deplored a continuation of that slaughter and have wished you might raise your voice in effective protest. That these wholesale murders have been perpetrated in large part with arms and ammunition manufactured in the United States has caused a general protest from friends of Humanity throughout this country and has resulted in hundreds of thousands of letters to Congress urging an Embargo Resolution that would free this country of the charge of complicity in the slaughter and enable us to live up to the spirit as well as the letter of the neutrality we have proclaimed.

We take pleasure in sending you literature showing how you may join with thousands of other ministers and laymen to put a stop to this traffic in the instruments of death. This literature will show you what the American Embargo Conference has done and is trying to do.

If you do not care to join the organized movement, which is having a real effect upon Congress, will you not write to your Senators and Representatives urging them to stand for an Embargo that will help stop the slaughter in Europe? If they favor an Embargo, will you not write them your thanks and assurance of support in the matter.

Your voice will carry weight to help stop this traffic, which is also causing great economic as well as moral injury to the United States for the profit of only a few.

One of the letters enclosed will show you just how this Conference has undertaken to organize the tremendous sentiment in this country against the traffic in arms. It has brought results only because it was organized, that Congress might hear the voice of the people at home.

Voters had not realized the power their letters might have until they joined in a concerted movement to call the attention of the Congress to the sentiment. Only American citizens have been asked to join the movement.

The fight now in Congress is in a critical stage and your letter may be the one to decide a wavering Congressman or Senator.

This is your opportunity to join in a movement that stands for the best interests of humanity and real neutrality. Will you help?

If you feel you cannot find time to join this Appeal for Humanity, will you not turn the matter over to some friend who is interested?

Trusting for an early and favorable reply, we are,

Very sincerely yours,

AMERICAN EMBARGO CONFERENCE.

MacDonald, general manager; J. H. Forrest, secretary; C. Hjalmar Lundquist, secretary; William D. Falk, treasurer. Telephone Randolph 3189.]

DEAR SIR: We take great pleasure in enclosing check for $ to reimburse you for the telegrams sent to Congress for which the senders were unable to pay.

We wish to thank you sincerely for your co-operation in this patriotic move to show Congress that a great mass of the people who have not been heard before because they had no means of expression at their command are for peace and real neutrality during the present world-wide war.

We are sure that Congress and the country were impressed by the earnestness of the appeal which came so spontaneously and overwhelmingly, and again wish to thank you for your share of what was done.

Sincerely yours,

THE AMERICAN EMBARGO CONFERENCE.

[The American Embargo Conference (Inc.), Room 905, 139 North Clark Street (City Hall Square Building), Chicago. Col. Jasper Tucker Darling, President, Chairman of the Executive Committee; W. R. MacDonald, Secretary; William D. Falk, Treasurer. Telephone Randolph 3189.]

DEAR SIR: With this letter we are sending to you a supply of a special letter addressed to your Congressman. We are very anxious that you have as many of these letters as is possible signed and mailed to him at Washington. Please see that the letters are sent in separate envelopes as individual letters.

We call your attention to the fact that in having this done you will be doing a very important work for the embargo movement.

The situation is this:

Your Congressman is a member of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs.

The Embargo Resolution is in the hands of the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

At the present time our latest information gathered in Washington is that the Embargo Resolution will be passed by the Senate when it is called up for consideration, and that it will be passed by the House if it is reported out by the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

There are a number of Congressmen who will support the resolution if it reaches the floor of the House. But we believe that some of these men are not at all anxious to cast their votes for the measure and would like to see it held in the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

For this reason we are asking you that the enclosed appeal to your Congressman be sent by as many of the voters of your district as possible.

The appeal to the Congressman is a fair one. He is asked to at least vote to have the resolution reported out to the House if he can not give it his support.

Remember that the fight for the embargo is at the critical stage. The fight is won in the Senate, and it will be won in the House if the resolution is reported out by the Committee.

So we again urge you to do all that is possible toward inducing your Congressman to give the resolution just and fair treatment, and we repeat that each letter sent to him by a sincere voter means just one step nearer to final success.

We know that you will not let any failure to act in this matter bring about the defeat of the Embargo Resolution.

If the voters do not want to mail the letters get them to sign them and then mail them in the separate envelopes and we will reimburse you for the expense incurred.

Will you please let us know what you will do?

Very sincerely yours,

THE AMERICAN EMBARGO CONFERENCE,
WILL R. MACDONALD, Secretary.

CHICAGO, April 8, 1916.

DEAR SIR: You have signed one of our cards, pledging yourself to work for an Embargo on War Munitions, when the matter is taken up by Congress. Doubtless you have been one of the thousands who have written their Congressmen and Senators asking them to support this measure. For that reason, you will be interested to know that the Resolution has gained scores of friends in Congress, and that Congress has shown the world that it realizes the peace sentiment and the demand for real neutrality in the United States.

At this time, we wish more support in your State. Because you have pledged yourself to aid this movement, we take the liberty of enclosing more cards, and trust you will make it your duty to have other friends of the Embargo Movement sign them, and then return the cards to us. If you get more signers than you have cards for, paste a sheet to the cards, or send the names on another sheet of paper.

If you know the Congressional District in which the signers live, mark it on the cards, in the place indicated.

All victories gained through the efforts of this Conference are not won by the Conference, but by the voters. The Conference can only show them how to make their voices heard in Washington, and they have spoken with such a loud voice that Congress has heeded them.

It is, therefore, your duty to assist in enlisting more voters for this worthy cause and all we ask is that you have the cards signed, by voters, and returned to us as soon as possible.

We know that you will do your share in this great work, because you already have helped.

But do not delay. Let us hear from you at once.

Sincerely yours,

AMERICAN EMBARGO CONFERENCE.
WILL R. MACDONALD, Secretary.
